

Questions and Answers about God's Law, the Holy Bible

Transcripts of Discussions with Harold Camping on Family Radio's "Open Forum" Call-in Program about the Bible.

WITH APPENDICES:

- 1 – What is the True Gospel?
- 2 – How Do I Become Saved?
- 3 – God's Magnificent Salvation Plan
- 4 – Sunday: The Sabbath?
- 5 – Faith Study
- 6 – The Phenomenon of Speaking in Tongues
- 7 – What God Hath Joined Together
- 8 – Interview with Harold Camping

"All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." (2 Timothy 3:16-17)

Published by:

Good Message Foundation

1072 S. De Anza Blvd #532 / San Jose, California 95129 USA

Phone: (408) 741-0219 FAX: (775) 305-3953

Web Site: GoodMessage.org Email: Info@GoodMessage.org

 Please Call At Any Time For FREE Bible Information ***

No rights reserved. Any or all parts of this work may be reproduced in any way or by any means without permission from the publisher.

Questions and Answers about God's Law, the Holy Bible

Transcripts of Discussions with Harold Camping on Family Radio's "Open Forum" Call-in Program about the Bible.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION	9	The Gospel in Genesis 27 (099A)	29
THIS BOOK	9	Who are the "Sons of God" in Genesis 6:2? (232B)	30
FAMILY RADIO	9	"Cursed be Canaan" in Genesis 9:25 (243B)	30
CHAPTER 1 -- BAPTISM.....	11	Why Was Cain's Sacrifice Not Acceptable in Genesis 4:5? (328E)	31
GENERAL	11	31
Why Did Christ Go to John the Baptist to be Baptized? (146A).....	11	When Jacob Wrestled with God in Genesis 32:24 (336C).....	31
In Whose Name are We to be Baptized? (149C).....	11	Purgatory and Locating the Garden of Eden (338B).....	31
The Nature of John the Baptist's Baptism (251A).....	11	The Descendancy of Black People in Gen 10:6 (418A).....	32
Word Study on Baptism (456A).....	12	EXODUS	32
What Does "Baptized for the Dead" Mean in 1 Corinthians 15:29? (585A).....	12	Why Did God Harden Pharaoh's Heart? (113B).....	32
INFANT BAPTISM	12	Zipporah Circumcises Moses' Son in Exo 4:24-26 (380A).....	32
What Does the Bible Teach About Infant Baptism? (006B).....	12	LEVITICUS	33
What is Your View on Infant Baptism? (006E).....	13	Some Questions About Leviticus 10 (029A).....	33
Does the Bible Have Anything to Say About Infant Baptism? (336A).....	13	The Cleansing of Lepers in Leviticus 8:23-24 (142A).....	33
Should Babies be Baptized? (346A).....	14	JUDGES	33
Are We to Baptize Infants? (358B).....	14	The Spiritual Significance of Judges 19 (216A).....	33
The Scriptural Basis for Infant Baptism (403A).....	15	Samson Loses His Strength in Judges 16 (274E).....	35
WATER BAPTISM	16	RUTH	35
Is Water Baptism Necessary to be Born Again? (034D).....	16	The Gospel in the Book of Ruth (241A).....	35
What is the Nature of Water Baptism? (149D).....	16	1 SAMUEL	36
Immersion or Sprinkling for Baptisms? (197B).....	17	The Evil Spirit in 1 Samuel 16:14 (211C).....	36
The Relationship Between Water Baptism and Salvation (240A).....	17	Was King Saul Saved? (233B).....	37
Sprinkling or Immersion? (358B).....	18	The "Cave" as a Figure of Hell in 1 Samuel 22:1 (257A).....	37
BAPTISM IN THE HOLY SPIRIT	18	The Gospel in David and Goliath in 1 Samuel 17 (274C).....	38
What Does it Mean to be Baptized in the Holy Spirit? (314B).....	18	The Deceitfulness of Mediums in 1 Samuel 28 (278B).....	38
How Can There Be Only One Baptism? (501A).....	19	2 SAMUEL	38
REBAPTISM	20	Was David Moved by the Lord or Satan? (346B).....	38
Do I Need to be Rebaptized? (357A).....	20	1 KINGS	39
Should I Be Rebaptized When Joining a New Church? (433C).....	20	Solomon's Besetting Sin in 1 Kings 11 (448A).....	39
CHAPTER 2 -- THE BIBLE IN GENERAL.....	21	2 CHRONICLES	39
Why Do Biblical Accounts Sometimes Differ? (029B).....	21	Healing the Land in 2 Chr 7:14 (356D).....	39
Read the Bible! (142E).....	21	NEHEMIAH	39
Personal Bible Study (182D).....	21	Rebuilding the Wall in Nehemiah 4 (339D).....	39
The Nature of the Gospel (203A).....	21	JOB	39
The Composition of the Bible (217A).....	22	What Type of Animal Was Leviathan in Job 41? (093B).....	39
God Speaks to Us Only Through the Bible (225B).....	23	PSALMS	40
Bible Footnotes and Paraphrased Bibles (227C).....	23	Psalm 23 Explained (110A).....	40
Is the Bible Missing Any Information? (231C).....	23	On Our Being "Sons of God" in Psalms 82:6 (113A).....	40
What is the Tenach? (285B).....	23	The "Cave" as a Figure of Hell in Psalms 142:1 (257A).....	41
How Do We Know that God Authored the Bible? (290B).....	23	"Ye are gods" in Ps 82:6 & Jn 10:34 (394D).....	41
How Do We Read of Unseen Events in the Bible? (328C).....	24	ISAIAH	41
The Word "Forever" in the Bible (328D).....	24	The Gospel in Isaiah 6 (1143C).....	41
The Original Languages of the Bible (346C).....	24	The Gospel in Isaiah 54 (370B).....	42
Is the Apocrypha Authentic? (391C).....	25	Understanding Isaiah 30:15 (411B).....	42
What is the Nature of the Bible? (410B).....	25	Does God Create Evil as in Isa 45:7? (420B).....	43
The Veracity of the Bible (529A).....	26	Isaiah 1:10-17 Explained (426C).....	43
Challenge to Mr. Camping's Teaching Style (555A).....	26	JOEL	43
Coping with Conflicting Interpretations (593A).....	28	Dreams and Visions – Joel 2:28 Explained (114D).....	43
CHAPTER 3 -- BIBLE VERSES EXPLAINED	29	The Pouring Out of the Holy Spirit in Joel 2:28-31 Explained (259C).....	44
GENESIS	29	JONAH	45
		"Should I not spare Nineveh?" in Jonah 4:11 (354C).....	45
		Jonah and the Gourd in Jonah 4 (512A).....	45

ZECHARIAH	46	Worshipping God in the Spirit in Jn 4:24 (590B).....	68
Is Zechariah 14:16-21 Referring to the Millennium? (034C).....	46	ACTS	69
Zechariah 13 and 14 Explained (645C)	46	Was Cornelius Saved to Begin With in Acts 10:2? (265C).....	69
MALACHI	47	ROMANS	69
Malachi 4:2-3 Explained (463B).....	47	"Life and Peace" in Romans 8:5 (143B).....	69
Malachi 4:1 and Everlasting Hell (528A)	48	The "Gifts" in Romans 12:8 (247B).....	69
MATTHEW	49	Romans 8:21 Explained (414C).....	69
Christ Came to "Bring a Sword" in Matthew 10:35 (100B).....	49	Standing Before the Judgment Seat in Rom 14:10 (421F).....	70
How Does Christ Deny Men in Matthew 10:33? (100D).....	49	The Christian and the Law: Romans 7 (549A)	70
Blessed are the Poor in Spirit in Matthew 5:3 (130C).....	49	1 CORINTHIANS	70
On Being Least in the Kingdom of God in Matthew 11:11 (136A)	49	How is Christ the "Second Adam" in 1 Corinthians 15:47? (034A)	70
The Two Genealogies of Christ in Matthew 1 and Luke 3 (136C)50		"To the Weak I Became Weak" in 1 Corinthians 9:22 (141B)	71
The Rich Young Man in Matthew 19 (212B)	50	The Issue of Hair Length in 1 Corinthians 11 (203C)	71
Witnessing to Children — The "Little Ones" in Matthew 18:14 (247A).....	50	"I say, not the Lord" in 1 Corinthians 7:12] and Is it Okay to Serve in the Armed Forces? (242B).....	71
"Least in the Kingdom of Heaven" in Matthew 5:19 and 11:11 (262A).....	51	Baptism for the Dead in 1 Corinthians 15:29 (314C).....	71
Understanding Matthew 24 (305B).....	52	When a Spouse is Unsaved in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16 (321D)	72
Who Was Mary Magdalene? (328F).....	52	What Does "Baptized for the Dead" in 1 Corinthians 15:29 Mean? (585A).....	72
Is Adultery Grounds For Divorce? – Understanding Matthew 19:9 (599B).....	53	Tongues and Other Gifts of the Spirit in 1 Cor 13 (374C).....	72
Parables Concerning Salvation in Mt 25 & Lu 17 (384B).....	53	Understanding 1 Corinthians 12:3 (384A).....	73
"Whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth" in Mt 16:19 (394C)	53	Understanding 1 Corinthians 7:36-37 (525A)	74
Do Not Misapply the Bible & Mt 7:1 (413C).....	54	What Does "Baptized for the Dead" Mean in 1 Corinthians 15:29? (585A).....	74
The Resurrection in Matthew 27:51-52 (430B).....	54	2 CORINTHIANS	74
"Lead us not into temptation" in Mt 6:13 (459B)	55	The Written Code Kills in 2 Corinthians 3:5-6 (244A)	74
Matthew 18:15-20 Explained (582B).....	55	"My grace is sufficient for thee" in 2 Corinthians 12:9 (323C)	75
"Prayer and Fasting" to Remove Demons in Mt 17:21 (856C).....	55	EPHESIANS	75
First and Last in the Kingdom of God in Mt 19:30 & What Does "Believe" Mean?.....	56	Did Jesus Actually Descend into Hell in Ephesians 4:9-10? (323A)	75
MARK	57	PHILIPPIANS	76
The Cursing of the Fig Tree in Mark 11:12-14 (178C).....	57	Philippians 1:15-18 (727A)	76
The Rich Young Man in Mark 10 (212B).....	57	1 THESSALONIANS	76
The Signs that Follow Believers in Mark 16:17-18 (244A).....	57	Comments on 1 Thessalonians 5:1-11 (513E)	76
Clean and Unclean Foods in Mark 7:19 (290A)	58	1 TIMOTHY	77
Jesus Heals the Sick Man in Mk 2:9 (357B).....	59	"Endless Genealogies" in 1 Timothy 1:4 Explained (111B).....	77
"The Eye of a Needle" in Mk 10:25 (581A).....	59	Will Christ Save the Whole Human Race in 1 Timothy 4:10? (111C).....	77
LUKE	59	Clean and Unclean Food in 1 Timothy 4:4 (142C).....	77
The Two Genealogies of Christ in Matthew 1 and Luke 3 (136C)59		TITUS	77
Why was Jesus Evasive in Luke 22:67? (203B).....	59	Titus 2:11 Explained (416A)	77
The Rich Man and the Steward in Luke 16 (207A)	59	HEBREWS	78
Sharing in Luke 3:11 (212B)	60	The Division of Soul and Spirit in Hebrews 4:12-13 (143A)	78
New Wine into Old Wineskins in Luke 5:37-39 (242C).....	60	Deliberate Sin and Our Salvation in Hebrews 10:26-31 (187C)...	78
The Trinity and Abraham's Bosom in Luke 16:22 (257E)	61	Do Biblical Warnings in Hebrews 3:12-19 Apply to Believers? (201A).....	79
The Kingdom of God is With Us in Luke 17 and 24 (265A).....	61	Hebrews 10:26 Explained and Sunday Worship (206B)	80
Hating Mother, Father, Wife, etc. in Luke 14:26 (288C).....	61	Is Jesus Always the Same in Hebrews 13:8? (244A)	80
The Two Thieves in Luke 23:39-44 (336B).....	62	The Kingdom of God is With Us in Hebrews 1:3 (265A)	81
The "Mammon of Unrighteousness" in Luke 16:9 Explained (759A).....	62	Understanding Hebrews 8:11 (288B)	81
Parables Concerning Salvation in Mt 25 & Lu 17 (384B).....	62	How is it that Christ "Learned Obedience" in Hebrews 5:8? (323B)	82
The Parable of the Servants in Lu 12:45-49 (432A)	63	The Identity of Melchizedek in Hebrews 7:1 (325C).....	82
JOHN	63	Can One Lose His Salvation in Hebrews 6:4-6? (338E).....	82
Eating and Drinking of Christ in John 6:53 (009A).....	63	1 PETER	83
How Does the Lord "Prune the Branches"? in John 15:2 (035A)	63	What is the "Day of Visitation" in 1 Peter 2:12? (093C).....	83
"Greater Works Than These Shall He Do" in John 14:12 (136D).....	64	The Devil as a Roaring Lion in 1 Pet 5:8-9 (586C).....	83
No One Has Ascended to Heaven" in John 3:13 (214C).....	64	Casting Our Cares Upon Christ in 1 Pet 5:17 (598A).....	84
The Wedding at Cana in John 2:1-11 (219D)	64	2 PETER	84
The Meaning of "World" in John 3:16 (226B).....	65	God Wishes for None to Perish in 2 Peter 3:9? (345A).....	84
Doing Greater Works than Jesus in John 14:12 (244A).....	65	1 JOHN	84
"It is Finished" in John 19:30 (259B)	66	How Does One "Test the Spirits" in 1 John 4:1? (113C).....	84
The Forgiving and Retaining of Sins in John 20:23 (319A)	66	What is the "Unforgivable" Sin in 1 John 15:16-17? (235A)	85
"Touch Me Not" in John 20:17 (340D).....	67	What is the Sin that Leads to Death in 1 John 5:16? (339B)	85
The Invisible Workings of the Holy Spirit in Jn 3:7-8 (379B).....	67	JUDE	86
Doing Works in Christ's Name in Jn 14:12-14 (383A).....	67	Praying in the Holy Spirit in Jude 20 (244A)	86
"Ye are gods" in Ps 82:6 & Jn 10:34 (394D).....	68
Elijah and John the Baptist in Jn 1:21 (453C)	68

Did Moses Physically Die in Jude 9? (278A).....	87	What is the Relationship Between the Church and Heaven? (192D)	113
REVELATION	87	The Validity of Church Authority (198C).....	114
Why is the Tribe of Dan Missing in Revelation 7? (010B).....	87	The Difference Between Religion and Christianity (371C).....	114
What is the "First Resurrection" in Revelation 20:5? (029E).....	87	Comments on Today's Church Scene (383B).....	115
The Mark of the Beast in Revelation 20:4 (143E).....	87	Music in the Church (435A).....	116
"He That Hath an Ear" in Revelation 2 and 3 (206C).....	87	Can a Priest or Minister Forgive Sin? (439B).....	117
Understanding Revelation 20:4-5 (212C).....	88	On Disagreeing with a Bible Teacher (537A).....	117
The Two Beasts in Revelation 13 (234B).....	88	The "Holy Father" and the Antichrist (650A).....	117
The Identity of the 144,000 in Revelation 7:4 and 14:1 (260D).....	89	PRAYER	118
When Was Revelation Written? (483B).....	89	Does God Have a Timetable for Answering Prayers? (013D).....	118
The Battle of Armageddon in Rev 16:16 (571A).....	89	Do We Pray to the Father or to Jesus? (278D).....	118
CHAPTER 4 – CHARISMATIC ISSUES	90	Praying in Jesus' Name (340B).....	118
GENERAL	90	Interceding for a Troubled Friend (380B).....	119
The Laying On of Hands (240C).....	90	Silent Prayer (393B).....	119
Understanding the Name of Jesus (266B).....	90	Praying for the Dead (537B).....	120
Was that an Image of the Lord I Saw? (274B).....	91	Some Guidelines Concerning Prayer (566A).....	120
Do We Pray to the Father or to Jesus? (278D).....	91	Praying in Your Closet (900X).....	120
Comments on Today's Church Scene (383B).....	91	RITUAL & LITURGICAL ISSUES	120
Understanding the True Gospel (675A).....	92	Fasting (013C).....	120
DREAMS AND VISIONS	94	The Role of Women in the Church Assembly (113D).....	120
Does God Speak to Us in Dreams? (111D).....	94	The Question of Tithing (130B).....	121
Does God Allow Revelation Today Through Dreams? (112B).....	94	Is Casting the Lot for Today? (147D).....	121
Dreams and Visions – Joel 2:28 Explained (114D).....	95	Understanding Communion (227B).....	122
Are Dreams and Visions for Today? (330C).....	95	The Laying On of Hands (240C).....	122
HEALING / EXORCISM / SIGNS & WONDERS / MIRACLES	95	The Significance of Anointing with Oil (251B).....	122
Miraculous Healings (099E).....	95	Communion and Forgiveness (257D).....	122
Are Believers Empowered to Cast Out Demons? (132A).....	96	Preparing a Son or Daughter for Communion (325A).....	123
Have Signs and Miracles Ceased? (410C).....	96	Tithes and Offerings (345B).....	123
Is Healing Going On Today? (411B).....	97	Is it Displeasing to God to Hold a Rosary? (419A).....	123
Do Miracles Take Place Today? (502A).....	98	SUNDAY WORSHIP	124
Divine Healing (557A).....	98	See: APPENDIX 4.....	124
TONGUES / THE HOLY SPIRIT	99	Hebrews 10:26 Explained and Sunday Worship (206B).....	124
Tongues and the Baptism of the Holy Spirit (140A).....	99	Why Is Sunday Our Day of Worship? (321C).....	125
Understanding the Baptism of the Holy Spirit (234A).....	100	Sunday is Our Day of Worship (539A).....	125
The Pouring Out of the Holy Spirit in Joel 2:28-31 Explained (259C).....	101	CHAPTER 7 – CREATION ISSUES	126
What Does it Mean to be Baptized in the Holy Spirit? (314B).....	102	CREATION SCIENCE	126
Seeking the Gifts of the Holy Spirit (373A).....	103	What Type of Animal Was Leviathan in Job 41 (093B).....	126
Tongues and Other Gifts of the Spirit in 1 Cor 13 (374C).....	104	Is Adam and Eve Fact or Fiction? (099B).....	126
The Significance of Being Filled with the Spirit (401B).....	105	Science Versus Christianity (114C).....	127
Talking in Tongues (558A).....	105	The Origins of Race (178E).....	127
Is Talking in Tongues for Today? (565B).....	106	Evolution and the Age of the Earth (222A).....	127
Being "Slain in the Spirit" (643B).....	107	The Age of the Earth (230D).....	128
CHAPTER 5 -- CHRISTMAS	107	What Happened to the Dinosaurs? (325D).....	128
Questions Concerning the Wise Men (001A).....	107	Creation Versus Evolution (348A).....	129
Why Did the Angels Appear to Shepherds Only? (002A).....	108	The Descendancy of Black People in Gen 10:6 (418A).....	130
Is the Sharing of Gifts at Christmas Unbiblical? (002B).....	108	Some Questions on Creation (418B).....	130
Is it Sinful to Observe Christmas? (002C).....	108	The Difference Between Spirit and Soul (552A).....	131
No Room at the Inn? (002D).....	108	The Place of the Earth in the Universe (584A).....	131
A Christian Perspective on Christmas (003A).....	109	THE HOLY SPIRIT	132
The Question of Sharing Gifts at Christmas (003B).....	109	When Did the Holy Spirit First Make Himself Known? (010A).....	132
Santa Claus and Children (004A).....	110	The Work of the Holy Spirit (013B).....	132
Can We Know the Date of Christ's Birth? (004B).....	110	Who is the Holy Spirit? (093D).....	133
The Problem With Nativity Scenes (004C).....	111	GENEALOGIES	133
CHAPTER 6 – CHURCH AND RELIGION	111	Are Americans and Britons Descendants of Israel? (035B).....	133
CHURCH ATTENDANCE	111	UNIDENTIFIED FLYING OBJECTS	133
Fellowship, Attending Church, and Personal Witness (147C).....	111	The Question of UFO's (226A).....	133
What If One Cannot Physically Attend a Church? (319B).....	111	Are UFO's Somehow Related to Angelic Activity? (247C).....	134
FIDELITY OF WITNESS	112	Have You Really Studied the Subject of UFO's? (562A).....	134
Can We Discern Hypocrites in the Church? (114B).....	112	CHAPTER 8 – END TIME PROPHECY	135
Judgment Begins at the House of God (150B).....	112	GENERAL	135
Diviners, Mediums and False Prophets (151B).....	112	Why is the Tribe of Dan Missing in Revelation 7? (010B).....	135
What is the True Gospel? (343B).....	113	The Book of Revelation – An Overview (186A).....	136
Joking About Godly Matters (375C).....	113	The Four Horsemen of Revelation (6230B).....	137
GENERAL CHURCH ISSUES	113	The Identity of the 144,000 in Revelation 7:4 and 14:1 (260D).....	137
Some Comments on Evangelists (009C).....	113	The Sequence of End-Time Events (261A).....	138
		Understanding Matthew 24 (305B).....	139

The USA in Prophecy (325B).....	140	ANGELS	164
Obsession with End-Time Prophecy (379A).....	140	Understanding Guardian Angels (371B).....	164
Luke 21:34-36 and the End-Times (425D).....	141	THE INTERMEDIATE STATE	164
The Seven Churches and the Seven Seals (470D).....	141	Where Do We Go When We Die? (221A).....	164
The Fate of the Earth (499A).....	141	How Do We Know that Our Soul Lives After Death? (266A).....	164
Daniel's Seventieth Week (548A).....	142	The Intermediate State and the Final Judgment (268B).....	165
Zechariah 13 and 14 Explained (645C).....	142	What Happens When We Die? (282A).....	165
THE TRIBULATION	143	Where Does a Believer Go When He Dies? (338A).....	166
Believers and the Final Tribulation (180A).....	143	HELL	166
Will the Church Go Through the Tribulation? (246A).....	143	Will There Be Degrees of Punishment in Hell? (243E).....	166
The Fall of the Corporate Church in the Last Days (260E).....	145	What Will Happen to Those Who are Not Saved? (286A).....	166
How Long Will the Tribulation Last? (293D).....	146	Questions Concerning Hell (314A).....	167
THE BEAST / THE ANTICHRIST	146	Did Jesus Actually Descend into Hell? (323A).....	167
The Mark of the Beast in Revelation 20:4 (143E).....	146	Purgatory & Locating the Garden of Eden (338B).....	168
The Two Beasts in Revelation 13 (234B).....	146	Why Do Unbelievers Have to Be Judged? (346E).....	168
Who Will the Antichrist Be? (330B).....	147	Understanding Hell (463B).....	168
The "Holy Father" and the Antichrist (650A).....	147	Malachi 4:1 and Everlasting Hell (528A).....	170
THE RAPTURE	148	Will Hell Really Go On Forever? (536A).....	171
The Rapture and the Millennium (150A).....	148	"I Don't Care if I Go to Hell" (732A).....	171
The Timing of the Rapture (198B).....	148	CHAPTER 11 – ISRAEL AND THE JEWS	172
Understanding the Rapture and Millennium (249C).....	149	Are Americans and Britons Descendants of Israel? (035B).....	172
Is There Hope for Sinners After the Rapture? (316C).....	150	God's Promises to Abraham Concerning Israel (138A).....	173
The Coming of Christ and the Rapture (321A).....	151	Will There Be An Earthly Reign of Christ? (139A).....	174
When Will the Rapture Take Place? (411A).....	151	The Future For Israel, the Fig Tree (154A).....	175
THE SECOND COMING	151	The Future for National Israel (155A).....	177
The Fate of Children at the Lord's Return (010C).....	151	The Cursing of the Fig Tree in Mark 11:12-14 (178C).....	178
Does Christ Know the Day and Hour of His Return? (101C).....	152	Is Israel Still a Special Nation? (285D).....	178
The Battle of Armageddon (230C).....	152	The Jewish Misunderstanding Concerning Salvation (317A).....	178
Battle of Armageddon in Rev 16:16 (571A).....	153	Who Are the Jews? (349B).....	180
THE MILLENNIUM	153	Will There Ever be Peace in Israel? (514B).....	180
Understanding the Millennial Reign (029C).....	153	CHAPTER 12 – JESUS AND HIS MINISTRY	180
Is Zechariah 14:16-21 Referring to the Millennium? (034C).....	153	GENERAL	180
Will There Be An Earthly Reign of Christ? (139A).....	154	Why Did Jesus Use Spit in Two of His Miracles? (101B).....	180
The Millennial Reign (146B).....	155	The Nature of Christ's Suffering for Our Sins (227D).....	181
The Amillennial and Premillennial Positions (210A).....	155	Where Was Jesus After His Resurrection? (231D).....	181
CHAPTER 9 – GOD & THE GODHEAD	156	Jesus' Resurrected Body (263A).....	182
GENERAL	156	What if the Jews Had Accepted Christ? (322A).....	182
God's Name: "I AM" (210C).....	156	Did Jesus Actually Descend into Hell? (323A).....	182
Why is Jesus Called the "Son of God"? (257C).....	156	Did Christ Go to the Cross Willingly? (370C).....	183
Understanding the Name of Jesus (266B).....	156	CHRONOLOGY	183
The Identity of Melchizedek in Hebrews 7:1 (325C).....	157	Does Christ Know the Day and Hour of His Return? (101C).....	183
The Permissive and Desirous Wills of God (340A).....	157	The Two Genealogies of Christ in Matthew 1 and Luke 3 (136C).....	183
Is Jesus Part of the Godhead? (394A).....	157	183
Was Jesus God? (521A).....	158	Three Days and Three Nights? (163D).....	184
Why Does God Get Angry? (543A).....	158	The Timing of Christ's First Coming (257B).....	184
THE HOLY SPIRIT	158	Christ's Year of Birth (274D).....	184
When Did the Holy Spirit First Make Himself Known? (010A).....	158	PERSONAL RELATIONSHIPS	184
The Work of the Holy Spirit (013B).....	158	Was Mary (Jesus' Mother) Special? (000A).....	184
Who is the Holy Spirit? (093D).....	158	The Relationship Between Jesus and John the Baptist (225A).....	185
The Invisible Workings of the Holy Spirit in Jn 3:7-8 (379B).....	159	Why Didn't Mary Recognize Jesus? (339A).....	185
THE TRINITY	159	Was Peter Saved Before Christ's Death? (380C).....	186
The Mystery of the Trinity (146C).....	159	Why Didn't the Other Disciples Suspect Judas? (393A).....	186
The Trinity and Abraham's Bosom in Luke 16:22 (257E).....	159	The Disciple Whom Jesus Loved (414A).....	186
The Mystery of God's Personality (262B).....	159	CHAPTER 13 – MARRIAGE & DIVORCE	187
CHAPTER 10 – HEAVEN AND HELL	160	GENERAL	187
GENERAL	160	Is Abortion Right or Wrong? (214A).....	187
Where, Exactly, are Heaven and Hell? (191C).....	160	Morality Standards Apply Equally to Men (316A).....	187
HEAVEN	160	Is Birth Control Biblically Acceptable? (442E).....	187
Tears in Heaven? (147E).....	160	The Problem of Lust (544A).....	188
The "Kingdom of God" and the "Kingdom of Heaven" (162E).....	161	COURTSHIP	188
What Is Heaven Like? (188A).....	161	Choosing a Partner (440A).....	188
What is the Relationship Between the Church and Heaven? (192D).....	161	Some Advice on Dating (480A).....	188
Is Heaven a Physical Place? (206A).....	162	A Biblical Perspective of Courtship (574E).....	189
Rewards in Heaven for Believers? (224A).....	162	MARRIAGE & REMARRIAGE	189
Understanding Paradise (410A).....	163	Remarrying the Wife You Divorced (100E).....	189
Could Heaven be in Outer Space? (576A).....	163	On Being Childless (166A).....	190
		Living With an Unsaved Husband (200D).....	190

Can There Be Remarriage After Divorce? (224B).....	190	Can A Saved Person Go Insane? (243C).....	219
Marriage When Divorce Has Previously Occurred (244B).....	191	Discouragement and the Christian (321B).....	219
Polygamy in Old Testament Times (266C).....	191	Is it Normal for a Christian to Feel Frustrated? (324A).....	220
When a Spouse is Unsaved in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16 (321D).....	191	Feeling Distant from the Lord (345C).....	220
The Different Words for "Love" in the Bible (324C).....	192	On Trying Too Hard to be "Christ-Like" (371A).....	221
Intimacy in Marriage – A Biblical Perspective (384C).....	192	Panic at the Thought of the Lord's Return (375D).....	221
Questions on Remarriage and Christian Living (417A).....	192	Being Comforted + HC's Personal Testimony (414B).....	222
Marrying a Christian Who Does Not Attend Church (458B).....	194	The New Life of a Believer (592A).....	222
The Christ-Centered Marriage – How Wives Can Help (522B).....	195	THE CHRISTIAN LIFE	223
Coping With a Difficult Husband (649A).....	195	Worldly Entertainment and the Christian (147B).....	223
Questions on Remarriage, Salvation, and Raising Children (771B).....	196	Keeping God's Law Versus Legalism (219B).....	223
Pregnancy and Unequally Yoked Couples (853B).....	197	God's Expectation for Our Behavior (235D).....	223
DIVORCE	197	What is a Carnal-Minded Christian? (251C).....	223
Divorce and Polygamy (196E).....	197	Do Christians Have to Lead Godly Lives? (285C).....	224
Obedying Divorced Parents (219F).....	198	The Expectation of Believers Concerning this World (361A).....	225
Coping with Separation (225D).....	198	Isn't it Better to Die Than to Live? (375B).....	225
Unresolved Bitterness Following Divorce (533A).....	198	The Question of Saving Our Money (414A).....	225
When Your Partner Divorces You (547C).....	200	Joking About Godly Matters (375C).....	226
Is Adultery Grounds For Divorce? – Understanding Matthew 19:9 (599B).....	200	What is "Friendship with the World"? (400C).....	226
Living As a Single After Divorce (855C).....	200	Worldly Philosophies and the Christian (507A).....	227
The Issue of Remaining Single After Divorce (857A).....	201	Pictures and Images of Jesus (556A).....	227
ON BEING SINGLE	203	Cremation: A Biblical Perspective (855B).....	228
Staying Single and Artificial Insemination (349C).....	203	INTERPERSONAL RELATIONSHIPS	228
Some Cautions Concerning Singles Groups (596A).....	203	Dealing with Sinfulness in Others (149E).....	228
CHAPTER 14 – PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY.....	204	How Do We Love Our Neighbor as Ourselves (175A).....	228
WITNESSING	204	Handling Doctrinal Differences (220B).....	228
The Cultural Impact of the Gospel Witness (142B).....	204	Religious Pressure from Your Employer (226D).....	230
Witnessing in the Workplace (222B).....	204	On Friendship and Making Friends (291B).....	230
Witnessing and the School Teacher (243A).....	204	Theft and Restitution for Sin (305A).....	230
How Do You Witness the Gospel? (244C).....	205	On Forgiveness (506A).....	231
Witnessing to Children – The "Little Ones" in Matthew 18:14 (247A).....	205	When Friends Sin (527A).....	231
Witnessing to the Terminally Ill (249A).....	206	FAMILY ISSUES	232
On Being a Christian in the Workplace (318A).....	206	Should We Obey Our Parents if They Ask Us to Sin? (219E).....	232
A Guide to Witnessing (563A).....	206	Obedying Divorced Parents (219F).....	232
Are We Accountable For Not Witnessing? (564A).....	207	Are We to Always Obey Our Parents? (274A).....	232
Witnessing to a Person of Another Religion (645B).....	207	The Problems with Television (330A).....	232
DISCERNING GOD'S WILL	208	SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY	233
How Do We Discern God's Will For Our Lives? (006D).....	208	State Law – A Christian Perspective (034B).....	233
Does God Have a Timetable for Answering Prayers? (013D).....	208	Should Christians Campaign Publicly Against Evil? (197C).....	233
Discerning God's Will for Our Lives (231B).....	208	Capital Punishment (199A).....	234
"Was That God Talking to Me or Not?" (240B).....	208	On Donating Human Organs (230A).....	234
Serving God Out of Fear? (339C).....	209	Is it Okay to Serve in the Armed Forces? (242B).....	234
Do Not Misapply the Bible + Mt 7:1 (413C).....	210	"Love Thy Enemy" Versus Going to War (328A).....	234
How Can I Know What My Life's Work Is? (587A).....	210	Should Churches Join Together to Combat Sin? (341A).....	235
SMOKING, ALCOHOL & OTHER BESETTING PROBLEMS	210	Litigation and the Christian (349A).....	235
Salvation is for Alcoholics Too (094B).....	210	"Thou Shalt Not Kill" (579B).....	235
Breaking the Cigarette Habit (207B).....	211	CHAPTER 15 – ELECTION & PREDESTINATION.....	236
Gaining Victory over Smoking (210E).....	212	GENERAL	236
Gaining Victory Over Masturbation (265B).....	213	What Do You Think of Predestination? (009B).....	236
Is it Sinful to Drink Alcohol? (282C).....	213	Does God Hide Truth from the World? (136B).....	236
Is it Sinful to Desire Wealth? (316B).....	214	Was Judas Predestined to Betray Christ? (198A).....	236
What the Bible Says About Alcohol (373B).....	214	The Issue of Predestination (322B).....	237
How Rich is Rich? (411B).....	214	The Condition of Our Souls Before Birth + Predestination (339E).....	237
Can We Smoke, Drink, etc., in Moderation? (412C).....	215	Does God Wish for None to Perish in 2 Peter 3:9? (345A).....	238
Coping with an Alcoholic Husband (458A).....	216	Was Judas Destined to be Lost? (444B).....	239
The Problem of Lust (544A).....	216	Is God Responsible for the Unbelief of Sinners? (540A).....	239
Playing Cards (643B).....	217	Difficulty in Understanding Pre-election (561A).....	239
The Bible on Homosexuality (762A).....	217	Can We Just Sit and Wait Until God Saves Us? (570A).....	240
Can a Homosexual be Saved? (852C).....	217	Does God Love Everybody? (600A).....	240
Drinking Wine and Christ's First Miracle (853A).....	217	Predestination Explained (731B).....	240
SPIRITUAL GROWTH	218	AGE OF ACCOUNTABILITY	242
How to be "Wise as Serpents" (100C).....	218	Do All Infants Go to Heaven When They Die? (175C).....	242
On Feeling Distant from the Lord (200B).....	218	The Age of Accountability (459C).....	242
The Tempered Joy of a Believer (238C).....	219	ETERNAL SECURITY	242
		What Does it Mean to "Fear the Lord"? (142D).....	242
		Can You Lose Your Salvation? (197A).....	243

Eternal Security (435A)	243	Do Demons Have Power Over Believers? (259A).....	268
FREE WILL	244	"Prayer and Fasting" to Remove Demons in Mt 17:21 (856C)...	268
Free Will Versus Predestination (391B)	244	THE OCCULT	268
Does One "Accept Christ"? (199E).....	245	Dealing with the Occult (37B).....	268
GOD'S FOREKNOWLEDGE	245	Diviners, Mediums and False Prophets (151B)	269
Why Did God Create Man Knowing He Would Sin? (338C).....	245	The Deceitfulness of Mediums in 1 Samuel 28 (278B)	270
God's Foreknowledge Explained (340C)	245	Is Fortune-Telling for Real? (330D)	270
God's Purpose in Allowing Sin (341B).....	246	Dealing with Psychics (370A)	270
Did God Know that Adam Would Sin? (435A).....	246	Interceding for a Troubled Friend (380B)	271
When Was Revelation Written? Does God Know Who Will Turn to Him? (483B)	247	CHAPTER 18 – SIN & SUFFERING	271
Are Predestination and Foreknowledge One and the Same? (526A)	247	GOD'S ALLOWANCE OF SIN	271
Why Did God Create the Universe Knowing There Would be Evil? (546A).....	249	Why Did God Create Man Knowing He Would Sin? (338C).....	271
Does God Know Who Will be Saved? (597B).....	249	God's Purpose in Allowing Sin (341B).....	272
CHAPTER 16 – SALVATION & FAITH	249	OUR FIGHT WITH SIN	272
THE WAY TO SALVATION	249	Gaining Victory Over Sin (093E)	272
Being "Good" Does Not Ensure Our Salvation (099C)	249	Does Our Struggle with Sin Ever End? (232A)	272
God Forgives Completely (112A)	250	Growing in Sanctification (235B).....	273
Does One "Accept Christ"? (199E).....	250	Our Ongoing Fight with Sin (242A).....	273
The Physical Versus the Spiritual Aims of Mankind (211D).....	250	Subjecting Our Thoughts to Christ (518A).....	274
Praying in a Doomed Airplane (328B).....	251	SUFFERING	274
Do "Good" People Go to Heaven? (398A).....	251	Why Does God Allow Suffering? (285A).....	274
"I Don't Care if I Go to Hell" (732A).....	251	Comments on Affliction and Suffering (319C).....	275
GENERAL QUESTIONS ON SALVATION	253	Suffering for Christ (340E).....	275
Can I Know if I am Saved? (099D).....	253	Sorrow, Unhappiness & Being Reviled (532A).....	276
After I'm Saved, Then What? (114A).....	253	How Can One Rejoice While Suffering? (586B).....	277
Can You Lose Your Salvation? (197A)	253	APPENDIX 1 – WHAT IS THE TRUE GOSPEL?	278
Can God "Give Up" on a Christian? (226C).....	254	The Authority Determines the True Gospel.....	278
Was There Salvation Before the Cross? (227A).....	254	The Central Message of the True Gospel.....	278
What is the Proper Way of Consecration? (244E)	254	What Does Mankind Want from the Gospel?	279
What is a Carnal-Minded Christian? (251C).....	255	The Mandate of the Gospel.....	279
Do Christians Have to Lead Godly Lives? (285C).....	255	The Gospel Only is Needed	279
Can We Know the Date of Our Salvation? (288A).....	256	APPENDIX 2 – HOW DO I BECOME SAVED?	280
The Jewish Misunderstanding Concerning Salvation (317A).....	256	APPENDIX 3 – GOD'S MAGNIFICENT SALVATION PLAN	280
What Can One Do to Get a Reward in Heaven? (346D).....	258	PREFACE	280
Does God Promise Physical Blessings? (370E).....	258	CHAPTER 1 -- GOD'S MAGNIFICENT SALVATION PLAN	281
Can a Person Who Suicides Enter Heaven? (574A)	258	Is Man Responsible For His Sin?	281
Can a Homosexual be Saved? (852C).....	258	God Declares Himself To Man	281
SALVATION FOR OTHERS	258	No Man Will Accept God's Offer Of Salvation	281
Will God Save Someone if I Pray For Them? (100A)	258	God Will Save A People For Himself.....	281
Are We to Pray for Unbelievers? (196D).....	259	Anyone Can Be Saved	282
Can Our Pious Actions Save Others? (391A)	259	A Summary Of What We Have learned	282
FAITH, TRUTH & FEARING THE LORD	259	God's Elective Program	282
What is Truth? (141A).....	259	CHAPTER 2 -- T = TOTAL DEPRAVITY	282
What Does it Mean to "Fear the Lord"? (142D)	261	The Gospel Is Preached To Dead People.....	283
How are We to Understand Faith? (151A).....	261	The Doctrine Of Free Will Is Antithetical To The Bible's Teaching Of Our Spiritual Deadness.....	283
The Difference Between Fearing the Lord and Loving Him (324B)	261	The Danger Of The Doctrine Of Free Will	283
What Does it Mean to "Believe in Christ"? (338D).....	262	But What About Those Passages That Apparently Teach Free Will?	283
What Does it Mean to Believe? (516A)	262	CHAPTER 3 -- U = UNCONDITIONAL ELECTION	284
Understanding the True Gospel (675A).....	262	When Did God Elect Those Who Were To Be Saved?.....	284
First and Last in the Kingdom of God & What Does "Believe" Mean?.....	264	The Biblical Doctrine Of Predestination.....	284
CHAPTER 17 – SATAN & THE OCCULT	265	Our Election Is Unconditional	284
SATAN	265	But Doesn't The Idea Of Election Foster Fatalism?	285
Can Satan Still Seek Audience Before God? (235C)	265	God's Will Concerning Salvation Is Completely Sovereign	285
Numerology + Christ and Satan (268A).....	265	God Gives Us Repentance	285
Does Satan Know Who Belongs to God? (341C)	266	God Gives Us Faith.....	285
Does Satan Know Our Thoughts? (393B).....	266	CHAPTER 4 -- L = LIMITED ATONEMENT	286
The Devil as a Roaring Lion in 1 Pet 5:8-9 (586C)	266	Christ Prays Only For Those Who Are To Believe On Him.....	286
DEMONS & SPIRITS	267	Only Those Who Are To Be Saved Are Justified	286
How Does One "Test the Spirits" in 1 John 4:1? (113C)	267	Mankind Whose Sins Have Not Been Paid For Must Be Judged For Those Sins	286
Are Believers Empowered to Cast Out Demons? (132A)	267	But doesn't the bible teach that god would have all men saved?	286
The Evil Spirit in 1 Samuel 16:14 (211C)	267	But Doesn't The Bible Teach That Christ Paid For The Sins Of The Whole World?.....	287
What is an Unclean Spirit? (243D).....	268	In All The World Christ Is The Only Way To Salvation	287

Did Christ Pay For All Our Sins Except That Of Rejecting Christ?	287
But Doesn't The Bible Speak Of Those Who Are Sanctified And Yet Remain In Unbelief?	287
CHAPTER 5 -- I = IRRESISTIBLE GRACE	288
Those God Plans To Save Must Be Drawn To Him	288
The Raising Of Lazarus Shows How Our Will Is Involved In Our Salvation	288
CHAPTER 6 -- P = PERSERVERANCE OF THE SAINTS	289
From What Has God Saved Us?	289
We Have Eternal Life	289
But What About Those Verses Which Seem To Teach That We Can Lose Our Salvation ?	290
The Body Of Christ - Individual And Corporate	290
Israel - An Example Of God's Corporate Body	290
The Teaching That We Can Lose Our Salvation Is A Dangerous Doctrine	290
Peace With God	290
CHAPTER 7 -- CONCLUSION	290
APPENDIX 4 – SUNDAY THE SABBATH?	291
The Bible Is Without Error	291
The Puzzle of the Word “Sabbath”	291
Singular and Plural Words	291
“Week” or “Sabbaths”?	291
The Self Righteous Pharisee	292
Is the Hebrew Word for Sabbath Also the Word for Week?	292
The Old Testament Sabbaths End	292
A New Era of Sabbaths Begins	292
The Sunday Sabbath Thoroughly Documented	292
The Passover Ends / The Lord's Supper Begins	293
Circumcision Ends / Baptism Begins	293
Saturday Sabbath Ends / Sunday Sabbath Begins	293
Christ Himself Observed the Last Saturday Sabbath	293
God Observed the Sunday Sabbath	293
The Sunday Sabbath The Time for the Congregation to Worship	293
The Work of the New Sabbath: Picking, Rubbing, and Eating Corn	293
Harvesting and Eating Corn Equals Hearing and Studying God's Word	294
The Work of the New Sabbath: Healing the Sick	294
Healing the Sick Equals Sending forth the Gospel	294
God Anticipated the New Sabbath on the First Day of Creation	294
God Pours Out the Holy Spirit on the New Sabbath	294
The New Sabbath: A Time for Ministering to Others in the Congregation	294
The New Sabbath: We Bring Our Offerings	294
Sabbath and Rest Re-Examined	295
A Sabbath Rest	295
The Between Sabbath	295
Further Instructions Concerning the Sunday Sabbath	295
More than a Sabbath Day's Journey	296
We Are Not Under the Law We Are Under Grace	296
My Holy Day	296
APPENDIX 5 – FAITH STUDY	296
Physical Healing is a Picture of Salvation	296
The Gospel has Power to Save	297
The Concept of Faith	297
Faith is a Work	297
Salvation is by the Faith of Christ	298
Christ Does All the Work of Salvation	298
Grace versus Works	298
Faith is God's Work	299
APPENDIX 6 – THE PHENOMENON OF SPEAKING IN TONGUES	299
God Uses Satan to Destroy	299
God's Long-Term Testing Program for the Church	299

God's Final Testing Program	299
Two Important Principles	300
Tongues: End-Time Testing Program	300
Satan Uses Tongues to Destroy	300
Israel Goes to Assyria for Help	301
God Intensifies the Final Testing Program	301
The Success of the Tongues Movement	301
Signs and Wonders	301
Fire from Heaven	302
Does Satan Make Fire Come from Heaven?	302
APPENDIX 7 – WHAT GOD HATH JOINED TOGETHER	304
INTRODUCTION	304
CHAPTER 1 -- BIBLICAL DIVORCE	304
What are Ceremonial Laws?	304
Believers Are Not To Be Unequally Yoked With Unbelievers	304
Must I Divorce My Unsaved Spouse?	305
Does that mean then that God intends for a believer to divorce his unsaved wife?	305
CHAPTER 2 -- ADULTERY CALLS FOR THE DEATH PENALTY	305
Only Eternal Damnation Can Break This Spiritual Marriage	305
Only Death Can End The Human Marriage	306
How To Become Free From Our Marriage To The Law Of God	306
CHAPTER 3 -- GOD'S MARRIAGE TO ISRAEL	306
Israel's Misuse Of Deuteronomy 24	307
Divorce For Any Cause	307
Jesus Sets The Matter Straight	307
Deuteronomy 24 Allows Divorce Only For Fornication	307
Divorce Causes An Innocent Spouse To Be Adulterous	307
The Woman Who Is Divorced Becomes Defiled If She Marries Again	308
Deuteronomy 24:1 Allowed Only One Half Of Israel To Divorce	308
CHAPTER 4 -- MATTHEW 19:9	309
No Divorce For Any Reason Whatsoever	309
CHAPTER 5 -- THE UNSAVED SPOUSE BREAKS THE MARRIAGE	310
Art Thou Loosed From A Wife?	310
CHAPTER 6 -- LET NOT MAN PUT ASUNDER	310
The Marriage Union May Not Be Broken By Man	311
CHAPTER 7 -- THE HUSBAND'S UNCONDITIONAL LOVE	311
As Christ Loved The Church	311
CHAPTER 8 -- THE WIFE'S UNCONDITIONAL LOVE	312
A Tyrant Of A Husband	312
Without A Word	313
God Gives The Rules	313
The Wife's Secret Weapon	313
Isn't There a Better Answer?	314
The Problem of Children	314
CHAPTER 9 -- COURTSHIP	314
Take Care Who You Date	315
CHAPTER 10 -- SOME FINAL QUESTIONS	315
Divorce And The Newly Saved	315
The Second Marriage	316
How Did It Happen?	317
APPENDIX 8 – INTERVIEW WITH HAROLD CAMPING	318
DOCUMENT HISTORY	318
Version 1001	318
Version 1011	318
Version 1012	318
Version 1013	318
Version 1020	318
Version 1030	318
Version 1031	318
Version 2001	318
Version 3001	318
Version 3002	318

Questions and Answers about God's Law, the Holy Bible

Transcripts of Discussions with Harold Camping on Family Radio's "Open Forum" Call-in Program about the Bible.

INTRODUCTION

THIS BOOK

This book includes about 120 additional transcripts from Family Radio's "Open Forum" program that became available since the early versions were assembled earlier in 1999, thus making the total about 490 separate discussions. The answers are related to the Bible whenever possible. "Open Forum" is aired live every week night and is hosted by Bible teacher, Harold Camping, who has studied God's divine Word, the Bible, for over 50 years. Mr. Camping is also President, General Manager, and Cofounder of Family Radio, which is based in Oakland, California, USA.

These "Open Forum" discussions were transcribed over a period of years by Family Radio. A listener in Australia, Leon Kolberg, has made the transcripts available over the Internet on his World Wide Web site at www.ozemail.com.au/~lkolberg, which can also be accessed from Family Radio's Web site at www.familyradio.com. In this book "CALLER" refers to the anonymous person who called in with the question, and "HC" refers to Mr. Harold Camping.

This book was assembled by two Family Radio listeners who have grown in the knowledge of their Lord and Savior over the years with help from the questions and answers about the Bible as heard on the "Open Forum" program, and who desire the same for others.

Martin E. Lee

1070 S DeAnza Blvd #372
San Jose, CA 95129

Phone: 408 741-5342

Email: MLee@USStepper.com

Gerald D. Mittelstadt

2850 Sagittarius Drive
Reno, Nevada USA

Phone: 775 786-1665

Email: gdmitt@prodigy.net

FAMILY RADIO

The following information was copied from the Family Radio Web site:

The Ministry of Family Radio

Broadcasting Christ-centered programs to the United States and around the world!

Committed to the Person and Work of Jesus Christ

Family Radio is committed to the Person and salvation work of Jesus Christ as revealed in God's divine Word, the Bible. We are a nonprofit, nondenominational, educational organization dedicated to obeying our Lord's command to preach the Gospel to every creature (Mark 16:15). Family Radio programs include no commercial advertisements. Air time for other Christian broadcasters on Family Radio is free of charge. The ministry relies solely upon God working through listeners for the financial support of day-to-day operations. We as a ministry desire to be entirely faithful to God's divine, infallible Word, the Bible. Every effort is made to accurately present the Gospel of the Bible. In purpose and belief, we stand out from other radio and TV ministries in our faithful reliance on the Bible as the ONLY infallible authority.

First Broadcast in 1959

Family Radio was organized in 1958 under our official name, Family Stations, Inc., and began to broadcast February 4, 1959, over KEAR FM in San Francisco. Since then, God has enabled the ministry to purchase a number of powerful AM and FM stations and several smaller educational facilities and translators around the country. Our domestic broadcasts reach metropolitan areas such as Birmingham, Charleston, Chicago, Cleveland, Jacksonville, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, New York, Omaha, Philadelphia, Sacramento, Salt Lake City, San Diego, San Francisco, Seattle, and Washington, D.C.

International Broadcasts

An important addition came in 1973 with the purchase of an international short-wave station, which we called WYFR, in Scituate, Massachusetts. With the use of many transmitters and antennas, the Gospel is proclaimed in ten languages from thy WYFR facility, now located in Okeechobee, Florida. In 1982, our international outreach was expanded to India and the Far East with the use of powerful transmitters in Taiwan. Family Radio has become a worldwide ministry; our broadcasts now span the globe so "That all the people of the earth may know that the Lord is God, and that there is none else" (1 Kings 8:60).

A Diversified Outreach

In addition to the broadcasts, Family Radio offers Bible-based pamphlets and tracts to teach and exhort and other diverse means of spreading the Gospel, including the following.

Family Radio School of the Bible

Primarily a correspondence school, Family Radio School of the Bible courses are designed to help laymen and professionals to minister in the church, on the job, and at home through the study of various subjects and certificate and degree programs. The school operates on the principle of Matthew 10:8, "freely ye have received, freely give." In accordance with this principle, the FRSB does not charge tuition; it is dependent upon the generosity of students and friends.

Missionary Tours

Family Radio sponsors "Missionary Tours" which provide opportunities for staff members and listeners (at their own expense) to help spread the Gospel through tract distribution. Our ambassadors for Christ have visited cities in North America, South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, and Australia (every continent except Antarctica).

On the Internet

Our Christ-centered programs are now available worldwide, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, on the Internet. Access to the Internet may be via computer or television (with the proper equipment). In addition to the programs on the Internet, Bible studies such as "The Glorious Garden of Eden" and "The Seventy Weeks of Daniel 9" are on our Home Page. Downloadable books include "What God Hath Joined Together" and "God's Magnificent Salvation Plan." The Internet also has our program guide, short-wave schedule, and The Bible. Tell your friends and family that they can find Family Radio on the Internet at: <http://www.familyradio.com/>

Supporting Family Radio

If you believe God would have you financially support Family Radio you can send your tax-deductible gift to:

Family Radio, Oakland, CA 94621 USA

Or use our "Secure Internet Check Form!"

End of Web site information.

For biblically based answers to your questions, you can listen to the Open Forum on Family Radio stations in many locations in the USA on Monday through Friday evenings at 8:30-10:00 p.m. Eastern Time (5:30-7:00 p.m. Pacific Time) or call 800-322-5385 (from within the USA and Canada) during the program to ask a question or make a comment. You can also listen to live broadcasts on Family Radio's Web site at <http://www.familyradio.com/> during those hours. There are also recordings of past programs available on this Web site.

The Open Forum is translated from English into nine other languages and broadcast by short-wave radio around the world. You can also listen to prerecorded short-wave broadcasts on the Web site. Write to Family Radio at the above address to obtain a short-wave broadcasting schedule for your area or call these numbers:

Toll Free: 800-543-1495 (from within the USA and Canada)

Toll Call: 501-568-6200 (from outside the USA and Canada)

CHAPTER 1 -- BAPTISM

GENERAL

Why Did Christ Go to John the Baptist to be Baptized? (146A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I would like to ask you a question and I'll just take the answer over the air. My question is, Why did Christ go to John the Baptist to be baptized? Was there any certain reason for it? And if there was, should there be today also a proper administrator of baptism, and who has the authority to baptize?

HC: The question is relating to the whole matter of baptism. And it begins with the question of why did Jesus leave the area of Galilee and go all the way down to Jericho, along the Jordan River, where John the Baptist was baptizing?

First of all, we have to understand why Jesus was baptized. He was not baptized in the same sense that we are baptized when we believe. It was somewhat related, but it was also quite different. In the Old Testament, before a priest went about his priestly duties or, in fact, before he even could become any kind of a priest, he had to be washed in water. Aaron and his sons were washed in water. And each time they went into the temple to go about their priestly duties, there was a laver of water in the temple, and they washed their hands and their feet.

Now this ceremonial washing indicated that they had become ceremonially cleansed, and therefore could now offer sacrifice. Now Jesus came as the Great High Priest. He also came as the Sacrifice. He was the Lamb that was going to be killed. But He was the High Priest who was to offer this sacrifice. And before He could officially begin His role as the Great High Priest, it was necessary that He, following in the shoes of the Aaronic priesthood, the Levitical priesthood, had to be ceremonially washed.

Now John the Baptist was eminently qualified to administer this cleansing water. Both his father and his mother were direct descendants of Aaron. And so John was in the priestly line himself. And he certainly could administer this water. And so when he baptized Jesus, it was as if Jesus was in the temple and was washing in the laver of water, preparatory to administering the sacrifice. Now this is Old Testament baptism, an Old Testament ablation that was looking forward to the cleansing that would be provided in Christ.

Now our baptism is a similar sign, and it also relates to cleansing. But our baptism has a higher and a greater significance, because it not only officially recognizes that we have been saved, that we have been covered by the blood of Christ and our sins have been washed away. But it also officially recognizes that we have become identified with the Holy Spirit in His program to evangelize the world. In other words, beginning with Pentecost, every born again believer is filled with the Spirit at the time that he is saved. And this is simply language to indicate that he has been qualified to become a witness.

And so when we are baptized in water, all of this is in view. Our sins have been washed away, and we have become identified with the Holy Spirit in His work of evangelizing the world. That's why the Bible speaks of this as being baptized in the Holy Spirit.

Now in the Old Testament there were other ceremonies that pointed to cleansing. There was the offering of a burnt offering. There was the offering of the blood sacrifice. There was the rite of circumcision. All of these were performed by the proper authorities in the temple, by the priests. Just anybody couldn't do these things. This was a very holy observance that took place.

Now by the same token, in the New Testament there is the congregation. In the Old Testament there was the congregation, headed up by the priests. And anyone who was circumcised became a member of the congregation. And so in the New Testament there is the congregation, and it's headed up by rulers who are called elders and deacons. And so therefore the pastor is the one that ought to do the baptizing.

CALLER: OK. So today, too, we still need a proper administrator to administer, right?

HC: Just anybody can't baptize anybody.

CALLER: So if a person just took it upon himself to baptize other believers, their baptism would not be scriptural, would it?

HC: I'm not really certain that I understand all the implications of the question, but think of it this way. When we are saved, we are to affiliate with a body of believers. And in baptism we are announcing to the congregation, "We have become identified with the body of Christ. Our sins have been washed away, and we are joining with you." And so an individual just doesn't go around willfully baptizing. Baptism has to do with becoming a part of the body of Christ, a member of the congregation, a lively stone in the temple of God.

CALLER: If it has to come through a proper administrator, then would it not have to come through a succession of proper administrators? For a baptism today to be scriptural, according to the Bible, would it not have to have been succeeded directly from the apostles down to now?

HC: I don't think so. I don't really think we have to think in terms of apostolic succession. The Bible does teach that as the apostles sent out missionaries, they laid their hands on them, and then they in turn laid their hands on others. But the Bible teaches, in Matthew 18, where God is talking about the church, that wherever two or three are gathered together in His Name, He is in the midst of them.

Now let's suppose that you were in a community, way off somewhere, or let's say you're a soldier in the battlefield, or in a strange country, and there is no church. There is no pastor. And now you want to find other believers, and you want to belong to a church. Well, you find whatever other believers that you can. And maybe you find a handful of them. And now you've got a church.

Now the Bible teaches that you are to have those who rule over you. And someone of your number is to be an elder or a deacon. And if someone is qualified, he is to be called to be the pastor of that little congregation. And then you have a church indeed.

Now ordinarily, of course, you don't have to follow that kind of a situation. Ordinarily we can go from one congregation to another. A congregation can send its roots out to other communities. And if you are a little body of believers in a little community somewhere, you can ask another congregation in another city, "Would you be a sponsoring congregation? Would you help us begin? Would you call for us a proper pastor?" And so on.

CALLER: Is there any place in the Bible where someone was baptized by someone who did not have direct authority from, let's say, the apostles, or from a church?

HC: There is no evidence of that in the Bible.

CALLER: That's really why I was asking the question. It would seem from the Bible then that you would have to have some sort of authority to baptize, rather than just anybody doing it.

HC: Yes. The Bible teaches that it was Peter and John who baptized, it was Paul who baptized, it was Philip who baptized.

CALLER: But if someone had not been baptized by any of the apostles but was just saved by himself, through the Bible, and gathered a group of believers together, would they themselves have the authority to baptize?

HC: I don't think they would have any authority to baptize until they had organized as a church, so that there is church authority, so that there are elders or deacons who rule. You must have a congregation.

CALLER: If this group of, say, 15 people or so had banded together and named one of their group a pastor or an elder, could they then give this man the authority to baptize?

HC: I think so. I'm not absolutely certain of this, but I think so. I think ordinarily they would ask a neighboring congregation to assist them in establishing that this man who was called was properly called and qualified to be the pastor, and so on. And the other congregation then would take part in the activity also, of ordaining this man.

CALLER: What about some churches that just sprang up from certain people, and they did not at the beginning have any authority to baptize? And they've just carried on, and they've grown into quite a denomination. Would not their baptism be unscriptural?

HC: No. You see, we're dealing with a technicality. Finally we have to find out what is going on in the hearts of men. That's why, in a certain sense, your questions are hypothetical, and in a certain sense they're very technical. Finally what it turns on, in any congregation, is the question, "Is someone called of the congregation?"

Here's a congregation of a hundred members. Is the man who is standing as their pastor a man who has been called of the congregation to be their pastor? And is he faithfully bringing the Word of God? I believe then that he has a God-given call, and he would be qualified to administer baptism.

Now it is more ideal, I believe, that a congregation like this, in calling its minister, if it has never called one before, if it works through another congregation so that things will be done decently and in good order. But I'm not confident that that's an absolute requirement.

I could think, for example, of a Bible being sent to Russia, or to China, or some place where they don't have the Scriptures. And a nucleus of believers begins to develop. Now there's no way that there could be any kind of a succession, or whatever. But yet they can form together as a congregation, and they can properly baptize, and so on.

CALLER: But it seems to me in that case, because God knows all things and is in control of all things, that He would still make it possible for a duly authorized person to be there and to make the scriptural baptism available to these people, if this was to be a New Testament church.

HC: It could be. It could be.

CALLER: OK. Well, thank you.

HC: Thank you for sharing. Good night.

In Whose Name are We to be Baptized? (149C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question. In Acts 2:38 Peter was talking, and he said that everyone needs to be baptized in the Name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, "and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Again, in Matthew 29, I believe in verse 28, Jesus is talking to the disciples and tells them to go into all nations, baptizing in the Name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit. I was wondering, someone has told me that the only baptism is baptism in Jesus' Name. Do you have any ideas about that?

HC: The question is: How are we to be baptized, in the Name of Jesus, or in the Name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit?

In Matthew 28 Jesus said, "Make disciples, baptizing them into the Name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit." But when we get to the Book of Acts, there we read of baptism in the Name of Jesus Christ two or three times. When Cornelius and his family was baptized, we read in Acts 10, in verse 48: "And he commanded them to be baptized in the Name of Jesus Christ."

Now first of all, the phrase "in the Name of Christ" has to do with the authority of Jesus Christ. Remember, Jesus said, "If you ask anything in My Name, the Father will do it," that is, on My authority. It's as if you are an ambassador of the United States to a foreign country. Then you will perform certain actions in the name of the United States. You are the representative, and you are doing it on the authority of the United States. And I believe this is the primary emphasis on this phrase "in the name of."

And so when someone is baptized in water, it's on the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ, because he has become a child of God. In Acts 2, in verse 38, where it's speaking of what salvation is, we read, "Repent (that's our action, we turn away from our sins) and be baptized every one of you in the Name of Jesus Christ." Now the baptism that's referred to here, incidentally, is not water baptism. That's not the subject of Acts 1 and 2. It's baptism in the Holy Spirit. You've got to have your sins washed away and you have to be identified with the Holy Spirit in His work of evangelizing the world, which is going to be true of everyone, beginning with Pentecost. And this happens to you on the authority of Jesus Christ, "for the forgiveness of your sins. And you shall receive the Holy Spirit as a gift."

Now when Jesus said in Matthew 28, "Be baptized into the Name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit." He used a different preposition there. In the Name, the preposition would be "en." But in Matthew 28 the preposition is "eis" which ordinarily is translated "into." And so when we are baptized into the Name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, it means that we have entered into God. He has become our eternal dwelling place.

It's typical of what we read, for example, in Romans 8:1: "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus." When we have been saved, we have entered into the Triune God. This is a concept that really boggles our mind. How can we be so intimately identified with God? But nevertheless, this is what God teaches us. So really there's no contradiction. We are baptized in the Name of Jesus Christ, that is, on the authority of Jesus Christ, into the Name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, into God Himself. We actually enter into God Himself in a mysterious way.

CALLER: OK. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

The Nature of John the Baptist's Baptism (251A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I have a question about the nature of the baptism of John. In the Gospel according to Mark, in verse 4 it says, "John did baptize in the wilderness and preached the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." Since Christ had not died yet and since there is no atonement without blood, what kind of forgiveness was he talking about? And I would ask the same about Christ, before He died. And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: Thank you very much for calling. Good night.

A question is raised which is a very logical and a very good question. Since there is no forgiveness of sins without the shedding of blood, and yet John the Baptist was baptizing the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins, what kind of a baptism was this?

Let's enlarge the question. How did the Old Testament believers become saved? What kind of a salvation did they have if Christ did not go to the cross until AD 33?

Actually, you see, the Bible teaches that the efficacy of the atonement, the impact, the cleansing power of the blood of Christ, is timeless. Remember in the Book of Revelation it says that His blood was shed from the foundations of the earth. The Old Testament believer was saved exactly as we are saved, by the shed blood of Christ. It's true that in time Christ went to the cross. But the impact of the cross reached all the way back to Adam and Eve and all the way forward to ourselves, because Christ is outside of time. He is the great "I AM."

And that is why we can read of Noah that he found grace in the eyes of the Lord, and he lived five thousand years before Christ. That's why we can read of Elijah that he was caught up in a whirlwind into Heaven. He could go into Heaven only because his sins had been dealt with. Otherwise there would be no way that he could go into Heaven.

That is why we read of Abraham, who lived two thousand years before Christ, that he is called the father of all believers. Those people were saved like we are, by placing their trust in the Messiah. Now they looked at Him as the coming one. We look upon Him as the one who has already come. But their salvation was the same.

And so someone who trusted in God and in the coming Messiah - this was evidenced by the fact that he was baptized by John. The baptism of John actually was an Old Testament ablution. It was typical of that which was utilized by the Old Testament laws, when they were told to wash for certain situations.

Well, I hope this will help.

Word Study on Baptism (456A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Brother Camping. I've been studying baptism again, and I've noticed some things on it, not particularly the mode, but the different uses. Are you familiar with the word used in Luke 16:24, where it talks about Lazarus dipping his finger, the word bapto?

HC: Yes.

CALLER: There are several words I found: baptisma and baptismos and there's bapto, and there is bapto. Three of those are nouns, and I think a couple of them are verbs. I'm not sure. But the thing I'm asking is, in relationship to, would it be safe to say that bapto, the way it's used in that connection, that is, dipping, as a noun it means to wash or to cleanse, but it depends on how you wash or cleanse? In other words, it could be dip or it could be another form. Would that be safe to say that?

HC: I don't think so. The word bapto is used about six times in the New Testament, if I remember, when I made a study of this. And it's translated to dip, like Jesus said in connection with the betrayal by Judas, "whosoever dips his sop." That's one place. While it is a cousin word, while it may have the same root as bapto, the fact is, in its usage in the Bible (and the Bible is its own interpreter), it's never used in connection with any part of salvation.

Now the word bapto, or baptizmus, which very frequently is simply translated "baptize," which is in a sense a transliteration of the word, where it is translated as any word besides baptize, is always translated to wash or to purify. It's never translated dip, it's never translated immerse. It's always translated wash or purify or cleanse, because that's the way the sentence would call for it. This has to be the meaning of it.

And when we study the nature of salvation, and we realize that frequently the Bible talks about washing or cleansing, using other words, synonyms to bapto for this, we see how naturally that fits into place. It talks about the washing of the Word, in Ephesians 5, or it talks about the washing of regeneration in Titus 3:5. So bapto definitely has to do with washing or cleansing or purifying.

CALLER: Would it be safe to say that in the particular verses you mentioned it would be ceremonial usage of the term, or mechanical use of the term?

HC: You mean where bapto is translated wash?

CALLER: Yes.

HC: Yes. For example, in Mark 7 it talks about the Pharisees and all the Jews, "except they wash their hands eat not, holding the tradition of the elders. And when they come from the market, except they wash they eat not. And many others there be which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups and pots, of brazen vessels and of tables." Now in these verses the word wash is bapto. And the whole context is just washing, or purifying, or cleansing.

CALLER: I thought that word was baptismos.

HC: All right. But that's the same word. That's simply a different tense, but it's actually the same word.

CALLER: How would the word be used, say, in I Corinthians 12, where it says we are all baptized into one spirit, and then in Romans 6, where it talks about being baptized into Jesus Christ?

HC: You see, in our baptism, when we have been washed of our sins, we have been altogether identified with the Lord Jesus Christ. Now let's look at this passage in Romans 6. There it says, "What shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound? God forbid. How shall we that are dead to sin live any longer therein? Know ye not that as many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ." That is, our sins have been washed away, and we have entered into the Lord Jesus Christ, or Jesus Christ has been altogether become our substitute. . . . "were baptized into His death." That is, by the washing of our sins we were identified with Him in His death. Therefore, we are buried with Him by baptism into death, that is, by the fact that our sins have been washed away, and we've been identified with the Lord Jesus Christ in the atonement. We have entered into His death "that like as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."

Now some of course read this, and they say, "Well, you see, as Jesus went into the tomb and then was raised from the tomb, so we go down into the water and come up." Well, that's a beautiful idea, but that's not the sense of this passage. Jesus was not buried in water. Jesus was buried in a tomb. Jesus came up out of the tomb. And the word bapto in this context is simply indicating that when we are baptized in the Holy Spirit we are altogether identified with Christ in the atonement. He became sin for us. It is like we hung on the cross, and God poured out His wrath upon us. It is like we entered the tomb, and it is like we were raised from the grave. All of this is involved in baptism in the Holy Spirit.

CALLER: You're using these verses in a metaphorical sense, in other words?

HC: Yes. If we understand what baptism in the Holy Spirit is. Let me go back to Ezekiel 38. Maybe that will help us, because there God tells us what salvation is, and He doesn't use the word baptism. But He speaks about water. In Ezekiel 36:25 we read, "Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you and ye shall be clean from all your filthiness. From all your idols will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you. And I will take out the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh. And I will put My Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in My statutes. And ye shall keep My judgments and do them."

Now this is what's involved in being baptized in the Holy Spirit. That is, we become born again. We become a new creature. Now in order for this to be accomplished it's necessary that our sins be paid for, that Christ become sin for us, and that He bear the wrath of God for our sins, that He endure not only physical death but eternal death, damnation, and that He experience the resurrection as the proof that He has done all of these things and has become victorious. All of this is included in this idea of baptism.

And so in Romans 6 God is identifying baptism with these various aspects. We're baptized into His death, because in His death He paid for our sins. It's not only a physical death but an eternal damnation. It's eternal death, the second death that we are baptized into, and from which we are saved.

CALLER: Sometimes when I'm listening I get a little bit confused. It sounds, when you're talking about baptism and you're referring that to the Holy Spirit, that the death of Christ is merely making possible salvation on the basis of an inward transformation rather than actually Christ's work on the cross actually being our salvation.

HC: Well, both are involved, you see. Christ didn't go to the cross and become sin for me, and now I stand on the outside and somehow try to relate to that. The fact is that when Christ hung on the cross my sins were there, He became sin for me. But then God the Holy Spirit applies that salvation to my heart and actually makes me born again. He actually gives me a new soul. And the work of Christ on the cross then becomes not just a judicial reality, but it actually becomes a reality in my life, a living reality. I have eternal life not just in a hypothetical sense, but in an actual sense, because I have been given my resurrected soul. And that's what baptism, in the Holy Spirit is all about, you see.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling.

What Does "Baptized for the Dead" Mean in 1 Corinthians 15:29? (585A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hi. My question is concerning I Corinthians 15:29. It says, "Else what shall they do who are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?" What exactly does that mean, baptizing for the dead? And is it mentioned anywhere else in the Bible?

HC: The question is, what does I Corinthians 15:29 relate to, where it talks about being baptized on behalf of the dead? The word for here really means on behalf of the dead.

Now nowhere in the Bible does it teach that we are ever baptized on behalf of someone else. Therefore we know that in trying to understand what God is saying here we cannot go in that direction. However, when we understand the nature of salvation, then we can see what God means.

You see, before we are saved, both in body and soul we are spiritually dead. We are estranged from God and we're heading for hell. When we are saved, in our spirit existence, or in our soul, we are born again. We experience the resurrection. And of course our baptism, which is an outward action of water, is pointing to the cleansing that has taken place within our soul, the fact that we are a new creature, that we have become saved.

But we're more than just a soul. We're also a body. And that body is as real a part of us as our soul. Our body, however, was not saved at the moment we became born again. Our body still lusts after sin, our body is still going into the grave to return to the dust, at the time we separate our soul from our body, that is, at the time of physical death. Our soul doesn't go down into a place of silence. It goes into Heaven, to be with Christ, because it already experienced the resurrection when we were saved. But in our body we still must be saved. We still must experience the resurrection. So our body is still dead, spiritually, in that sense.

So therefore our baptism not only is recognizing that in our soul or in our spirit essence we have become saved, but it also recognizes that our dead bodies will also become saved, that is, will experience the resurrection from the dead. And so we are being baptized on behalf of our own dead body. And if there were no resurrection from the dead, then that all also would be vain. That would be futile. That is of course the context of I Corinthians 15 right here, where God is giving various reasons why it is important that Christ rise. Otherwise there could be no resurrection of the dead.

CALLER: OK then. Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

INFANT BAPTISM

What Does the Bible Teach About Infant Baptism? (006B)

CALLER: Hello. Could you tell me what the Bible teaches about infant baptism?

HC: OK. Let me say at the outset, first of all, that nowhere in the Bible does it say that infants are to be baptized. This is not something that is laid out that plainly. But the Bible does say something about how God intends salvation to be accomplished. And the Old Testament believers were saved just as we New Testament believers. Now in the Old Testament, God gave a sign to those who became involved with the kingdom of God, and that sign was circumcision. And so when Abraham was circumcised, back in Genesis Chapter 15 or 16, he not only circumcised his children, that is, his son Ishmael (he then only had one son, who was 13 at the time), but he also circumcised all of his servants in the house, and from that time forward, any boy baby 8 days old was circumcised, to indicate that he became a member of the kingdom of God, or the church of God. Now this did not guarantee salvation for that youngster, but it simply indicated the parent's desire for that child to be a citizen of the kingdom of God, which they belonged to.

Now in the New Testament, the sign of circumcision was set aside. It was part of the ceremonial law, and God did not want it to be used anymore. But He gave a New Testament sign to indicate we belong to Christ, and that is the sign of baptism, that is, water baptism. And so many believers believe that children ought to be baptized just as parents. And they look at a passage like Acts 16, where the jailer of Philippi was saved, and immediately all his household was baptized. Or, in the same chapter, we read about Lydia, and she was saved, and her family was baptized, the same as Abraham and his family were circumcised when that sign was used in the Old Testament. And so this becomes a very heavy reason why some believe that infant baptism ought to be employed.

What is Your View on Infant Baptism? (006E)

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I'd like to have your view on infant baptism, and the Scripture that says, "Baptism does not save us."

HC: You're thinking of First Peter, Chapter 3. Let me look at that a second, so we'll get the right context. First Peter 3:21: "Baptism which corresponds to this now saves you, not as a removal of dirt from the body, but as an appeal to God for a clear conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ." I think that is the verse that you're thinking about.

Well, first of all, what is baptism? Baptism, in its ultimate sense . . . the word baptism means to wash, or to cleanse, or to purify. And the Bible teaches that there is one baptism, and that's the baptism that occurred when our sins were washed away by the Holy Spirit, at the time that we were saved. And so God has given water baptism to the New Testament Church as an outward sign that we have entered the kingdom of God at the time that we were saved.

Now in the Old Testament they used a number of outward signs to identify with the fact that their hope was in the Messiah. There was the activity of bringing offerings: a burnt offering or a blood sacrifice. And there was also ceremonial ablutions of one kind or another. But the sign that was particularly emphasized in every family was that of circumcision. And when Abraham was circumcised (and that was really the official beginning of the nation of Israel) he had his whole household circumcised—his slaves, his servants, all the male children—everyone, as well as himself, was circumcised, because Abraham's household had entered corporately into the kingdom of God. And this was the sign of identification, to indicate that they had entered the kingdom of God.

Now when Christ came, the sign of circumcision was invalidated. That was not to be used anymore, probably because it was so totally interrelated and integrated into the Old Testament ceremonial law. But Christ did give the New Testament a sign indicating membership in the kingdom of God, or the fact that we were looking to the Messiah for the washing away of our sins, and that was baptism. Now the question is, "Do we baptize infants like they circumcised infants in the Old Testament?" Now we know that the Old Testament believers are saved like the New Testament believers; we know that. They're saved by repenting of their sins and throwing themselves on the mercies of Christ. Their salvation is identical to ours in that regard.

Does God expect us now to baptize our little children? The Bible doesn't give us specific detail. In the Old Testament they were told to circumcise a son at the age of 8 days. Nowhere does it say to baptize a youngster at any particular day, or even to baptize a youngster. But the circumstantial evidence points to the fact that they did baptize children. We find in Acts, Chapter 16, for example, when the jailer of Philippi was saved, that he was baptized at once, with his household. And we read in Acts 16 of Lydia, that when she was saved, then she also was baptized, with her household.

And so we begin to see that even as God employed circumcision in the Old Testament as an evidence of trust that our children too are in the kingdom of God, because God has declared, "I will be a God to you and to your children," so in the New Testament He has given baptism as the outward sign or seal. This close relationship between circumcision and baptism is strongly suggested in Colossians, Chapter 2. There we read, in verse 11: "In Him also you were circumcised." Now that's an Old Testament rite, you see, and yet he's talking to New Testament believers: "In Him also you were circumcised with the circumcision of Christ," indicating that that Old Testament rite was pointing to what salvation was.

And then the next verse: "And you were buried with Him in baptism, in which you were also raised with him through faith in the working of God Who raised Him from the dead." And this baptism, of course, is the baptism in the Holy Spirit—the cleansing work of the Holy Spirit when He saved us—the water baptism just being a sign of this, even as the circumcision was the sign. And so there are churches, therefore, who practice infant baptism, and on the basis of what I read in the Bible, I would say that this is not unscriptural. There are other churches that only baptize people upon their profession of faith, and every church does that, if they have not been previously baptized, even those churches that practice infant baptism.

But I must say this. Here I am, a parent, and I'm saved; I am born again. I can't know, when that baby is born, whether at that moment it's born again. It could be, because babies can be born again. The work of salvation is God's work. All I know is that God promises that, or asks me to bring up that child in the fear and the nurture of the Lord. And He has promised that salvation is very close to my child: "You and your household will be saved." And so I am delighted that I can employ a sign that will show my trust that God will save my child, too. And so I have had my youngsters baptized, even as I was baptized as a youngster. Therefore, I am declaring that our whole household, hopefully, is in the kingdom of God. Corporately we are. We pray that individually we may all be, if not presently, some day.

CALLER: Does that go hand in hand with the prayer of a believing parent? It talks about this in First or Second Corinthians.

HC: First Corinthians 7 . . . yes in verse 14 or 15. If one parent is a believer, the children are made holy. That is, they are brought very close to the kingdom of God. Whatever promise accrues to believing parents in regard to their children becomes effective. Now of course, if the parent baptizes the children, and then makes no effort to train that child in the fear and the nurture of the Lord, it indicates that he did not mean business with the Lord at all when he had his children baptized. By this action he is showing that he doesn't . . . this was just a form that he was going through, a ritual. And the odds of his children growing up as being saved are very minimal.

CALLER: OK, but one final question. I always thought, as in the scripture, "Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." That's why it's a little hard for me to understand about infant baptism.

HC: Well, you see, here is a nation that doesn't know God. Now they first become acquainted with the Gospel by the hearing of the Word, don't they? But once a parent is saved, then the promises also flow to the children. And God can save at any age because salvation is from God. Actually, faith and hearing are the response to the Gospel, or are the response to the fact that God is working His salvation power through us.

CALLER: I was thinking, too, that there was a scripture: "The baby jumped for joy in the womb."

HC: Yes, that is Mary's experience with Elizabeth. Elizabeth was six months pregnant with John the Baptist. Now John the Baptist, we read, was filled with the Holy Spirit from his mother's womb, and there are two wonderful, truths that become evident when we read this in Luke 1:41: "Elizabeth heard the greeting of Mary. The baby leaped in her womb, and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit." Verse 44: "For behold, when the voice of your greeting came to my ears, the babe in my womb leaped for joy." And there are two wonderful truths that are found here.

First of all, that a baby in the womb, at six months, is aware of what's going on outside, and mothers should realize this. Already they're beginning to form the character of that baby. When that baby is even six months old in the womb, it's a personality; it's a real person.

Secondly, the fact that this baby reacted to the presence of Mary, who had just become pregnant with Jesus, indicates that John the Baptist, in the womb of Elizabeth, was already saved. This is a second proof on top of the fact that he would be filled with the Holy Spirit from his mother's womb.

Does the Bible Have Anything to Say About Infant Baptism? (336A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Brother Camping, I want to thank you for all the help you have been to me. My question is, does the Bible have anything to say concerning infant baptism? And I'll hang up and listen to you.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you. Good night.

The question is raised, Does the Bible have anything to say about infant baptism?

The Bible does not say anywhere, "Thou shalt baptize infants." But by implication it has quite a bit to say of it. In the Old Testament, in Genesis 17, when Abraham was given the sign of the covenant, that God would be a God to him, we read that he was circumcised with his whole household. We read in verse 10 of Genesis 17: "This is My covenant, which ye shall keep, between Me and you and thy seed after thee. Every man child among you shall be circumcised. And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin. It shall be a token of the covenant between Me and you. And he that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you. Every man child in your generations, he that is born in the house, or bought with money, or any stranger that is not of thy seed, he that is born in thy house and he that is bought with thy money, must be circumcised. And My covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant."

And so on this day we read that Abraham, in verse 23, "took Ishmael his son, and all that were born in his house, and all that were bought with his money, every male among the men of Abraham's house, and circumcised the flesh of their foreskin, the very same day as God had said unto him."

Now circumcision, you see, was the outward sign that was used to indicate that someone had become identified with the Kingdom of God. Abraham was the head of his household, and because he had become a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ (to use the New Testament language), he had entered the Kingdom of God. Now as the head, having entered the Kingdom of God, what about the rest of his household, whom he ruled over?

They had not necessarily become saved at all, but they certainly now corporately were to be identified with the Kingdom of God. Inasmuch as Abraham as the head had entered the Kingdom of God, therefore everything he ruled over was to be identified with the Kingdom of God. And this was done through the rite of circumcision.

And you'll notice that circumcision was done with any male child that was 8 days old or older. Incidentally, when a proselyte, that is, a Gentile, would become a member of the Jewish faith in the Old Testament, the rite that was employed was circumcision. He was circumcised, and this was the sign that he also had become identified with the kingdom of Israel, or the Kingdom of God.

Now this rite of circumcision was an Old Testament ceremonial rite. It took its place alongside the other ceremonial laws. And therefore, it was not to be used once Christ went to the cross.

But Jesus did give two New Testament signs which indicated identification with the Kingdom of God. One was that of baptism. Anyone who was saved was to be baptized in water, even as in the Old Testament someone who became saved and wanted identification with the kingdom of Israel, or the Kingdom of God in the Old Testament Jewish law was to be circumcised. So the New Testament declares that if anyone becomes saved, he is to be baptized in water. And this again is an outward sign to indicate that such identification with the Kingdom of God has occurred.

But now what about children? Well, we read, very interestingly, in Acts 16, that Lydia, a seller of purple (which is not important to our discussion at this point), was saved. And we read in verse 15 of Acts 16, "And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If we have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house and abide there."

We're surprised, aren't we, that she was baptized with her household. Actually, the verse before declares that her heart the Lord opened. "So she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul." But when she was baptized, her household was baptized. We have exactly a parallel situation to what occurred in Abraham's house when he, as the head of the house, entered the Kingdom of God, was identified with the covenant of God. His household was circumcised.

And by the same token, when Lydia was saved, she was baptized, the New Testament sign of identification with the Kingdom of God. And her household was baptized. Now as if to make sure that we would not misunderstand this, we read in the same chapter of the family of the jailer of Philippi. He also was saved. The promise was given to him in verse 31 of Acts 16, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." This is a restatement of the Old Testament promise, "I will be a God to you and your children." This is the way God has always worked in salvation - through families.

If the head of the house is saved, if he would bring up his children in the fear and the nurture of the Lord, then he could also expect that they in turn would begin to give evidence of having been saved. At least to a very high degree this would occur. And therefore they were to be raised, or trained, reared as citizens of God's Kingdom.

Well, then notice what the jailer of Philippi did in verse 33: "He took them [that is, Paul and Silas] the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes, and was baptized, he and all his, straightway" [or he and all his household]. That same night, you see, when he was baptized, after he believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, he was the head of the house, and his family also was baptized directly parallel language to Genesis 17, where Abraham was circumcised along with his household, all that he ruled over.

And so we see here, therefore, that there certainly is strong implication in the Bible that children of believers ought to be baptized. I am a believing parent. I am in the Kingdom of God, according to everything the Bible states. I have a family. I have children. Do I want them identified with the Kingdom of God? Absolutely I want them identified with the Kingdom of God. I'm praying for their salvation. I'm going to bring them up in the fear and the nurture of the Lord. I'm going to trust God's promise that if I bring them up in the way that they should go, in their old age they'll not depart from it. So I'm going to rear them, faithfully, carefully, diligently, as citizens of God's Kingdom. I'm going to be obedient to all that the Bible says, in order to bring up my children in the fear and the nurture of the Lord.

But I want my family identified with the Kingdom of God, too. And therefore, I want them baptized. Now this baptism of my family is not going to save them. Water baptism does not guarantee salvation in any sense whatsoever. God is the one who has to do the saving. But I know that He will work through my faithfulness in bringing up my children in the fear and the knowledge of the Lord, even as He works through my faithfulness in witnessing, so that there will be others who will be saved. Or He will work through my (and when I say my, I'm talking about yours, also, and all faithful believers) prayer on behalf of others, that they might be saved. God in His providence, God in His mercy, makes us human instruments in His hand, so that we carry out His program to bring the Gospel to others, to our own family, as well as to those who are outside of our family.

I feel that infant baptism is on very solid Biblical ground, based on what I read in the Old Testament concerning salvation, based upon what I read in the New Testament concerning salvation. There's only one salvation in the Bible. Let's never forget this. There is only one kind of salvation in the Bible. The Old Testament Jew was saved exactly as the New Testament Gentile. There are not two kinds of salvation. There's only one kind of salvation, and that's through the shed blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. That is through coming with a broken and a contrite heart to God, trusting in Christ as the Savior, or as the one who would forgive our sins.

The Old Testament believer looked forward to the atoning work of Christ on the cross, and the New Testament believer looks back on the cross as an accomplished event. In both cases the efficacy of the cross is the same... it is by Christ's shed blood. It reaches back to Adam and Eve, and cleanses all the Old Testament believers from their sins. And it reaches forward to you and me as we experience salvation.

Therefore we are not surprised to see the parallel language in Genesis 17, when Abraham and his house were circumcised, to that of the language in Acts 16, where we read of Lydia and the jailer of Philippi and their respective households being baptized.

Should Babies be Baptized? (346A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum

CALLER: Hi, Brother Camping. I was wondering about infants. I was wondering, should babies be baptized? I'll take my answer over the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Good night.

The question is, should babies be baptized? Actually, I'm well aware that this is a question where there is a wide difference of opinion. There are many churches that do baptize infants, and there are many churches that do not. I really believe that we can only look to the Bible to try to find some kind of an answer.

Now in the Old Testament, we read in Acts 17, when God came with His covenant to Abraham, God said, "I will be a God to you and your children." And the sign of this covenant is that he was to be circumcised, and all of the children in his family or under his control were likewise to be circumcised. We read in Genesis 17:10: "This is My covenant which ye shall keep between you and thy seed after thee. Every man child among you shall be circumcised. Ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin, and it shall be a token of the covenant betwixt Me and you. And he that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generation, he that is born in the house, bought with money, or any stranger which is not of thy seed."

And so we read in verse 24: "And Abraham was ninety-eight years old when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin, and Ishmael, his son, was thirteen years old when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin. In the selfsame day was Abraham circumcised and Ishmael, his son. And all the men of his house, born in the house or bought with money of a stranger were circumcised with him."

Now it is at this point in time that God began the kingdom of God in its corporate fashion with the nation of Israel, because Abraham was the father of Isaac and Isaac the father of Jacob, and Jacob the father of twelve sons who became the heads of the tribes of Israel. And the sign of belonging to the kingdom of God corporately, or in an organizational way, was circumcision. And notice when they were circumcised, when they were babies, when they were little infants.

Actually, this circumcision did not guarantee salvation for any of these children. Ishmael was circumcised, and there is no evidence in the Bible that he was saved. The slaves that belonged to Abraham were circumcised, but there's no evidence in the Bible that they were saved.

But because Abraham was the head of that household, and ruled over them, and God had made a promise that He would be with him and his family, all of his household was circumcised as an outward sign that Abraham's house had become identified with the kingdom of God. The Gospel was present with the family of Abraham. Those in that family who would believe that Gospel could become born again.

Now in the New Testament we find that God did away with the sign of circumcision. That was particularly related to the nation of Israel as the outward sign of the covenant. And the nation of Israel, from the time of the cross on, ceased to be the recognized official corporate body of Christ. Beginning with the cross and Pentecost, God set up another recognized corporate body, consisting of the congregations and the churches and denominations and groups of believers that would be formed from every nation. And therefore God set aside the sign of circumcision, because it was identified particularly with the nation of Israel.

But in Acts 16 we have the account of the salvation of Lydia, and we have the account of the salvation of the jailer of Philippi. And it's very interesting what we read here. We read in Acts 16:14: "And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple in the city of Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us, whose heart the Lord opened." Incidentally, you notice how it is God who does the salvation: "whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul. And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house and abide there."

Now that's interesting, isn't it? She was saved, and at the time she was baptized her household was baptized. It's parallel, very parallel, to the situation that we read about in Genesis 17. Now as if to make certain that there would be no misunderstanding, we also read on in Acts 16 about the experience of Paul and Silas with the jailer of Philippi. The jailer asked in verse 30, "What must I do to be saved? And they said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." Now that's a parallel promise to the one given to Abraham, "I will be a God to you and your children."

And then it goes on: "And they spake unto him the word of the Lord and to all that were in his house. And he took them the same hour of the night and washed their stripes and was baptized, he and all his, straightway." Interesting, isn't it?

The fact is that God is really indicating here that New Testament baptism is the outward official declaration that someone has become identified with the kingdom of God. Now if I as a parent become saved, I am to be baptized in water, to indicate that I have entered the kingdom of God. But it would seem to me that if when Abraham was given the promise that God would be his God, God told him to circumcise his children, because, after all, he ruled over his children, and there was a promise given to his children that God would care for them, and so they were to be circumcised, to indicate that they too were now associated with the corporate body of Christ, they too had come close to the kingdom, it seems to me therefore that we ought to baptize our children, to indicate that they too have become identified with the kingdom of God. This does not guarantee their salvation. This simply is a matter of identification, of claiming God's promise, where He declares, "I will be a God to you and your children."

Now our task is to bring up our children in the fear and the nurture of the Lord. And we have the promise of God: "Train up a child in the way that he should go, and in his old age he'll not depart from it." You see how this all begins to knit together in a beautiful picture.

Now if we claim God's promise that He will be a God to us and to our children, if we have entered the kingdom of God, and we know now that our children too are corporately in the kingdom of God, we should not be surprised, if we're training them in the fear and the knowledge of the Lord, if our children at a very young age begin to show to a high degree, a high percentage of the time, that they love the Lord, and there is evidence that they too have become saved.

Are We to Baptize Infants? (358B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I was wanting you to speak on baptism, due to the fact that a lot of my friends have been quizzing me, myself coming from a sprinkling baptism viewpoint as opposed to their viewpoints of immersion, and also the area of infant baptism. Maybe you could just share some things along that line, what the Scriptures teach.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you.

The question that's raised is concerning the question of baptism. And actually, there are two aspects that are frequently of concern. One is the mode of baptism. The other is the timing of baptism. Let's talk about the timing of the baptism first.

There are those who believe in believer's baptism. That is that when a person becomes born again, then they are to be baptized. Now that is very scriptural. That is very scriptural. If anyone is born again, and has not been previously baptized, then they ought to be baptized, whether they're a young person or whether they're an adult. They are to be baptized. It has its Old Testament antecedent in circumcision. If anyone wanted to become identified with Jehovah God of the Old Testament, he was circumcised because that was the sign of becoming identified with the Kingdom of God. And so it is true that if someone becomes a believer, then they ought to be baptized.

The knotty question, however, arises in the matter of infant baptism. Are we to baptize infants? In the Old Testament it is very very clear that infants were circumcised. Beginning in Genesis 17, anyone who was a member of a family in which the father or the mother were believers was to be circumcised at eight days. It was the outward sign that declared that this child too was to be identified with the Kingdom of God.

Many churches in the New Testament see in this a very parallel relationship to baptism. In Acts 16 we see this, where it speaks of the family of the jailer of Philippi. At the same time he was saved, he was baptized, of course, because he now had entered the Kingdom of God in a very real way. But at the same time, his household was baptized. The same was true of Lydia, in Acts 16. At the time she was saved she was baptized, and so was her household.

And this directly parallels what we read in Genesis 17. At the time that Abraham was circumcised, his whole household was circumcised. The problem frequently arises, however, that those who believe in the Old Testament that they had been circumcised felt that this guaranteed salvation for them... "I'm a circumcised Jew, and therefore I'm one of God's chosen people. Therefore I can depend upon it that Jehovah God will bring me to Heaven." The same kind of thinking is very prevalent today amongst those who have been baptized as an infant. They believe they have been baptized, and this guarantees that they are saved, guarantees that they will go into Heaven.

Now the Bible does not teach this at all. The Jews who were circumcised as infants had no guarantee of salvation. It was simply an identification to indicate that they had become identified with the Kingdom of God. The fact that the children of Lydia or the children of the Philippian jailer were baptized was no guarantee that they were saved. But it did indicate they had become identified with the Kingdom of God in a corporate sense. Their father, in the jailer's case, and their mother, in the case of Lydia, had become born again believers. Therefore all that were of their families became corporately citizens of the Kingdom of God.

Only, however, if they became born again would they really enter into the Kingdom of God in a personal relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ. Someone in the Old Testament who was circumcised could go to hell just as readily as any unsaved person. Someone in the New Testament who is baptized as an infant can go to hell just as readily as anyone else.

In the Old Testament as well as in the New Testament, however, God did give promises to families. God said, "I will be a God to you and your children." Along with that promise God also gave mandates. He declared that you are to bring up your children in the fear and the nurture of the Lord: "Train up a child in the way that he should go, and in his old age he will not depart from it."

Now you can see immediately that when you tie all these verses together God does work through families. In practice, of course, we see this. The children of believing parents who have made a determined effort to bring their children up in the fear and the nurture of the Lord will see a great number of their children saved in time. Those who are careless in rearing their children, regardless of the fact that they themselves are believers, will not see their children saved, because they are repudiating, setting aside the promises that God has made toward them and their children, by virtue of the fact that they're not training their children up in the fear and the nurture of the Lord.

Now this, I believe, is the biblical teaching. I know this is not understood by a great many because, unfortunately, a great many people do not read the Old Testament carefully enough. They do not understand that the promises that were made to Abraham concerning the fact that in his seed the nations would be blessed, and that he would be a father of a multitude of nations, and he would be given the land as an everlasting possession, were not given to national Israel. They were given to those who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, whether they are of national Israel or whether they are of the nation of the United States or Argentina, or whatever. This is the way God works, through His believers, through parents and their children.

Now in reference to the mode of baptism, there is much confusion on this matter also. There are those who insist that the Bible teaches immersion. The fact is, Young's Concordance, which is a very excellent concordance, a very accurate concordance, defines baptism as immersion. Now the definitions found in Young's Concordance are not Biblical. Young's Concordance is a marvelous concordance in that it gives us all the words of every kind in the Bible, and the places where they are found. And that is a great help. That is without any commentary whatsoever.

However, when Young's Concordance gives definitions of words, then we know we have the work of a man rather than the work of God. When we search out the word baptism, which is the Greek word baptizo or baptizmus, in the New Testament, we find that never is it used in the sense of immersion.

It's used in the sense of washing or purifying. Any time it's used and it's not translated baptize, it's translated to wash or to purify. We find, for example, in Mark 7:3, "For the Pharisees and all the Jews, except they washed their hands, oft eat not, holding the tradition of the elders. And when they come from the market, except they wash, they eat not." And this word wash is baptizo: "And many other things there be which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups." It's baptismos again. It's the word baptize. It means to purify or to cleanse. And we find other places in the Bible where the same word is translated wash or purify.

Secondly, we don't find anywhere in the Bible where immersion is used as a description of salvation. The word immersion is not found in the Bible used in that sense whatsoever. When the Bible talks about salvation, it talks about being cleansed of our sins, being washed of our sins, being purified from iniquity, as well as a lot of other expressions, like being covered by Christ's righteousness, and so on. But we never find the word immersion featured. All the synonyms of salvation have to do with cleansing or purification.

And so the idea that baptism must be by immersion is not found in the Bible. That is a foreign idea to the Bible. It doesn't say anywhere that it would be wrong to immerse. It doesn't say, however, either, that it would be wrong to pour water on or to sprinkle water on. The fact is, the word sprinkle is far more often found in connection with salvation. It is the word that is used very frequently in connection with salvation.

In the Old Testament we find the sprinkling of the blood on the mercy seat. Sprinkling is used constantly. God Himself said, "I will sprinkle many nations." In Ezekiel 36:25 it says that God would sprinkle water upon them, and they shall be cleansed of all of their uncleanesses. And so those who hold infant baptism as one mode, one valid mode of baptism, have very good Biblical basis for it.

It isn't wrong to immerse, but nowhere does the Bible insist on immersion. That just is not found in the Bible. Now there are those who say, "Well, Jesus was immersed. Didn't He go down into the water, and didn't He come up out of the water?" Well, He did go down into the water, and He did come up out of the water. That's Biblical language. But under no circumstance does it say that He was immersed.

The fact is, God gives us further information, in Acts 8, which gives us real reason to believe that He was not immersed when He was baptized, because when the Ethiopian eunuch was baptized we find that it says that both he and Philip went down into the water. We read in verse 36 of Acts 8, "As they went on their way they came unto a certain water, and the eunuch said, See, here is water. What doth hinder me to be baptized? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. And he commanded the chariot to stand still, and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch And he baptized him."

Now if to go down into the water means to be immersed, then Philip immersed himself as he baptized the Ethiopian eunuch. And that of course doesn't make any sense whatsoever. To go down into the water simply means that they saw a little pool of water, or stream, or whatever, and they went down the bank, and they entered into the water. They may have gone ankle deep, or knee deep. It doesn't say how deep. And he baptized him, the Ethiopian eunuch. And then it says in verse 39, "And when they [that is, both of them Philip and the Ethiopian eunuch] were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip [indicating again that to come out of the water does not mean that someone has been immersed]."

Now immersion is a perfectly satisfactory way to be baptized, but it is not insisted upon in the Bible. If you really believe that it is, then you are going to have real trouble. Some people look at Romans 6, where it speaks about the fact that we have been, in verse 3: "Know ye not that so many of us that were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into His death? Therefore we were buried with Him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."

And so they say immersion is a picture of going down into the grave and coming up again. Now that's a very beautiful picture to describe. But the fact is, Jesus was not buried in water. Jesus was buried in a grave. And He came up out of a grave. He didn't come up out of water. He came up out of a grave. And so the picture loses its significance to some degree.

This is not what God is talking about in Romans 6:3. He is simply saying that in our baptism, in the fact that we have experienced this. And actually, the substance of our water baptism is in what the Holy Spirit has done, in cleansing away our sins. When the Holy Spirit baptized us in the Holy Spirit, He identified us with the death and burial and resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ. This is altogether God's action. The water baptism is an outward signification of this.

The Scriptural Basis for Infant Baptism (403A)

CALLER: Good evening, Brother Camping. I have two questions that I would like to ask this evening. One refers to baptism, and the other to marriage. The first one has to do with infant baptism as opposed to being baptized after one is saved. In my tradition we normally will baptize a child within a Christian family when the child is an infant. And I was in a discussion with a young man the other day who said that definitely one had to be baptized after one had been saved. So I had a few questions in my mind about that. Could you go into some detail about whether or not it is more fitting to be baptized as an infant according to what Scripture says, or to be saved first and then be baptized? I've noticed in Acts 10:47 that Peter baptized after salvation had taken place. I noted also in Ezekiel 35:25 God indicates that He sprinkles water to cleanse those who believe.

HC: All right. Let me see if I can get into this a little bit. Obviously there are two major schools of thought on this. There are the churches that do practice infant baptism, and there are those who do not practice infant baptism, baptizing only after a confession of faith.

Let me say that in one area there is unanimity altogether between most churches, whether they practice infant baptism or not. And that is, if someone is grown, that is, an adult, and has not previously been baptized, then baptism will not take place until after there is evidence of conversion. Even in a church where there is infant baptism going on, if a family comes into that congregation and begins to become interested in the Gospel, if they have never been previously identified with a congregation, have never been previously baptized, then the church will only baptize the parents after there is the evidence of conversion, which is exactly the same situation in a church that does not practice infant baptism.

But then what to do with the children. That is where the division occurs. There are those who say no, we must wait until the children grow up enough so that we know that they are saved. Then they will be baptized. And there are those who say no, the parents are baptized. Therefore we ought to also baptize the children. And so we wonder what is the more Biblical?

Now in my personal judgment, as I study the Bible, I find that baptism, that is, water baptism, has no substance in itself. I think again that both churches would agree with this, basically. There is no substance in the act of water baptism. Actually water baptism is a symbol or sign or reflection or shadow of something else that is going on in the heart of that person.

Now if we go back to the Old Testament, to the first clear articulation of the covenant that God made with mankind, God came to Abraham and said, "I will be a God to you and your children." And God commanded that Abraham and his family be circumcised. That is, all the males in his household, including his slaves, his servants, and his children, were circumcised. And the rule was that they were to be circumcised on the eighth day after they were born. In other words, they were to be circumcised as babies.

Why did God ask them to be circumcised? The Bible declares that this was the sign of the covenant. This was the evidence that God had made a covenant of grace with Abraham and his family. Essentially it was like this. Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him as righteousness. He became a born again personal member of the Kingdom of God. He had become identified as a citizen with the Kingdom of God, by God's grace. The covenant of grace really was that covenant, that contract that God had made with Christ, whereby Christ, in His obedience to God in paying for our sins, would make possible the fruit of that covenant, that is, grace, to be bestowed upon those who were to be saved. This is a nutshell is really what the covenant of grace is all about.

And as a recipient of that covenant of grace, Abraham became saved. Now because he was saved, and he was the head of his household, therefore corporately his whole family, as well as all of his slaves and servants, came under the roof of that Kingdom of God. This did not mean that they were saved, but it did mean that because he as the head of his family had entered into the Kingdom of God personally, and also corporately, of course, therefore at least corporately all of his family had entered into the Kingdom of God.

It was much like a family that moved from one country to another. The parents become citizens of that country, and then automatically the children become citizens of that country, even though they have not given any particular assent to the country. The parents have, but not the children. But they automatically also become citizens because the parents are.

And so the act of circumcision in the Old Testament was the act whereby it was signified that this whole family had become identified with the Kingdom of God, in view of the fact that one or both of the parents had personally entered into that Kingdom as a child of God.

Now if a man from another nation, or a woman from another nation wanted to become identified with Jehovah God, he would indicate the fact that he had placed his trust in Jehovah God by becoming circumcised. This placed him in a bona-fide relationship, or it was an indication that he had become a member of the covenant of grace also. He also was entitled then to all the privileges of a Jew insofar as the sacrifices were concerned, and so on.

CALLER: In this sense, though, we're talking about an initiation into a nation, or a group, or something.

HC: Yes, absolutely. We're talking about an initiation or a signification that.

CALLER: I understand that. But what kind of gets me is Romans 6:4, where Paul says, "By baptism we were buried with Him."

HC: All right. Now we'll come to that in just a moment. Now let's look at the New Testament. First let me read from Genesis, so that we'll have this plainly before us. In Genesis 17 we find the time when the account of the circumcision of Abraham takes place. And we read in Genesis 17, where God says in verse 7, "And I will establish My covenant between Me and thee, and thy seed after thee in their generation for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee and to thy seed after thee."

The promises therefore were coming to Abraham and his family, the promises inherent within the covenant of grace. Then He said in verse 10, "This is My covenant which ye shall keep between Me and you and thy seed after thee. Every man child among you shall be circumcised. And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin, and it shall be a token of the covenant betwixt Me and you."

CALLER: What is a token actually?

HC: That's a sign. That's the signification.

CALLER: It has nothing to do necessarily with salvation, though.

HC: No. It simply is a sign. It's the outward evidence or the outward signification really that the whole family of Abraham now has become identified with the Kingdom of God. Only Abraham so far, or Abraham and Sarah, are born again. But the fact is, the whole family and all the slaves, everything under his rulership, have entered corporately into the Kingdom of God. And they are all circumcised, as a token of this identification with the Kingdom of God.

And notice: "He that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generation, he that is born in the house or bought with money of any stranger which is not of thy seed, he that is born in thy house and he that is bought with thy money must needs be circumcised. And My covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant." It's the sign that God has made an everlasting covenant with this family.

Then we find therefore in verse 26, "In the selfsame day was Abraham circumcised, and Ishmael his son [Ishmael was 13 years old at the time], and all the men of his house born in the house and bought with money of the stranger were circumcised with him," all the very same day that God established this covenant with Abraham.

Now we go to the New Testament, and we find in Galatians 5 that the sign of circumcision has been done away with. That became so totally involved in the Old Testament ceremonial law, for whatever reasons God had decided, that God set that aside. But when the apostle Paul is preaching to the family of Lydia, in Acts 16, we read there in verse 14, "And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple in the city of Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us, whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul. And when she was baptized, and her household." Now that's interesting, isn't it? "She besought us saying, If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house and abide there." In other words, she's following in the footsteps of Abraham. She believes. The Lord opened her heart. And she was baptized. But it's interesting that it says, "and her household" was baptized. She was the head of her house. She had corporately and personally entered into the Kingdom of God.

And therefore the same sign was applied to her household, to her children, that they too were thenceforth to be identified with the Kingdom of God. Now this didn't mean they were born again. But it did mean that corporately that family had become identified with the Kingdom of God, as it was in the case of Abraham with circumcision.

Now in Acts 16:31 we read about Paul's encounter with the jailer of Philippi. And the jailer says, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" And they said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." Now notice how that parallels what we read in Genesis 17:8: "I will establish My covenant between Me and thee, and thy seed after thee."

CALLER: May I ask at this point, does that mean that if my wife and I are saved our children also are saved?

HC: No. I haven't said that yet. I've only said that corporately your family becomes identified with the Kingdom of God.

CALLER: So we're talking about identification then.

HC: Just identification, so far. So far we're talking about identification. But in verse 31 of Acts 16, as well as what I was just reading in Genesis 17:7, God is saying, however, that salvation will also come to your children. Now there are certain conditions insofar as this covenant relationship is concerned. There are no conditions insofar as salvation. We're saved by God's grace, not because of any condition.

But God gives a promise to parents. He says, "I will be a God to you and your seed," or to your children. I will save you and your children. But we must read that in the light of some other things the Bible teaches.

God teaches, for example, in Ephesians 6, "Fathers, bring up your children in the fear and the nurture of the Lord." The Bible says in Deuteronomy 6, "When you walk by the way, when you lie down, when you rise up," you are to teach your children these things.

The Bible says in the Book of Proverbs, "Train up a child in the way that he should go, and in his old age he'll not depart from it." So you see, God with this promise is also saying to parents, "But be sure that you are accepting this promise. Be sure that your acceptance of this promise is seen in the fact that you diligently will endeavor to bring your children in the fear and the nurture of the Lord, because My hand is with your family. You are saved, and My blessings will come to your family. If you bring them up as a child of the world, then you will repudiate this promise, because the other side of the coin is that your children will follow the pattern in which they have been trained. And if they have been reared as citizens of the world, then they will live as citizens of the world. If they have been trained as citizens of God's house, if they have been trained to love the Lord and have been taught the Word, when you lie down and when you rise up, and so on, then you can expect that My grace will also extend to them."

And in the case of the jailer of Philippi, we read the same thing as with Lydia and as with Abraham. In verse 33 of Acts 16, "And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes and was baptized, he and all his, straightway." He and all his, the same story all over again that occurred back in Genesis 17, and which happened to Lydia

We must remember that the salvation of the Old Testament is the same as the salvation of the New Testament. The covenant of grace is the same. Our God is the same. His condescending love is the same.

In I Corinthians 7:14 God speaks about a situation where you have one saved parent and one unsaved parent. There God explains that because there is one saved parent, therefore the children are holy. Now that doesn't mean that they're born again. But it does mean that they have been set apart. God looks at the children of saved parents in a different way than He looks at the children of unsaved parents, because God's promise works through families. That is the way God has ordained.

In addition, of course, He in His sovereign good pleasure can reach into the most unsaved situation, and save an individual here and there. And indeed He does do that. But the usual way of salvation is as God works through families.

Now on the other side of the coin, we have this fact. And that is even the very finest of Christian parents still do a poor job of rearing their children in the fear and the knowledge of the Lord, obviously. And it's only God's grace that any of our children are saved. I'm always amazed to find that in families where the Gospel is really emphasized, and seriously the parents do try to rear their children in the fear and the knowledge of the Lord, I'm always amazed that a high percentage of their children eventually show that indeed they have been saved, frequently already when these children are only babies. There's evidence that they've already been saved, because of course God does His saving at any time in a person's life.

Now this is the reason that churches that do practice infant baptism should practice infant baptism. I don't believe they necessarily understand all of this. These practices sometimes can become very ritualistic. And certainly they can become very misunderstood. I know lots of people who have been baptized as infants, and are quite convinced that this guarantees their salvation. And that is so far from the truth that nothing could be further from the truth. There is absolutely no guarantee of salvation.

Infant baptism, if it's practiced, is simply a signification that that child corporately has become identified with the Kingdom of God, because the parent hopefully has personally become a child of God. And if he has become a child of God, and he claims the promise that God gives him, "I will be a God to you and your children," and as a result of claiming that promise he uses every means possible to be faithful to the law of God to bring up his children in the fear and nurture of the Lord, then he can also expect that a high percentage of his children will be saved.

CALLER: That's quite clear to me now. What happens to the child or the person who is unsaved? What happens to those who are never exposed to the Gospel, never are saved?

HC: Your question is, what happens to those who have never heard the Gospel, and die unsaved?

CALLER: Yes.

HC: The Bible teaches that the whole human race is destined for hell. "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Whether they have heard the Gospel or not heard the Gospel, God has revealed sufficiently of Himself in creation so they ought to repent and cry out to God for mercy, and they will not. He has revealed sufficiently of His law upon their hearts so that they know that they are sinners, and yet they will not. And so the whole human race is destined for hell. Only by God's sovereign grace does He reach down here and there and the other place, to save those whom He has chosen from before the foundations of the world.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: Yes. And you made reference to Romans 6, and I don't want to turn away from that.

CALLER: Okay. And Titus 3:5 and onward, being saved by washing and renewal.

HC: Of course Titus, where it speaks about the washing of regeneration and the renewal of the Holy Spirit, is talking about what salvation is. We are regenerated. We are given a brand new soul. We are born again in our soul, not in our body, but in our soul we are born again. Our sins have been washed away. This is what salvation is.

And this is really what Romans 6 is talking about. The baptism that has substance is the baptism that is done by God Himself. We are baptized in the Holy Spirit at the time that we're born again. This is not an act of water baptism at all. This is the fact that our sins have been washed away. We have been cleansed of our sins, and the righteousness of Christ has been imputed to us. This of course occurred because Christ became our substitute in going to the cross, in being buried, and in rising from the dead. Therefore we are in Him in His burial. We are in Him in His death. We are in Him in His resurrection. And this is the baptism in the Holy Spirit, to be totally identified with Christ in the atonement.

This is what provides the washing away of our sins. This is what's in view in Romans 6.

CALLER: Of course later on then, after this identification with Christ through baptism, there has to be an acknowledgment, a confession of faith after that.

HC: Yes. Now in the case of the person who grew up in an unsaved environment, who becomes baptized in the Holy Spirit and becomes a child of God, as one evidence of this he is baptized with water. And it is the congregation, under the proper authority, that does this. He identifies with that congregation. He now signifies that he is not only corporately but personally an eternal member of the Kingdom of God.

Now if he has been baptized as a child, if his parents had corporately identified him with the Kingdom of God but he had never become born again, later on, as a young person or as an adult, or as an old person, he may become born again. This would not be unexpected, in view of the fact that he had come from a Christian home, from Christian parents, and in all likelihood they had given him Christian training. They had claimed God's promise that He might be a God to them and to their children. And so we would not be surprised then when this person also became born again.

Thank you so much for sharing that. Good night.

WATER BAPTISM

Is Water Baptism Necessary to be Born Again? (034D)

CALLER: Good evening. I've got a couple questions on water baptism. Does it alone make one born again? And is water baptism necessary to be born again?

HC: Water baptism has no substantive value at all in itself. Water baptism is simply an outward shadow or reflection or sign of the baptism that has taken place in our hearts by the activity of the Holy Spirit.

You see, baptism means to be washed or cleansed, to be purified of our sins. In Ezekiel 36, we read that God says, "I will sprinkle clean water upon you." Now this is not physical water, because God doesn't use physical water. He is using the water which is the Word of God, which is the Gospel.

And we read in Ephesians 5 where it speaks about the washing with the Word. And so He will sprinkle—utilizing this Word—He will cleanse us from our sins. "I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and you will be cleansed of your sins." Now this is baptism in the Holy Spirit. This is to be washed of our sins and to be identified with Christ on the cross, and to be qualified to become a witness. All of this is embraced in the phrase, to be "baptized in the Holy Spirit."

This is the kind of baptism that is being spoken of in Acts 2, where it says in verse 38: "Repent of your sins and be baptized in the name of Jesus for the remission of your sins." This is not water baptism that's in view here, but to be baptized in the Holy Spirit, to have our sins washed away by the application of the Word of God to our lives by the Holy Spirit.

Now to officially recognize this and to declare to the congregation, and to the world, if you will, that we have become saved, we are baptized in water. The water can be sprinkled or poured on, or we can be immersed. The Bible doesn't give any suggestion or any mandate concerning quantity of water. But the water baptism is the official recognition of what has already taken place in our lives.

It is not a requirement for salvation, therefore. We are saved completely apart from water baptism. Now water baptism can be simultaneous with salvation, as occurred in the case of the conversion of the apostle Paul. Water baptism can be after salvation, as it occurred in the case of the family of Cornelius, that you read about in Acts 10. Or water baptism can be before salvation, as occurred in the case of the Samaritans in Acts 8. But water baptism simply signifies that we have become identified with Christ.

What is the Nature of Water Baptism? (149D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question about the baptism of a Christian. I've been a Christian for some time, and I enjoy witnessing. But over the last couple of days, I've come under the influence of some teaching that teaches that you must be baptized with water, or in water, in order to be a Christian. And yet I was also under the impression, previous to that, that all you had to do was accept the Lord Jesus Christ. And I know that baptism is a commandment that comes after you are saved, using in particular John 3:5 and 6. I don't understand what it's talking about when Jesus says to Nicodemus: "Except a man be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God." Can you explain that?

HC: First of all, your question really is: What is the nature of water baptism? Now we know, for example, from Acts 10 that those who became born again, the family of Cornelius, they were saved and then they were baptized in water, after they were saved. The baptism in water did not add anything at all to their salvation. We read in verse 44 of Acts 10: "While Peter was still saying this, the Holy Spirit fell on all who had heard the Word. And the believers from among the circumcised, who came with Peter, were amazed because the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out, even on the Gentiles. For they heard them speaking in tongues and extolling God. Then Peter declared, 'Can anyone forbid water for baptizing these people who have received the Holy Spirit just as we have?' And he commanded them to be baptized in the Name of Jesus Christ."

And secondly, we know that there is only one salvation. Now the Old Testament believers, they believed without being baptized. Water baptism does not add anything at all to our salvation, but it is commanded of God, the same as Old Testament circumcision was commanded of God. It is actually an outward sign officially recognizing the fact that we have been saved.

Now in John 3:5, where it says that no one can enter the Kingdom of Heaven unless he is born of water and the Spirit, there we have to look into the Old Testament to find out what God means by this. And God Himself guides us to look into the Old Testament, because right in this context Nicodemus says in verse 9 (Jesus is conferring with Nicodemus, who is a Pharisee): "How can this be?" And then Jesus answered him, "Are you a teacher of Israel and yet you do not understand this?" In other words, the implication is, "Look. You have the Scriptures. Don't you know what I'm talking about?" And that means that we ought to find some answers in the Old Testament, because those were the Scriptures that Nicodemus had.

Now when we search the Scriptures (the Old Testament Scriptures), we find in Ezekiel 36 this statement in verse 25: "I (that is, God) will sprinkle clean water upon you." Remember that Jesus said in order to enter the Kingdom of Heaven, we have to be born of water and the Spirit. "I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and you shall be clean from all your uncleanness, and from all your idols I will cleanse you." In other words, this is the washing that takes place by the Holy Spirit in our life when we are born again.

In Ephesians 5 it speaks about the washing of the Word. The Word of God is the Sword of the Spirit. By it the Holy Spirit cuts away the old nature, or cuts down our old soul, and gives us a new soul. We are born again, and therefore we are cleansed of our sins. And then it goes on: "A new heart I will give you, and a new Spirit I will put within you. And I will take out of your flesh the heart of stone and give you a heart of flesh. And I will put My Spirit within you and cause you to walk in My statutes and be careful to observe My ordinances."

Now you see how that relates to being born of water and the Spirit. The water is really the Word of God, or the act of the Holy Spirit as He washes away our sins. And the Holy Spirit not only is performing this act within us, but He also indwells us after we are saved. And this is prerequisite to our entering into the Kingdom of Heaven. When this has happened, we enter into the Kingdom of Heaven. We become a child of the King, King Jesus.

Immersion or Sprinkling for Baptisms? (197B)

CALLER: With reference to the subject of water baptism, the ordinance, I hear different opinions on this. The particular church I attend says that the correct way is to be immersed in water, because they believe that Christ Himself gave this example. There's a Scripture, I think, that says He came up out of the water, etc. Does this make any difference? Or what would be your thinking on that? Does the Bible teach that the local congregation should use this method? I know that some congregations sprinkle people. I know it doesn't have anything to do with the actual act of being saved, but that it's the commemoration of it, passing from death into life. What's your thinking on this?

HC: The question is raised concerning the mode of baptism, whether we are to be immersed or whether we are to be sprinkled, or whether water is to be poured on us. Actually, the Bible does not give us any instruction. First of all, when we examine the word baptism, we find that it means to wash or to cleanse, or to be purified. For example, in Hebrews 9:10, we find that it says, "According to this arrangement gifts and sacrifices are offered which cannot perfect the conscience of the worshipper, but deal only with food and drink and various baptisms." Now in our English Bibles that is translated "ablutions or washings." But the word is BAPTISM, the very same word that is used, for example, when God speaks about baptism in the Holy Spirit.

In Mark 7 we read, in verse 4, "And when they come from the marketplace [speaking of the Pharisees], they do not eat unless they baptize themselves [in other words, they purify themselves]. And there are many other traditions which they observe, the baptism of cups and pots and vessels of bronze." And that's translated washing.

The word baptism, the Greek word baptizo, if it isn't translated baptism, is translated washing or purifying or cleansing. And that of course is the figure that is repeatedly used when it is speaking of salvation. The Bible speaks of the washing with the word. The Bible speaks of the washing of regeneration. Or, "Arise, wash away your sins." This identifies totally with the idea of baptism.

Now that's the first important point, that the word baptism does not mean to immerse. It's used in the sense of washing or purification.

CALLER: In the Dictionary of New Testament Words it says that baptizo means immerse. That's only the Greek definition, but we have to let the Bible define it.

HC: Yes, we first let the Bible be its own interpreter. Now there is a cousin word, baptō, that is used in a few places, or em baptō. It has the same root. And it means to dip. But interestingly enough, in every place where the word baptō or em baptō is used, it is never used in connection with salvation. It's used, for example, a number of times in connection with the Last Supper, where Jesus talked about the sop that He would dip in His cup, when He was referring to the one who was going to betray Him. That word dip there is baptō. But that has nothing to do with salvation, you see.

CALLER: But then when He was baptized, did He go under the water there?

HC: The Bible says that He was baptized, and He came up out of the water. Now we have to let the Bible again be its own interpreter. What does it mean to come up out of the water? Well, God helps us out.

In Acts 8 we have the baptism of the Ethiopian eunuch. And interestingly enough, we read: "As they went along [verse 36 of Acts 8] the road, they came to some water. And the eunuch said, 'See, here is water. What is to prevent my being baptized?' And he commanded the chariot to stop, and they both went down into the water, Philip and the eunuch. And he baptized him."

Now that's interesting. Both Philip and the eunuch went down into the water. Now that isn't the end. "And when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught up Philip." In other words, whatever the eunuch did, Philip did. Now if going down into the water and coming up out of the water means immersion, then we have the interesting picture of Philip going down under the water to baptize someone. And that doesn't make any sense at all. That would be fairly awkward.

And so God Himself is teaching that going down into the water and coming up out of the water, as Jesus did, is not signifying immersion. It simply means that they went down the bank of the river into the water. And Jesus was baptized. He may have been immersed. Water may have been poured on His head, or He may have been sprinkled. Then He went up out of the water.

Now the one place we do have a word that is used in connection with baptism, the word sprinkle is used, of all things. And it's not a surprising word, because sprinkling is a very common word in the Old Testament. The blood was sprinkled on the Mercy Seat. The blood was sprinkled on the base of the altar. Sprinkling was very common.

And in Ezekiel 36:25 we read, where God is speaking now about what salvation is, "I [and this is God speaking] will sprinkle clean water upon you, and you shall be cleaned from all your uncleanness, and from all your idols I will cleanse you. A new heart I will give you, and a new spirit I will put within you. And I will take out of your flesh the heart of stone and give you a heart of flesh."

Now this indicates the spiritual washing that takes place when we are saved. And God uses the figure of sprinkling. And on this basis, many churches today also use sprinkling as the mode of baptism, although immersion is a perfectly Biblical way to baptize also. The Bible is silent insofar as an expressed command concerning the mode.

CALLER: That's clear. Thank you.

The Relationship Between Water Baptism and Salvation (240A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I have a friend here, and I've been explaining to him the necessity of being baptized. He has made public profession of his belief in the Lord Jesus Christ, but he has not been baptized. And I would like for you to answer his question in the best way you can - the necessity of being baptized, that he might be born again. And I'll take your answer on the air.

HC: Now let me ask you this. Are you talking about water baptism?

CALLER: Yes.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you. Good night.

The question is raised concerning the importance of the necessity of water baptism, and how that relates to our salvation. First of all, let's define what the word baptism means. The word baptism, as it is used in the Bible, means to be washed, or to be purified, or to be cleansed.

Now this may come as a surprise to many, but this is the way the Bible uses the Greek word baptizo. And we find a number of verses where it's not translated baptism, but it's translated into this English equivalent. We find, for example, in Mark 7, that God teaches in verse 3, "For the Pharisees and all the Jews do not eat unless they wash their hands, observing the tradition of the elders. And when they come from the market place, they do not eat unless they baptizo themselves [that is, purify themselves]. And there are many other traditions which they observe, the baptizmus [that is, the washing] of cups and pots and vessels of bronze."

Or again, in the Book of Hebrews, in Chapter 9, verse 10 (I'm going into this because all of this relates to the nature of water baptism) we read, let me begin with the last part of verse 9: "According to this arrangement gifts and sacrifices are offered which cannot affect the conscience of the worshipper [talking about Old Testament ceremonial law], but deal only with food and drink and various baptizmos [that is, ablutions or washings], regulations for the body imposed until the time of reformation."

Wherever the Bible uses the word baptizo, and it is translated in some other way than baptize, it's always translated washing or purifying, or cleansing. And of course this is the way God speaks about salvation. We are cleansed of our sins. We are washed by the washing of the Word, by the washing of regeneration, as we read in Titus 3:5.

Now when we are saved, the fact that we are saved means that God has washed away our sins, and identified us with the Holy Spirit in His Work of evangelizing the world. This is what is in view when the Bible talks about being baptized in the Holy Spirit, that we are to have our sins washed away, and we are to be identified with the Holy Spirit in His task of evangelizing the world. This is the phrase that God employs beginning with Pentecost.

Before Pentecost the phrase, "baptized in the Holy Spirit," was not used, although the Old Testament believers were washed of their sins just as we are. However, there was a distinction in that they had no mandate to evangelize the world, as we do following Pentecost. And so God uses the phrase, "Be baptized in the Holy Spirit" to indicate that we must have our sins washed away. And at that moment we become identified with the Holy Spirit in evangelizing the world. We are qualified, by being filled with the Spirit, to be a witness ourselves.

Now this baptism in the Holy Spirit in itself is not dependent in any sense upon water baptism. It stands all by itself as the substance, as the meaning, as the content of our salvation. We are not born again unless we are baptized in the Holy Spirit. We're not a child of God unless we are baptized in the Holy Spirit. We do not have eternal life unless we're baptized in the Holy Spirit. Only then are we saved, when we have received the washing of the Word, when God the Holy Spirit has washed away our sins, and we are identified with Him in His task to evangelize the world.

Now where does water baptism fit into the whole picture? Water baptism is an outward sign, or official declaration, that we have become identified with the Kingdom of God, that is, that we either anticipate the washing away of our sins, or that indeed our sins have been washed away. In the Book of Acts, Chapter 8, when the Samaritans were baptized in water, it anticipated their salvation, because in that particular instance they were not saved until afterwards.

However, in the case of Cornelius, in Acts 10, the Roman Centurion, in that case they were saved, and then they were baptized in water. Now in Acts 2:38, where it speaks about the nature of salvation, we read there, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the Name of Christ for the remission of sins. And you will receive the Holy Spirit as a gift." That is not talking about water baptism. Water baptism in no sense is a condition for salvation. That is talking about being baptized in the Holy Spirit. We are baptized in the Name of Christ. That is, on the authority of Christ. That is, our sins are washed away by virtue of what Christ has done for us on the cross. Thereby our sins are forgiven. And because we have become a child of God, God the Holy Spirit Himself takes up His abode within us. This is the baptism spoken of in Acts 2:38.

Incidentally, not only does the water baptism look back upon the fact that we have been born again, but it also anticipates the salvation of the future in our own personal lives. At the time that we're saved, we're not saved as a total personality. We're saved in our soul. It's in our soul that we experience the resurrection from the dead. But we still must experience the resurrection of our bodies. Our bodies are still dead, spiritually. They still lust after sin. But water baptism anticipates the resurrection of our bodies. It anticipates the eventual salvation of our bodies also.

But the water baptism in itself has no substance whatsoever. Therefore, if a person were saved, actually born again, we must declare that he has been baptized in the Holy Spirit. This so far has nothing to do with water baptism. But if this has really been the case, then if he has not already been baptized, God asks that we do become baptized in water, so that we use this as an outward declaration that we have indeed become identified with the Kingdom of God, that we indeed have become born again.

Thank you so much for that call.

Sprinkling or Immersion? (358B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I was wanting you to speak on baptism, due to the fact that a lot of my friends have been quizzing me, myself coming from a sprinkling baptism viewpoint as opposed to their viewpoints of immersion, and also the area of infant baptism. Maybe you could just share some things along that line, what the Scriptures teach.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you.

The question that's raised is concerning the question of baptism. And actually, there are two aspects that are frequently of concern. One is the mode of baptism. The other is the timing of baptism. Let's talk about the timing of the baptism first.

There are those who believe in believer's baptism. That is that when a person becomes born again, then they are to be baptized. Now that is very scriptural. That is very scriptural. If anyone is born again, and has not been previously baptized, then they ought to be baptized, whether they're a young person or whether they're an adult. They are to be baptized. It has its Old Testament antecedent in circumcision. If anyone wanted to become identified with Jehovah God of the Old Testament, he was circumcised because that was the sign of becoming identified with the Kingdom of God. And so it is true that if someone becomes a believer, then they ought to be baptized.

The knotty question, however, arises in the matter of infant baptism. Are we to baptize infants? In the Old Testament it is very very clear that infants were circumcised. Beginning in Genesis 17, anyone who was a member of a family in which the father or the mother were believers was to be circumcised at eight days. It was the outward sign that declared that this child too was to be identified with the Kingdom of God.

Many churches in the New Testament see in this a very parallel relationship to baptism. In Acts 16 we see this, where it speaks of the family of the jailer of Philippi. At the same time he was saved, he was baptized, of course, because he now had entered the Kingdom of God in a very real way. But at the same time, his household was baptized. The same was true of Lydia, in Acts 16. At the time she was saved she was baptized, and so was her household.

And this directly parallels what we read in Genesis 17. At the time that Abraham was circumcised, his whole household was circumcised. The problem frequently arises, however, that those who believe in the Old Testament that they had been circumcised felt that this guaranteed salvation for them. . . "I'm a circumcised Jew, and therefore I'm one of God's chosen people. Therefore I can depend upon it that Jehovah God will bring me to Heaven." The same kind of thinking is very prevalent today amongst those who have been baptized as an infant. They believe they have been baptized, and this guarantees that they are saved, guarantees that they will go into Heaven.

Now the Bible does not teach this at all. The Jews who were circumcised as infants had no guarantee of salvation. It was simply an identification to indicate that they had become identified with the Kingdom of God. The fact that the children of Lydia or the children of the Philippian jailer were baptized was no guarantee that they were saved. But it did indicate they had become identified with the Kingdom of God in a corporate sense. Their father, in the jailer's case, and their mother, in the case of Lydia, had become born again believers. Therefore all that were of their families became corporately citizens of the Kingdom of God.

Only, however, if they became born again would they really enter into the Kingdom of God in a personal relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ. Someone in the Old Testament who was circumcised could go to hell just as readily as any unsaved person. Someone in the New Testament who is baptized as an infant can go to hell just as readily as anyone else.

In the Old Testament as well as in the New Testament, however, God did give promises to families. God said, "I will be a God to you and your children." Along with that promise God also gave mandates. He declared that you are to bring up your children in the fear and the nurture of the Lord: "Train up a child in the way that he should go, and in his old age he will not depart from it."

Now you can see immediately that when you tie all these verses together God does work through families. In practice, of course, we see this. The children of believing parents who have made a determined effort to bring their children up in the fear and the nurture of the Lord will see a great number of their children saved in time. Those who are careless in rearing their children, regardless of the fact that they themselves are believers, will not see their children saved, because they are repudiating, setting aside the promises that God has made toward them and their children, by virtue of the fact that they're not training their children up in the fear and the nurture of the Lord.

Now this, I believe, is the biblical teaching. I know this is not understood by a great many because, unfortunately, a great many people do not read the Old Testament carefully enough. They do not understand that the promises that were made to Abraham concerning the fact that in his seed the nations would be blessed, and that he would be a father of a multitude of nations, and he would be given the land as an everlasting possession, were not given to national Israel. They were given to those who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, whether they are of national Israel or whether they are of the nation of the United States or Argentina, or whatever. This is the way God works, through His believers, through parents and their children.

Now in reference to the mode of baptism, there is much confusion on this matter also. There are those who insist that the Bible teaches immersion. The fact is, Young's Concordance, which is a very excellent concordance, defines baptism as immersion. Now the definitions found in Young's Concordance are not Biblical. Young's Concordance is a marvelous concordance in that it gives us all the words of every kind in the Bible, and the places where they are found. And that is a great help. That is without any commentary whatsoever.

However, when Young's Concordance gives definitions of words, then we know we have the work of a man rather than the work of God. When we search out the word baptism, which is the Greek word baptizo or baptizmus, in the New Testament, we find that never is it used in the sense of immersion.

It's used in the sense of washing or purifying. Any time it's used and it's not translated baptize, it's translated to wash or to purify. We find, for example, in Mark 7:3, "For the Pharisees and all the Jews, except they washed their hands, oft eat not, holding the tradition of the elders. And when they come from the market, except they wash, they eat not." And this word wash is baptizo: "And many other things there be which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups." It's baptizmos again. It's the word baptize. It means to purify or to cleanse. And we find other places in the Bible where the same word is translated wash or purify.

Secondly, we don't find anywhere in the Bible where immersion is used as a description of salvation. The word immersion is not found in the Bible used in that sense whatsoever. When the Bible talks about salvation, it talks about being cleansed of our sins, being washed of our sins, being purified from iniquity, as well as a lot of other expressions, like being covered by Christ's righteousness, and so on. But we never find the word immersion featured. All the synonyms of salvation have to do with cleansing or purification.

And so the idea that baptism must be by immersion is not found in the Bible. That is a foreign idea to the Bible. It doesn't say anywhere that it would be wrong to immerse. It doesn't say, however, either, that it would be wrong to pour water on or to sprinkle water on. The fact is, the word sprinkle is far more often found in connection with salvation. It is the word that is used very frequently in connection with salvation.

In the Old Testament we find the sprinkling of the blood on the mercy seat. Sprinkling is used constantly. God Himself said, "I will sprinkle many nations." In Ezekiel 36:25 it says that God would sprinkle water upon them, and they shall be cleansed of all of their uncleanness. And so those who hold for sprinkling as one mode, one valid mode of baptism, have very good Biblical basis for it.

It isn't wrong to immerse, but nowhere does the Bible insist on immersion. That just is not found in the Bible. Now there are those who say, "Well, Jesus was immersed. Didn't He go down into the water, and didn't He come up out of the water?" Well, He did go down into the water, and He did come up out of the water. That's Biblical language. But under no circumstance does it say that He was immersed.

The fact is, God gives us further information, in Acts 8, which gives us real reason to believe that He was not immersed when He was baptized, because when the Ethiopian eunuch was baptized we find that it says that both he and Philip went down into the water. We read in verse 36 of Acts 8, "As they went on their way they came unto a certain water, and the eunuch said, See, here is water. What doth hinder me to be baptized? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. And he commanded the chariot to stand still, and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch. And he baptized him."

Now if to go down into the water means to be immersed, then Philip immersed himself as he baptized the Ethiopian eunuch. And that of course doesn't make any sense whatsoever. To go down into the water simply means that they saw a little pool of water, or stream, or whatever, and they went down the bank, and they entered into the water. They may have gone ankle deep, or knee deep. It doesn't say how deep. And he baptized him, the Ethiopian eunuch. And then it says in verse 39, "And when they [that is, both of them Philip and the Ethiopian eunuch] were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip [indicating again that to come out of the water does not mean that someone has been immersed]."

Now immersion is a perfectly satisfactory way to be baptized, but it is not insisted upon in the Bible. If you really believe that it is, then you are going to have real trouble. Some people look at Romans 6, where it speaks about the fact that we have been, in verse 3: "Know ye not that so many of us that were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into His death? Therefore we were buried with Him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."

And so they say immersion is a picture of going down into the grave and coming up again. Now that's a very beautiful picture to describe. But the fact is, Jesus was not buried in water. Jesus was buried in a grave. And He came up out of a grave. He didn't come up out of water. He came up out of a grave. And so the picture loses its significance to some degree.

This is not what God is talking about in Romans 6:3. He is simply saying that in our baptism, in the fact that we have experienced this. And actually, the substance of our water baptism is in what the Holy Spirit has done, in cleansing away our sins. When the Holy Spirit baptized us in the Holy Spirit, He identified us with the death and burial and resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ. This is altogether God's action. The water baptism is an outward signification of this.

BAPTISM IN THE HOLY SPIRIT

What Does it Mean to be Baptized in the Holy Spirit? (314B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'd like to talk about the baptism in the Holy Ghost. There's something special that comes after the initial conversion I believe, and I know that we receive the fullness of the Holy Ghost right at conversion, but I hear on TV, on Christian television and from some people at school, about certain people not being baptized in the Holy Ghost yet. And yet they're Christians. And they turn to Luke 4:1, where it says, "And Jesus, being full of the Holy Ghost, returned from Jordan and went into the wilderness." One person I talked to said that he always had the Spirit but that at this one time he was filled with that Spirit, for the work that he had to do. Now I just would like to know if you can make this clearer for me.

HC: The question that is raised is concerning the nature of being baptized in the Holy Spirit, or becoming filled with the Holy Spirit. Are we saved, and then later on baptized in the Holy Spirit?

Are we saved, and later on filled with the Holy Spirit?

Actually, the Bible teaches, in Ephesians 4, I believe that there is one baptism. There are not two or three baptisms. There's only one baptism. And God speaks of this baptism (Ephesians 4:5 is the verse I'm thinking of). Actually, this baptism is the baptism we receive in the Spirit at the time that we are saved, at the time we become born again. That's the only baptism the Bible knows about.

Now it's true the Bible speaks of water baptism. But water baptism is merely a shadow or a reflection of the Spirit baptism, of the washing of our sins. Baptism means to be washed or to be cleansed, or to be purified.

Now the phrase, "baptism in the Holy Spirit," really finds Biblical emphasis beginning with Pentecost. The reason for this is that back in the Old Testament God used other signs and figures than this in emphasizing who were really saved. He did use baptism, but He also spoke of circumcision. He spoke of burnt offerings and of blood sacrifices, that were pointing to the coming Messiah. But circumcision was really the sign that someone received to indicate that they had become identified with the body of Christ.

But when the Old Testament believer was saved, he was saved exactly as we are saved. The Holy Spirit came into his life. The Bible says in Romans 8:9 that unless we have the Holy Spirit we are none of His. When they were saved, they received the Holy Spirit just as we do. But they were not mandated, nor were they qualified, to be a witness. Only occasionally in the Old Testament do we read of someone who was filled with the Holy Spirit. That is, this is language to indicate that they had been qualified to be a witness.

Now John the Baptist was filled with the Holy Spirit from his mother's womb. His mother Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit as she exclaimed concerning the Messiah. And his father Zechariah was filled with the Holy Spirit. All of this happened before Pentecost.

But that was the unusual kind of thing. Ordinarily a person was not filled with the Holy Spirit. That is, God did not use this language when He spoke about the ordinary believer. But when we come to Pentecost, two things have happened. First of all, all the Old Testament signs have been completed in Christ. Never again is there to be circumcision, never again is there to be a blood sacrifice, is there to be a burnt offering.

But God did pick out of the Old Testament signs the idea of baptism, and highlighted that as the sign to be employed that showed that we had been baptized in the Holy Spirit. But the bigger piece of information was that beginning with Pentecost, every born again believer was qualified to be a witness, because you see, at Pentecost God began His program to evangelize the world. The pouring out of the Holy Spirit, which we read about in Joel's prophecy and in Isaiah, and other passages in the Old Testament, and which was fulfilled at Pentecost, was speaking of the time when God would begin to evangelize the world.

Now in evangelizing the world two things would happen. Number one, God would begin to draw believers out of every nation. Satan had been conquered at the cross, and it was God's program to begin to draw believers out of every nation. That's the first big thing that happened. And we see this dramatically of course on Pentecost afternoon, as three thousand are saved from eighteen different nations.

Secondly, every believer from now on is qualified to be a witness, so that the work of bringing in the saved from all of the different nations would be accomplished through the testimony, through the witnessing of believers as they're found throughout the world. And God referred to this qualification as being filled with the Spirit.

So you see, our salvation is the same as in the Old Testament, but now we're all like Old Testament prophets. We are filled with the Spirit from the moment we're saved. That is, this is speaking of the fact that we have become qualified to be a witness.

There is no such thing as a second baptism. There are blessings, of course, that keep coming if we're saved. You can speak about a second or third or fourth or a ninth or a twelfth or a nineteenth blessing. Every day God's blessings are renewed. But insofar as baptism is concerned, that occurred at the time we were saved, and only then.

There are a lot of gospels around today. The Bible tells us that there would be a lot of other gospels. But there can only be one true Gospel. And the true Gospel is circumscribed by the Bible. The Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ (the revelation of this Gospel) is given to us in the Word of God, the Bible. The Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word.

Now today there are lots of gospels that talk about the Lord Jesus, that talk about baptism, and talk about the blood of Christ, and all of these things. But any gospel that looks to some other source for divine truth than the Bible by definition must be another gospel, because the moment you say the Bible is the Word of God, and then you say, but there's also the Word of God here or there, in a vision or a voice or a tongue, or an angel confrontation, or whatever you think it is, the moment you say that that, too, is the divine Word, then obviously you've got a different sourcebook. You've got the Bible plus this other information. And therefore, by definition it's another gospel.

And of course, if you have another gospel, then you're going to come to a lot of different conclusions about what the Bible teaches, because you'll evaluate, you'll interpret the Bible not only by the Bible itself but also by the information you received from these other sources.

CALLER: There's one TV show on . . .

HC: Yes, but I don't like to talk about any names or movements or churches, or anything like that. If you just want to mention the TV show and not mention any names . . .

CALLER: No, I wasn't going to mention the name. They just really push the baptism of the Spirit. The people that they have on they let on are all Christians, but they prefer that they have this emotional thing which they refer to as the baptism in the Holy Spirit, where they've all spoken in tongues, and that is the evidence of their being filled with the Holy Spirit. They had been saved a long time before that, probably.

HC: Now, you see, the definition of the true Gospel has to do with what the Bible is. Now if you hold that divine truth comes from another source...in an unknown language like a tongue, or from a vision, or whatever... then you have a gospel, that's true. And you can believe you're saved, and you can call yourself a Christian, and you can talk about the blood of Christ. But you're saved on a different basis than the Bible. You've got a different kind of a gospel than the Gospel of the Bible.

We cannot decide what the Gospel is by the lives of people. We can decide what the Gospel is by the Bible. And so the thing you have to listen to is the Word of God, the Bible. That is the only authoritative source of truth.

CALLER: Okay, I believe that. I know that's true. At times I had been wondering if there was something from God that I hadn't received. And at the same time I knew that that wasn't true. I knew that I had the Holy Spirit right in the beginning. But still, you know, hearing some of my friends say this and that, and telling about their church, where some of these things happen, some of these movements of the Spirit, I was getting kind of shaky about it, wondering why it hadn't happened to me.

HC: Yes. The Bible indicates that the just shall live by faith. The Bible indicates that we don't walk by sight. The Bible indicates that signs and wonders were done when Jesus was on earth, before the Holy Spirit was poured out. Signs and wonders continued for a little while after the Holy Spirit was poured out. But whenever the Bible talks about signs and wonders near the end of time, it always speaks of it as events that do not come from God.

We're living in a day when we really have to place our trust only in the Bible. We have to be more careful than ever. God warns, in Matthew 24:24, that false prophets and false Christs will arise with signs and wonders, to lead astray if possible even the elect.

CALLER: This one church I went to looked so real. I mean, it was full of people. And a couple of people stood up, and God supposedly spoke through them. It all looked so real. And I still don't know if it was or not . . . or what.

HC: The only source of divine truth is the Bible. And anything else, any gospel at all that looks outside of the Bible for divine truth, by definition it's another gospel. And God warns about this in Revelation 22:18: "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." And so we live in a free land, where we can hold any kind of a gospel that we would like. And that's a wonderful thing, that we live in this kind of a land.

CALLER: But at this church they proclaim the Word of God.

HC: Yes. But you see, if I would have a gospel where part of the divine truth that I regard as my authority is the Bible, then of course I'm going to talk about the Bible, and I'm going to use the language of the Bible. And I may have some correct information, to some degree, from the Bible.

But if I have more than the Bible as my source of divine truth then obviously my authority is wider than the Bible, isn't it? And God warns that we're not to listen to anything outside of the Bible as divine. We're not to add to the words of this book. If I read the Bible and I say, "That's the Word of God," fine. If I have a vision and I say, "That's the Word of God," then I have added to the Bible, haven't I? I've got two sources now. I've got the Bible, and I've got the information that came to me from the vision. And God says if that's the case, then I'm still subject to the plagues that are written in this Bible.

More than that, you'll remember in Matthew 24:24 Jesus said that these false prophets will deceive, if possible, even the elect. Now the elect are the born again believers. They're in the church where the true Gospel ought to be proclaimed, and yet other gospels will look so much like the true Gospel that even the elect would be deceived, if that were possible. And so this indicates how careful we have to be to make sure that the gospel we follow is circumscribed by the Bible.

CALLER: Okay. Now just one more little thing. Do you think I should stay away from this church then?

HC: All I can tell you is that if you want the true Gospel, you should go where the true Gospel is being proclaimed.

CALLER: I do go to a church like that.

HC: All right. Then that's where you ought to go. And the Bible says in Second John 10 that if anyone brings another gospel or another doctrine, you're not to give them any greeting.

CALLER: Okay.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

How Can There Be Only One Baptism? (501A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I was reading about baptism, and it seems to be a little bit complicated, and there seems to be a lot of confusion among some people. Maybe you could shed some light on the subject. The problem is that John the Baptist, in Matthew 3:11, said that "I baptize with water, but He that is greater than I shall come after me and shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." And then we read that there's only one baptism. By the Holy Spirit we are baptized into one body. And in Mark 16:15-16 we find that it says, "He that believes and is baptized shall be saved." Does that mean by water or by the Holy Spirit and the baptism that Christ was talking about?

HC: All right. Let me see if I can unscramble this for you. First of all, let's talk about John's baptism. What was it? John's baptism was really part of the Old Testament ceremonial law. In the Old Testament there were at least 4 signs that demonstrated or pointed to the washing away of our sins. There was the killing of a lamb, that is, the shedding of blood of a lamb or an oxen, because Christ would shed His blood on the cross. That was one sign that they employed to show that their sins would be washed away by the coming Messiah.

A second was to offer a burnt offering, whether it was a meal offering or a turtle dove offering or a meat offering. And that was pointing to the burnt offering that Christ was.

A third sign was circumcision. The foreskin was cut off, symbolizing the fact that through the coming Messiah their old sins would be cut away. And a fourth sign was water ablutions or baptism. The priest, for example, before he went about his priestly duties, washed in a basin or a laver of water that was in the temple area. And you'll recall at the Wedding at Cana of Galilee, in John 4, the water that was in the six stone jars was water of purification. It was water used in the Old Testament, pre-cross, ceremonial rites. And that was the nature of the baptism of John the Baptist. It was really part of the Old Testament ceremony.

Now when Christ speaks of baptism, that we are to be baptized in the Holy Spirit, that is speaking of the New Testament or after-cross baptism. The word baptism means cleansing or washing. And the baptism in the Holy Spirit means that we've become born again and that our sins have been washed away through the blood of Christ. It's a description of what occurs when we are saved. And every born again believer experiences this. This is what Mark 16 is talking about, those who believe and are baptized, not baptized in water, but baptized in the Holy Spirit, that is, who have had their sins washed away.

CALLER: Why do so many people baptize in water?

HC: Christ gave an outward sign, after the cross, to show that we had joined the Kingdom of God, just as before the cross there were 4 signs. There was the offering of a blood sacrifice, there was the offering of a burnt offering, there was circumcision, and there were washings of various kinds. All of these were signs to indicate that they had placed their trust in the coming Messiah. Now after the cross, all those 4 signs were done away with. They were completed in Christ. They're not to be used again. But after the cross Christ introduced one sign, namely, water baptism, as a sign that we have entered the Kingdom of God, or become identified with the Kingdom of God.

CALLER: How do you get this, because it says there is only one baptism?

HC: You see, there's only one burnt offering, too, that has any merit. The burnt offering that they offered in the Old Testament had no substance in itself. It could not wash away their sins. It was merely a shadow. It was merely a reflection of the burnt offering that would be the Lord Jesus Christ.

CALLER: The Bible says there's only one baptism, which is by the Spirit into the body of Christ. Now are you talking about two baptisms, one of water and one of the Spirit.

HC: No. I'm talking about one baptism. Let me explain that. The baptism that is efficacious, that actually involves the saving of us, is the baptism in the Holy Spirit. That's something that is done within our hearts, which we cannot see. God does that.

The water baptism has no substance in itself. It has no merit, it has no grace. It is a shadow. It is a reflection of what the baptism in the Spirit is. Let me use this analogy. If you have a tree, and the sun is shining, it will cast a shadow. Now the tree is what has substance. The shadow has no substance. If you took the shadow away, the tree would still stand.

CALLER: You know, that's poor reasoning on your part, because the slaying of the lamb was the shadow of the coming of Christ.

HC: Yes.

CALLER: Now according to you, then we should slay the lambs every time and sacrifice them, because that proclaimed something to come.

HC: No. Now remember, we have the before-cross laws which God laid down, and the after-cross. Let's again talk about before the cross. Before the cross the substance was in the Lamb who was the Lord Jesus Christ. When John the Baptist saw Him, he said, "Behold, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world." That's where the substance was.

The shadow was in the sacrifice of the lambs or the oxen, and the burnt offerings and the circumcision, and all these other things. These were shadows. They had no substance. They could not cleanse anyone from their sins or free anyone from their sins.

CALLER: You didn't say anything about water baptism.

HC: All right. Now let's go after the cross. After the cross the substance is in the activity of the Holy Spirit in washing away our sins. That's the substance. The shadow is in the water baptism, which merely is a sign to indicate that we have had our sins washed away.

CALLER: That doesn't bear out. For one thing, a person can be baptized and not be in the body of Christ. He can be baptized with water and not have his name in God's Book of Life.

HC: You're correct. You're absolutely right. You could be baptized a hundred times in water, and it wouldn't mean a thing, because water baptism has no substance.

CALLER: Why bother with it?

HC: Because Christ commanded it.

CALLER: He commanded?

HC: Yes. It's just like the Old Testament believer. He could offer a thousand sacrifices, and that didn't save him in any way whatsoever. Well, why did he do it? Because God had commanded that he should do it, that he should offer these sacrifices. And through these sacrifices he would be able to see the nature of the Messiah who was coming.

Now through our water baptism we get a picture of the nature of the cleansing that was provided by the blood of Christ.

CALLER: Where did Christ command us after the cross to use water baptism?

HC: We find it both in the statement of Matthew 28, where He said, "Make disciples, baptizing them into the Name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit," and we also find it in at least three or four instances, maybe more than that, where someone did become saved. We find, for example, when the Samaritans were saved that they were baptized in water. When the family of Cornelius was saved, they were baptized in water. When the 12 Ephesians were saved, they were baptized in water. When the family of Lydia was saved, they were baptized in water. When the Ethiopian eunuch in Acts 8 was saved, he was baptized in water. You see, we have all these examples.

CALLER: If you use that kind of reasoning, why don't you carry it out throughout the whole Bible? They also spoke in tongues, and they received the baptism in the Holy Spirit. And there were other things. Now you say that was carried over and done away with. So was the water, because there was one time when Peter went to preach to people, and they were baptized with the Holy Spirit. Then why didn't he baptize them with water, too? God was showing him right there and then that he could be baptized with the Holy Spirit, and if he was baptized with the Holy Spirit, then why bother with the water? It doesn't make sense.

HC: Well, only because Christ has commanded it. You have to read the Bible very carefully. You'll find that to be baptized in the Holy Spirit means that we have become saved. And if we have become saved, then we are to be baptized in water. That's why the Ethiopian eunuch said, "Here is water. What is to prevent me from being baptized?"

CALLER: That water baptism baptizing the eunuch was just like people laying their hands on, and they receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, which they don't do now. Now when Christ said, "Go baptizing them," He meant to go and preach the Gospel, and that's the way you get them baptized. That's the way that Christ is going to baptize, when they hear the Gospel, and Christ will be able to baptize them with the Holy Spirit. The only things that counts is Holy Spirit baptism. The water baptism doesn't mean anything.

HC: Well, it has no substance in itself. But why then do we find five or six illustrations where after people are saved, they are baptized? You see, look at the Philippian jailer, for example. When he was saved, straightway he was baptized. And we find Lydia and her family were baptized.

CALLER: If you're going to use that kind of reasoning, then why use that same kind of reasoning about the laying on of hands and speaking in tongues, too?

HC: Because other scriptures apply to that. You see, tongues, for example, was a legitimate phenomenon in the church at Corinth of that day, by which certain individuals did receive information from God in an unknown language. But later on God specifically said that we're not to add to the words of this book. So that set aside that possibility.

Now if later on, let's say, in Revelation, God used language to indicate that water baptism was no longer employed, then I would agree with you. Then we would set it aside. But God has not given us a revelation like that. And so we have to continue using it.

CALLER: He has given that, because He told Peter, when Peter went to the Gentiles He said to the first Gentiles he preached to, "Did you receive the baptism of the Holy Spirit?" Now there's only one baptism in the Bible. There's one baptism, one Christ, one faith. And this Cornelius received it. Peter went on his own to baptize him with water also. He goofed over there.

HC: No. You see, that's why I was using the analogy of the tree and the shadow. Think this out a second. The tree has a shadow. The shadow has no substance, but it's totally identified with the tree. If you move the tree, the shadow moves.

And yet the tree can exist without the shadow. But the shadow cannot exist without the tree.

And so it is with water baptism, which is the shadow of baptism in the Holy Spirit. The water baptism has no substance in itself. The baptism is the baptism in the Holy Spirit. There is one baptism. The water baptism is simply reflection of that baptism in the Holy Spirit.

CALLER: I just told you that Peter went and preached to Cornelius, and Cornelius was baptized, so the water baptism didn't have to precede it. God could baptize in the Holy Spirit without the water baptism.

HC: Of course. You're absolutely correct. The water baptism is no guarantee of salvation, nor is it a requirement for salvation. You're absolutely correct. But Christ commands us. It's the same as when we partake of Holy Communion. We don't derive any grace from Holy Communion. It again is a shadow. "Do this in remembrance of Me." In the Old Testament they had the Passover. Now when they partook of the Passover, they didn't receive any grace because of that. That is, there was no substance in that. It was pointing to the broken body of their Lord, who was going to come.

And in the Holy Communion we simply remember what Christ did for us on the cross. It is a shadow of what Christ did on the cross in paying for our sins. But we observe Holy Communion because God has commanded it. We can't argue that it doesn't make sense. The question is, are we going to be obedient to what God has stated?

CALLER: Well, are you going to interpret it right or not? That's the thing, because Christ did not command water baptism.

HC: All right. Well, we've covered this pretty well in our discussion together, and so I want to thank you so much for calling, because it gave us an opportunity really to look at this question of baptism. Thank you very much. Good night.

REBAPTISM

Do I Need to be Rebaptized? (357A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I was wondering. I'm a born again Christian. And since I became a Christian, I haven't been baptized. But now I understand that you said that if you've ever been baptized. When I was about eighteen or nineteen I was baptized, and I thought I was a Christian, but I wasn't. And so now I don't know if I should be baptized, since I have become a Christian. Anyway, I would like you to comment on this, and I'll take my answer over the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you.

The question is, if I was baptized in water at some time in the past, and now later on I discover that I was not a child of God at that time, but now I've seen the light, I've surrendered my heart to Christ and I am born again, should I be baptized in water again?

Let me give you two illustrations. In Acts 8 the Samaritans were baptized by Philip. They were not saved. The internal evidence of Acts 8 indicates they were not saved at the time, but they were properly baptized in water, in the Name of Christ. Philip had just misjudged their true condition. But the Bible indicates that they had not received the Holy Spirit. And if we do not have the Holy Spirit, we are not saved, according to what salvation is.

When Peter and John came there, they did become born again, the Bible indicates. They were not re-baptized, because they had already been baptized in water, anticipating their salvation, actually. In Acts 19 we have the account of the approximately 12 Ephesians. The evangelist Apollos apparently was the one who preached to them, and he was not as well versed in the scriptures as he might have been. So he preached to them more or less from an Old Testament vantage point. And when he thought they had been saved, he baptized them with John the Baptist's baptism.

Later on, when Paul came there to examine the situation, Paul discovered they were not saved. They did become born again, and they were re-baptized in the Name of Christ, that is, with New Testament baptism. Now what was the difference?

The difference is that the baptism of John was Old Testament ritualistic ceremonial baptism. It was anticipating the cross. It had a different meaning to it because it was still looking for the coming of the Messiah. The New Testament water baptism looked back on the cross as an accomplished fact, and this is the baptism that the New Testament believers were to be baptized with.

How can we bring this then to bear on a modern day situation? If the baptism we were baptized with in water was legitimate, Biblical baptism, that is, those who baptized us had a proper view of the Scriptures, insofar as water baptism is concerned, even though we were not saved at the time, it would still stand as a valid baptism. On the other hand, if we were baptized by a church or congregation or denomination, at a time when we were not saved, and it was not a valid Biblical baptism, that is, it had connotations or meanings that were contrary to the Word of God, then it would seem to me that you would want to be baptized again, now that you have become saved, as the experience of the twelve Ephesians in Acts 19 would indicate.

If we did not know, in other words, we may have been an infant or a child when we were baptized, and we have no idea what the church we went to taught concerning infant baptism, we had no recollection, no suspicion even that it was a superstitious kind of a thing, or whatever, then it would be far better to be baptized again.

I hope this answers the question.

Should I Be Rebaptized When Joining a New Church? (433C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I have a question regarding baptism. I'm in the process of changing churches, and the new church says that I have to be rebaptized. And I just wanted to get your views on this.

HC: The question is, if I go from one church to another and I've been previously baptized, should I be rebaptized?

Now it depends. There is some baptism which, in my judgment, is not Biblical baptism. For example, there are those who baptize infants under the theory that this cleanses them from the sin with which they are born. And that is foreign to the Bible. That is not taught in the Bible. And therefore, if a person was baptized that way, and then they did become a born again believer, I would recommend that they be rebaptized.

On the other hand, there are churches who baptize infants, and from everything I can read in the Bible, it would be a valid, Biblical baptism. And now they join a church that does not recognize infant baptism, and they want to rebaptize that person. Now in this case, rebaptism is not necessary. It's not required in the Bible. I don't suppose it would be sinful to be rebaptized, if you believe that in all other points that church is in accordance with the Word of God. Perhaps it would not be wrong to be rebaptized.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you so much.

CHAPTER 2 -- THE BIBLE IN GENERAL

Why Do Biblical Accounts Sometimes Differ? (029B)

CALLER: I've always been curious. In comparing passages in the Old Testament and the New Testament, they don't come out exactly the same. For example, in Psalm 45, which is speaking about Christ as well as David, it says in verse 6: "Your divine throne endures forever. Your royal scepter is a scepter of equity." Then we're told by Paul in Hebrews (if Paul was the author, and I believe he was) that "Thy throne, Oh God, is forever and ever. The righteous scepter is the scepter of Thy Kingdom." It's the same type of statement, but it seems as if the New Testament author writes it down differently.

Well now, there are two reasons for this. One is that the job of the translator is to take the most authentic copy that he can find and translate it as carefully as he can. But sometimes he doesn't do a perfect job of translation. More probable, however, is the fact that God frequently says something in the Old Testament, and then He further develops it when it is quoted in the New Testament.

Now a clear case of this is the prophecy of Joel 2, where God prophesied through Joel that "Afterwards I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh." And then Peter, when he quotes this, doesn't use the word afterwards. He uses the words "in the last days." Now this simply means that God the Holy Spirit has given us a further commentary or interpretation of what He intended by the words in Joel's prophecy.

Both the Old Testament, therefore, and the New Testament are to be read, and the new information in the New Testament helps us to further understand.

Read the Bible! (142E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. I'm a born again believer in Christ, but I wondered if you could give me some information on good Bible studies, ways that I should study the Bible to get more out of it, or some material that I should get from the Bible, I mean from a Bible book store.

HC: Well, the question that you're really asking is, How can I, in the shortest possible time, really become acquainted with the Bible as possible? This is really our desire, isn't it? We really want to know God's Word.

You know, we always wish that there was some quick way that we could become really acquainted with the Bible. I don't know of a quick way. I begin to tell people more and more that the first thing and the big thing that they ought to do is read the Bible, and read the Bible and read the Bible. I say this again and again, because I believe it's so tremendously important. In other words, you've got to become totally acquainted with the Bible. And there's no way to become acquainted with the Bible except by reading it.

Now when I read the Bible, I just spend lots of time reading it. Whenever I have spare time, I can't be more delighted than just to read the Bible. And I always read it with a pen or a pencil in my hand, so that if I find a verse that's important, or which I want to remember, I can underline it. Or if a thought comes to me, I can put a little note in the margin.

Now if you would spend several hours a week just reading the Bible, the same as you easily spend several hours watching a TV program, or watching a ball game, or reading the Reader's Digest, if you would spend several hours a week just reading the Bible, and reading and reading and reading, and then, when your pastor is preaching, you'll pretty soon begin to recognize some of the things that he's talking about. When he talks about Abraham, or when he talks about John the Baptist, you can say, "Oh yes. I read about him." And you'll be able to sense increasingly whether your pastor is on the right track or not. He may be saying things that sound just like what you read in the Bible. And so you'll listen more eagerly than ever. And this will help you to learn.

Or he may be saying, occasionally, something that doesn't quite sound like what you read in the Bible. And then you'll be on your guard, "Maybe my pastor isn't so accurate on this particular point." And again, you can call up on a program like the Open Forum, when you find questions.

In other words, I think that as a basic groundwork, you've got to just do a whole lot more Bible reading. And then we'll know how to ask questions. And as you ask questions, then truth will begin to flow.

CALLER: Thank you.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Personal Bible Study (182D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I know you say many different times that people should read the Bible a great deal, as just general reading. But what I wanted to know is, how would you go about studying a particular book? And where should someone start studying, as opposed to just reading? I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you very much. Good night.

The question is raised concerning this matter of studying the Bible. Actually, when you are reading the Bible, you are beginning to study the Bible, because in order to really become acquainted with the Bible, you have to take the time to read it.

For example, when you read about Abraham somewhere in the Bible, if you have not ever read Genesis 12-20, or thereabouts, where God gives us a lot of information about Abraham, then when you read about Abraham in Romans 4, you can't really appreciate why God is saying what He is saying.

When you read about David, in Acts 2:31, this won't really mean anything to you unless you have ever read about the life of David in the Old Testament. More than that, as you read the Bible you become sensitive to the way God speaks. You become increasingly sensitive to the demands of the Word of God on your life. And you're not really wasting your time a bit. You really are studying.

Now for another way of studying, I would suggest that you do this. Get a concordance. And there are a number of them that are available. I would suggest that you invest in a good concordance, one that covers all the words of the Bible. It may cost you a bit more, but it would be a very worthwhile expenditure. There is Strong's Concordance, there is Young's Concordance, and there's one that is not quite as complete, Cruden's Concordance.

Now take a verse, or if you want to, take a word. Take the word faith, for example, or take the word sin, or transgression. Pick out any word that you would like. And look in the concordance for the word faith, if that's the word you're studying. And you will find there all of the verses in the Bible that have the word faith in them. And look up these verses that are named, and see what the verse says.

Now some of the verses that you will read do not really help very much. You won't be able to tie them in with anything. But if you look up all of the verses with the word faith (and this takes time, studying always takes time), you will find that pretty soon a pattern will emerge. You will see how God uses that word faith, again and again and again. Or whatever word.

Or do this. Find a verse that you're wondering about, and look up key words in that verse. If it has the word death in it, look up other references to death in the Bible. If it has the word sea in it, look up other references to the word sea. If it has the word kingdom in it, look up other verses that have the word kingdom. And in this way you're going to find related passages that integrate into the verse that you are studying. This is just another way of reading the Bible in a way, although in another sense it is a directed kind of reading, where you are focusing especially on certain aspects of Bible truth.

Whatever you are doing, whether you're just reading, with a pencil in your hand, or whether you are looking up key words, or examining a verse, trying to find other verses that have similar phrases in it (and you can do these things through a concordance), you will be getting more and more acquainted with the Word of God. The main thing that I want to underscore is that there is no short-cut. There is no short-cut. You have to spend time.

And don't be bashful. Don't feel too heroic if you spend a few hours some night. Do this again and again. Now one of the things you can do is, when you hear a question answered, for instance on this program, write down the verses referred to (and I do try, when I answer a question on this program to give proof texts), if you're interested in the subject at all. Write them down. And then, in your spare time, in your private study time, look those verses up. And examine what they say. Don't trust me, what I say. But examine what these verses say, and see if they indeed teach what you have been told. And this is another way to get deeper into the Word of God.

The Nature of the Gospel (203A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I'm writing a paper, analyzing the content of the Gospel. And I wanted to discuss a few points with relation to my study. Under the content of the Gospel, I was wondering if you felt that it came through the apostles. You know, Christ came preaching the Gospel, and then the apostles also preached the Gospel, which was Christ crucified, dead, buried, risen and exalted. And what was the content of Christ's Gospel?

HC: In other words, your question is, did the apostles have one Gospel and Christ another Gospel? Now that's putting it pretty crassly, of course.

CALLER: Well, I wondered if . . .

HC: If there was a change in the Gospel, to put it a little more kindly.

CALLER: Yes.

HC: No. There's only one Gospel. There is only one Gospel, and that is the Gospel of salvation through the Lord Jesus Christ. And whether you read the Old Testament or read the New Testament, and whether you're reading the Law or the Prophets or the Psalms, or the four Gospels, or the Book of Acts, or Revelation, or Ephesians, it's always one Gospel.

However, sometimes chapters or verses would emphasize certain aspects of the Gospel to a higher degree than others. And therefore in one paragraph you might find that the blood of Christ, the fact that there is no remission except through the shedding of blood, is particularly in view. You see this particularly when you read Leviticus and read about the blood sacrifices, or read the Book of Hebrews, where we have commentary on the Book of Leviticus. The blood sacrifices are in view.

In another place it may stress the washing away of our sins. This is seen very beautifully in the Gospel of John in a number of places. In another paragraph the wrath of God against sin is particularly in view. The Book of Romans is replete with this.

In another place the depravity of man shines through with great clarity. You see this, for example, in Ephesians 2, or in Romans 3. But none of these passages, none of these sentences or paragraphs stand alone. We may never say, "Well, this is what Peter said," or "This is what Paul said." Now I know we do that once in a while, because we find it in a book that Paul wrote. But we have to be careful with that, because Paul was not really the author of that statement. Neither was Peter. It was God who was the Author. And Paul and Peter and Isaiah and Moses were simply the instruments in God's hand to write the Bible. They wrote, of course, out of their own personality and their own personal experiences, and so on. But what they wrote was exactly, down to the very letter and the very word, what God wanted them to write.

And so God wrote through Luke about this salvation. And it was the identical salvation that God wrote through Moses about, or that God wrote through the apostle Paul about. It was the identical salvation that Jesus Christ spoke about, when we find the quotations of what He declared.

CALLER: Would the statement be correct to say that the Gospel is the proclamation of a Person, and that when Christ came He, in a sense, presented Himself? And then the apostles presented the facts about Christ, before Christ died and was resurrected, although Christ did say that this was what He was going to do. Was that then part of His Gospel. His saying that He was going to die and rise again?

HC: I think you might be somewhat proper in saying that the apostle Paul and the apostle Peter and the prophet Isaiah, and so on, were instruments in God's hand to write about the Gospel (or Good News, which the word Gospel means) that God was giving to mankind, but that the Lord Jesus came to be the Gospel. He is the one who is the very Personality of the Gospel, because He went to the cross, and so on. He is the Word become flesh, as we read in John 1. I think yes, you could make that kind of a distinction.

CALLER: Also we were discussing how the Gospel is communicated. And I don't know how broad to make it, or how broad the New Testament presents it. But the comments I have written down so far are, "verbally, through preaching and teaching, and also personally. A person is a witness, telling what happened to him." But how broad should it be, when I discuss how the Gospel is communicated?

HC: One of the nicest verses in the Bible that speaks beautifully to this question is I Peter 2:9 and 10: "Ye are an elect race, a holy nation, God's own people, that ye may declare forth the wonderful excellencies of Him who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light. Once you were not people, but now you are God's people," and so on.

God's program was that born again believers would be the custodians of the Gospel, would be the vehicles of the Gospel, to get it out into the world. Now Jesus put it, in Matthew 28, "Go ye into all the world and make disciples." He said it in II Corinthians 5 that we are His ambassadors, "Christ as it were making His appeal through us." This is the means that God has established.

Now the Holy Spirit was poured out at Pentecost, and we must remember that the Holy Spirit is Eternal God, and the Holy Spirit has always been present in the world. The Bible is not suggesting that at Pentecost in AD 33 the Third Person of the Godhead, the Holy Spirit, finally put in His appearance on the earth. There are all kinds of references throughout the Old Testament concerning the Holy Spirit, and the fact that He was active in the lives of the born again believers, as well as in the lives of the prophets, and in the creation, and so on.

But when the Bible speaks about the Holy Spirit being poured out, it means by that, that at Pentecost in AD 33, this was the moment in time when God began His task to evangelize the world. And this would be the task of God the Holy Spirit, to take that Word that is brought by born again believers throughout the world, and apply it to the hearts of men, so that Christ would build His church, which He had already begun, of course, way back with Adam and Eve, and Abel, and so on. But now He's going to expand it. He's going to build it, so that it is a complete temple of God. And He said in Matthew 16, "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it. . . I will build My church."

CALLER: In this proclaiming of the Gospel, it doesn't carry with it the connotation of arguing or persuading, but more of just presenting the facts.

HC: Yes. You made an interesting observation about witnessing. Actually, witnessing is witnessing of what the Bible teaches. The message we have is not "me." I'm not the message. I'm not the subject of the message. Oh, I can tell someone, "I was a sinner. Now I'm saved." But having said that, now let's get on with the main message.

The main message is the message of the Bible. This is a mistake that a lot of people make. I think. They spend all their time talking about themselves, and how ugly their sins were, and how they were in this and that and the other thing. And now look what a glorious salvation God has given me. And really, effectively, they've put themselves as the center of attention. The glory is going to themselves, and they're giving a very incomplete message of salvation, because our life is not the Bible.

The message of salvation, the witnessing that we are to do, is concerning the Word of God. This is what we are to send forth into the world. And so we read the Bible, read about God's wrath and His justice, about His love, His grace, His mercy. And this is what we declare forth to the world as witnesses.

Now it is God who does the saving. It is God who is going to apply this Word. Now the Bible does indicate, through the apostle Paul, that we persuade, we counsel, yes, we might even debate just a little bit. But we must always remember that we can never argue someone into the Kingdom of God. We can never open somebody's eyes. We can never convert somebody into the Kingdom of God. And at various times all of us try to do these things. We cannot do that.

What we have to do is be faithful as possible to the whole counsel of God, that is, to the Word of God itself. And God will bring the increase. Isaiah 55 is so pertinent. God's Word will not return void, but will accomplish the purpose for which it was sent. This we can absolutely depend upon.

CALLER: Some of your statements would make the content of the Gospel very broad, then, bringing in the wrath of God. . .

HC: How can you present the Gospel of salvation without talking about the wrath of God?

CALLER: Well, I agree.

HC: You see, this is a very important aspect of bringing the Gospel. We have to bring the whole counsel of God. If we are only going to talk about the love of God, then we have no way of telling somebody about salvation, because if we say, "God loves you," and now we're going to talk about salvation, what do they have to be saved from? God loves me. I'm already under the love of God. And I'm living in adultery, I take my drugs, I. . . . But God loves me. And now you tell me that I have to be saved, that I ought to accept Jesus Christ as my Savior. Well, God loves me. Yes, I'd like to accept Jesus as my Savior. I think that's a pretty neat idea. God loves me, and I'll accept Jesus as my Savior.

But now if someone came to me a half-hour later and said, "Now Jesus is your Savior, but what are you saved from?" "Oh, I don't know. I don't know. I feel a lot better, because Jesus is my Savior. I've got a purpose in my life now. I've got a goal to live for. Jesus is my Savior. And so I've been saved out of some of my misery."

Well, that's not the Gospel, is it? That's not the Gospel a bit. This man, before he's saved, and I don't care who he is (he could be the mayor of the city, or the preacher in the church, or he could be anybody else), if he's not born again, he's a sinner. And he's under the wrath of God. And he's heading for hell. And if he died tonight, he'd spend eternity in hell. And so he's in a precarious position. He's in a terrible situation.

And here I am, the custodian of this Gospel, and I'm not going to tell him that. I'm going to just kind of meekly say, "God loves you. God loves you." And so he doesn't realize at all that he's going to be destroyed at any moment. And so I better tell him the whole Gospel. I better tell him, "Look, the Bible says that all men are sinners, and if we're not born again we're under the wrath of God. And hell is going to be our lot. And we're only one breath away from eternity. But wonderfully, wonderfully, there's another side to this story. We can know the love of Christ, if we'll only see our sins, if we'll only repent of our sins and cry out to God for mercy, and cast our lot with Him, and trust in Him as Savior and Lord, surrender our will to Him. He will be our Savior. He then will be the one who has taken our sins and has paid for them, so that we'll never have to endure hell for our sins.

Now we're beginning to get at the whole counsel of God, you see.

CALLER: I think then what I put under "Content of the Gospel" is I Corinthians 15, beginning with verse 3, where it says that Christ died according to the scriptures, He rose according to the scriptures. And then Peter's sermon in Acts 2, and then Paul's sermon in Acts to the people of Lystra and Athens, where he again presents the historical facts about Christ. But this would be the remedy. And the first part, the people being under wrath.

HC: Quote from Romans 3:10-20, or from Ephesians 2:1-3. And in fact, Ephesians 2 is tremendous because after declaring what our sad condition is, it indicates that by grace we have been saved. Or you might quote from II Corinthians 5:21: "For our sake He made Him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in Him we might become the righteousness of God." That shows the justice of God being worked out.

CALLER: We would have to give the predicament part of the Gospel then. God came with the Good News, declaring Christ.

HC: Without declaring the predicament, we have no Gospel. Now you read the Book of Jonah, because there you find a man who was a reluctant missionary. He brought the Gospel, and there was the greatest revival, there was the greatest outpouring of blessing that's recorded anywhere in the Bible, because the whole city of Nineveh repented. And from the language of the New Testament, we may assume that these people in the city of Nineveh became born again.

Now what was the content of Jonah's message? "Repent, because God's wrath is upon you, and in forty days He's going to destroy you." He didn't use the word love at all. He talked about repentance.

The wrath of God, that is the chief content of the Gospel, incidentally. That is the chief content of the Gospel, that man is in trouble with God, that he's under the wrath of God. And once we understand that, once that has been imbedded in our sin-bound minds, then we're going to begin to ask questions: "Well, what do I do now? What do I do now?" Like the jailer of Philippi in Acts 16: "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" He knew he was in trouble. He was ready to commit suicide.

CALLER: I had noted Paul's remedy: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." But I hadn't related it back further to his statement. That's very good.

HC: Okay?

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: When you get your "A," send it to me.

CALLER: You really helped me clarify my thinking. On some papers you can find all the information right there, but this one I have to do a lot more of my own thinking.

HC: I was very glad to help you, because you are asking some very pertinent questions about the nature of salvation.

CALLER: Yes. Once I started, I realized how unclear things were in my mind, even though I've been taking this class in communicating the Christian faith. Still, on my own I had not thought through what the Gospel was. I think that's probably when you really learn it, not when you just take what other people say, but you have to work it through for yourself. So thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

The Composition of the Bible (217A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I have a question, but I don't know whether it's in your province or not. I've been given an assignment to look up what the Carthage Tribunal did about reaching the verdict of the sixty-six books of the Bible. Do you know anything about that? Do you know any of the details of how it came about that these particular books were selected for the Bible? Do you know anything about that?

HC: First of all, let me rephrase your question. Your question really is, how did it come about that we have the present sixty-six books in the Bible?

In the scriptures themselves we read in Luke 24, for example, where Christ makes reference to the Law of Moses, and the Prophets, and the writings, or the Psalms. This is Luke 24:44. And so throughout the Bible we find this kind of reference, indicating that our Old Testament, which is the scriptures referred to, has the stamp and seal of approval of Christ Himself.

And so we know that however the Old Testament books were selected, they are the holy scriptures, because we have the commendation of Christ. Now in the New Testament we do not have any evidence within the scriptures as to how they were selected. We do not have any secular evidence that clearly indicates when the books of the New Testament were selected. But we do know this, that by the Second Century there wasn't any question that these were the Holy Canon.

However, we do know this. There are certain limitations, or there is a certain framework in which we have to work in thinking about the books of the New Testament. First of all, we know that any writing that came after the writing of the Revelation, the last book of the Bible, could not be the work of God. We know that, because nothing could be added to it. And since Revelation was written approximately AD 95, we know that any writing after that would not be part of the Bible.

Secondly, we can examine the internal evidence of any writing for the period from, let's say, John the Baptist until AD 95, and it won't be long before we discover what is the Bible and what is not the Bible.

CALLER: Another thing they were asking about, and which I have to make a report on (because I'm teaching a Bible Study) is how come Christianity changed from the simple form in which Christ had it and in which Paul taught it? How come there was such a turning away, and all the ritualism became part of it? When did that start? Was that the time of Carthage, or was that farther along in time? I know about the Reformation and the Dark Ages and the Apocrypha. But I don't have anything that shows anywhere how Christianity, in the simplistic form which it was and which it is, became so ritualistic. In what year was it, and when did it happen? You know?

HC: The Bible already indicates that before the Bible was completed, there was a watering down of the true Gospel. Paul, for example, warned the church at Galatia, in the Letter to the Galatians, "You have turned away from the true faith, and you have begun to add certain ceremonial laws to your worship."

We find in the 7 churches of Revelation 2 and 3 that there were heresies coming into the church. In other words, the Bible teaches that from the very beginning of the Gospel the seeds of heresy, the seeds of bringing other things in, already was present. And so it isn't surprising, therefore, that we see this multiplied through the centuries that followed.

CALLER: It actually took place in Rome, did it not?

HC: Well, I don't think that it just took place in Rome. I think it took place in many many areas. For example, in II Timothy 3, we read in verse 1, "In the last days there will come times of stress." Now we know from Acts 2:17 and from Hebrews 1:1 that the last days are the whole period beginning with the cross all the way up to Judgment Day.

And it says, "In the last days, men will be lovers of self," and so on. And then finally it says in verse 4, "treacherous, reckless, swollen with conceit, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, holding the form of godliness (or piety) but denying the power of it." Now that is typical, of course, of any liberal church today, or ritualistic church, that has lost the true meaning of the Gospel.

Now II Timothy 4:1-5 indicates that during the last days there will be this running after a gospel or a religion that looks like the true Gospel, but it denies the power of it.

CALLER: This coming away from the original church was a long time ago. And I went through a great big Bible, through the back of it, where they had all the descriptions of Rome and Greece, Athens, all different places. And it tells a lot. But it doesn't give any specific ways in which the church turned from its simple form. Where can I find that information?

HC: Well, I'm not sure that you can find it very clearly demonstrated, because you can't trust the secular record altogether. Again and again the true Gospel, wherever it has its origin in a particular situation, a group of believers begin to gather together, and they begin to faithfully serve the Lord, after a while there are those within that congregation who begin to insist on adding other things. And that's why I suggest that you read about the seven churches.

For example, the church at Ephesus, in Revelation 2:4: "I have this against you, that you have abandoned the love that you had at first." All right. Now the moment you abandon the love you had at first, that leads the way open for another kind of a gospel to enter. And that other kind of a gospel might take a whole variety of forms.

And what the Bible is insisting, therefore, is that this potential has existed all the way from the beginning. Realizing, of course, that the Old Testament church was very ritualistic, in view of the ceremonial laws, therefore it is very easy for a New Testament church to begin to copy some of the ideas from the Old Testament, because that seems to be from the Bible, you see.

CALLER: This is wonderful. Now I've got the 3 chapters in Revelation, and II Timothy 3, Acts 2:17, Hebrews 1:1, II Timothy 4:1-5. Now do I look any place else?

HC: Oh, I would look at I Corinthians 5, all of it.

CALLER: You have no idea how I thank you.

HC: I hope this will help you a little bit.

CALLER: I really appreciate your help. Thank you so much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

God Speaks to Us Only Through the Bible (225B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I got the idea that you feel that God doesn't speak to anybody except through the Bible. And I was wondering if you would like to enlarge on that.

HC: Yes. Your observation is that you understand that I am suggesting that God only speaks through the Bible. And I am very convinced that this is so. Until the Bible was completed, it is true that God spoke through visions and dreams and personal confrontations. Angels came to bring messages, and so on. This is because the Bible was not yet completed.

But then finally God finished His book, and He declared in Revelation 22:18 that if anyone adds to the words of this book, "I will add to him the plagues written herein." This meant that now God has given us His Word. It is the complete Word that God wants, and we'd better start studying it now and becoming acquainted with it. It is the Living Word. It is the Sword of the Spirit. And there is no possibility of some other kind of a divine revelation. And so for that reason I would not believe that anyone could receive a message from God through a vision or a voice or whatever.

CALLER: The reason I'm calling is that I can't believe that there aren't situations in which God can speak to a person through a friend, or through a book someone has written, for amplification of something they have learned from the Bible. For instance, a situation in which a person believes in God, and they have an area in their life that they don't want to face. And God is trying to work them into the position where they will face this situation. Okay. But they fight it, and they won't talk to certain friends because they know what's going to be discussed. They won't read certain parts of the Bible because that section speaks to them. They won't read certain books because they speak to them. Don't you think God might possibly speak to them in a voice or in some way, to get them to listen, if they refuse to listen in any other way, to set the problem straight?

HC: What does Luke 16 say? In Luke 16 we read about the rich man and Lazarus. Now the rich man is in Hades. He's in hell, in torment, and he's concerned about his five brothers on earth. And so he said to Abraham, "I beg you. Send Lazarus to my father's house, for I have five brothers, so that he may warn them lest they also come into this place of torment."

And then Abraham said, "They have Moses and the Prophets [that's another name for the holy scriptures]. Let them hear them." And he said, "No, Father Abraham. If someone goes to them from the dead, they will repent." He said to him, "If they do not hear Moses and the Prophets, neither will they be convinced if someone should rise from the dead." In other words, God is emphasizing that we go to the Word of God for our truth. And if you're not going to believe the Bible, then forget it. We're not going to find truth. God has given us His Word.

And that's exactly the situation that is developing in the world today. People have the Bibles, but they're not reading their Bibles. Oh yes, they read certain parts of the Bible that relate to their own experience. But insofar as just sitting down and letting the whole Bible be the final authority, that's a very arduous task. And it's an ugly task, too, because the Bible has some very detrimental and ugly things to say to mankind. It's far more exciting to let God come to them through a vision or a voice of some kind. And besides, that proves that they personally are in contact with God. It gives a real sense of power, a real sense of belonging. This is the way it's happening today.

But that isn't God speaking. God speaks through His Word. And if we really want to know His Word, let's take time to study it.

Bible Footnotes and Paraphrased Bibles (227C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. You commented on being careful of the footnotes, and so forth, that are at the bottom of the pages in your Bible. And I assume that what you're doing is admonishing us not to consider that as part of the scripture. Is that correct?

HC: Your observation is concerning footnotes that are found on the bottom of the pages of the Bible. Are we simply to understand that they are not part of the scriptures?

Yes. I want to emphasize that, but I'm distressed by Bibles that have these at the bottom of the pages. And there are a number of them that do. The Jerusalem Bible does, the Berkeley Version of the Bible does, the Scofield Bible does. There are a number of them that do. You see, invariably the person who reads the Bible is going to check the footnotes to get the opinion offered there, and then immediately he'll begin to understand what the Bible says in the light of that footnote. And without realizing it, he will put as much weight to that footnote as to the Bible itself. And that cannot be.

Now if he had to go to another book, called a Commentary, and found that information in the Commentary, because it's in that Commentary he knows without question that it's not the Bible, that this is the work of some men. And therefore he's very much more apt to take it with a grain of salt - maybe it's true or maybe it's not true.

But when it's on the page itself, and particularly when you find certain notes like the headings of the Psalms, which are also on the page itself, and which are a part of the Holy Canon, there is great confusion. What is the Bible and what is not the Bible?

CALLER: With respect to, let's say, the Living Bible, which is an acknowledged paraphrase, what opinion do you have?

HC: In my judgment a book like the book that's called the Living Bible is no more the Bible at all than anything else. It has no regard at all for the individual words that were used in the original autographs. It fails to realize altogether that in a particular phrase, that may appear rather awkward in the Bible, God may have some very deep spiritual truth. And when the paraphraser puts that into his own language, if he guesses right he might get at least a little part of the meaning God wanted. But he'll close off some deeper meaning. And it he guesses wrong, he'll turn that phrase into a lie.

And God, you see, could have written the Bible to be very easily read and understood, because God is infinitely wise. But God didn't write it that way. He wrote it so that it would be very difficult to understand. This was God's purpose, that it had to be received by faith, not because we understood it. And so I personally do not want to have anything to do with a paraphrased Bible.

I'm distressed enough to see the small amount of paraphrasing that creeps into some of our translations, which I sometimes even find in the Revised Standard Version. That's bad enough, the way that is.

CALLER: Which do you think are the best of the more recent translations?

HC: One of the best translations that ever came out is the King James translation. Amongst the more modern translations, the best one is the American Standard. It also tried to be as faithful as possible on a word by word basis. The New American Standard and the Revised Standard may still be considered to be good translations, but I don't think they are nearly as superior as the American Standard or the King James.

CALLER: All right, sir. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Is the Bible Missing Any Information? (231C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Did the original version have more details than what we read in, say, the King James translation? In other words, how do we know how tall Jesus is, and his age, and so on. Somehow all the pictures of Jesus are the same. There must be more detail in the original Bible than I can find in the Bible we read today.

HC: The question that was asked concerns the data concerning the history that is recorded for us in the Bible that might not be in the Bible. When the translators of the Bible worked, did they actually pick and choose from a great abundance of data and then collate what they thought was pertinent, and thus we have the Bible?

Well, the fact of course is that that is not at all the case. The translators worked from very exact ancient copies of the Bible, and faithfully they translated every single word into what we call the Bible today. There was no other information.

Now that doesn't mean that there were no other writers at various points in history. The New Testament, for example, was written after around AD 30. And there were other writers of that period. There were writers who wrote particularly during the period around 100 to 200 BC. There were writers like Josephus, who wrote about the same time that the New Testament writers wrote.

We can read their works and discover quite a bit of information about the situation that existed at that time. But these secular works such as the writings of Josephus are not trustworthy because they're like any history book. They carry the bias of the writer and the mistakes of the writer, the lack of proper research that the writer may have been guilty of. All of this is found in any of these secular writings.

This is not the case with the Bible. The Bible is the infallible Word of God. It is altogether trustworthy and dependable. Under no circumstance would there be any mistakes found in it.

Now when we talk about the person of Jesus, how tall He was, what did He look like, we of course have no idea at all what He looked like. The Bible doesn't tell us. These pictures that we see of Jesus are absolutely a fabrication. They are simply the imagination of man, of an artist. They no more represent the Lord Jesus than they represent my uncle Harry, or your uncle Tom. They don't represent Jesus at all.

In fact, I personally believe that they should not even exist, because the Bible indicates that we should not make any appearance of God Himself, and the Lord Jesus is God.

What is the Tenach? (285B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I have something I'd like to ask you. I notice when you give the daily scripture reading, you sometimes refer to the Tenach. I don't know what that is. Could you explain that to me?

HC: The question that is raised is, What is the Tenach? The Tenach is the equivalent of our English Old Testament. It is the Bible that is actually used in the Jewish synagogues today, and it is identical to our Old Testament, except that the order of the books is somewhat different. It is the same Bible that Jesus would have used in His day.

Really, when you read the Tenach, you are reading exactly the same Bible as that part of the Bible that we call the Old Testament.

How Do We Know that God Authored the Bible? (290B)

CALLER: I have a friend at work that I get talking to about the Word every once in a while. And one time she asked me a question that just threw me off, and I couldn't answer it. I like to use the Word as a reference to what I'm saying. But one time she asked me, "How do you know that the Bible was actually written by God?" You know, "How do you know it's actually God's Word?" And I know that there are verses in the Bible that actually say that the Word will last forever, and so on. Isaiah 40:8 says, "The grass withers, the flower fades, but the Word of God shall stand forever." And I could show her these things, where God is saying that the Word is going to last forever, that it is the Word of God. But if she doesn't believe it's the Word of God in the first place, then showing her these verses wouldn't actually prove that to her. And I just wondered if you might have an idea of a way that I could convince her that the Bible is the Word of God?

HC: For example, you could show her Isaiah 53. Now Isaiah 53 was written hundreds of years before Christ came. And no one in the Old Testament had any idea, no human being could have known about the character of the Messiah who was going to come. If they were just ordinary human beings, how could they ever know anything about the Lord Jesus?

But you read Isaiah 53 and see how literally it relates to the Lord Jesus Christ. He was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, and the Lord has laid upon Him the iniquity of us all. He was led like a lamb to the slaughter. And He made His grave with the rich in His death.

Now none of these statements could make any sense, or there's no human being that could have penned those words without being inspired by God, because they identify so closely with Christ. There are many many statements in the Old Testament, and in fact the Old Testament is replete with statements that carry the message of salvation, even though in their historical context it may not be apparent.

Let me give an illustration. Recently I've been working in the Book of Ruth, in the Sunday School class that I teach. And I've found that the Book of Ruth (and actually, I think that the Book of Ruth is just illustrative of the whole Old Testament - As we become better and better acquainted with the Old Testament, I think we would see this pretty much throughout the Old Testament) is a very short book, a little book in the Old Testament, with only eighty-five verses, a beautiful love story of this Moabitish widow, Ruth, who eventually marries Boaz, who is a rich man in Bethlehem. And it's just a lovely love story.

But it has any number of statements in it that are odd, that on the surface don't make any sense. And they only make sense when we understand that they are figures. They're true historical statements, but they're figures of the Gospel, or of the salvation that God is going to provide through the Lord Jesus Christ. Now let me give one illustration. I can give many out of the Book of Ruth. I'm only going to give one.

The Book of Ruth begins with the sad ease that there's a famine in the land of Bethlehem. And this man, Elimelech, an Israelite, with his wife Naomi and his two sons, Mahlon and Chilean, leave Bethlehem and go to the land of Moab, which is a very unwise thing because Moab is a land composed of unbelievers. And lo and behold, Mahlon and Chilean take Moabitish wives. And this is a dreadfully negative, terrible thing for them to do because the Moabites were cursed by God, and they were not to take wives like this. But they did it anyway. They violated God's rules, and they took wives anyway.

Well, that's all very rational history. Finally, Elimelech dies, and then Mahlon and Chilean die, and so now Naomi, the wife of Elimelech, is left with her two Moabitish daughters-in-law. And so the whole thing has become a great tragedy. So far, historically, it just sounds very rational.

Well, then she says in verse 8, "Naomi said to her two daughters-in-law, 'Go. Return, each of you, to her mother's house. May the Lord deal kindly with you as you have dealt with the dead and with me.'" Now that makes sense, too. It's Naomi's desire to return to Bethlehem, to her own people, and she is encouraging Ruth and Orpah to remain in Moab with their families, because they would be aliens, they would be foreigners in Israel. They had never been to Israel. And so she says to them, "May the Lord deal kindly with you, as you have dealt with the dead and with me."

And then in the next verse she said something very strange. She says, "The Lord grant that you may find a rest, each of you, in the house of her husband." Now that doesn't make any sense. What person ever told someone who was hoping to be married sometime, "Could it be that you will find a rest in the house of your husband?" You might say, "The Lord grant that you might find a home in the house of your husband," or "that you might find happiness in the house of your husband." But to find a rest, that doesn't make sense, until we realize that Naomi is making a statement that embraces the whole Gospel.

You see, when we study this in the light of the rest of the Bible, we find that the word rest has to do with salvation. Canaan was the land of rest. It implies a rest from our labors, of our desire to go into Heaven by our works, to become right with God by our labors, by our own efforts. We rest in the Lord Jesus Christ. And the desire of anyone that is saved is that his friends and loved ones might find this rest.

Now what does that have to do with the house of your husband? Well, who is our Husband, if we have really found rest? Our Husband is the Lord Jesus Christ. We are the bride. What is the house of our husband? Well, we become members of the temple of God. The house is actually God Himself. We enter into God Himself. There is no condemnation, for example, for those who are in Christ Jesus. So we find rest in Christ, who is our Husband, who is the Groom and we are the bride.

And so in this brief statement, which is one of many in the Book of Ruth, we find the whole outline of salvation. Now any author penning the Book of Ruth, just a human author, would never have been able to put these statements so beautifully into this love story. He just would not have used this kind of language. It wouldn't have made sense. And if we would go on in the Book of Ruth, we would find many other phrases of a similar nature. They don't make sense standing alone.

But when we understand they are outlines of the whole message of salvation, and they are brought into sharp focus when we look at the words in the light of how they're used elsewhere in the Bible, then we see that God has hidden in the Book of Ruth the whole message of Christ's going to the cross.

And then we can see that it had to have a divine Author. No man could have written this.

CALLER: I'm going to have to study those verses you gave me. That's really interesting.

How Do We Read of Unseen Events in the Bible? (328C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. In the Gospel of Luke, he gives us quite a descriptive account of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane the night before He was crucified. And he describes Him lying prone in prayer to God, and talks about Him going back to the inner circle and asking them to pray with Him, and of course they fell asleep. And also he describes Jesus sweating drops of blood. And the question came to my mind that this was so very descriptive of everything that was going on there that evening. And yet it would appear that no one was really sitting up with Jesus. So how would this account be able to be put down in so precise a manner as Luke wrote? Would it be by divine revelation by God, or do you think that Jesus had a chance to speak to them. His disciples, before He was crucified? Or just exactly what is your comment on that?

HC: A very good question has been raised. There are account of events in the Bible where no eye, no human eye, was present. And yet these are very descriptive accounts. The example was given of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane. The three disciples who went with Him had fallen asleep, and yet we have a very descriptive account of what is going on in the Garden of Gethsemane, as Jesus is sweating great drops of blood into the ground, and He is crying out to God, "Oh Father, is it possible for this cup to pass from Me?" and so on.

We must remember that the Bible is written by God Himself. "All scripture," the Bible says, "is given by inspiration of God." When anyone wrote in the Bible, they wrote out of their own human knowledge, and their own environment, and their own personality. But when they finally formed their words and their sentences, it was precisely what God wanted.

Now if any human being, no matter how intelligent he might be or how knowledgeable he might be, writes an article about an historical event, he is not going to be absolutely accurate, because he can't know everything. He's going to misjudge motive, or he's going to misjudge many things. He's going to write to the best of his ability, and even though he may have been an eye witness and intimately acquainted with all the particulars, nevertheless what he writes is not going to be absolutely accurate. Someone else could come along and question, "But wait a minute. Are you sure that he said it quite that way?" or whatever.

But when anything was written in the Bible, you can rest assured that what was written was absolutely accurate, not because the human being who wrote it was that intelligent or that accurate, but because God the Holy Spirit was the author. He guided that man so that what he wrote was absolutely accurate.

Now in certain cases we have statements in the Bible which were written down by the human scribe, whether it was the physician Luke, or whether it was the prophet Amos, or the prophet Isaiah, or whoever. And they wrote without realizing the import of what they wrote. You can read many of the prophecies of the Old Testament concerning the coming Messiah, and those prophets did not really understand what they wrote. They simply wrote as God dictated to them, as God put it into their minds, what they were to put down in black and white.

The same therefore would be true of the experience in the Garden of Gethsemane. God gave the physician Luke the words to put down. And certainly Jesus might have talked about it. There's no indication that He did, however. The more likely situation is that the Holy Spirit simply guided Luke to fill in the missing blanks, so that it would be exactly what God wanted.

We can see that the same thing would be true of Genesis 1 and 2 and 3 and 4 and 5. How did Moses, who is the one who finally put it down in the writing as we have it in our Bible, know about creation, which had occurred some 9,500 years earlier, thousands of years before the invention of writing? How could he detail what happened in the Garden of Eden? How would he know what Eve said, right to the very words? The only way he could know this is because God gave him the words to write down, so that what we have is absolutely trustworthy.

Thank you for that good question.

The Word "Forever" in the Bible (328D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum

CALLER: Brother Camping, I've been having difficulty with some of the Old Testament statements regarding admonitions that are made, and they use the word "forever." And also some of the prohibitions which are to be forever. What takes this away? There's so much of it in the Old Testament, this particular thing, forever and ever.

HC: Now you know why that is.

CALLER: No, I don't.

HC: The question is raised: Why do we find so frequently in the Old Testament, about this or that going on forever? The reason is that while God was dealing with national Israel in an historical setting on this sin-cursed earth, He was presenting through them God's eternal plan of salvation. He was speaking actually of spiritual truths that had everlasting consequences.

As an illustration of this, when He was talking to Abraham, He promised him the land of Canaan, did He not? He said, "Look to the north and south and east and the west. All of this land I will give you." How long was he given this land? Forever, forever.

Now that immediately tells us that God was not speaking about the literal land of Canaan insofar as this sin-cursed earth was concerned, because the rest of the Bible indicates that this universe, this earth, is to be burned by fire. It's to be totally destroyed at the end of time. Anything that exists today will be gone. And so God has to be talking about another kind of a land of Canaan, a land of Canaan that will go on forever, which can only be the New Heaven and the New Earth, where we will live forever with the Lord Jesus Christ.

The proof of this, incidentally, in Abraham's case, was that he didn't make any attempts to buy any land. He didn't make any attempt to own any. He finally bought a piece of land when his wife Sarah died in old age. But we read in Hebrews that he lived here as a stranger and as a pilgrim. Moreover, it declares there that he was looking for a heavenly city, a city whose foundations were made by God.

He was looking beyond the physical land of Canaan, at an eternal Canaan, namely, the eternal salvation that God was providing. Whenever you see the word forever in the old Testament or New Testament, you can know that it is going beyond history into eternity. Therefore, it's not speaking of something that's relating to this sin-cursed earth. It's relating to the New Heaven and the New Earth, or to salvation itself, which is eternal in character.

The Original Languages of the Bible (346C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I have a question. I'm a born again Jewish Christian, very very young in the Christian faith, though. And every time that I listen to a pastor on television or radio, or even the pastors of the churches that I've attended, when they're interpreting something from either the King James Version or the Living Version, they usually relate back to what they call the original Greek. Could you explain that? I'm not at all familiar with when it was written, or anything, because I know Christ was in Israel, and I know there were Romans there, and Arabs, and Israelites. But Greeks?

HC: Actually, the Old Testament, that is, the part of the Bible that we call the Old Testament, which is the Bible that Jesus used, was originally written in the Hebrew language almost entirely. There was a little of it written in the Aramaic, but almost entirely it was written in the Hebrew language. And we call that the Masoretic text.

CALLER: Right. Those are the scripture that I was raised with.

HC: All right. Now that is the most accurate of the original, or the oldest copies that can be found. There were a Greek version of the Old Testament later on produced, which was called Septuagint. It was produced by "the seventy," and therefore it was called the Septuagint. But the Greek is a translation and is not nearly as accurate or as authoritative as the Masoretic. When the King James translation was made, and any good translation, it always is made from the Masoretic text.

Of course, we do not have the original document that Isaiah wrote, or that Moses wrote, or the scribes under the kings of Israel wrote. But we do have very ancient copies. For example, in the Dead Sea Scrolls they found a copy of the Book of Isaiah that dates by Carbon 14 (which dating at that time in history is quite accurate) about 150 years before Christ. So that means that that copy was quite close to the original, certainly within 300 or 400 years.

When they compare ancient copies with ancient copies, where these copies are several hundred years apart, they find that the copies are so close to each other, it really indicates how accurately they have been copied. The Jewish nation was just exceedingly careful in copying from copy to copy. In our day, when we have these paraphrased editions, and so on, which are not the Bible at all, not at all, there is just a woeful lack of the holiness of the Bible.

CALLER: You're referring to the Good News Bible, and the New Living Bible?

HC: Anything that all that's a paraphrased edition, it must not be considered the Bible.

CALLER: That explains why I get the terrible feeling I do when I hear people quoting from it.

HC: Yes, because it is so far from the original, and it has so much speculation in it, and it just denies what the Word of God is.

Now the New Testament was originally written in the Greek language, although a little tiny bit of it was in the Aramaic. But virtually all of it was in the Greek language. And again, we don't have the original autographs, but we have very ancient copies that are available for the translators.

And so this is the basis for a good translation, the Hebrew Bible in the Old Testament, the Greek New Testament.

CALLER: I see. Another question: In different places in the Bible, with reference to time, I see the little abbreviation cf. What does that mean?

HC: Compare. I don't know what that really means, but it's something the person who published the Bible has put there to indicate that we are to check with these other scriptures for cross referencing.

CALLER: It's usually in the King James version that I see it, because I only use the King James and the Masoretic text.

HC: Are you talking about something that's in the margin?

CALLER: No. I mean within the verses. In italics, c.f., and there's usually not another scripture verse, but it's actually within a sentence.

HC: I don't know what that is. I do know this, that in the King James Bible occasionally you'll find a word italicized. Now the reason for that is that in order to help make the sentence flow, the translator took the liberty of introducing a word that was not in the original, and he italicizes it so that the reader could know that it was introduced by the translator, and therefore is not part of the Holy Canon.

CALLER: Then if you were to read that sentence without that word, you would get the original.

HC: Yes. You'd be much closer to the original. There's a dramatic illustration of this in Daniel 8, where it speaks about the daily sacrifice being taken away, for example, in Daniel 8:11. Now the word "daily" is in the original. The word sacrifice was not in the original. It is a speculation of the translator that that is what is being referred to. And so they introduce the word sacrifice. Actually, in my judgment, in studying the context, I'm quite convinced that the translator introduced the wrong word. When God was talking about the daily, or the continual here, He had not in mind the sacrifice at all. But rather, He had in mind the candlestick that was burning in the temple. This is a word that's also used in Leviticus 24:4, where it's the identical Hebrew word used in connection with continual. And for a lot of reasons I believe it is the continual.

But because I see the word sacrifice in italics, I know that that is a suggestion by the translator, but it is not found in the original.

CALLER: I see. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Is the Apocrypha Authentic? (391C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum

CALLER: Yes, Brother Camping. Recently my wife gave me a Bible that had the Apocrypha in the middle of it. And I hadn't known anything about the Apocrypha before, and I began studying it. And according to what I read here, the books in the Apocrypha were incorporated in the Bible throughout history, up until about the early part of American history, in 1600 or 1700, when there were dropped because of Puritanism, according to what Goodspeed says here. And the question I have in mind is, if the Apocrypha carried so much, was in the Bible for such a long period of time, up until early American history, could it be that the early American Bible scholars, who were Puritans, were mistaken in dropping it and that it is part of God's Word?

HC: The question is concerning the authenticity of the Apocrypha as being part of the Holy Canon. Now these books were written in the period between the last revelation that was given by God to the nation of Israel, about 400 BC, and the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ, about 400 years later. This was a period of silence when there was no vision between God and man.

It's during this period that some of the history of the nation of Israel was written up, and so we have the Book of Maccabees, and some of these books that are called the Apocrypha or the hidden books.

Now in the Bible that Jesus used, and remember, He came after the Apocryphal books were written, in the Hebrew Bible, the Masoretic text that Jesus used, there was no Apocrypha. If you even go into a Jewish synagogue today and read the Jewish Bible, which is called the Tenach, you will find that it does not include the Apocrypha. That is not part of the Old Testament. It was not a part of the Bible that Jesus used. It is therefore not part of the Holy Canon.

Actually, I think, and I'm not absolutely positive of this, because I'm not too much of a student of history, I'm more a student of the Bible, but I think that the early Bibles did not contain the Apocrypha. But I believe that around the year 1400 or 1500 one of the churches decided that the Apocryphal books ought to be included. And it was from that period that they actually were included. The Puritans, of course, would have rejected it out of hand, because they recognized that these Apocryphal books were not part of the Holy Canon.

Now if you read the Apocrypha very carefully, and if you're a student of the Bible at all, so that you've really become sensitive to the way God writes, and understand the tremendous internal consistency and integrity and cohesiveness of the whole Bible, then when you read the Apocryphal books you will find that they do not have the same ring of authority. They do not present the truth, the Gospel, the same way the rest of the Bible does.

Now that doesn't mean that one cannot derive certain benefits from reading them. We for example have the writings of Josephus, an historian who lived about the time of Christ, or shortly thereafter. And his writings can be read. But when we read Josephus, or when we read the Apocryphal books, we have to realize that these are secular books. They are not authoritative. There are bound to be biases and prejudices and mistakes, the same as any history book would have these things. They are not the Holy Canon.

CALLER: I see. I felt that the fact that one large church (I won't name it) still uses the Apocrypha and do not necessarily separate it from the Old Testament and the New Testament, but interspersed in the Old Testament, the way it was originally handed down.

HC: No, it was not originally handed down that way. That is not possible. The Old Testament that we have today, the Bible that we have without the Apocrypha is the Old Testament as it was originally handed down.

CALLER: Okay. When I say handed down, I mean from the Greek translation. In other words, the Hebrew translation did not have the Apocrypha, but the Greek translation that the interpreters had throughout the centuries did have the Apocrypha in it.

HC: Yes, but the Septuagint, or the Greek translation, was not the authoritative text. It was not the Bible. It's just like today. You can find a lot of translations today that have taken liberties with the original. Now that doesn't mean that they're correct at all, you see, just because they're translations today. If we're going to try to get the most authoritative Bible, we have to go back as close to the original as we possibly can. And the Masoretic text, the Hebrew text, did not contain the Apocrypha. There's no possibility that it is part of the Holy Canon.

CALLER: I see. And so for that reason the Puritans dropped the use of the Apocrypha in early American church history. But I'm wondering how authentic the Greek versions were as they were handed down through the centuries. In other words, I'm wondering if we're missing something by not including them in today's usage of the Bible.

HC: We're not missing a thing, not a thing. You see, the Apocrypha are not part of the Bible. The Septuagint was not the authorized text. It was simply a translation. And when translators, for example, the King James Bible or any good translation of the Bible, work, they do not use the Septuagint. They use the Masoretic text because it is more authoritative.

You see, the Jews of Jesus' day, when they began to countenance the Apocrypha (because they did, of course. It was part of their Jewish history), had added so much to the official, authoritative Bible text, they had added laws and rules of all kinds and shades and descriptions, which they were very careful to be obedient to, in their adding all of these things, they had so much emasculated the true Gospel that when Jesus, the Messiah, came, they did not recognize Him. They did not know that He was the Messiah. Their problem was that they had added all of these other things to the Bible. They had added not only the Apocrypha, but they had added the commentaries of various learned Rabbis of earlier history. And all of this became the official text. And as a consequence they lost all sensitivity to the authority of the Bible, and they did not recognize Jesus as the Messiah. When He came on the scene, the Sanhedrin, the ruling body in the church of that day, the high priests, the highest religious officials, rejected Christ altogether, and refused under any circumstance to recognize Him as the Messiah.

Now the same is true today. There are lots of people who are adding to the Bible. They're adding this, they're adding that. And while they still talk about Jesus as the Messiah (because after all, they can't deny Jesus; He did live and He did do what He did), they have lost their sensitivity to the will of God. They no longer recognize what really is the will of God.

Now the Bible as it stands is a book that no man in ten lifetimes (and that's not too exaggerated a bit) could really plumb the depths of the riches of the Bible. But we're living in a day when men are scarcely scratching the surface of the truths that are found in the Bible. And yet they are desirous of finding a little more here and a little more there, and adding something else the other place. Instead of sitting down and reading the Bible and feeding on the Word of God, listening to God speak to them, they would rather add this and add that. And of course in that way they get farther and farther away from what is truth.

What is the Nature of the Bible? (410B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Brother Camping. I'm a beginner in Christ, and I do not want to be divisive. But I have a problem. The Bible, as I understand it, is a collection of writings. This King James Version has been in existence for a great number of years. Within the last about 100 or 150 years, perhaps less, there has come a new teaching which propounds its own version of certain basic fundamentals as contained in the King James Version. If it is, as Timothy says, approved for teaching, how is it that they do not accept, for example, the Trinity, or that they believe that the soul is nothing more than life force? It's got me confused.

HC: You see, we have to make a fundamental decision. Your question really is, what is the nature of the Bible? Or what is the Holy Scripture?

The Bible does not contain a collection of writings which are divinely inspired. The Bible is the divine Word. The Bible from cover to cover is the divine Word. It alone and in its entirety is the divine Word of God. Any Bible or any gospel which purports to be the true Gospel, but which denies that parts of the Bible are the Bible, or adds to the Bible with other writings, calling it also the divine Word, by definition is not the Gospel of the Bible, or it's not the Word of God any longer. The Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word.

Now the King James translation that we have is one of the finest translations that has ever been produced. It was produced over 300 years ago. It is not absolutely infallible, however. The original writings, which were chiefly in Hebrew and Greek with some Aramaic, are to the very letter and the very word absolutely infallible. However, the King James translation, as any good translation, is as accurate a translation as can be possible from the most ancient copies of these original autographs, so that we have in the King James Bible, to all intents and purposes, may be understood to be the infallible Word of God.

Do you see this distinction?

CALLER: Yes, I see what you're getting at.

HC: We read the Bible and we don't question, "Is this the Word of God?" We start out with the premises that this is the Word of God. God is speaking to me. Now the question is, am I ready to humble myself? Am I ready to accept what I read by faith? I may not understand a lot of it because the Bible of course is the revelation of the infinite mind of God. There is much that is very deep. It's very difficult to understand. But whether I understand it or not is not the question. The question is whether I receive it. Do I accept it as the Word of God, being ready to be obedient to all that I see there, insofar as I can understand it.

CALLER: I see what you mean. Would Revelation 22:18 apply only to the Book of Revelation, or to the entire Bible?

HC: Let's assume for the moment that Revelation 22:18 & 19 applies only to the Book of Revelation. The question that's being raised is, does this apply only to the Book of Revelation? Let's add a chapter to the Book of Revelation and call that also a part of the divine Word. Now effectively we have added that chapter now to the whole Bible, because the Book of Revelation is an integral, cohesive part of the whole Bible. Anything added to the Book of Revelation is added to the Bible.

By the same token, if you decided, "Well, I don't like Revelation 19 and 20. Let's take that out of the Book of Revelation," then immediately you have taken it out of the Bible, because the Book of Revelation again is an integral cohesive part of the whole Word of God.

So, effectively, whether you want to understand "the words of this book" of Revelation of 22:18 as meaning the Book of Revelation or being the whole Bible, it really makes no difference. Effectively it becomes the whole Bible.

CALLER: All right. Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

The Veracity of the Bible (529A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I called earlier this week and suggested that we can hypothesize that the creation and the inspiration of the Bible were the work of the devil.

HC: Now let me ask you this question, I remember your call. Where does this idea come from, this hypothesis that you're speaking of, that Satan is the creator?

CALLER: Well, I think it's a natural question.

HC: I know, but it's important where it came from. In other words, it came out of your mind. It's a hypothesis that came out of your mind. And therefore it has no more authority than your mind. It is no more valid than your mind. And of course your mind is circumscribed by the way God created you. Your mind and my mind are exceedingly limited. We know very very little about this earth. That we know for sure. We don't have to hypothesize about that. We know very very little about this earth and about the universe. And certainly we know a lot less about who would have created this earth and this universe.

And therefore, any hypothesis that comes out of our mind immediately is rather worthless. Now that's the reason that it's so marvelous that we have the Bible, because the Bible didn't come out of my mind. The Bible exists.

CALLER: The act of accepting the Bible is an act of the mind.

HC: Yes, but the Bible however was not written by my mind. The Bible here stands and claims to be the Word of God, and it has stood the test of 2000 years. When I begin to examine the Bible and see its marvelous cohesiveness, when I see the fact that it has prophesied certain things would come to pass, and they did indeed come to pass, when you read, for example, a passage like Isaiah 53, which definitely was penned hundreds of years before it happened, and then you study the Gospels and see exactly what happened in the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, you realize how marvelously accurate that prophecy was. You begin to sense that this is something else than the work of man. It is the work of God.

And again and again in the Bible you will find prophecies that were written hundreds of years before they took place, and later on in time they were fulfilled in exact agreement with the prophecy.

CALLER: Now you have said three important words here. You've said that when you examine the Bible, you said that when you study the Gospels, you said then when you sense these things to be true, aren't these processes of the mind?

HC: No. You see, when we look at one and one and it adds up to two, that is a fact. We can agree on that. There's no problem. There's no hypothesis there. That's a fact. And when we open the scriptures and we read one word following another, these are words that are facts that are before us, that can be examined, as any authority can be examined.

CALLER: But this is the problem. How do we know that these things in the Bible are facts and not illusions?

HC: Well, first of all because they have been proven again and again to be historically accurate. And any time the Bible has been attacked, let's put it in another way. Anything that the Bible has spoken of in history has never been disproved. It always is a true fact of history. When you, for example, read your history book, and this is always very interesting to me. People, for example, will read a history book and they'll say that Columbus discovered America in 1492, because they read it in a history book. Now they accept that without any question. Columbus discovered America in 1492. Nobody questions whether that's an illusion or whatever. They just assume that is correct, even though the history book doesn't hold a candle to the Bible.

But when they read the Bible and God gives a fact of history there, then they begin to question. Well, can we trust the Bible? Is the Bible this or is the Bible that? But the fact is that the Bible is infinitely more accurate from every aspect than any history book is.

CALLER: But this isn't universally accepted. And people will read the Bible critically and say that there is some doubt for this, that this isn't necessarily truth.

HC: Yes, they can do that. But you see, we have to start somewhere. And I don't trust my mind at all. I do have a document in front of me called the Bible, and wherever I have been able to test it, it has always been proven correct. And it is the only book that's available in the whole wide world that has a definite straightforward presentation of the very beginning, the only book that really describes who God is and tells us why we have the conditions in the world today. And from whatever vantage point I test it, it always comes out and makes sense. And again it has made many prophecies that have literally been fulfilled.

For example, in Luke 21:20, to give you an illustration, it says there, "When you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, know that its desolation has come nigh." Now that's an interesting statement. The context, when you read it very carefully, cannot be talking about the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70, if you read the context carefully. We do know from history that Jerusalem was destroyed then, but here we see today that Jerusalem again is surrounded by armies who wish to destroy it. And this was predicted 1900 years ago. This can only be because it is the Word of God.

CALLER: People such as Erasmus and DaVinci have also made prophecies that have come true. Prophecies are the work of men, not necessarily God.

HC: No. These men never made prophecies like the Bible has done. They have never made those kinds of prophecies, not at all, where every one has come to pass. This just has not happened. And no one else has ever written like the Bible. There is not another book in the world that is written like the Bible, that has as many human authors as it has and yet has a cohesiveness that is just exquisite, being written over a period of 1500 years or longer, and yet it is just totally cohesive within itself. There is no book like it. Once you learn to respect the Bible, honor the Bible as the Word of God and really begin to study and surrender your will to it and let it speak to you, then you begin to see the power of the Bible as compared with any human book, any other book that you want to name in the world. There is no book in the world that even can hold a candle to the Bible.

Now my mind I don't trust for a moment. But when I read the Bible, I recognize, this has to be something very very special, and I'm willing to hang my life on it. There's nothing else that even begins to approach the Bible.

Now you can decide, well, Okay. I'm an agnostic. I don't trust the Bible. I don't know whether there is a God, or whatever. And you can try to find some other authority. You may do that. But I don't know where you're going to look. I have no idea where you're going to look.

You try to find another authority that even begins to approach the authority of the Bible. And I challenge you to find some other authority. You go into the largest library in the country, and they'll have hundreds of thousands of volumes. You pour through those, and you find one book there that has the authority of the Bible. And you won't find it. There is none that exists.

CALLER: We know, for example, from the Book of Job that God has given Satan dominion over the earth. Now in the case of Job, God, who had previously protected Job, no longer protects him and Satan has complete power over Job. Suppose that God has given Satan power over men such that it was Satan who has inspired the Bible.

HC: No. You see, your hypothesis is all mixed up. You're starting with the Bible and using that as your authority, and then you're saying that the Bible is written by Satan. That's circular reasoning. That'll take you nowhere. You are correct of course. You are correct that God has said certain things about Satan in the Book of Job. But God says certain things in the same Bible about Himself. And He's said a lot more about Satan. And so your hypothesis, if you're going to start with the Bible, disappears immediately, because then you have to continue with the Bible.

CALLER: Okay. I'm saying that you believe that Satan has dominion over the earth.

HC: Only as God allows him to. God didn't allow Satan to do anything he wanted to Job. He limited him. He said you can do anything you want but you can't take his life. And the same is true. Satan has authority over the earth to some degree. But he doesn't have complete authority. God is still the King of kings and Lord of lords. And as a matter of fact, Satan is a defeated foe. He is destined for destruction because he has been vanquished at the cross. And Satan's limitations are very severe, even though God does allow him certain freedoms.

CALLER: And you believe this as an act of faith.

HC: Oh, absolutely. I believe the Bible is the Word of God. It is the Word of God. And it gives me answers to the meaning of life, it gives me answers as to where things came from and where things are going. It is the only book that begins to look like absolute truth, because it is absolute truth.

CALLER: Would you admit the possibility that it is because your own psychology needs answers, needs to know why, needs to have a purpose, that you believe the Bible, that it's a psychological phenomenon that leads you to have faith?

HC: Oh, no, it's not a psychological phenomenon. It's a very definite spiritual phenomenon that God opens my spiritual eyes and ears so that I have the faith that the Bible is the Word of God. This didn't come of myself, because only God would be able to do that. Of myself I would not want to come to God. Of myself I would be in rebellion against Him. It is only because of what God has done that I have this faith. And it's this faith that begins to really give essential answers to life, essential answers to the nature of life and the kind of life that ought to be, and so on.

Now you've got to find yourself an authority. Let's get right back to that question. You've got to find an authority to live under. And either you're going to find a book somewhere that is your authority, and you can lay that alongside the Bible and check it to see if it has anything like the Bible's authority, or you've got to check your own mind and let it be the authority. Then you know how limited you really are in your authority. But you have to have an authority. And frankly, I don't trust my mind, I don't trust any other book.

But I do trust the Bible. And I'll lay the Bible alongside any book in the world. There's no book that even begins to sound like the Bible.

But thank you so much for calling. Good night.

Challenge to Mr. Camping's Teaching Style (555A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hi. I wanted to ask you about your feelings about the Tribulation, and that we would be here and we would live through the Tribulation, and everything. And I was wondering if you were familiar with Renald Showers' feelings on that. He talks about how Christ's second coming is typified by a Jewish wedding ceremony. And I was wondering what your feelings are about this.

HC: I'm unfamiliar with that idea, and I'm unfamiliar with that book. So I'm not able to speak to that.

CALLER: Okay. Well, when the Jewish man wants to get married and he finds the girl that he is going to marry, he goes to the father, and they bargain for the daughter and he pays a price for her. And then the daughter and the groom drink a glass of wine together, and this kind of makes the marriage. They are really married then, but then he goes away for the year, and he prepares the house for his bride. And she doesn't know when he's coming, but it will be like in a year's time. And then when he does come, it's usually at night, and he brings his groomsmen. And they have lit torches, and they go down the street. And what happens is that the people in the procession come out and chant, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh." And so this goes on down the street, until the bride hears this. And then she knows that he is coming.

And then when he gets there, he waits for her to come out. And then she comes out of the house and she goes back with him to his home, where all the guests are, the home that he has prepared for them. And then they go into the bridal chamber, and they consummate the marriage. And then the groom tells the guests that the marriage is completed now. And then she stays in there for seven days, and then he brings her out on the seventh day, and he shows everybody who his bride is. And this is a typology of Christ's second coming. When the bridegroom comes to get his bride, he takes the bride back with him, and she's in there for seven days, in the bridal chamber. And it's just like Christ's second coming. When He does come He will take His bride up for the seven years. And then at the end, when He comes, He will reveal His bride to all of the people.

I know that you feel that we're going to be here, and I was wondering what are your thoughts on this?

HC: I would say, first of all, that that whole idea, while it's very romantic and it seems to fit a program that some people think the Bible teaches, it has no Biblical validation. There is no program like that outlined in the Bible. It is true that God uses the picture of the bridegroom coming in connection with the ten virgins in Matthew 25. But in that parable He doesn't mention the bride. He just mentions the ten virgins. And you can't go beyond that parable and include all these other elements that are not there.

That whole outline does not agree with the Bible. It just does not agree with the Bible.

CALLER: Well, this man has been through a lot of schooling and has studied his Bible pretty thoroughly, and his ideas are that the Bible has types and shadows, that the Old Testament is a type and a shadow of the Lord.

HC: Yes, but you see, when the Bible has types and shadows, we have to follow the Bible. Now if there were Jewish customs, let's say, that are not named in the Bible, we cannot look at those customs and say that those were types and shadows of something in the Bible. That is unwarranted. If we read the Bible and we find a type or a shadow, because it says that they had to sacrifice a lamb, or whatever it might have been — that they couldn't eat the unclean animals, or whatever the rule may have been — that is a Biblically warranted type or shadow.

But if we read the secular history and discover that there were certain customs that the Jewish people had, many people, for example, try to outline in great detail exactly the very steps that were in a typical Jewish feast. And they say all of this was a type or a shadow. Well, if it's not in the Bible, it's not a type or a shadow. It was just a custom that was developed. And you could romanticize this, and you can enlarge on this, and try to make it a type or a shadow. But you have no Biblical warrant for it. You have to stick with the Bible.

CALLER: What about Jacob and his bride? Not Rachel, but her sister . . .

HC: Leah.

CALLER: Yes, Leah. Now that was the same thing. He was in there for seven days.

HC: No, it doesn't say anywhere that he was with her for seven days.

CALLER: That they went into the bridal chamber?

HC: I don't think so. I think that they were married, and then in the morning he discovered that he had been deceived, that he had been married to Leah instead of Rachel. There's no suggestion there of seven days. I'm not aware of that in the Bible anywhere, where it talks about seven days.

CALLER: Okay. I'll have to look it up because I can't recall right offhand. But it seemed to me that that's what it had said. I'll look that one up and see what I can find. But I just can't help but feel that what Renald Showers said about it is right. He did put a pamphlet out on it, and it's just really interesting. I know a lot of people don't feel that we will be here during the Tribulation, and I just can't, you know, it's like the Jehovah's Witnesses. They come to your door, and they can use all kinds of scripture and say, "Well, this says this and this says that," yet that's their own feelings on it.

The one thing that bothers me, when you're telling people this, is that you say, "there's nowhere in the Bible." Now this really makes people feel like, "I'm all wrong and he's all right." I think if you said it at all, you should say, "Well, this is how I feel about it, and this is what I find in the Bible," because it seems like there's nowhere . . .

HC: You see, the problem is, I hear what you're saying, and I appreciate your comment very much. But the problem is this. If we're going to teach the Bible, and least this is my personal feeling about teaching the Bible, the first thing I have to do is to make sure that I've done my homework. And if I, for example, am going to talk about the Tribulation (or anything else), if I'm going to speak emphatically about it, I better sit down and spend the hours or the days or the months and really research the scriptures concerning it, everything I possibly can find that might be related to it. Otherwise I'd better not say, "Thus saith the Lord."

And so when I hear a person say something that is related to a subject that I've really worked on very very hard, and I'm acquainted with what the verses are in the Bible that relate to this, and they make a statement, and I know that is not in the Bible, that it just is not in the Bible, then I would be lying if I said, "Well, this is just my personal feeling," because it's not my personal feeling. I know what the Bible says about that particular question.

Now I'm not infallible, of course. Supposing I said, "Well, that is not in the Bible," and suppose that someone a week later or a month later came up with a verse and said, "Wait a minute. What about this verse?" Then I would be the first and the happiest person in the world to acknowledge that I was mistaken. There is a verse that I did overlook. And I have to change my attitude toward that particular question. And there have been times when I have done this.

But on a lot of these things, for example, you hear someone speaking on the return of Christ, and he talks about Russia, that it's going to overwhelm Israel. And I say, well, Russia is not in the Bible. It just is not in the Bible. Now the word Rosh is. It's found over 500 times in the Bible, the word Rosh. But it always is translated top or head or chief. And so when someone comes along with Ezekiel 38 or Ezekiel 39, where the word Rosh is found, and says this is Russia, then I say, wait a minute. If you're going to do that, then what about the other 500 places where the word Rosh is found? How about putting Russia over there, too? That's not exegeting the Bible when you find a word that is similar to something you want to teach, and now you simply say that in this case it means something that I think it ought to say. That's not dealing fairly with the Word of God.

CALLER: There's a lot of people, a lot of scholars, who, you said one night that you had no schooling. And you don't have to have schooling. I don't think you do, either. But somebody I was speaking to the other night said that there was a person who flatly came out and said one night, "Well, Mr. Camping is wrong." He's studied Greek, and he knows what's he's talking about. Now I'm not saying you don't, but he's trained. He knows. If you can get right down to the Greek, you've gotten down to the brass tacks.

HC: Now let me say this. First of all, we are impressed by scholarship. This is the way we are schooled in our land. Someone who has a doctor's degree and someone who has a lot of other degrees, we are impressed by this. And if he is a theological professor, so much the better. We are deeply impressed by this.

However, the bare fact is this, that a great amount of scholarship today in church circles (and in the secular world it's totally true) is by people reading other people's books. And these books are read, and they're digested, and then they're passed on, and the professor passes it on to the students, the student goes into his pastorate and eventually he becomes a professor, and then it's passed on this way. And I don't put down this kind of knowledge, or this kind of scholarship. That's fine. That's wonderful that they have all of this scholarship. But the wonderful thing is that God has given us His Word. God has given us the Bible. And He's given us eyes to read, and He's given us minds to think. And if we're a child of God, then also the Holy Spirit will illuminate our minds, if we will do our homework. There's no shortcut.

And so we can start reading the Bible, and reading and reading and reading, and reading, and comparing scripture with scripture. Now it is true that if you are a Greek scholar, there may be that occasionally a word or a verse will be a little bit more meaningful because you know the original Greek. But wonderfully, our translations are accurate enough so that in 95 or 98% of all doctrine, or even 99% of all doctrine, you're going to find that your doctrines are going to be thoroughly trustworthy just from the English Bible. Once in awhile it is true that a Greek word might change your mind.

Now for example, I was doing a study on I Corinthians 9 in Family Bible Study. I came to the last verse, where Paul says,

"I buffet my body lest after saving others I become a castaway." Now just using the English Bible I had always concluded that this simply meant that he was very careful that he did not trip himself up, fall into some sin that would make him lose his right to be an apostle if he fell into the sin of adultery, or whatever. Many ministers have done this.

But in making a very careful study for Family Bible Study, I looked at that word in the Concordance to see how the Greek was used throughout the Bible, and I became convinced that that word had to be understood like becoming someone who was rejected or someone who was a reprobate, that this is the way it ordinarily is used in the Bible, and that verse has to be understood with that in view.

And so in that case the Greek word did make a difference. But wonderfully, in 98% of all cases in the Bible, the English Bible is adequate. But the problem is that people don't spend enough time in the Bible. Like the book that you started out with, now that may be very interesting, talking about Jewish customs, and so on, and how that parallels certain things in the Bible. But that isn't the Bible.

CALLER: No, but you've written books, too. Let's face it. I don't know if you've, had any Greek or anything, have you?

HC: Well, only as I've worked in the scriptures. In other words, I use an Interlinear Greek/English translation, I use the Concordance and look up how God uses words, Greek words. I'm not a Greek scholar by any means. But I don't think you have to be a Greek scholar in order to get most of what you need in the Bible. The biggest problem is spending enough time with what we have.

CALLER: I'm sure that this man has. I'm sure he spends a lot of his time. In fact, that's how he makes his living.

HC: I may be wrong in places, certainly I may be. But let's take a question like the Tribulation. Now you don't have to be a Greek scholar at all, not at all, to find the Biblical truth concerning the Tribulation and the timing of the Rapture. The Bible has just oodles of things to say about it, very plain things to say about it. All you have to do is take time enough to read the Bible and to put all these things out, and put aside all the speculations that are written about in books. That's the hardest pill to swallow.

CALLER: Then you'll tell people to write in for your pamphlets, telling your view. This is the thing.

HC: You see, the reason I do this is this. You've heard me say many times, "Don't trust me. Trust the Bible. Read the Bible." Now when I write a pamphlet, I do it for two reasons. I do it first of all because questions are raised on a doctrine, and I could spend a half hour answering that question. The next week the same question or a similar question is asked, and I could spend a half hour answering again. By simply saying, "Look. Here are two or three of the proof texts of the Bible, but if you're interested in this, write in, and I've prepared a little pamphlet on this so that you can study at your leisure," they can examine it with a view toward checking it out. Read the verses, check them out. Don't trust me. Trust the Bible.

And it's only a help. I'm not particularly anxious about books, and all of this. I wish people would read the Bible. But I do try, when I do write a pamphlet, to just stick with the Bible. What does the Bible say? Now others try to do this, too. And I wish that whatever people read, they would check out. I've read many books in which a certain idea is developed, and they'll offer a verse, and then they'll, well, let me just think of one as an illustration. In Romans 11:25, I'll read a book that is exegeting that verse. And in that verse God declares that a hardness will remain upon Israel until the fullness of the Gentiles have come in, and "thus all Israel will be saved."

Well now, I've read these books and they'll say, "You see? Israel is in unbelief right now, but when the end of the Gentile period has come, then all Israel will be saved." And then they go on to develop this, that then all Israel will be saved. Well, they very neatly slip in this word then, which is not in the verse. That verse is not teaching then at all, it's thus or in this fashion all Israel will be saved. Well, you can read that book and never catch that. And that's why I ask people to read the Bible. Keep sticking with the Bible. Make sure you're reading the Bible very carefully.

CALLER: Okay. Just one other thing. You say that there's nowhere in the Bible that says that we won't be here during the Tribulation, but why are there other people like pastors and trained people who disagree? Now if there is nowhere in the Bible that says we will be gone, why are there so many people that teach this?

HC: Well, that's an interesting question, and I've puzzled over that also. How can a doctrine which is so clearly explicated in the Bible as the fact that the Rapture is the last day, the end of time, and there are so many, many proof texts of this, so very clearly put in there, how is it possible that such a large body of Christians, believers in the Lord Jesus Christ, theologians and preachers, and so on, hold to the idea that the church will be caught up ahead of this? That's a mystery to me.

There is of course a very practical reason for it. One of the reasons is that one of the Bibles that have been pushed in the last generation or so is a Bible that has footnotes, and it is a Bible that was highly recommended by certain of the theological schools. And in the footnotes of this Bible the idea was fostered that the church would be raptured ahead of the Tribulation. Now the unfortunate thing is that those who use this Bible and this particular Bible is one that has as its text the King James Version, and it's a perfectly sound Bible. But the footnotes explain the text. And of course the footnotes are just the idea of a person. They may be true, or they may not be true. But many preachers and many theological professors insist that this is the Bible to buy, this is the one to buy, if you buy a Bible.

All right. Now what happens is that someone reads that Bible, and they come to a difficult passage, and so their eye goes down to the bottom of the page to read the footnote. And the footnote seems to make sense, it's written well and it seems to explain the verse. So now they think they understand this verse, and they go on in their reading.

Well then, a month later, if someone asks them, or six months later, a question about this matter, they say, "Well, I know I read it in the Bible. I know I read it in the Bible." Well, they did. They read it on the page of that Bible, but they didn't read it in the text. But their minds no longer can remember where they read it. They're just convinced they read it in the Bible. And I think in a very mechanical or practical way that has occasioned a tremendous amount of ideas that were not Biblical, but people are convinced that they did read it in the Bible.

Now the other thing is again a very mundane, practical kind of a thing. Where do seminary professors come from? Well, they started out as a student in a seminary. And when they went to seminary, they got their teaching from seminary professors, and they kept all those notes - their systematic theology, and so on. And then they went into a pastorate probably for a while, and they didn't really do any serious study because they were busy with the problems of the pastorate, and administration, and preaching two sermons every Sunday, and so on, and eventually they began to be a seminary professor. Well, again, they've learned through seminary and through their pastorate what they have learned, and now this is what they teach. So whatever they have learned they continue to hand down. And very few people are doing any new serious research of the scriptures, really starting from the beginning again, let's examine the scriptures and see where are.

Now unfortunately, and of course this is the path of least resistance. All their fellow pastors believe this, they have many learned people in their denomination that believe this, and it's accepted. And so this is the way then that they preach.

Now I personally, while I have been in a denomination all my life, don't trust anything of anybody. I want to read it in the Bible. Even if I hear someone whom I highly regard as a teacher, and there are those whom I highly regard as teachers, if they tell me something that is a new idea to me, I don't trust that idea. I wait until I can be alone and make an independent search of the scriptures, to make sure that what I've been told is accurate, because I want to see it for myself in the Bible. And this is the kind of thing I'm trying to get our listeners to do. Sometimes the only way they'll do it is when they become angry with me. They don't like what I say. And then in their desperation, in their anger, they say, "Well, I'll go to the Bible and prove he's wrong anyway." And that delights me no end, because at least they're in the Bible.

Now you'll notice that when you hear the Open Forum program, I never never recommend a book. I never recommend John Calvin or Martin Luther or Harry Ironside or "so and so said this" or "so and so said that," because the only thing I recommend is the Bible. Now I have exactly the same Bible that anyone else has. It's a King James Bible. And so I'm reading exactly the same Bible that anyone else reads. And so this is our authority. This is what we have to work with.

CALLER: There's so many people divided. The only thing I can say is, we'll find out when it happens.

HC: Well no, we don't have to wait until it happens. We can read the Bible. This is what we have to do. We have to read the Bible. Involuntarily the typical Christian, when a question arises, let's say, concerning the coming of Christ, will go to a Christian bookstore to buy a book on the return of Christ. They want to find out what this man said, or that man said, or some other man. And I say why don't you read the Bible? Let the Bible tell you. Read it very carefully.

And when your pastor preaches a sermon on any question, whether it's on the doctrines of grace or on the return of Christ, don't be afraid to ask questions, "What about this verse or that verse?" And I think every pastor ought to be quizzed by the congregation, if they have been reading and they wonder about this or that, because this keeps the pastor on his toes, makes sure he's facing all of the scriptures. And it also is an encouragement to the church members to get deeper into the Word of God.

CALLER: You know, the people that do write books, good sound Christians that have written books, most always put their references in. They'll never say, "Well, I believe this, and I'm going to put in my own ideas," and not back it up with scripture. A lot of times they do. They have equally as much scripture to prove a point.

HC: Now let me speak to that just a moment. You say, "equally as much scripture." I don't know if you've ever read some of these books and really looked at the scriptures offered, and just really examined them. For example, I know of a very large book on the return of Christ. It's a classic on the return of Christ. And nowhere in it is there any reference made to Romans 4, which has everything to do with Israel, and so on. How can that be? But look, we've run out of time. I'm sorry. But I would encourage you to just read the Bible.

Coping with Conflicting Interpretations (593A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. I have a question that I wonder if you could comment on, please. It's kind of a predicament, actually. I sincerely wish to get into the Bible and understand the scripture both for my own use and also to witness to others. So I began reading on my own, and I didn't understand everything I read. And others advised me to look into other sources, like commentaries, to explain different passages. And I also began reading literature by people who say they are Bible experts. I mean they read it and studied it, and so forth. And I can't help but keep running into people who have conflicting interpretations on the same passages. And often they even use the same passages to espouse entirely different positions. And I really am getting to a point where I don't know how to proceed. I listen to you quite often, but how can I be sure that what you are saying, and your knowledge, is accurate, as opposed to what somebody else tells me that is quite different? I would like some guidance from you on how to proceed.

HC: I think that's a very good, practical question. We listen to various teachers and pastors, and so on, and we wonder, who is right? One thing that I want to say about what I teach is, don't trust me. Under no circumstance trust me. You are to trust the Bible. Now any teacher who is worth his salt, who is really trying to bring the Word of God, will try to back up what he is teaching with scripture. And he will try to do his homework in the scripture and show where he derives his teachings or his doctrines.

Now what you want to do is check out those verses, and see if they really say what the teacher claims that they say. And read those verses very, very carefully. Now a lot of times you'll read a commentary, and the writer will go along and be developing a particular interpretation, and then he will offer some proof texts. He won't quote them in what he is writing, but he will simply mention that you should look at those proof texts. Now it's very important that you look up those proof texts that he is offering, because a lot of times, and I want to say this very kindly, a lot of times we get the impression that a writer knows a lot about the Bible and is very very faithful to the Word of God because he is offering a lot of scriptural references. He'll make a point, and then he'll say, "Even as we read in Jeremiah 6:19 and Deuteronomy 28:13," and maybe he'll give a series of four or five verses. And then he'll go on to the next point. And if we're unwary, we think, "My, he has a lot of scripture to underscore what he is teaching. He must be right."

But what you have to do is take time to check out those verses. Look up those verses that he has offered as proof texts, and see if they really speak to the question. Now you might find one of two things. You might find that indeed they do speak to the question. And reading them very carefully, you will find that they indeed do reinforce the argument he is offering. And then you begin to have confidence in that particular doctrine he is offering. But, on the other hand, you may read those verses, and you'll say, "Now why did he offer this as a proof text? I don't see any relationship to the point he is making." And then you look up the next one, and you'll hardly see any relationship. And then you realize, "Now just a minute. Just because you listed a lot of scriptures here, that doesn't mean you've developed your point."

And this is very necessary to do. In other words, just because a teacher comes claiming to have truth, and comes claiming to be able to say, "Thus saith the Lord," don't trust him. Check him out. Check me out when I offer scriptures. Read those verses.

Now a second thing that you have to do is to really read those verses carefully. Now a classic case of this is Romans 11:25 & 26. And I think these two verses are as good an example as anything I can find in the Bible. Now these two verses are used as one of the most dominant proofs of the fact that God still has a program for national Israel, that God intends to save national Israel, and God has a great and glorious future for them. These two verses, Romans 11:25 & 26, are the foundational verses that are used very very frequently by those that hold to that kind of a doctrine.

And yet, if you read them very carefully, very carefully, word by word, and see exactly what they say, you find that they actually are saying exactly the opposite. They are not saying that Israel has a glorious future as a nation, but that they will continue in their blindness, except for a remnant chosen by grace, and this blindness will continue right up until the end of time, that is, until the last Gentile has been saved. And it is in this fashion that all Israel will be saved. Now that is precisely the only thing those verses can be teaching. And yet all kinds of theologians . . . and I don't understand why they do this, I think it's just carelessness. I don't think it's done with malice aforethought. I don't think that it's done because they're trying to corrupt the scriptures. I think it's just carelessness. Someone they trust has used these two verses as a proof text for that particular doctrine, and then they have bought that without really checking it carefully. So they in turn use it as a proof text. But when you read these verses carefully, they say exactly the opposite of what they are claimed to be teaching.

And all I can say is that whoever is teaching, whether it's me or anybody else, check out the verses. Read them very carefully, and see if that is what they are saying.

CALLER: So what you're saying then is that it's okay to listen to experts that seem like they're talking from opposite sides of the fence, and then make the final judgment yourself, leaving it up to individual interpretation?

HC: Ultimately you're not leaving it up to individual interpretation. You're leaving it up to Bible interpretation, because if you listen to so called experts, those who claim to be teachers, those who claim to have a knowledge of the question, you will find that some of them are more faithful to the Bible than others. Some are simply espousing a view without really checking it out in the Bible very carefully. And you will discover this when you look up the proof texts they offer. And then you will know that they're not on very solid ground. Their interpretation is probably not very Biblical.

On the other hand, someone else might offer verses, and you check them out and find that indeed they are teaching what he is saying. And then you will begin to sense that at least on that doctrine he is more true to the Bible, and his interpretation is more Biblical than the other. And this is the way you'll learn from scripture.

CALLER: That's true. If you look up something that is obviously off the wall and has nothing to do with it, that would be an obvious error. But say, for example, there is a group that if you lead the literature on what they espouse, they are firm one-hundred percent Bible believers, even to the point where if they start hearing something that doesn't sound scriptural, they back away from it and they always go back to the Bible. One of their beliefs is that they don't believe that Jesus was God. And they specifically put in their literature that a lot of people quote specific passages to prove that Jesus was God. And they say, "Okay, let's look at these." They put it down. One, for example, is "in the beginning was the Word, and the Word was God," and so on. And then later on it says, "And the Word became flesh," and it was Jesus. Well, they go back to the Greek and they say if you look at the Greek for word, it's logos and it doesn't mean a person. It means an idea. And they say that this idea was with God for all eternity. And this was the plan. And when Jesus was incarnated on earth, it was the first time He ever was incarnated, and He didn't exist all this time.

So in this particular case, for example, they actually spell it out, saying, "Here is the scripture passage."

HC: All right. Now let's take that as an example. That's a good example. You read that, and it sounds plausible. Remember, those who are writing, from whatever point of view, believe in what they are writing and they are convinced that what they are writing is true.

Now first of all, when they say that the word logos is an idea, you have to check the rest of the Bible and see if that is really so. See how the word logos is used. And you'll find that the word logos is not just an idea. It is the Word. It is a word. And a word, while it may express an idea, a word has substance. The Bible is the Word of God, but it has substance. It is the revelation of the will of God. And so right away you begin to sense, "Well, these people are begging the question. In their desire to prove their point, they are pushing on the use of that word far beyond where it ought to be."

Secondly, look at opposing viewpoints, where people say, "But wait a minute. Christ is God." And check their arguments, as they point to such passages as Hebrews 1, where the Bible declares, "Of the Son He said, 'Thy throne, oh God, is forever and ever.' Or where His stepfather Joseph was told by the angel, 'His name is Emmanuel, which means God With Us.' Or as you look into the nature of salvation, that it is God Himself who has to pay for our sins. Otherwise we couldn't have a sin-bearer. And begin to view it from the vantage point of everything else the Bible has to say.

Now you will find, when you read their pamphlet, now I haven't read it, but based upon the kind of doctrine they're offering, they will attack a few verses from the Bible that they feel they can refute in some way. You will find that their argumentation is weak. But they will not be ready to face everything the Bible has to offer. Nor will they get into the question, "Then how can we have a Savior if Jesus Christ is not God?" If Jesus Christ is not God, if He was simply a god, a superman, if you will, then we have no way for having remission of our sins, because who is there to become the sin-bearer of all who have ever placed their trust in Christ? If Christ is not God, then we have no Savior, we have no salvation. I feel terribly sorry for those people who believe that Christ is not God, because they are denying the fact that there is a Savior. They have no Savior for their sins.

Now it takes time. This takes a lot of homework. It takes research. One of the best books that you can buy is a concordance, a Young's Concordance. And a Christian who is serious about wanting to know more truth from the Bible ought to buy a Young's Concordance, and get his feet wet making word studies, because then you have all the verses of the Bible at your fingertips that might relate to a particular word or a particular subject.

CALLER: I believe it's true that the Bible is the Word of God and we should be able to take everything from it. It doesn't seem like it would be such a difficult task to extract this necessary information that's such a requirement to salvation.

HC: Now that's a good observation. Why does it have to be such a difficult task? Why can't it be a lot easier? Well, the reason is that God wrote the Bible so it would be a difficult task. We read in Mark 4:11, "Unto you is given to know the mystery of the Kingdom of God, but unto them that are without, all these things are done in parables that seeing they may see and not perceive, and hearing they may hear and not understand, lest at any time they should be converted and their sins should be forgiven them." In other words, God wrote the Bible in such a way that truth would be hard to find. Unless you come to the Bible with a child-like trust in it that it is the Word of God and with a view to being obedient to it, you're going to end up finding all kinds of contradictions and false doctrines in the Bible.

And that's exactly what a lot of people end up finding. But if we search the scriptures, and patiently compare spiritual things with spiritual things, which is what the Bible commands us to do, and we want to be obedient to what we find there and are ready to throw out any doctrines or practices that prove to be contrary to the Bible, we will discover that the Holy Spirit will lead us into truth. And yet, again, we have to do it very patiently. It will take time.

I get on the air, and a lot of people will ask me a question about some verse in the Bible, and I will give a very quick answer, as if any dumbbell ought to know that... that's not a very nice word, I admit... but like anyone ought to know that, regardless of what their background is. But the fact is, I may have struggled with that verse for years. I may have wondered, "What can God really mean by that verse?" And finally the truth begins to dawn. And I know that I'm on truth because when I find what I believe to be truth I will find that it also is in entire agreement with all kinds of other statements that veer upon it and impinge upon it.

But to arrive at that point took a lot of work, a lot of prayer. "Oh, Lord, where is wisdom?" And that's of course why we have teachers, those who can share what they discover. And then those who listen can check them out, "Yes, that does agree with the scriptures," or "No, on that one you just don't agree with scripture. What about these verses over here that seem to be altogether contrary to what you are saying?" And then you don't have to accept that particular doctrine from that teacher.

CALLER: I see. Now you've often said that ignorance is no excuse for not knowing the Word. So if I look into the Bible and I start believing in one particular interpretation on one point, and it turns out to be wrong, it doesn't seem to me that I would be held accountable for telling other people, for passing on this wrong idea or believing this wrong idea myself.

HC: The question is, what about the matter of accountability, if I don't have a complete knowledge of the scriptures as I'm trying to share the scriptures with others?

First of all, we must not be afraid of sin if we are a child of God. We know that our sins have been covered, and we know that we never measure up. On this side of the grave we never measure up to the perfection of God's holiness. And so we don't really have to be afraid of sin. We know that if we do sin, God has covered that sin.

But because we are a child of God, we don't want to live in sin. We love God, and sin is reprehensible to us. But yet we know that we see in a glass darkly, and sometimes we have a practice or hold a doctrine that is contrary to the Word of God. Now that's sinful. The idea of ignorance does not excuse us of that sin. If I am driving down the highway, as even our present philosophy of jurisprudence teaches, and I didn't see the sign that said "School - Drive Slowly," or "Drive 15 MPH" because there's a school, and I'm going merrily along at 35 MPH, and then a policeman apprehends me, "Sir, you were going 35 MPH in a 15 MPH Zone," and I say, "But sir, I didn't see the sign, I was ignorant of that altogether," yet I'm still going to get a ticket and I'm going to have to pay the fine. And that is correct. I have been guilty, even though I was unaware at the moment that I was guilty.

Now the same is true if I hold a doctrine that is contrary to the Word of God and I teach it to others. That is sin in my life. And the Bible warns, "Let not many of you be teachers," because teachers will be judged more severely and we want to be sure that we're not blind leaders of the blind. And therefore, before we would dare say, "Thus saith the Lord," and begin to teach, we want to really know what the Bible is saying. Many many times I will say, when someone asks me, "What does this verse mean?"... "I'm sorry, I'd rather not try to answer that because I haven't really studied that verse, and I don't want to speculate at this point." I just don't want to offer something when I haven't done my homework.

Or again, I may be teaching a verse and I realize that I'm not certain of what it teaches, and so I'll say, "I'm not really certain of what this verse teaches. It could be this, or it could be that. At least this may get your thinking started, and go on with that." But on the other hand, if I read a verse and I have studied it, and I've found other scriptures to really support it, and I find that my solution to that verse agrees with everything I know about the plan of salvation as I've studied the Bible concerning this, then I will unhesitatingly say "Thus saith the Lord. This I believe is what this verse is teaching." And I will do it without any embarrassment or without any reservations, because I believe that we can't equivocate if we know where truth is.

But let's make sure, first of all, that we know where truth is. And then let's come through with it very clearly. Now again, it's imperative that we be ready, if we're going to lay our teaching on the line and say, "Thus saith the Lord..." to be ready to defend that position from scripture. If someone would call and say, "Sir, you've been teaching this," or "You've been teaching that, and frankly, I don't know where you get that," I better be ready to say, "I taught that verse this way because the Bible says 'so and so' here, and the Bible says 'so and so' there. And as I compared that verse with these other scriptures, and as I compared it with the whole nature of what the salvation program is, I saw that this was in all likelihood what God had in view, at least as one meaning of that verse."

CALLER: I see. Well, thank you very much for being available to answer these questions, Mr. Camping.

CHAPTER 3 -- BIBLE VERSES EXPLAINED

GENESIS

The Gospel in Genesis 27 (099A)

HC: I would like to talk about something in the Old Testament. Occasionally I speak about the fact that in the Old Testament we find the Gospel. Now the Gospel, of course, is the revelation of God for man, whereby man can know his sinfulness, man can know that God has made provision for man to be reconciled to God. And this is the thread that runs all through the Bible.

Now today many people have the idea that if we really want to learn about salvation, we've got to go to the New Testament. We've got to read the words of Jesus, and basically, the Old Testament is pretty much just a book of laws. It's a book that writes about the nation of Israel, and it was for them, it was to them. And while we can occasionally find some moral precept in the Old Testament, basically we can't get a whole lot of help from it.

But the Bible indicates that when Jesus taught, He taught in parables. And because He is Infinite God, who has given us the whole Bible, we would therefore expect that in the Old Testament, too, we would have parables, or we would have types of what salvation is.

Now let me go through one chapter in the Old Testament and illustrate this, although I could go through any number of passages in the Old Testament and find the Gospel woven through and through. I want to talk about Genesis 27.

Here we have the dismal account, the dismal account of the fact that Jacob took the blessing from Esau. Now the situation is this. When Jacob and Esau were born, they were born as twins. This, incidentally, was the year 2007 BC, although that's not important to this discussion. That's just an interesting fact that you might note.

And at the time they were born, Rebecca, the mother, was told in Genesis 25:23: "Two nations are in your womb, and two peoples born of you shall be divided. One shall be stronger than the other. The elder shall serve the younger." So she knew that Jacob, who was the younger, who was the second born, would be preeminent. And the language of the elder serving the younger in the Bible is the language of the fact that the younger here, because he would be ruling, would be the one that would receive the first blessing. He would ultimately, in the biblical language, be the one who would be saved.

And so Rebecca knew this. Well, 60 years passed, and Isaac has grown to be an old man of 120. And perhaps he remembered what God had told Noah in Genesis 6, because Isaac was a God-fearing man. In Genesis 6 God had said that the days of man shall be 120 years. Isaac was old. He was 120. He was almost blind. He was not senile. He was not decrepit or crippled, or whatever, because actually he lived another 60 years. We read later on in the Bible that he died at the age of 180. But now he's 120, and perhaps he reasons that his days may be fairly short because of what we read in Genesis 6, and so he resolves to set his house in order. He's going to give the blessing to his sons.

Now for some strange reason, and the Bible doesn't tell us why, Isaac forgot that it was Jacob that was to receive the blessing. Now humanly speaking, we know why he forgot. Isaac loved Esau. Isaac loved Esau as the one who was his chosen son. Esau was a fine man who loved the great outdoors, probably basically a very honest man, a very open man. And Jacob, on the other hand, we'll learn if we study him at all, was cunning. He was deceitful. He was of a different nature altogether. And so it was not at all surprising that Isaac would want to give the blessing to Esau, who actually was the firstborn and ordinarily should have received the blessing of the firstborn.

But in attempting to give the blessing to Esau as the firstborn, Isaac would have been going contrary to God's desires, in view of what God had told Rebecca when Jacob and Esau were still in her womb.

Well now, Rebecca hears Isaac telling Esau, "Go out and kill some game, and then make some savory food and bring it to me, and then I will give you the blessing." Now Rebecca heard Isaac discuss this with Esau. And because she knew that Jacob was the one to receive the blessing, she decided on a very deceitful plan, to try to circumvent this action of her father Isaac. And she called Jacob.

Now bear in mind that Jacob was 60 years old. He's not a youngster. He's a very mature man. He's very responsible for what he is doing. And so he is as guilty as she. And actually, as we'll see, he is a whole lot more guilty, because he is the one who begins to lie to his father.

And so then we read in verse 18 this terrible language. "Jacob went in to his father and said, 'My father.' And he said, 'Here am I. Who are you, my son?' Jacob said to his father, 'I am Esau, your firstborn.' [That's a big lie, isn't it? He was not Esau, the first born.] 'I have done as you told me.' [Lie! He's lying again.] 'Now sit up and eat of my game, that you may bless me.' But Isaac said to his son, 'How is it that you have found it so quickly, my son?' And he answered, 'Because the Lord your God granted me success.'" He was indicating here that God Himself had given him this success. And so he's calling on the Name of God to witness his lie. Terrible, terrible lie.

So we begin to wonder. Why is God putting this awkward, this terrible account in the Bible? And Jacob actually is the one who received the blessing. Jacob did receive the blessing, although Isaac thought he was giving it to Esau. Isaac said, "Let people serve you and nations bow down to you. Be lord over your brothers, and may your mother's sons bow down to you. Cursed be everyone who curses you, and blessed be everyone who blesses you." That is the blessing, you see.

Now in this we see a beautiful picture of the Gospel. You know, as I'm talking about this, we begin to wonder. Why did God put this particular account in the Bible? Well, when we begin to realize who is the father of lies, then we can begin to get an inkling. Who is the father of lies? In John 7 and John 8, we find that it says there that Satan is the father of lies. And Jacob here is lying. He is lying. He is acting as someone who is unsaved. He is the kind of a person that we are before we are saved. We are slaves of Satan. We don't deserve to be saved.

And now God is using him to illustrate the nature that we have, that we are unsaved when He comes to save us. Jacob did not deserve to be saved. But Jacob had a covering. And that covering was the goatskin. That covering was the figure of Christ. The goatskins with which he was covered is a figure of the covering that we receive by the shed blood of Christ.

You'll recall that the Bible talks about the scapegoat. The sins of the people were put on the scapegoat, and it was driven off into the wilderness. That's a figure of Christ going to hell for our sins. And the other goat, the sins of the people were put upon it, and it was offered up as burnt offering. And so we see in Jacob a picture of you and me before we were saved. We were dead in our sins. We were subject to hell. We were slaves of Satan. We didn't deserve to be saved. Jacob didn't deserve the blessing. He was lying to his father.

And yet he did receive the blessing. He had been chosen by God to receive the blessing. And he did receive the blessing. So we were chosen by God. And God looked down upon us in mercy while we were yet in our sins, and He provided salvation for us.

Now you see the beautiful picture of the Gospel here in the Old Testament. It's the picture of the fact that we are saved while we're still sinners. And we don't deserve to be saved. We're not worthy in any way.

Who are the "Sons of God" in Genesis 6:2? (232B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. The sixth chapter of Genesis talks about, "The sons of God saw the daughters of men, that they were beautiful, and they took them as wives for themselves." Is the Bible saying that spiritual beings took human form and actually carried on life with human beings, in terms of sexual involvement? And if the Bible isn't saying that, then how else can we interpret the verse?

HC: All right. Your question really is concerning the understanding of Genesis 6:1 & 2, where we read that "The sons of God saw that the daughters of men were fair, and they took to wife such of them as they chose." Who are these sons of God?

Now let me ask you a question. When God created the heavens and the earth, how did He create everything insofar as that which has life? Don't we read that He created everything "after its kind"?

All right. Now that means that a cow will always bring forth cows, won't it? And horses will always bring forth horses. And fleas will bring forth fleas. And crocodiles will bring forth crocodiles. And cats will bring forth cats.

Now isn't that a basic principle of creation, that cats never marry cows, and horses never marry dogs? Isn't that a basic fundamental of creation?

All right. Now when God created man, He created man in the image of God, and He created man with a body as well as with a soul, as a totally integrated being. Now how did He create angels, according to the Bible? Were they created of the kind as man?

CALLER: They definitely have spirits.

HC: But they do not have a body. Nowhere in the Bible do we read that they are created in the image of God. We read in Hebrews 1, the last verse, where it says, "They are ministering spirits sent forth by God on behalf of those who are to believe."

CALLER: Aren't there passages that indicate that angels have taken on human form.

HC: Indeed there are passages that show that they have taken on human form, as for example when the two angels, with God Himself, spoke to Abraham. But that doesn't mean that they took on a human nature. That doesn't mean for a moment that they became men, like you and I are. They simply took on the appearance of a man. And they were here for a moment, and they stated their message, and then they were gone, because they are angels. They did not take on a human nature.

The only time that a spirit being, a heavenly being, took on a human nature was in the incarnation of the Lord Jesus Christ. And He was born of the Virgin Mary in order to take on a human nature. But no angel ever became a man, that is, where he took on a human nature.

Now more than that, what did Jesus say about people when they get to Heaven, in connection with marriage? We will be like the angels, who neither marry nor are given in marriage. In other words, there is no sex with angels. You don't say there are women angels and men angels. They're just angels. They are an entirely different created being, entirely different from man. They neither marry nor are given in marriage.

And so the idea (and I say this kindly, but I'm absolutely flabbergasted) that this is talking about the intermarriage of men and angels is really impossible. The fact is, if we believe that, then we would have to give credence to the evolutionists who believe that everything started out from one kind. One of the principles of the creationist, as he argues for creation, is that you don't cross kinds. You don't get men out of monkeys. Men were created men, and monkeys were created monkeys.

But if we're going to adopt the principle that men could marry angels, then we can also defend that and say, "Well then apparently there are times when God violates the rules and He crosses across kinds and possibly somehow man did come from monkeys."

CALLER: What then is the proper way of looking at this verse? Why would God say it this way?

HC: Well, you see, first of all, the principle of Bible interpretation is that the Bible is its own interpreter. Now that doesn't mean that you interpret the Old Testament by the Old Testament and the New Testament by the New Testament. The Bible is one cohesive whole. You interpret the Bible by the Bible. You interpret Revelation by Genesis, and you interpret Malachi by Matthew. You examine everything of the whole Bible in deciding what is in view.

Now in Romans 8 God of course lays it out very clearly. In verse 15 He says that those who believe in Christ are sons of God. Now once we establish this, then we immediately see what's happening here.

The sons of God are the born again believers. And we must remember that the believers in the Old Testament were saved exactly as we are. They were born again, just as we are born again. Therefore, legitimately they are sons of God. We read of Noah in the same chapter, that he found grace in the eyes of the Lord. He was saved by grace just as we.

Now do you remember what God warned about in II Corinthians 6, around verse 14? "Don't be unequally yoked with unbelievers." And God is very emphatic. Well now, here in Genesis 6, God gives us an historical outline of what happens when you violate this rule. The believers are called sons of God. The unbelievers are called daughters of men.

Now the reason they're called daughters of men is that the human race as a whole, as a human race, is enslaved to sin and to Satan and is destined for judgment and for hell. That is, most of the human race is this way. In another place in the Bible it says, "We will die like men." That is, we are under the judgment of God. That is normative for the human race because all have sinned and come short of the glory of God.

The sons of God are an anomaly in this world. The fact that God has chosen a body for Himself, or a body for Himself, and has made us His children, His sons, is more than we could ever expect from God. But nevertheless He has done this, because the Bible says so.

And so here we have a situation where the believers, the born again believers of Noah's day looked at the unsaved, and it's very interesting how the language is put. They looked at the unsaved, and "saw that they were exceedingly fair," which is exactly the way mixed marriages are contracted today. The man looks at the young lady, or if may even be an old man looking at an old lady, and sees what a charming person she is. He sees what a good upbringing she's had, what fine family she comes from. Oh yes, she's not born again, but my, what a delightful person she is. It's so wonderful to be in her company, and so on.

And so he begins dating her. And dating is, of course, the kind of a situation where it's very easy to fall in love. And love is very blind. And so finally you fall in love. And now you begin to rationalize, "Well, I'll marry her, and then she'll get saved - Somehow God will save her - I'll really show her the way of the Gospel." or whatever the rationale may be. And so a marriage is put together, a mixed marriage, absolutely contrary to the Word of God.

Now go back to Genesis 6, and see what's the next sad chapter in this development. Who in the Bible does God want us to put our trust in, our hope and our security? In God alone. But notice in verse 4: "The Nephalim were on the earth in those days." Now who are the Nephalim? Later on, in Numbers 13 it speaks about a race of giants who were called Nephalim. Are they related to these Nephalim of Genesis 6, would you think?

No, they're not at all. I'm sorry. I didn't mean to put you on the spot. At first blush we might think so. But we must remember that between Genesis 6 and Numbers 13 there occurred the Flood, didn't there? And the whole human race was wiped out, except the family of Noah. And so the Nephalim of Numbers 13, which are spoken of as a race of giants, simply took the name Nephalim from these men of renown of pre-Flood days. There could not be any relationship, however, between them. I only throw that in so that in case you're looking up the word Nephalim in the Bible, you won't be thrown off by what you read in Numbers 13.

"The Nephalim were in the earth in those days, and also afterward when the sons of God came into the daughters of men and they bore children to them." Now this is not saying that the Nephalim were a product of these mixed marriages. It is simply stating that the Nephalim were in the earth in those days, at the time that these mixed marriages were being contracted and children were resulting from these mixed marriages.

And then it explains who the Nephalim were. "These were the mighty men that were of old, men of renown." Now the implication is that these people who contracted these mixed marriages had taken their eyes off God and had put their trust in men of renown of that day, the Hercules, the football stars, the baseball players, and so on.

God is simply saying that if you have a mixed marriage, even though you yourself are a child of God, because you have a wife or a husband whom you have fallen in love with and whom you want to please, you're going to have a tremendously difficult time having a household, a family, that is God-directed. And the odds are that you will be drawn away. Your family will be drawn away from the worship of the true God, and you will begin to put your trust more and more in the world.

Now if you yourself are born again, you're not going to lose your salvation. But it'll be the end of the line insofar as salvation is concerned. Your family, in all likelihood, is going to end up being unsaved. Where God has promised, "I will be a God to you and to your children," and if you had married in the Lord, someone who was saved, you could expect your children and your grandchildren to a high degree to love the Lord, rather you're going to find it's the end of the line. And your family, that develops out of this, will not have a trust in Christ or in God. It will be like the world. It will be completely secular.

Now look at verse 5. This is the next step. "The Lord saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually." In other words, it began with the born again believer looking at the daughters of men, seeing that they were exceedingly fair. There's a marriage, there's a shift in motivation and focus of this family's life, there's a development of great wickedness. In other words, the cause of Christ has suffered very greatly. And now, finally, God says, "I will blot out man whom I have created from the face of the ground."

Now amazingly, the church today is walking in these same shoes. Today, there are a tremendous number of born again believers who are very careless as to who they are dating, as to who they are falling in love with. And if they marry someone who is unsaved, the probability is that it would be the end of the line. The probability is that the church will suffer very greatly, and the cause of Christ will erode and we'll see an increase in wickedness both outside the church and in the church.

CALLER: That's because the Flood is a type of the final judgment.

HC: Yes. This is really speaking about a situation that is very similar to what we are walking through now. You'll notice in developing this explanation the Bible itself is its own interpreter. You examine scripture against scripture, and let the Bible follow through.

"Cursed be Canaan" in Genesis 9:25 (243B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Could you tell me what happened to Canaan, the son of Ham, when Ham, the youngest son of Noah saw his father naked, and when he sobered up he said, "Cursed be Canaan." Could you tell me what happened to Canaan?

HC: In other words, how was the curse worked out in Canaan's life?

CALLER: Yes.

HC: Actually, the working out of that curse occurred hundreds of years later, actually a couple of thousand years later. The descendants of Canaan dwelt in the land of Canaan, which was later on the land of Palestine. And when God came to Abraham, in Genesis 15, He said, "Your descendants will be oppressed in the land for 400 years [speaking of the fact that Abraham's seed would spend more than 400 years in the land of Egypt]."

And then He said in verse 16 of Genesis 15, "And they shall come back here in the fourth generation. For the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet complete." Now the word Amorite is a general term that related to all the inhabitants of the land of Canaan. In other words, it is actually a name assigned to the Canaanites, or the descendants of Canaan. At this point God is effectively saying, "God's curse is coming. It's going to be fulfilled, on the descendants of Canaan. But it isn't quite ready yet. The iniquity has not been completed."

But when Israel went out of Egypt, and they entered the land of Canaan, they were told to utterly destroy the inhabitants of the land. You'll recall how they dealt with Jericho, which was really a prototype of the way they were to look upon all the cities there. They destroyed the whole city; the young men, the children, the animals, everything. God's judgment had come upon the land of Canaan. And I believe that this was the final working out of the curse that had already been pronounced by Noah on Canaan.

The children of Israel were told that they were to utterly destroy the inhabitants of the land. We read in Deuteronomy 7:1: "When the Lord your God brings you into the land which you are entering, to take possession of it, and clears away many nations before you, the Hittites, the Gergishites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites and the Jebusites, seven nations greater and mightier than yourselves, and when the Lord your God gives them over to you and you defeat them, then you must utterly destroy them. You shall make no covenant with them. You shall not make marriages with them, giving your daughters to their sons and taking their daughters for your sons." Verse 5: "But thus shall you deal with them. You shall break down their altars and dash in pieces their pillars and hew down their ashram and burn down their graven images with fire." This was God's statement to Israel, as they came in the land of Canaan.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much.

Why Was Cain's Sacrifice Not Acceptable in Genesis 4:5? (328E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question about Cain and Abel. How come Cain's sacrifice wasn't acceptable to God, and Abel's was?

HC: The question is, When Cain offered a sacrifice of vegetables, or herbs, and Abel offered a sacrifice that was a lamb, why was Abel's sacrifice more acceptable? Or why was it acceptable, whereas Cain's was not?

First of all, it was not because of the nature of the sacrifice. Later on, on Mount Sinai, God gave laws concerning sacrifices, and there were sacrifices of meal offerings, which were acceptable to God. So even though Cain offered a sacrifice of herbs, that in itself was not wrong.

But the problem was what was going on in the hearts of these two men. Cain brought his sacrifice, and you'll notice that Cain's hope was in this earth. You'll notice in Genesis 4:11, God tells Cain, after Cain killed Abel, "And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand. When thou tillest the ground it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength. A fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be on the earth. And Cain said unto the Lord, My punishment is greater than I can bear." Now notice why he says this, in verse 14: "Behold thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth."

You see, he had placed his hope in this earth. His hope was not in God. His hope was in this earth and the things that it would produce. You'll notice later on, after he went to the land of Nod, that he built a city, and his descendants were the first forgers in iron and bronze. He found his security in the things of this earth.

When we examine Abel's life, we find that his descendants didn't build cities. They were shepherds. They were pastors, if you will, because the word shepherd means pastor. They were concerned about more important things than finding their security in this earth.

The problem was that Cain was serving the ground. He did bring a sacrifice, but it was not a sacrifice of commitment to God. It was a sacrifice of going through the motions. Abel, on the other hand, brought the very best of what he ruled over. He was a shepherd. He took the very best of the flock and offered that as a burnt offering to God. And in so doing, of course, he anticipated the shed blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. He anticipated the shedding of Christ as the one by whose blood our sins are covered.

CALLER: Okay. Cain offered the herbs and the plants. Could he have offered something better than that?

HC: If he had loved God, even though he offered the herbs and the plants, if he really loved God, God would have accepted that sacrifice. Later on in the Bible God tells the Israelites, "Your sacrifices are an abomination to Me." They went through all the ritual of offering animal sacrifices. They killed the lambs, and so on. But God said, "Your sacrifice is an abomination to Me, because your heart is far from Me."

It's like someone who is going through the motions of going to church and praying, and even teaching Sunday School, or preaching, or whatever. If in our heart we don't love God, if in our heart our will is not surrendered to Christ, then all this activity of going to church and going through the notions of being a Christian is in reality an abomination to God. We are kidding with God. We are playing with God.

If we're going to be acceptable to God, it means that we've got to come to God with a broken and a contrite heart. It means that we've got to come with a surrendered will to Him. We've got to come with the view of obedience to Him.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much for clearing up that question

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

When Jacob Wrestled with God in Genesis 32:24 (336C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. Would you comment on Genesis 32:24?

HC: The question is raised concerning Genesis 32:24. There we read, "And Jacob was left alone, and there wrestled a man with him, until the breaking of the day. And when he saw that he prevailed not against him, he touched the hollow of his thigh, and the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint as he wrestled with him. And he said, 'Let me go, for the day breaketh.' And he said, 'I will not let thee go except thou bless me.' And he said unto him, 'What is thy name?' He said, 'Jacob.' And he said, 'Thy name shall be called no more Jacob but Israel. For as a prince hast thou power with God and with man and hast prevailed.'"

CALLER: I'd like to make this comment. As I have been walking with the Lord I've had a lot of... He's worked through a lot of my problems and attitudes. And sometimes it seemed like wrestling to me. So I can understand Jacob's situation. But I've read commentaries, and I'm just not satisfied with what they've said. I'd like to hear your comments.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you.

We do have this account in Genesis 32. I might just briefly give a little bit of background. Jacob was the twin son of Isaac. There were two boys born as twins, Esau and Jacob. Esau was the firstborn, and Jacob immediately thereafter.

When we study the lives of Jacob and Esau, we find that fundamentally Esau was a much more honest and straightforward person than Jacob. Jacob was, to put it in common terminology, kind of a scoundrel. He was a deceiver. At the age of sixty years, he violently deceived his aged, blind father, at the time that he stole the blessing from his brother Esau. It's a sad, sad tale. As a result of this, he fled into the land of Haran, and there he engaged in all kinds of chicanery, and whatever superstitious ideas, in order to gain a better position over his uncle, Laban.

Jacob was a very sinful man. Now God declared, already before Jacob was born, and in the New Testament, in Romans 9, God gives us further insight into the life of Jacob and Esau, and here God declared that before these boys were born, "Jacob I loved and Esau I hated." In other words, God is declaring that before Jacob or Esau were born, He had made a decision which one He was going to save.

Now in studying the life of Jacob and Esau, we find that Jacob absolutely did not deserve to be saved. He was not worthy of salvation in any sense of the word. Of course this is typical of all of us. There's not one human being who is worthy of salvation. But we see this very dramatically in the life of Jacob, as we see the kind of grievous sins that he fell into.

Now he's a hundred years of age. He's not a young man anymore. Actually, when we think through the chronology very carefully, all the evidence points to the fact that he must have been a hundred years of age when he left Haran with his four wives and twelve children, including Dinah.

And he's going back to his own land. And on the way he comes to this River

Jabbok. And there a messenger of God, and from the context we learn that it is God Himself who is wrestling with Jacob, because He says in verse 30 of Genesis 32, "Jacob called the name of the place Peniel, for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved."

Now this wrestling, I believe, is a real figure of the place where we must be if we're going to be saved. Up until this time Jacob knew the way of salvation. He had been taught by his grandfather Abraham and his father Isaac about the covenant God Jehovah. And Abraham and Isaac had very deep insight into the nature of salvation. Jacob had been in the presence of God before. You'll recall that when he fled from Esau, he had this beautiful vision in Bethel, when he saw the messengers, the angels of God, ascending and descending on the ladder.

And so he definitely knew about God and had lots of insight as to the nature of God, and the nature of salvation. But Jacob had never, never thrown himself on the mercies of God, as near as we can tell. Jacob had never really desired to be right with God.

Now when we are on the threshold of becoming saved, one of the factors, or one of the needs that we sense in our life is a desperate need to be right with God. This is developed, of course, because we have come to a fuller knowledge than ever before of the ugly truth that we're sinners, that we're under the wrath of God, and we're heading for hell. Our situation is very desperate.

If you think you can be saved without facing hell, then you really don't know what salvation is. I've talked with people who would love to be identified with the Christian Gospel, would love to know that they are saved. And yet they just don't want to talk about hell. That's too ugly. That is too difficult a thing to think about. But actually, unless we face hell exactly as it is, and look it squarely in the eye, that we're sinners and we're headed for hell, we're not going to really have a sense of urgency, a sense of deep need, to go to Christ as a Savior.

Jacob, in his timetable, had finally come to that point where he realized he needed God. And so God is wrestling with him, and Jacob will not let go. Jacob holds on to God, "You've got to bless me." The only way we can be blessed of God is to have the curse removed - the curse that comes against us because of our sins, the curse that declares that we are subject to hell because of our sins. And the only way we can be blessed of God is to know that Jesus Christ is our Savior. "Blessed are they who hunger and thirst after righteousness."

And so there finally comes that time in our life when we've had it. "I can't sin any longer. I can't face life knowing that I'm destined for hell. I don't want to live this way any longer. Oh Lord, have mercy on me. Oh Lord, save me. Oh Lord, my need is very great." And we come to that point where we continue to agonize before God. We continue to plead with God. We continue to search the scriptures. We continue to pray, until we have that peace come over us, that we know that our sins have been forgiven.

This wrestling with God in the life of an individual might go on over a period of weeks, or months, as that person is struggling with the question, "Am I really saved?" struggling with the question, "Can I know that my sins have been forgiven?" struggling with the question, "Supposing I die tonight. Will I end up in hell for eternity?"

If we really wrestle with God, if we really come to Him sincerely, if we really keep knocking, if we keep asking, if we keep praying, if we keep beseeching God, really meaning business with Him, you can depend upon it that God will answer, and we will receive the blessing. We will be called Israel, because you see, when we are saved we become one of Israel. The true Israel of God are those who have become born again, who have become a child of God, because we become a prince with God, and we have prevailed because in Christ we have become more than conquerors.

This wrestling of Jacob with God at the River Jabbok is a beautiful picture of the transition from death into life, a beautiful picture of someone becoming saved, as we sense our desperate need to hold onto God, to be right with Him. And I trust that this is the way each of us who are listening to this program can answer to God, that we can know that we are at peace with God.

Purgatory and Locating the Garden of Eden (338B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, Mr. Camping, I've got a couple questions I'd like to ask you. Do you know whether or not the Bible says anything about a place like Purgatory?

HC: The question is raised concerning a place like Purgatory. If you mean a place where there is a second chance, where a person goes and his eternal destiny has not yet been resolved, and there is the possibility that he can come out of that and still go to Heaven, absolutely not. There's nothing like that in the Bible.

If you mean by Purgatory a place where unsaved man goes to await the judgment of the last day, yes, the Bible does speak of Hades. It's called a place of silence. And all of the unsaved, whose sins have not been covered by the blood of Christ, go there. There's no way of getting out. There's no possibility of saving a person who is in Hades. He will be resurrected on the last day to stand for judgment, and then will be cast into hell.

CALLER: I see, okay. The other question I wanted to ask you was, do you know whereabouts the Garden of Eden was here on earth? And I'd also like to ask you a question which relates to another caller. You said that at the end of time there would be no children, and there would be no males and females. I don't understand that statement.

HC: All right. Let me answer your second question first. The question is, in Heaven there will not be males or females, nor will there be children. I answered this, first of all, because of what Jesus said. Remember the Jews tried to snare Him, and they said there was this man who was married, and his wife died, or, no. There was this woman who had a husband, and the husband died. And then, according to Jewish law her brother had to marry her, to raise up seed for her, and so he married her, and he in turn died. And then this went on until seven brothers had all taken their turn in marrying her. And so then they asked Jesus the question. Now in eternity whose wife will she be, having had seven husbands? And then Jesus answered. He said you don't understand the resurrection. In the resurrection there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage.

The fact is, the Bible speaks of us as being sons of God when we are saved. The sexual relationship, male and female, the bearing of children, is in the context of time, when God is bringing into existence a great host of people, during a period of 13,000 years, so that all that He planned to save could be saved. This is all in the framework of time.

But once we leave this earth, we're outside of time, and we're in eternity. There is no procreation, there is no multiplication of the human race. We are sons of God, and we remain His sons eternally. Our focal point is not on a wife or a husband, or children. Our focal point is on the Lord Jesus Christ, who is our Lord and whom we serve totally, because we have been made perfect.

I find very frequently in our lives that we are so conditioned by this world that we always think in relationship to this world. We always try to bring our thoughts of this world to bear into eternity. We try to think of eternity in the sense of buildings and cities. We try to think of eternity in terms of marriage, husbands and wives and mothers and fathers, and all of this. But eternity is a new world. It's a brand new existence. We have spiritual bodies. I don't know what spiritual bodies are, but they're like Christ's spiritual body, not like His resurrected body. That wasn't His glorified body. But we will be Like His spiritual body. Remember on the Mount of Transfiguration, Moses and Elijah appeared with bodies that glistened. And certainly the disciples didn't see them in their full glory any more than they saw Christ in His full glory at that time. Had they seen Christ in His full glory, they would have perished.

We will have glorious bodies. I don't know what it is, what they're like, only God knows. But it's something that we need not speculate about. It's too wonderful for any words of this world to describe.

Well, the other question is concerning the location of the Garden of Eden. Now the Bible uses some very interesting language that makes us think that we might know where the Garden of Eden was. We read in Genesis 2 that there were four rivers around the Garden of Eden. It says in verse 14, "The name of the third river is Hiddekel; that is, which goeth toward the east of Assyria. And the fourth river is Euphrates." And then in verse 13 it says, "The name of the second river is Gihon; the same as that that compasseth the whole land of Ethiopia."

Now these are names that are common in the world: Ethiopia, Assyria, Euphrates. They're all common names. And so immediately we think that the Garden of Eden must have been somewhere in the location of these countries.

We must, however, keep our bearings. We must keep our perspective. The Garden of Eden existed 13,000 years ago. It existed at a time when there was one continent. Later on, 6000 years later, in the Flood of Noah's day, the whole world was utterly destroyed by a flood that changed the appearance of the world to a very high degree, inasmuch as there was a great amount of mountain building, and so on.

A couple of thousand years later the earth was divided. We read about this in Genesis 10. In the days of Peleg the earth was divided. At that time the continent was split up into the continents that we have today. So there were vast changes in the continents since the days of the Garden of Eden.

The fact that we see these names—Euphrates, Ethiopia, Assyria—does not mean that it relates to present day Ethiopia, Euphrates River, or Assyria. But it simply means that these names were selected by the descendants of Noah when they gave names to a river or to a land, or to a people. These were names that were carried down from father to son through the generations as being identified with the Garden of Eden, and then would have been given to a river, which now is called the Euphrates River, or given to a land, which is now called Ethiopia, or given to a land which is now called Assyria, or as was called Assyria in the days of the Bible.

The river Euphrates that now exists, the land of Assyria, or the land of Ethiopia, does not relate to the Garden of Eden, not in any way, except that these names were chosen that originally related to the Garden of Eden. There's too much change in the continents that has occurred to permit this possibility.

The Descendancy of Black People in Gen 10:6 (418A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I would like to know if black people are descended from Ham, one of the sons of Noah.

HC: Yes, that is correct. The residents of Africa, of North Africa, of Babylon, of the land of Canaan, are the descendants of Ham.

CALLER: Okay. In my Bible, the Living Bible illustrated, there is a footnote that Ham was not the ancestor of the Negro as once erroneously supposed. Now from the information that you have just supplied me, I would like to get this out of the Bible.

HC: Well, the book that you're referring to is not the Bible. You can depend upon that.

CALLER: The book, "The Way," is not considered the Bible?

HC: That is not the Bible. That is a paraphrase of some kind, and it is not the Bible. Now we read in Genesis 10, in verse 6, "The sons of Ham, Cush and Mizraim and Phut and Canaan, the sons of Cush; Seba and Havilah, and Sabtah, and Raamah, and Sabtecha, and the sons of Raamah; Sheba and Dedan." Then it goes on and talks about Cush, that he begat Nimrod, and so on.

Now Cush is related to Ethiopia, which of course is in Africa. As near as we can tell, the inhabitants of Africa and North Africa, which would be Egypt and right up into the fertile crescent, Mesopotamia, where Babel and Erech were, and the inhabitants of the land of Canaan, which later on became the land of Israel, were all the descendants of Ham. Now that doesn't mean that the sons of Japheth or the sons of Shem did not also come into these lands. Nor does it mean anything bad that certain peoples are the descendants of Ham. There is nothing negative in the Bible concerning this particularly. It simply means that Ham was one of the three sons of Noah, and certain nations came from Ham and certain nations came from Shem. I'm not even certain how all this devised.

CALLER: Okay. Then I am to assume that "The Way" is not the Bible.

HC: Anything that calls itself a paraphrase of the Bible is not the Bible at all. It is simply the work of men who are trying to develop some kind of a commentary on the Bible, but it must never be considered to be the Bible.

CALLER: Fantastic. Thank you very much. Good night.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

EXODUS

Why Did God Harden Pharaoh's Heart? (113B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I've been working in Exodus on God's dealing with the Egyptians and the children of God being moved out of Egypt. And I'm having an awful time dealing with God's hardening the heart of Pharaoh, and the suffering that all of the Egyptians went through as a result. I've studied this, and I've asked the Lord to show me, and He has. Yet it's still difficult for me to understand. He keeps saying that He can show His glory, and He can manifest Himself. In the Word He says that. And yet it seems that so many people suffered as a result of that. Is that basically the reason that He hardened Pharaoh's heart?

HC: Well, let's look at the real picture, because we have more information about the nature of unsaved man. We discover that an unsaved man is the slave of Satan, he is under the dominion of Satan. And Satan is the father of lies. He is a murderer from the beginning. He is desperately wicked. In fact, God tells us in Jeremiah that man's heart is desperately wicked.

In Matthew's Gospel He says, "Out of the heart of man comes murder and adultery and all manner of terrible sins." So the normal situation, posture, status of man, is that he is a desperately wicked person. Now because of God's love for His creation, because God makes sure that this creation will go along to its predetermined end, God restrains sin in the life of the unbeliever. And so we look at Pharaoh, or we look at the Egyptians, and while deep in their heart they're in writhing rebellion against God, there is still what appears to be some goodness. There appears to be the milk of human kindness, there appears to be some pity, and so on. We see this among all unsaved of the world. We know there's love for the child, we see the citizen's respect for authority, and so on. This is because God is restraining sin.

But the natural habitat of man, because he is unsaved, because he is a slave of Satan, because he is in rebellion against God, is to want to sin and sin and sin. And so we could think of God's hardening the heart of Pharaoh very readily by simply thinking of Him removing these restraints just a little, because the moment God does, Pharaoh will do what comes naturally. He will become a great sinner.

God does this at the end of time. We read in II Thessalonians 2:8-9 where it says: "for the mystery of lawlessness is already at work. Only He who now restrains it will do so until He is out of the way." Restrains what? Restrains sinfulness in the world. He who restrains sin is God. And when God is taken out of the way, that is, when God lifts His hand of restraint, then lawlessness, then rebellion, grows. And so II Thessalonians 2 is telling us that at the end of time there will be massive rebellion against God. Why? Because God has taken His restraint away.

Now why is He doing this? Well, He's doing it at the end of time in order to bring warning judgments upon the world. He's doing it as a curse upon the church, because the church is increasingly going apostate. And so by this means the church is decimated and receives tremendous affliction from God. In the days of Pharaoh He did it against Pharaoh because Pharaoh was grievously sinful in bringing the nation of Israel into bondage and in dealing with them. But ultimately He is doing it in order to glorify Himself, because as Pharaoh becomes more and more what He really is, desperately sinful, which is what happens as his heart is hardened, then God is going to be able to do more and more wonders. He's going to be able to show His power more and more, so that it will be the big story all over the known world of that day.

CALLER: Thank you very very much. Good night.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

Zipporah Circumcises Moses' Son in Exo 4:24-26 (380A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have four questions concerning a scripture passage, and I'd like to have my answer on the air. It's Exodus 4:24-26. And my questions are: The wording in verse 24, that the Lord "seeks" to kill him. And yet if the Lord wanted to kill him, He could. Why this language?

The second question is: Moses had two sons. Why did Zipporah only circumcise one?

The third question is: Could these verses be transposed from an earlier part? Were these really newborn sons? If it is after Moses saw the burning bush, surely these boys would be men. I'm all confused about it. And what's the application for today? What significance does it have for us today?

HC: All right. I'll speak to these questions.

The question is raised concerning this provocative passage of Exodus 4:24-26. Moses has been 40 years in the wilderness of Midian. There he had met a wife by the name of Zipporah, and God had given them two sons. Now he has been called of God to return to Egypt, where he had grown up as an Egyptian prince. He was to return to Egypt to be God's man, to lead the nation of Israel out of Egyptian bondage into the promised land.

And while he is going, it says here, "And it came to pass, by the way, in the inn, that the Lord met him and sought to kill him. Then Zipporah took a sharp stone and cut off the foreskin of her son and cast it at his feet and said, Surely a bloody husband art thou to me. So He let him go. Then she said, A bloody husband thou art because of the circumcision."

What is happening here? Well, you see, 600 years earlier God had given the sign of the covenant to father Abraham, the first of the great patriarchs of the nation of Israel. The sign of the covenant was that each son was to be circumcised at eight days. And the circumcision was a figure to indicate that in Christ, or in the coming Messiah, by trusting in the promises of God, their sins could be cut away from them.

The New Testament sign of the covenant really is baptism, that in Christ our sins are washed away. But in the Old Testament it was circumcision. Moses was thoroughly aware of this command. Later on we discover that it was Moses who wrote the first five books of the Bible, according to all that we can read in the Bible. He was a student of all that God had declared earlier. So Moses, as a true Israelite, even though he had been brought up as an Egyptian in the household of Pharaoh, in the palace, nevertheless he should have been aware of this.

Now imagine. Here he is, to be the leader of the nation of Israel, and he is going to begin this leadership with sin in his life. He had not circumcised his son. Now perhaps he had circumcised his other son, but that's beside the point. His son had not been circumcised. And so God sought to kill him. The Bible doesn't say how God did this. Perhaps He brought a great fever upon Moses. It seems that he was too weak to do this act of circumcision himself.

What happens in your life when adversity strikes, when difficulties arise? What is the first thing that you begin to do? You begin to check out your life, don't you? Is God saying something to me? Is God trying to get my attention? Is God chastising me? I think Moses was following true to form the life of any believer. He immediately realized that his son had not been circumcised.

So Zipporah took a sharp stone and cut off the foreskin of her son. Now there's a deeper spiritual truth in this. Really there must be. Moses, in a real sense, I believe, is a figure of Christ. He is portrayed in the Bible as a figure of Christ. Even as he led the children of Israel out of Egypt, so Christ leads us out of bondage to sin.

And he is a bloody husband, he is called here. Now actually, Christ is a bloody husband, is He not? We are the bride. As the church, we are the bride. Christ is the groom. And Christ shed His blood for our sins. It is true, of course, that Moses didn't actually have his foreskin cut off here. Apparently he had been circumcised earlier. But nevertheless, in the language here that God has given to us, he is the one who is called a bloody husband. It says here, "She cast it at his feet," so that he became identified with this circumcision.

And so Christ became identified with the fact that our sins have been cut off. The fact is that Christ became sin for us, and He endured hell for us, which was symbolized by circumcision. To be cut off means to undergo the judgment of God. So in a real sense, and I haven't explicated this well, but at least it's along this direction, we see here that there's a deeper spiritual lesson. Not only is it giving us a reminder of the fact that we must be obedient to the commands of God, but also it is showing us again the nature of Christ's salvation.

Even as Moses was a bloody husband, so Christ is a bloody husband, in order that we might be saved of our sins.

LEVITICUS

Some Questions About Leviticus 10 (029A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I was studying the Book of Leviticus, and there are a couple of problems I ran into.

First of all, we're told in Leviticus 10:16 that Moses was very angry with the two sons of Aaron, because if I understand it right, they had eaten the sacrifice. And it says in verse 17 that they were to eat it to make atonement for the people before the Lord. And I'm wondering if that's the reason why Aaron and his sons were supposed to eat it. For instance, we're told, I think somewhere in Exodus, when the breastplate was being made, that they were supposed to bear these stones upon their shoulders.

HC: The Urim and the Thummin . . .

CALLER: To bear the sins of the people. I'm wondering if this is the same type of thing.

HC: Actually, first of all, the altar was a figure of Christ. And in order for us to be holy, we eat of Christ. He is the Bread of Life. And when the priests ate of the altar, now they were commanded in verse 12, where Moses said to them, "Take the cereal offering that remains of the offerings by the fire to the Lord and eat it unleavened beside the altar, for it is most holy. You shall eat it in the holy place because it is your due and your sons' due from the offerings by fire unto the Lord, for so I am commanded."

And so, actually, by their eating this, this was a figure of the fact that they became holy by eating of this. To partake of the altar would make one holy. Now Eleazar and Ithamar apparently refused to do this. In other words, they were disobedient to God's command. Therefore, this would disqualify them, first of all, to be the priesthood that would offer the sacrifices, because they themselves had not become holy, without even counting the fact that they were in open disobedience against God.

And so Moses said, "Why have you not eaten the sin offering in the place of the sanctuary since it is a thing most holy and has been given to you that you may bear the iniquity of the congregation, to make atonement for them before the Lord?" In other words, that you might become holy so that you in turn could offer the blood sacrifices, so that atonement might be available to the congregation. These blood sacrifices, of course, were anticipating the sacrifice of Christ.

CALLER: I sometimes forget the fact that everything has to be looked upon in the Christo-centric principle.

HC: Yes. Everything has got to be looked upon in the light of everything else in the Bible. And then you're going to have to include Christ. And so much of the Bible focuses on the coming of Christ. Just a tremendous percentage of the Old Testament passages focus on the first coming of Christ, although there are a number of them that focus upon Judgment Day also.

CALLER: Now we're told in Leviticus 6 that the sin offering is to be eaten, but they were not to drink the blood.

HC: Well, they were not to partake of the blood. The blood was to be poured into the ground or, of course, in the sacrifices it was sprinkled on the mercy seat, sprinkled on the altar, because it represented the blood of Christ. It was not to be eaten in any way, because the life was in the blood. The blood was to be put into the ground. This was simply God's command.

CALLER: But the way it's mentioned in verse 30 of Chapter 6, it seems that the blood has already been removed from the offering, because it says that "No sin offering shall be eaten from which any blood is brought into the tent of meeting. It shall be burned with fire."

HC: Yes. Let's see. In verse 24 we read: "Say to Aaron and his sons, 'This is the law of the sin offering. In the place where the burnt offering is killed shall the sin offering be killed. Before the Lord it is most holy. The priest who offers it for sin shall eat it. In a holy place it shall be eaten, in the court of the tent of meeting.'"

Okay. So he eats the burnt offering that is killed for the sin offering. And the priest that offers it eats it. Now that all ties together with partaking of the body of Christ. "Whatever touches its flesh shall be holy, and when any of its blood is sprinkled on the garment, you shall wash that on which it was sprinkled in a holy place."

Just touching the altar would make one holy. It's picked up, for example, in Isaiah 6, where coals are taken from the altar and touched on Isaiah's lips, so that he becomes holy. He says, "I am a man of unclean lips." And then the angel took a coal from the altar and touched his lips, so that he might be qualified to be a witness.

Well then it goes on, "And the earthen vessel in which it is boiled shall be broken, but if it is boiled in a bronze vessel, that shall be scoured and rinsed in water. Every male among the priests may eat of it. It is most holy. But no sin offering shall be eaten from which any blood is brought into the tent of meeting, to make atonement in the holy place. It shall be burned with fire." Now this is not saying that the blood has simply been removed from the sin offering. The blood was always poured into the ground or used for sprinkling on the altar, but where the blood is brought into the tent of meeting for that particular purpose of making atonement in the holy place, "It shall be burned with fire." Now I don't know the implication of that right offhand.

CALLER: Well, does the same thing go for the cereal offering, where we're told in Chapter 6 that "they shall eat the remaining part?" In other words, they should not eat it all, but they should eat only the remaining part.

HC: Yes, I think so.

CALLER: What about the unholy fire that we're told about in Chapter 10, where the sons of Aaron are both killed? Did they sin in that they arbitrarily offered a sacrifice that the Lord had not instructed them to offer?

HC: Yes. Again, it was an act of rebellion. They were not following the prescribed rules. They were saying, "Well, we can do it our way." This was unholy fire.

CALLER: Why did Aaron answer Moses in such a way in verse 19 of Chapter 10? Could you interpret that for me?

HC: No. I'm not really sure why he did, either. Aaron said to Moses, "Behold, today they have offered their sin offering and their burnt offering before the Lord, and yet such things as these have befallen me. If I had eaten sin offering today, would it have been acceptable in the sight of the Lord? And when Moses heard that, he was content."

I don't know what the context is here. I think the one truth we can get from this, however, is that God is very patient with us in our sin, and Moses frequently is a type of Christ. And God just doesn't strike us down. Actually, because of the rebellion of these sons, God's judgment should have come upon them. But God is very patient with us in our sin.

Now there must be more meaning to it than this, but that's all that I can offer right at the moment.

The Cleansing of Lepers in Leviticus 8:23-24 (142A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: It's good to talk to you again. I'm curious about a passage that I read in Leviticus. It's in Leviticus 8, and it's also recorded in Chapter 14, about the cleansing and restoring of the lepers. And it says that Moses was to put the blood of the lamb of ordination on the tip of Aaron's right ear, the thumb of his right hand, and on the great toe of his right foot. And I thought that there might be a deeper spiritual meaning. And the only thing I could think of is, Could it be that he was to glorify God as a priest in what he touched, heard, and where or how he walked in the faith?

HC: What verse is that, incidentally?

CALLER: That's Leviticus 8:23 and 24.

HC: Your question is: What does this mean that they were to take the blood and touch it on the tip of the right ear, the thumb of his right hand and on the great toe of his right foot? I think that your answer is correct. I think that the ear represents that which is heard. Jesus said again and again, you know, in the New Testament, "He who has ears to hear, let him hear." Those whose ears have been opened, you see.

Remember when we talked about Israel, we learned that their ears have been closed. But those who are going to be born again, the remnant chosen by grace out of any nation, they have been given ears to hear.

Now the thumb of his right hand would have to do with his will, or the fact that his will has been surrendered to God.

And the great toe, remember what we do with the Gospel. "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." The toe would be related to the foot, of course, and would tie in with the idea of going, as well as walking. I like what you said about walking, walking in the will of God.

CALLER: You were the one that sort of inspired this, because I heard you and someone else talk about leprosy a few months ago. And you were saying how leprosy is a figure of sin. And in Leviticus he's talking about the restoring of lepers. And he also gives these same verses, about the ear, etc. And I wondered if that could be saying, Yes, this is a figure of sin. You were cut off from your people. You're being restored now, but this is how you are to live.

HC: Yes, that's in Leviticus 14:14. It's the same kind of an idea, that once they have been restored, they are to listen to the Word of God carefully. They are to have their will surrendered to God. They are to walk in His way and go to do His bidding.

JUDGES

The Spiritual Significance of Judges 19 (216A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Brother Camping, I believe you told a caller that you'd attempt to speak on the spiritual significance of Judges 19. And I've been anxiously waiting to hear that. And I also have another one that I'd like to hear your comment on, and it's Judges 11:30-40, about Jephthah's daughter.

HC: Well, tonight let's just talk about Judges 19, and then another day we'll talk about Jephthah, because you really don't realize what a big order this Judges 19 is.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you. Good night.

The question is raised concerning this interesting passage in Judges 19. And I'd like to spend the next little while on this because I did study this since last week, and I had studied it previously, and I've tried to bring some ideas together, to see if we couldn't be blessed by what the Bible declares.

Now we read in Mark 4 that whenever Christ brought the Gospel, He spoke in parables, and "without a parable He did not speak." And since Christ is Eternal God, and God is the author of the Bible, therefore we can expect that while God gives us much historical information that is record of events that actually did occur, we can expect that there must be deeper spiritual significance that must be found from these historical events, even as when Christ, for example, did a miracle. That miracle actually happened, but there was deep and rich spiritual significance connected with that miracle. In other words, through that miracle He is teaching us something about the nature or the very essence of what salvation is.

Well, let's look at Judges 19 for a bit, and see if we can discover some spiritual truth connected with it. Now again let me just very quickly outline the story. In the days when there was no king in Israel, there was a certain Levite. And he took to himself a concubine from Bethlehem in Judah.

Now a concubine was the equivalent of a wife. A concubine, in certain instances, did not have quite the rights of a wife. She was even called a half wife. She was on a lower status than an ordinary wife. But in other places in the Bible a concubine is looked upon as really the equivalent of a wife. We think, for example, of the two concubines that Jacob married. He married Leah and Rachel, but he also took on two concubines. And their sons had equal inheritance with the sons of Rachel and Leah. So a concubine effectively is a wife.

Now his concubine played the harlot, and she went back to her father's house in Bethlehem in Judah, and was there for four whole months. And then, after four whole months, her husband went to Bethlehem and spoke kindly to her, and was reconciled to her, and spent 5 days in the house of her father, in Bethlehem. He tried to leave on the third day, but his father-in-law constrained him to stay a fourth day. And on the fourth day he wanted to leave, but his father-in-law constrained him. But finally on the fifth day late in the afternoon, he left Bethlehem.

Now Bethlehem is located about seven or eight miles south of Jerusalem. And he is leaving Bethlehem close to evening time. And he's heading back up toward Ephraim, the land of Ephraim, which was his homeland. And then we see the interesting information that when they arrived opposite Jerusalem he would not go there, because that was occupied by strangers, "Let us not spend the night in Jerusalem." Now this is strange because in Judges 1 we read that, in verse 21, "The people of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites who dwell in Jerusalem. So the Jebusites have dwelt with the people of Benjamin in Jerusalem to this day." And so there were people of Israel dwelling in Jerusalem.

But here we find the strange language that they would not lodge in Jerusalem, even though that was a logical city to lodge in. But the reason is that it's a city of strangers, of foreigners. And we don't want to lodge there. And so they went up north a little bit farther, to Gibeah. And when they came to Gibeah, it's nighttime now. And they sat down in the square of the city, and no one gave them any lodging.

Now the interesting thing that's emphasized here is that they're going with a couple of saddled asses, in verse 10, and the concubine, and a servant. In other words, we have this little company that leaves Bethlehem, the Levite from Ephraim, with his concubine, with his servant, and two saddled asses. That's the entourage that leaves Bethlehem and now comes into Gibeah.

And then in verse 16 it speaks about an old man, who came from his work in the field. It was evening. He also was a sojourner from the land of Ephraim. He was sojourning in Gibeah. And he talked to this Levite and invited him into his home. Now the emphasis in verse 16 is that this was the land of the Benjaminites. The people of the city of Gibeah were of the tribe of Benjamin.

Then we also have the interesting statement that the Levite says in verse 19, to the old man, who is inviting them into his home, "We have straw and provender for our asses, with bread and wine for me and your maidservant, and the young man with your servants. There is no lack of anything." Interesting statement. They have everything that they need as they go into this old man's house.

Well, then, in the old man's house they were fed, and they ate and drank, and they washed their feet. Okay. Then the tragedy occurs. As they are spending their night together, the wicked people of the city, of the tribe of Benjamin, surround the house. And they say:

"Bring out the man who came into your house, that we may know him. And the master of the house said, 'No, my brethren. Do not act so wickedly. Seeing that this man has come into my house do not do this vile thing. Behold, here are my virgin daughter and his concubine [that is, the concubine of my visitor]. Let me bring them out now. Ravish them, and do with them what seems good to you. But against this man do not do so vile a thing.' But the men would not listen to him. So the man seized his concubine [now as near as we can tell it's the man of the house that seized the concubine and put her out to them] and they knew her, and abused her all night until the morning.

"As the dawn began to break, they let her go. And as morning appeared, the woman came and fell down at the door of the man's house where her master was until it was light. And her master rose up in the morning. And when he opened the doors of the house and went out to go out on his way, behold, there was his concubine lying at the door of the house, with her hands on the threshold. He said to her, 'Get up. Let us be going.' But there was no answer. [She had been killed. She had died because of the ill treatment by the wicked men of the city.] And so he put her on his ass and took her home. And then he cut her up into twelve pieces and sent one piece into each of the tribes of Israel, to indicate the dreadful thing that had been done."

Now there's the story, the tragedy. It's a terrible thing. It's a blot on the nation of Israel that God has recorded for us. Why did God put this in the Bible? Well now, the first thing in studying this, we notice a stark similarity to the events that occurred at the time that Lot was ready to leave Sodom and Gomorrah.

Let's go back there for just a moment, to Genesis 1-9. The two angels have come into the house of Lot in Sodom, and we notice here that they are going to spend the night. And notice the reference to washing your feet, in verse 2. "My lords, turn aside, I pray you, to your servant's house, and spend the night. And wash your feet. Then you may rise up early and go your way." And so in verse 3 of Genesis 19, "They entered his house, and he made them a feast, and he baked unleavened bread, and they ate."

But then we have the same tragedy developing. "Before they lay down, the men of the city, the men of Sodom, both young and old, all the people, to the last man, surrounded the house. And they called to Lot: 'Where are the men who came to you tonight? Bring them out to us that we may know them.'" The same kind of language, you see. They wanted to know this Levite in Judges 19. That is, they wanted to have despicable sexual relationships with this man, and eventually to kill him.

"Bring them out to us that we may know them." Lot went out to the men and shut the door after him and said, "I beg you, my brothers. Do not act so wickedly. Behold, I have two daughters who have not known man. Let me bring them out to you, and you can do to them as you please." The same strange offer. The man of the house in Judges 19 said, "Look, I have my virgin daughter, and here's this concubine of our visitor. Let me bring them out to you, and you can do with them as you please." The same strange offer.

Now in Genesis 19 it didn't develop quite the same way, because the two men in the house were angels, and they brought Lot back in the house, and then they struck the wicked people outside with blindness, so that they actually were not able to ravish either of Lot's daughters.

Now we know, of course, that the event in Lot's case was a figure of the situation that prevailed on earth at the time that Christ returns, because the rescue of Lot from Sodom and Gomorrah is a type of the coming of Christ. We read about this in Luke 17. In Luke 17 it says, "Remember Lot's wife. Then there will be two men in the field. One will be taken, and the other will be left." And so on. The destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah was a figure of Judgment Day. And the rescue of Lot was a figure of the rapture, really. And the conduct of the citizens of Sodom and Gomorrah was indicative of the condition, the spiritual condition of the world, just prior to Christ's coming, that the world that surrounds the church, which in Sodom and Gomorrah was composed only of the family of Lot, wants to destroy it. It wants to play the harlot with it, and it wants to destroy it in so doing. This is the picture that we get from Genesis 19.

Therefore we suspect that Judges 19 is also giving us a picture condition in the world at the time that Christ returns, because of this similarity in the two events, of Genesis 19 and Judges 19.

Let's see if we can develop this just a little bit. Now first of all, it begins with this Levite and his concubine. And of course we immediately think of the intimate relationship between God and the believers. Now the concubine plays the harlot. And Israel in the Old Testament, of course, did play the harlot with God. God came to Israel and did everything for Israel. He looked upon Israel as His wife, and yet Israel played the harlot. And so there was a period when there was an estrangement between God and Israel, a long period of time, when there was no vision, when Israel had gone into subjugation by the Babylonians and by the Assyrians.

But then God came to Israel to renew the relationship. And that of course was in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. And where was this contact made? It was in the city of Bethlehem, wasn't it? Christ became flesh in Bethlehem. This is where He was born. And it is from Bethlehem that we have the beginning of the new covenant, when Christ really has become identified with His church. He's always been identified with His body of course, in the Old Testament, too. But Christ has become identified with His church in a far more glorious way than ever before.

Now here it says that after four months . . . now four months is 120 days, and actually, in the Hebrew, the term four whole months is actually day-month. It has the word "day" right in the phrase, to indicate four whole months. So 120 days is in the fullness of time. The number 12 is the fullness of something. In the fullness of time Christ came, and He provided reconciliation between Himself and those who would believe on Him, those who are the true Israel.

And so we see, therefore, the picture here of five days of glorious rejoicing in the father's house, here in Bethlehem. They're eating and drinking and rejoicing. And there is total happiness here. What does the five represent? Well, the five represents God's grace. Again and again in the Bible the number five represents God's grace. We could try to speculate a little bit more here. And in a sense, whenever we are trying to understand the spiritual significance of a passage, we must recognize that we are speculating just a little bit. But we're doing it based upon figures that the Bible itself uses. And as we go along, we can see whether it will indeed hold water.

Well, he remained three days, and then wanted to leave. The number three signifies that God has spoken. Three times Jesus said, "Father, remove this cup." And that was the answer. Well, God has spoken. But there's more.

The fourth day. The number four signifies the universality of the Gospel, or the mercy of God, that God has spoken but it is to be a universal Gospel, and it is to be a merciful Gospel. The fifth day is God's grace. God has provided redemption.

But now it says, "The day has waned toward evening" (verse 9). It has come for the night to fall. Now remember what Jesus said in John 9? "Work while it is day. The night cometh when no man can work." And so the events that are going to follow are the events that are typifying the sad period just before Christ returns. The day has been spent. The day of salvation has been accomplished, and now it is night-time.

And so we see this little band leaving Bethlehem, the house of bread (that's the meaning of the word Bethlehem), the place where they have had the Bread of Life. And now they are going to exist in the world, typified here by their travel back to the land of Ephraim. And we're going to see what events befall them.

Now notice, first of all, who is leaving. There is the Levite. There is his concubine. And this is a figure of the intimate relationship of Christ with His church. There is the servant. The servant also emphasizes the condition of the born again believer. We have become servants of God, in Christ. And there are the two saddled asses. Now at another time we looked at this matter of asses, or donkeys, and we found that they are a figure of born again believers. And I won't try to develop this now. At another time, if you're interested, we can look at that again. But they, too, are a figure of born again believers.

And so in this little company here we have a figure of the body of Christ, the true body of Christ, that exists at the time when the night has come upon the earth. It's just before Judgment Day, and the Gospel has been silenced, as we shall see.

Now first of all, they come opposite Jerusalem. Now Jerusalem in the Bible is the figure of Mt. Zion. It's the figure of the body of Christ in all of its strength, in all of its ruling power. But they don't go into Jerusalem, because there aren't any believers there. Remember what Jesus said in Matthew 24:15? He said, "When you see the abomination of desolation standing in the holy place."

Now the holy place is the body of believers. It was typified in the Old Testament by Jerusalem. It says, "those in Judea, flee to the mountains." In other words, the constituted, organized body of believers is no longer trustworthy. Place your trust in Christ. "To the hills I lift my eyes." The mountains are actually being a type of God Himself. He is the one that we can trust, and we cannot trust in the organized body any longer. It has become so apostate. It has become so watered down, it has begun to run after other gospels to such a degree that we cannot trust in it any longer.

Already today, incidentally, there are those who are finding that they have to seek other congregations because the congregation they belong to no longer is bringing the true Gospel. And this sad condition will intensify as we go along, until the tribulation period, when it will be fairly universally evident everywhere somehow.

So they can't go into Jerusalem. Jerusalem, the organized, the recognized, the official body of Christ as it's found in the world, is no longer trustworthy in any sense. And so they go on to the land of Benjamin. Now I have to say a word about Benjamin. Benjamin in the Bible is a figure of the New Testament church, of the New Testament body of Christ. And let me quickly cite a couple of references to prove this, although there are many in the Old Testament.

In Deuteronomy 33:12 we read, where Moses is pronouncing a blessing upon the twelve tribes, "Of Benjamin, the beloved of the Lord. He dwells in safety by Him. He encompasses him all the day long and makes his dwelling between His shoulders." What a beautiful statement of what the New Testament church is. We are the beloved of the Lord. We dwell in safety, by Christ. He encompasses us. That is, He cares for us, and surrounds us with His love all the day long. He makes His dwelling with us, between His shoulders. You can see that Deuteronomy 33:12 is talking directly about the body of Christ that exists. And so Benjamin is a figure of the body of Christ.

Benjamin, incidentally, was the only one of the sons of Jacob that was born in the land of Canaan. That is, it's a figure of the fact that we in the New Testament are born in the presence of the Gospel. We're born again because Christ has offered the Gospel to us. And I can go on with other figures to show that Benjamin is a figure of the New Testament church.

And so, going back to Judges now, we see this group of believers. And they're in the land of Benjamin. They're in the land of the church. Now let me underscore this. They're in the land of the church. They're not in the land of the Babylonians. They're not in the land of some wicked enemy of Communism. They're in the land of the church. And here is where this dreadful event is going to take place.

So they come into this home. And you'll notice that in this old man's home, and this old man, incidentally, again is a figure of those who belong to the Lord Jesus Christ. He has finished his work. It's the end of the day. And so it is with the born again believer. We have work to do. And that work will only be finished when God takes us at death, or if that final day of darkness comes, when there is no Gospel, which is also called the time of great tribulation. That is the time when our work is finished. "Work while it is day. The night cometh when no man can work."

And so we see him coming in, in verse 16, coming from his work in the field at evening. And he also is a sojourner. He was sojourning in Gibeah. Lot was sojourning in Sodom and Gomorrah, we would discover, if we went there. We are sojourners in this world. We're strangers and pilgrims here. This is not our eternal resting place. We are just passing through.

And you'll notice that when they came into this old man's house, they said, "We have straw and provender for our asses." In other words, the asses were a figure of born again believers, and there is sufficient food for them. The born again believers in the day of tribulation will still be able to feed on the Word of God. We are never going to be left by God at all.

"There is bread and wine for me and your maidservant, and the young man with your servants." What does bread and wine signify? The bread is the broken body of Christ. The wine is His shed blood. There is sufficient spiritual food. Even though there is going to be a great tragedy, even though it has been nighttime, amongst those who are born again believers, they are sustained by the Word of God. What a precious promise we're beginning to see shining through here. There is no lack of anything. That's the language of someone who is born again. Our salvation is sufficient for every situation. We don't have to fear, even when the time has come when it is the period of great tribulation, when the church, as typified by Benjamin, has become desperately wicked, because you see, these people outside the house of this old man are Benjaminites. And they have become desperately wicked. They want to have an immoral relationship with those in the house. They want to kill those in the house. And that is the situation that I'm afraid is going to prevail in the final tribulation, that the church will be the chief instigator in seeking to make sure that the Gospel will be silenced.

This is not surprising. You know, it was the church of Jesus' day that were most dynamic and dominant in calling for the crucifixion of the Lord Jesus Christ. It was Annas and Caiaphas, the high priest, who pronounced the death sentence upon Christ.

Samson Loses His Strength in Judges 16 (274E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Back in the Book of Judges, we have the story of Samson, and everyone thought his strength came from his hair. Now did he believe that his strength came from his hair? Was this his own deception?

HC: The question is raised, Did Samson know that his strength came from God rather than from his hair, from the length of his hair?

I don't really know. There may be information that would indicate this. The fact that he let his hair grow was a figure that he was in complete submission to the will of God. This was really the characteristic of a Nazarite vow, complete submission to the will of God. And when he allowed his hair to be cut, it was indicative of the fact that he was rebelling against the will of God. And then of course his strength departed from him.

CALLER: Okay. Well, did he allow his hair to get cut?

HC: Yes. He was troubled by his wife again and again and again and again. And first he kidded with her, and said, "You've got to bind me with a certain amount of this or that." And then the Philistines would come, and then he would knock these things off of his body and he would destroy them. But she kept at him and kept at him, and wearied him and wearied him.

And finally he gave in. Finally he took his eyes off God and succumbed to her wiles and gave her the truth, that if she would cut his hair, then his strength would leave him. And so she knew at that point that he had spoken all of his heart. And at this point was the moment when Samson was disobeying God. He was being enticed by Satan, if you will, and succumbing to the wiles of Satan.

You can read about this in Judges 16.

CALLER: In so much of the Old Testament there are things that seem so insignificant. But I tell myself, "This has got to have some kind of meaning, but I just don't see it."

HC: Yes. Samson, in the Bible, is really in a real sense a figure of the church. And notice. He judged for twenty years. And somehow I sense that that might be related in some way to the fact that the New Testament church continues approximately 2000 years. But that may be guessing a little bit, or it may be speculative.

But at any rate, the Holy Spirit would come upon Samson and he would do marvelous exploits on behalf of God. And then again he would be very carnal. And this is the way the church has been throughout the New Testament period. There are times when the Spirit of God burned very brightly, as, for example, in the days of the Reformation, or the days of the early church of Acts.

And then again there were periods, like the Dark Ages, when the wick was burning very low. Then we finally see that Samson's strength has departed altogether. His eyes are put out and he's thrown into jail, because he has rebelled against God altogether. And this I believe prefigures what is going to happen to the church, which we are really on the threshold of. The church, the body of Christ, becomes more and more snared by other gospels. It rebels more and more against God. And so finally the Gospel is silenced. Samson's eyes have been put out, and the Philistines rejoice because their enemy has been silenced.

And then, when it looks like all is lost, even as in Samson's case God gives him strength so that in his end on this earth he kills more than in all the twenty years of his life, so the church is given tremendous strength at the end, as it judges the unsaved upon Christ's return, and gets the complete victory over the unsaved by removing them into hell. I see a very distinct relationship in the life of Samson to the life of the New Testament church.

Thank you for calling.

RUTH

The Gospel in the Book of Ruth (241A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Recently, Mr. Camping, you said that you would give the verses in the Book of Ruth that show us where the Gospel is. When are you going to do it?

HC: All right. Supposing we talk about that a little while tonight. Should we?

CALLER: Yes, that would be very fine, if you would.

HC: All right. If you'd like to hang up, I'll speak to that question. Thank you. Good night.

Let's look just a little bit at the Book of Ruth, and see if we can find the Gospel in it. Now in this study that we're going to look at, we're not going to begin to exhaust the whole book. I'll speak to this question for just a little bit, and then at another time we'll continue in it.

The Book of Ruth is a little book found in the Old Testament. It's right after Joshua and Judges. It's kind of hard to find, as a matter of fact, if you're not at all acquainted with the Old Testament it only has 85 verses. And it is a love story of the courtship of Boaz for a Moabitish woman by the name of Ruth.

And the upshot of this courtship is that Boaz marries Ruth, and from their marriage eventually David is born, who in turn is in the genealogical line of the Lord Jesus Christ Himself. Now the fascinating part of this love story is that Ruth is a Moabitess. Ruth is a girl who is under the curse of God.

In the Bible we read that a Moabite cannot come into the temple for ten generations. In Deuteronomy 23:3 we read, "No Ammonite or Moabite shall enter the assembly of the Lord even to the tenth generation. None belonging to them shall enter the assembly of the Lord forever, because they did not meet you with bread and with water on the way, when you came forth out of Egypt, and because they hired against you Balaam, the son of Beor, from Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse you."

So here we find a girl who is a Moabitess, who is resoundingly under the curse of God. And yet she marries Boaz, who lives in Bethlehem. And eventually they give birth to a son who in turn becomes the progenitor of David, who in turn is in the genealogical line of Jesus.

Now that in a nutshell is the story. Now it begins with the fact that there's a famine in the land of Bethlehem. And there's a man there by the name of Elimelech, who lives in Bethlehem, with his wife Naomi. And I'm sure that somewhere along the line, as you have heard Bible stories, you've heard about Naomi.

Now Naomi and Elimelech have given birth to two sons, whose names are Malon and Chilian. Now because of the famine in the land, they leave Bethlehem and go into the land of Moab. Now that in itself is a very sinful action. They are not trusting in the Lord the way they ought to. But that is not really the point of the story. It's simply a fact of history that they left Bethlehem and they went into the land of Moab.

And there their sin is multiplied, because eventually Malon and Chilian take Moabite girls as their wives. And that's a second dreadful sin on the part of this family of Elimelech and Naomi, and their two sons, Malon and Chilian, because these two Moabitish girls would have been classed amongst those who were the unsaved. They were not to take wives from the Moabites.

We read in the Book of Nehemiah, in Chapter 13, in verse 2: "On that day they read from the Book of Moses in the hearing of the people, and in it was found written that no Ammonite or Moabite should ever enter the assembly of God. And when the people heard the Law, they separated from Israel, all those of foreign descent," indicating that the Israelites perfectly understood that there was to be no marriage at all with a Moabite.

And yet Malon and Chilian, totally contrary to the will of God, married Ruth, on the one hand, and another girl by the name of Orpah. Now in the course of events, after they had lived there for a number of years, Malon and Chilian died, and so did Elimelech. This is just part of the historical development of the story. Naomi and Elimelech had sinned against God in leaving Bethlehem, their two sons had grievously sinned against God in marrying Orpah and Ruth, who are Moabitish girls, and now they experience total bereavement. Naomi loses her husband Elimelech, who is the father of the clan, and Ruth and Orpah in turn also lose their husbands, Malon and Chilian.

And so now we have these three widows: Naomi the mother-in-law, and Ruth and Orpah the two daughters-in-law, who are Moabitish girls. This really now is where we want to begin our search here.

Now in verse 6 we read that, "Then Naomi started with her daughters-in-law to return from the country of Moab, for she had heard in the country of Moab that the Lord had visited His people and had given them food. So she set out from the place where she was, with her two daughters-in-law, and they went on the way to return to the land of Judah. But Naomi said to her two daughters-in-law, 'Go. Return, each of you, to her mother's house. May the Lord deal kindly with you as you have dealt with the dead and with me. The Lord grant that you may find a rest, each of you, in the house of her husband.'" "

Now here we find a tremendous statement of the Gospel, in this verse 9. She is telling her two daughters-in-law,

"Go back to your own people. You're Moabitish girls." Naomi was perfectly aware that for ten generations they could not come into Israel, into the temple, into the house of the Lord, that they were under the curse of God. It was the heaviest curse pronounced against anyone in the Bible. And logically, she is telling them, "Your husbands, my sons, have died, and now you remain here in Moab while I return to Bethlehem, to the city where I have come from."

And then she uses this very strange language, in verse 9: "The Lord grant that you may find a rest, each of you, in the house of her husband." Now that's very strange language. We would expect her to say, "The Lord grant that you may find happiness in the house of your husband," or "The Lord grant that you may find security in the house of your husband." In other words, that you find a Moabitish person that you can marry, and you find your future, you find a home with him.

But no, she said, "The Lord grant that you may find a rest in the house of your husband." Now why did she use that word "rest"? Well you see, in the Bible God never uses words accidentally. Naomi may not have realized why she used the word rest in this discussion with her two daughters-in-law. But nevertheless she did.

And the word "rest" is pointing to the rest that we have in the Lord Jesus Christ. When we are saved, we come to be at rest. This is particularly illustrated in Hebrews 3 and Hebrews 4. Before we are saved, we are desperately working to get right with God. Whatever our plan of action may be, this is the ultimate goal of our life. We've got to somehow get right with God, and we are trying to work this out one way or another.

But when we truly become born from above, when we become a child of God, we rest in the fact that Christ has paid for our sins. There is no more work that we must do. There is nothing at all that we can contribute to our salvation. We rest in Him.

And where do we find our rest? We find it in the house of our husband, do we not? Who is our husband, when we become born again? Our husband is the Lord Jesus Christ Himself. We are the bride. What is the house of our husband? Well, remember in Romans 8:1 it says that "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus." Or in the Psalms we read that God Himself is our "eternal habitation." God is the house that we enter when we are saved, when we have found rest.

And so Naomi is uttering a truism, a basic principle, a basic desire of every believer who wants to see salvation for an unsaved friend. "The Lord grant that you may find rest." That is, "The Lord grant that you may find salvation, in the house of your husband," that is, by dwelling in the Lord Jesus Christ, by entering into Him, by having the salvation that is provided in Him.

And so while she may not have recognized what she was saying, nevertheless this is the language of a plea, of a desire that Ruth and Orpah might become saved: "The Lord grant that you may find rest, each of you, in the house of your husband." Any one of us who has become born from above, born again, have found rest in the house of our husband.

Now let's look at Ruth for just a moment, and Orpah. Could they find this kind of rest? Could they, as being under the curse of God, could Naomi really desire salvation for them? Oh, she wasn't thinking all the way to salvation. She was only thinking in very superficial terms, about a happy home. But the underlying truth that is being presented is that there is this offer of salvation to them. And could this offer of salvation be legitimate, when Ruth and Orpah were Moabitish girls, who were under the curse of God to the tenth generation? It doesn't seem right, does it?

Well, the fact is, Ruth and Orpah represent the human race. Before we are saved, we are under the curse of God. We're destined for hell. Hell is guaranteed for us. There's no way that we can become right with God. It's just absolutely certain that we're going to hell, because the Bible teaches, "the wages of sin is death." And we are all sinners. There's not one of us that has escaped the curse of sin.

And so, even as Ruth and Orpah were Moabitish girls, and under the curse of God, so you and I, as part of the human race, in ourselves are likewise under the curse of God. There's no way that we could become right with God, except by God's grace. And that's what we're going to see in the life of Ruth, as we go along.

Now notice the next verse, verse 10: "They said to her, 'No. We will return with you to your people.'" Now that's an odd thing for them to say. Think about this. "No. We will return with you to your people." Now that doesn't make any sense at all. That implies that Ruth and Orpah had already been in Bethlehem. How can they return somewhere that they have never been? They were Moabitish girls. They were not former residents of Bethlehem. They were born and grew up in the land of Moab. Why would they say, "We will return with you"?

Here again we have an example of a statement that in itself makes no sense whatsoever. It would be far more logical if they had said, "No. We will go with you when you return, Naomi, our mother-in-law, to Bethlehem. We will go with you." But certainly, for them to say, "We will return with you," implying that they had already been there, makes no sense. And this odd language guarantees for us that this was written under the inspiration of God. No human author, writing a love story, would ever have written with this kind of language. It doesn't make logical sense, that Ruth and Orpah would return with Naomi. But they did say it, nevertheless, under the inspiration of God. And this is recorded for us.

Now why did they say this? You see, they again are uttering a very beautiful truth. If we look at the underlying spiritual meaning of this statement, we are looking at mankind. Now what is the situation of mankind when God first created the heavens and the earth? Mankind was completely in fellowship with God. Mankind was not estranged from God in any way. Mankind was created in the image of God, to live with Him eternally.

But because man has sinned, man has become an outcast. Man has come under the curse of sin. He has become a Moabite, if you will. Now when we become saved, when we become a child of God, we are returning to God. We are returning to God, who originally had created mankind perfectly, without sin. This in capsule form is the whole story of the Prodigal Son, all over again. Jesus embellished this very same truth in the Parable of the Prodigal Son.

The Prodigal Son was in the house of his father, and he left his father's house. And he went out to waste his living. And finally, when he was eating the husks of the swine, then his spiritual eyes were opened, and he said, "I will go back to my father. I will be a servant there." That is the story of anyone at all who is exercised by the Gospel, "I will return to my father's house. I will return to Bethlehem."

You see, the meaning of the word Bethlehem is "the house of bread." Not only was Jesus born at Bethlehem, this is the point on the surface of the earth where God became incarnate, it is the first point where we can literally meet the Lord Jesus, as He becomes flesh, in order to become sin for us, but it is also the "house of bread," and Christ is the Bread of which we must partake in order to live eternally.

And so when Ruth and Orpah are saying, "No. We will return with you," while they didn't know the implication of all that they said, nevertheless they were uttering a wonderful spiritual truth. They were saying, "The only way for us to enjoy life and to find rest in the house of our husband is to return with you, to go back to Bethlehem, the house of bread, to go where we can meet the Lord Jesus Christ," if you will, to look at it from a spiritual standpoint, "to go where we can again be reconciled to God, to go where we can feed on the Lord Jesus Christ, and be nourished by Him."

Well now, let's go on. So far we find two sentences already that are just loaded with spiritual truth relating to what salvation really is. We come to verse 11. And here we find again some very strange language, in a sense. Naomi said, "Turn back, my daughters. Why will you go with me? Have I yet sons in my womb, that they may become your husbands? Turn back, my daughters. Go your way, for I am too old to have a husband. If I should say I have hope, even if I should have a husband this night and should bear sons, would you therefore wait until they were grown? Would you therefore refrain from marrying? No, my daughters. For it is exceedingly bitter to me for your sake that the hand of the Lord has gone forth against me."

Now in the context of this love story this is a very logical statement. It is a very logical statement. She is reasoning with them, "Go back to your own people. Don't go with me. You're under the curse of God. You're apt not to get a good welcome in Bethlehem at all. And I have no more sons in my womb, so that you can find a husband from me. Go back."

But when we are looking for spiritual truth here, then this sounds very strange. We would say, "Well, here Naomi in verse 9 is earnestly desiring that they find rest, each of them in the house of their husbands." And we saw that that was really wishing, spiritually speaking, that they might have salvation in the Lord Jesus Christ, so they would become the bride of Christ.

And we saw in verse 10 that they indeed desired to return with her, and using language that would be the language of someone who is coming back to God as his Creator and as his Redeemer, someone who wants to be reconciled to God. And here Naomi is saying, "Look. Don't come now. It doesn't make any sense for you to come." It seems like she's almost saying, "Look. I really don't want you to be saved." How can we fit that into the puzzle?

Well you see, there are those who feel that we've got to be salesmen for Christ, we've got to win souls for Christ is the phrase that is frequently used. And every tactic is employed that can be found, to make the Gospel as attractive as possible. We don't really dare talk too much about hell, we don't really dare to talk too much about what it means to be surrendered to the Lord Jesus Christ. We like to make it as palatable, as delightful as possible, so that if at all possible we can get their name on the dotted line. It's kind of like the vacuum cleaner salesman, you know, who comes to the door, and he says everything positive, and he says everything in a delightful way, in order to woo the person he is selling, so that she might be inclined to sign on the dotted line.

But you see, that isn't the way we're to present the Gospel. We are to be witnesses of the Gospel. And we are to present the whole counsel of God. We're not to kid anybody that everything is really quite well with this person, and we just want to make it a little better for him, "God loves you, and now there's something even more wonderful for you, that we want to tell you about." You know, we get on the good side of this person, and finally get them to see that yes, there's even more blessing that can come if they would only accept Jesus.

That isn't the way we're to present the Gospel. We're to present the whole counsel of God. We're to come with the ugly truth that man is a sinner, that man is under the wrath of God, and that in order to be saved it is necessary for man to see that there's nothing in himself that is worthy, there is nothing that is desirable, that he is to strip himself of his ego. There's nothing he can do to make himself worthy for this salvation. It's ugly. My self-respect is worth nothing. My works are worth nothing. If you want to be saved, you've got to come to the Lord with a broken and a contrite heart. You've got to surrender your will to Christ. You've got to forsake your sins. And it may mean that you've got to leave your old friends that are enticing you to sin. It may mean that you have to even leave your family, and in certain conditions this has been the case. It's a very very difficult piece of information we have to offer.

We've got to present the Gospel asking those who hear the Gospel to count the cost. It means you've got to give up everything, and cast yourself as worthless, empty-handed sinners, on the mercies of God. And only as you come with a broken and a contrite heart can salvation be yours. And you've got to turn away from these things that you cherish so much. This is the language that Naomi is using: "It's not an easy thing for you to go with me, Ruth and Orpah. It would be far better if you stay here. If you go to Bethlehem with me," I can see her arguing, "you're going to leave all that has been dear to you, your family, and who knows what you're going to come into?" This again is the language of the way we present the Gospel. We witness carefully of what is true and trustworthy.

Well then we see the reaction of Ruth and Orpah. Now in Ruth and Orpah we see the reaction of the human race to the Gospel. Orpah represents those who hear the Gospel, and when they've counted the cost, when they've really seen what's involved in becoming saved, that they've got to strip themselves of their own pride, of their own ego, they have to admit the ugly truth that they're rotten, no good sinners, they've got to leave their friends, probably, and they certainly have to turn away from their sins, that they so dearly cherish, they decide, "I can't do it. I can't do it." That's Orpah.

Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, and she left Naomi and Ruth. She couldn't sacrifice all of this to go with Naomi. She represents those who hear the Gospel but are not willing to surrender to the claims of the Gospel. She is like the thief on the cross. Remember, there were two thieves on the cross, and both of them reviled Jesus, when they were first hanging there. One of these thieves went to his death continuing to revile Jesus. He was in the presence of the Gospel, with Christ Himself being next to him. And yet he went to his death continuing to revile Jesus.

But Ruth, on the other hand, is a figure of those who are exercised by the Gospel and become saved. Ruth counted the cost. She saw what was involved in leaving her family and her present environment, and going to a strange land, going to a place where she had never been before, just stepping out in faith. And what did she say? She said, in verse 16, "Entreat me not, Naomi, to leave you or to turn from following you. For where you go I will go, and where you lodge I will lodge. Your people shall be my people, and your God my God. Where you die, I will die, and there will I be buried. May the Lord do so to me and more also, if even death parts me from you." This is the confession of someone who has cast his lot with Christ. "I want this God of the Bible to be my God. I surrender my will to whatever comes. I don't know what path I must walk as a born again believer, but that path is good enough for me. I entrust my life altogether with God's people. I entrust my life with the Lord Jesus Christ. I surrender everything, and give it all to Him."

Ruth represents all who have become saved. She, like the thief on the cross, who said to Jesus, "Remember me when Thou comest into Thy Kingdom," is a representative of those who are under the curse of sin and rightly ought to go to hell for their sins, but have placed their trust in the Lord Jesus Christ, and so have become born again.

1 SAMUEL

The Evil Spirit in 1 Samuel 16:14 (211C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I have a question about 1 Samuel 16:14, where it speaks about an evil spirit from the Lord coming to torment Saul. It's hard for us to understand that, because it sounds like there's evil coming from the Lord. Is an evil spirit the same thing as a demon?

HC: The question is, How are we to understand 1 Samuel 16:14, where we read, "The Spirit of the Lord departed from Saul, and an evil spirit from the Lord tormented him. And Saul's servant said to him, 'Behold, now an evil spirit from God is tormenting you.'"

Now the question is, How is it possible that an evil spirit would come from God? Isn't an evil spirit a demon? Yes indeed, an evil spirit is a demon. An evil spirit is a fallen angel. But you see, God is in control. God controls everything.

Now normally, unsaved men are under the power of the evil spirits. They are enslaved to Satan, and he does with them what he wills, insofar as God allows them to do what they will with mankind. God chose Saul to be king, and therefore qualified him to be king by sending the Holy Spirit upon him, not in the sense that he was born again, but in the sense that he would have the wisdom and the qualification to be a king.

But then Saul turned against God, rebelled against God. And so God allows the evil spirits to again gain more control over his life. And to show that God is in control of this, the language is actually used that an evil spirit from the Lord tormented him.

Now we have other illustrations of this in the Bible. In other words, this is not isolated, as if it's an anomaly that you just can't understand at all. In II Samuel 24:1 we read this: "And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel. And He incited David against them, saying, Go number Israel and Judah." Now God is taking full responsibility here.

Now the same event is recorded also in I Chronicles 21:1: "Satan stood up against Israel, and incited David to number Israel. So David said to Joab and the commanders of the army," and so on. In other words, Satan is actually the instigator, but because God allows it to happen, God takes the ultimate responsibility that it has occurred.

CALLER: With this evil spirit tormenting him, it causes Saul to sin. I was under the impression that because the Lord is without sin, He cannot tempt anyone.

HC: Now the question is, Since God is a holy God, how can He allow anyone to be tempted into sin? This is beginning to look like it is God who is making Saul sin. Now we must remember that God isn't doing the sinning. Saul is doing the sinning. Saul is the one who was created in the image of God, and who, all the way from the depths of his heart, is in rebellion against God.

Now God can restrain sin in Saul's life, as He has done to some degree in order that Saul might be a good king over Israel. But when God removes His hand of restraint, then this allows Saul to become more firmly in the grasp of Satan, in whose dominion he is normally, anyway. And Saul simply does what comes more naturally to him now, and that is to sin. That is the normal posture of Saul, to sin. That's the normal situation of mankind. Mankind's heart is desperately wicked.

In other words, any time God takes His hand of restraint off of any unsaved man's life, that man is going to start sinning more desperately.

CALLER: Is that what it means in Romans 1, when it speaks of the lifting of God's hand from someone?

HC: In Romans 1 we read that God gave them up to all kinds of immorality, and so on, and so on. Three times in Romans 1 we have the terrible words, "God gave them up." Now that is emphasizing, amongst other things, that if man persists in rebellion against God, then eventually God allows wickedness to multiply in their lives and gives them up to that which is natural within their lives, so that they become increasingly sinful.

Now this non-neutrality of God is also emphasized in II Thessalonians 2. It's very surprising how God becomes involved in the sins of mankind, never making Him the author of sin, never making any sin to be charged at God's door. But because the basic nature of man is so fantastically sinful, the heart of man is desperately wicked, the moment that God removes any restraint from man, any insights from man as to what really goodness is, man will automatically become exactly what he is.

Now we read in II Thessalonians 2, where it's talking about, in verse 10, those who are to perish "because they refused to love the truth, and so be saved. Therefore God sends upon them a strong delusion, to make them believe what is false, so that all may be condemned who did not believe the truth but had pleasure in unrighteousness."

Now how does God do this? All He does is remove His hand of restraint, and He lets them be as blind as they are by nature.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Was King Saul Saved? (233B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum

CALLER: Hello. I have a question regarding whether or not Saul was saved. In I Samuel 28:19, where Saul is talking with the medium, and he calls up Samuel, and then Samuel says in verse 19, when he's telling Saul that he will be killed, he says, "Tomorrow you and your sons will be with me." And then the next reference is in II Samuel 1:23, where David is talking about Saul and Jonathan, and then he says, "In death they were not parted." I would like for you to speak to that.

HC: The question is raised concerning the salvation of Saul. And this is speaking not of Saul of Tarsus in the New Testament, although he also was a Benjamite and was a very important man in God's program. But this is King Saul in the Old Testament, the first king over the tribes of Israel. Was he saved or not?

And the language of the Bible is somewhat difficult to follow. We read, to complicate the question further than what has been raised in the question, when we go to I Samuel 10, in verse 6, "Then the Spirit of the Lord will come mightily upon you [this is Samuel talking to Saul, when he's just anointed him to be king], and you shall prophesy with them and be turned into another man." And we read in verse 9, "When he turned his back to leave Samuel, God gave him [that is, Saul] another heart. And all these signs came to pass that day." So that sounds like he was saved.

Again, as has been pointed out, in I Samuel 28 the witch of Endor declared, through this apparition which appeared to be Samuel but who was not Samuel, "Tomorrow you and your sons shall be with me." Now this whole business of I Samuel 28 is another question altogether. This actually is not Samuel speaking. This was an apparition conjured up by Satan himself, because this medium was an ambassador of Satan. But Saul was convinced that it was Samuel. Actually, this statement, "Tomorrow you and your sons shall be with me," had some truth in it, in that death did come to Saul and his sons the next day. But as to whether Saul and his sons all went to be with the Lord, as Samuel had, that's another question altogether.

Now this statement in II Samuel 1, where David indicates in verse 23, "Saul and Jonathan, beloved and lovely, in life and in death they were not divided. They were swifter than eagles. They were stronger than lions," suggests, too, that maybe Saul was saved, because Jonathan was a very personal friend of David. We don't read anything negative about Jonathan. And we could conclude that Jonathan probably was saved. And if in death they were not divided, the suggestion might be that Saul also was saved. However, this verse is not conclusive at all, because it is true that in the grave they were not divided. And in that sense death claimed them. This is not a discourse on everything that happened after death.

If Jonathan was saved he went to be with Christ in his soul, and if Saul was unsaved, his soul went into another place, called Hades. But the very fact that it says, "In death they were not divided" could refer to their bodies, that they were both buried in the same grave, in the same tomb.

But there's other language in the Bible that suggests very strongly that Saul was not saved. It's very very strong language. We read in Psalm 18, I believe it is, where David is indicating these words, and the heading of this psalm, which is part of the Holy Canon also "A Psalm of David, the servant of the Lord, who addressed the words of this psalm to the Lord on the day when the Lord delivered him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul."

And then he goes on to speak as if he were the Messiah. This is a Messianic psalm. It says in verse 4, "The cords of death encompassed me. The torrents of perdition assailed me. The cords of Sheol entangled me. The snares of death confronted me." This is the language of Christ going to the cross. And of course Christ went to the cross to pay for our sins, but also there He was delivered from all of the hands of His enemies, because He rose from the grave. He was saved from this once He had paid for our sins. And it was His enemies who had brought Him to the cross.

And so Psalm 18 is putting Saul in the same class with Satan, with those who are totally antagonistic toward God. And we see this also in Saul's life. For the last ten or fifteen years of his life he sought constantly to kill David. And a murderer is not one that has eternal life.

Now this language of I Samuel 10 probably refers to the fact that Saul was qualified by the Holy Spirit to be a king. You must bear in mind that before Saul became king, Israel had no king, it had no court, it had no palace, it had no protocol, it had no army. It had nothing at all of this nature. It was led by God, and the servant of God was a man like Samuel, who was a prophet, who just kind of went in and out amongst the people. But there was no regal ruling of any kind.

And so here Saul is a farm boy. He really was a farm boy. And God now is going to make him king. And so this was a very very large change, where there was no preparation of any kind. And God qualified Saul to be king by giving him another heart, not in the sense of being born again, but in the sense of giving him the ability to rule wisely.

Now Saul actually was a pretty good king. He did rule quite wisely. The only trouble is, he rebelled against God very quickly, and therefore God took the throne away from him and eventually gave it to King David. And when we look at the rulers over Israel, they really begin with David. David is the line that began the real rule over Israel, even though Saul had reigned forty years before David.

I really believe that Saul was not saved. I really believe that the burden of the evidence is that he was not saved. And when the witch of Endor was prophesying through an evil spirit that tomorrow you and your sons would supposedly be with Samuel, this was true in the sense that they would be dead tomorrow, but not true in the sense that they would all be in Heaven with Christ. And I think that the passage in II Samuel, where David says, "Saul and Jonathan, in life and in death they were not divided," can easily be explained if we think of death in terms of the grave rather than in terms of the place where their souls went.

The "Cave" as a Figure of Hell in I Samuel 22:1 (257A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. Several weeks ago I asked you something about a passage in I Samuel 22. And there we read, "David departed from there and escaped to the cave of Adullam. When his brothers and all his father's house heard it, they went down there to him. And everyone who was in distress, and everyone who was in debt, and everyone who was discontented gathered to him, and he became captain over them."

And then we agreed that this is a marvelous figure of mankind's sin situation. And David is a figure of Christ, who is the captain of salvation. But you also mentioned something interesting, if I'm quoting you correctly, that the word cave is often a figure of judgment, or a figure of hell.

And I saw something in Psalm 142 that I wanted to share with you today, to see if it applies. The heading is, "A maschal of David, when he was in the cave." It's a prayer. And in verses 3 and 4 we read, "In the path where I walk they have hidden a trap for me. I look to the right watch, but there is none who takes notice of me. No refuge remains to me. No man cares for me. I cry to Thee, oh Lord. I say, Thou art my refuge and my portion in the land of the living. Give heed to my cry, for I am brought very low."

And this seems to suggest the same type of condition. And I wondered if you could reply.

HC: Yes. Your question really is, Is there a relationship between Psalm 142, that talks about a song that David wrote when he was in the cave, and I Samuel 22, which gives us a description of him in the cave? And can we tie these two passages together and see in both of these Christ as Messiah?

Now in Psalm 142, this definitely is a Messianic psalm. It is the language of Christ, who is about to go to the cross. And the terribleness of the wrath of God is such, because of the sin of mankind, that He is crying to God, "Oh God, make sure that I will come out after I have paid for the sins of mankind." This is a Messianic psalm that finds similar language in other psalms.

We read, for example, in Psalm 18:4: "The cords of death encompassed me, the torrents of perdition assailed me, the cords of Sheol entangled me, the snares of death confronted me. In my distress I called upon the Lord. To my God I cried for help."

This is already seen when Christ is in the Garden of Gethsemane. "Father, is it possible that this cup might pass from Me?" The terror of facing the wrath of God is so great. This is the language of Psalm 142. And so he says, "Give heed to my cry, for I am brought very low. Deliver me from my persecutors, for they are too strong for me. Bring me out of prison." Hell is prison, where he is going to spend the equivalent of an eternity on our behalf. But Christ is effectively saying, "I don't want to be consumed there. Once I have adequately paid for the sins of those who have died, be sure that I will be raised, that I will come into the land of the living."

And notice it continues: "The righteous will surround me, for thou wilt deal bountifully with me." And the righteous are the kingdom that Christ came to establish. They will surround Him. They will be His people eternally.

Now this ties right back, and very correctly, to I Samuel 22, where David went into this cave, the cave of Adullam. That cave is a figure of hell, as Psalm 142 very clearly proves. And those of us who believe on Him meet Him at the cross. That is, we meet Christ where we are, requiring salvation. We are subject to hell. We're under the wrath of God. It is here that He became sin for us. And therefore we can be free from hell.

And I don't know if I talked about this before with you. But that next phrase, "And there were with Him about 400 men". The number four in the Bible is very frequently a figure of universality. And it suggest in I Samuel 20, at any rate, that those who would meet Jesus in hell, that is, those who would become saved, because of Christ going to hell on our behalf, would come from every part of the world. It would be a universal salvation in that sense.

CALLER: Do you think you can put your finger on something else that talks about 400?

HC: What else relating to 400 speaks of universality? Well, we know, for example, that the number four is used in the sense of the four winds of the earth, the four corners of the earth. "Men will come from the north, the south, the east and the west, and sit down at the table with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob." These are a couple of illustrations. There may be more, that just don't come to mind right now.

CALLER: In Chapter 24 of I Samuel, this is when David spares Saul. And he's in a cave again. He's in a cave, and this is where Saul is trying to kill him, in this cave. Could that have the same implication?

HC: Does I Samuel 24, where David again is in a cave, and Saul is still trying to kill him, at which time David could have killed Saul, because he cut off the skirt of Saul's robe, have the same idea? I really think it does. You see, Saul is a figure of Satan. And Christ actually did destroy Satan by going to the cross, by enduring hell for our sins. Now he didn't destroy Saul at this point, because there was also the historical development that had to be carried out. But he had the capacity to destroy Saul. And only because Saul was the anointed king, he did not. But figuratively speaking, he did destroy Saul, because was in his power at that point. And Christ went to the cross to destroy Satan, as we read in Hebrews 2:14.

Incidentally, if I may add just one more quick thought, the interesting thing in I Samuel 24:2 is that Saul took 3000 chosen men and went to seek David. Now that's kind of interesting, that Saul took 3000 men, because the number three in the Bible is frequently related to God Himself.

You see, it was God's program that Christ should go to hell. It was God's program that Christ would do battle with Satan. It was God's program that it would be the hour of the power of darkness, and Satan himself would enter into Judas and betray Christ, and so on. And I think this is perhaps, perhaps, signified by the fact that Saul comes with 3000 men. In the spiritual sense here, he is coming in order to accomplish God's program in precise detail. Satan accomplished God's program in precise detail by bringing Christ to the cross. But in doing this Satan himself was destroyed, even as Saul was brought into the power of David, so that he could have destroyed Saul.

CALLER: Is it also significant in verse 3 that it says, "David and his men were sitting in the innermost parts of the cave," because Christ went down into the innermost parts of the earth?

HC: The Bible teaches, in Matthew 12:40, that Jesus was three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. And the heart of the earth is very definitely a similar statement to that which we find in I Samuel 24:3, where it says that David and his men were sitting in the innermost parts of the cave.

In other words, Christ endured the awfulness of the totality of hell on our behalf. It was not just a skirmish with hell. It was not just a superficial contact with hell. But He had to enter into the bowels of hell, in a sense, in order to save us, because that's how deep our sins are. That is where we are under the wrath of God. We are subject to the depths of hell for our sins.

CALLER: That makes wonderful sense. Thank you.

HC: Thank you. Good night.

The Gospel in David and Goliath in 1 Samuel 17 (274C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have one question. In I Samuel 17:38-40, I'd like to know, in these verses is there a message for the Christians today?

HC: The question is raised concerning I Samuel 17:38-40, whether there is a message in this concerning the Christians today. Well, I haven't really looked at these very carefully, but let's look at them a moment and see if we can quickly discover anything.

It's at a time that Israel is being assaulted by the Philistines. Saul is king, and the Israelites are really in terror before the Philistines. And now there is this Goliath, who is threatening to destroy Israel, and no one dares go out and fight Goliath.

We read in verse 16 of I Samuel 17: "For forty days the Philistine came forward and took his stand, morning and evening." In other words, this forty is referring to the question of Israel being tested. Are they going to trust in God, or are they going to stand in fear because they don't have trust in God?

And now David comes forth, and he is just a youth. He has no armor, and he's brought before Saul, and he's ready to fight this Philistine. And then we read there that David said to Saul, in verse 34: "Your servant used to keep sheep for his father, and when there came a lion or a bear and took a lamb from the flock, I went after him and smote him, and delivered it out of his mouth. And if he arose against me, I caught him by his beard and smote him and killed him. Your servant has killed both lions and bears, and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be like one of them, seeing he has defied the armies of the living God.

"And David said, The Lord who delivered me from the paw of the lion, from the paw of the bear, will deliver me from the hand of this Philistine. And Saul said to David, Go. And the Lord be with you. Then Saul clothed David with his armor [this is verse 38]. He put on a helmet of bronze on his head, and clothed him with a coat of mail. And David girded his sword over his armor, and he tried in vain to go, for he was not used to them. Then David said to Saul, I cannot go with these, for I am not used to them. And David put them off. Then he took his staff in his hand and chose five smooth stones from the brook, and put them in his shepherd's bag [or wallet]. His sling was in his hand, and he drew near to the Philistine."

I believe there is a beautiful lesson here for us. You see, David is assaulting the kingdom of Satan, and he is doing it in the power of the Lord. The number five in the Bible really is the number of grace. It is the number of redemption. I don't have time now to give illustrations of where this number is used in this way, but it is the number of redemption. And here David of course is a figure of the Lord Jesus Christ.

He takes his staff in his hand. Now his staff, of course, is reminiscent of "The Lord is my Shepherd." He cares for us with His rod and His staff. It is a staff that is a figure of the rod of God's wrath, as He pours out His wrath on the unsaved. He will break the enemies as a potter would break the vessels.

And the armor that is spoken of here would be a figure of anything that would be of earthly might. This is Saul's way of doing it. "You've got to be clothed with my armor and with my sword." And that is not the way we go out to fight the battles of the Lord. This isn't the way Christ took on Satan and endured the wrath of God for our sins. It was not in the power of this creation. It was not in the power of men, or what men could provide. It was in the power of God.

And so David went forth without any armor, just armed with his sling and his five smooth stones, and his staff. And of course he accomplished fantastic victory.

The Deceitfulness of Mediums in 1 Samuel 28 (278B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I would like to talk about the Witch of Endor. Was that really Samuel that was brought up, or was it something else?

HC: The question that is raised is concerning the Witch of Endor, that we read about in I Samuel 28. This is a passage that, if we read it just fairly superficially, we can come to the very distinct conclusion that Satan has some power over the dead, that he was about to raise up Samuel.

But when we read it more carefully, we find that it's not so at all, if we read it really in the light of everything that the Bible offers. Now you see, Saul, who is king of Israel, has reigned for forty years. And he has rebelled against God, and God's wrath is against Saul. And the prophet Samuel, who is the spokesman for God in that day, had died several years previously. And more than that, Saul would not even go to Saul in the closing days of Samuel's life. And after Samuel died, Saul more directly than ever would try to get information from any other source than from God Himself.

And so the Philistines are at war with Israel, over whom Saul reigned. And things are looking very bad for Israel. And so Saul goes to a medium, or to a witch, in order to ascertain what the future is going to bring, whether he is going to be successful in this endeavor, in this war with the Philistines.

It reminds us of some of our leaders in our land today, whom we hear about now and then, who go to mediums, in order to find out the future. Now this was really an abomination altogether. The fact is, God had commanded Saul earlier to kill all the mediums and the witches and the wizards from the land. And God had warned, in Deuteronomy, that the Israelites were not to have anything at all to do with those who were diviners or mediums or enchanters, or whatever.

But Saul is in rebellion against God. Saul is anti-God. And so in his desperation he goes to this witch, this medium of Endor. And he asks that Samuel be brought up, because he wants to talk to Samuel. And lo and behold, we read in verse 11, that Saul says, "Bring up Samuel for me." When the woman saw Samuel, she cried out with a loud voice. And the woman said to Saul, "Why have you deceived me? You are Saul." The king said to her, "Have no fear. What do you see?" And the woman said to Saul, "I see a god coming up out of the earth." He said to her, "What is his appearance?" And she said, "An old man is coming up, and he is wrapped in a robe." And Saul knew that it was Samuel. And he bowed with his face to the ground and did obeisance. Then Samuel said to Saul, "Why have you disturbed me by bringing me up?" And Samuel goes on to tell him, in verse 19, "The Lord will give Israel also with you into the hand of the Philistines. And tomorrow you and your sons shall be with me. The Lord will give the army of Israel also into the hands of the Philistines."

Now when we read this casually, or superficially, it certainly looks like this medium was able to bring up Samuel, and that Samuel talked to Saul, and Samuel told him exactly what was going to happen on the morrow, that Saul and his sons would be killed, and the Lord would give the army of Israel into the hands of the Philistines.

And when we go into the next couple of chapters, we'll find that this is exactly the thing that happened. Saul and his sons were killed, and Israel was defeated by the Philistines. And so it would certainly seem that the witch had been able to bring up Samuel.

But when we read it more carefully, we find that this is not really the case at all. First of all, how do we know this is Samuel? Well, what does the medium know about him? It just says, "When the woman saw Samuel, she cried out with a loud voice." Now Saul says to her, in verse 14, "What is his appearance?" In other words, "How do you know that this is Samuel?" And she said, "An old man is coming up, and he is wrapped in a robe."

Now do you see how if we want to see something we're going to see it? She wanted to see Samuel, because she was genuine in her ability to foretell the future. And as a slave of Satan, as an emissary of Satan, she had been able to do other things of this nature previously. And so she's convinced that this apparition that she is looking at, which looks like an old man, wrapped in a robe, that this is Samuel.

Now notice what Saul said. It says, "And Saul knew that it was Samuel." But what did Saul see? Well, we read here that Saul didn't see anything. The woman saw Samuel, which was really this apparition of an old man wrapped in a robe. And the woman said to Saul, "I see a god coming up out of the earth," and he said to her, "What is his appearance?" In other words, he didn't see anything. And yet because he was convinced, and completely deceived that she could bring up Samuel, therefore, when they saw this apparition that appeared to look like an old man, they were both convinced they were looking at Samuel. And Saul begins to worship and address him as Samuel. And God carries out this deception by simply going on and speaking, "And Samuel said to Saul," and so on.

Now how do we know it wasn't Samuel? Well, first of all, nowhere in the Bible does God indicate that Satan (and remember, this witch of Endor was under the power of Satan) has the power over those who are born again believers, to bring them up from the dead. Only God can resurrect a person. Satan can never do this.

Secondly, where did Samuel go when he died? The Bible says that "To be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord." Samuel was a priest of God, and he was in Heaven with the Lord Jesus Christ, along with Moses and Elijah, and all the other believers that were there. And so he would not have come up. True, his body may have come out of the grave, if indeed there had been a bringing up here. But Samuel, in order to speak, would have had to come down from Heaven.

And so this whole thing was a hoax. This whole thing was a deception, worked out by Satan himself. This is exactly the way mediums operate today. They are convinced they are speaking with the dead, because Satan mimics the voice of the dead. Evil spirits mimic their voices. Evil spirits make tables move, and create certain other phenomena in haunted houses, and so on, because Satan breaks the barrier between the supernatural and the natural.

Now what about the fact that the evil spirit speaking through this apparition is able to foretell what's going to happen tomorrow? That, of course, is because Satan is part of the spirit world. Mediums today are frequently able to foretell the future with a reasonable degree of accuracy far beyond that which they could guess at. Somehow Satan has some knowledge of the future. We know this, of course, that whatever Satan's knowledge of the future is, it is going to be frustrated by God. Whatever events will be frustrated by God, in those events he will be incorrect.

It certainly was Satan's desire that the Philistines would destroy Israel, and destroy their king. And God allowed this to happen. And so Satan certainly was accurate in his prognostication, in his forecast of what tomorrow would bring. But this does not mean for a moment that this was Samuel speaking to Saul. It was Satan himself, or an evil spirit, speaking to Saul through this apparition of Samuel.

We must not have anything at all to do with the occult world, no matter how good or how holy it may be. Saul was convinced that this was Samuel. And since it was Samuel, he perhaps reasoned in his heart, "I did something terribly sinful in going to this medium, this witch of Endor. But here is Samuel, and that certainly underscores that maybe it wasn't as bad as it might have been." Saul may have reasoned this in his heart.

But God does not want us to have anything to do with the occult. If we want to find anything at all about God, we must go to the Bible. The Bible reveals to us the person of the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the Prophet to whom we are to listen. And Christ calls Himself the Word. And the Word of God is what we read in order that we might know truth.

Well, thank you for those questions.

2 SAMUEL

Was David Moved by the Lord or Satan? (346B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I have one question involving two separate parts of the Bible. In II Samuel 24 and I Chronicles 21 there are great similarities. And my main question then is, in reading the opening verses of both chapters, in II Samuel 24 it says the Lord moved David against Israel to count them, but in I Chronicles 21 it says Satan moved David against Israel to count them. And that puzzles me a bit.

HC: All right. Now the question is raised concerning II Samuel 24 as it relates to I Chronicles 21. In II Samuel 24:1 we read, "And again the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel, and He moved David against them to say, Go number Israel and Judah. For the king said to Joab, the captain of the host which was with him, Go now through all the tribes of Israel, from Dan even to Beersheba, and number ye the people that I may know the number of the people."

Then in I Chronicles 21:1 we read, "And Satan stood up against Israel and provoked David to number Israel. And David said to Joab and to the rulers of the people, Go number Israel, from Beersheba even to Dan. And bring the number of them to me that I may know it."

And then if we go on in the context we'll discover that this was sin on David's part. Actually, God here is letting Satan have his way. You see, God restrains sin in the lives of unbelievers. He restrains sin in the lives of believers. Even believers like David still have an old nature that lusts after sin. Praise God that once we're saved we belong to the Lord Jesus Christ, and God strengthens us, so that we are able to not fall so easily under the temptations of Satan. But here God allows Satan to have his way with David, and removes His hand of restraint on David in order that David might commit this sin. Satan can do nothing except under the permissive will of God. We see this very clearly, of course, in Job 1 and 2.

Now this sinful act on David's part was really a repudiation of God being his strength. He was numbering the people of Israel from the same vantage point that the Eastern kings did, to indicate his strength, his power, his might. His glory was not in God at that point. His glory was in his own strength. And so this became a real sin in David's life, and it brought great judgment against the nation of Israel.

CALLER: Yes, I see. Apparently Joab, in both chapters, was reluctant to number. He must have had some knowledge.

HC: Joab, in both of these passages, is really speaking out for the right. In other words, David is doing this in the face of good, sound advice from his general. But you see, when we become perverse, when we take our eyes off God and try to satisfy our own ego or our own pride, sometimes we are very very insistent on having our own way, are we not? And that's where we really get into sin.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much.

1 KINGS

Solomon's Besetting Sin in 1 Kings 11 (448A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I'm in I Kings 11, concerning the end of Solomon's life. And I was wondering if you could shed any light on why he let his wives turn his heart away from the Lord.

HC: All right. The question that's raised is concerning the end of King Solomon's life. King Solomon reigned for forty years, and was a marvelous king, the wisest of all kings who ever reigned on the face of the earth, and who had so many endowments and wonderful privileges. How is it possible that in his old age he allowed his wives to turn his heart from God, so that he actually, in a sense, began to worship other gods, and brought the wrath of God upon him? How is this possible?

Well, I think Solomon's life is a classic illustration of what happens if we do not take care of the besetting sin. You know, God lets us go along. There may be something in our life. We're a child of God; we've actually become born again. And yet there is an area of our life that we never quite straightened out. Oh, it didn't seem to be really troublesome, but yet it was contrary to the will of God. And God lets us go on and on and on.

Now there's a natural development of sin. Sin develops additional sin. Sin goes in the direction of destruction. Now if we're truly a child of God, this sin will not make us lose our salvation. But my, oh my, that sin ultimately can really get us into serious trouble. And it can bring us very low, and can be a real terrible thing in our life before it's all done with, because there is this natural outworking of sin.

Now this was the case with Solomon. He was a wonderful king, a marvelous child of God. But there was one little problem that he hadn't resolved. He loved women. And his father David had a harem of several wives, and this got David into trouble. But this wasn't enough of a lesson for King Solomon. He multiplied the harem. And this was contrary to the Word of God. God had declared, way back before Israel ever came into the land of Canaan. When you have a king they should not multiply wives.

But God didn't trouble Solomon about this. God allowed it to happen. God allowed it to go. Solomon was not reminded of his sin, and because it was in vogue in those days for kings to have harems, and because father David had had a number of wives, he continued to let them multiply.

But Solomon wasn't getting away with it. Eventually his wives began to turn him away from God. He wanted to please his wives as well as please God, and so he raised up high places, and so on. And this was such a terrible abomination that God took the kingdom away from Solomon. Except for the promise He had made to his father David, that the lamp would never go out, God would have taken all twelve tribes away from Israel, or from Solomon's son Rehoboam. As it was, He took ten tribes away.

Solomon did not get away with his sin. Now that sin was covered by the blood of Christ. In the life of the believer all of our sins are covered. But if we have a besetting sin that we do not get victory over, and in Solomon's case, of course, it was a very incidental sin, in view of everything God had said heretofore, and in view of the customs of that day, it was a relatively incidental sin, and we have these in our lives, too. Of course, had Solomon been serving other gods all his life, had he been going after other gods as a youth, and continuing this way, it would have indicated he was never saved, because we could never live that way for a lifetime.

Thank you so much for calling and sharing. Good night.

2 CHRONICLES

Healing the Land in 2 Chr 7:14 (356D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Good evening. Could you please relate II Chronicles 7:14 to the matter of the aging of the earth?

HC: Yes. All right. II Chronicles 7:14: "If my people which are called by My name shall humble themselves and pray and seek My face and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from Heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land."

Yes, now how does that relate to the fact that this world is wearing out and that it's doomed to be destroyed by fire? Actually, you must remember that this world has continued for about 13,000 years. During this 13,000 years many nations have arisen. Many tribes have existed, and so on. And it's only at the end of time that we see the earth finally wear out. It's only at the end of time that it's going to be destroyed by fire. In the meanwhile this earth goes on. Therefore, at any time in history, except at the end of time, it is a truism that if a people will turn from their sins and cry out to God for mercy, He will bring His blessings upon them, not only spiritual blessings, but the land will also react in a very close relationship to these blessings.

But when we come to the end of time (where we are now, I believe with all my heart), then we get to the point where two things are happening. First of all, there is no more healing of the land possible, because it is at the end of time, and secondly, there is no repentance that will come. There is no repentance.

Now the Bible teaches, on the one hand, that this earth is going to wear out. But it also teaches that wickedness will multiply, in Matthew 24, "Wickedness will multiply and most men's love will grow cold. II Thessalonians 2 indicates that the rebellion will come, and the man of sin will take his seat in the temple. That is, Satan will begin to rule in the congregations. The whole world becomes increasingly rebellious. And at the same time the evidence of the final demise of the earth becomes apparent also.

It's very interesting when you read the Bible that there's a very close parallel between creation and its fortunes and the spiritual conduct of mankind. We see this very interestingly in the almost destroyed Nineveh, in the Book of Jonah. If you read the last verse of the Book of Jonah, it says there that Jonah is unhappy because God did not destroy Nineveh, which was the enemy of Israel, and then God says to him, "Don't you realize that there were 120,000 in this city who did not know their right hand from the left, and much cattle?" Now why did He talk about the cattle? The cattle were representative of the creation. And if the 120,000 were destroyed because of their wickedness, then the cattle would have been destroyed, even as happened in the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah or in the destruction of the world by the flood. Everything with the breath of life was destroyed. Or in the destruction of the firstborn of the cattle when the firstborn of Egypt was killed. Or in the destruction of all of the animals in Jericho when they were destroyed. There is a parallel development of God's plan that comes upon creation as it comes upon man.

Now by the same token, God uses language to indicate that even as there is redemption for man, there is a redemption for this earth. Mankind is redeemed by experiencing the resurrection, and this earth will be redeemed in that it will be burned by fire and be recreated New Heavens and a New Earth.

But when we read II Chronicles 7:14, while this holds throughout time, and Nineveh is a good example of this; they repented of their sins, and God did not destroy them nor the cattle nor the city. You see, God healed their land. Had they continued in their rebellion against God, had they not repented when Jonah preached to them, they would have been destroyed, but so would have the cattle been destroyed. The whole city would have been destroyed, as Jericho was destroyed, and Sodom and Gomorrah.

CALLER: We as a nation have experienced so much moral decay, and in the last fifteen years or so we have experienced such great pollution. I too believe that we're close to the end of time, but I was just wondering how this passage in II Chronicles fit in.

HC: It still stands as a warning. But I'm afraid that it is too late. I'm afraid that we're right near the end of time. You made an interesting observation. Our nation (and not only our nation but every nation in the world in these last ten or fifteen years) has experienced great moral decay. Therefore, because there is this parallel condition that prevails, that as nations become more wicked, then also the earth begins to suffer, there is that parallel relationship that continues, therefore we can expect more and more natural calamities, more and more droughts and famines and earthquakes and pestilence's of various kinds. I really believe that, although it will be very difficult to measure. I think time is moving along so very swiftly, the time is approaching so very quickly that it will be difficult to really have a good barometer, a good standard with which to measure the increase in these various natural catastrophes.

But I think we will sense, more and more, that these things are happening. We'll become more sensitive than ever that things aren't quite as normal as we can remember them from way back.

NEHEMIAH

Rebuilding the Wall in Nehemiah 4 (339D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. In Nehemiah 4, does the rebuilding of the walls of the city of Jerusalem by the remnant of Israel somehow symbolically mean it is the believer's duty today to build and renew the church by making disciples, first at home and then expanding to encompass the whole world? Is there some symbolical meaning in that chapter for me?

HC: The question is raised concerning the building of the walls of Jerusalem as we see it related to us in Nehemiah 4. Nehemiah came with a remnant out of Babylon, and in a space of fifty-two days he built the walls of Jerusalem. And we see a rather detailed account of this building.

Now the question is raised, does this symbolize in any sense the task that the believer has today, to build the walls of the temple, or the walls of Jerusalem? And by all mean, yes, that is so. We are temple builders. When we bring the Gospel as ambassadors of the Lord Jesus Christ, we are building the temple of God. Each believer becomes a living stone in the house of God, we read in I Peter 2:4 or 5. Or in Ephesians 2 it speaks about us being built into a most holy temple. Or in Acts 15, as the Gentiles are coming into the body of Christ, the Old Testament reference is to the rebuilding of the ruins of the dwelling of David.

When we are bringing the Gospel, we are building the walls of Jerusalem, of the holy city, or the walls of the temple, the body of Christ. And certainly it is typified by Nehemiah 4.

CALLER: Thank you so much, Mr. Camping.

JOB

What Type of Animal Was Leviathan in Job 41? (093B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I want to thank you for this program. It's the first time I've ever called, but I appreciate listening to it.

We have a neighbor that's very concerned because the Bible never speaks anything about prehistoric animals. And I mentioned this to a fellow I work with, and he said he was listening one time when you gave a scripture describing the skin, etc., of dinosaurs. And I was just wondering if you would mind taking a few minutes to give me some of those verses.

HC: Yes. There is a passage in the Bible that describes a very fearsome beast which cannot be a beast that lives on the earth today. And that is described in Job

41, the whole chapter of Job 41. As it's described, it reminds you of the dragons that you read about in mythology. Now those myths, of course, are myths, but they still have their roots in some kind of truth way back when. And we find, of course, the fossilized bones of very huge animals that once roamed the earth.

Now when the Flood came, 7000 years ago, the world was destroyed, and all of these prehistoric (the word prehistoric really means those that lived before the invention of writing, before any written history could be recorded) animals, that lived before the Flood, would have been destroyed, although Noah was commanded to put 2 of every kind into the ark. So you can be sure that there were a couple of baby dinosaurs and a couple of baby this and baby that on the ark.

But the weather conditions were much colder after the Flood. The fact that the ice covered a large part of some of the continents was because of the Flood. And so the worldwide temperature was much lower. And so the environment was not conducive to large scale development of these large animals again.

But it seems that as long as 3000 years after the Flood, when Job was written, because the Book of Job was written around 1800 BC, whereas the Flood occurred in 4990 BC, there could have still been living some of these large animals, that had survived the Flood by coming into the Ark, and who again multiplied to some degree.

And so you have this vivid description of an animal in Job 41. It says, for example, in verse 7: "Can you fill a skin with harpoons, or his head with fishing spears? Lay hands on him. Think of the battle. You will not do it again."

Or in verse 10: "No one is so fierce that he dares to stir him up. Who then is he that can stand before Me?" And then verse 12: "I will not keep silence concerning his limbs or his mighty strength or his goodly frame. Who can strip off his outer garments? Who can penetrate his double coat of mail? Who can open the doors of his face, round about his teeth, his terror? His back is made of rows of shield shut up closely, as with a seal. One is so near to another that no air can come between them. They are joined one to another. They clasp each other and cannot be separated. His sneezings flash forth light, and his eyes are like the eyelids of the dawn."

And then it goes on in verse 23: "The folds of his flesh cleave together, firmly cast upon him, and immovable, as hard as the stone, hard as the nether millstone. When he raises himself up, the mighty are afraid at the crashing. They are beside themselves. Though the sword reaches him, it does not avail, nor the spear, the dart or the javelin. He counts iron as straw and bronze as rotten wood. The arrow cannot make him flee. For him sling stones are turned to stubble. Clubs are counted as stubble. He laughs at the rattle of javelins. His underparts are like sharp potsherds. He spreads himself like a threshing sledge on mire. He makes the deep boil like a pot. He makes the sea like a pot of ointment. Behind him he leaves a shining wake. One would think the deep to be hoary. Upon earth there is not his like, a creature without fear. He beholds everything that is high. He is king over all the sons of pride."

Now this is actually a figure of Satan himself. From the context we would gather that. But nevertheless it is a literal animal that seems to have been living in that day.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

PSALMS

Psalm 23 Explained (110A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. Some time ago you did an explanation of Psalm 23, and I wondered if you would do that again tonight.

HC: Psalm 23. I'll try to do that.

The question that's raised is: What does God teach in the 23rd Psalm? We are all quite familiar with this, of course. I think most of us are. But it is a psalm that is loaded with deep spiritual meaning.

Now the first verse goes: "The Lord is my Shepherd. I shall not want." It's interesting how God presents Himself to us as a Shepherd. In Ezekiel 34 we find such a beautiful statement about the kind of a shepherd that God is. He says in verse 11 of Ezekiel 34:

For thus says the Lord God. Behold, I, I Myself will search for My sheep and will seek them out, as a shepherd seeks out his flock when some of his sheep have been scattered abroad. So will I seek out My sheep, and I will rescue them from all places where they have been scattered, on a day of clouds and thick darkness. I will bring them out from the peoples and gather them from the countries, and I will bring them into their own land.

And I will feed them in the mountains of Israel, by the fountains, and in all the inhabited places of the country. I will feed them with good pasture, and upon the mountain heights of Israel shall be their pasture. There they shall lie down in good grazing land, on fat pasture. They shall feed on the mountains of Israel. I Myself will be the Shepherd of My sheep, and I will make them lie down, says the Lord God. I will seek the lost, and I will bring back the strayed, and I will bind up the crippled, and I will strengthen the weak, and the fat and the strong I will watch over. I will feed them in justice.

Now you see how God repeatedly uses this figure that He is a Shepherd. And you will recall in John 10 that Christ says, "I am the Good Shepherd. I lay down My life for My sheep." And so when it says here, "Jehovah, the Lord, is my Shepherd," it is really speaking of those who have been sought out by God and who have been found. It is talking about those who are born again believers, those who have become children of God.

No wonder it goes on to say, "I shall not want," because when we belong to the Lord Jesus Christ we have everything on our side. We are of royal blood. We are heirs of all the promises that we find in the Bible. Jesus promises, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." And He of course is King of kings and Lord of lords. He is the Almighty Ruler of the universe. So we have everything going for us.

Now: "He makes me lie down in green pastures." And the word green here is a word that really means the tender grass. He leads me where the grass is the most tasty. In a pasture the older grass is not nearly as quickly eaten as the young tender grass, because the older grass is more difficult to digest. And it does not have the taste, apparently. And so sheep will always eat the new grass first. God, of course, when He provides for us, provides that which is the very best.

"He makes me lie down." We are safe and secure when we are in the Lord Jesus Christ. We have no fear. A lamb, a sheep, that is frightened is not going to lie down. It will be running hither and thither. But when a lamb is safe and secure, and there is abundant food, then he can lie down in the pasture land.

Now of course when He provides this pasture, it means that there is abundant food. And we feed on the Lord Jesus Christ. He is the Bread of Life. He is of course identified totally with the Word of God. And as we read the Word of God, we are feeding on Him.

Then it says, "He leads me beside still waters." The word still here really means waters of rest. Again you get that picture of having arrived, of having finally found total safety and security. The land of Canaan is called the Land of Rest in Hebrews 3 and Hebrews 4. And it's a figure of salvation. We rest in Christ.

Now you see, the fact is, before we are saved we are struggling. We are desperately trying to find a way back to God. And of course we're doing this by thinking we can do good things, by thinking that somehow by our good works, by our worthiness we can come to the Lord Jesus Christ. But the fact is that when we realize that Christ has paid it all, and that we only have to rest in Him, then we have found the true rest.

Now waters bespeak of the Word of God. You'll recall that in John 7 it says that when we belong to Christ, out of our belly will flow rivers of living water. The Word of God will flow from us. And we are led by Christ into this land of rest, which is described here in the Word of God. All of this is totally interrelated with each other.

"He restores my soul." Now before we are saved, in body and soul we are unsaved. Before we are saved, body and soul we are antagonistic toward God. But the first grand and wonderful thing that happens when we are saved is that we experience the resurrection of our souls. We are restored to Christ. We are no longer an alien. We are no longer against God. We read in Psalm 19:7: "The Law of the Lord is perfect, reviving the soul." It is the Word of God in which we can discover about this salvation. The Word of God is the Sword of the Spirit that leads us to a repentant attitude so that we experience salvation.

It goes on: "He leads me in paths of righteousness for His Name's sake." Remember, Jesus said, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life." This is the path, this is the way that we walk when we become born again, when we are a sheep, when we are under the care of the Shepherd, who is the Lord Jesus Christ. We have been led in the way of Christ. And it's the way of righteousness. We read in II Corinthians 5:21: "For our sake He made Him to be [that is, Christ] sin, who knew no sin, so that in Him we might become the righteousness of God." And so God imputes His righteousness to us, and He leads us on the way to God, which is a righteous way. And it's for His Name's sake. Not because it's going to be for our glory, but it's totally for the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ. Our salvation is to bring Him glory.

Then it goes on: "Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I fear no evil." No matter how death might threaten, you'll remember what Jesus said, "Don't fear him who can kill the body, but fear Him who can destroy both body and soul in hell." Even though we are threatened by physical harm, by persecution, we fear no evil because God is always in charge of us. Even at the moment that we would die, because of illness or whatever, we know that we are never abandoned by God, that we are only one breath away from being in His glorious presence.

And so we have the promise, "Thou art with me," Jesus said, "I will never leave you nor forsake you." He sends the Holy Spirit, God Himself, the Holy Spirit, to indwell us, from the moment that we are saved.

"Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me." The shepherd's rod was the symbol of his leadership. It was the rod that was able to keep the wild animals away. It was symbolical of his care over his flock.

"Thou preparest a table for me in the presence of my enemies." Now the table that is prepared for us is really Christ Himself. He is the Bread of Life. We eat that Bread in the presence of our enemies. We are in an alien world. Actually, all of the unsaved of the world are enemies of Christ and His followers, enemies of the citizens of God's Kingdom, which we enter into when we are saved. And yet we can very safely and securely feed on the Word of God, because we are protected by God. Even in an alien country like Russia, they don't have the Bible in their home. And yet they can feed on the Word of God, as they recall this verse or that verse from the Word of God.

"Thou anointest my head with oil. My cup overflows" — "Thou anointest my head with oil" refers to the fact that we have been ordained by God, from the moment that we have been saved, to be a king, a prophet, and a priest. A king was made king by having his head anointed, and we read in Ephesians 2:6 that we have been "raised with Christ and are seated with Him." We read in Revelation 5 where it speaks of the fact that we reign with Him on earth. We also have been anointed with oil in the sense that we are priests. We are a royal priesthood, as we read in I Peter 2:9. This is all because of fact that Christ has become our Shepherd.

"My cup overflows." This reminds me of Luke 6. Remember in Luke 6 where it speaks about giving in verse 38? Notice what God will do: "And it will be given to you, good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, will be put into your lap. For the measure you give will be the measure you get back." When we have surrendered our lives to Christ, when we have laid our lives down on the altar of service, as we read in Romans 12:1, then we can expect that God's blessings will flow, and our cup will overflow. He will give us more than we deserve, more than we could ever contemplate. In fact, our whole salvation is just a cup that overflows.

And then the psalm closes with this beautiful promise: "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever." This is a faithful statement of God that once we are saved, we will always be saved. "All the days of my life." Now how long is my life when I have been saved? Well, the Bible teaches that I have been given eternal life. And so the days of my life continue, on this side of the grave, until I die. And then they continue forever and ever and ever, in the presence of the Lord.

The fact is, the next phrase emphasizes this eternity: "And I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever." Do I dwell in the house of the Lord now? Yes, I do, if I'm born again. This does not mean that I live in a church building. This does not mean that my home is in some kind of a physical temple. The house of God, the house of the Lord, is God Himself, as we read in Psalm 90:1: "Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations." When we are saved, we are brought into Christ, as we read in Romans 8:1: "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus." When we are in Him, we are dwelling in Him, and we dwell in Him forever. We dwell in Him now that we are saved. We dwell in Him eternally. We read in Revelation 21 or 22 where it says that there is no temple in the New Heaven and the New Earth. The Lord Jesus Christ is our temple. And this is to be forever.

So in Psalm 23 we have a tremendous statement of the security, of the eternal character, of the rest that is found in the born again believer who has been encompassed within the love of the Lord Jesus Christ, who is our Shepherd.

On Our Being "Sons of God" in Psalms 82:6 (113A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question about Psalm 82:6. Quite frequently people say that we're all children of God, and that we're all saved as a result. And Psalm 82:6 kind of verifies that. But I can't find in the New Testament where it says that we're given the right to be called children of God, and that's often applied to when you are saved.

HC: When we read Psalm 82, where it says in verse 6, "I say you are gods, sons of the Most High, all of you," we cannot isolate that from the rest of the Bible. This is a statement that is true in a sense. Now let's examine the rest of the Bible and see why it's true.

We go back to Genesis 1, and we discover there that we are created in the image of God. We discover that we are a son of God in that sense. When you look at Luke 3, and you see the genealogy of Jesus, it goes right back to Adam, who was called a son of God. And so because we are created by God, in the image of God, we are called gods, or sons of the Most High.

But the Psalm goes on in the next verse, "Nevertheless you shall die like men and fall as one man, oh princes." That fact, that we have been created sons of God, has been severely strained. We actually have rebelled against God and have been estranged from Him, so that Jesus declared of the Pharisees, "Ye are of your father, the devil." You are sons of Satan, in other words. This is the condition that we finally come to, because we are unsaved.

Now when we are born again, we are reintegrated into the family of God. The curse of sin is taken out of our life, and we again are as Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. We have become sons of God. We read in Romans 8:14: "For all who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God."

So you see, while man, by virtue of the fact that he is created as part of the human race, in the original sense he was a son of God, he was created in the image of God, his relationship to God has been severely changed, so that effectively he has become a son of Satan. And he can only become a son of God in the true sense of the word by becoming born again, by being saved.

The "Cave" as a Figure of Hell in Psalms 142:1 (257A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. Several weeks ago I asked you something about a passage in I Samuel 22. And there we read, "David departed from there and escaped to the cave of Adullam. When his brothers and all his father's house heard it, they went down there to him. And everyone who was in distress, and everyone who was in debt, and everyone who was discontented gathered to him, and he became captain over them."

And then we agreed that this is a marvelous figure of mankind's sin situation. And David is a figure of Christ, who is the captain of salvation. But you also mentioned something interesting, if I'm quoting you correctly, that the word cave is often a figure of judgment, or a figure of hell.

And I saw something in Psalm 142 that I wanted to share with you today, to see if it applies. The heading is, "A maschal of David, when he was in the cave." It's a prayer. And in verses 3 and 4 we read, "In the path where I walk they have hidden a trap for me. I look to the right watch, but there is none who takes notice of me. No refuge remains to me. No man cares for me. I cry to Thee, oh Lord. I say, Thou art my refuge and my portion in the land of the living. Give heed to my cry, for I am brought very low."

And this seems to suggest the same type of condition. And I wondered if you could reply.

HC: Yes. Your question really is, Is there a relationship between Psalm 142, that talks about a song that David wrote when he was in the cave, and I Samuel 22, which gives us a description of him in the cave? And can we tie these two passages together and see in both of these Christ as Messiah?

Now in Psalm 142, this definitely is a Messianic psalm. It is the language of Christ, who is about to go to the cross. And the terrible wrath of God is such, because of the sin of mankind, that He is crying to God, "Oh God, make sure that I will come out after I have paid for the sins of mankind." This is a Messianic psalm that finds similar language in other psalms.

We read, for example, in Psalm 18:4: "The cords of death encompassed me, the torrents of perdition assailed me, the cords of Sheol entangled me, the snares of death confronted me. In my distress I called upon the Lord. To my God I cried for help."

This is already seen when Christ is in the Garden of Gethsemane. "Father, is it possible that this cup might pass from Me?" The terror of facing the wrath of God is so great. This is the language of Psalm 142. And so he says, "Give heed to my cry, for I am brought very low. Deliver me from my persecutors, for they are too strong for me. Bring me out of prison." Hell is prison, where he is going to spend the equivalent of an eternity on our behalf. But Christ is effectively saying, "I don't want to be consumed there. Once I have adequately paid for the sins of those who have died, be sure that I will be raised, that I will come into the land of the living."

And notice it continues: "The righteous will surround me, for thou wilt deal bountifully with me." And the righteous are the kingdom that Christ came to establish. They will surround Him. They will be His people eternally.

Now this ties right back, and very correctly, to I Samuel 22, where David went into this cave, the cave of Adullam. That cave is a figure of hell, as Psalm 142 very clearly proves. And those of us who believe on Him meet Him at the cross. That is, we meet Christ where we are, requiring salvation. We are subject to hell. We're under the wrath of God. It is here that He became sin for us. And therefore we can be free from hell.

And I don't know if I talked about this before with you. But that next phrase, "And there were with Him about 400 men". The number four in the Bible is very frequently a figure of universality. And it suggests in I Samuel 20, at any rate, that those who would meet Jesus in hell, that is, those who would become saved, because of Christ going to hell on our behalf, would come from every part of the world. It would be a universal salvation in that sense.

CALLER: Do you think you can put your finger on something else that talks about 400?

HC: What else relating to 400 speaks of universality? Well, we know, for example, that the number four is used in the sense of the four winds of the earth, the four corners of the earth. "Men will come from the north, the south, the east and the west, and sit down at the table with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob." These are a couple of illustrations. There may be more, that just don't come to mind right now.

CALLER: In Chapter 24 of I Samuel, this is when David spares Saul. And he's in a cave again. He's in a cave, and this is where Saul is trying to kill him, in this cave. Could that have the same implication?

HC: Does I Samuel 24, where David again is in a cave, and Saul is still trying to kill him, at which time David could have killed Saul, because he cut off the skirt of Saul's robe, have the same idea? I really think it does. You see, Saul is a figure of Satan. And Christ actually did destroy Satan by going to the cross, by enduring hell for our sins. Now he didn't destroy Saul at this point, because there was also the historical development that had to be carried out. But he had the capacity to destroy Saul. And only because Saul was the anointed king, he did not. But figuratively speaking, he did destroy Saul, because was in his power at that point. And Christ went to the cross to destroy Satan, as we read in Hebrews 2:14.

Incidentally, if I may add just one more quick thought, the interesting thing in I Samuel 24:2 is that Saul took 3000 chosen men and went to seek David. Now that's kind of interesting, that Saul took 3000 men, because the number three in the Bible is frequently related to God Himself.

You see, it was God's program that Christ should go to hell. It was God's program that Christ would do battle with Satan. It was God's program that it would be the hour of the power of darkness, and Satan himself would enter into Judas and betray Christ, and so on. And I think this is perhaps, perhaps, signified by the fact that Saul comes with 3000 men. In the spiritual sense here, he is coming in order to accomplish God's program in precise detail. Satan accomplished God's program in precise detail by bringing Christ to the cross. But in doing this Satan himself was destroyed, even as Saul was brought into the power of David, so that he could have destroyed Saul.

CALLER: Is it also significant in verse 3 that it says, "David and his men were sitting in the innermost parts of the cave," because Christ went down into the innermost parts of the earth?

HC: The Bible teaches, in Matthew 12:40, that Jesus was three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. And the heart of the earth is very definitely a similar statement to that which we find in I Samuel 24:3, where it says that David and his men were sitting in the innermost parts of the cave.

In other words, Christ endured the awfulness of the totality of hell on our behalf. It was not just a skirmish with hell. It was not just a superficial contact with hell. But He had to enter into the bowels of hell, in a sense, in order to save us, because that's how deep our sins are. That is where we are under the wrath of God. We are subject to the depths of hell for our sins.

CALLER: That makes wonderful sense. Thank you.

HC: Thank you. Good night.

"Ye are gods" in Ps 82:6 & Jn 10:34 (394D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. I'd like to ask you about two pieces of scripture. Psalm 82:6, and also, I think Jesus is referring to this Psalm in John 10:34. Would you give me an interpretation of what you feel those verses mean?

HC: Yes. Jesus in John 10:34 is talking to the Pharisees, and they are very incensed against Christ.

CALLER: They're ready to stone Him.

HC: They're ready to stone Him because He is indicating that He is God. And therefore in verse 33 the Jews answered Him, "For a good work we stone Thee not, but for blasphemy, because that Thou being a man maketh Thyself God." Then Jesus answered from the scriptures. And He's really putting them down. He's really indicating that they are hypocritical, that they are not reading their scriptures, that they're saying far more than what the Bible says. He's not defending in this context the fact that He is God. He is simply saying that in a real sense every human being is God, in a certain sense. And we know what that sense is. The sense is that we are created in the image of God. We are created like God. We have eternity within our souls. We can think God's thoughts after Him. We worship God. We are related to God in a very intimate fashion, through creation.

And so He's reminding them of this, "Is it not written in your law, I said, ye are gods? If He called them gods [that is, if God Himself calls human beings gods] unto whom the Word of God came, and the scripture cannot be broken, say ye of Him whom the Father has sanctified and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest because I said I am the Son of God?"

In other words, He's putting them down on their own level. He's not at this point emphasizing that He is Eternal God. He is simply indicating that to call Himself a Son of God is not contrary to the scriptures. Now Psalm 82 is the verse that He referred to, where it says, "I have said, ye are gods. Then all of you are children of the Most High."

Now you see, when we become saved, what are we called in Romans 8? We're called sons of God, aren't we?

CALLER: Right. So then in Psalm 82 the Psalmist is, or God is speaking through the Psalmist, actually, in that verse. Is that correct?

HC: Yes. God is speaking through the Psalmist, and is speaking to mankind: "Ye are gods and all of you are children of the Most High. But ye shall die like men and fall like one of the princes." The reason you shall die like men is that you're under the judgment of God, and you're going to hell. But by creation, by virtue of creation, you are created in the image of God and you are in that sense related to God and are like God.

CALLER: Okay.

HC: And we want to really understand that God is not saying that we stand like God stands. We are not God, singular. God is God. He is from everlasting to everlasting. He is infinite in all of his attributes, and marvelous, and holy and all of this. And we never can hold a candle to that.

But nevertheless, in a real sense the Bible speaks of us as being gods. And that is particularly dramatized after we're saved, when the Bible says that we are sons of God.

CALLER: I see. Now somewhere else (I don't remember where) Paul says that one day we will be rulers with God. Do you think this has any connection in that area?

HC: I think it really does. In I Corinthians 6 it says that we will judge men. In Revelation 2 it says that those who conquer will rule the nations with a rod of iron; very similar language to that which is spoken of by Christ. And in Ephesians 2:6 it is stated that we've been raised with Christ, and we are seated with Him in heavenly places. The Bible really becomes almost impossible to believe, as we see the intimate relationship God allows to be spoken of in the relationship that exists between mankind who are saved and God Himself.

CALLER: Okay. That answers a lot for me. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

ISAIAH

The Gospel in Isaiah 6 (1143C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I'd like to ask you a question about Isaiah 61. I get kind of mixed up around verse 6 and verse 7, who all this is referring to. I get lost. So maybe you could clear that up.

HC: First of all, we know from Isaiah 61:1 that it is talking about the coming of the Messiah. "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon Me because the Lord has anointed Me to bring good tidings to the afflicted. He has sent Me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to those who are bound."

Now this is quoted in Luke's Gospel, when Jesus read from Isaiah. He said, "This day has this prophecy been fulfilled." You can read this in Luke 4. And so Christ came to do these things, to free the captives, those who are in spiritual bondage to Satan, to bind up the broken-hearted, "Blessed are those who mourn," "Blessed are the meek," and so on. "A broken and a contrite heart I will not despise." We come to the Lord Jesus Christ, and because He went to the cross, we can have joy and salvation.

Now in verse 4 it goes on: "They shall build up the ancient ruins. They shall raise up the former devastations. They will repair the ruined cities." Now this is a statement that is pointing to the offering of the Gospel to the world, in order that God's temple and God's city might be built. The city of God in the New Testament is made up of all the born again believers. You'll recall that in Ephesians 2 it says that we are building blocks in this temple. Or in 1 Peter 2:4 it says that we are lively stones in the house of God. We are the Holy City, if you will, in Revelation 21.

And that city, that temple, will be built when the Messiah would come. He came to build the temple of God, to build the city of God, which is really another name for the body of Christ.

Then it goes on in verse 5, and it indicates to us that those who will be exercised and blessed by the coming of the Messiah are more than just the Jews, more than just the blood descendants of Abraham. "Aliens shall stand and feed your flocks. Foreigners shall be your plowmen and vinedressers." There will be others that will come into the body of Christ than just Jews.

"You shall be called the priest, of the Lord. Men shall speak to you as the ministers of our God. You shall eat the wealth of the nations, and in their riches you shall glory." Now this is talking about the body of Christ, that we are priests of God. Remember what 1 Peter 2:9 says: "Ye are a holy priesthood."

CALLER: Here he seems to be speaking about two Israels here, and that eventually the Gentiles would come into the sphere of Israel, and that the Gentiles also would become the people of God.

HC: Yes.

CALLER: But he says "Ye", which seems to be referring to the Israelites, or a certain group of the Israelites, when he says, "Ye shall be named the priests of the Lord." Have I got that wrong?

HC: Verse 5 is really an insertion, indicating that at this point in time God is speaking to Israel, during the days of Isaiah, that is. And He is prophesying what the future is going to be. And we read in Isaiah 6 that Israel as a nation was cursed, that Israel as a nation would never come to Christ as Messiah, never, until Judgment Day itself.

Nevertheless there is going to be blessing flowing out of Israel, and that blessing is focused, or the head of that blessing is the Lord Jesus Christ who comes out of Israel. But that blessing is going to incorporate more than just believers from Israel. It will include the Gentile world. That's verse 5.

But now He's going on, speaking to Israel about the fact that there is blessing that is going to come out of them. That is, there will be Jewish people that are included in this wonderful blessing that's going to come. Yes, there are aliens, too. There are foreigners. There are Gentiles. But specifically, He is indicating to national Israel that there is still to be blessing that's going to flow out of them, for their own people.

And we know from other Scriptures that it will be a remnant chosen by grace. They themselves, personally, can be priests of God. And they themselves, personally, will be ministers of God and will eat the wealth of the nations. I think eating the wealth of the nations has to do with the fact that the born again believers are the inheritors of the New Heaven and the New Earth. All that the nations own eventually will be owned by the born again believers, in the New Heaven and the New Earth.

CALLER: How about verse 7?

HC: Now we come to verse 7: "Instead of your shame you shall have a double portion." Now Israel is under the curse of God. God has nothing good to say about them, hardly anything good to say about them as a nation. They have repeatedly sinned against God. They're under the curse of God.

But out of Israel there is going to come blessing. Now they are ashamed. Now they are under this terrible curse of God. But through the Lord Jesus Christ the blessing will begin to flow. And anyone out of Israel who joins with the Lord Jesus Christ will no longer be ashamed. He shall have a double portion.

Now the double portion was the portion of the firstborn. He is the one who would receive the inheritance. And we become sons of God, co-heirs of Christ. Christ is the heir because He is the only-begotten Son of God, but we stand in the Kingdom of God as firstborn.

CALLER: I was thinking that it was saying, for your shame you shall have double shame, which destroys the whole meaning.

HC: Yes, "instead of" is, I think, a better way of looking at that. Instead of dishonor you shall rejoice in your lot. And therefore, in your land, or in their land, you shall possess a double portion. Which land is that? It's the land that we enter when we come to Christ. It's Heaven. That's the land that we become citizens of when we become saved. And that eventually will be the New Heaven and the New Earth.

The Gospel in Isaiah 54 (370B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question on Isaiah 54:9. Is this a figure of eternal salvation?

HC: Isaiah 54:9. Let's back up a little bit and pick up the context. In verse 7: "For a small moment have I forsaken thee." Obviously God is talking about Israel. "But with great mercies will I gather thee. In a little wrath I hid My face from thee for a moment. But with everlasting kindness will I have mercy on thee, sayeth the Lord, thy Redeemer." He's speaking here of course, about the fact that salvation will come to Israel through the Lord Jesus Christ. "For this is as the waters of Noah unto Me. For as I have sworn that the waters of Noah should no more go over the earth, so have I sworn that I would not be wroth with thee, nor rebuke thee. For the mountains shall depart and the hills be removed, but My kindness shall not depart from thee. Neither shall the covenant of My peace be removed, sayeth the Lord that hath mercy on thee."

You see, God is indicating that in spite of the fact that His wrath is on Israel because of their repeated rejection of God, so that God places a curse upon them, that as a nation they will never respond to the Gospel, yet there is a covenant promise. And notice that He talks about the covenant here in verse 10, "this covenant of My peace." There is a covenant promise that He has made with Israel through Abraham, that in Abraham's seed all the nations would be blessed, that the seed of Abraham would be as the stars of the heaven in number, that they would be a multitude of nations, and that they would be given the land as an everlasting heritage.

Now these blessings had not come. But God is absolutely faithful to these blessings. These covenant promises had to do with salvation, had to do with the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, whereby the seed of Abraham would be expanded to include all believers in Him, whereby the believers would inherit the New Heaven and the New Earth, the final product of their salvation, and thereby receiving the fulfillment of the promise that the seed would inherit the land as an everlasting possession.

This promise is inviolate. It will not be set aside regardless of how wicked national Israel became, or would remain. And so therefore, even though national Israel, right up to the very present day, continues to reject Christ as Messiah, nevertheless Christ did come. He did provide salvation to a remnant chosen by grace; not only in Jesus' day but throughout the New Testament history there has been a trickle of believers from every nation coming into the body of Christ.

Now He relates this to the promise that He gave to Noah, because that also was an inviolate promise. God destroyed the earth with the flood, and after the flood God made a promise. He made a commitment to Noah that never again would He destroy this earth with a flood. He never would bring a flood against this earth that would utterly destroy everything. And even as He had kept that promise to that day, so it was His intention that He would keep the promise made to Abraham concerning salvation, that it would be accomplished.

CALLER: What does Genesis 8:21 mean, when He says, "I will not again curse the ground for man's sake"? We know that the earth is cursed, according to the Bible.

HC: The earth is cursed, but God gave a result of that curse against the earth when He destroyed it with the flood. You notice, in Chapter 9, verse 13, He says, "I do set My bow in the cloud. And it shall be for a token of a covenant between Me and the earth. And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud, and I will remember My covenant which is between Me and you and every living creature of all flesh. And the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh. And the bow shall be in the cloud, and I will look upon it that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth."

Now in II Peter 3 we read that when God destroys this earth again it will be by fire, will it not? He will destroy this earth by fire. But He will not bring His curse upon the earth in the sense that He will ever destroy it again by the flood. This was a tremendous curse upon the earth, when He utterly devastated this earth by the flood of Noah's day, so that the whole surface of the earth was changed.

CALLER: Thank you. Good night.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Understanding Isaiah 30:15

(411B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I have a few questions. One of them is, how rich does the Bible consider rich?

HC: How rich does the Bible consider rich? First of all, the Bible does not consider physical riches as being rich, necessarily. A man can be physically rich, and if he has not salvation, he is of all men most miserable. He is doomed to hell, and is to be pitied.

To be really rich is to be born again, to be a child of God, because then we are heirs of all the promises that are given in the Bible. We are heirs of the New Heaven and the New Earth. We become sons of God. We will reign in this

New Heaven and New Earth eternally as kings. There is no one richer than a born again believer.

Now we can't see these riches with our naked eye today. Now we live on this earth in sackcloth, as it were, to use the figure shown in Revelation 11. We live humbly. We live patiently, bringing the Gospel. We are the physically poor of the world to a very high degree, frequently. But we are the heirs. We are the sons of the King. And once we've spent a few years here on this earth, we go home to our homeland which is Heaven. And from then on everything gets better and better. We are the rich of the world, really.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you. And I have another question. In Isaiah 30:15 it says, "For thus sayeth the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel. In returning and rest shall ye be saved. In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength. And ye will not." Does that mean you won't be able to be in quietness and confidence, or what?

HC: The question is raised concerning Isaiah 30:15, where God is using this language. First of all, let's get the context. The context of Isaiah 30 is that God is warning Israel that they are subject to judgment and hell, that God is going to destroy them because of their wickedness, their apostasy. And in verse 14 He uses the language of Judgment Day of the last day: "He shall break it as the breaking of the potter's vessel that is broken in pieces. He shall not spare, so that there shall not be found in the bursting of it a shard to take fire from the hearth or to take water withal out of the pit." God is speaking here of final judgment.

Now in verse 15 He is saying that it doesn't have to be this way. He says, "For thus sayeth the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel. In returning and rest shall ye be saved." You could be saved if you would rest in the Lord, if you would rest in Christ as your Messiah, if you would quit trying to get into Heaven on your strength, on your good works, on your deeds that you think ought to be looked upon as worthy by God, if you would quit trying to satisfy your own personal pride and take credit for what you are doing, if you would only recognize the dismal truth about yourself, that you're sinners and you're under the wrath of God. And the answer to it is to admit this and rest in the salvation that God is going to provide. Rest quietly, and confidently in this.

"But ye would not. But ye said, No. For we will flee upon horses. Therefore shall ye flee. And we will ride upon the swift. Therefore shall they that pursue you be swift. One thousand shall flee at the rebuke of one. At the rebuke of five shall ye flee." In other words, they're saying, "We will put our confidence in the things that we own, in our horses, in our physical strength, in Egypt," in whatever they could find their strength in. And God says, "You're going to be destroyed. You're going to be so weak that one could destroy a thousand of you."

And this of course is speaking very pertinently to us today. There are all kinds of people who are placing their confidence in their good works, in their worthy lives, in their righteous deeds, in their desires to please God along this line. They really believe that God will look with favor upon them because look how hard they're trying to please God. And God will say, "No. No."

Or they've placed their trust in their money, or in the lands they own, or in their physical strength, or the guns they have in the house, or whatever else it may be, or in their nation, whatever it may be. And God says, "No. None of those things have any strength whatsoever, because you're still under the wrath of God. You're still subject to Judgment Day and hell unless you have placed your confidence only in the Lord

Jesus Christ. You realize that you're a sinner and that you're spiritually bankrupt, and you're in deep and terrible trouble with God. And therefore you cry out to God for mercy. You rest in Christ. You trust only in His Word as being sufficient to save you.

CALLER: Okay. I've heard you talk a few times about healers, you know, those who heal people. And a friend of mine was listening to one of these preachers. And he said that people there actually went in wheel chairs and walked out, and things like that. And I was wondering why you say that there's no healing going on today.

HC: The question is raised, in view of the fact that you can go to healing meetings today, and see people who come in wheel chairs walk out as if they are healed, doesn't this make a lie of the idea that God is not miraculously healing today?

Well, we first of all cannot trust an experience that we see. We do not build doctrine or truth by experience. That's a pragmatic way of doing it, and this is the way, for example, the scientific community does it. They run experiments, and based on the experiments they form a postulate or an axiom. They arrive at some kind of a law. When you drop an apple and it falls, and then you drop a silver dollar and it falls, and then you drop a feather and it falls, pretty soon you begin to sense that there's a law. And finally they call it the law of gravity. It's based on experiment, that there is a law of gravity, and so on.

But when we get to spiritual truth, we do not find out what the rules are by experience, because experience can be very deceiving. We have to find out what the rules are by the Bible. The Bible is the only trustworthy guide.

One of the laws, for example, that is being promulgated today by those who believe in miraculous healing is that Christ went to the cross to give us whole bodies, to heal our physical diseases. And they can quote a couple of passages in the Bible, a couple verses of the Bible, that appear to indicate this. But when we read the whole Bible, and compare all the scriptures, we find that that absolutely is not so. The Bible indicates that even though we're saved, even though in our spirit we go to be with Christ at death, our bodies will go into the grave. Our bodies will waste away. This is God's program, for saved people as well as unsaved people.

So therefore under no circumstance is Christ indicating, or the Bible indicating that Christ went to the cross to give us physical healing. Secondly, the Bible indicates that we're to walk by faith, not by sight. The Bible indicates that an evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a miracle, or seeketh for a sign and so on and so on.

Well then, once we understand the Biblical statement, then we wonder, "Well then, what's happening out there?" Well, if I go to see a magician, for example, I don't know how he pulled a rabbit out of a hat. I don't know how he did all the things that he did. I saw it with my eyes, certainly. I saw lots of things. But I know they were impossible things. I know that somehow he didn't really do that.

But my mind is very easily deceived, My mind is very tricky. I went to see this magician knowing that he would deceive me this way, and knowing that my own mind would deceive me. This is the basis of many of the circus side shows, ant so on. Our mind is very tricky. We see what we want to see very frequently.

And so if people go to a place where there is reputed to be miraculous healing, then they're going to see miraculous healing. Their minds are conditioned to see this. Now true, there is some healing that is taking place. A tremendous amount of illness, and it's real illness, is psychosomatic in nature. Ulcers, hardening of the arteries, arthritis, migraine headaches, skin disorders, paralysis, are just a few of the diseases that frequently owe their basis to body tension, to anxiety that's within a person. And if that person will put his trust in anything at all, then the tension is removed, whether that trust is in the evangelist, in the healer, or in the Bible, or in whatever it is. If there is a real positive trust there, then the symptoms will also go away. There will apparently be healing. And it will be real healing. But it's not the miraculous healing that we read about in the Bible at all. It's simply that the tension has been removed.

Secondly, there is a certain amount of chicanery. I don't know how much, and I wouldn't even care to know how much or how little. But I know there is some, where there is just outright deception, in an effort to convince people that there is this kind of healing.

The important thing, however, is that if you go to a healing service, and you look at those on hospital beds, who are very obviously in need of a healing, or could stand a healing very nicely, as you look at their twisted limbs or their emaciated bodies, ridden by disease, whatever it may be, these kind always go out the way they came in, where there is very obvious disease. And these are the kind that Jesus healed, and the apostles healed. When James and John stood outside the temple gate, and the man was there with the withered limbs, who had never walked in his whole life, you can imagine what pencil thin legs, twisted little bone structure he had from his waist down. And yet instantaneously he stood up and jumped and ran, and so on. Now that kind of healing is not going on today.

CALLER: Okay. I heard about this girl in Oakland who bleeds every Easter, from her hands and her feet, where Jesus was nailed to the cross. And the doctors haven't found any explanation for it. I was wondering, is this another sign that Jesus is coming soon?

HC: It's not a sign from God, if indeed this is happening, and I don't believe everything I read, or that people tell me, because there's tremendous exaggeration today. I just don't believe everything that I read about. But assuming that it were true, it certainly is not a miracle done by God. God does not come with those kinds of signs and wonders today. God comes with the Word of God. It is the place where we're going to find divine truth. If you want some kind of an indication that we're near the end of time, read the Bible. It is the trustworthy account.

CALLER: Okay. And I've just got one more quick question. Who wrote the Book of John?

HC: The Gospel of John was written by the apostle John.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you.

HC: Thank you so much for calling. Good night.

Does God Create Evil as in Isaiah 45:7? (420B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: The question I would like to ask you is in Isaiah 45. It says, "I form light and create darkness. I make peace and create evil." And I've had a problem understanding this. I know God is in control of everything. But I think that all good things come from God. It's hard to understand that He creates evil. Can you explain this to me.

HC: Yes. The question is raised concerning Isaiah 45:7, where we read, "I form the light and create darkness. I make peace and create evil. I the Lord do all these things." What does it mean here that God creates evil? Isn't God a good and holy God? How could He create evil?

The problem is that in the Bible the word evil is used in two ways. Sometimes the word is used in connection with that which is sinful. Evil men are wicked men. And God of course did not create men wicked. God does not create sin in any sense.

But evil is also used in the sense of God's judgment. For example, when Israel sinned God brought evil men against Israel as a judgment. God brought terrible things against Israel as a judgment. These were evil things for Israel. This is the kind of evil that God is speaking of.

When Babylon, which was a sinful nation, came against Judah to destroy it, this was a great evil for Judah. But it was a judgment of God against Israel. Now God was not guilty of creating sin in the lives of the Babylonians, but He was using these sinful men to achieve His purposes. And so it became an evil against Judah.

CALLER: Oh, I see.

Isaiah 1:10-17 Explained (426C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum

CALLER: Good evening. Would you speak on Isaiah 1:10-17, please. And I'll listen on the air.

HC: Yes. Isaiah 1:10-17. All right. Let's take a look at that and see what that says. Here we have a statement where God is faulting Israel because they are not being obedient to God. Oh yes, they are obedient in their outward actions, but their heart is far from God. They are actually going through the motions, but in their hearts they are not surrendered to God at all. The fact is, they have become so adulterous that God calls them Sodom. Now Sodom of course was a very wicked city that was destroyed by God because of its extreme wickedness. But this is the way He puts it. Now bear in mind that He's addressing Israel, the apple of God's eye, God's own chosen people. And He's saying to them in verse 10, "Hear the Word of the Lord, ye rulers of Sodom. Give ear unto the law of our God, ye people of Gomorrah. To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto Me? saith the Lord. I am full of the burnt offerings of rams and the fat of fed beasts, and I delight not in the blood of bullocks or of lambs or of he-goats."

Now the sacrifice of these animals was called for by God. But they were only paying lip service to God. They were going through the action, but their heart was far from God.

So He goes on in verse 13, "Bring no more vain oblations. Incense is an abomination unto Me. The new moons and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies I cannot away with. It is iniquity, even the solemn meeting. Your new moons and your appointed feasts My soul hateth. They are a trouble unto Me. I am weary to bear them. And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide Mine eyes from you. Yea, when you make many prayers I will not hear you. Your hands are full of blood."

And now the next two verses tells us what the problem is: "Wash you, make you clean. Put away the evil of your doing from before Mine eyes. Cease to do evil. Learn to do well. Seek judgment. Relieve the oppressed. Judge the fatherless. Plead for the widow. Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord. Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow. Though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

Now God is indicating here that the only way they can come into His presence and have their offerings accepted is if they are coming as born again individuals, if it is true that they have been washed of their sins. And they can only be washed of their sins in the coming Messiah.

These Jews were coming to God in their good works. They were coming believing that in what they were offering that action was making them worthy before God.

Now this is very pertinent for today. We have all kinds of people in the church, and don't you point the finger at anyone else, just look into your own heart, and make sure that in your own heart this will not be true. And if it is true, then do something about it. But there are all kinds of people today who believe that because they are good Christians, because they faithfully go twice to church, and even teach Sunday School, because they pray, because they're nice to their friends, and so on, that therefore they are living worthy lives, and therefore God ought to save them. They surely must be saved.

Now that is the path toward hell, that is the path toward hell. Under no circumstance are we saved because we are living good lives. Under no circumstance are we saved because we are worthy before God. The path to salvation is to look at ourselves honestly as God looks upon us, that we're sinners, that we're under the wrath of God, that we're destined for hell because of our sins. And we come to God with nothing in our hands. Like the publican of old, we cry out, "Oh God, have mercy on me. I'm a Sinner. I'm a sinner. There's nothing good in me, when I get really honest with myself, when I look upon myself as Thou dost look upon me through my Word." Then we discover that we're not worthy of salvation in any way. And it's only by God's grace that we're saved, only because of the love that if we will abandon ourselves to Him and throw ourselves on His mercy that we can know that we are saved.

This is what God asks of us, and this is what is so lacking in many of our lives. In many of our lives we have never known what it means to really repent and really admit our sinfulness. We have never humbled ourselves to the point where we admit that in God's sight we're a hopelessly lost sinner, that there is nothing good within us. Our self-respect, our pride, will not permit this. But unless this happens in our life, unless we see the sad fact in our life that we are sinners, then there is no salvation.

The church today in many ways is very much like Israel of Isaiah 1. The church today, the congregations and denominations... I belong to a congregation and I belong to a denomination, and therefore I'm not speaking against the church per se. I'm only saying what the Bible says, that the organized view of the body of Christ, the organized fashion of the body of Christ, as we see it in the congregation, to a very high degree today is paying lip service to the Gospel. We're proud. We think that while we talk about the grace of God and the infallibility of the Word of God, the fact is, where the rubber meets the road, that is where it comes to a specific verse or a specific doctrine or a specific practice, very frequently it's our own idea rather than the Bible's ideas. We're not actually living with the Bible as our final authority. And that is very very serious business. The Bible and it alone must be the authority. It must come out in our lives, it must come out in our congregational practices and doctrines. And if this is not so, then we are walking in the shoes of ancient Israel that came under the curse of God.

Well, thank you for that question.

JOEL

Dreams and Visions – Joel 2:28 Explained (114D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello What I'd like for you to do is explain Joel 2:28 for me, where it says, "Your old men shall dream dreams and your young men shall see visions." The way I feel right now, I've only been a Christian for a few short months. But before I gave my heart to God, I would have these dreams. And I would look them up in the dream book. And they would seem so encouraging. The explanations would be something like, "Great financial success," or "Good things will happen," or things like this. And I've found that my life has been restored. God has restored my life from what I was supposed to be, and from what I did on my own, and where I am right now.

But I feel that the more that we can attune our mental faculties to God, the more He can reveal Himself through our mental faculties. Am I on the right track?

HC: I don't think so. You see, in Joel 2, when God said in verse 28, "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh. Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy. Your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions," we have to look at that in the context of the whole Bible.

Now in the Old Testament, before the Holy Spirit was poured out at Pentecost, God saved people just like He saves people today. But He did not mandate them, nor qualify them ordinarily to be a witness. It was only occasionally that a prophet would arise. And that prophet would declare the Word of God. Now that prophet would receive his information from two sources. One was from the Bible that he had complete to that point in time, which of course was an incomplete Bible. And occasionally God would also bring additional information which was the Word of God in the form of a dream, or a personal visitation, or a vision, or whatever. And in this way God added to His Word.

Now it was God's program that when the Holy Spirit was poured out at Pentecost, right after Christ went to the cross, that every born again believer would be a prophet, would be a witness, would be qualified to declare God's Word by being filled with the Holy Spirit.

And so to emphasize this, God uses the language of this more glamorous way that the Old Testament prophets received truth. He speaks about the fact that "your old men will dream dreams, and your young men will see visions." In other words, they will be bona fide prophets. Everyone who is a born again believer will be a prophet. Now that was fine for that day, in the Book of Acts, because the Bible was not yet complete. It was still possible in that day for someone who was a born again believer to receive a dream or a vision. The fact is, we know that Peter received a vision. We know that the apostle John received a series of visions on the Isle of Patmos. All of this was possible because the Bible was not yet complete.

But then God finished His Word. And He declared in Revelation 22:18: "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." In other words while up until this time you have the written Word, but you also have the possibility of hearing from Me from other sources, that possibility no longer exists. From now on the only way I am speaking is through the Word of God. And if you think that you have something else from Me, which would be equivalent to adding to the Bible, it simply indicates that you are still under damnation. You are still subject to hell. You don't understand that the Bible alone is the divine Word of God.

And so ever since the Bible was completed, there have been those who have had dreams, who have had visions, who have seen apparitions of one kind or another. And many of them seem to be so very holy. But you can depend upon it, none of this activity was from God.

And so today, if someone says, "I've had a dream that came true," that dream was not from God. It may have been out of their own mind. It could have been coincidental that it came true. Or it could be that they're being preyed on by Satan.

And you can see why this is. If I received a dream that I was convinced was from God, and suppose that dream appeared to relate quite strongly to the Bible, and yet it might deviate very slightly but in an area which I could hardly detect. Perhaps in this dream I dreamed that there was going to be a great famine next year, or that there was going to be a war, or whatever. Now you can depend upon it, that every time I read the Bible, if I accepted that dream as being the voice of God to me, every time I read anything in the Bible concerning the future of this world, I'm going to read it in the light of my dream. I'm going to use that dream as the telescope through which I have to look at the information in the Bible. In other words, that information from that dream will cause me to modify what the Bible actually teaches. Because when I read the Bible and try to understand it, I am to look only at the Scripture. It alone is the interpreter, not something out here that I thought was the Word of God.

And so by accepting that dream as the Word of God, it is going to close the Bible to me. The Bible no longer will be a book that I can understand. And the more I listen to this other information which I believe was divine, the farther away I'll get from finding the true understanding of the Bible.

And I think this is the reason that many folks could never come to agreement with me about certain passages in the Bible, because I choose to understand the Bible by letting the Bible alone be the interpreter. But if someone else is going to understand those same verses, and they are looking upon the Bible as the Word of God, and they're also looking upon certain visions or dreams or revelations they've received as the divine Word of God, and they are going to interpret the Bible with that information additionally, they can't possibly come to the same conclusion I would come to.

Thank you so much for calling. Good night.

The Pouring Out of the Holy Spirit in Joel 2:28-31 Explained (259C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question for you. I would like to have you explain Joel 2:28 through 31. I would like to know what period in time he is speaking of. It sounds to me as though he was talking to men of that day, but then I read down in Joel 2, and it sounds as if all of this is to be followed by Judgment Day. So I'm just a little bit confused about whether the time is yet to come for all of these things he's talking about, or whether they have already come.

HC: All right. I'll be happy to speak on that. We have before us a question concerning the meaning and understanding of Joel 2:28-32. Now this is an excellent passage to give us a lesson in how to understand the Old Testament Scriptures. We have here a passage in which God declares, through the prophet Joel:

And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh. Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions. Even upon the menservants and the maidservants in those days, I will pour out My Spirit. And I will give portents in the heavens and on the earth, blood and fire and columns of smoke. The sun shall be turned to darkness and the moon to blood, before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes. And it shall come to pass that all who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be delivered, for in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those who escape, as the Lord has said. And among the survivors shall be those whom the Lord calls.

Now in trying to understand a passage, one of the principles that we must follow is to search the Bible to see if there is anything else that relates to it. Now in this particular instance, we have very excellent information at our fingertips, because we find this very same passage is quoted, not absolutely precisely, but very close to precisely, in Acts 2, where at the time that the Holy Spirit was poured out, on that Pentecost Day back in AD 33, the apostles are beginning to speak in foreign languages, and there are these other signs the tongues of fire on their heads, and the sound of the rushing wind. And now Peter stands up and says that "This is what was spoken by the prophet Joel."

And then, beginning in verse 17 of Acts 2, down through verse 21, he quotes these very same verses, not completely exactly, but very close to exactly. For example, in the first phrase, in Joel 2:28 it says, "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh." Well, when Peter quotes it, he, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, adds a little bit more truth. And he says, "And in the last days it shall be, God declares, that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh." And then he goes on and continues the quotation.

And so we know immediately that Joel 2, beginning with verse 28 to verse 32, is that which was prophesied concerning the pouring out of the Holy Spirit, or the beginning of God's program to evangelize the world. Now as one of the aspects of evangelizing the world, it was God's purpose that every believer would become a prophet, that is, would be qualified by God to become a witness.

Before Pentecost in AD 33, only occasionally a believer was so qualified. Only occasionally was there a prophet raised up who was under the activity of the Holy Spirit and would be qualified to be a spokesman for God. But it was God's intention that, beginning with Pentecost, immediately after Christ ascended to Heaven, after paying for our sins at the cross, God would begin to evangelize the world, and He would do this by putting His Spirit on all believers, qualifying them to be a witness.

Now the difficult language is verse 30 of Joel 2: "And I will give portents in the heavens and on the earth, blood and fire and columns of smoke." And then the next verse: "The sun shall be turned to darkness, and the moon to blood before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes." And that is also quoted in Acts 2, because in verse 19 of Acts 2 we read, "And I will show wonders in the heavens above and signs on the earth beneath, blood and fire and vapor of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood before the day of the Lord comes, the great and manifest day."

Now is this talking about something different, or is this also to be understood as part of the event that is being described here in Acts 2, the pouring out of the Holy Spirit? Now it's certainly part of the same quotation. And God has declared: "This is what was spoken by the prophet Joel." And he's referring to it in the present tense, that this is what has occurred.

Moreover, in verse 21 of Acts 2, it says, "And it shall be that whoever calls on the Name of the Lord shall be saved," which is taken over from Joel 2:32: "And it shall come to pass that all who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be delivered. For in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those who escape, as the Lord has said. And among the survivors shall be those whom the Lord calls." Now from Acts 2:21 we know that this is talking about the fact that the Gospel would go into all the world. And anyone from any nation, who believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, would be saved. And this is the second part of God's program to evangelize the world. The first part was that every believer would be qualified to be a witness. That's spoken of in Acts 2:17.

The second part is that God the Holy Spirit would bring believers forth from every nation. And that is Acts 2:21. And since Acts 2:21 is covering most of the information of Joel 2:32, and since Joel 2:30 and 31 is all part of the same context that is being quoted in Acts 2, as being fulfilled at the day of Pentecost back in AD 33, we know that we must read verses 30 and 31 and 32 of Joel 2 as being related to that which happened in AD 33.

Now let's see if we can do a little bit better work with this. First of all, let's look at verse 31. That's the easiest one to look at. "The sun shall be turned to darkness and the moon to blood before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes." Now there are two days spoken of in the Bible that relate to the sun being turned into darkness. One of these days is the Judgment Day of the last day, at the very end of time. We find, for example, in Revelation 6, where God declares in verse 12: "When he opened the sixth seal, I looked and behold, there was a great earthquake. And the sun became black as sackcloth."

And we read in Matthew 24:29, in speaking about the end of time, when Christ would return in judgment: "Immediately after the tribulation of those days, the sun will be darkened." And so we know that this is one possibility. But Judgment Day is at the end of time. So that does not relate directly to the prophecy of Joel 2, because Acts 2 indicates that it was fulfilled back in AD 33.

Well, we also discover that when Christ hung on the cross, the sun did not give its light. Remember? Over the whole world the sun's light was hid for three hours. And so the sun was turned to darkness at that time.

Now at the same time, if the sun is turned to darkness, the moon would not give its light, or it would be turned to blood. That has really a double meaning, the moon being turned to blood, because the moon, well, let me give the physical meaning first. And then we'll look at the spiritual meaning perhaps as an afterthought.

But if the sun does not shine, then the moon does not shine, because the moon gets its light as reflected light from the sun. And so we see the same thing in Revelation 6:12, where it says, "The full moon became like blood," at the time that the sun became black as sackcloth. That's at the end of time.

But when Jesus hung on the cross, the sun did not shine. And therefore the moon would not have given its light. Now was the cross a "great and terrible day"? Well, yes. It was Judgment Day, wasn't it? What kind of Judgment day? Well, you see, those who are not saved, who do not have Christ as their Savior, must answer to God on the last day for all of their sins. And they will be condemned by God, and they will be cast into hell, to begin to suffer the penalty of God for their sins. That's Judgment Day, at which time the sun will be turned to darkness and the moon to blood.

But there is also Judgment Day at the cross, because Jesus had become sin for us. He was standing before God as a guilty sinner on our behalf, and He was condemned, exactly as the unsaved will be condemned on the last day. He was condemned for our sins, and God began to pour out His wrath on Him, and Christ did endure the equivalent of an eternity in hell for our sins. This all took place when Christ hung on the cross. That was Judgment Day. That was the "great and terrible day of the Lord" just as much as the last day is a great and terrible day of the Lord.

And so verse 31 fits into the context. You see, it's speaking here about an event that would occur when Christ would go to the cross, and the Holy Spirit would be poured out. And here it says that in connection with this, "the sun shall be turned to darkness, and the moon to blood before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes," that is, at the time that Christ went to the cross to endure the wrath of God for our sins. This was the great and terrible day of the Lord spoken of in Joel 2:31.

Now let's go back to verse 30 and see if we can figure that one out. "And I will give portents in the heavens and on the earth, blood and fire and columns of smoke." Now this is language that is actually taken from the Old Testament. Back in II Samuel we find a song of praise penned by David, who is a great type of Christ, incidentally, in II Samuel 22. And he wrote this psalm or this song of praise, which is also found in Psalm 18, incidentally, at the time that he was delivered from the hand of all of his enemies and from the hand of Saul.

Now David is a great Messianic type. He is a type of Christ Himself. And even as David was literally delivered from the hand of his literal enemies, so Christ went to the cross, and there He obtained victory over all of the enemies that sought to destroy Him, namely, Satan and all of his hosts.

And so we read this song of praise, and we find that it is the language of Christ hanging on the cross, enduring hell. II Samuel 22:5: "For the waves of death encompassed me. The torrents of perdition assailed me. The cords of Sheol entangled me. The snares of death confronted me." That is the language of Christ enduring hell for our sins.

Then notice this song going on. Notice verse 8 of II Samuel 22: "Then the earth reeled and rocked. The foundations of the heavens trembled and quaked, because He was angry. Smoke went up from His nostrils and devouring fire from His mouth. Glowing coals flamed forth from Him. He bowed the heavens and came down. Thick darkness was under His feet." And so on and so on.

Now this is poetic language describing the majestic nature of God, as He poured out His wrath on Christ on the one hand, and on the other hand as He brought victory over Satan and all the enemies of God. And notice how similar this language is to Joel 2:30 or Acts 2:19, "And I will show wonders in the heaven above and signs on the earth, blood and fire and vapor of smoke." Now to some degree this was literal. The sun was darkened, the moon did not give its light. There was a great earthquake. These literal signs were there. But it is actually going beyond this, and giving us a psalm of praise, a song of praise, illustrating the majesty of God, as God's wrath is poured out, and as victory is obtained over the wicked.

And so verse 19 of Acts 2 and Joel 2:30 are also speaking of Christ on the cross, as He gets victory over sin, which is a prelude to the pouring out of the Holy Spirit, or a prelude to God's program to evangelize the world.

Now this brings us to verse 32 of Joel 2: "And it shall come to pass that all who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be delivered." And we know from Acts 2:20 that this is referring to Christ's promise that whoever turns to the Lord Jesus Christ will be saved.

Now this gives us a little bit of insight as to who these are who will bring the Gospel. "For in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those who escape, as the Lord has said. And among the survivors shall be those whom the Lord calls." Now that again is somewhat ambiguous language. It's not quoted in Acts 2, but it is totally a part of the context of what is quoted in Acts 2:32. It is directly related. It is in the same context. It says, "All who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be delivered, for in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be those who escape." And so it's got to be talking about the events that began with the cross, and were coming into full fruition when the Holy Spirit was poured out in AD 33, immediately after the cross.

Now you see, what God is saying here is that Mount Zion and Jerusalem effectively are figures of the body of believers that is sent forth into the world to bring the Gospel. Mount Zion is a synonym, in this instance, of the body of believers. Now true, the first believers came from Jerusalem. But it actually is a figure that goes on throughout the New Testament period, because the phrase before is covering the whole New Testament period, "It shall come to pass that all who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be saved (or shall be delivered)." And that's a promise that continues throughout the New Testament period.

And so Mount Zion and Jerusalem, therefore, while literally began as the believers who were Jews, living in Jerusalem, is actually expanded to include all who are born again believers, and who are those who are being saved. Now it says they "shall be those who escape." Escape what? Well, what does the New Testament say? "How shall ye escape, if ye neglect so great salvation?" Escape what? The wrath of God for our sins. And so anyone who is a born again believer is included amongst those who escape. They are the survivors, they are those who are not subject to judgment – "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus" – they are the ones whom God has called and predestined to be His own.

Now I could go on in Joel 3, which is part of the same context. We see that verses 1 and 2 are also talking about the cross. But that's another subject altogether.

JONAH

"Should I not spare Nineveh?" in Jonah 4:11 (354C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I have one question. It concerns the Book of Jonah. The last two verses in Chapter 4 sort of leave me hanging. I don't know what happened with Jonah. What does verse 11 mean?

HC: In Jonah we find that very provocative statement, where God has just spared Nineveh, because Jonah faithfully, finally, he wasn't a very happy prophet, but nevertheless he obeyed God finally, and he preached to Nineveh and told them that if they did not repent in forty days God would destroy them. And finally they did repent, from the king all the way down. It was a tremendous repentance, so that God did spare them.

And then Jonah showed his displeasure at this, because after all, the city of Nineveh was an enemy of Israel. And it was very difficult for Jonah to contemplate the idea that this city would continue to exist. But then God said, "Should I not spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than 120,000 persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand, and also much cattle?"

Now that's a very interesting statement. Why the "much cattle"? The 120,000 is really a statement concerning all the little ones, I would think, in the city, who do not know their right hand from their left. It was a great city, and it may have had a population of a couple of million people, or thereabouts. Maybe not quite that great, but anyway, it was a very great city. And there were many, many little ones in that city.

But also there were cattle. Now the interesting thing in the Bible is that whenever God brings judgment upon the earth, the cattle suffer right along with mankind. When God brought judgment on the world in Noah's day, the animals were destroyed, were they not, right along with mankind? When God killed the firstborn of Egypt, the firstborn of the cattle were killed. Have you ever thought about that? When God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, fire and brimstone rained down on the cities, and the cattle would have been killed right along with the people.

The same is true when God destroyed Jericho, or when the Israelites destroyed Jericho. They were to kill the sheep and the oxen and the cattle, right along with all the people. God's judgment had come upon Jericho. And so will it be in the judgment of the last day. When fire comes down to destroy this old earth, in preparation for God recreating it New Heavens and a New Earth, all of the cattle, all of the animals, will be killed, also.

You see, man was created to rule over this world. He is responsible for this world. Man of course rebelled against God, and dominion was given to Satan. But nevertheless man continues to rule over the cattle. Now it was not the cattle that sinned in the Garden of Eden. It was not the trees, it was not the rocks that sinned. It was man that sinned. But the whole creation, the cattle, the trees, the rocks, the whole creation was subjected to the curse of God, because of man's sin. That is because the cattle and the animal world and the vegetation of the world, and so on, are intimately associated with man. Man had been created to rule over them.

And so when man was cursed, the cattle were cursed. When God's judgment comes upon man, God's judgment comes upon the animals. Now there's another side to this picture. God redeemed mankind. That is, He made provision for the salvation of the believers. And He also has made provision for the redemption of this creation, "For God so loved the world [the cosmos – in that context the word cosmos includes the whole creation – "God so loved the whole creation," really, is what John 3:16 is saying], "that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life." He particularizes on mankind, but it is God's intention to save this creation, that is, to recreate this present earth and heavens, New Heavens and a New Earth, where righteousness dwells.

Now of course right now same of you are saying, "Well, then are there going to be cattle in Heaven?" No, that's not the right question to ask. You see, the Bible says that flesh and blood does not inherit the Kingdom of Heaven. We will have spiritual bodies in the New Heaven and the New Earth. Animals have physical bodies. They're flesh and blood. We will not expect to see animals in Heaven, unless they're an altogether different design than what we see here.

But that isn't the point. The point is that the cattle are part of creation, and the creation was cursed because of man, and creation is redeemed because of Christ's work on the cross. The details of that redemption are not really what God deals with. He only deals with the fact that creation as a whole is redeemed.

Now in the destruction of Nineveh, or the possible destruction of Nineveh, when God referred to the 120,000, really that's a figure of what a believer is. Remember Jesus said in Matthew 18, I think, that unless we become as a little child, unless we become as a little child, we shall not see the Kingdom of Heaven, or "Suffer these little ones to come to Me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

When you find a reference to a child in the Bible, very frequently it symbolizes what a born again believer is. We become as children before God. That is, we have that naive faith of children. The 120,000, that's that number twelve again, which really signifies the fullness of believers. We see it repeatedly in the Book of Revelation: the 144,000 (twelve times twelve), the twenty-four elders (twelve plus twelve), and so on.

120,000 signifies the fullness of believers. The salvation of Nineveh was a figure, really, of the salvation God is providing to all the nations of the world, to all the heathen, all the Gentiles of the world, and the fact that He is going to redeem this creation. That's why I think God introduces this statement here, that there are 120,000 who do not know their left hand from their right hand, also much cattle.

The creation, represented by the cattle, the 120,000 children who do not know their right hand from their left, representing the born again believers. This salvation of Nineveh, the fact that they repented, is pointing to the salvation that God would provide through Christ for all who would believe on Him. Now actually, while this is typology, Nineveh was saved. These people of Nineveh, we read in the New Testament, that they will stand in judgment, and judge Capernaum, and so on, because of their sin. And only those who are saved will have that relationship. There was a marvelous salvation that did take place at Nineveh.

Well, this got kind of complicated, but I hope this will set you thinking, at any rate.

Jonah and the Gourd in Jonah 4 (512A)

HC: Good evening Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. Would you please turn to the Book of Jonah, Chapter 4, the first verse?

HC: Jonah 4:1. Yes.

CALLER: The question that I have for you is why was Jonah displeased because God saved the people of Nineveh after they turned from their evil works and did good in God's eyes? And I would also like to know what a gourd is, because I've been reading this book for quite some time and I can't seem to get any understanding out of this particular chapter. Would you explain that to me, please?

HC: Let me answer the second question first. What is the gourd in the Book of Jonah? We read in verse 4 of Jonah 4: "So Jonah went out of the city and sat on the east side of the city and there made him a booth, and sat under it in the shadow till he might see what would become of the city. And the Lord God prepared a gourd [which was a very fast-growing plant of some kind] and made it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a shadow over his head to deliver him from his grief. So Jonah was exceedingly glad of the gourd." The gourd is a very fast-growing plant. I don't know if there's a significance in the word gourd itself, but it certainly is a plant of some kind.

"For God prepared a worm when the morning rose the next day, and it smote the gourd that it withered. And it came to pass when the sun did arise, God prepared a vehement east wind, and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, that he fainted, and wished in himself to die, and said, It is better for me to die than to live. And then God said to Jonah, Dost thou well to be angry for the gourd? He said, I do well to be angry, even unto death. Then said the Lord, Thou hast had pity on the gourd for the which thou hast not labored, neither madest it grow, which came up in a night and perished in a night. And should I not spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than six score thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand, and also much cattle?"

Now the question is, what is God teaching through this? This of course is a bit of history. This is an account of an historical event that did occur. And what is represented by this gourd and by the reaction of Jonah?

Well, we'll get to Jonah in just a minute. But the gourd really represents this world, the things of this world that bring comfort to man, and which God brings to man without any preparation on man's part. We receive comfort from the things of this earth. We receive comfort from the trees, from the shade, from the warm sunshine, and so on. All of these things we derive comfort from. But man by nature is not at all interested in saving his fellow man from hell. Man by nature is more concerned about this earth than he is about his fellow man. In other words, we see this today as man gets very up-tight when animals, for example, might become extinct. This is a tremendous concern to many people. Or when the trees are being cut down in certain areas many people are up in arms, because this creation is what is important to them. And this is what pains them.

But the fact that all of their fellow men are going to hell, that doesn't disturb mankind in the slightest. Does it? And here is Jonah. He is more concerned about this plant that dies in the night than he is about Nineveh, that was on the threshold of being destroyed. And Nineveh is really a picture of the world that is consigned to hell because of its sin. You see how unbalanced, how out of proportion, the attitude of man is toward this world. He is far more concerned about those things which benefit him directly, the things that this world produces, than he is about his fellow mankind that are going to hell. That I think is the picture of the end of the chapter.

Now the question is raised, "What really is the Book of Jonah?" And I think we could summarize this in a couple of sentences. The Book of Jonah, I believe, is a picture of Israel, of national Israel. Now Jonah of course was a Jew. He was of national Israel. And God uses the Jews to bring the Gospel to the world. Remember, "salvation is of the Jews." Jesus was a Jew. The Bible came from the Jews. The whole program of God is that God worked through the Jewish nation in order to accomplish the salvation program that He has decided for the world.

Now she as a nation does not really want to be active in this program of sending the Gospel to the world. For example, when the Messiah came on the scene, remember now, Jesus was a Jew, you would think that if they were really spiritual and close to God, when Jesus came they would welcome Him with open arms. The Messiah is here. And now they would be ready to be obedient to whatever the Messiah would desire.

But instead they crucified Him. They do not want him as their Messiah, even though it is the nation of Israel that produced the Messiah. The Messiah came from the Jews. And of course this is pictured by Jonah in the belly of the fish. He did not want to go there, and he effectively became a figure of the Messiah. Remember, Jesus said in Matthew 12, "As Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the fish, so the Son of Man will be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." Jonah is a picture of Christ.

But he develops himself as a picture of the Christ because of His refusal to be instrumental of God in saving Nineveh. He doesn't want to see Nineveh saved; he is reluctant to go there. And of course the nation of Israel produced the Messiah. That is, she crucified Him, which was necessary for God's plan in making Christ a Messiah, because of national Israel's reluctance to accept Him as a Messiah.

Now in this brief time I can't go into all the background of all this, but this I think is the larger picture here. Now eventually the world is saved. In other words, the Gospel does go out, whether national Israel likes it or not. The Gospel does go out, and it goes out by the preaching of the Jews. Jesus was a Jew, and the first disciples were Jews. The apostle Paul was a Jew. The first missionaries were Jews.

But national Israel is unhappy about it. Right to the very present day they want nothing at all to do with the salvation of the world from eternal damnation through anyone like the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. They want nothing at all to do with this, that is, except for the remnant chosen by grace.

And so that's the picture of Jonah, seeing that Nineveh has been saved, but not at all happy about it, much more concerned about this world as it stands than he is about the fact that the nations of the world are going to hell. We have really here in the Book of Jonah a picture of God's dealing through national Israel to accomplish the Messiah, to accomplish the salvation that was brought to the world.

ZECHARIAH

Is Zechariah 14:16-21 Referring to the Millennium? (034C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Brother Camping. I have a question about Zechariah 14:16-21 particularly, but also the whole latter part of the chapter. It seems to me it's talking about the thousand year reign. Yet I know that you say that there's not going to be any such thing. But it speaks previously about the great plague that will come upon the people, and the fighting around Jerusalem. And then it says of those that are left, if they don't go up to Jerusalem to worship the kings, there will be no rain on them. And if the family of Egypt does not go up or enter, then no rain will fall on them. I wonder if you'd just explain this.

HC: We have two clues in Zechariah 14 that indicate that this cannot be read quite as simply as we might think. First of all, we have the major clue in the beginning of the chapter, where it says, for example, in verse 6: "On that day there shall be neither cold nor frost, and there shall be continuous day. It is known to the Lord not day and not night, for at evening time there shall be light. On that day living water shall flow out from Jerusalem, half of them to the eastern sea and half of them to the western sea. It shall continue in summer as in winter."

Now these three verses are the language of Revelation 22. Christ becomes the sun, and there is no day nor night. And so we know from this that God is talking about the New Heaven and the New Earth. Now there are other clues that speak to this. We have the earthquake in verse 5, and we know that Judgment Day comes upon the earth in the context of a huge earthquake.

We have the fact that "the valley of My mountain shall be stopped up. For the valley of the mountains shall touch the side of it." In other words, there will be a movement of the earth itself. And that matches the language of Revelation 6, where it speaks about the cataclysmic events that are occurring upon the earth.

And so there are a number of these kinds of clues that point to the fact that this is talking about the New Heaven and the New Earth.

Secondly, speaking specifically about verses 10-21, we read here, threaded through this, we find this matter of keeping the Feast of the Booths, in verse 19. And we read about the pots in Jerusalem being sacred to the Lord, in verse 21. Now we know that the ceremonial law has been completely done away with. We're not to ever again come under the ceremonial law. And so when we read the kind of language we begin to sense that there is some symbolism here, that God is not talking about something literal, but that He is talking about something symbolical.

Actually, we are a priesthood and our priesthood is an eternal priesthood. And it goes on into the New Heaven and the New Earth. And in a sense we are a completion of the Levitical priesthood. We read in Jeremiah 33:17 "David shall never lack a man to sit on the throne of the house of Israel" Well that's Christ, of course. He sits there eternally. "And the Levitical priest shall never lack a man in My presence to offer burnt offerings, to burn cereal offerings and to make sacrifices continually" (forever is really the word that is in view here).

This is talking about the born again believers. We are an eternal priesthood, and it's using that figure here in Zechariah 14. Now verse 16 specifically: "Everyone that survives of all the nations that have come against Jerusalem." And you'll remember that Jerusalem is a figure of the Body of Christ. In fact, the Body of Christ in its fullness is spoken of as the New Jerusalem in Revelation 21. Now the nations that have come against Jerusalem, they are the world, that is, slaves to Satan. Remember Revelation 20:8 declares that the nations from the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, shall assault the camp of the saints. They are the peoples of the world that are found amongst the various political nations. They wanted to destroy Jerusalem.

Now out of these political nations, which comprise all of the peoples of the world, there are born again believers. They are sprinkled throughout the political nations. They are the ones that survive of all the nations because the nations, of course, are cast into hell. And they shall go up year after year to worship the King. Well, this is using again an Old Testament figure of coming to Jerusalem annually to worship, but actually it's emphasizing the fact that we are the only ones who will worship Christ as King, the Lord of Hosts, and keep the Feast of Booths. In other words, we are a priesthood that goes on forever.

"If any one of the families of the earth do not go up to Jerusalem to worship the King, the Lord of Hosts, there will be no rain upon them." Okay now. Of all the people who have ever lived on the earth, only those who are born again will worship Him. The rest will be in hell. And here rain is used in the sense of God's blessings coming upon them. They will not be objects of God's blessings. They will not be in the presence of God's blessings. This is not a conditional kind of a thing. This is just putting it this way. But actually it is the nature of what eternity will be. Born again believers will worship Him. The rest will be in hell, where there is no blessing coming on them.

Then it goes on in verse 18: "And if the family of Egypt do not go up and present themselves, then upon them shall come the plague with which the Lord afflicts the nations that do not go up to keep the Feast of Booths." Now who are the family of Egypt? Egypt was the house of bondage. It's the figure of sin, that we come out of when we are saved. And so the family of Egypt in this context, therefore, would be the unsaved. It's another figure speaking about the unsaved. And they are in hell. They are under God's judgment.

Verse 19: "This shall be the punishment to Egypt and the punishment to all the nations that do not go up to keep the Feast of Booths." And that is that no rain will fall upon them. In other words,

God's wrath abides on them. And in verse 20: "On that day there shall be inscribed on the bells of the horses HOLY TO THE LORD. The pots in the house of the Lord shall be as bowls before the altar, and every pot in Jerusalem and Judah shall be sacred to the Lord of Hosts, so that all who sacrifice may come and take of them and boil the flesh of sacrifice in them."

In other words, the whole Body of Christ will be holy. Everything that they are involved in is holy, because we are now in the New Heaven and the New Earth where there is no sin. "And there shall no longer be a trader in the house of the Lord of Hosts on that day." Now this is speaking of false prophets. Remember the moneychangers. They were cast out by Jesus, and they were called a den of robbers. And from Jeremiah 7 we know that this is a figure of speech used to speak about those who follow after other gospels. And so God is saying in this last phrase that there will be none in the New Heaven and the New Earth who are false prophets, who are bringing another gospel. Everything will be holy to the Lord.

Now there's nothing at all in this context that speaks about a millennium. There's no thousand years mentioned here, nothing related to that. And if Christ were going to reign on this earth and re-institute the priesthood of Levi and the offering of the ceremonial laws, then we would have a complete reversal of everything that the Bible teaches.

Zechariah 13 and 14 Explained (645C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Brother Camping, I would like to ask you if you could explain Zechariah 13 & 14 to me. I have a very hard time understanding when it says that His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives. I heard you say there is no future for national Israel. But how do you explain these two chapters?

HC: The question is raised concerning Zechariah 13 and 14. Verse 1 of Zechariah 13 tells us what Zechariah 13 is all about: "In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for uncleanness." Now when was there or will there be a fountain opened for national Israel or for anyone else to have their sins paid for?

CALLER: That's at the cross.

HC: That's at the cross, at the cross, precisely. In other words, Zechariah 13 is prophesying concerning the coming of the Messiah as He goes to the cross. That we can be very certain of. And if you look at verse 9 it emphasizes this. Or look at verse 7: "Awake, O sword, against my shepherd." Now who is God's shepherd, that came to pay for our sins? The Lord Jesus Christ. And was the sword against Him? Yes, indeed. He is the one who died for our sins. And of course the church was scattered. The disciples were scattered at the time that He went to the cross.

But the ones who are saved, typified by the third of verse 9, "I will bring the third part through the fire and will refine them as silver is refined and will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on My Name and I will hear them, I will say, It is My people, and they shall say, The Lord is my God." Now we have been refined because Christ has endured hell, the furnace of fire, if you will, on our behalf. And so we can say, "The Lord is my God." And Christ says of us that we are His people.

So Zechariah 13 very distinctly is talking about the cross. Now Chapter 14, however, is talking about Judgment Day. It talks about all the nations against Jerusalem to battle. And Jerusalem in this context is not literal Jerusalem. And if you read it carefully, you can see that it could not be, because it says the city shall be taken and the houses rifled and the women ravished. And yet it says half the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city. Well, how can it be taken and have half the people still remain there? It doesn't make any sense. If it is taken, it means that the whole city would be destroyed.

But this language is talking about the church, the congregations that will be assaulted at the last time by other gospels, by Satan. And those who go forth into captivity are those who fall snare of these other gospels. And yet half will not be taken. That is, the true believers will remain faithful to the Word of God.

And then it says in verse 3 that the Lord shall go forth and fight against those nations. Now this is picked up in Revelation 19 and Revelation 20, where it talks about Christ coming in judgment. Ant He speaks of it as warfare, as a battle, because the whole relationship between the dominion of Satan on the one hand and the Kingdom of Christ on the other is one of warfare, and this is going to talk about the final battle. And the final battle is Judgment Day. It's not really a battle, but it's the time when Satan is judged, and is cast into hell.

Now let's look at verse 4: "His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives." And it goes on and talks about how the mount is going to be split and then in verse 5 it says, "Ye shall flee to the valley of the mountain, for the valley of the mountain shall reach unto Azazel. Yea, ye shall flee as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Aziah, king of Judah. And the Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee." Ah... Now at the time that He sets His feet on the Mount of Olives, it says, "The Lord my God (that's the last part of verse 5) shall come and all the saints with him."

All right now, in the New Testament God speaks about this. God tells us what this is going to be. We read in 1 Thessalonians 3:13, "to the end He may establish your hearts unblameable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all His saints." Now when is He coming with His saints?

Well 1 Thessalonians 4:14-17 tells us this. It says in verse 14, "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him." That's at the end of time, you see, because it says that the dead in Christ shall rise, and the resurrection of the believers is the last day, we learn from John 6.

And so Zechariah 14 is talking about the end of time. It's talking about Judgment Day, when Christ comes on the clouds of glory and He gathers in His elect, and at the same time the resurrection of those who have died occurs.

CALLER: But this is not literal then.

HC: No. You see, His feet standing on the Mount of Olives is a figure to indicate that He is coming in judgment. We find the same kind of a figure, for example, in Micah 1:3: "For behold, the Lord cometh forth out of His place and will come down and tread upon the high places of the earth. And the mountains shall be molten under Him, and the valleys shall be cleft as wax before the fire and as the waters that have poured down in a steep place. For the transgression of Jacob is all this and for the sins of the house of Israel," and so on. In other words, God is talking about judgment coming and using a figure of Him coming down and treading, or putting His feet on the high places of the earth. And that is the figure that's used in Zechariah 14:4. It is a figure employed to indicate that Christ is coming in judgment.

But as He comes in judgment He comes with His saints, as verse 5 teaches, because it is also the time of the Rapture.

And that agrees precisely with the New Testament.

CALLER: Yes. How about verse 16?

HC: Verse 16 says, "And it shall come to pass that everyone that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles." Now you see, the ones who are left are the true believers. They are the remnant chosen by grace out of all the nations of the world. And they are the ones who continue to worship God eternally. God is using Old Testament language of the ceremonial worship in speaking about our worship of the Lord throughout eternity.

CALLER: I thank you so much, Mr. Camping.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

MALACHI

Malachi 4:2-3 Explained (463B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I would like you to read Malachi 4:2 & 3 and tell me what you think about it.

HC: Yes. The question is raised concerning Malachi 4:2 & 3. There we read, "But unto you that fear My name shall the Sun of Righteousness arise with healing in His wings. And ye shall go forth and grow up as calves of the stall. And ye shall tread down the wicked. For they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet in the day that I shall do this, saith the Lord of Hosts."

Now this is speaking about the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ as He came when He went to the cross. He is the Sun of Righteousness. He came with healing in His wings. He is the one who made it possible that we could have victory over our enemies, the kingdom of Satan, because that's what we belonged to before we were saved. And for us who are born again because Christ went to the cross, Satan is a defeated foe. We tread upon him. We have no fear of him any longer. He has been vanquished by Christ's going to the cross.

Now you'll notice in verse 5 of the same context, God goes on, and He says, "Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." This chapter opens in verse 1 talking about the day, the day that is coming. And now He talks about Elijah the prophet being sent before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord: "And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children and the heart of the children to their fathers."

Now we know from Luke:17 that this prophecy of verse 5 was fulfilled by John the Baptist. John the Baptist came in the spirit and power of Elijah. Notice the very similar language in Luke 1 to what we have just read in Malachi 4:5 & 6. There we read, as God is telling Zachariah about his son, John the Baptist, who would be born to him: "And he shall go before Him in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just," almost identical language, you see, to Malachi 4, "to make ready a people prepared for the Lord."

Now the "great and terrible day of the Lord" that's in view in Malachi 4 is the atonement, the day when Christ hung on the cross, when He paid for our sins, when He became sin for us and God poured out His wrath on Him. But before Christ went to the cross, before this dreadful day of the Lord came, John the Baptist came, as a fulfillment to the promise that Elijah would come and turn the heart of the fathers to the children. That is, John the Baptist came in the spirit and power of Elijah, to preach repentance and to cry out to Israel that they had to turn away from their sins.

Now this is when Christ came with healing in His wings, when He came as the Sun of Righteousness, when He vanquished Satan so that Satan is as ashes under our feet. Now while He defeated Satan in principle, and we read in Hebrews 2:14 that through Christ's death He destroyed Satan, and we read in Revelation that He dealt a death blow to the head of the dragon, and while this was accomplished in principle, we will not see it in its full impact until the judgment of the last day, when Satan is removed into hell.

CALLER: At that time, at the end of the world, we will grow up as calves of the stalls.

HC: No. Malachi 4 in its totality is being fulfilled throughout the New Testament period. We grow up as calves of the stall now. The body of Christ is growing, and it's flourishing. It has been for 2,000 years. Of course in the Old Testament calves were given as a sacrifice, but in Romans 12:1 we are commanded, as born again believers, to lay down our lives as a living sacrifice. And this is occurring amongst all the nations of the world. There are those who are coming into the body of Christ and those who are born again are those who have surrendered their lives to Christ, to serve as ambassadors of His.

CALLER: About John the Baptist. Also, at the end of the world there are also many many true Christian people that are preparing the way of the Lord just before His second coming. Many Christian people are preparing the way of the Lord.

HC: But that is not in view in Malachi 4. And actually, the believers are preparing the way of the Lord. And incidentally, the Bible does not use that language of Christians in connection with the second coming of Christ. The Bible does not say that as we bring the Gospel we are preparing for His second coming, although in a sense we are. As we bring the Gospel, and witness to the world, God brings in the elect, those who are to be saved. And when the last one has been saved, then the end will come. The Bible says in Matthew 24:14, or thereabouts, that when this Gospel has been preached to every nation, then the end will come. And in that sense we are preparing for the end of time. But God does not use that kind of language in speaking about the work of the believers insofar as I know.

CALLER: You don't have the attitude that everyone will be saved.

HC: Oh, no. The Bible teaches that "Broad is the way that leads to destruction, and many there are thereon," and "Narrow is the way that leads to everlasting life, and few there are that find it." It's only a remnant chosen by grace out of all the peoples of the world that actually become born again believers.

CALLER: Back at verse 3, it isn't the devil that is burned to ashes. He will be burned right along with the wicked, but it says "the wicked." It doesn't separate the devil and the wicked. They will all burn together.

HC: Yes. You see, when Christ went to the cross, He actually guaranteed damnation upon all of the unsaved of the world who would die unsaved. By virtue of the fact that Christ endured the judgment of God for our sins, this guaranteed that judgment would also come upon the unsaved. And so they automatically are under condemnation, if they do not become saved. Every man is a sinner, and the wages of sin is death. It is eternal damnation, and so that condemnation rests upon the unsaved. And so in that sense they are already identified with hell.

It's interesting, you know, in the New Testament that God in three or four places speaks about the angels who rebelled. And He speaks of them as if they are already in hell. Now they aren't actually in hell, because they're still active in the world throughout the New Testament period. And even as the New Testament was being written, they were very active as demons, and so on. But nevertheless God uses language as if they're already in hell, because their damnation is guaranteed at the cross, and it's as if they are already in hell.

We read in Jude 6, And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, He hath reserved in everlasting chains, under darkness, unto the judgment of the great day. In II Peter 2:4 he says, For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness to be reserved unto judgment." He's using language as if they're already in hell, as, if they're already being consumed, as if they are ashes. And that's the language of Malachi 4.

Now they're not actually there, but their judgment is certain. Ever since the time of the cross, there's no way that they can escape the judgment.

CALLER: When fire is in the process of burning them to ashes, that isn't the same as being ashes, which will annihilate all, we're told in the Bible that the affliction will never arise a second time. There will never be another devil developed.

HC: Now you've introduced two questions. First of all, the Bible does not teach annihilation. That is not taught in the Bible. When the Bible uses language like ashes, or burning, or I'll remember them no more, or whatever, God is not speaking about annihilation. There are too many passages in the Bible that would make that an impossible idea. There are too many passages in the Bible that speak about everlasting damnation, that say that "the worm dieth not," that say, "there is weeping and gnashing of teeth," that speak about eternal torment, and so on and so on.

But as God speaks about hell, and the wrath of God, and the terrible condition that will prevail, we must remember He's talking about a condition that's outside of time, that's outside of our ability to really fathom, because we don't know what eternity is. We don't know what it is to be without any blessing whatsoever from God. We have no idea about these things, because these are not part of our experience in this world.

But God does give us word pictures, of burning and of ashes, and of worms that do not die, and so on, outer darkness, and a lake of fire, and so on. God gives us these word pictures in order to indicate to us the awfulness, the dreadfulness of hell. And yet, as He gives all of this, there's no question at all that He talks about eternal damnation. It's not something that is annihilation. Annihilation is just not taught in the Bible. If you might find a number of verses, if you grouped those together and took them out of the Bible, without letting the rest of the Bible be a commentary on them, you could find verses that might seem to teach annihilation.

CALLER: Well, we are told what eternity means, as far as the devil and all his subjects are concerned. Sodom and Gomorrah were burned with everlasting fire. Sodom and Gomorrah are in the bottom of the Dead Sea, and they are not burning now. No place is there perpetual fire.

HC: Oh, I know. But remember that Sodom and Gomorrah have not come to an end. The peoples of Sodom and Gomorrah have ceased to exist momentarily on the face of the earth, but they will be raised on the last day. And their damnation is not complete. Just because we see them destroyed by fire back 4,000 years ago, that doesn't mean that that's the end of their damnation.

CALLER: I agree with you there, but I'm just referring to the term everlasting.

And there's another thing that brings up the same thought, what is the definition of everlasting?

HC: You see, we don't even have to struggle with that. If you read Revelation 14, for example, God says there in verse 10, speaking about the unsaved, "The same shall drink the wine of the wrath of God which is poured out without mixture into the cup of His indignation. And he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb." And notice: "And the smoke of their torment ascendeth up forever and ever. And they have no rest day nor night, who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name."

Or again, we read in Revelation 22, where it's talking about those who are in the New Heaven and the New Earth, which of course is going on eternally. And it says in verse 15 of Revelation 22: "For without are the dogs and sorcerers and whoremongers and murderers and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie." In other words, they continue having existence, but they are not a part of the New Heaven and the New Earth.

And there are other phrases of this nature in the Bible that assure us that hell is eternal. It is not annihilation. Now many people want to believe in annihilation. Perhaps they want to believe it because they are not really certain of their salvation. And after all, if I'm annihilated, that finally is not so bad because then I have no conscious existence. I may be missing Heaven, but I don't know that I'm missing it, and there is certain peace in death.

But that is a figment of our imagination. That is not the wrath of God. That isn't the way that God portrays His wrath. It is not to cease to have conscious existence. It's to cease to be under any blessing of God. When Christ hung on the cross... He said, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" and that's hell. And no human being has ever experienced being totally forsaken of God.

CALLER: It would be a very uncomfortable feeling. But ashes, as everybody knows, represent something that has been and no more exists. If you burn up a box, and have ashes, and walk on those ashes...

HC: Yes. Now if you took a verse that speaks of ashes, and isolated it from the rest of the Bible, then I would agree with you. God is indicating annihilation, because something that is burned up physically is annihilated. It ceases to exist.

But that is not hell. We have to read about those ashes in the light of everything else the Bible speaks about in connection with the nature of hell, in connection with the nature of eternal damnation, or in connection with God's wrath. And then we get a vastly different picture. Then we realize that there is existence of the unsaved after Judgment Day and while the New Heaven and the New Earth continue to exist. And there of course there is eternal bliss, and all is marvelous and wonderful, because we're in the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ.

But while this is going on, there is also conscious existence of the unsaved. But they are in a place of torment. They are in a place bearing the wrath of God, because they have violated the justice and holiness of God. And we don't know exactly what that punishment is. All we can do is look at the language of the Bible and realize that it must be super awful. It must be super terrible. And there's no escape. There's no way out. There's no end to it. It's like a person who has been consigned to jail for the rest of his life, because he's committed a crime. He's in jail. He can't get out. And regardless of what's happening out in the world, the beautiful things, the marvelous things, he's in jail. And he has to stay there until he dies. Now his life may be circumscribed by, let's say, seventy years. And so he may spend fifty years in jail. But for mankind who is unsaved, his conscious existence will continue forever and ever. And he will be outside of all of the blessings that come to those who are born again believers.

CALLER: So God will perform a miracle to keep people burning, actual burning, and suffering in burning hell. He'll perform a miracle to...

HC: The problem that you're raising is that you must remember that our minds are conditioned to think in terms of space, length, width, height and time. These are the dimensions that we understand. When the Bible speaks about eternity, when the Bible speaks about life after death, we can't really know what this is. There is no way that our minds can really fathom that, any more than we can fathom an angel. We don't know what a spirit is. We can't draw a picture of a spirit. We can't describe a spirit, actually. We really do not know what an angel is. We know they're ministering spirits. The Bible says that. But we, could never really detail or draw a picture or make a diagram of any kind of what an angel is, because our minds are not qualified. God has not designed our minds to think in terms of spiritual beings and to think in terms of eternity. We can just get a little bit of an idea, and that's all.

And so when God talks about hell, or when He talks about Heaven, God uses language. He uses word pictures of things that we know about. But that still does not really describe what it is.

For example, in Revelation 1 there's a beautiful description of the Lord Jesus Christ, with His hair of white wool and His feet of burnished brass, and so on. And of course it's a word picture. It's not a real picture of the Lord Jesus Christ. Christ has a spiritual body. God is a spirit, and they that worship Him worship Him in spirit and truth. And yet as we look at this word picture that God describes in Revelation 1, we begin to get insights as to the nature and the character and the marvelous beauty, and so on, of the Lord Jesus Christ and the work that He came to do. But we're never going to get a real picture of what He looks like, because our minds can't get hold of any kind of a picture of what He really looks like.

Now the same thing is true when God describes hell. He uses figures of a burning furnace, and a lake of fire, and of ashes and of a place of outer darkness, and a place where the worm dies not, and a place where there's weeping and gnashing of teeth. And all of these figures of speech are pictures to indicate one central truth, and that is that hell is terrible. Hell is awful. Hell is the worst kind of punishment that our minds can get hold of, and it goes on forever and ever.

Just what it is, I don't know. I don't know what it is. We see the essence of hell, we get a real insight, if we get any kind of an insight into the essence of hell, on the cross, as Christ says, My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me? Now He was enduring hell for our sins. He was not literally burning. He was not literally in a place of fire. And yet He was enduring hell. The awfulness of God being rejected by God, abandoned by God, was torment that is absolutely indescribable. There's no way that we could ever know how grievous this really was for Christ. And yet that was the essence of hell.

And so as we read all of this language about hell, we must not think of eternity as somehow identified with time. We have this song that we will praise God 10,000 years, and so on, and it will just be the beginning, or words to that effect. Well actually, that's a word picture again of eternity. Eternity is something that is outside of our ability to understand, however. It's something far more glorious than just a continuation of time, because eternity is not identified with time. It's a concept beyond our ability to take hold of.

And so is hell. But we know that hell is super terrible, and the marvelous thing is that God comes with His message of salvation, and He says that if we believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, if we will humble ourselves before Him and acknowledge our sins and turn away from our sins and abandon ourselves to the Lord Jesus Christ, then we need not go to hell. We need not experience the wrath of God. We can be His children, and we can have eternal life. And that is the wonder of the Gospel.

CALLER: There was something said about time tonight, and the definition of time in the Bible is found about Nebuchadnezzar. He went out and ate grass like an animal for seven years.

HC: No, for seven times.

CALLER: Seven times. And so that's the definition of time. There was something said that the Bible said nothing about what time meant.

HC: No, I don't think that was said. Time is something we understand. The Bible indicates that God gave the sun to rule over the day and the moon and the stars to rule over the night. And therefore we have a very excellent knowledge of time. We can very accurately calculate the passing of seconds and minutes and days and years. We can relate one historical incident to another by the passage of time. God has put this within our minds. We really can know time.

But that's quite different from eternity. We often think of eternity as just being infinite time. Well, that's one way of speaking about it. But actually, eternity is outside of time. Eternity is unrelated to time. Eternity is a concept that our finite minds, that are created in terms of time, cannot understand. It is outside of time. The sun is no more in the New Heaven and the New Earth. There are not time keepers. And so all we can do is leave it to the Lord that whatever it is, it is super glorious for the believer and super terrible, super awful, for the unbeliever.

But thank you so much for calling.

Malachi 4:1 and Everlasting Hell (528A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I'm very glad to hear your voice again. I'd like you to dwell upon Malachi 4:1 please.

HC: The question is raised concerning Malachi 4:1. Malachi is the last book of the Old Testament. And we read in Malachi 4:1: "For behold, the day cometh that shall burn as an oven, and all the proud, yea and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble. And the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, and it shall leave them neither root nor branch."

Now you're wondering what this refers to.

CALLER: Well, if there's anything else to understand other than the wording there, I'd like to know about it.

HC: I think the problem that is suggested here is, what does it mean that these who do wickedly shall be left with neither root nor branch? Now obviously this is talking about God's judgment on the wicked. "All that do wickedly shall be stubble. And the day that cometh shall burn them up." "The day that cometh" is Judgment Day. And it is at that time that God will cast the unsaved into the lake of fire, as we read in Revelation 20, which is a synonym for hell.

Now there are those who believe that when God says that He will cast them into the lake of fire, this will be annihilation. They will simply burn up and cease to exist. And they would use a verse like this to prove that particular idea, that they are left without root or branch.

The problem, however, is that when we look at all the language of the Bible that deals with hell, we find that God does not teach that there is annihilation. The Bible talks about eternal damnation. The Bible speaks of those who will be tormented forever. The Bible says there's a place where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth, and the worm dieth not.

And so we have to read a verse like this in the light of these other passages, that there is no cessation of existence for those who are under the damnation of God? but that they are in eternal punishment of some kind. Now actually, man was created on this earth to live here and to have an eternal relationship with this earth. And of course in the time before the end of time there is also to be procreation. There is to be the bringing forth of progeny from the loins of mankind. But the idea is that he will be here eternally.

Now of course because of the sin of man he dies. But those who have become saved still have an eternal relationship with this earth. We read in the Beatitudes, in Matthew 5, where Christ declared, "The meek shall inherit the earth." And of course this is the New Heaven and the New Earth. And so we who are born again believers do have a root. We do continue in a living relationship to this earth.

But for the unsaved, they are removed from this earth. They have no relationship forever with this earth. They cannot remain here because they are not a part of the Kingdom of God. They have to be removed to another place called hell, and there they suffer eternal banishment from God. They suffer eternal damnation. And in that sense they have neither root nor branch.

Now the word branch carries a double meaning. The word branch is a synonym for the Lord Jesus Christ. He in Isaiah 11 is spoken of as the branch of the root of Jesse. And the word root here incidentally also has a double meaning. The word root refers to the Lord Jesus Christ also. Remember in Isaiah 53 God declared that He would be as a root out of dry ground.

And so the ultimate spiritual meaning that's in view here is that they do not have the Lord Jesus Christ. They have neither root nor branch. They are outside of Christ eternally.

CALLER: That's right. When it comes to evil, everlasting is as long as it exists, in the hottest fire that can be made. That's how long everlasting is, as far as evil is concerned, the same as Sodom and Gomorrah was burned with everlasting fire. And it's in the bottom of the Dead Sea, so the scientists tell us, at the present time. It is ashes in the bottom of the sea.

HC: Ah! Now you've pointed out a very interesting phrase, that Sodom and Gomorrah were burned with everlasting fire. But you see, we only saw the down-payment, the first picture of that everlasting fire, when Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed by fire and brimstone back there 4000 years ago. But there is more to it than that, you see.

It's just like death. When man dies, when Adam died, when mankind dies because of their sins, that's not the whole picture. It isn't just physical death that's in view. There is also eternal death. There is the second death, which is the lake of fire. And so when Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed by literal fire and brimstone, that was only the down-payment. There's more to say, because those inhabitants of Sodom and Gomorrah (and you would not doubt this for a moment) were not annihilated. They perished physically. They lived not again in their present existence, but they will be resurrected on the last day, at Judgment Day. And they then will have to give an account of all of their sinful lives. And then they will come under the judgment of God, to answer for their sins.

That fire and brimstone that destroyed them was merely an indication of what was going to happen to them eternally. And it was a guarantee that this was going to happen to them eternally. But that in no way annihilated them. The city might have gone to the bottom of the Dead Sea, or been covered by the Dead Sea. But the inhabitants of the city, with whom God particularly was dealing, are the ones who must stand for judgment on the last day and receive the full brunt of the punishment of God.

The destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah was not the end of Sodom and Gomorrah. The fact that there was a literal city that once existed and now cannot be found does not mean that the full payment has been made for their sins. A city consists of people, not of buildings. A city consists of people. And you'll remember when Abraham talked with God about Sodom and Gomorrah, he was saying, "If there are ten righteous in the city." These are the ones that God has in view when He talks about the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah.

Now the fact that they came under this awful punishment of fire and brimstone was the means by which God brought the first death upon them. But there is still the second death that has to be visited upon them in its full wrath of God. And that will occur when the inhabitants of Sodom and Gomorrah are resurrected on the last day. "The hour cometh when all who are in the tombs will hear His voice and come forth, some to the resurrection of eternal damnation." And Revelation 20 says that the sea gave up the dead in it, and Death and Hades gave up the dead in them. And you can rest assured that the inhabitants of Sodom and Gomorrah will also be resurrected to stand for judgment. And then eternal damnation will be visited upon them.

That activity that happened 4000 years ago was simply the beginning of an eternal damnation. And when God uses that word everlasting, He is speaking about eternity. He is speaking about something that goes on forever.

CALLER: What you've just presented sounds reasonable. But it's just a matter of definition of the word everlasting.

HC: You see, when we talk about the damnation of God, we read, for example, in Revelation 14:11: "And the smoke of their torment ascendeth up forever and ever." Now there's no way that we could understand it as anything but a continuous torment, when we read the language of everlasting damnation. On the one hand, in Matthew 25 God speaks about everlasting life. Well, everlasting life means it's life without end. It is life that goes on forever and ever, throughout eternity. And everlasting damnation then would be damnation that goes on forever and ever. That is the picture of the Bible.

And we read, for example, in Revelation 22, where it's talking about the New Heaven and the New Earth. And in that context it still has something to say about the unsaved. They're still in existence: "Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers," and so on and so on. They have not been annihilated.

This idea of annihilation is a very convenient idea, and certainly for those who are not really sure whether they're saved or not it's a very hopeful idea, because after all, then the worst that can happen to me if I happen not to be a born again believer is that I just cease to exist. Like an animal, I cease to exist. So I can bear that. After all, there's no pain, there's no penalty being paid if I simply cease to exist.

CALLER: If you die in a fire you live a good many minutes or hours.

HC: Well, my, you know, all kinds of Christians, where were born again believers, died in a fire. They were tied to a stake, and they died with the fire burning all around them. Now were they subjected to the same punishment that is spoken of when God speaks of eternal damnation? In other words, are you suggesting that these Christians who were burned at the stake actually suffered hell, and yet are born again believers? That wouldn't follow at all, would it?

CALLER: But they will be saved, because they're saved.

HC: Well, I know, but the fact is, if you're saying that the essence of hell is to die in a fire, then effectively you're saying that a Christian who is burned at the stake has suffered hell. And a Christian does not suffer hell. There's no way that a Christian suffers hell.

A Christian's sins have been covered. And so dying in a fire is not hell. That's an impossibility. That would make no sense at all. Hell is infinitely more terrible than dying in a fire, or to cease to exist. Hell is eternal damnation. It's awful. It's a terrible thing. That's why the Bible uses such ugly language in speaking about hell.

CALLER: The Bible made one mistake then when it said everlasting punishment instead of everlasting punishing. According to what we've just now discussed, it would be everlasting punishing. They would continue to be punished throughout the endless ages.

HC: I think that's just a matter of semantics. When a man has committed a crime and he is sent to prison for the rest of his natural life, which is really an analogous situation to what hell is, if a man has a life expectancy of, let's say, seventy years, and he has to spend most of those years until he dies in prison, that is punishment for the rest of his life. Now the life expectancy, or the existence expectancy of an unsaved person is forever. His existence is unending. And his punishment is for the rest of his life expectancy, or his existence. I don't use the word life because technically speaking we are not really alive in the full sense of the word unless we are in the Lord Jesus Christ, because we were created in the image of God. And so maybe we should use that word existence. His existence expectancy is forever. And the punishment for his sins is that he is to endure the wrath of God forever.

Now we see that. I think sending a man to jail for the rest of his natural life is directly analogous to God's statement of everlasting damnation.

But look. We've talked quite awhile together, and we should give someone else an opportunity. Thank you so much for calling. Good night.

MATTHEW

Christ Came to "Bring a Sword" in Matthew 10:35 (100B)

CALLER: Would you explain Matthew 10:35?

HC: In Matthew 10:34 we read: "Do not think that I have come to bring peace on earth. I have not come to bring peace but a sword." And then verse 35 goes on: "For I have come to set a man against his father, and a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law. And man's foes will be those of his own household."

Now, you see, when we are unsaved, we are at peace with our unsaved friends and neighbors and loved ones, because we're all citizens of the same kingdom. We're of the kingdom of Satan, and we together are antagonistic toward Christ. But among ourselves, while we might fight and squabble and quarrel amongst ourselves, basically we are at peace with each other, and our common foe is the kingdom of Christ. That is the nature of the world. The unsaved are the slaves of Satan, and Satan is the bitter enemy of Christ.

Now if I'm in that kind of a situation, and now I become saved, I have changed my allegiance. I have moved into the other country that we have been at war with, and have become a citizen of the other country, namely, a citizen of the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ. And so I am no longer at peace with my friends and my loved ones. I'm at war with them. I have joined the enemy.

And it may be that I'll have to leave my family. In some lands there is great tolerance toward the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. And you can be the only one who is saved in your household. But in other lands, this would not be possible at all. In many lands, if you become a born again believer, you will be ostracized by your village. You will be driven out of your family. You cannot remain.

And then you've got to make the decision. Do I love father and mother more than Christ, so that I can't stand to leave them, I'm going to turn in my resignation to Christ, which shows that I've never been saved? Or do I love Christ more than my family, so that I'm willing to be ostracized, I'm willing to be run out of town, so to speak, for the sake of Christ?

And so verse 37 goes on: "He who loves father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me. And he who loves son or daughter more than Me is not worthy of Me. And he who does not take his cross and follow Me is not worthy of Me." And the cross that we take is the suffering that we will experience as we live for Christ. And it's the cross that we take as we crucify the flesh and its desires, the things that appeal to our eye, to the lusts of the flesh, which we must put to death in our life.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

How Does Christ Deny Men in Matthew 10:33? (100D)

CALLER: Would you explain Matthew 10:33?

HC: Matthew 10:33. There we read: "Whoever denies Me before men, I will also deny before My Father Who is in Heaven."

Now, you see, we are supposed to be ambassadors of Christ, if we are born again. We represent Christ. We therefore are going to be carrying the Gospel to others. We're going to be living as Christians, as citizens of God's kingdom. And that's why it says in verse 32: "So everyone who acknowledges Me before men, I also will acknowledge before My Father Who is in Heaven."

We are identified with Christ. We are those whose sins have been covered by Christ's blood. And therefore we are valid ambassadors of Christ.

Now on the other hand, if we are unsaved, then we are not going to be ambassadors of Christ. We are going to be denying Christ. Oh, we may talk about Christ. We may be trying to live like the Bible tells us to live. But if we're not born again, actually our purpose for our relationship to Christ is not to glorify Him, but it's because we are in it for ourselves in some way. We are trying to get to Heaven by our good works, or whatever.

And this effectively is a denial of Christ. And therefore we continue to be denied by Christ in Heaven. We have not come to that born again relationship. We have not become a new creature as yet.

Blessed are the Poor in Spirit in Matthew 5:3 (130C)

CALLER: I have a question about Matthew 5:3, where it says, "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven." I would like you to explain that, and I'd like the answer on the air please.

HC: All right. Fine. The question that is raised is the matter of Matthew 5:3. In Matthew 5:3 we read, "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven." What does God mean by "Blessed are the poor in spirit"?

You see, in Psalm 51 we read, "A broken and a contrite heart I will not despise." Before we are saved, and this is true of natural man wherever we find him, natural man is very proud in his spirit. He really thinks that he is in control of his life. He really thinks that he is the master of his fate, the captain of his soul. Whether he's a rich man or a poor man, whether he's an intelligent man or a less intelligent man, whether he's young or old, whatever it is, there is a natural pride that is part of man's nature, so that in his spirit he is actually arrogant against God. He doesn't recognize God at all. He really believes that he is in control.

Only when we realize the sad truth about ourselves, that we are not so great after all, as a matter of fact, we are in deep and terrible trouble with God, we are spiritually bankrupt, we are under the wrath of God, we've messed everything up, every action we've ever taken has been sinful and this has only loaded on the guilt and increased the penalty that we must pay, namely, that the wages of sin is death, and so we are really in terrible trouble, and so our spirit has been broken, we are poor in spirit, there is no self-pride anymore, do we come penitently to God. We come humbly before God and sue for His mercy. We beseech Him, "Oh God, have mercy on me. I'm a sinner."

Only when we actually come to that state of mind in our life, in one person it is more real in its expression in his life than in another. But ultimately everyone who is born again must come to that realization, that he is spiritually bankrupt. And only when we come to this are we going to be on the threshold of salvation. And here is the promise: "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven."

The Kingdom of Heaven is that wonderful wonderful kingdom that we enter when we are saved. Our homeland is Heaven when we are born again. And the entrance into Heaven is not on our merit, not by our worthiness, not because we are justly proud of anything that we are. Our entrance into Heaven is because we have become totally aware and have recognized and have admitted the sad fact that we are bankrupt, that we are in terrible trouble with God, and we are ready to throw ourselves on His mercy.

On Being Least in the Kingdom of God in Matthew 11:11 (136A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. Good to talk to you again. I'm puzzled about the verse that says that John the Baptist is least in the Kingdom of God. It would appear from the context that there were others among the disciples that would be above John in the Kingdom. I can't quite see a class distinction in the Kingdom, and yet I am puzzled.

HC: In Matthew 11:11 we read, "Truly I say to you, among those born of woman there has risen no one greater than John the Baptist. Yet he who is least in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he." And the question is: Why is John the Baptist called greater than anyone else that had come before? And why does it go on and say that he who is least in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he?

I think we can immediately see why John the Baptist is called greater than anyone before. The prophets in the Old Testament longed to see this salvation. They announced the coming of the Messiah. They prophesied concerning the coming of the Messiah. And now John the Baptist finally arises. And he has the distinct honor and privilege of being the one who is on the scene to announce that the Messiah has actually come. He is the last, if you will, of the Old Testament prophets, because he definitely is on the Old Testament side of the cross. And he is actually the one who has been given the privilege of baptizing Jesus, of providing the ceremonial waters so that Jesus might be ceremonially cleansed, so He can go about His job as the High Priest who will offer the Lamb, and that is Himself.

And so in that sense John the Baptist is greater. Now when it says, "Yet he who is least in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he," there are two possibilities as to what this means. It can be talking about the most humble Christian who comes on the scene after the cross, after John the Baptist. Every born again believer, after the cross, is qualified to be a witness. He is a prophet just as definitely as John the Baptist was, or Isaiah or Jeremiah. And we have the distinct privilege of declaring that Christ has gone to the cross, and He has risen again. We have the full story to tell, which no Old Testament prophet could tell. And so in that sense it could mean this, that the most humble Christian is greater than John the Baptist. Now that's one possibility.

The other possibility is that sometimes the language of being "least in the Kingdom of Heaven" is synonymous with being under the condemnation of hell (not always, but sometimes). We read in Matthew 5:19, "Whoever then relaxes one of the least of these commandments and teaches men so shall be called least in the Kingdom of Heaven. But he who does them and teaches them shall be called great in the Kingdom of Heaven."

Now in Matthew 18:6 we read, "If anyone causes one of these little ones who believe in Me to sin, it would be better for him to have a great millstone fastened around his neck and to be drowned in the depth of the sea." Now if we are teaching commandments that are contrary to the Word of God, then we are causing a little one to stumble, and it shows that we are subject to hell.

And so the term "least in the Kingdom of Heaven" can be talking about someone who is subject to hell. Now when Christ came, He became sin for us. He became one who became subject to hell and went to the cross on our behalf.

And so in that sense it could be that it's talking about the Lord Jesus Christ, who of course is greater than John the Baptist, although He was least in the Kingdom of Heaven, in that sense, that He endured hell.

However, I tend to lean toward the first possibility rather than the second, although either one has biblical possibility.

CALLER: Thank you very much. I appreciate your Question and Answer program very much, and I appreciate that you're always referring us back to the Lord Jesus Christ.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

The Two Genealogies of Christ in Matthew 1 and Luke 3 (136C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. In Matthew 1 and in Luke 3 we have two different accounts of the ancestors of Christ. And I'd like to know why they are different, and also, if the one in Luke is complete. It seems like kind of a short span of time. And I'd like to know if it is complete or not, and the comparison between the two, why they are different.

HC: Okay. Your question deals with the differences that exist between the two genealogies we find in the Bible concerning Jesus. We find one in Matthew 1, that begins with Abraham and goes down through to Joseph. And the other one begins with Adam (that's found in Luke 3), and goes all the way through to Heli, who is not Joseph.

Now when you study these two genealogies, you will find that they are identical from Abraham to David. You'll find the same names. But from David on, you will find a radical departure. In Matthew's genealogy, it goes through Solomon, through Rehoboam, Abijah, Asa, Jehoshaphat, all of the kings of Judah, right through to Jeconiah, and then from Jeconiah through some other names, all the way through Joseph.

Now in Luke's genealogy, it goes to David. And then it doesn't name another king. It goes to Nathan, who was a brother of Solomon, and goes right on through the whole series of other names, coming to Heli. And so this is the genealogy, in Luke 3, of Mary. The one in Matthew is the genealogy of Joseph, who was not the father of Jesus.

CALLER: The one in Luke goes all the way back to Adam.

HC: Yes. Because it is the genealogy of Jesus, and it relates Jesus to Adam. It carries all the way through the whole human race. It really begins with God, because it speaks of Adam, the son of God, and goes all the way through. Now it doesn't mean that every single name in the genealogical line-up has been named. There are one or two or three that are absent, as we compare with other Scriptures. And I think there may be several reasons for this. But one of the reasons is that in so doing you end up with exactly 77 names in that genealogical table. And seven is the number of the perfection of God's plan. And therefore I think, in that sense, it was contrived. That is, the names are named, and enough have been left out to end up with 77, to emphasize that number seven in that context.

And also, incidentally, Jesus was born at the end of the eleventh millennium. There were 11,000 years before Christ, and it was right at that time that Christ was born. And so you find the number eleven featured and the number seven featured in the number 77.

CALLER: Thank you. Good night.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

The Rich Young Man in Matthew 19 (212B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'd like to ask a question about Luke 3:11 and also the passage that talks about the rich young ruler whom Christ told to sell everything and to follow Him. How can we relate this to today's life? How should we as Christians relate it to our lives today?

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you.

The question is raised concerning Luke 3:11. There we read, "He who has two coats, let him share with him who has none. And he who has food, let him do likewise." This is John the Baptist who is speaking to the people who are coming to him as he preaches the gospel of repentance. And he is saying that they are to start loving their neighbors. They are to start sharing.

Jesus said in another place that we must "love our neighbor as ourselves." Now God has put within our being a self-love, which is part of God's program, so that we will preserve ourselves. We're always a little extra careful that we aren't going to get hurt, if we're doing something. We're always careful to make sure that all is going to go well with us. And God wants us to have an equal concern for others.

And here it is put in the language, "If you have two coats and you meet with someone who has none, then share with him what you have," because if he does not have a coat, then he is in real trouble. He can't meet the cold. Now ultimately there's a deeper meaning here. The fact is, God has lavished the Gospel upon us.

And we have been clothed with the robe of Christ's righteousness. And now we meet someone who is unsaved. He stands spiritually naked before God. And we are to be ready to share this marvelous Gospel that God has lavished upon us. We are to share with him, so that he too might become saved, so that he too, if he is exercised by it, might be clothed by the robe of Christ's righteousness.

And notice the second phrase: "And he who has food, let him do likewise." And when we are saved, we have come into an abundant harvest of food, as we feed on the Lord Jesus Christ. The Word of God is the Bread of Life. And we meet someone who is unsaved. They are spiritually famished. They are dying of malnutrition, because they have no spiritual food to eat. And we very generously are to share this. In a real sense this is getting right to the responsibility of the believer to be available to share the Gospel, to make all that he has available to share the Gospel.

Now this gets us into this matter of the rich young ruler. The rich young ruler was a young man who really thought that he was rich in his good works. He was rich physically, too. But he was also rich in his good works. When Jesus asked him what he had to do to have eternal life, he said that one has to keep the commandments. And he answered, "I've kept all of these from my youth."

In other words, he was very satisfied that he was worthy before God. Probably he was seeking a commendation from Christ, looking upon Christ only as a Rabbi, where Christ as a Rabbi would say, "My, you're a fine young man. And certainly God ought to be grateful to have you in the Kingdom. You are rich in your good works, even as you are rich in your money."

But Christ, of course, has come with a different kind of salvation. We are not saved by our good works. We are not saved by our personal worthiness. The Bible teaches that even our best works are "as filthy rags." If we have committed even just one sin, we stand guilty of hell. And the only way we can ever get into Heaven would be, first of all, to spend an eternity in hell. And since eternity is forever, we would never make it into Heaven.

And so anyone at all who thinks that he's rich in good works, who thinks that he's really worthy before God, is in deep and terrible trouble. And so Christ has to show this young man that he is in trouble, that he is not qualified at this point, in any way, to go into Heaven.

And so He says, "Sell all that you have and give to the poor, and come and follow Me." Now there's a two-pronged implication here. First of all, Christ is talking about physical riches. In another place, in Luke's Gospel, we find the same kind of a statement to all of us. It's bad enough when we read it about the rich young ruler, but actually God is giving this command to all of us.

In verse 32 of Luke 12: "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom. Sell your possessions and give alms (that is, give to those who are poor). Provide yourselves with purses that do not grow old, with a treasure in the heavens that does not fail, where no thief approaches and no moth destroys. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

In other words, Christ is effectively saying, "Make your possessions available to the spiritually poor." He's not talking about the physically poor. He's talking about the spiritually poor, because these are the ones to whom we bring the Gospel. We are stewards of God, ambassadors of God, to get the Gospel out. And we are to make everything that we have as available as possible to bring the Gospel.

And so there is this physical sense, therefore, that we must understand when Christ replied to the rich young ruler that he was to sell his possessions and give to the poor. He was to make himself a disciple of Christ by this obedience, that is, by placing his trust in Christ. And he was to make himself totally available, that all that he had might be ready to be of service to God in bringing the Gospel to others.

But there was another sense that God had in view here. "Sell all that you have and give to the poor, and come and follow Me." In other words, your riches are not going to get you into Heaven, your rich deeds, your good works. That isn't going to get you anywhere, except to hell. You strip yourself of all of this. You come as a spiritually bankrupt sinner before God. None of these good works are meaningful at all. Christ did not come to call the righteous, that is, the self-righteous. He came to call sinners to repentance. And when you have become spiritually stripped of anything that you think is good or worthy, then you're going to be ready to follow Me. Then you're going to be ready to understand the salvation which I have to offer.

And the young man went away "exceedingly sorrowful, because he had great possessions." On both counts he was still trusting in his good works. He liked his physical riches too much. He was not ready to surrender his will to Christ as King and Lord of his life.

Now if we're going to be born again, we must be ready to obey Him. We must count the cost of discipleship. The cost of discipleship means that we have to turn our back on the world. Our security no longer is in the things of this world. Our security is no longer in the pursuit of pleasure and all of these things that are so attractive to unsaved men. Our security is going to be in Christ. We're going to find that we're to live as strangers and pilgrims here. We're just passing through.

But we also are going to find that we have a real task, a real mandate. We are to be stewards of all that Christ has given us, so that we might share that Gospel with others to the very highest possible degree.

And if we're not ready to face this kind of life, it means that we're not ready to belong to Christ. We have not really understood what it means to call upon God for mercy and to repent of our sins and trust in Christ only.

Witnessing to Children — The "Little Ones" in Matthew 18:14 (247A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Brother Camping, I have a question concerning children. I do child evangelism work. On the basis of Matthew 18:14, what do you think of that message? Secondly, assume that you went to a village and there were ten children there, and you saw those children, and you knew that you never would pass that way again. What would you do about their salvation? I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you.

Let's answer the second question first. Suppose that you came to a village, and there were ten children, and this is the only time that you would ever be able to be with them. What would you try to do concerning their salvation?

Of course the first thing that you would do would be to begin to pray that God would give you wisdom, and that God would give you an open door to speak with them. These children might be so occupied with their play, with their preoccupation with the things they are doing, they don't even want to listen to you. So first of all, you have to pray that God might bring their attention to what you have to say.

Secondly, as you pray, you want to pray that what word you brought to them would be applied to their heart by the Holy Spirit, by God the Holy Spirit. We have the promise that God's Word will not return void, but it will accomplish the purpose for which it was sent. And so you would also beseech the Lord that His purpose in this case might not be the purpose of judgment, not be the purpose of a savor of death unto death, but that it might be a savor of life unto life.

And so then you would begin to look for opportunity to speak with these children. Now the message of salvation is one. There's not one message of salvation for adults and another for youngsters. There's not one message of salvation for people with an intellectual mind and another for someone else. When we read the Bible, we find that God has one Gospel, and that Gospel is that we are in trouble with God. We are sinners.

And we can talk to children about sin. They know that there is wrongdoing. And they know about punishment. They know about justice. They know that if someone has done wrong, then there has to be punishment. And so, of course using language that they can understand, we can tell them about the fact that all men are sinners, and that there is a God in Heaven. And of course even before we begin talking about sin, it might be well to talk about God in Heaven. And that is easily a conversation opener, as we make reference to the beautiful flowers in the garden or the fragrance of the roses that are nearby, or the song of the bird that is singing in the trees, or any other object that reveals the glorious God in creation.

And from there we can go into the fact that God created man too, and that man has rebelled against God, that man is a sinner. And these children can know this, when you see how often you disobey your parents, how you feel anger in your heart when your mother asks you to help with the dishes, and what have you.

Now the Bible gives very solemn truth concerning this. It says that we must be punished for our sins. And this is something that is a terrible thing. But there is a way that you can know the love of God. There is a way that you can really pass up any kind of punishment for your sins, and that is if you'll place your trust in the wonderful Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ. And then you can begin to talk about how God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life.

Now I'm not sure that you would have the attention of all ten children throughout this lengthy discourse. There might be one or two who really become eager, who really are listening with rapt attention. There might be more than one or two. And you will really sense that the Word of God perhaps has found root somehow in the hearts of these youngsters.

Now concerning Matthew 18:14, if we read this and isolate it from the rest of the Bible, which is a typical thing that we do if we're not reading the Bible carefully, we would arrive at the conclusion that every little one is going to be saved, because it says here, "It is not the will of My Father who is in Heaven that one of these little ones should perish." Now that says very plainly that it's God's program that every child be saved.

Now immediately, however, having said that, we sense that that cannot be the full story, because we look all around and we see people who are grown, and they're not saved. In fact, most of our friends, and most of the people around us, are not saved. And they were all once babies. There isn't a man living today that didn't start out as a baby.

Also we have learned, as we've studied the Bible, that once we are a child of God, once we are born again, once we have eternal life (and all of this is required in order to be saved, in order to be right with God, in order to go to Heaven), then we will never perish. We have eternal life. And so we immediately sense, "Boy, there has to be another meaning to this. It can't mean that, that it's God's program that every little one is going to go to Heaven, because then all the grown people would be saved, because once we are born again we can't lose that salvation."

But even if we didn't think of that, we still must examine this in the light of the context. And when we just look at the context, we find that God isn't really talking about little children. He's not talking about physical babies. We go back to verse 1 of Matthew 18: "At that time the disciples came to Jesus, saying, 'Who is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven?'" Now that's the question Christ is going to answer in these first 14 verses. "And calling to Him a child, He put him in the midst of them and said, 'Truly I say to you, unless you turn and become like children . . .'" In other words, He's making the child the parable, if you will. He's making the child the historical fact, but he's using that child as an illustration of the way we must become in order to be born again, the same as He healed the blind man. Even though He healed the blind man of a physical ailment, He's showing by this the fact that God has the power to heal us of our spiritual blindness. There is the salvation side of the story that is being unfolded when God does a miracle.

Now here, too. Here is the physical side of the story. Here is a little child, sitting on Jesus' lap, or standing there in the midst of the disciples. And now Christ is going to unfold the spiritual story, the salvation aspect of this physical demonstration. And He says, "Truly I say to you, unless you turn and become like children, you shall never enter the Kingdom of Heaven. Whoever humbles himself like this child, he is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven."

And so now He is saying, therefore, that anyone who is to become born again must be like a child. That is, even as the child has a naive trust in his parents, he has a wide eyed astonishment at the creation of the world all around him, he is simple in his beliefs, and so on, so we spiritually are to have a naive, child-like trust in God. We are to have wide-eyed astonishment in our eyes as we see the wonders of God's love, of His saving love. We are to walk humbly and simply before God, even as a child does. A child knows he's a child, and does not put on airs. He does not ordinarily try to arrogate for himself the standing of an adult. But he is a very humble personality, as compared with people in general.

And so it is as a born again believer. We must be humble. We must walk humbly, with that child-like trust. And so now He goes on in verse 5, and says, "Whoever receives one such child in My Name receives Me." Now He's talking about those who become born again believers. He's not talking about physical children now, although they can be included. They too can be saved. But the focal point has shifted very quickly from this child to the born again believer, who must be like a child. "Whoever receives one such child in My Name receives Me. But whoever causes one of these little ones who believes in Me to sin, it would be better for him to have a great millstone fastened around his neck and to be drowned in the depths of the sea."

In other words, make sure that if you are teaching those who are children of God, those who are born again believers, make sure that you are teaching Bible truth. Otherwise you're going to have to do some reckoning with God.

And finally, let's go down to verse 10: "See that you do not despise one of these little ones." Which little ones? Well, the born again believers, those who belong to the Lord Jesus Christ, regardless of whether they're young or old. "For I tell you that in Heaven their angels always behold the face of My Father who is in Heaven." In other words, this is picking up the story of Psalm 91, that He gives His angels charge over us.

Now notice how in verse 12 God very neatly emphasizes again that He's talking about born again believers, because now He goes on and says, "What do you think? If a man has a hundred sheep, and one of them is gone astray, does he not leave the ninety-nine on the hills and go in search of the one that went astray? If he finds it, truly I say to you, he rejoices over it more than over the ninety-nine that never went astray. So it is not the will of My Father who is in Heaven that one of these little ones should perish." You see? He's talking about the whole message of salvation. The lost sheep is anyone who is becoming born again. And these are the little ones that Christ came to seek and to save. God has chosen us in Christ from before the foundations of the world, and it's not His will that we are to perish. He is going to seek for us, and He's going to find us.

I'm reminded of Ezekiel 34, where God said in verse 15, "I Myself will be the Shepherd of My sheep, and I will make them lie down, says the Lord God. I will seek the lost, and I will bring back the strayed, and I will bind up the crippled. And I will strengthen the weak. And the fat and the strong I will watch over. I will feed them in justice."

Thank you so much for that call.

"Least in the Kingdom of Heaven" in Matthew 5:19 and 11:11 (262A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I would like you to explain Matthew 5:19 and then Matthew 11:11.

HC: In Matthew 5:19 we read, "Whoever then relaxes one of the least of these commandments, and teaches men so, shall be called least in the Kingdom of Heaven. But he who does them and teaches them shall be called great in the Kingdom of Heaven." And then in Matthew 11:11: "Truly I say to you, among those born of woman there has risen no one greater than John the Baptist. Yet he who is least in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he."

Now the question that is raised is concerning this phrase "least in the Kingdom of Heaven."

In Matthew 5:19 it is stating here that someone who is frustrating God's will, who is teaching something contrary to the will of God, shall be called "least in the Kingdom of Heaven." And he, on the other hand, who is obedient to the will of God, and who is teaching this, shall be called great in the Kingdom of Heaven.

Now how does this relate to Matthew 11, where John the Baptist is spoken of in very high and glowing terms by Christ, and yet He goes on and says that he who is "least in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he"?

Well, let's look at one more verse, and that's in Matthew 18. That also impinges on this question. In Matthew 18:6 we read, "Whoever causes one of these little ones who believes in Me to sin, it would be better for him to have a great millstone fastened round his neck, and to be drowned in the depths of the sea."

Now I read Matthew 18:6 because it relates to Matthew 5:19, which is speaking about someone who is frustrating the commandments of God, and actually teaching something contrary to the will of God, thereby causing people to sin.

So we know immediately that from one standpoint the Bible is speaking of those who are under the curse of God as being the "least in the Kingdom of Heaven."

We immediately sense how this ties together. But then how are we to understand Matthew 11:11? Here He says, "He who is least in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he."

If we follow this line of reasoning, that someone who is least in the Kingdom of Heaven is someone who is under the curse of God, and subject to hell, then we would have to conclude that Matthew 11:11 is speaking of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Actually, the Lord Jesus Christ, who is identified with the Kingdom of Heaven, in that He became the King of the Kingdom of Heaven, is also identified with the Kingdom of Heaven by the fact that He descended into hell in order to become the King of the Kingdom of Heaven. He became under the curse of God. He became more sinful than any single individual in the world, because He became loaded with the sins of all who would ever believe in Him.

And so while John the Baptist is called very great here in Matthew 11:11, in that he is a prophet who has been invited to announce the Lord Jesus Christ and who prepared Christ for His ministry in that he baptized Him (he therefore was signally honored, and is called greater than anyone who had come before), and yet Christ, who went to hell, who became sin for us, is greater than John the Baptist. And you'll remember that John the Baptist is the one who said, "I must decrease, but Christ must increase." John the Baptist sensed this very definitely.

Now that's one way of answering the question of Matthew 11:11, and answering it in the light of two other passages that clearly indicate that someone who is least in the Kingdom of Heaven is someone who is corporately a citizen of God's Kingdom but is not born again, and is actually cursed by God. He's headed for hell. And the proof of this is that he is teaching that which is contrary to the Word of God.

But now there's another way of looking at this, and we must also examine that for just a moment, so that we'll get everything possible that the Bible speaks about in relationship to this kind of a question.

In Luke 9:48 we read, "Whoever receives this child in My Name receives Me. And whoever receives Me receives Him who sent Me. For he who is least among you all is the one who is great." Now God is speaking of someone who is least, not in the sense that He used in Matthew 5, but in the sense of someone who is humble in the Kingdom of Heaven, who has humbled himself, and who realizes that whatever he is it is in Christ. This now is not talking about someone who is merely a citizen of God's Kingdom corporately, that is, because he has joined the church, one who is organizationally identified with the Kingdom of Christ. But rather it is someone who is personally born from above. Personally he has become a child of God. And in his humility he is looked upon as one who is "least among you." Putting it in another way, the Bible says, "He who is last shall be first," and so on. This conveys the same kind of an idea.

Now if this is the direction that Matthew 11:11 is going, then we would arrive at this kind of a conclusion, that while John the Baptist is the greatest of the Old Testament prophets, inasmuch as he was privileged to be the actual announcer of the Lord Jesus Christ, in a very literal way, all the Old Testament prophets looked forward to the coming of the Messiah, but John the Baptist was raised up by God to actually be present to point out to the world, "Behold, the Lamb of God" yet the born again believer who comes after John the Baptist, he who is walking humbly before the Lord because he is a child of God (I'm using the language of Luke 9:48 now) is greater than John the Baptist, in this sense - in the sense that John the Baptist could announce the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, but we are privileged to declare that Christ has come and actually announced to the world the finished work of Christ, that He went to the cross. He overcame death. He endured hell for our sins. And He rose again. And He ascended back to the Father. And He is coming again. This is detail that John the Baptist was not knowledgeable of.

And so in that sense we have a far greater privilege and task than John the Baptist. He announced the fact that Jesus had come. We announce the fact that He not only had come, but that He went to the cross, and He actually provided the atonement. And we have all the details concerning this.

Now I'm not really certain which is these two explanations is the one that God has in view. Perhaps He has both, because Christ of course is identified very intimately with the Christian. At least both explanations have Biblical validity.

But thank you for that question.

Understanding Matthew 24 (305B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I'm reading Matthew 24, and it's a little puzzling. And according to this New American Standard, it says, "See that no one misleads you," and that there will be wars and rumors of wars, and tribulation, and false prophets will arise, lawlessness, and so on.

And down farther it says, "Let him who is on the housetop not go down," and "Woe be to those who are with child," and "Pray that your flight not be in winter or on the Sabbath." Now the way I figure that out, that can't be the last days.

HC: Why can it not be the last days?

CALLER: If it would be the last days, why would it tell you not to come down off the housetop, and "Woe be to those who are with child"? Because if it was the very last days, what difference would it make where you were?

HC: First of all, immediately when we read these passages, we start thinking about a particular moment in time. But look at Luke 17. Leave your finger in Matthew 24. And if you turn to Luke 17, where Jesus is talking about Judgment Day itself, He's using as a figure the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah. And you'll remember that Lot and his family were driven out of Sodom and Gomorrah. And right on the heels of them leaving Sodom and Gomorrah, fire and brimstone were rained down on these cities, and they were destroyed. The fact is, Lot's wife looked back, and she was enveloped in that very destruction.

Now notice what it says, in verse 29 of Luke 17: "But the same day that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed them all. Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed. In that day he which shall be upon the housetop, and his stuff in the house, let him not come down to take away. And he that is in the field, let him likewise not turn back. Remember Lot's wife."

You see, God is not talking here about taking time to go down into the house. He's really talking about an attitude. What was Lot's wife's interest in?

CALLER: She was interested in the city. That's why she turned around.

HC: Yes. She was more concerned about the things of this world than she was about a right relationship with God. And she was consumed in the judgment.

So at the Last Day, when Christ comes again, if we are still worshipping the creation, which the unsaved man does (he finds his security, his joy, his hope, in the things of this world) if that is our attitude, that we find our hope, our joy, our security, in the things of this world, we are going to be consumed in the Judgment Day, even as Lot's wife was.

This language, of not going down into the house, is not speaking about us literally standing on the roof of the house and running down. From this context we learn that it is really addressing itself to the question of where is our love, where is our concern?

Lot's wife's concern was in the things in her home, in the city that she lived in. She couldn't bear to leave them. And because of this attitude, she was consumed in the judgment. If our attitude, when Christ comes again, is that kind of an attitude, we also will still be subject to judgment.

CALLER: Yes, I can see that. But why would it speak about, "Woe to those who are with child"?

HC: Well, again, we have a commentary on that in the Gospel of Luke. Remember when Jesus was carrying the cross? And as He carried the cross, the women cried out after Him. And then Jesus turned on them and said, in Luke 23:28, "Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for Me, but weep for yourselves and for your children. For behold, the days are coming in the which they shall say, 'Blessed are the barren and the wombs that never bare, and the paps that never gave suck.' Then shall they begin to say to the mount; ins, 'Fall on us,' and to the hills, 'Cover us.'" Now in Luke 23, just as in Luke 17, Christ equated going down into the house with the very moment when Judgment Day had come. So here He is equating the language of "Blessed are the barren" (or in other words, "Blessed are those who do not have children") with Judgment Day, because "Then shall they begin to say to the mountains, 'Fall on us,' and to the hills, 'Cover us.'" From Revelation 6:15 or 16, we know that that is the time when Christ comes, and the unsaved are in mortal fear of Him, and will be calling to the rocks to crush them and the hills to cover them.

Actually, again Christ is teaching here an attitude. You see, there are a couple of factors in view here. First of all, an unsaved parent couldn't care less about his children, insofar as how they are going to be brought up spiritually. And yet he has a certain love and concern for his children.

Now remember in Sodom and Gomorrah. What happened to the babies there? They were destroyed. What happened in the Flood of Noah's day? What happened to the babies? They were destroyed. Now can't you see a parent that has children, and Judgment Day has come, and suddenly he realizes that he has done nothing to, it's bad enough that he himself must be thrown into hell, under the wrath of God. But what an awful thing to know that his family, his whole family, is going to go there. It's just going to add to the turmoil and the awfulness of his predicament. It would be far better if he had no children, if he had no responsibility toward these.

You see, Judgment Day is the final moment. There's no escape, there's no turning around, there's no more time to correct any past mistakes. He has made no effort to train his children in the fear and the knowledge of the Lord. He has made no effort to bring them the Gospel. And their eternal destiny, in all likelihood, is going to be very similar to his own.

CALLER: Well, that's the reason I wondered. I know it's supposed to be in the twinkling of an eye. And why would you worry about coming down off the housetop to get your coat?

HC: You see it's not talking about an actual thing that we would do, but it's talking about an attitude, the same as when it talks about, "Pray that your flight will not be in winter." Now again, a "flight in winter"? That talks about an escape of some kind.

You see, Jesus equates His coming with summertime, in Matthew 24:32. "Now learn a parable of the fig tree. When its branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, you know that summer is nigh. So likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the door."

Okay. Christ is equating His coming with summertime. Now anyone who is not ready is not seeing that it is summertime, that it is time for Christ's return. They are as if they are in winter. They are still thinking that it's a long time before Christ will return, or at least, whatever they're thinking, they're not ready for His return. They are like those who are in winter. Only the true believer will be like those who are in summer. We will know that it is time. We will be ready at any moment that that might happen.

CALLER: There were a few things in there that kind of had me baffled. And another one was verse 30, when it says, "All the tribes of the earth will mourn." Well, the tribes of the Jews were not considered tribes, and I thought it was speaking more about the fall of Jerusalem, or something like that.

HC: No. In verse 30, where it says, "All the tribes of the earth will mourn," look at the language carefully. "All the tribes of the earth will mourn." That is, this is another way of saying, all the nations of the world, all the peoples of the world, will mourn.

Now why will they mourn? Well, Revelation 6 tells us why they will mourn, why they will weep. Because Judgment Day has come. They will be in terrible trouble. In hell they will weep and gnash their teeth. And already, just anticipating judgment, there will be great weeping, because the time of retribution has arrived. It will be a terrible, terrible moment for those who are unsaved. Words cannot describe the awfulness of Christ's return for the unsaved.

CALLER: Well, I just wondered, because Matthew 24 is quite a chapter to study.

HC: Well, you know, I remember years ago, when I had not worked as long in the Bible as I have at the present, I struggled with Matthew 24. Of course I read whatever commentaries I could lay my hands on, and I found that virtually every commentary related Matthew 24, at least to a high degree, to the fall of Jerusalem in AD 70. And so for a long time, for several years, I tried to piece through Matthew 24, to identify. What verse refers to AD 70, and what verse refers to the return of Christ? And I always had great difficulties.

I must confess that as I have continued to study the Word, and compare scripture with scripture, and just generally become more acquainted.

You know, you keep reading and reading and reading. And pretty soon you get a little better idea of the way God speaks, I suppose. But at any rate, presently I am altogether convinced, altogether convinced, that Matthew 24 does not have AD 70 in view at all, not a bit, that the whole chapter of Matthew 24 has the end of time in view. It begins this way, and it goes all the way through.

Remember, already in Matthew 24:3, "And as He sat upon the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, saying, 'Tell us. What shall these things be, and what shall be the sign of Thy coming and of the end of the world?'" And that sets the context of Matthew 24. It's the end of the world.

CALLER: This says, "the end of the age."

HC: Or the end of the age. But you see, elsewhere in the Bible we read that the New Testament period is the end of the ages. We are the last days, the whole New Testament period. Remember Hebrews 1:1?: "In these last days He has spoken by His Son." Now before the coming of Christ we have the period from Adam until the Flood, which actually works out to be a little over 6000 years. And then we have a rather bleak period, from the Flood until Abraham is called out of Ur of the Chaldees, a period of about 3000 years. And then we have a period of about 2000 years, during which God dealt through the nation of Israel.

And now we come to the Christ, to the cross. And the Bible speaks about the "last days," or the "end of the ages." In Matthew 24:13 it says, "This Gospel must be preached to every nation, and then the end will come." So it's the end, you see.

CALLER: That's what's kind of confusing, if you haven't studied any more than I have. Another thing that threw me back to thinking it was Jerusalem was when it says, "Pray that your flight not be in winter or on the Sabbath." Well, if it was in winter, they had to hide in caves. Or if it was on the Sabbath, the Jews weren't allowed to travel. So they'd be stuck.

HC: But that isn't what's in view.

CALLER: You see, there's little things like that that crop up, that kind of had me a little bit confused.

HC: Well, join the party. These are not easy verses to understand. But I really believe that in these verses, "Pray that your flight be not in winter or on the Sabbath," "Do not go down into the house," that you will be included amongst those who will be saying, "Blessed are the barren," all four of these references are language that is being addressed to the question: Be careful that you are saved! All four of these are speaking of those who are unsaved, who are not ready.

Later on in Matthew 24 Jesus became more specific. He said in verse 42, "Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord cometh." And this is really the focal point. Be sure that you are ready. Be sure that you will not be included amongst the unsaved.

CALLER: Well, of course there are a lot of hidden things in here. If it was too plain, we'd never read it. We'd just read it once and put it down and say, "Oh, I understand that."

HC: Well, God has His own purposes for writing the way He did. That's for sure.

CALLER: That's what I mean. You have to search the scriptures daily.

HC: Exactly. That's what God wants us to do.

CALLER: You read a novel once, and you say, "Oh, I read that?" and put it back on the shelf, where you forget it. But this way, you have to keep searching. Anyway, that helps a lot. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

CALLER: Good night.

Who Was Mary Magdalene? (328F)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. My question is in regard to Mary Magdalene. Was she ever married, and who was it that condemned her, where Christ said, "Whoever is without sin can cast the first stone." I'll take my answer over the air.

HC: Thank you. Good night.

The question is concerning Mary Magdalene. Was she ever married, and is she the one about whom Jesus said, "Whosoever condemns thee, let him cast the first stone?"

We know this about Mary Magdalene, and this is all we know of her. She originally had seven demons within her. In other words, she was demon possessed. We know that later one she was saved. We know that she became a very personal friend of the Lord Jesus Christ, even as Mary and Martha and Lazarus, and Peter, and some of the others became very personal friends. We know that she is one of the first persons that the Lord Jesus greeted after He rose from the grave.

But beyond that, we don't know any more about Mary Magdalene. We don't know whether she ever did marry, whether she had ever been married before. We know nothing of whether she had ever been taken in adultery. The Bible is silent on all of those questions. All we know, however, is that before she was saved she actually was possessed by demons. She was firmly in the clutch of Satan, and she did become saved.

Now there was a woman that was taken in adultery, unnamed, her name is not given, as near as I recall. And the Jews brought her to Jesus, to test Jesus. They were trying to put Him on the spot. Now in the Old Testament the law declared that if any woman was taken in adultery, that woman was to be stoned to death, or a man likewise. Here Jesus came, claiming that the Bible, the Old Testament, was the Word of God and was to be obeyed. And so now they were going to test Him.

It was a test because under Roman law, under which the nation of Israel existed in the days of Jesus, no one could stone someone. That person had to have a trial, and that person had to be condemned by Roman authority. That's the reason Jesus was condemned to death by Pontius Pilate, the Roman ruler. And so they thought they were putting Jesus on the spot.

If He said, "Stone her," then He would disobey the Roman rulers. If He said, "Don't stone her," then He would be disobeying, they thought, the law of Moses. And so Jesus very neatly walked out of their trap. He wrote on the ground. What words He wrote we do not know, but we know that He is the lawgiver. He is the one who wrote the law. He is above the law, in other words.

When Jesus was writing on the ground with His finger, I think this is demonstrating the fact that Jesus is the Word of God. Then He said, "Whoso among you is without sin, let him cast the first stone." And in the presence of the lawgiver, they all stood condemned. They all stood condemned. No one could cast the first stone because there was no one there without sin. And so, to walk out of the snare that Jesus had turned against them, they thought they were going to box in Jesus, but He instead boxed them in. And so, one by one, they silently left, until finally Jesus looked up and said to the woman, "Who is there to condemn thee?"

Is Adultery Grounds For Divorce? — Understanding Matthew 19:9 (599B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'd like to know what is the difference between an annulment and a divorce?

HC: What is the difference between an annulment and a divorce? An annulment is supposed to be an action whereby it is recognized that a marriage has not taken place. For example, if someone had a marriage license to marry somebody, and yet officially they never became married, they never completed the legal procedures they had to follow, if a Justice of the Peace or a minister or somebody did not actually marry them, then they are not really married, and that marriage license could be annulled.

Or, let's suppose that someone was married by a minister of the Gospel, and they had a marriage license, but they never came together as husband and wife. Right after the marriage something happened so that they were separated, and they never did live together in the sexual union, even for a moment. Then a marriage did not really take place. And therefore it could be annulled.

But unfortunately, there are many annulments taking place today where in actuality there was a marriage. There was a marriage license, according to the eyes of the law they were married, and they lived together in sexual union. But to avoid the blight of calling it a divorce, it is called an annulment. But in that case the annulment is a divorce, and there really isn't any difference at all.

CALLER: But isn't there a reason to get a divorce in Matthew 19:9?

HC: The question is, doesn't Matthew 19:9 give us a reason for divorce? Well, if we took that at face value, if we isolated that verse from the rest of the Bible, it would appear to say that for the cause of fornication a divorce could take place.

Now the Greek word for fornication is pornea, from which we get the word pornographic. Now Jesus said in another place, if any man thinks adulterously about a woman, he already has committed adultery in his heart. Therefore, if anyone engages in any kind of conversation or thinking concerning pornographic material or action, he would already be guilty of fornication.

And that would mean that any woman who ever caught her husband telling a dirty story, which would be fornication, or looking at a "girlie" magazine, or making some remark that was an immoral remark, would have cause for divorce. And by the same token, any man who found the same kind of a thing in his wife, that she was repeating some story that was of a pornographic nature, he would have cause for divorce, if that is what that verse is saying.

In other words, there could be divorce all over the place, because who is there that is not guilty of fornication to some degree at some point in his life?

But this is not what that verse is teaching. This was a cause for divorce in the Old Testament. In Deuteronomy 24:1 we read that if a man found some uncleanness in his wife, he could put her away. Now the word uncleanness was normally translated nakedness, and it had to do with sexual impropriety, with sexual impurity. If some man engaged in a sexual action with his mother, let's say, it was said that he saw the nakedness of his mother, or of a brother or a sister. And the word nakedness is the same Hebrew word that is translated uncleanness in Deuteronomy 24:1.

So effectively what God is saying in Deuteronomy 24:1 is, if any man found any fornication in his wife, then he could put her away. Well, in Matthew 19:5 and 6 Jesus declared, "What God has joined together, let not man put asunder." There is not to be divorce for any reason. Well then, in verse 7 the Jews reminded Him and said, "What about Moses?" They were referring to Deuteronomy 24:1. "Didn't he allow divorce?"

And then Jesus answered them in verses 7 and 8, "From the beginning it was not so. But because of the hardness of your hearts God gave that law." In other words, because you were in rebellion against God, God allowed this, that if a man found fornication in his wife he could put her away. But that was not God's intention. "From the beginning it was not so."

And so in verses 7 and 8 God is very clearly indicating that fornication is not a cause for divorce. It had been a cause for divorce for a rebellious nation, that was in rebellion against God, but that was not pleasing to God. That was not God's will. And Christ is setting that possibility aside when He said, "What God has joined together, let not man put asunder."

And then in verse 9 Christ is simply saying, and there's no other reason except fornication, or besides fornication. He's already talked about fornication in verses 7 and 8. And there's no other reason besides fornication whereby you could have a divorce. There is no reason for divorce, in other words. And then He concludes the argument in verse 9 by saying, "If anyone marries a divorced person, they commit adultery." There is no grounds for divorce that the Bible knows about.

CALLER: None whatsoever?

HC: None whatsoever. The Biblical rule is, "What God has joined together, let not man put asunder." And no Christian marrying must know the word divorce. That ought to be a word that is unknown in his vocabulary.

CALLER: My mother has written down here for me something to ask you. Let me let her ask you this . . .

HC: Hello.

CALLER: Hello. Just because you've been married before a Justice of the Peace or a preacher, does this always mean that God has put you together, or sometimes can men put a couple together?

HC: Well, that's a good question. When God says, "What God has joined together, let not man put asunder," how can we know if a marriage is one that God has put together?

Well, notice that God goes all the way back to the beginning. He says that in the beginning the two became one flesh. In other words, He's talking about all of mankind. Therefore, regardless of whether we're a Christian or not, if we are married in accordance with the law of the land and if we are living together as husband and wife, then we are married in the eyes of God. If the law allows a marriage to be true, if it's by a Justice of the Peace or by a ship's captain, or whoever it is, then that is marriage, if they've come to live together.

You see, if that were not so, then we would have to conclude that the only people who are married in the eyes of God are those who are born again believers. Everyone else in the whole human race would not be married, because they're unsaved. How could that be what God has joined together?

But remember what Jesus said about the Samaritan woman in John 4? She was very unsaved. She was an adulterous woman. And Christ said, "You have had five husbands." And so He recognized marriage for those who were altogether unsaved, just as much as marriage for those who are saved.

CALLER: Thank you.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Parables Concerning Salvation in Mt 25 & Lu 17 (384B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. Would you explain Luke 17:10 and Matthew 25:29 & 30?

HC: In Matthew 25 we read, "For unto everyone that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance. But from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath. And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

Now this of course is the conclusion of the parable of the ten talents is it not? Actually, he gave one servant five talents, another two, and another one. And then the man with the five talents used his talents to gain five more, the one with two talents gained two more, and the one with one talent hid the talent and gained nothing from it. And then when the master came and they gave their account, then the lord commended the man with the five talents who had gained five more, He commended the man with the two talents who had gained two more. But He said of the one, "You should have put your money into business and gained additional. But instead you have hid it, and therefore you are to be cast into hell."

And then in that context He said, "Therefore take the talent and give it unto him which hath ten talents." Now the parable is talking about the offer of salvation that God gives to all men. He comes to some more abundantly than to others. But to the whole human race there is sufficient information, just in the fact that God has created this world so that man knows that he needs a Savior, that man knows that he's a sinner and that he ought to become right with God somehow.

The man with the one talent is like someone who is offered the way of salvation, or he knows that he ought to do something about his sins, but he does nothing about it. There is no fruit that comes from his life. He simply disregards the fact that he has to become right with God. And of course he is subject to hell. What blessings he did have on this earth because he enjoyed the blessings of creation, he enjoyed the blessings of being in a church, perhaps, or a Christian family, or whatever, all of this will be taken away from him, and he will be cast into hell. Whereas the man who responded to the Gospel, and his life became fruitful to the Gospel, God will lavish His blessings upon him, so that he becomes free from his sins, he becomes a son of God, he receives eternal life. He is an heir of all the blessings that God speaks of, all the promises that God speaks of in the Bible. The Bible just goes on and on about the marvelous blessings that come to those who become born again believers.

Now that's really, I believe, in a nutshell, the sense of this parable.

Now in Luke 17, what was the verse that you were concerned about? Verse 10?

There we again have a parable, where Christ is saying in verse 7: "But which of you having a servant plowing or feeding cattle will say unto him, by and by, when he comes from the field, Go and sit down and eat, and will not rather say unto him, Make ready wherewith I may sup, and gird thyself and serve me, until I have eaten and drunken. And afterward thou shalt eat and drink. Doth he thank that servant because he did the things that were commanded? I trow not. So likewise ye. When ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants. We have done that which was our duty to do."

Yes, there's a very distinct relationship to Matthew 25. We do not obey Christ and become a born again believer, that is, respond to the Gospel, become exercised by the Gospel and therefore receive eternal life because we deserve it. Nor do we receive all kinds of rewards on top of eternal life. We don't receive any of these things because we deserve it. We receive these things as an act of God's grace. It's totally an act of God's grace. Our response to the Gospel is what is to be expected when God the Father is drawing us, when He has become our Savior and Lord. It is the expected response. Under no circumstance is it a response that ought to bring credit to us or make us worthy, or give us the idea that now we're entitled to something just a little bit more than somebody else.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you so much for calling and sharing that. Good night.

"Whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth" in Mt 16:19 (394C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, Mr. Camping. I have a question. In Matthew 16:19 and in Matthew 18:18, in two different settings, it gives the words, whatsoever you shall loose on earth shall be loosed in Heaven. And I was wondering if that relates to John 20:23. And if so, what does it all mean? I'll take my answer over the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you very much. Good night.

The question is raised concerning the statements that we find in three places: Matthew 16, Matthew 18 and John 20:23. And indeed, these three passages are very much related.

In Matthew 16 Jesus has just asked the disciples, "Who do you say that I am?" And then Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." And then Jesus responded by saying, "Flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto you, but My Father which is in Heaven." And then He said, "Thou art Peter and upon this rock" This rock of course is the Lord Jesus Christ. He is the foundation. "I will build My church. And the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. And I will give unto thee the keys of the Kingdom, that whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in Heaven. And whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in Heaven."

Actually, the tense of the verb, I think, if read absolutely correctly, should read, "And whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall having been bound in Heaven, and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall having been loosed in Heaven."

You see, the keys of the Kingdom that God gives the church is the Gospel. Now these keys work in two directions. As we bring the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, there are those who are slaves of Satan, who are in Satan's prison house, if you will. And the Gospel is the key that unlocks that prison house, so that that individual is free to come out of Satan's kingdom.

But it is also the key that unlocks the gate into the Kingdom of God, into the body of Christ, if you will, into the holy eternal Jerusalem. They are the keys of the Kingdom. It is the Gospel that unlocks hell and opens up Heaven for those who respond to it.

Now the Gospel is a two-edged sword. It is never neutral. Never is it neutral. As it goes out it does one of two things. It either binds men more tightly in their sins. That is, they face the Gospel, but they don't want the Gospel. They don't want to leave their sins. They don't want to humble themselves before God. And therefore they stand under greater condemnation, so that they were already bound and now they are even bound more tightly in their sins.

Or the Gospel is the fragrance of the Lord so that it causes them to be freed, to be loosed from their sins, so that they are free to serve the Lord Jesus Christ. They become a child of God.

Actually, it is God who is ultimately doing the loosing and the binding. All the church really is, is the vehicle that God is using. We are the custodians, the stewards, of the Gospel. We share it, and it is God who applies it to the hearts of those who are listening. But the church takes credit in a real sense, because it is they who are the ambassadors of Christ as the Gospel goes forth.

The fact is, when someone does become saved, it is the church, the corporate body, as we find it amongst the congregations and denominations and groups of believers, which officially welcomes this person into the body of Christ. Now actually, he came into the body of Christ when he became born again. This is altogether the act of God. But to give official recognition to this, the church accepts this person into its membership, the church baptizes this person, the church hears the confession of this person that indeed he has become a child of God. It is ultimately, however, God who is doing it all.

Now we see the same thing in Matthew 18:18, and in John 20:23, where Christ indicates, "Whosoever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them, and whosoever sins ye retain, they are retained." That's saying the same thing in slightly different language. As we bring the Gospel, those who are exercised by the Gospel, as God applies the keys of the Kingdom to that person's life - their sins are remitted. Their sins are forgiven. And as for those whom God does not exercise, that is, who do not respond to the Gospel, their sins are retained. There is no change in their position before God. They still stand guilty before God with all of their sins.

Do Not Misapply the Bible & Mt 7:1 (413C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I have two questions, and I'll take my answer over the air. I'm a born again believer, and I'm living in Sacramento. But I went to live in Stockton with my aunt for a while. And I feel that God wanted me to come back to Sacramento. And so I was reading in the Bible, and it said, "Go now." And I prayed that God wouldn't want me to go to Sacramento again, because I was afraid. And then it said, "Go now or you will be cursed." And I just want to know, could I be cursed?

And also, I know that the Bible says, "Judge not lest ye be judged." So what about judges and the people on jury trials?

HC: Fine. Thank you for sharing those good questions.

In relationship to your first question, never read the Bible that way. Just because you happen to find a phrase in the Bible that seems to relate to a decision that you must make, that isn't the way God brings truth to you. Suppose you were contemplating committing suicide. This is a dumb thing, of course, but I'll use it as an illustration. Or suppose you were contemplating doing some other sin. And then you were reading the Bible, or you opened the Bible and the phrase popped up in your eyes and it said, "Do it now," or "Go now." Then is God giving you a message that now you should go ahead with this sinful act? You see, that doesn't make any sense at all.

The decision whether you should live in Stockton or in Sacramento, or any other city, has to be based on an evaluation of how you can live most definitely to God's glory. There are certain rules that you read about in the Bible, as, for example, the Bible says, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness." Is it easier to seek the Kingdom of God, is it more beneficial to seek the Kingdom of God and His righteousness in Stockton or in Sacramento? Well, maybe you can't determine that. The Bible says, "Whatever you do, do all to the glory of God." The Bible says, "Ye are My witnesses," and so on.

As you read the Bible, you try to find anything at all where God has laid down rules for our life. And then you examine the question at hand in the light of these rules. Is it possible to live more to the glory of God? Is it possible to witness better there? Or is there someone I can help there? Is it possible that there I might make myself more available to the service of the Lord? These are the kinds of questions you must face, not look for a phrase that seems to leap out at you as you read the Bible.

Now in answer to your other question, when Jesus said in Matthew 7:1, "Judge not lest ye yourselves be judged," we must follow the Biblical rule of always interpreting scripture by scripture. If we isolate Matthew 7:1 from the rest of the Bible, we could easily conclude that under no circumstance could we serve on a jury, or could we serve as a federal judge of some kind. But when we study the rest of the Bible, we find that while the general rule is, "Judge not lest ye yourselves be judged," there are exceptions to the case.

Those who are in governmental employ as a judge, that is, if you serve on a jury or if you are a federal judge or a civil judge, that is permitted in the Bible. The government has been given rule over the citizens, and therefore they can make judgments. You read about the role of the government to the citizens in Romans 13, the first six or seven verses.

In the case of the church, those who rule in the church, the elders and the deacons, and the pastor, those who are given that rule or authority, may make judgment concerning the spiritual activities of the members of the church. If they are not living in accord with the Word of God, then they may make judgment, and if necessary they can excommunicate such a person. You might read I Corinthians 5 to see this kind of activity in action.

We parents of course can judge our children, whether they are living for God or not, whether they're doing right or wrong, and we can apply the necessary discipline to them.

These are areas where God allows judgment to be made. These are exceptions to the general rule. The general rule, however, is that we are not to judge our fellow man. That's somebody else's business. We find this is true in our political arena, don't we?, in our civil relationships. We can't go to a neighbor whom we think might be committing some kind of a crime and put him in prison. We might decide that it's wise to tell somebody about the activities going on next door, so that the proper investigation can be made. And if this person does look guilty, he can be brought before the judge, who is rightfully authorized to make judgment, and he can be examined by this judge to discover whether indeed he's doing wrong. And if he were doing wrong, he might be cast into jail.

But it is not our role to make judgment. And incidentally, I can't underscore this enough. This is a luxury that many people in the church really hate to give up. It is such a sweet moment, it is such a desirable idea, when we can look at someone else in the congregation who is doing something sinful, or doing whatever they are doing, and we can pass judgment on them "Oh, my, look what Mrs. Jones is doing now. And something really ought to happen to her because of what she is doing," or whoever it might be. This kind of activity is altogether opposed to what the Bible teaches.

If we see someone living in sin in the congregation, it's not our job to go to that person and point out his sin. Now some of you are going to be violently unhappy with this, but this is the fact. It is not our job to go to that person and point out his sin. What we think is sin might not be sin at all. Maybe we don't understand the whole situation. We're not appointed in that role. We can pray for that person. We can pray, "Oh Lord, is it possible that Brother 'so and so' or Sister 'so and so' is having a problem? And if they are, 'Oh, Father, wilt Thou undertake on their behalf?" and so on. And we certainly can try to visit with that person in general, and maybe try to have some Bible study, or whatever. And if they begin to talk about their problem, then counsel can be given. But if they do not talk about their problem, then it's not our role to get into this matter at all.

Now if it became a flagrant kind of a thing, the rulers in the church would know about it, of course. And they, logically and legitimately, can make judgment. They can go to this person and begin to ask questions and try to discover what is going on. And if there is sin that's going on, they can counsel with this person to turn away from his sin and to cry out to God for mercy, and to discontinue living in this wrong way.

The Resurrection in Matthew 27:51-52 (430B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: In Matthew 27:51 & 52, what does the Holy City refer to?

HC: We have this very intriguing question that comes forth from Matthew 27: 51 & 52. Jesus is hanging on the cross, and then we read that the veil of the temple was rent from top to bottom, that great curtain that separated the Holy of Holies from the holy place. And then we read those words in verse 52: "And the graves were opened, and many bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after His resurrection, and went into the Holy City and appeared unto many." What could this be referring to?

Now we know, first of all, that the Holy City has to be something else than Jerusalem. Why do we know that? Well, the reason is that once Christ hung on the cross, once He shed His blood for our sins, then God's work was finished insofar as national Israel was concerned as being the representation of the body of Christ. National Israel, of course, had as its key city Jerusalem. And in Jerusalem its key place, was the temple. And in the temple was the Holy of Holies the most holy place, which the priest entered once a year. And in the Holy of Holies was the Ark of the Covenant, representing God Himself. It was symbolically representing the place where God came down to man. In the temple the blood sacrifices were offered, which were pointing to the offering of the Lord Jesus Christ on the cross.

But Christ completed all these Old Testament sacrifices. He completed the usage of the temple as the holy place, and Jerusalem as the Holy City. Never again would it be the Holy City. The Holy City now can only be the body of believers. If you go to Ephesians 2, you find there that God speaks of the body of believers as being, as it were, building blocks in the temple of God. We're built into a most holy temple.

In I Corinthians 3 and in I Corinthians 6 the believers are called "temples of the Holy Spirit." In I Peter 2:4 or 5 God speaks of us as lively stones, or living stones, in the house of God. The temple is the body of Christ from this point on. And the body of Christ from this point on will be represented by the congregations and churches that encompass all the nations of the world.

The Holy City no longer is Jerusalem. More than that, in Revelation 21 we read of the New Jerusalem, the Holy City, coming down out of Heaven, prepared as a bride for her husband. This is a reference to the whole body of Christ that comes down out of Heaven. And it's called the New Jerusalem because it is the perfect Jerusalem. It is the Jerusalem without spot or wrinkle. It is the Jerusalem, the City of God, that is made up only of born again believers. And it is called the Holy City.

So we sense that the Holy City is not Jerusalem. It's the body of believers in some sense. Now notice what came out of these graves: "Many bodies of the saints which slept arose." These are bodies that came out of the graves. It doesn't say, "Many saints were resurrected." Lazarus was resurrected when God raised him from the dead. He came forth, as a body and a soul, a totally integrated being. This speaks of bodies of the saints which slept, which arose.

You see, this is the language really of the last day, when we will experience the resurrection of our bodies.

Actually, I believe that God is bringing to pass here a resurrection that is like the resurrection of the last day, the resurrection of the bodies of certain saints. They may have lived a hundred years before, or a thousand years, or two thousand years before. It's immaterial. Ever since they had died, or they had fallen asleep, in their souls they had been living with God in Heaven. But now their bodies are resurrected. And following Jesus' resurrection, they appeared in the Holy City, that is, in Heaven, where the body of Christ is, the same Holy City that's referred to in Revelation 21.

"... and appeared unto many." You see, Jesus gave His life a ransom for many. Now we can speculate as to why they were resurrected. We know that the believers in Heaven have very deep and fervent interest in Christ's redemption, the redemption that He offers on the cross. We know that this has to be, because only by virtue of the finished work of Christ on the cross can the believers be in Heaven. Those Old Testament believers, of course, are in Heaven in their souls, anticipating the work of Christ on the cross.

That they are deeply concerned with the work of Christ on the cross is seen adequately in the conversation that took place on the Mount of Transfiguration, when Moses and Elijah came from Heaven and appeared to the Lord Jesus Christ in the presence of three of the disciples. What did they talk about together? They talked about, the Bible says, His coming decease, of the fact that He was going to the cross.

One can completely understand this. If Jesus in any way is unsuccessful in paying for their sins by going to the cross, these believers cannot remain in Heaven. They are only in Heaven by virtue of Christ's finished work on the cross. But now, you see, Christ has gone to the cross. And this we know was a terrible, terrible, an awful thing that Jesus did, to endure the wrath of God for our sins, the equivalent of an eternity in hell. Would He be consumed in this? Would He really be successful?

Even in the Psalms we read where Christ Himself anticipated His suffering. And He cried out to God not to leave His soul in Sheol. We see where He asked God to be sure to rescue Him once He had paid for our sins. The terror, the awfulness of enduring God's wrath. It's beyond human comprehension.

It is true that when Jesus hung on the cross and He said, "It is finished," in His Spirit He left His body and went into Heaven. And so in that sense you could say, "Well, then at that point in time the believers in Heaven could rejoice, because Christ had finished His work on the cross."

Yes, in a sense He had. But in another sense He had not. The proof of His finished work was the fact that He would rise again on Sunday morning. His body was still in the grave. And His body was a very real part of Christ. And the proof of Christ's victory on the cross was the resurrection. We read this in 1 Corinthians 15: "If Christ had not been raised, we would still be in our sins."

Therefore, there would be a period of forty days, from the time of the resurrection until the ascension of Jesus into Heaven, when the believers in Heaven, it would seem, would not really know how successful Jesus had been.

Had He really been able to overcome death so that He actually did rise again? And I believe, and now I'm speculating, at this point I'm going to start speculating. I believe, based on all that we have talked about now concerning these events, that God in His mercy resurrected a number of the Old Testament saints, so that they (and remember, they had been living in Heaven in their soul existence for many years; they were really people in Heaven, but they were without their bodies), but now, right after Jesus rose from the grave, they appeared in Heaven in their bodies and were reconciled with their souls, so they would take their place along with Enoch and Elijah and Moses, who also are in Heaven in their glorified spiritual bodies, their resurrected bodies. And this would be tremendous evidence, tremendous indication, to all that were in Heaven, that the victory of the cross was complete. Otherwise how could they be resurrected, if Christ had not risen? They knew it was time for Christ to rise. And now, by virtue of the fact that Christ is the first-fruits, because He rose, therefore these bodies could appear in Heaven. The resurrection was a tremendous success.

Now we don't read anywhere else in the Bible about this resurrection. These believers did not appear in any city on this earth. There's no suggestion anywhere in the Bible that this is so. The language that is used here indicates that they appeared in Heaven.

"Lead us not into temptation" in Mt 6:13 (459B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Would you give me the translation of the Lord's Prayer? I'm puzzled about the last two verses of it: "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil."

HC: All right. Your question is, what does God mean when He says, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil." That is the phrase you're troubled by?

CALLER: Yes.

HC: I'll be glad to speak to that, if you'd like to hang up.

Actually, the word that's used for temptation here is the word that is ordinarily translated either temptation or testing, or trial. Now the trial that all mankind must come into is to stand before the tribunal of God on the last day and answer for their sins. When we are saved, then we have been taken out of that possibility. We will not be delivered to trial, because God Himself, in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ, has already stood for trial for our sins. And so we have been delivered from evil, that is, from the wrath of God, and from the sin that has beset us, because God has paid for our sins. I really believe that this is the essential meaning of this phrase, that it's really talking about the fact that we have become saved.

Matthew 18:15-20 Explained (582B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I'd like you to explain to me Matthew 18:15-20, please. And I'll listen on the air.

HC: All right. The question is concerning the discipline set forth in Matthew 18, beginning with verse 15: "Moreover, if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone." Now let me stop right here and let us focus our eyes on what God is saying here, because frequently we read this superficially and come away with a conclusion that is not in accordance with the Bible.

We read this and we say, "Oh. If we see somebody sinning in the congregation then it is our beholden duty, our bound duty, to go to that person privately and tell him his sin between the two of us. And then if he doesn't listen to me, then to follow the prescription that follows." But that isn't what God is saying here. God is saying, "If thy brother shall trespass against thee." If someone else is sinning in the church, and we're just a regular church member, not an officer in the church, an elder or a deacon or a pastor, then it's not our business if somebody else is sinning in the congregation; it's not for us to make judgment. We don't have all the information concerning it. We'd better keep our eyes on our own sins and our own Christian walk.

But if a situation arises that someone in the congregation is sinning against me personally, and I feel injured by this, now God gives a prescription. First of all, I am to talk about this to my brother, privately. I'm not to talk about it to all of my friends, "Oh, Brother Jones - he did this to me and he's a 'so and so,'" and make a scandal of it. I am to go privately to Brother Jones and tell him about it.

If he hears me, that is, if as I come tenderly and kindly to him, confessing also my sin (if I have been less than God-glorifying toward him, I must also confess my side, also) this does not end up with reconciliation between the two of us, then I am to take one or two others. Now the purpose of one or two others, we read here, is that "in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established."

Of course, you see, when I bring one or two others into the picture, they may decide that Brother Jones hasn't really sinned against me. And they may decide that I don't have a case at all. So that would be the end of the matter. But let's suppose that they listen and they say, "Yes, you do have a case." And so the two or three of you go again to Brother Jones, to talk to him about his sin against you. And again he does not wish to listen. He says, "Forget about it. It's none of your business. I'll live my life, you live yours," and so on.

Then the next stage is that the church is to be told. Now again, you take it to the ruling body of the church and tell them what the situation is, and they listen and they say, "Well, as we really study this matter, Mr. Jones hasn't really sinned against you, and you really shouldn't be agonizing about this." Then of course you are to listen to the church because you are under their rule and you want to be obedient to their conclusion.

On the other hand, they may decide that yes indeed, Brother Jones has sinned against you. And so they counsel with him and say, "Brother Jones, you have to make restitution," or "Brother Jones, you have to straighten out this matter with this other brother." If Brother Jones refuses to be obedient to the edict of the church, then it indicates that he does not want to be under that kind of rule or authority. It indicates that he is not submissive to Christ at all, because in the church this line of government has been established by Christ Himself. And so he is to be excommunicated. By his action he indicates that he is not properly a member of the congregation, and so he is to be a heathen and a publican.

Then God sums this up in verse 18, and He said, "Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth [and the verb form here really is] shall having been bound in Heaven and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall having been loosed in Heaven." In other words, the action is first of all in Heaven and it is the church that is simply following through. God does the saving and the church receives those who are saved into the congregation. God also indicates those who are not saved in the congregation, and it is the church that eventually will excommunicate them.

And then in verse 19 God indicates the size of the church. And many many people take verse 19 of Matthew 18 completely out of its context and try to do something altogether else with it. They simply read it as this, "Again I say unto you that if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of My Father which is in Heaven." And completely out of context they say, "Well, therefore if two believers with any kind of a desire on their hearts agree together that this would be wise, then they can pray to God about it and God will faithfully carry through, and give what they have asked."

Now that is not the context here at all. God is simply indicating that God works in the church. And when the church, whether it's two or three or a mighty congregation, works in this matter of discipline, and it is done by God's principles, then they are carrying out the will of God. And this of course we see when we carefully investigate if a person should become a member of the church and as we try to decide whether he is born again. And this also has to do with excommunication.

"Prayer and Fasting" to Remove Demons in Mt 17:21 (856C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. How would you interpret Matthew 17:21?

HC: The question is concerning Matthew 17:21, where we read, "Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting." The question is concerning the removal of an evil spirit from a child. We read in verse 14 of a certain man saying, "Lord, have mercy on my son, for he is a lunatic and sore vexed." A "lunatic [that means he is insane] and sore vexed. For oftimes he falleth into the fire and often into the water. And I brought him to Thy disciples and they could not cure him. Then Jesus answered and said, 'O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I suffer you? Bring him hither to Me. And Jesus rebuked the devil.'" [God now is opening up the curtain and we see that this child was under the power of Satan.] "Jesus rebuked the devil; and he departed out of him; and the child was cured from that very hour. Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, 'Why could not we cast him out? And Jesus said unto them, 'Because of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you, if ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible to you. Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting.'"

Now the question that has been asked is, what does it mean "This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting"? Remember the Biblical rule is that when you see words or phrases or concepts that apparently have nothing to do with salvation, then you are to look for a deeper spiritual meaning. First of all, the casting out of the evil spirit is a picture of someone becoming saved. When we become saved, or before we are saved, we are under the power of Satan. We are being destroyed by Satan, as this child is being destroyed. And under the power of the Gospel, we are set free from the power of Satan. We no longer are under that power.

Incidentally, let's talk about verse 20 as we go along. What does it mean to have faith as a grain of mustard seed? Well, in another place Christ had declared, "The kingdom of Heaven is like a mustard seed. Though it is the smallest of the seeds, yet it grows into a great tree," or words to that effect. In other words, God is likening the kingdom of Heaven to a mustard seed. It was very very tiny as it began in the world, with the apostles, but it grows until it is found all over the earth. And so effectively He's saying in verse 20, "If you have faith as that that belongs to the kingdom of God, because the kingdom of God is like a mustard seed, 'ye shall say to this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place...' " Now to remove a mountain from one place to another in itself has nothing to do with the kingdom of God or with salvation, just as a mustard seed in itself has nothing to do with salvation. We couldn't understand this word mustard seed until we find the other statement in the Bible that the kingdom of God is like a mustard seed. And then we can substitute the word kingdom of God, and we're beginning to see the deeper spiritual meaning.

Likewise the word mountain in itself has nothing to do with salvation of any kind. But when we search the Bible we find that frequently God uses the word mountain as a figure of kingdom, as a figure of a kingdom. And Satan rules as a king over his dominion. And if we have the faith of the kingdom of God, that is, if we have saving faith, then we can see the kingdom of Satan moved over. That is, we can see that there can be those who are freed from the dominion of Satan, who are taken out of the dominion of Satan and brought into the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ, as we read in Colossians 1:13.

"And nothing shall be impossible to you." In other words, even though it is impossible for you and I in ourselves to assault the kingdom of Satan, so that we are able to free someone from the kingdom of Satan, if we have the faith of the kingdom of God, that is, if we have saving faith, the faith of a grain of mustard seed, then we have the power of God on our side. And through the Word of God, and God working through His Word, He will free those whom we witness to from the mountain or from the kingdom of Satan. That is the truth that God is developing in verse 20.

Now verse 21, we find two words that are emphasized prayer and fasting. Does the word prayer relate immediately to salvation? And indeed it does. Prayer is an integral part of the salvation program. We are to pray for one another. We are to pray for forgiveness of sins. Prayer stands. And as we bring the Gospel, one of the things we do is that we pray. We pray, because God works through our prayers to accomplish the salvation of those who are to be saved.

But now the word fasting, the fact that we would stop eating food, does that have anything to do with salvation? The answer is, no. No, the fact that I don't eat a few meals doesn't have anything in itself to do with salvation. So immediately we sense that the word fasting is like the word grain of mustard seed, or the word mountain. We have to find out what is the deeper spiritual meaning to the word fasting.

Now we find when we study the word fasting that it means that we have to send forth the Gospel, we have to proclaim the Gospel. This is shown to us in Isaiah 58:6. God declares "Is not this the fast that I have chosen? To loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke. Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out of thy house, when thou seest the naked that thou cover him?" Every one of these statements has to do with bringing the Gospel. Those who are unsaved are under the bondage of wickedness. They are under the burden of sin. They are oppressed by sin and by Satan. And they are spiritually hungry for the righteousness that they can have in the Lord Jesus Christ. They are spiritually poor, and they are outside of the commonwealth of Israel, and have to be brought into the house of God, which is Christ Himself. Spiritually they are naked, and they have to be covered with the robe of Christ's righteousness. All of these statements are identified with fasting. In other words, God is explaining that to fast means to share the Gospel.

All right. Let's go back here to Matthew 17: "This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting." We've already seen that this young man, who was under the power of Satan, is a picture of an unsaved person, who is a slave of Satan. And Satan is destroying him, as Satan does. When he became freed of that devil, he is a picture of someone who has become saved. He has been spiritually cured of his illness that is going to send him to hell, the illness of his sin.

And how is that salvation accomplished? By prayer and the presentation of the Gospel, prayer and fasting. Any time we see anyone who is unsaved, there is only one way of attack to accomplish the salvation of that person if indeed it is God's will to save that person. And that is to pray for that person and to try to witness to that person, because God works through His Word to accomplish that salvation, and He works through our prayers, to accomplish that salvation, if it indeed is God's plan to save that person. And this is the beautiful, beautiful truth that the Lord is developing here in Matthew 17.

First and Last in the Kingdom of God in Mt 19:30 & What Does "Believe" Mean?

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Brother Camping, I don't have the Bible reference for this question, so I hope you will be able to remember where this is. I think I recall Jesus in at least one of the Gospels talking about someone being the "least in the kingdom of God", and there is another reference for "the first will be last and the last will be first". The point I am trying to get at here is this: Is there a possibility of some being greater than others in heaven?

HC: No. First of all, let's talk about that phrase that we find in a number of places. "The first shall be last, and the last shall be first" [Matthew 19:30; 20:16; Mark 10:31; Luke 13:30]. There are those like Ancient Israel, for example, who for 2,000 years were in a favored position with respect to the Gospel because virtually all of the holy men of old, who spoke as God the Holy Spirit moved them, came from National Israel. So, the people of Israel were the first ones who heard the Gospel. Also, God used Ancient Israel very frequently as types, or pictures, or representations of the Gospel.

For example, David, who was one of their greatest kings, was a picture (a portrait if you will), an example, or a type of the Lord Jesus Christ. More than that, Christ Himself came out of the nation of Israel.

So they were first. They had all the priorities. They had all the advantages, and yet most of them perished at any time in their history because of unbelief. Whereas many Gentiles – who had never heard the Gospel and had none of the prerogatives and none of the privileges that National Israel had – very quickly after they heard the Gospel became saved.

We see this particularly in the book of Acts, where we find that Paul and Barnabas would go to a synagogue and the Jews, in the main, would not want their Gospel at all; but many Gentiles heard them gladly. In that setting, the Jews, who were first, became last – that is, they never did become saved – and the last, those who had not previously heard the Gospel, became first. They became those who did become saved.

That, incidentally, is also true in churches today. There are individuals who have grown up in Christian families, who have gone to churches where the Gospel has been reasonably presented in truth, and they never became saved. They were first because all their lives they heard the Gospel.

Yet, on the other hand, that same Gospel goes out and here is an individual that never heard the Gospel before. His whole family is not saved. Then he hears the Gospel and things begin to happen in his heart. He realizes he is a sinner, and the next thing we see him as having become saved. He is the last who became first. The individual in the church who never did become saved was first, and he became last.

Now, the phrases "great in the kingdom of God" or "least in the kingdom of God" [Matthew 5:19; 11:11; Luke 7:28] do not indicate that there are degrees of greatness in the kingdom of God. We all stand on the same ground. No one is greater than another – except the Lord Jesus, of course. He is our King. He is the Head of the whole kingdom of God. But insofar as believers are concerned – whether we are the Apostle Paul, or Mary the mother of Jesus, or Mary Magdalene, or the thief on the cross who became saved in the last hour of his life, or whoever – we all stand on the same ground in that we have eternal life. So, when we read about the "great in the kingdom of God" that is what God has in mind – that is, everyone in the kingdom of God is great. Not in the sense of their own personal greatness, but because they have become identified with Christ, who is King of kings and Lord of lords.

However, God also speaks of the kingdom of God frequently in a corporate, or external, sense. The churches, for example, that we belong to and that carry the Gospel with some degree of truth, corporately are identified with the kingdom of God. That does not mean that everyone in those churches are eternally in the kingdom of God (there may be a few that are eternally in the kingdom of God), but corporately all the people in those congregations are identified with the kingdom of God. However, even though they are in those churches and are identified with the kingdom of God, if they are not saved, they are least in the kingdom of God. That is, they are not going to be there eternally. They are only there temporarily in an external fashion, but they have never become eternal residents, or citizens, of the kingdom of God.

CALLER: Thank you for that. I do have one more quick question, and I will listen to the answer on the air. I was wondering about the verse in one of the Gospels, and again I don't have the reference, where Christ asked Peter, or the disciples, "Who do you say that I am?" One said "a great teacher" and another said something else. Then Peter replied, "You are the Son of the Living God." I believe that is the way he put it. Now, I believed from the beginning of when I was saved that Jesus is God, and I am wondering if that is given by the Holy Spirit. Is that the same as when Jesus said, "Flesh and blood has not revealed it to you?" [Matthew 16:13-17]

HC: Well, you see the word "believe" is a very misunderstood word. In the New Testament, where we find the word "believe" used very frequently, there is only one Greek word that is translated as "believe". And we find, for example, it says that the devils "believe" [James 2:19]. Well, they are in rebellion against God, and yet they "believe". We also read about those who "believe" for awhile, and then, when the cares of the world come, they fall away [Luke 8:11-18]. That is the same word "believe". We also read about those who "believe" because they have become saved [Acts 13:48]. They are called "believers" [Acts 5:14].

Now, what does the word "believe" really mean? You see, we normally think of "believe" as acknowledging something – that is, we agree that something is true. We agree that we are sinners. We agree that Christ is the only One who can save us. We agree that He is the Son of God and the Son of Man. We agree on a lot of these principles. However, Satan knows all of those things too. He knows about Christ better than we do because he was living in heaven with Christ. "We know who You are," the devils say, "Thou art the Son of God" [Matthew 8:29; Mark 3:11; Luke 4:41; 8:28]. So, just agreement with all of these principles is not "believing". It is acknowledging, but it is not "believing".

Now, there are those who really think that they have come to a "belief" where they truly have become saved because they think they have hung their lives on the Lord Jesus, and they really want to follow Him. That is a result of true "faith". That is what would happen if they were truly saved. But in their case, that "faith", or that "believing" (and believing is just another way of saying we have "faith"), or that trust is a product of their own desire to be right with God and did not come from God. Because it did not come from God, in time they will fall away because they get tired of trying to do it themselves. They don't realize that it came out of their own personality and not from God.

Now, on the other hand, there are those that God begins to draw. He begins to deal with that person, and we read in Philippians 2:13, which is talking about someone that God is working with. "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." So "believing" begins to show up in that person's life. That person is not necessarily saved yet, but he begins to trust more and more in what the Bible says – "I'm a sinner." He is not just acknowledging it; but he begins to come under conviction – "I know I'm a sinner!" He is not just acknowledging that Christ is the only One who can save him, and it begins to penetrate into the very core of his being that he has to get right with God. He has begun to hang his whole life on Christ. Christ is increasingly Number One in his life. He is still not saved necessarily; but then at some point, God saves him.

Because he has begun to trust in God more and more and because he realizes that he is going to hell for his sins, he also begins to turn away from his sins. He begins to repent. Yet all of that "believing" activity is not a precondition for salvation. God does not require any of that in order to save someone. Because, on the other side of the coin, here is a little baby that is just a day old, or maybe not even born yet, who knows nothing about all of these things; and yet God can save that person just as readily as the one that has been learning more and more about his sins and is beginning to get more and more of a desire to turn from his sins.

None of this is a precondition for salvation. At some point God is going to save the ones that He wants to save. That is strictly the work of God. Whether it is a baby in the womb, or whether it is a child that does not have a mind at all, or whether it is an adult who has been seeking the Lord for a long time and has begun to trust God more and more in his life and has begun to turn away from his sin – it is all the same action. God makes that person a brand new personality by giving him a brand new resurrected soul. That is what happens at the moment of salvation; and at that moment, he is justified. That is, the fact that Christ paid for his sins long ago is applied to his life, and from that moment on he is no longer under the wrath of God.

Now, the consequences of the fact that he has truly become saved is that he will have an earnest desire to do the will of God. He will trust God. He will know that Christ is everything and that He has to be Number One in his life. He will be turning away from his sins like he never did before, and that will go on for the rest of his life. At the moment of salvation, these things get locked in because he has been given eternal life and never again will he turn away.

While God is drawing him before he is saved, there may be periods when he is not that interested in the Gospel. Then God draws him some more, and maybe he becomes somewhat more interested in the Gospel. But when he has truly become saved, he has eternal life in his new resurrected soul. From that point until he dies, there will always be an ongoing, earnest desire to do the will of God. There will be an ongoing trust, or faith, in the Lord Jesus Christ; and that faith (or trust, or believing) as well as the doing of God's Law are all works that are seen in his life. These are the results of – not the bases for nor the causes for – God's salvation.

CALLER: That's very good. I appreciate that information. Thank you so much.

HC: Thank you for calling and sharing, and shall we take our next call please.

MARK

The Cursing of the Fig Tree in Mark 11:12-14 (178C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I would like to ask a question about Mark 11:12-14.

HC: Mark 11:12-14. There we read, "And on the following day, when they came to Bethany, He was hungry. And seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, He went to see if He could find anything on it. When He came to it, He found nothing but leaves, for it was not the season for figs. And He said to it, 'may no one ever eat fruit from you again' And His disciples heard it."

CALLER: What was His purpose behind doing that? I could perhaps understand it if it was time for fruit to be on the tree, but it wasn't, evidently.

HC: You see, in the Bible the fig tree is a figure of Israel, national Israel. This can be shown in a variety of ways. Now back in Isaiah 6, God had already cursed Israel, and said that except for a tiny remnant chosen by grace, Israel would remain blind and hearing they would not hear, and seeing they would not see.

The same curse was emphasized by Jesus. He used the same language of Isaiah 6. And later on, the apostle Paul, in the last chapter of Acts, quoted the same words. In other words, God prophesied, already 600 or 700 years before Christ came, that when He came, Israel, national Israel, would be essentially in unbelief and would not turn to Him.

And so the fig tree that He is cursing is a figure of Israel. He comes to it, and all he finds is leaves. There's no fruit. Israel was a nation in the days of Christ. It was a nation, but there was no fruit. They essentially were opposed to Christ as Messiah, because it was not the season for figs. Well, Israel would not be bearing fruit because God had already anticipated, in Isaiah 6, that they would be cursed in this way so that they would not bear fruit.

Now there is a further curse here, and it's got very sad implications. He said, "May no one ever eat fruit from you again", the implication being that Israel would never again bear fruit. Now this is excluding the remnant chosen by grace. That is the exception that God constantly refers to in the Bible. But as a nation, as a nation we will never expect a turning to the Lord Jesus Christ by the nation of Israel.

Now significantly, when we look at the nation of Israel today, we see this prophecy, "May no one ever eat fruit from you again," being fulfilled before our eyes. Almost miraculously, Israel is a nation, for the first time, after 2000 years. And you would think if there were ever a time that they would really call attention to the Lord Jesus Christ, who is one of their own, and turn to Him as their Messiah, you would think this would be the time. But they've been here since 1948, and they are no more interested as a nation in Christ as Messiah than any nation in the world. They are not bearing fruit. And the implication of this is that they will not bear fruit as a nation. The fig tree has been cursed for ever.

Thank you for calling.

The Rich Young Man in Mark 10 (212B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'd like to ask a question about Luke 3:11 and also the passage that talks about the rich young ruler whom Christ told to sell everything and to follow Him. How can we relate this to today's life? How should we as Christians relate it to our lives today?

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you.

The question is raised concerning Luke 3:11. There we read, "He who has two coats, let him share with him who has none. And he who has food, let him do likewise." This is John the Baptist who is speaking to the people who are coming to him as he preaches the gospel of repentance. And he is saying that they are to start loving their neighbors. They are to start sharing.

Jesus said in another place that we must "love our neighbor as ourselves." Now God has put within our being a self-love, which is part of God's program, so that we will preserve ourselves. We're always a little extra careful that we aren't going to get hurt, if we're doing something. We're always careful to make sure that all is going to go well with us. And God wants us to have an equal concern for others.

And here it is put in the language, "If you have two coats and you meet with someone who has none, then share with him what you have," because if he does not have a coat, then he is in real trouble. He can't meet the cold. Now ultimately there's a deeper meaning here. The fact is, God has lavished the Gospel upon us. And we have been clothed with the robe of Christ's righteousness. And now we meet someone who is unsaved. He stands spiritually naked before God. And we are to be ready to share this marvelous Gospel that God has lavished upon us. We are to share with him, so that he too might become saved, so that he too, if he is exercised by it, might be clothed by the robe of Christ's righteousness.

And notice the second phrase: "And he who has food, let him do likewise." And when we are saved, we have come into an abundant harvest of food, as we feed on the Lord Jesus Christ. The Word of God is the Bread of Life. And we meet someone who is unsaved. They are spiritually famished. They are dying of malnutrition, because they have no spiritual food to eat. And we very generously are to share this. In a real sense this is getting right to the responsibility of the believer to be available to share the Gospel, to make all that he has available to share the Gospel.

Now this gets us into this matter of the rich young ruler. The rich young ruler was a young man who really thought that he was rich in his good works. He was rich physically, too. But he was also rich in his good works. When Jesus asked him what he had to do to have eternal life, he said that one has to keep the commandments. And he answered, "I've kept all of these from my youth."

In other words, he was very satisfied that he was worthy before God. Probably he was seeking a commendation from Christ, looking upon Christ only as a Rabbi, where Christ as a Rabbi would say, "My, you're a fine young man. And certainly God ought to be grateful to have you in the Kingdom. You are rich in your good works, even as you are rich in your money."

But Christ, of course, has come with a different kind of salvation. We are not saved by our good works. We are not saved by our personal worthiness. The Bible teaches that even our best works are "as filthy rags." If we have committed even just one sin, we stand guilty of hell. And the only way we can ever get into Heaven would be, first of all, to spend an eternity in hell. And since eternity is forever, we would never make it into Heaven.

And so anyone at all who thinks that he's rich in good works, who thinks that he's really worthy before God, is in deep and terrible trouble. And so Christ has to show this young man that he is in trouble, that he is not qualified at this point, in any way, to go into Heaven.

And so He says, "Sell all that you have and give to the poor, and come and follow Me." Now there's a two-pronged implication here. First of all, Christ is talking about physical riches. In another place, in Luke's Gospel, we find the same kind of a statement to all of us. It's bad enough when we read it about the rich young ruler, but actually God is giving this command to all of us.

In verse 32 of Luke 12: "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom. Sell your possessions and give alms (that is, give to those who are poor). Provide yourselves with purses that do not grow old, with a treasure in the heavens that does not fail, where no thief approaches and no moth destroys. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

In other words, Christ is effectively saying, "Make your possessions available to the spiritually poor." He's not talking about the physically poor. He's talking about the spiritually poor, because these are the ones to whom we bring the Gospel. We are stewards of God, ambassadors of God, to get the Gospel out. And we are to make everything that we have as available as possible to bring the Gospel.

And so there is this physical sense, therefore, that we must understand when Christ replied to the rich young ruler that he was to sell his possessions and give to the poor. He was to make himself a disciple of Christ by this obedience, that is, by placing his trust in Christ. And he was to make himself totally available, that all that he had might be ready to be of service to God in bringing the Gospel to others.

But there was another sense that God had in view here. "Sell all that you have and give to the poor, and come and follow Me." In other words, your riches are not going to get you into Heaven, your rich deeds, your good works. That isn't going to get you anywhere, except to hell. You strip yourself of all of this. You come as a spiritually bankrupt sinner before God. None of these good works are meaningful at all. Christ did not come to call the righteous, that is, the self-righteous. He came to call sinners to repentance. And when you have become spiritually stripped of anything that you think is good or worthy, then you're going to be ready to follow Me. Then you're going to be ready to understand the salvation which I have to offer.

And the young man went away "exceedingly sorrowful, because he had great possessions." On both counts he was still trusting in his good works. He liked his physical riches too much. He was not ready to surrender his will to Christ as King and Lord of his life.

Now if we're going to be born again, we must be ready to obey Him. We must count the cost of discipleship. The cost of discipleship means that we have to turn our back on the world. Our security no longer is in the things of this world. Our security is no longer in the pursuit of pleasure and all of these things that are so attractive to unsaved men. Our security is going to be in Christ. We're going to find that we're to live as strangers and pilgrims here. We're just passing through.

But we also are going to find that we have a real task, a real mandate. We are to be stewards of all that Christ has given us, so that we might share that Gospel with others to the very highest possible degree.

And if we're not ready to face this kind of life, it means that we're not ready to belong to Christ. We have not really understood what it means to call upon God for mercy and to repent of our sins and trust in Christ only.

The Signs that Follow Believers in Mark 16:17-18 (244A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have five scripture references I wish you'd comment on. They're Mark 16:17 & 18, John 14:12, II Corinthians 3:5,6, Hebrews 13:8 and Jude 20. And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. I'll try to speak briefly about each one of these

The question is raised concerning Mark 16:17 & 18. There we read, "And these signs will accompany those who believe. In My Name they will cast out demons, they will speak in new tongues, they will pick up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing, it will not hurt them. They will lay their hands on the sick and they will recover."

Now as we do with the rest of the Bible, any time we read a verse, we want to begin to read it in the light of everything else the Bible teaches. If we read this verse all alone, it would seem to indicate that God is teaching here that when we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, then we should begin to be able to do certain miraculous things. If we would pick up a rattlesnake, it would not hurt us. If we would happen to drink strychnine, either accidentally or because someone gave it to us, to kill us, it would not hurt us. And certainly when it says that we can lay hands on the sick and they will recover, we should have the power to be able to go into any hospital and go from bed to bed and lay our hands on the sick, and there should be recovery. That is apparently what this is teaching.

But when we begin to look at these verses in the light of everything else in the Bible, we find that it isn't quite like that. We do find that there were a few signs that did accompany the early church as it first began to spread out with the Gospel, just a few. The ability to do miracles was confined, insofar as we can discover in the Bible, to just a few of the apostles. They indeed were able to heal the sick as God gave them power. They were able to speak in foreign languages, as we read in Acts 2. And we do read of the apostle Paul, when he was shipwrecked, that a poisonous viper clung to his skin, and yet he was not hurt by it.

But we also read that we're not to walk by signs and wonders. We're to walk by faith. We're not to walk by sight. The fact is, Jesus said to the Pharisees, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign." This means, therefore, that it was not God's intention that we live by miracles. We are to live by faith in the Lord, humbly trusting Him.

And these signs that are related in the Bible were related and recorded in order that we might have insights into the nature of salvation which God has provided. In other words, when He healed the blind man, He was showing that even as He was able to physically heal that blind man, so He is able to spiritually heal those who are spiritually blind.

So I do not believe that this passage is suggesting in any sense that today we could find those who could lay their hands on the sick, and they will recover. The fact is, I don't know anyone who could go into the hospital and empty it, because he could go from bed to bed. Actually, we don't try to understand doctrine by experience anyway. And just strictly from a Biblical vantage point, we know that this would not be possible.

Now the second question was raised concerning John 14:12: "Truly, truly I say to you, He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do, and greater works than these will he do because I go to the Father."

Now this verse is widely quoted by many who are convinced that Mark 16:17 & 18 is normative for the believer today, that Jesus did miracles and therefore we can expect to do miracles, and even greater miracles than He did.

Well, let's examine that for a moment. Jesus not only healed the sick. He raised the dead. He healed the lepers. He multiplied the loaves and the fish, a tremendous act of creation. He turned the water into wine. He stilled the storm. He walked on the water. He raised Lazarus from the dead, after he had been dead for four days.

Now when we search the Bible, not only do we find that there is no one who did miracles as great as these consistently, but we also, when we look around, find that no one anywhere does miracles of this nature. And so immediately we know that God is not talking about the doing of miracles when He is speaking about the work that we would do.

When we search the Bible further, we find that Christ had two major tasks to do. There were two major areas of work He had to accomplish. And this is where we're going to find our answer as to the meaning of this verse 12 of John 14. And both of these areas of work are quite related.

One aspect is something that we have no part in. And that is His work of going to the cross and dying for our sins. We have no part in that. That is, we do not add in any sense to the salvation that Christ has provided for us. That work was unique. He went to the cross alone.

But Jesus also came as the one who preached the Gospel. We read in Luke 4, where He said in verse 43, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God to the other cities also, for I was sent for this purpose. And He was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee." Now that was the work that God gave Him, to be a preacher of the Gospel.

Now what is the work that God gives us to do? He says, "Ye are My witnesses." We are His ambassadors, Christ as it were making His appeal through us. He says, "Go ye into all the world and bring the Gospel, making disciples." So you see, that identifies with the work that Jesus did.

Now when we examine the success of Jesus, we find that it was very marginal. He preached for over three years, and there were only a handful of believers in all of Judea. But then Jesus went to the Father, and the Holy Spirit was poured out. God began His program to evangelize the world. And Peter preaches one sermon on Pentecost afternoon, and 3000 are saved. You see, literally this promise came true. "He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do [I work to bring the Gospel, and you will bring the Gospel]. And greater works than these will he do." We will be more successful than Jesus, because "I go to the Father." That is, "inasmuch as I go to the Father, God's program to evangelize the world will begin." And therefore you can expect to see far greater success of your efforts to share the Gospel than were realized when Jesus was still on this earth.

Now the third question that was raised is relative to II Corinthians 3:5 & 6. There we read, "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to claim anything as coming from us. Our sufficiency is from God, who has qualified us to be ministers of a new covenant, not in a written code but in the Spirit. For the written code kills, but the Spirit gives life."

Now I'm grateful for this verse, because this points up a very insidious lie, a very insidious doctrine that is being taught by many without realizing that it is something that is very terrible in nature.

There are those who read II Corinthians 3:5 & 6, and they're saying, "The written code, which is the Bible, that kills. That's the letter of the law. But we have to trust the Holy Spirit. And the Holy Spirit, He will give us light." Effectively they're suggesting that we are freed from the shackles of the Bible. We don't really have to pay too much attention to the Bible. We can trust that that Holy Spirit, working in a very unstructured and free way, uninhibited by the rules of the Bible, can do a much more mighty and wonderful work than that which is suggested by the Word of God. This is frequently the implication that comes out of this.

Now this is a very unfortunate and deceitful kind of an idea. This is exactly the kind of thing that would appeal to Satan very greatly. If he can only draw us away from the Word of God, if he can only make us look with some disdain upon the Word of God, if he can only get us into an arena, into a state of mind, into a practice where we are not listening to the Word of God, but we are susceptible to thoughts that might come into our minds, or susceptible to outside influences of one kind or another. And bear in mind that Satan is not limited by the rules of God, that He will not break the silence between the supernatural and the natural. God permits Satan to come with his occult practices of bringing the supernatural into the real life.

And so this just leaves the door wide open for his kind of activity. Now the fact is, the Bible is the living Word of God. It is the articulated, verbalized voice of God, whereby God has declared what we want to know. It is the holy Word of God.

And when it's talking here about the written Word or the written code, or the letter, it is true that it kills. The Bible does kill. The Bible shows us that we're sinners and that we're under the wrath of God and that we're subject to hell. It should drive the sword home, right into the very vitals of our hearts, that we're in deep and terrible trouble.

But it is God the Holy Spirit who gives life. Now how does He give life? Well, He gives life through the Word of God. The Word of God is the Sword of the Spirit. It not only convicts us of sin, which is the beginning point in our path to salvation. But it also convicts us of the fact that through Christ we can be saved of our sins. It convicts us of the fact that we desperately need this salvation, ere we spend eternity in hell. The Holy Spirit, through the Word of God, convicts us that God is holy and perfectly just, and sin is a terrible thing in the eyes of God.

The Word of God is the means by which God effects our salvation. Remember what Ephesians 5 declares? That we are washed with the washing of the Word. It is the Word of God that is identified with the Lord Jesus Christ, who went to the cross for our sins. And it is God the Holy Spirit who takes that Word and applies it to our hearts. He cleanses us of our sins. But He does this through the written Word.

So check your life. If in any way you find a disdain for the written Word, if in any way you hold it on a little lesser level than anything else in the Bible, or let me put it in another way. If in any way you hold it equal to anything else in the world, then you know that the Bible is no longer the infallible Word of God to you. It is something else. And that means that in all probability you have another Gospel than the true Gospel.

Now another verse that was offered for an understanding is Hebrews 13:8. We read there, "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and today, and forever." Now this verse, again, is frequently quoted by those who would want to say, "After all, Jesus healed all kinds of people during His day. And since He is the same today, we would expect that He would heal people from their illnesses today." Or,

"He will do other works of miracles today, even as He did then."

Now the Bible isn't saying here in this passage that Jesus' program is the same today as it was yesterday and forever. The details of His program will change from time to time. Jesus Christ is the same. He is Eternal God. He never changes. He's immutable. He is Eternal God. But His program changes.

Now in the days of Noah, did he do miracles? We don't read of any. Jesus Christ is the same. He existed then, too. Did He heal any lepers in the Old Testament? He healed 10 of them, just like that. Well, He did heal Naaman the Syrian. That was all. And there were many many lepers in the Old Testament. Jesus is the same. His program is different.

For 400 years, from the days of Malachi and Zechariah, until John the Baptist was born, there was absolute silence. And yet the Bible was not complete at that time. Was Jesus the same? Yes, He was the same but His program was different. You see, the fact that Jesus did something back when doesn't mean He's going to do the same thing today. His program will change from time to time.

If you are going to say that Jesus healed 2000 years ago, and therefore He heals today, then you're saying that His program is the same today as it was then. And then I should be able to go to Jerusalem and find the God-man Jesus still teaching over there. But He isn't there, because His program is different. He had completed that aspect of His program and had left this earth and had gone to be with the Father. And so His program is changing, depending on what God has in view.

And it will continue to change. Today the Gospel is still going to every nation. The Bible teaches that God's program will change again. There will be a brief period before Christ returns when the Gospel is silenced all over the world. Well, Jesus is the same. He's absolutely the same. He doesn't change. But His program will change, as God gets His preordained work done.

And then we have a last question concerning Jude 20. "But you, beloved, build yourselves up on your most holy faith. Pray in the Holy Spirit." "Pray in the Holy Spirit." Now who is the Holy Spirit, He is Eternal God. He is Eternal God Himself.

Now when we become saved, we enter into God. "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus." We are washed in the Holy Spirit. We enter into God Himself, whatever God means by that kind of language. And I'm not able to explain all of this, because I can't understand God that well. But I know that God uses this intimate and wonderful language to indicate the precious relationship we realize with God when we are born again. When we pray in the Holy Spirit, it means that as children of God who are in Christ, we are communing with God our Father, in whom we dwell. It's this marvelous oneness that exists in the life of the believer in relationship to God Himself.

The fact is, in Romans 8 we read that the Holy Spirit takes our incomplete prayers, our prayers that we hardly know how to pray, and brings them perfectly before the throne of grace, because we belong to Him. As a born again believer, if we are communing with God, we are praying in the Holy Spirit.

This is the only way that we can pray to God, if we're really going to commune with Him.

Well, thank you for those good verses. They're all excellent verses that teach wonderful truths from the Word of God. We must be carefully, however, that we read them in the light of the whole Bible.

Clean and Unclean Foods in Mark

7:19 (290A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. I'm a bit confused about what the Word is telling me to do here. You're familiar with Leviticus 11, where God is telling Moses and Aaron about the unclean foods?

HC: Yes.

CALLER: Well, I and a friend of mine have been wondering about that. In Mark 7:19 it mentions that Jesus declared all foods clean.

HC: Yes, and this is particularly reiterated in I Timothy 4, where we read, "For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected, if it is received with thanksgiving. For then it is consecrated by the Word of God and prayer."

Now if you go to Acts 9 or 10, you'll discover why God had the clean and unclean foods in the Old Testament. In Acts 9 or Acts 10 Peter has this vision, where this sheet comes down out of heaven, and upon it is all manner of food, or of animals. And they're unclean animals. And God tells Peter, "Rise, kill and eat" (Acts 10:13). And Peter said, "No, Lord. For I have never eaten anything that is common or unclean." So the implication is that these animals were unclean, and Peter recoils at this. "And the voice came to him again a second time, 'What God has cleansed you must not call common.' This happened three times, and the thing was taken up at once to Heaven."

Now Peter is being prepared to go to the Gentiles with the Gospel, to bring the Gospel to the Roman centurion, Cornelius. Up until this time the Gospel was mainly in the nation of Israel. And even when the disciples went out, they were told to go to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. God was using the laws of unclean and clean animals to emphasize the separate relationship of Israel and the rest of the nations. And it was pointing to the separate relationship that the Kingdom of God has, of course, from the dominion of Satan.

But when Christ came, God set aside this ceremonial law. And it no longer was to be followed to emphasize the separation. The Gospel was to go to every nation.

CALLER: So He is saying that all foods are clean?

HC: Yes.

CALLER: That's the idea I got, too. But what confused me was, when Jesus said this in Mark 7, I thought, well, Peter must have been there. And if he got that message from Jesus then, why wouldn't he again say that he wouldn't touch anything that's unholly or unclean.

HC: Jesus told the disciples again and again that He was going to die, and that He would rise the third day. Did the disciples get the message? They didn't get it at all. Jesus said a lot of things, and the disciples didn't hear Him because their spiritual eyes were not opened for those truths as yet.

CALLER: Okay. I see. My mistake is that I had thought that by the time Acts was written, or by the time that all this had taken place, Peter and all the disciples had received all of Christ's messages. But I guess maybe not.

HC: They heard it, but there was a tremendous lot they did not understand at all. But afterwards God opened their ears, after the resurrection, and much of this came back to them as truth.

CALLER: Okay. Does this refer to meat with blood, or is that something completely different?

HC: That's a different question. The matter of blood is a moot question in the Bible. I'm not really certain how to handle that. I really don't know. In the Old Testament they were told not to eat anything with blood in it. That is, they were not to eat blood. The animals were to be killed and bled, which of course is the way that we eat meat today. We don't eat meat with blood in it. There's a little red juice in meat, but that isn't really like eating blood.

But in Acts 15, when the early church after Pentecost met to consider the problem (then it was a problem) of the fact that the Gentiles were being saved, they debated together as to what rules would be laid upon the Gentiles. And they finally concluded that, in verse 28 of Acts 15, "For it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things, that you abstain from what has been sacrificed to idols and from blood, and from what is strangled and from unchastity."

Now I don't understand the implication of this statement. It certainly has some deep spiritual implication, but I don't really know what it is. To be on the safe side, I would not want to eat blood. I would feel that this is still prohibited, although, I must admit that it may not be prohibited, because the first phrase, "that you abstain from that which has been sacrificed to idols" was set aside by the language of I Corinthians 8, where God indicated that what was sacrificed doesn't mean anything in itself, unless someone was offended by it. And so does this mean also that abstaining from blood has been set aside? I really don't know. To be on the safe side, I would not want to eat blood or something that was just the blood of animals.

CALLER: Just the blood by itself?

HC: Yes. There are foods that are prepared just from blood, the blood of animals. There's sausage that has a very high content of blood in it, a certain kind of sausage.

CALLER: I never thought about that, the sausage.

HC: Not any kind of sausage. I'm saying there is, if I remember correctly, a sausage that's called blood sausage, and it is composed of a high content of animal blood.

CALLER: Okay. Well, that helps a lot.

Jesus Heals the Sick Man in Mk 2:9 (357B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question on Mark 2:9.

HC: Let's look at that a moment. Mark 2:9: "Whether it is easier to say to the sick of the palsy, Thy sins be forgiven thee, or to say, Arise, take up thy bed and walk." What is your question concerning this?

CALLER: I was wondering if Jesus was insinuating that people other than He could perform healing, but that only God could forgive sins.

HC: Is Christ insinuating here, suggesting here, that only He could forgive sins, but others could perform miracles of healing? No, He is not suggesting that. The context here is that here is a man who is an unsaved man. That's obvious, as we shall see in a moment. He's an unsaved man, so that spiritually he is sick. Spiritually he is dead. But also he is physically sick. He's got the palsy, some kind of a paralysis. His friends bring him to Jesus. And then Jesus says, "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee." Now here before our eyes, therefore, we see the miracle of regeneration. Jesus of course is God. He is the one who can forgive sins. He is the one who does save us. And right before our eyes here we see Him saving this sick of the palsy.

Spiritually now this man is whole. Now the scribes, the Jewish leaders, who are watching here, reasoned very correctly, "Who can forgive sins but God only?" Nobody else can forgive sins. Only God can. And rightly so, because only God knows the heart of man, God has made provision for the forgiving of our sins. So they were very correct.

But in order to show them that He was God, Jesus therefore said, "Is it easier to say to the sick of the palsy, Thy sins be forgiven thee, or to say, Arise, take up thy bed and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins, He sayeth to the sick of the palsy, I say unto thee, Arise, take up thy bed and go thy way into thine house. And immediately he arose, took up the bed, and went forth before them all."

Here Christ is saying, "Look, you can't really know whether I am God, or whether I am just blaspheming God, because I said, 'Your sins are forgiven.' But so that you may know that I am God, I will show you a miracle that you can recognize as being from God, one that you can see with your eyes. You can't see this man's heart. You can't see that his sins have been forgiven. You can't know that he's born again. I do, because I forgave him. But you don't see this. But I'll show you a miracle that you can see with your naked eyes, so that you will know that I am God, and that I have the power to forgive sins." And so instantaneously He healed this man who was sick of the palsy.

"The Eye of a Needle" in Mk 10:25 (581A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Brother Camping, I'd like for you to explain Mark 10:25.

HC: Mark 10:25. There we read, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God." Is that the verse?

CALLER: Yes.

HC: All right. Let's see what this might mean.

Now there are those who try to soften the impact of this particular verse by saying that the eye of a needle was a small gate in the wall of the city. And in order for a camel to go through that gate, it would have to crawl on its belly through the gate, if it could go through it at all, and perhaps it could not go through it at all. And so for that reason God is using the phrase, "it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle."

However, when we let the Bible be its own interpreter, we don't find anything like this in the Bible, that God is talking about a very small gate that's in the wall of the city. When God speaks of the eye of the needle, as near as we can tell from anything else in the Bible, He's talking about the eye of a needle. And so you say, "Well, that's ridiculous! The eye of a needle you have a hard enough time pushing a thread through it if your eyesight is bad at all. How could a camel, a large animal like that, ever go through the eye of a needle?"

Well, actually, it's impossible, isn't it? It's absolutely impossible for a camel to go through an eye of a needle. And so it's impossible for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God, that is, if he is going to remain rich in his own resources, if he's going to remain rich in his own good works, in his own things which he has done which he believes ought to merit God's favor. These things are an impossible means by which he can go into the Kingdom of Heaven. And of course those who are physically rich, those who are materially rich, like the rest of the human race, this is where they have put their trust. This is normative for the human race.

The only way that we can go into the Kingdom of Heaven is by becoming poor not physically poor or materially poor, necessarily, but that we become spiritually poor, that we become broken before God, that we recognize our spiritual bankruptcy, that we see that our material riches have nothing at all for us. And our good works can buy us nothing whatsoever. And we come to that point of spiritual bankruptcy where we're ready to trust altogether in the Lord Jesus Christ. Only then can we go into the Kingdom of Heaven. Then we're going altogether into the Kingdom of Heaven on the merits of Christ, which is become our Substitute.

LUKE

The Two Genealogies of Christ in Matthew 1 and Luke 3 (136C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. In Matthew 1 and in Luke 3 we have two different accounts of the ancestors of Christ. And I'd like to know why they are different, and also, if the one in Luke is complete. It seems like kind of a short span of time. And I'd like to know if it is complete or not, and the comparison between the two, why they are different.

HC: Okay. Your question deals with the differences that exist between the two genealogies we find in the Bible concerning Jesus. We find one in Matthew 1, that begins with Abraham and goes down through to Joseph. And the other one begins with Adam (that's found in Luke 3), and goes all the way through to Heli, who is not Joseph.

Now when you study these two genealogies, you will find that they are identical from Abraham to David. You'll find the same names. But from David on, you will find a radical departure. In Matthew's genealogy, it goes through Solomon, through Rehoboam, Abijah, Asa, Jehoshaphat, all of the kings of Judah, right through to Jeconiah, and then from Jeconiah through some other names, all the way through Joseph.

Now in Luke's genealogy, it goes to David. And then it doesn't name another king. It goes to Nathan, who was a brother of Solomon, and goes right on through the whole series of other names, coming to Heli. And so this is the genealogy, in Luke 3, of Mary. The one in Matthew is the genealogy of Joseph, who was not the father of Jesus.

CALLER: The one in Luke goes all the way back to Adam.

HC: Yes. Because it is the genealogy of Jesus, and it relates Jesus to Adam. It carries all the way through the whole human race. It really begins with God, because it speaks of Adam, the son of God, and goes all the way through. Now it doesn't mean that every single name in the genealogical line-up has been named. There are one or two or three that are absent, as we compare with other Scriptures. And I think there may be several reasons for this. But one of the reasons is that in so doing you end up with exactly 77 names in that genealogical table. And seven is the number of the perfection of God's plan. And therefore I think, in that sense, it was contrived. That is, the names are named, and enough have been left out to end up with 77, to emphasize that number seven in that context.

And also, incidentally, Jesus was born at the end of the eleventh millennium. There were 11,000 years before Christ, and it was right at that time that Christ was born. And so you find the number eleven featured and the number seven featured in the number 77.

CALLER: Thank you. Good night.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

Why was Jesus Evasive in Luke 22:67? (203B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I wanted to comment about the time in the Bible when they asked Jesus if He was the Son of God. In Luke 22:67 it was really interesting. It says that they asked Him if He was the Christ, and He said, "If I tell you, ye will not believe. And if I also ask you, ye will not answer Me, nor let Me go. Hereafter shall the Son of Man sit on the right hand of the power of God. Then they said all, 'Art Thou then the Son of God?' And He said unto them, 'Ye say that I am.'"

And I was wondering if you could explain that. It sounds like He's telling them that no matter what He says, they're not going to believe Him. So He just says, "Well, you're the one that said it."

HC: I'm not really sure why Christ uses this particular language here. It's very interesting the way He says this. Let's reconstruct if we can. They say, "If you are the Christ, tell us." He said to them, "If I tell you, you will not believe." In other words, "Anything I tell you doesn't mean anything to you anyway." "If I ask you if I am the Christ you will not answer." Now the implication of that is that they had a really sneaking suspicion that He was the Christ. And this would have put them right on the spot.

In fact, it could well be that when Christ asked them that question, "Do you believe that I am the Christ?" just because He is Eternal God, they would not be able to lie in front of Him with that kind of a question. I don't know whether we can read that much into it.

But then He says, "But from now on the Son of Man shall be seated at the right hand of the power of God." And they all said, "Are you the Son of God then?" And He said to them, "You say that I am." And He's really building on what He has said just earlier. "If I ask, you will not answer." And so He's implying here that they knew very well that He was, and He is simply underscoring this.

Now it's interesting that He says, "You say that I AM." I AM is a Name for God. Exodus 3 we read where Moses was told by God, "Tell the children of Israel that I AM has sent you." And so there's a double implication here. "You say that I AM." That is, you say that I am God. But He's also saying you're using the very words of God, you see.

CALLER: I've heard a lot of people say, "Well, He's not saying that He is, and He's not saying that He isn't." But it sounds to me that He's not really tricking them, but He is really putting them on the spot. And a lot of people don't understand that.

HC: You know, we have to read some implications in this, and it's not nearly as direct as, for example, your quotation from Mark 14, where they said, "Are you the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?" And Jesus said, "I AM." Notice that "I AM" again there. "And you will see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power and coming with the clouds of heaven." That was as strong a statement as He made anywhere that He was God.

The Rich Man and the Steward in Luke 16 (207A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question, and I'll take my answer over the air. It involves Luke 16. The verses that I particularly want to know about are verses 8, 9 and 10, especially 8 and 9.

HC: The question that is raised is this interesting question raised by the parable in Luke 16 of the rich man who had a steward. And this steward was very dishonest. He was going to be fired because he was wasting his master's goods. And so before he was fired from his job, the steward made provision for what he would do after he had no job any longer.

And so he called one of the debtors of his master, and he said, "You owe hundred measures of oil. But you take your bill, and sit down quickly and write fifty." In other words, in a dishonest way he's befriending this man, so that afterwards he can go to him and seek favors from him. Another one owed a hundred measures of wheat, and he said, "Take your bill and write eighty."

When the master heard about this (in verse 8), he commended the dishonest steward for his prudence, for his wisdom. "For the sons of this world are wiser in their own generation than the sons of light. And I tell you, make friends for yourselves by means of unrighteous mammon, so that when it fails they may receive you into eternal habitations."

Now let's first of all look at verse 8. "The master commended the dishonest steward for his prudence, for the sons of this world are wiser in their own generation than the sons of light." Now what is "their own generation"? Well, the Bible speaks of the generation of evil. This phrase, "generation of evil" is found, for example, in Luke 11:29: "This generation is an evil generation. It seeks a sign, but no sign shall be given to it except the sign of Jonah."

You see, amongst evil men they have a code of ethics that is also evil. But within that evil code of ethics, within that sinful set of rules that they follow, they are very wise. They work it out so that they are concerned about the future. And so Christ is really pleading here with us to make sure, as a born again believer—you're of a different generation, of course; you're not of the generation of evil now you are a child of God—that you are wise in your own generation. You too must be concerned about the future and about using your opportunities as wisely as possible.

Now in verse 9 He begins to describe what He has in view. He says, "I tell you [now He's talking to born again believers], make friends for yourselves by means of unrighteous mammon, so that when it fails they may receive you into the eternal habitations." Well now, what's unrighteous mammon. That's money, it's property, it's anything at all that we own, anything that the world covets after. That's unrighteous mammon. There's not a nickel of it that is ever going to go into Heaven. When we die, we can't take any of it with us. It's the oil that lubricates the desires of natural man. It's unrighteous mammon. It in itself is not righteous. But you are given charge of this. As born again believers we're not paupers. We have land, perhaps. We have property. We have a job, in which we receive our salary. We are given charge of this. And we're not to despise it. We're not to be careless with it. We have got a job to do with it.

Now what job is that? Verse 9: "I tell you, make friends for yourselves by means of unrighteous mammon." Well, what kind of friends? You mean I'm just to enlarge my circle of acquaintances? I'm to make sure that more people know me? Is that what's in view? No. Notice the last phrase: "so that when it fails." And of course it will fail when we die. There's not a penny that we can take with us. When it has served its purpose, and we go to Heaven to live with Christ, "they" (Who are they? These friends that we've made with unrighteous mammon) "they may receive you into the eternal habitations."

This means that those friends that God particularly has in view are those who have become born again. In other words, God effectively is saying, you are the custodian of property, of a salary, of the energy to make money. Now with this, you are to get on with the task of evangelizing the world. You are to get on with the task of being a witness.

Not everybody is called to be a preacher. Not everybody is called to be an evangelist. Not everybody is called to go from door to door, or to sit behind a microphone, or whatever. But we all are called upon to evangelize the world. And so whatever means that we have, whatever property that we have, we are to lay down on the altar of service and use it to the highest degree possible, with the greatest efficiency possible, that others might know about the Lord Jesus Christ. In this way we are making friends. In this way we are being the wisest possible stewards of the unrighteous mammon God has entrusted to us.

And if we do this, if we make our property available to causes that do bring the Gospel as efficiently as possible, then when we go to Heaven, we're going to be greeted by those in Heaven who are going to tell us, "You know, I have become born again believer because you were willing to lay your property on the altar. You were willing to make it available. And so the Gospel came to me, and God saved me. And now I am here." And this is really the message.

You know, it's interesting, as you go through the Bible, that again and gain there are two major themes. Oh, there are many themes. But there are two major themes. One is the theme of salvation, the fact that we must be born again. And this of course is set in the light of God's justice and God's judgment and the wrath of God, and the fact that we can know the love of God through the Lord Jesus Christ, and so on and so on. And that theme is found in every book of the Bible, whether we're reading in Genesis or whether we're reading in the Book of Kings, or in Ezekiel, or in John, or Revelation. We're going to find that theme of salvation.

But the other thing I find again and again in the Bible is another theme. And that is that once we have become born again, particularly in the New Testament, because this became effective with Pentecost, we have a task to evangelize the world. Again and again this comes through, that we are to evangelize the world. We're to be as available as possible, with our talents, if we have talent to speak, or whatever, with our property, with our means, and so on, so that this task might be done. That is the glorious privilege, that's the glorious heritage of the born again believer, to complete the sufferings of Christ. Christ came to preach the Gospel, and He suffered as He brought the Gospel. And the Bible teaches that we complete His sufferings. And we do this as we lay down our lives on the altar of service and bring the Gospel.

Sharing in Luke 3:11 (212B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'd like to ask a question about Luke 3:11 and also the passage that talks about the rich young ruler whom Christ told to sell everything and to follow Him. How can we relate this to today's life? How should we as Christians relate it to our lives today?

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you.

The question is raised concerning Luke 3:11. There we read, "He who has two coats, let him share with him who has none. And he who has food, let him do likewise." This is John the Baptist who is speaking to the people who are coming to him as he preaches the gospel of repentance. And he is saying that they are to start loving their neighbors. They are to start sharing.

Jesus said in another place that we must "love our neighbor as ourselves." Now God has put within our being a self-love, which is part of God's program, so that we will preserve ourselves. We're always a little extra careful that we aren't going to get hurt, if we're doing something. We're always careful to make sure that all is going to go well with us. And God wants us to have an equal concern for others.

And here it is put in the language. "If you have two coats and you meet with someone who has none, then share with him what you have," because if he does not have a coat, then he is in real trouble. He can't meet the cold. Now ultimately there's a deeper meaning here. The fact is, God has lavished the Gospel upon us. And we have been clothed with the robe of Christ's righteousness. And now we meet someone who is unsaved. He stands spiritually naked before God. And we are to be ready to share this marvelous Gospel that God has lavished upon us. We are to share with him, so that he too might become saved, so that he too, if he is exercised by it, might be clothed by the robe of Christ's righteousness.

And notice the second phrase: "And he who has food, let him do likewise." And when we are saved, we have come into an abundant harvest of food, as we feed on the Lord Jesus Christ. The Word of God is the Bread of Life. And we meet someone who is unsaved. They are spiritually famished. They are dying of malnutrition, because they have no spiritual food to eat. And we very generously are to share this. In a real sense this is getting right to the responsibility of the believer to be available to share the Gospel, to make all that he has available to share the Gospel.

Now this gets us into this matter of the rich young ruler. The rich young ruler was a young man who really thought that he was rich in his good works. He was rich physically, too. But he was also rich in his good works. When Jesus asked him what he had to do to have eternal life, he said that one has to keep the commandments. And he answered, "I've kept all of these from my youth."

In other words, he was very satisfied that he was worthy before God. Probably he was seeking a commendation from Christ, looking upon Christ only as a Rabbi, where Christ as a Rabbi would say, "My, you're a fine young man. And certainly God ought to be grateful to have you in the Kingdom. You are rich in your good works, even as you are rich in your money."

But Christ, of course, has come with a different kind of salvation. We are not saved by our good works. We are not saved by our personal worthiness. The Bible teaches that even our best works are "as filthy rags." If we have committed even just one sin, we stand guilty of hell. And the only way we can ever get into Heaven would be, first of all, to spend an eternity in hell. And since eternity is forever, we would never make it into Heaven.

And so anyone at all who thinks that he's rich in good works, who thinks that he's really worthy before God, is in deep and terrible trouble. And so Christ has to show this young man that he is in trouble, that he is not qualified at this point, in any way, to go into Heaven.

And so He says, "Sell all that you have and give to the poor, and come and follow Me." Now there's a two-pronged implication here. First of all, Christ is talking about physical riches. In another place, in Luke's Gospel, we find the same kind of a statement to all of us. It's bad enough when we read it about the rich young ruler, but actually God is giving this command to all of us.

In verse 32 of Luke 12: "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom. Sell your possessions and give alms (that is, give to those who are poor). Provide yourselves with purses that do not grow old, with a treasure in the heavens that does not fail, where no thief approaches and no moth destroys. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

In other words, Christ is effectively saying, "Make your possessions available to the spiritually poor." He's not talking about the physically poor. He's talking about the spiritually poor, because these are the ones to whom we bring the Gospel. We are stewards of God, ambassadors of God, to get the Gospel out. And we are to make everything that we have as available as possible to bring the Gospel.

And so there is this physical sense, therefore, that we must understand when Christ replied to the rich young ruler that he was to sell his possessions and give to the poor. He was to make himself a disciple of Christ by this obedience, that is, by placing his trust in Christ. And he was to make himself totally available, that all that he had might be ready to be of service to God in bringing the Gospel to others.

But there was another sense that God had in view here. "Sell all that you have and give to the poor, and come and follow Me." In other words, your riches are not going to get you into Heaven, your rich deeds, your good works. That isn't going to get you anywhere, except to hell. You strip yourself of all of this. You come as a spiritually bankrupt sinner before God. None of these good works are meaningful at all. Christ did not come to call the righteous, that is, the self-righteous. He came to call sinners to repentance. And when you have become spiritually stripped of anything that you think is good or worthy, then you're going to be ready to follow Me. Then you're going to be ready to understand the salvation which I have to offer.

And the young man went away "exceedingly sorrowful, because he had great possessions." On both counts he was still trusting in his good works. He liked his physical riches too much. He was not ready to surrender his will to Christ as King and Lord of his life.

Now if we're going to be born again, we must be ready to obey Him. We must count the cost of discipleship. The cost of discipleship means that we have to turn our back on the world. Our security no longer is in the things of this world. Our security is no longer in the pursuit of pleasure and all of these things that are so attractive to unsaved men. Our security is going to be in Christ. We're going to find that we're to live as strangers and pilgrims here. We're just passing through.

But we also are going to find that we have a real task, a real mandate. We are to be stewards of all that Christ has given us, so that we might share that Gospel with others to the very highest possible degree.

And if we're not ready to face this kind of life, it means that we're not ready to belong to Christ. We have not really understood what it means to call upon God for mercy and to repent of our sins and trust in Christ only.

New Wine into Old Wineskins in Luke 5:37-39 (242C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I would like to have you explain for me Luke 5:37-39.

HC: Luke 5:37-39. Now this is the passage where it talks about putting new wine into old wineskins?

CALLER: Yes.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you. The question is raised concerning Luke 5:37-39, where we read, "And no one puts new wine into old wineskins. If he does, the new wine will burst the skins and it will be spilled, and the skins will be destroyed. But new wine must be put into fresh wineskins. And no one after drinking old desires new, for he says, 'The old is good.'"

Now the question is, what is God speaking of in this tiny little parable we find here in Luke 5? Certainly God is not giving us a lesson in how to run a vineyard, or how to run a winery. That obviously cannot be the import of this.

But you see, Christ here is talking about the very essence of salvation. Salvation is not a situation where we are simply made over a little bit, where we are modified because of the fact that the Holy Spirit is present with us. The Bible does teach that when we have become saved God the Holy Spirit takes up His abode with us.

No, the Bible teaches that when we have become born again, or born from above, which is a more proper way of translating John 3, "Ye must be born again," or "Ye must be born from above," this means that in order to become a child of God we have to become a brand new creature. Previously, in verse 36 of Luke 5 He said, "No one tears a piece from a new garment and puts it upon an old garment. If he does, he will tear the new and the piece from the new will not match the old." God is not teaching here, you see, that when we become a child of God we simply have the rough edges knocked off of our character, of our personality, and gradually we grow in sanctification, gradually we become more and more like God wants us to be, and this is what salvation is.

No, that's not what it is at all. We must become a brand new creature. We must become a new creation. Now we don't become a new creation in our bodies. A man who today is not saved and tomorrow has become born from above will still have exactly the same body. And yet in some part of his life there will be a tremendous change. He will be an entirely new personality. It won't be in his body, but it will be in his soul, in his spirit, that part of him that leaves the body at death and goes to live and reign with Christ in Heaven. It is here that he has become a new wineskin, which the Holy Spirit comes to dwell in. It's here that he becomes a brand new garment, not one that's an old one just patched over, but a brand new one.

Now it's true that in his body he still must experience the resurrection And the time when he will be like a new wineskin or like a new garment in his body will not occur until the last day, when he is resurrected from the dead in his body. But now in his soul he is like a new wineskin.

Now in verse 39 it says, "No one after drinking old desires new, for he says, The old is good." If we are satisfied with our old souls, if we are essentially satisfied the way we were, but we know that yes, there are a few things in my life that ought to be cleaned up, we're not going to be on the path of salvation. If we believe that essentially we're a good person, that substantively we have been living in accord with the Word of God, recognizing however that there are some mistakes, there are some errors, there are some things in our life that aren't what they ought to be, and yet we ought to come to Christ in order to get these things cleaned up, we're like those who continue to drink the old. We like the old and we're not going to desire the thought, the ugly truth about ourselves, that we are unworthy before God, we're dead in our sins, we're absolutely in rebellion against God and we must become born from above. If we like the old, we're not going to desire these things, and we're going to continue to say the old is good, essentially I'm worthy before God, essentially God ought to have concern for me because I am a very fine person. But this is not the path toward salvation.

The path toward salvation is where we look at ourselves absolutely honestly and see sin, sin, sin. We see that we are in rebellion against God. We see that we're under the wrath of God and that something drastic has to happen in our life. And that's why Jesus said we must be born from above. We have to become a new creature, a new creation. And we actually experience this as a fact of life in our souls, at the time we are really saved. At that time we have eternal life. At that time we have been taken out of Satan's dominion and transferred into the Kingdom of His dear Son. These verses are speaking of the nature of salvation.

Thank you for that call.

The Trinity and Abraham's Bosom in Luke 16:22 (257E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I was talking to someone at lunch today, and He said, "How can the Trinity be three Persons in One, when Christ sits at the right hand of God?" And I didn't really know how to answer him.

CALLER: And the other question I have is, when the Bible speaks about Lazarus being in Abraham's bosom, it uses the feminine gender. And there are other places in the Bible where it uses the word bosom. Does God have a dual gender, or what?

HC: I'm not certain about that latter question.

CALLER: Bosom, that's a feminine term. And there are other feminine terms in the Bible. Could God indeed be both genders?

HC: Let me try to speak to that.

The question is raised: How can it be that Christ is seated at the right hand of God, if actually there is only one God? Now this is all part of the mystery of the Godhead. The Bible clearly points out the fact that there is God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Spirit. But the Bible also insists that there are three Persons in one, or that there's only one God. It really puts it that way. There is only one God.

Now I know this, that when it uses the phrase, He is "seated at the right hand of God," we must not conjure up the picture of two thrones, with God in the center one and the Lord Jesus at His right hand, seated on another throne. That's a human picture. That's a picture related to this earth. That's a creature picture.

But we must remember, God is Spirit. Can you imagine a spirit sitting on a throne? That will help you to see the difficulty we have here. Actually, when we study this language, to be seated is language the Bible uses to indicate that we rule, or that God rules and has authority. "At the right hand" implies that . . . well, I'm not sure of everything that the right hand implies. It implies, actually, that He is equal in power. He is Number One in a relationship to this matter of rule or authority.

Now we can't explain God. And if anyone doesn't understand, simply say, "Well, join the party. No human being understands." Now there are plenty of people who claim they understand God. But invariably you'll find that they do not face, really, all kinds of verses in the Bible. They claim they can answer all the verses. But when they're really pinned down, they cannot face all the verses of the Bible, because we have very finite minds, while God is infinite.

The other question that was raised was concerning a phrase in Luke 16, where it talks about Lazarus, who was the beggar, whose only friends were the dogs that licked his sores. In other words, he was a poor man, without any helper of any kind on this side of the grave. And he ends up in Abraham's bosom. Now we use the word "bosom" in a feminine term, in a feminine context. But I'm not really sure. I have never researched this particular word, but I'm not really sure that it has to be a feminine word, necessarily, even though we normally use it as a feminine word.

I might do the same thing with the word breast. Now ordinarily the word breast is a feminine word. And yet we sometimes use it in relationship to a man. I think that's correct, if I know the English language at all. So I don't really think that bosom is necessarily a feminine word.

Abraham, incidentally, in this context, is a figure of God Himself. Now why do I say that? Remember what Romans 4 says? That Abraham is called the "father of all believers." Now who is our Father?

Well, God is our Father. And if Abraham is called the "father of all believers," then we know that Abraham is a figure of God Himself.

And so Lazarus was brought into the very most intimate relationship with God Himself, typified in this parable that Jesus is offering in Luke 16 by Abraham.

Well, I hope this helps a tiny bit.

The Kingdom of God is With Us in Luke 17 and 24 (265A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: For my Bible Study lesson, I have to prove that Christ's Kingdom is here now. And I have three verses. I have Luke 17:20 & 21: "Now having been questioned by the Pharisees as to when the Kingdom of God was coming, He answered them and said, 'The Kingdom of God is not coming with signs that can be observed. Nor will they say, Look, it is here, nor There it is. For behold, the Kingdom of God is in your midst.'"

And then I have Luke 24:26: "Ought not Christ to have suffered these things and entered into His glory?" And then I have Hebrews 1:3: "Who, being the brightness of His glory and the expression image of His person, and upholding all things by the Word of His power, when He had by Himself purged our sins sat down on the right hand of God, the Majesty on High."

Now are those correct answers?

HC: Yes, those are good verses. Your question is, "How can we prove that the Kingdom of God is right now?" Remember what Jesus told Nicodemus in John 3?: "You cannot see the Kingdom of God unless you are born from above [or born again]." And then in verse 5 He tells us how we enter that Kingdom. He says, "Verily, verily I say to you, unless one is born of water and the Spirit he cannot enter the Kingdom of God." And so anyone who is born again, or who is born of water and the Spirit, has entered the Kingdom of God.

Now if we've entered the Kingdom of God, then it must be now. Then also read Colossians 1:13, where God says that we have been transferred from the dominion of darkness into the Kingdom of His dear Son. And then remember that John the Baptist, and also Jesus, said repeatedly, "The Kingdom of Heaven [or the Kingdom of God] is at hand." In other words, it's present right now.

You have a good start. And if you have a concordance, you might look up the word kingdom.

CALLER: This is helpful. Thank you very much.

HC: Well, I hope so. Thank you. Good night.

Hating Mother, Father, Wife, etc. in Luke 14:26 (288C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, good evening. I have a question to ask. Would you explain to me, Luke 14:26? I know we have to love, but I don't understand this where Jesus is telling the people that we have to hate our mother, brother, sister, and so on. If you will explain it to me, I'll take it on the air.

HC: You don't think it's a very good idea to hate your mother and father.

CALLER: You see, I have a friend that called me today, asking me this question. And I didn't exactly know how to explain it to her.

HC: All right. I'll try to help you. If you'd like to hang up, you may.

Actually, Jesus is teaching here the price that we must pay if we are going to be a child of God. You see, there are two kingdoms in this world, and only two, only two. Oh yes, there are many political nations. But sprinkled through these political nations there are two kingdoms, and only two. One is the dominion of darkness, headed up by Satan. Most of the peoples of the world belong to this.

The other is the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ. The remnant chosen by grace, from all the nations of the world, belong to this.

Now these two kingdoms are absolutely poles apart. They're totally antithetical to each other. Satan is the head of the first kingdom, and he is in complete rebellion against Christ. He hates Christ. He wants to destroy Christ and all that He does. He is at war with Christ.

Christ, on the other hand, in His program, is going to get total victory over Satan. And finally all of the wicked, all who follow Satan, will be vanquished and cast into hell.

So that's the conflict that exists. Now if you are in an unsaved family, if your father and mother and brothers and sisters are all unsaved, as well as yourself, you're all citizens of the dominion of darkness. You're all slaves of Satan. And so while you may bicker and fight among yourselves to some degree, nevertheless there is common agreement. None of you love God at all, none of you are concerned about the Lord Jesus Christ, none of you are on God's side at all. Characteristic of every unsaved person, you are deep in your heart in rebellion against God.

And so there can be really filial love, and relationships existing in an unsaved family, under God's providential care. But now something dreadful happens. One of you becomes a traitor. One of you goes over to the enemy's side because, you see, the unsaved are under the rule of Satan. And Satan is at enmity with Christ.

So, therefore, whether the unsaved know it or not, they also are enemies of Christ. When God says, "Love your enemies," He's speaking of the unsaved. He's not speaking about those whom we happen to single out as being "so and so's." He's actually speaking about any unsaved person. They are our enemies.

So now you become a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. You've become a traitor to the dominion of Satan. You've gone over to the kingdom of light, the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Now how is this going to relate then to the rest of your family? You have two rules that apply. First of all, you are to love your enemies. And so you have to continue to love your parents, and love your brothers and sisters, simply because that is God's program for you.

But in another sense you have to make a decision. Now these decisions aren't faced very regularly in our land, because we tolerate almost all gospels and religions. We live in that kind of a land, and we can praise God for this. But in many lands this is not so.

In many lands, for example, if this family that we're talking about were a Mohammedan family, and now one of that family became a Christian, immediately he would be faced with a terrible choice. His parents would come to him and say, "Look. You're an infidel Christian. And if you remain a Christian, if you don't renounce this, then you are no longer our child. We will ostracize you. We will cut you off. We will drive you from the village. You cannot be a Christian and remain in our family." So you have to make a decision. Do I love God more, or do I love my parents more? Am I going to throw in the towel and say, "Well, that's too big a price to pay. I can't leave my father and mother. I must repudiate this Gospel that I have been hearing about. I really can't go through with this, to be a Christian?" And so in that case you hate Christ yet. And you haven't learned to turn away from your father and mother.

On the other hand, if you became a Christian, and your parents come to you this way, effectively you're saying, "I love Christ, and therefore I am at war with you. And I have to leave you, if you want me to. I want to be here to witness to you and to pray for you and to help you. But you don't want me here. You're an enemy now. And even though deep in my heart I still love you, I have to live as if I hated you, because you hate me now that I have gone over to the other side."

And so you see, in another place Jesus said that He did not come to bring peace upon the earth, but a sword. Now He did come to bring peace upon the earth in the sense that He came to bring peace with God. But as He brings peace with God, He brings the sword, because the moment that we become saved, then there is a division between us and our family. And there is no longer peace. There was peace as long as we were all unsaved. We were all in agreement in our rebellion against God. And there was that kind of peace. But we were not at peace with God.

The moment we became saved, we came to a point where we were at peace with God, but we were at sword's point with our family, because now they are the enemy. They are in Satan's kingdom while we are in Christ's Kingdom.

The Two Thieves in Luke 23:39-44 (336B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I would like to ask you a question, Mr. Camping. In the Book of Matthew and in the Book of Mark, the two thieves that were crucified with Christ reviled Him. But in the Book of Luke, the one thief rebuked the other thief.

HC: Then he turned to Jesus and said, "Remember me when Thou comest into Thy Kingdom."

CALLER: And Christ said, "Today thou shalt be with Me in Paradise." Would you please explain that? I would certainly appreciate it.

HC: The question is raised concerning the two thieves that were hanging on the cross. Now when we read all of the accounts concerning these two thieves in the Bible, we get this picture that shines through. We see that, first of all, both of these thieves reviled Jesus. They began reviling Him.

But then, as we continue to analyze the sentences that we find in the Bible concerning them, we find that finally one of the thieves repented and turned to the Lord Jesus Christ, and said, "Remember me when Thou comest into Thy Kingdom." He recognized that Jesus was the Savior, or that Jesus was the Lord, whereas the other thief continued to revile Him until his death, as far as we can tell from the Bible.

Now in this particular case, it's not too difficult to see the spiritual lesson that God is teaching us. These two thieves, in a real sense, represented mankind. All of mankind stands before the cross, and all mankind begins as abject sinners under the wrath and the curse of God, sentenced to hell for our sins. We all stand in open rebellion against God, even as these two thieves did.

A percentage of the world goes to its death continuing to revile God, continuing to be antagonistic toward the Law of God, continuing to turn a deaf ear to the Lord Jesus Christ. These are the unsaved of the world, who never turn to the Lord Jesus Christ. And they are typified by this one thief that continued to revile Jesus.

On the other hand, we have the account of the thief who did turn to the Lord Jesus, and that is a figure, or he typifies those who finally, by God's grace, have their spiritual eyes opened. They see that Jesus Christ is the Messiah, and they turn to Him as Lord and Savior, so that effectively Jesus says, "Today thou shalt be with Me in My Father's Kingdom." In other words, if we are saved, when we die we go to be with the Lord Jesus Christ in Heaven.

In this drama of the cross, and the two thieves, we have a real picture of mankind.

The "Mammon of Unrighteousness" in Luke 16:9 Explained (759A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Brother Camping, I have a question on Luke 16. I was wondering, it talks about the unjust steward, and he gave away half of what his lord's debts were. And then in verse 9 it says, "Make yourself friends of the mammon of unrighteousness." I was wondering exactly what that means.

HC: The context is that Jesus is teaching that the unsaved people, living by the principles that the unsaved live by, do have a concern for the future. They are always protecting themselves insofar as the future is concerned. But He is faulting the believers that they do not have a proper concern for the future.

Now our concern for the future is entirely different than the unsaved man's, and the principles that we live by are altogether different. But nevertheless God is underscoring that we have to do a lot better job in being concerned about the future.

Now in verse 9 He points out what He has in view for us. The mammon of unrighteousness is the wherewithal that exists in the world, our money, our property, our inheritance, the things of this world. That is the mammon of unrighteousness. There is nothing righteous in itself about money or land or buildings or property that we own. These are the tools of the world to get on with their unrighteous practices.

But we are to utilize this to make friends. Now what kind of friends does God have in view? He says, "that when ye fail" Now at what point do we fail? Well, we fail at the point that our work has ended. We no longer can get on with the task God has assigned to us. Our time has ended. And what is going to happen when we fail? "They . . ." Who are "they"? These friends that we have made, "May receive you into everlasting habitations." That means that God is focusing our eyes on the fact that we are to use the things of this world, the money that God has entrusted to our care, the property God has entrusted to our care, to get on with the task of sending forth the Gospel, so that others might become saved. Then, when we are through with the task of sending forth the Gospel, these who have become saved because we have generously given that the Gospel could go out, will greet us. They will have become saved, and they will greet us as we come into Heaven. And that is the planning for the future that God has in mind for the believers. We are to keep our eyes focused on Heaven. We are to realize that there is no point in building a lot of financial successes in this world for ourselves. We are to utilize the money that God has entrusted into our care to send forth the Gospel. And when we get to Heaven, then we will see the results of the fact that we have been faithful stewards. And every believer of course to some degree will be faithful.

CALLER: A lot of Christians prefer to deal with Christians, in a money context. Is what He's saying that we're not to consider that, that we're just to go out and deal with everybody?

HC: No. What He's saying is that, and if we put this in the context of all the other verses in the Bible that speak about the chief task of the believer, what He is saying is that the number one priority of the believer in this world is not to look for financial security for himself. It is not to make sure that he's got plenty of money for his old age. That's what the unsaved do. They're worried about their financial future in this life. But our concern has to be with looking at eternity, and what our task is in relationship to eternity. And that task is to be a preacher of the Gospel, to be obedient to the command to go into all the world with the Gospel.

And as we lay our life on the altar of service, as we make the money that God has given us available so that the Gospel can go forth by radio or by missionaries or by the printed page, however it is, we are making friends by use of this money. In other words, God is saving people through the fact that we have made this money and our property available.

Now in verse 13 God really underscores a very important aspect of this. And this is something that all of us have to take very seriously. It's something that won't go away. He says in verse 13, "No servant can serve two masters. For either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

Now one of the greatest temptations that we have as Christians is that because we live in a world that is totally money-oriented and totally earthbound, because our security comes in the things that money will buy, the houses we own, the stocks and bonds we own, the insurance policies we have, the savings account that we have, which is the strength and security of the unsaved man, the strength and security of the world, and we are surrounded by this kind of a philosophy, which is pounded at us, dinned into our ears and taught us by everything that we look at and hear about, there is a temptation to be like the world in this. But we are not to live like the world. We are to recognize that there is no security in this world. If we die owning ten houses, so what? Or even if we own ten houses and don't die, God can take all of it away from us in a minute anyway, through fire or through pestilence or through war, etc. And this happens all the time, all over the world. There is no security in the things of this world. We have to get rid of that notion, that we have a lot of security if we have so much money in the bank or if we have so many properties with our name. We really don't have any security, even though the world thinks they have security in this.

For the believer our security is only in the Lord Jesus Christ. Now on the other hand, the property that we own and the money that we have is to be made available that the Gospel can go forth. Christ is our security. We're not to look to this money and the property as our security. Christ is our security, and we are to make our money as available as possible that the Gospel can go forth. And because we've learned that our money and our houses and our property and our land and our stocks and bonds and our insurance policies are not our security, we are not hesitant to give very generously. We're not hesitant to sell of this and sell off that so that more money can be available that the Gospel can go forth.

Do you see the large scope of the message that God is teaching us here?

CALLER: You've really helped a lot with it. Money isn't that important, and it just a vehicle to get the Gospel out.

HC: That's what it is. For the world money is an end in itself. It is the security of the world. For the believer, that is not our security. Our security is the Lord Jesus Christ. And if we find in our life that we've been tempted into thinking that money and houses and land are our security, we're to ask the Lord for forgiveness. And instead, like you put it so well, we recognize that money is simply a vehicle, a marvelous means God has placed at our disposal, to get the Gospel out into the world. And if all of us who are children of God would really catch this very clearly, my, there would be so much money available to send forth the Gospel that our cup would be running over. If all of us would catch this, Family Radio would never be in a position where we didn't have enough money to meet the bills for this month. All of us would recognize that the things of this world are not important. We've got to be more dedicated and committed than ever to use our money and whatever else we have that the Gospel might go out. That is the mandate that God has given us.

CALLER: That's why the steward's lord wasn't upset when he . . .

HC: There is an implication there. He was giving away of his master's goods, and thus he was being protected for the future. Yes, there is an implication there that this man is a picture of a believer. We give away what God has given to us, in order to prepare for the future. Yes, I think that's a good insight.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much, Mr. Camping.

Parables Concerning Salvation in Mt 25 & Lu 17 (384B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. Would you explain Luke 17:10 and Matthew 25:29 & 30?

HC: In Matthew 25 we read, "For unto everyone that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance. But from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath. And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

Now this of course is the conclusion of the parable of the ten talents is it not? Actually, he gave one servant five talents, another two, and another one. And then the man with the five talents used his talents to gain five more, the one with two talents gained two more, and the one with one talent hid the talent and gained nothing from it. And then when the master came and they gave their account, then the lord commended the man with the five talents who had gained five more, He commended the man with the two talents who had gained two more. But He said of the one, "You should have put your money into business and gained additional. But instead you have hid it, and therefore you are to be cast into hell."

And then in that context He said, "Therefore take the talent and give it unto him which hath ten talents." Now the parable is talking about the offer of salvation that God gives to all men. He comes to some more abundantly than to others. But to the whole human race there is sufficient information, just in the fact that God has created this world so that man knows that he needs a Savior, that man knows that he's a sinner and that he ought to become right with God somehow.

The man with the one talent is like someone who is offered the way of salvation, or he knows that he ought to do something about his sins, but he does nothing about it. There is no fruit that comes from his life. He simply disregards the fact that he has to become right with God. And of course he is subject to hell. What blessings he did have on this earth because he enjoyed the blessings of creation, he enjoyed the blessings of being in a church, perhaps, or a Christian family, or whatever, all of this will be taken away from him, and he will be cast into hell. Whereas the man who responded to the Gospel, and his life became fruitful to the Gospel, God will lavish His blessings upon him, so that he becomes free from his sins, he becomes a son of God, he receives eternal life. He is an heir of all the blessings that God speaks of, all the promises that God speaks of in the Bible. The Bible just goes on and on about the marvelous blessings that come to those who become born again believers.

Now that's really, I believe, in a nutshell, the sense of this parable

Now in Luke 17, what was the verse that you were concerned about? Verse 10?

There we again have a parable, where Christ is saying in verse 7: "But which of you having a servant plowing or feeding cattle will say unto him, by and by, when he comes from the field, Go and sit down and eat, and will not rather say unto him, Make ready wherewith I may sup, and gird thyself and serve me, until I have eaten and drunken. And afterward thou shalt eat and drink. Doth he thank that servant because he did the things that were commanded? I trow not. So likewise ye. When ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants. We have done that which was our duty to do."

Yes, there's a very distinct relationship to Matthew 25. We do not obey Christ and become a born again believer, that is, respond to the Gospel, become exercised by the Gospel and therefore receive eternal life because we deserve it. Nor do we receive all kinds of rewards on top of eternal life. We don't receive any of these things because we deserve it. We receive these things as an act of God's grace. It's totally an act of God's grace. Our response to the Gospel is what is to be expected when God the Father is drawing us, when He has become our Savior and Lord. It is the expected response. Under no circumstance is it a response that ought to bring credit to us or make us worthy, or give us the idea that now we're entitled to something just a little bit more than somebody else.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you so much for calling and sharing that. Good night.

The Parable of the Servants in Lu 12:45-49 (432A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, Brother Camping. Could you please speak on Luke 12:45-49?

HC: Luke 12:45-49. Let's see. Where it speaks about the parable of the servant that thinks that the Lord has been delayed, and he's beating the menservants and maidservants?

CALLER: Correct. I'm interested in the severity of the beatings, what the Bible is trying to get across by the different beatings.

HC: All right. Fine. In Luke 12 God has given us a very interesting parable, in which He's speaking about a master and his servants. And this master has gone away on a journey. And then the servant says in his heart, "My lord delayeth his coming, and therefore he shall begin to beat the menservants and maidservants, and to eat and drink and be drunken. The lord of that servant will come in a day when he cometh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware, and will cut him in sunder and will appoint him his portion with the unbelievers. And that servant which knew his lord's will and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. But he that knew not and did commit things worthy of stripes shall be beaten with few stripes. For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required. And to whom men have committed much, of him they will ask the more."

Now you see, God here is giving us a parable to illustrate the fact that it is a very serious matter when we have a knowledge of the Gospel and we do not surrender our wills to that Gospel. If we are an unsaved person and we have never heard about the Lord Jesus Christ, we never became acquainted with the Bible, we did not grow up in a Christian home or in the presence of a Christian church, and yet because we are sinners we are under the wrath of God and we will endure hell, well, that is like the servant who knew not and did commit things worthy of stripes. He shall be beaten with few stripes. In other words, hell is still there, but there will be a lesser punishment for such a one.

On the other hand, if we know the way of salvation, if we've been brought up in a Christian family, we have attended church very regularly, we know the things of the Word of God, we know about what God says about sin and about judgment and about the Lord Jesus Christ, and yet we die without becoming born again, then our judgment will be far more severe. We are like someone who is saying, "Well, I have lots of time. I don't have to become born again just yet. I'll live my own life the way I want to live," which is really what everyone is doing who has not become born again.

We may still try to live a decent moral life, but in God's sight our sins still stand out, because they have not been covered by Christ's blood. And so such a person, when Christ comes, is going to stand for judgment and will be beaten with many stripes. That is, his condemnation will be much more severe.

You see, hell is payment for sin. And the more the sin, the more grievous the punishment. We must pay the penalty that God demands for our sins. And any single sin can send us eternally to hell. But if our sins are more and more, and particularly if we deny the Lord Jesus Christ when we have been given all of this information, then our penalty will be even more severe than ever.

JOHN

Eating and Drinking of Christ in John 6:53 (009A)

CALLER: Could you explain John 6:53 please?

HC: John 6:53: "Verily verily, I say to you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, you have no life in Him."

You see, in verse 35 Jesus said, "I am the Bread of Life." And when we surrender our will to Him, when we have become completely identified with Him in the cross experience—that is He has become sin on our behalf—then we have eaten of the Bread of Life. Then we have drunk His blood. We are those who have become entirely identified with Him. This is language to indicate the close identity that does exist between the believer and Christ Himself, because we have eaten Him.

Now the figure, of course, is taken from the physical idea of eating food. We eat bread and we drink water, and we drink liquids, in order to sustain our life, in order to live a vital, happy life. Now spiritually, therefore, we also have to eat of something and drink of something if spiritually we're going to have life, if we're going to live vital lives as Christians.

Whom do we eat of, or what do we eat of? We eat of the Lord Jesus Christ; we drink of Him; He is the Living Water; He is the Bread of Life. If we do not eat of Him and drink of Him, if we are not feeding on Him, then we are not saved; we are spiritually starving to death. We are amongst those who are still dead. The Bible teaches that we are dead in our sins, and we only have eternal life in Him.

And this is why Jesus can say in verse 35: "He who comes to Me shall not hunger, and he who believes in Me shall never thirst." Once we are identified with Christ, once we are in Him, once He has become our Lord and Savior in other words, then we have been given the Bread of eternal life. We do have eternal life. We have the fountain of water really dwelling within us. In John 7, Jesus said in verse 38, "He who believes Me, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water." Once we are saved, once we have drunk of the Lord Jesus, then in turn we become fountains of living water as we spread the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to others.

How Does the Lord "Prune the Branches"? in John 15:2 (035A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Could you help me with John 15:2?

HC: John 15:2. There we read: "Every branch of mine that bears no fruit He takes away, and every branch that does bear fruit He prunes, that it may bear more fruit."

CALLER: What I want to know is, how does He prune it?

HC: We read in Hebrews 12 that every son that He receives, He chastises. He brings testing programs into our life. He brings reverses into our life. And in this way He calls attention to our sins. Of course, He also prunes through the Word of God directly, as we read the Word. We are exercised by the Word, as it is used of the Holy Spirit as His sword, to cut away the dross from our lives.

CALLER: Could it be through a weakness that we may have that He does this?

HC: Not through a weakness, that is, if you're talking about a sin weakness. He may bring testing programs to expose our sin weakness, so that as we fall we realize that we have something in our life that ought to be pruned, that ought to be cut away. It's dead wood that has to go. It is never God's program that we sin. But He will help us to get victory over sin.

CALLER: I'm not sure what this is from, but I got where I couldn't go out of the house. I wasn't a Christian, but I guess I was searching. I got sick, and then I lost my confidence. I couldn't go out, and for 4 years I just was not able to go down the street. I had such terror or anxiety, and I didn't know where to turn. And I kept searching the scriptures and listening to K.E.A.R. And I just wondered. I did become a Christian through this thing, whatever it is, this phobia. But I just wondered. Did the Lord let this come on me for this purpose? Or is it just a weakness of my own? Now it's not so bad. I still have it. I'm a little better, but . . .

HC: Every person has got special sin weaknesses of one kind or another. We're born with these. We inherit them from our forebears. One person's sin weakness may be that he has an extraordinary desire for sexual lust. Another one has an extraordinary desire to gossip. Another one has a tremendous sin weakness of exaggeration, so that really he's telling lies all the time, because exaggerations are lies. And this may be a function of a deeper sin weakness of pride, where he wants to be recognized and wants to be the one who has the most spectacular story to tell. Another one may have a sin weakness of outright deceit, or of vanity, of wanting to be beautiful, and so on.

Now each one of us is different, and there's always the sin that is most pronounced in our life. Another one may have a sin weakness of anxiety, deep-rooted anxiety. But this is what sin is.

Now this is why Christ came. He didn't come because we were righteous. He came because we were sinners. Now very frequently, if God is going to deal with us, He may allow sin. But remember, sin is never God's will. Sin is never God's will. But sometimes God will allow that sin to magnify in our life. God simply takes His hand of restraint off of us. The sin is our sin, not God's sin in any way. And He does this so that this sin will be very pronounced. But we can see it as sin, and begin to reckon with it.

Now the first thing we must remember is that when we have sin, and the Bible says, "Don't be anxious." So when we are anxious, that's sin. And so the first thing we have to recognize is that it is sin. The moment we know that it's sin, then victory is assured. As long as we think that it's just a phobia, or we think it's just a weakness of some kind, or a habit, then we are not facing the reality of life, and we will not get victory over it.

But when we look upon it as a sin, we are not trusting the Lord the way we ought to. We're not living the way we ought to. When we cry out to Him for mercy, when we cry out to Him for a hatred for this sin, then we can start getting on a path of victory.

Now in your own case, this is a very deep-rooted problem. It's one that makes you just think, "Oh, how can I ever get victory over this?" And in yourself you cannot. You can't do it in yourself. But beginning with the fact that you will confess to the Lord, "Oh, Lord, I've had this sin in my life of not trusting you," because ultimately this is what it is. You really are saying, "If I go out in the street, God is not sufficient to care for me. Something dreadful is going to happen to me." And that's nothing more than sin.

Now what has brought it on, I have no idea. Why God has allowed you to be designed this way, whereas someone else has a sin weakness of some other kind, I don't know. But I do know that that's why Christ came, to deal with sin. And so you start out by confessing this sin. "Oh, Lord, I have this deep and terrible sin of anxiety in my life, where I don't trust You. And oh, Lord, forgive me. Oh, Father, strengthen me that I may realize that I'm secure in You, and there is nothing for me to fear. And forgive this sin, and strengthen me." And really pray to the Lord about it, that you might get victory over this.

Now when this anxiety strikes you, and right in the middle of the night it grips your heart, begin to cry out to the Lord: "Oh, Lord, have mercy on me. This sin has got to go. Help me to realize that my strength is in You. You will never leave me nor forsake me. You are the Good Shepherd, and You've laid down Your life for me. And You have promised that You would lead me beside the still waters and help me to lie down in safety. And oh, Father, give me that security in my life."

CALLER: I have another problem. If I have a sinful thought or if I do something sinful, I'm always afraid that God will keep me this way, because of my sin. I guess all my life I've thought that that's why I have this, because I've sinned in many ways, and God is punishing me.

HC: You see, very frequently, one of the biggest reasons for a deep-rooted anxiety such as you have is a deeper-rooted sense of guilt, where you somehow feel that God is going to abandon you and strike you down. Now this gets right back to trusting. When Christ says that if we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness, when God declares this in First John 1:9, does He mean what He says? And so you look back on your life now. And you don't have to tell me what it is, but you think back on the worst sin you've ever committed. And you just reflect on that. What is the worst sin I've ever committed? And then ask yourself: Can Christ forgive that sin? Can He forgive that sin? Do I really trust Him, that if I would go to the Lord tonight and tell Him all about it and earnestly resolve in my heart that I'll turn my back on ever doing that sin again, as Christ strengthens me, do I really believe that He can forgive me?

CALLER: I still do these sins every so often. I still get a lustful thought or I . . .

HC: Well, I'm not even thinking about that. You go way back in your life. Is there something that you even hate to face? Is there a sin that you have almost forgotten? In other words, when you look back on your life, are you completely convinced, as you look at yourself very honestly (not kidding yourself, but looking at yourself very honestly), are you completely convinced that Christ will forgive every one of those sins?

CALLER: I guess I feel He just will always remember them and not look very favorably. I guess that's my problem.

HC: Well, that's a function of guilt. See, that's really saying that God hasn't really forgiven me. Now in Jeremiah 31:34, it says: "For I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." Now that's a verse that you ought to commit to memory. "I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." Or Micah 7:19, where God declares: "He will again have compassion on us. He will tread our iniquities underfoot. Thou wilt cast all our sins in to the depths of the sea." This again is language to indicate that they are gone forever.

CALLER: But when He says that He prunes or chastens us, if I sin tomorrow, I hope He doesn't make me feel fearful. If He chastens me again, I wonder how I will do it. That's what I'm afraid of. You know, if I'm growing in the Lord, you said that He chastens us again, or He prunes us. I hope it's not in this way, because it takes me a long time to get over it.

HC: He will not chasten you through sin. He may chasten you in some other way. But He does not chasten you through sin. The fear itself is sin, you see. And so when you have this fear in your heart, you have to ask yourself: "Now why am I sinning this way? Why am I not trusting the Lord that all my sins are forgiven? Why am I doing this?"

And then you pray, "Oh, Father, I have this fear." And that's the wonderful thing about going to Him. You can level with Him. There's nothing you have to hold back. He knows all about what's going on in your thought life. He knows what you're thinking before you even think it. And so you can't surprise Him. It isn't as if you're going to unburden some things that are going to catch God off guard. That can't happen.

And so you can very confidently go to Him and talk to Him as candidly and as confidently as you could to the most cherished friend, whom you trusted entirely.

And you can say to Him: "Oh, Lord, not I have this fear again tonight. And I know that this fear is sinful, because it means that I'm not trusting You. If I was really trusting You, then I wouldn't have this kind of fear. And oh, Father, forgive this. Forgive this and give me the strength and the belief, the trust, the faith, that I'll take You at Your Word that all my sins are forgiven and that I am in Your hands and that You cherish me and hold me fast and will never let me go. And may this become real in my life."

CALLER: That's what I need. Could you give me a couple examples of how He might chasten a person, from your own life perhaps?

HC: Yes. Frequently, if we are struggling with a sin, the next thing we know, God may send us some bad news about a loved one, which will just bring us down. Or maybe we might lose our job. Or we might break a leg.

CALLER: It's frightening.

HC: Well, it's nothing to be frightened about. Chastening, you know, at the time it is happening is very difficult. But later on, the Bible says, it brings, well, let me read that passage, because then I'll say it exactly the way the Bible does. In Hebrews 12:11 we read: "For the moment all discipline seems painful rather than pleasant. Later it yields the peaceful fruit of righteousness to those who have been trained by it. Therefore lift up your drooping hands and strengthen your weak knees, and make straight paths for your feet, so that what is lame may not be put out of joint but rather be healed.

Now that's what you need, you see. You need to lift up your drooping hands and strengthen your weak knees. And if God chastens you, praise the Lord! Praise the Lord! I can remember in my own life, there have been times when God has been really giving me assistance with sin problems in my life. And so He clobbers me in one way or another. And I remember, finally you get to the point where you say, "Say, isn't that great? God is really beginning to deal with me." And how that supports you in your desire to get victory over that sin.

"Greater Works Than These Shall He Do" in John 14:12 (136D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I found in John 14:12 that it says, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also. And greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto My Father." Would you explain that to me?

HC: Yes. Your question is concerning John 14:12, which seems to tell us (and it does indeed tell us) that we who believe in Christ will do His works, and greater works than these will he do, because He has gone to the Father.

Now let me ask you, first of all, do you know anyone today who is able to multiply the loaves and the fish as Jesus did, or who is able to raise the dead as Jesus did, or who instantaneously can heal a leper, or who can take someone who has atrophied limbs (that is, who has never walked and whose limbs are completely shriveled up), and instantaneously give that person whole limbs?

CALLER: Well, no, not necessarily. I don't know anybody. But since Jesus said this, and it's right here in the Word, I believe it is possible if it is the will of God.

HC: Except that if it is talking about doing miracles, then God would be lying to us if we couldn't see the evidence of this in the world. And we cannot see the evidence of this in the world.

Now when we study a little more carefully in the Word, we find that this was not the essential work of Christ, that He was going to do miracles. The essential work of Christ was to go to the cross and die for our sins. But we can't do that, either, because that was Christ's work, uniquely His. And so we can't enter into that.

But there's another work that Christ did. In Luke's Gospel, in Chapter 4, we find there that Jesus went about preaching the Gospel. In Luke 4:43 He declared, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God to the other cities also, for I was sent for this purpose. And He was preaching in the synagogues of Judea."

Now God is declaring that Christ came to preach the Gospel. That was His work to do. Now that's exactly the same work that Christ has commanded us to do. He said, "Go ye into all the world, making disciples." "Ye are My ambassadors," and so on. Now let's look at how successful Christ was as a preacher. He preached for three and a half years, and there was only a handful of believers, perhaps as many as 120, in Jerusalem, or maybe a little over 500 in all of Judea, after three and a half years of preaching.

But now Christ goes to the Father. And here we find Peter, who so often puts his foot in his mouth, and he preaches one sermon, on Pentecost afternoon, and 3000 are saved. He's doing the work of Christ, and greater works, because Christ has gone to the Father. In other words, Christ is not talking about miracles here. He's talking about being a preacher of the Gospel.

CALLER: There still is a doubt in my mind. Still I believe that if it is necessary, and God permits it, and if it is His will, we are able to do these things. It says, very plainly. Of course later on He talks about the Comforter, who is the Holy Spirit.

HC: Now you must remember that as born again believers, we are told to "walk by faith, not by sight." We are told that "an evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign."

Now the casting out of demons was a miracle. It was a sign. So was the healing of the sick. These were miracles. And Jesus said that we're not to seek this kind of a thing. Now this may be very exciting. This may seem to give positive evidence that we have the true Gospel. But we can't be more holy than God. We can't write the rule book. We've got to follow the Bible. And the Bible says that we walk by faith, and we don't walk by signs. And we don't get involved in that kind of activity.

CALLER: You just said that Jesus said that we should not seek these kind of things. But where does He say that?

HC: Because He said, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign." We find this kind of a verse recorded in a number of places. In Matthew 12, He said in verse 38, "Some of the scribes and Pharisees said to Him, 'Teacher, we wish to see a sign from you.' But He answered them, 'An evil and an adulterous generation seeks for a sign. But no sign shall be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah.'" Now the sign of the prophet Jonah is the cross, the fact that Christ died for our sins. That's the miracle that we have to look at.

And we're not to go around looking for miracles. We walk by faith. And if someone is unsaved, if we suspect he might be demon-possessed, it makes no difference. He's unsaved. The answer is, we witness to him of the Gospel. And it is God who will take care of the matter of Satan. We don't have to go around rebuking Satan. That's not our task at all.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

No One Has Ascended to Heaven" in John 3:13 (214C)

CALLER: In John 3:13 it says, "No one ascended to Heaven." So I wondered what happened to Enoch, or how that's being worked out there in the Bible. And also verse 14.

HC: The question that's raised is concerned with John 3:13 and 14. Jesus is talking to Nicodemus. And He's discussing with Nicodemus what it means to be born again, discussing with Nicodemus how it is possible for a person to enter the Kingdom of Heaven.

And then finally, in verse 12, Jesus said to him, "If I have told you earthly things and you do not believe, how can you believe if I tell you Heavenly things? No one has ascended into Heaven, but He who descended from Heaven, the Son of Man. And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up, that whoever believes in Him may have eternal life."

Now if we isolate verse 13, "No one has ascended into Heaven, but He who descended from Heaven, the Son of Man," we might immediately point out that there is some kind of a contradiction, because in the Old Testament it says very clearly that Elijah ascended into Heaven in a whirlwind. And we read of Enoch that he was not, because God took him, implying that he went into Heaven. But at any rate, the Bible is very plain that Elijah ascended into Heaven in a whirlwind. And so, since that would be a contradiction, we know immediately that we've got to find some other kind of an answer. That is not what God is saying, that nobody physically has entered into Heaven.

But let's look at the context. Jesus is talking to Nicodemus, and He says in verse 12, "If I have told you earthly things and you do not believe," in other words, "You don't trust Me enough even when I talk about earthly things. How can you believe if I tell you Heavenly things?" And now He's saying, "I'm the only one qualified to talk to you about Heavenly things. No one has ascended into Heaven. That is, no one has ever been in Heaven and is here on earth to tell you about Heavenly things. Only I, because I have descended from Heaven, the Son of Man. I am qualified to tell you Heavenly things. I come from Heaven. I am the Lord God who has become the Son of Man."

And of course verse 14 is teaching another beautiful truth. "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up." Now He's expanded and really gotten into another subject very quickly, that's relating back to what He had been talking about earlier, "Ye must be born again." You see, in the children of Israel murmured against God, and God sent snakes among them, so they bit these rebellious Israelites. And the Israelites began to die. And finally the people cried out. And God told Moses to make a bronze serpent and put it on a pole, so that anyone at all who would look at that bronze serpent could be healed of his snake bite, and would live.

Now God is relating, in this verse, the Lord Jesus Christ to this bronze serpent. Now how can this be? How can there be a relationship here? What does the serpent represent in the Old Testament? Well, the serpent represents Satan, the dragon. "He is that old serpent, the devil," we read in another place. And sin and Satan are intimately inter-linked. Satan is the king of that which is sinful. And these serpents that were biting the Israelites were a figure of their sin. Their sin was causing them to perish. Their sin was causing them to be under God's judgment. They experienced physical death because of the bite of these serpents, but it was really a picture of the spiritual death that we are subject to because of our sins.

Well, now we have a real problem. The bronze serpent was put on a pole, and they looked at that, and then they became healed. Now how can that relate to the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the very antithesis, on the very opposite side of Satan? Christ is not a serpent. Christ is the Lamb that was slain. Haven't we walked ourselves into a problem here?

Not really, if we consider this. The Bible says that Christ became sin for us. In another place it says that He nailed our sins to the cross. And we look to the cross in order to find salvation. It is there that we have to place our hope. And so the bronze serpent was a figure of Christ, who had become sin for us. He became as one who was condemned, who had become desperately wicked, because, of course, He became saddled with our sins. And yet it is at the cross that we have to look, in order that we might be saved from our sins.

And that's why verse 15 goes along and says that whoever believes in Him, that whosoever looks to the cross and believes in the Lord Jesus Christ may have eternal life.

Well, thank you for that question.

The Wedding at Cana in John 2:1-11 (219D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. I wanted you to talk a little bit on the Wedding at Cana. Did I understand it right when I heard you say one time that these people at the wedding were unsaved? Could you tell me what you think that the changing of water into wine symbolizes? I know it was a miracle, but was there anything else there? And then I wanted you to talk on the Communion wine whether it has to be wine, or whether it can be grape juice, or whatever.

Thank you

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

The question is raised concerning the Wedding at Cana of Galilee. Here Jesus performed His first miracle, in that He changed water into wine. And the evidence of the passage is that this was regular wine, an alcoholic beverage. Now why would He do this? Let's answer that question, first of all.

What was He proving by this? Well, there were six stone jars there. And He said, "Fill them with water," or they were filled with water, I guess. And these He changed into wine. Now the first thing we see here is that in changing water into wine an act of creation was required. Water has two elements, hydrogen and oxygen. Wine has an additional element, carbon. And so to change that water to wine means that instantaneously Christ had to create carbon.

So the six stone jars immediately remind us of the six days of creation, don't they? Christ was the Creator, of course. And He is showing that He is the Creator of the universe. He is the Lord God. It is a mighty demonstration of the fact that God, the Creator of the universe, has become flesh and dwelt among us.

Secondly, these stone jars contained water of purification, we read. Now in the Old Testament there were a number of signs, or official representations of what salvation, or what the Messiah's work of saving us, was all about. One was the sign of circumcision, another was the burnt offerings, a third was the blood sacrifices, and a fourth was the purifying rites, the washing with water. For example, the priest, before he went about his ceremonial duties in the temple, would wash his feet and his hands in a laver of water. It was actually baptism. It was cleansing by water.

And this water in these stone jars was reserved for this purpose. And this purifying rite was pointing to the coming Messiah. Now when Christ turned this into wine, what was He pointing to? He was pointing to Himself as the Messiah, because the wine represented the shed blood of Christ. The fruit of the vine is the representation of the poured out blood of the Lord Jesus Christ.

And so therefore, in this wedding feast, as He does this miracle, He is not only pointing to Himself as the Creator, but as the Messiah. He has come to redeem us from our sins.

Now the question is raised, He gave this wine to these people who were seated around this wedding. Would God do this if they were born again believers? I really doubt that He would have. In Proverbs 31:4 it says, "It is not for kings to drink wine or desire strong drink." Yet in verse 6 it says, "Give wine to those that are perishing, and strong drink to those who are about to die."

In other words, God has given wine to the world. And remember, wine is able to be made by man only because God has created grapes the way He did. It isn't produced by man's ingenuity. It is produced by the fact that God has created the vineyards in just the way He did. But wine has been provided for man so that he might be able to face life in an unreal way. The sharp edges are taken away. He's tired, and he's frightened, and a glass of wine acts as somewhat of a tranquilizer. And unfortunately, of course, man will drink more than he should. And he can be troubled by drunkenness.

But a born again believer doesn't need wine for that purpose. A born again believer can go to the Lord Jesus Christ. We don't have to resort to tranquilizers to face life. We can rest our life in the Lord Jesus Christ.

I say that most of the people at the Wedding at Cana of Galilee were unsaved, not only by virtue of the fact that Christ gave them wine to drink, but because there was only a very tiny percentage of believers in the world in that day. Even after Jesus had preached for three and a half years, the largest number of believers that we can find is a little more than 500. You'll find that number in I Corinthians 15. Or in the upper room in Jerusalem, there were about 120, a very small percentage, if we figure that they would come out of a nation that perhaps numbered about two million people.

And so the likelihood at this wedding feast is that there were very very few that were saved. Of course we can't deny the possibility that He gave wine even to the saved there, as a figure of the Communion that He would offer in His own shed blood.

Now this brings us to the last question. What about the Communion service that we celebrate these days? Should we use wine or grape juice? Interestingly enough, the Bible is silent. It speaks about the fruit of the vine in connection with the beginning of the Communion service, and it speaks about the cup, but it does not use the word grape juice, it does not use the word wine. And so I believe we're on safe ground whether we use grape juice or whether we use wine. I believe that either would be in accordance with the scriptures.

The Meaning of "World" in John 3:16 (226B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. I want to ask you a question about John 3:16. What does it mean when it says "world"?

HC: The question is raised about John 3:16, where it says, "For God so loved the world." What does God mean by "the world"?

The word that is used there is the word cosmos. Now the word cosmos is found a great many times in the Bible, and ordinarily, when the Bible uses the word cosmos, it's speaking about unsaved, the world of unsaved men. But not always. There are places in the Bible where God uses the word cosmos in the sense of the hole universe, the whole creation.

In fact, we use it in our normal English translation in that sense. Cosmic means that it's universal in character. The word cosmic is derived from the Greek word cosmos.

Now Christ, you see, came not only to redeem those who are being saved, but He came to redeem the world. We read in Romans 8:20 or 21 (someplace in there) that the creation was subjected to futility, or to vanity, not of its own will, but by the will of Him who subjected it in hope. You see, the world was created good. It was perfect. But when man, Adam and Eve, who were the kings of this creation, who had dominion over it, rebelled against God, they became cursed. Now you could not have the curious situation of a cursed king and a perfect world. And so God cursed the world, not of its own will. That is, the world itself had not become guilty. But it was subjected to vanity by God, who subjected it in hope. And God indicates, in Romans 8 again, that the creation "awaiteth with eager longing the revealing of the sons of glory."

Why is this? On the Last Day, when the believers are revealed (they are the sons of glory), then the day will come that the creation itself will experience the redemption. God will destroy this present universe, and recreate it New Heavens and a New Earth, where righteousness dwells.

CALLER: Does that mean people or the earth?

HC: In John 3:16 the word cosmos means the whole creation, including people.

CALLER: God does not love all people, though, does He?

HC: Individually, unsaved people are hated by God because they have rebelled against God and are under the wrath of God, as we read in Psalm 5, for example. But we can know the love of God by coming to the Lord Jesus Christ, by believing on Him.

Now God's hatred does not extend to the creation, because the creation, first of all, was not designed to be accountable to God for its conduct. It's not created in the image of God. And secondly, it did not rebel against God. Only mankind rebelled against God. And mankind was created in the image of God. They were created accountable to God for their actions.

And so mankind justly deserves God's hatred. But in the general sense, God so loved the world. He loved the whole world, the whole creation. But particularizing, it goes on to say that "Whosoever believeth in Him should not perish." That is isolating mankind now, that if we believe on Him we will experience His love.

CALLER: Do you have a verse that describes what you said about God cursing the world?

HC: Yes. Genesis 3. First of all, in Genesis 1 we read that God made everything and, in verse 31, "God saw everything that He had made and behold, it as very good." There was no curse, there was no sin.

But now we get to Genesis 3. And Lucifer has rebelled against God, and he is cursed, in verse 14. "Because you have done this, cursed are you above all cattle and above all wild animals. Upon your belly you shall go, and dust you shall eat all the days of your life. And I will put enmity between you and the woman and between your seed and her seed. He shall bruise your head, and you shall bruise his heel." That's the curse on Satan.

And then the curse comes on man: "I will greatly multiply your pain in child-bearing. In pain you shall bring forth children. Yet your desire shall be for your husband. He shall rule over you." And it continues upon Adam: "Because you have listened to the voice of your wife and have eaten of the tree of which I commanded you, you shall not eat of it, cursed is the ground because of you." And here is the ground that is getting cursed here: "Cursed is the ground because of you. In toil you shall eat of it all the days of your life. Thorns and thistles it shall bring forth to you. And you shall eat the plants of the field. In the sweat of your face you shall eat bread, till you return to the ground. For out of it you are taken. You are dust and to dust you shall return." The twin curse, you see, on man and on the ground.

And this is what Romans 8:21 refers to, when it says that the creation was subjected to vanity, not of its own will.

Doing Greater Works than Jesus in John 14:12 (244A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have five scripture references I wish you'd comment on. They're Mark 16:17 & 18, John 14:12, II Corinthians 3:5,6, Hebrews 13:8 and Jude 20. And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. I'll try to speak briefly about each one of these

The question is raised concerning Mark 16:17 & 18. There we read, "And these signs will accompany those who believe. In My Name they will cast out demons, they will speak in new tongues, they will pick up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing, it will not hurt them. They will lay their hands on the sick and they will recover."

Now as we do with the rest of the Bible, any time we read a verse, we want to begin to read it in the light of everything else the Bible teaches. If we read this verse all alone, it would seem to indicate that God is teaching here that when we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, then we should begin to be able to do certain miraculous things. If we would pick up a rattlesnake, it would not hurt us. If we would happen to drink strychnine, either accidentally or because someone gave it to us, to kill us, it would not hurt us. And certainly when it says that we can lay hands on the sick and they will recover, we should have the power to be able to go into any hospital and go from bed to bed and lay our hands on the sick, and there should be recovery. That is apparently what this is teaching.

But when we begin to look at these verses in the light of everything else in the Bible, we find that it isn't quite like that. We do find that there were a few signs that did accompany the early church as it first began to spread out with the Gospel, just a few. The ability to do miracles was confined, insofar as we can discover in the Bible, to just a few of the apostles. They indeed were able to heal the sick as God gave them power. They were able to speak in foreign languages, as we read in Acts 2. And we do read of the apostle Paul, when he was shipwrecked, that a poisonous viper clung to his skin, and yet he was not hurt by it.

But we also read that we're not to walk by signs and wonders. We're to walk by faith. We're not to walk by sight. The fact is, Jesus said to the Pharisees, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign." This means, therefore, that it was not God's intention that we live by miracles. We are to live by faith in the Lord, humbly trusting Him.

And these signs that are related in the Bible were related and recorded in order that we might have insights into the nature of salvation which God has provided. In other words, when He healed the blind man, He was showing that even as He was able to physically heal that blind man, so He is able to spiritually heal those who are spiritually blind.

So I do not believe that this passage is suggesting in any sense that today we could find those who could lay their hands on the sick, and they will recover. The fact is, I don't know anyone who could go into the hospital and empty it, because he could go from bed to bed. Actually, we don't try to understand doctrine by experience anyway. And just strictly from a Biblical vantage point, we know that this would not be possible.

Now the second question was raised concerning John 14:12: "Truly, truly I say to you, He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do, and greater works than these will he do because I go to the Father."

Now this verse is widely quoted by many who are convinced that Mark 16:17 & 18 is normative for the believer today, that Jesus did miracles and therefore we can expect to do miracles, and even greater miracles than He did.

Well, let's examine that for a moment. Jesus not only healed the sick. He raised the dead. He healed the lepers. He multiplied the loaves and the fish, a tremendous act of creation. He turned the water into wine. He stilled the storm. He walked on the water. He raised Lazarus from the dead, after he had been dead for four days.

Now when we search the Bible, not only do we find that there is no one who did miracles as great as these consistently, but we also, when we look around, find that no one anywhere does miracles of this nature. And so immediately we know that God is not talking about the doing of miracles when He is speaking about the work that we would do.

When we search the Bible further, we find that Christ had two major tasks to do. There were two major areas of work He had to accomplish. And this is where we're going to find our answer as to the meaning of this verse 12 of John 14. And both of these areas of work are quite related.

One aspect is something that we have no part in. And that is His work of going to the cross and dying for our sins. We have no part in that. That is, we do not add in any sense to the salvation that Christ has provided for us. That work was unique. He went to the cross alone.

But Jesus also came as the one who preached the Gospel. We read in Luke 4, where He said in verse 43, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God to the other cities also, for I was sent for this purpose. And He was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee." Now that was the work that God gave Him, to be a preacher of the Gospel.

Now what is the work that God gives us to do? He says, "Ye are My witnesses." We are His ambassadors, Christ as it were making His appeal through us. He says, "Go ye into all the world and bring the Gospel, making disciples." So you see, that identifies with the work that Jesus did.

Now when we examine the success of Jesus, we find that it was very marginal. He preached for over three years, and there were only a handful of believers in all of Judea. But then Jesus went to the Father, and the Holy Spirit was poured out. God began His program to evangelize the world. And Peter preaches one sermon on Pentecost afternoon, and 3000 are saved. You see, literally this promise came true. "He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do [I work to bring the Gospel, and you will bring the Gospel]. And greater works than these will he do." We will be more successful than Jesus, because "I go to the Father." That is, "inasmuch as I go to the Father, God's program to evangelize the world will begin." And therefore you can expect to see far greater success of your efforts to share the Gospel than were realized when Jesus was still on this earth.

Now the third question that was raised is relative to II Corinthians 3:5 & 6. There we read, "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to claim anything as coming from us. Our sufficiency is from God, who has qualified us to be ministers of a new covenant, not in a written code but in the Spirit. For the written code kills, but the Spirit gives life."

Now I'm grateful for this verse, because this points up a very insidious lie, a very insidious doctrine that is being taught by many without realizing that it is something that is very terrible in nature.

There are those who read II Corinthians 3:5 & 6, and they're saying, "The written code, which is the Bible, that kills. That's the letter of the law. But we have to trust the Holy Spirit. And the Holy Spirit, He will give us light." Effectively they're suggesting that we are freed from the shackles of the Bible. We don't really have to pay too much attention to the Bible. We can trust that that Holy Spirit, working in a very unstructured and free way, uninhibited by the rules of the Bible, can do a much more mighty and wonderful work than that which is suggested by the Word of God. This is frequently the implication that comes out of this.

Now this is a very unfortunate and deceitful kind of an idea. This is exactly the kind of thing that would appeal to Satan very greatly. If he can only draw us away from the Word of God, if he can only make us look with some disdain upon the Word of God, if he can only get us into an arena, into a state of mind, into a practice where we are not listening to the Word of God, but we are susceptible to thoughts that might come into our minds, or susceptible to outside influences of one kind or another. And bear in mind that Satan is not limited by the rules of God, that He will not break the silence between the supernatural and the natural. God permits Satan to come with his occult practices of bringing the supernatural into the real life.

And so this just leaves the door wide open for his kind of activity. Now the fact is, the Bible is the living Word of God. It is the articulated, verbalized voice of God, whereby God has declared what we want to know. It is the holy Word of God.

And when it's talking here about the written Word or the written code, or the letter, it is true that it kills. The Bible does kill. The Bible shows us that we're sinners and that we're under the wrath of God and that we're subject to hell. It should drive the sword home, right into the very vitals of our hearts, that we're in deep and terrible trouble.

But it is God the Holy Spirit who gives life. Now how does He give life? Well, He gives life through the Word of God. The Word of God is the Sword of the Spirit. It not only convicts us of sin, which is the beginning point in our path to salvation. But it also convicts us of the fact that through Christ we can be saved of our sins. It convicts us of the fact that we desperately need this salvation, ere we spend eternity in hell. The Holy Spirit, through the Word of God, convicts us that God is holy and perfectly just, and sin is a terrible thing in the eyes of God.

The Word of God is the means by which God effects our salvation. Remember what Ephesians 5 declares? That we are washed with the washing of the Word. It is the Word of God that is identified with the Lord Jesus Christ, who went to the cross for our sins. And it is God the Holy Spirit who takes that Word and applies it to our hearts. He cleanses us of our sins. But He does this through the written Word.

So check your life. If in any way you find a disdain for the written Word, if in any way you hold it on a little lesser level than anything else in the Bible, or let me put it in another way. If in any way you hold it equal to anything else in the world, then you know that the Bible is no longer the infallible Word of God to you. It is something else. And that means that in all probability you have another Gospel than the true Gospel.

Now another verse that was offered for an understanding is Hebrews 13:8. We read there, "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and today, and forever." Now this verse, again, is frequently quoted by those who would want to say, "After all, Jesus healed all kinds of people during His day. And since He is the same today, we would expect that He would heal people from their illnesses today." Or, "He will do other works of miracles today, even as He did then."

Now the Bible isn't saying here in this passage that Jesus' program is the same today as it was yesterday and forever. The details of His program will change from time to time. Jesus Christ is the same. He is Eternal God. He never changes. He's immutable. He is Eternal God. But His program changes.

Now in the days of Noah, did he do miracles? We don't read of any. Jesus Christ is the same. He existed then, too. Did He heal any lepers in the Old Testament? He healed 10 of them, just like that. Well, He did heal Naaman the Syrian. That was all. And there were many many lepers in the Old Testament. Jesus is the same. His program is different.

For 400 years, from the days of Malachi and Zechariah, until John the Baptist was born, there was absolute silence. And yet the Bible was not complete at that time. Was Jesus the same? Yes, He was the same but His program was different. You see, the fact that Jesus did something back when doesn't mean He's going to do the same thing today. His program will change from time to time.

If you are going to say that Jesus healed 2000 years ago, and therefore He heals today, then you're saying that His program is the same today as it was then. And then I should be able to go to Jerusalem and find the God-man Jesus still teaching over there. But He isn't there, because His program is different. He had completed that aspect of His program and had left this earth and had gone to be with the Father. And so His program is changing, depending on what God has in view.

And it will continue to change. Today the Gospel is still going to every nation. The Bible teaches that God's program will change again. There will be a brief period before Christ returns when the Gospel is silenced all over the world. Well, Jesus is the same. He's absolutely the same. He doesn't change. But His program will change, as God gets His preordained work done.

And then we have a last question concerning Jude 20. "But you, beloved, build yourselves up on your most holy faith. Pray in the Holy Spirit." "Pray in the Holy Spirit." Now who is the Holy Spirit. He is Eternal God. He is Eternal God Himself.

Now when we become saved, we enter into God. "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus." We are washed in the Holy Spirit. We enter into God Himself, whatever God means by that kind of language. And I'm not able to explain all of this, because I can't understand God that well. But I know that God uses this intimate and wonderful language to indicate the precious relationship we realize with God when we are born again. When we pray in the Holy Spirit, it means that as children of God who are in Christ, we are communing with God our Father, in whom we dwell. It's this marvelous oneness that exists in the life of the believer in relationship to God Himself.

The fact is, in Romans 8 we read that the Holy Spirit takes our incomplete prayers, our prayers that we hardly know how to pray, and brings them perfectly before the throne of grace, because we belong to Him. As a born again believer, if we are communing with God, we are praying in the Holy Spirit.

This is the only way that we can pray to God, if we're really going to commune with Him.

Well, thank you for those good verses. They're all excellent verses that teach wonderful truths from the Word of God. We must be carefully, however, that we read them in the light of the whole Bible.

"It is Finished" in John 19:30 (259B)

CALLER: Would you please explain, just what was finished when Jesus said, "it is finished"? Was all of Satan's kingdom finished at that time, or not?

HC: The question is raised, What did Christ mean when He said on the cross, "It is finished"? Wasn't all of Satan's power destroyed at that time?

Yes. When Christ said, "It is finished," He had just spent the time from Thursday night until late Friday afternoon enduring the wrath of God for our sins. God had poured out His wrath on Him, as payment for our sins, if we have placed our trust in Him. Christ was enduring the equivalent of an eternity in hell.

Now in the providence of enduring the wrath of God, He was also guaranteeing that Satan would be destroyed, that Satan would be eventually cast into hell. He was insuring that God meant exactly what He said, that the wages of sin is death. He was insuring that there was a Judgment Day for all of the unsaved who would not put their trust in Christ. By Christ enduring Judgment Day on our behalf, He was guaranteeing that God meant what He said, and that Judgment Day would also be a certain and sure thing for the whole human race, and for all of the fallen angels.

Now in Hebrews 2:14 we read that by Christ's death He destroyed, or He neutralized (the word destroyed there means to neutralize or to nullify) Satan, who has the power over death. Satan lost his ability to keep men in the bondage of sin. And from that point on they could be much more easily freed from Satan's kingdom. And we see this very dramatically on Pentecost afternoon when 3000 were saved after one sermon was preached.

Now in another sense Christ's work was not entirely finished on the cross. In one sense it was, but in another sense it was not. His suffering did include also the fact that He had to be buried, in His body, and it would not be complete in every sense of the word until Resurrection morning. And so from another standpoint the suffering of Christ embraced the whole period from Thursday night until Sunday morning, when He rose from the grave.

Thank you for that question.

The Forgiving and Retaining of Sins in John 20:23 (319A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I'd like to take my answer over the air, please. In the Bible, when Jesus was talking to the apostles, and made the statement, "Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven, and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained." Could you elaborate on that a little bit?

HC: Yes I'll be glad to speak to that.

In the Bible God indicates that the official representation of Christ on the earth is the body of believers, which is also called the church. God of course is the one who does the saving. He is the one who forgives sins. Only God can forgive sins.

The custodian of the Gospel, however, is the body of believers, or the church. And they are to share that Gospel with others. And as they do this, God works through this Gospel to forgive the sins of those who are becoming saved. Therefore, in a real sense, it is the church, or the body of believers, that is forgiving the sins. No, it isn't the church that's forgiving the sins. It is God who is, but the vehicle through which God is accomplishing this is through the Gospel which the believers are presenting to the person who is being saved. And so in that sense the church is forgiving the sins. Ultimately it's only God who forgives sins.

Now by the same token, when that person is saved, it is God who has forgiven the sins of that person. He works through the Gospel which the body of believers has presented to this person. And it is the body of believers or the church that officially recognizes that that person's sins are forgiven. It is the church that welcomes this person into the fellowship of the body of Christ. That has been through joining the church and becoming a member of the congregation. And so in that sense we see this intimate relationship between the forgiveness of sins and the church.

If the member of the church, who claims now to be a member, whom the church has officially recognized as one in whom the Gospel has done its work, so that that person has become a born again believer, proves later on by his actions that he is not a believer at all, then the church excommunicates that person. He doesn't belong in the body of Christ.

And of course that person never was saved. But actually, the church officially is being used of God to declare that this person is not saved. This is as far as I think we can go in thinking through this idea that it is the church that retains the sins of those with whom it comes in contact.

It is simply the official representation of God on earth. It is God who actually does the forgiving.

"Touch Me Not" in John 20:17 (340D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'd like to have your views on John 20:17, and just what is meant there.

HC: John 20:17. Okay. Let's look at that a moment. In John 20:17, "Jesus said unto Mary, Touch Me not, for I am not yet ascended to My Father. But go to My brethren and say unto them, I ascend unto My Father and your Father, and to My God and your God."

CALLER: What I really wanted to get down to is, where was Jesus? I thought after He had died that He went to His Father right away. Does this verse mean that He did go to hell?

HC: No. In this verse Jesus is simply saying that when He had finished His work He would ascend to the Father. Now it is true that when He hung on the cross He said to the thief next to him, "Today thou shalt be with Me in Paradise." Now Paradise is Heaven, where the Father is, where the Tree of Life is. And He also said, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My Spirit." So Christ in His Spirit went to be with the Father temporarily, while His body went into the grave. His body was put in the grave. It did not see corruption, we read in Acts 2:30. But it was the body of Jesus. Then He rose again on Sunday morning. That meant that in His spirit He no longer was in Heaven. So it was just momentarily that He was in Heaven.

However, when He went to be with the Father in His spirit, that was not the ascension. His work of the atonement was not completed in the total sense of the word. Actually, He did not ascend to the Father until forty days later.

Now when He did ascend to the Father, then a few days later He sent for the Holy Spirit. That is, the Holy Spirit was poured out. And that is language simply to indicate that God began His program to evangelize the world.

Now the role of the believer in the world is to be an ambassador of Christ, to represent Christ. We're strangers and pilgrims here, living in a very alien world, and our role is to preach the Gospel, to tell others about the Gospel. Until we have completed our task we cannot go to be with Christ eternally. We cannot stay with Him. This is what Mary wanted. Mary wanted to continue to be with Jesus. But Jesus said, "No, you can't. You can't hold on to Me now because I have to ascend to the Father." Earlier in John He had said, "If I don't go to the Father, then the Holy Spirit will not come." And it was God's program that Jesus would go to the Father. The Holy Spirit would then be poured out. That is, God would begin His program to evangelize the world. And Mary Magdalene and all the other believers would have a part in this, because they were ambassadors of His.

Anticipating this, He said to her, "Go to My brethren and say unto them, I ascend unto My Father and your Father." He dispatched her right then and there, to get on with the task of being a witness.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you. I talked to you once about three months ago about this thing of Jesus going to hell. And I didn't quite understand it then when you explained it. And I'm kind of being tossed around about what to think about this. Did Jesus actually go to hell and suffer for us? I know that it sounds like He did.

HC: The Apostles Creed says He descended into hell. Actually, to be in hell, for the unsaved of the world, means that they're going to be in a place outside of this world, and they're going to spend eternity there, under the wrath of God. Now they have to be removed from this earth because God has other plans for this universe. He plans to burn it with fire on the last day, at the end of time, and to recreate it New Heavens and New Earth, where righteousness dwells. So for the unsaved, hell is some other place. And it's a place where they will spend eternity.

Now Christ is the God-man. He became sin for us, and God poured out His wrath upon Him during the atonement, to such a degree that it became the equivalent of an eternity in hell. Now it wasn't necessary for Jesus to actually go to a place called hell. It was necessary that He suffer hell. The only reason the unsaved man has to go to a place called hell is because he can't remain on this earth. God has other plans for this earth. Otherwise he could be under the wrath of God on this earth.

So already beginning in the Garden of Gethsemane when He said "My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even unto death," and with loud cries He throws Himself to the ground, and the sweat is pouring off His body like great drops of blood into the ground, He's already enduring hell. The wrath of God is being poured out upon Him. When He hangs on the cross, and the cry comes from His lips, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" that's hell, to be forsaken by God.

Now we can't really understand the suffering of Jesus because we don't understand the perfection of the holiness of God, the perfection of the righteousness of God. But just imagine, if we could get just a little bit of a mental picture. Here is Christ, who is God, who is eternal God, and who has never committed any sin, who has never been at odds with God, because He is God and He's perfect in His righteousness and would never never, for any reason whatsoever, be under the curse of God. But now, under the atonement plan, He has become sin for us. That alone must have been intense suffering, that He became a cursed thing because of our sins.

And now, because of the fact that He's under the curse of God (and that's a mystery how God could be under the curse of God, but nevertheless this is what happened at the cross). He is abandoned by God, rejected by God, cast away from God like a dirty garment. For the perfect sinless Jesus, who is God Himself, to endure this kind of awful reproach and treatment must have been suffering that was absolutely intense.

In any case, whatever the suffering was, it became the equivalent of an eternity in hell for us who are saved. Otherwise the justice of God would not have been completely satisfied.

CALLER: So He didn't necessarily have to go to hell then.

HC: He didn't have to go down to a place called hell, but the Bible does use language that seems to suggest that He went down to a place. But it uses this language in describing the suffering of the cross. In Matthew 12:40 it says that He must be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. The heart of the earth there is a figure of the punishment He must endure for our sins. The three days and three nights encompass the period from Thursday night, when He was in the Garden of Gethsemane until Sunday morning when He was resurrected — three nights and three days.

In Ephesians 4, when it describes our Savior saving us, it says He led captivity captive. And He descended into the lower parts of the earth, which is similar language to being in the heart of the earth. Now the lower parts of the earth are a synonym for hell. In other places in the Bible you find the term "the pit" as a synonym for hell. Satan comes out of the pit.

Now Jesus had to, in a sense, go into hell because that is where we are when He saves us. We are under the wrath of God. We are subject to God's righteous judgment because of our sins. This is where He finds us to save us.

Secondly, He had to go into hell, that is, He had to endure the wrath of God. He had to endure hell for our sins in order to save us.

And so for both of these reasons we see why He descended into the lower parts of the earth. And He led captivity captive. Now when He found us, we were captives of Satan. We were slaves of Satan. And He set us free from that bondage and made us bond servants of His.

CALLER: I see. Finally I see that.

The Invisible Workings of the Holy Spirit in Jn 3:7-8 (379B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Just what is meant by Jesus in John 3:7 & 8 when He's talking to Nicodemus about being born again, when He says you can hear the wind but you can't tell where it comes from, or whether it will go next, and so it is with the Spirit, that we will not know on whom next He will bestow His life from Heaven?

HC: Yes. That's a very good question. That's not a question that's asked very frequently. Generally people are concerned about John 3:5, where Christ said you have to be born of water and the Spirit. Your question has to do with verses 7 and 8, where He is saying, "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof but canst not tell whence it cometh and whither it goeth. So is everyone that is born of the Spirit."

Now you see, when Christ gives us salvation, when God gives us salvation, the Holy Spirit does not work so that we can see or feel His presence. There is no manifestation. There is no burning sensation. There is no falling over backwards. There is no sensation of any kind. But we know that we're born again because the results of being born again are there.

The same as with the wind. We can't see the wind, but the results are there. We see the leaves blowing, and so on. And so it is in our life. The Holy Spirit does this work of grace in our life. It's very quiet; it's very mysterious. We actually become a new creature.

Now just think of it. In our soul we are a real personality. The apostle Paul, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, said in II Corinthians 5, "To be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord." And when you're absent from the body you're in your soul existence. And so he's speaking of his soul as if his soul is his whole personality. And so our soul has real substance.

Now think of it. Before we're saved, in our souls, as well as in our bodies, we're dead, spiritually dead. We're sold under sin, but we still exist as a personality, both in our soul and in our body. And of course in our soul and in our body we're completely interrelated. But at the moment of salvation, when we're born again, that soul of ours is effectively put to death and it's resurrected a brand new soul. Now that's a fantastic transformation. Our body has not been changed yet, but our soul has been altogether made into a brand new soul.

Now you would think that when this happens there would be all kinds of sparks and sensations and activity going on in our personality, as God is doing this dramatic miracle in our life. But the fact is, we don't even know the moment when this happens, ordinarily. All we know is that we begin to sense an earnest desire to live for Christ. We find that we are tremendously interested in the Word of God and all that it teaches. And we discover that there's a real urge in our life to be obedient to it.

The effects of what God has done are seen. The fruit of the Spirit is seen in our life. But we certainly were not there to witness the work of the Holy Spirit.

CALLER: And I was wondering if this means that salvation comes when God wills it to come rather than we may will it to come. As we would say, "Tonight I'm going to go to church and take an altar call and be saved tonight."

HC: Yes. You're right, of course. God is the one who is sovereign in this matter. He is the one who saves us in His timetable. Now He of course works through our will. He works through our prayers. He works through our listening to the Gospel.

Frequently, when He expects to save someone, as He draws us to Christ, as the Father draws us, God may be getting our attention by sending chastisement into our life. But it is the Father who is doing the drawing, and it is the Holy Spirit who is actually effecting that salvation in our life. And this is done in God's timetable.

CALLER: Yes. I see.

Doing Works in Christ's Name in Jn 14:12-14 (383A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Brother Camping. In our Bible study where I work, we're going over the Book of John, and we're currently in Chapter 14, especially verses 12, 13 and 14. I can take this over the air, but would you speak about what it means to us to pray in Jesus' Name, or to ask the Father in Jesus' Name? I'm going over just verse 12, 13 and 14. Thank you.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

The question is raised concerning John 14:12, 13 and 14. John 14:12: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also, and greater works than these shall he do because I go unto My Father."

Now this has to do with the work of the Lord Jesus in bringing the Gospel. In the closing two verses of Luke 4 you'll find that Jesus declared that He was sent to preach the Gospel. And this is the work that we do. We have been called of God to go out into the world bringing the Gospel. Jesus, as a result of His work in bringing the Gospel, saw only a handful of believers in all of Galilee. But once Jesus went to the Father and He sent the Holy Spirit, we see that Peter, for example, preaches one sermon and 3,000 are saved. Greater works than Jesus did are done because Christ has completed His work of going to the cross, and because God has begun His program to evangelize the world. That's the meaning of John 14:12.

John 14:13: "And whatsoever you shall ask in My Name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son." In this context it really means that we're asking on the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ, by virtue of what He has done for us. You see, we are not entitled to ask for anything in ourselves because in ourselves we are estranged from God. We are in rebellion against God. We are outcasts. We are enemies of God. We are under judgment. We are slaves of Satan. We have no right whatsoever to come to God, none whatsoever.

But by virtue of what Christ has done for us, in that He has paid for our sins, so that we again can call God our Father, by virtue of the fact that He has become our righteousness, we've been clothed by His righteousness, we've been covered by the robe of Christ's righteousness, His righteousness has been imputed to us, therefore we dare to come to the Father and converse with Him, and ask for this or that, in the Name of Christ.

Now of course we also, elsewhere, when you get to John 15, find that what we ask we must ask with God's Word abiding in us, and with us abiding in Him. And then it will be granted. And when God's Word abides in us, and we are abiding in Him, it means that we understand that we want God's will to be paramount. We want God's will to be number one. And therefore we'll always ask with that in view, "Oh Lord, your will be done. Your will be done. In Christ's Name, that is, on the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ, we dare to come to you and have conversation with you, dare to express the desires of our heart, dare to thank Thee. And certainly we have lots to thank Thee for. But whatever we have asked that is not in accordance with Thy will, by all means we want Thy will to be done."

In other words, we've got to read John 14:13 and 14 in the light of John 15, where it also gives some other facts about our prayer life, namely, that we must abide in Him and He must abide in us.

"Ye are gods" in Ps 82:6 & Jn 10:34 (394D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. I'd like to ask you about two pieces of scripture. Psalm 82:6, and also, I think Jesus is referring to this Psalm in John 10:34. Would you give me an interpretation of what you feel those verses mean?

HC: Yes. Jesus in John 10:34 is talking to the Pharisees, and they are very incensed against Christ.

CALLER: They're ready to stone Him.

HC: They're ready to stone Him because He is indicating that He is God. And therefore in verse 33 the Jews answered Him, "For a good work we stone Thee not, but for blasphemy, because that Thou being a man makest Thyself God." Then Jesus answered from the scriptures. And He's really putting them down. He's really indicating that they are hypocritical, that they are not reading their scriptures, that they're saying far more than what the Bible says. He's not defending in this context the fact that He is God. He is simply saying that in a real sense every human being is God, in a certain sense. And we know what that sense is. The sense is that we are created in the image of God. We are created like God. We have eternity within our souls. We can think God's thoughts after Him. We worship God. We are related to God in a very intimate fashion, through creation.

And so He's reminding them of this, "Is it not written in your law, I said, ye are gods? If He called them gods [that is, if God Himself calls human beings gods] unto whom the Word of God came, and the scripture cannot be broken, say ye of Him whom the Father has sanctified and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest because I said I am the Son of God?"

In other words, He's putting them down on their own level. He's not at this point emphasizing that He is Eternal God. He is simply indicating that to call Himself a Son of God is not contrary to the scriptures. Now Psalm 82 is the verse that He referred to, where it says, "I have said, ye are gods. Then all of you are children of the Most High."

Now you see, when we become saved, what are we called in Romans 8? We're called sons of God, aren't we?

CALLER: Right. So then in Psalm 82 the Psalmist is, or God is speaking through the Psalmist, actually, in that verse. Is that correct?

HC: Yes. God is speaking through the Psalmist, and is speaking to mankind:

"Ye are gods and all of you are children of the Most High. But ye shall die like men and fall like one of the princes." The reason you shall die like men is that you're under the judgment of God, and you're going to hell. But by creation, by virtue of creation, you are created in the image of God and you are in that sense related to God and are like God.

CALLER: Okay.

HC: And we want to really understand that God is not saying that we stand like God stands. We are not God, singular. God is God. He is from everlasting to everlasting. He is infinite in all of his attributes, and marvelous, and holy and all of this. And we never can hold a candle to that.

But nevertheless, in a real sense the Bible speaks of us as being gods. And that is particularly dramatized after we're saved, when the Bible says that we are sons of God.

CALLER: I see. Now somewhere else (I don't remember where) Paul says that one day we will be rulers with God. Do you think this has any connection in that area?

HC: I think it really does. In I Corinthians 6 it says that we will judge men. In Revelation 2 it says that those who conquer will rule the nations with a rod of iron; very similar language to that which is spoken of by Christ. And in Ephesians 2:6 it is stated that we've been raised with Christ, and we are seated with Him in heavenly places. The Bible really becomes almost impossible to believe, as we see the intimate relationship God allows to be spoken of in the relationship that exists between mankind who are saved and God Himself.

CALLER: Okay. That answers a lot for me. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Elijah and John the Baptist in Jn 1:21 (453C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I appreciated your discussion about Elijah, that he was coming before the great and terrible day of the Lord. I had trouble with this, because I was looking in John 1:21, and John the Baptist was asked if he was Elijah, and he said, "I am not." Was this just a symbolical representation in Malachi?

HC: Yes. The question is, in the light of John the Baptist's statement in John 1:21 where he declared, "I am not Elijah," and yet in Malachi 4:5 it says that before the great and terrible day of the Lord Elijah must come, how can we tie the two together?

Well, God gives us the answer in Luke 1:17, where He says he will come "in the spirit and power of Elijah," talking about John the Baptist. And so Elijah was a type of John the Baptist. He prefigured John the Baptist. He was not John the Baptist. They were two entirely different and separate personalities. Elijah was in Heaven when John the Baptist was born. But John the Baptist came in the spirit and power of Elijah.

Just like in the Old Testament. For example, in Ezekiel 34 it talks about David coming to sit on the throne. Well, from the context we know that the reference is to the Lord Jesus Christ, who was typified by King David, in that He is seated on the throne of David.

CALLER: Okay. When Jesus said something to the effect that if you can understand it, John the Baptist was Elijah who was to come, doesn't it kind of hint that he actually was Elijah? But it seems that he couldn't really be. I hadn't heard of a case before in which a person who had already passed on would come back.

HC: No. It's in Matthew 11:14: "And if you will receive it this is Elijah which was fore to come." And He's talking about John the Baptist. And that is the conversation.

Now incidentally, in Matthew 17 we have another interesting sidelight on this. There the disciples asked Him in verse 10, "Why then say the scribes that Elijah must first come? And Jesus answered and said unto them, Elijah truly shall first come and restore all things." Well now, who is that? That isn't John the Baptist, because He didn't restore all things. But then He goes on, "But I say unto you that Elijah is come already, and they knew him not but have done unto him whatsoever they listed [that is, whatever they desired]. Likewise shall also the Son of Man suffer of them. Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist."

And so in verse 12 Christ is saying that Elijah typified John the Baptist, and John the Baptist fulfilled the promise that Elijah was to come, because he came in the spirit and power of Elijah. But in verse 11 He's not talking about John the Baptist. He's talking about Himself, the Lord Jesus Christ, who will come to restore all things, and who was also typified by Elijah, only in a different sense. Elijah was a prophet announcing the coming of the Messiah, and in that sense he was a type of John the Baptist. But Elijah was also a prophet bringing judgment upon the wicked of his day.

We read in II Kings 1 where the wicked king Ahaziah of Israel sent a captain with fifty men to take Elijah, and Elijah called down fire from heaven and they were destroyed. And that's a picture of the Lord Jesus Christ calling down fire from heaven on the last day when He restores all things, when He brings judgment on the unsaved.

And so verse 11 is talking about the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, who was typified by Elijah, and verse 12 is talking about John the Baptist, who was typified by Elijah.

CALLER: Is there mentioned in Revelation some prophets who will have a specific duty of witnessing (I don't know if it's in Jerusalem, or where this location is) for a certain period of time, and who will have some great power that they won't be able to be harmed by the forces of antichrist?

HC: Your question is, is there something in the Book of Revelation that discusses prophets who will be witnesses and who will not be harmed? You're thinking of Revelation 11. In Revelation 11 God is speaking of two witnesses, who will prophesy for 1260 days. And we don't have time to go into this at all, but that picture there is that the two witnesses are a figure of the church as it brings the Gospel throughout the New Testament period. They come with the law and the prophets. And of course the Word of God is powerful. It is the Sword of the Spirit, and it brings judgment as well as it brings salvation. And that language really emphasizes the nature of the Word of God that is brought.

And then finally those witnesses are killed. Their bodies like in "that great city which is symbolically called Sodom and Egypt, where their Lord was crucified." And the picture there is that the church itself has become so apostate that it silences the Gospel, and we have a short period of time just before Judgment Day when the Gospel is silenced all over the world.

CALLER: So you feel that it's purely symbolic, and that those aren't actually people, but they just represent the church.

HC: The Bible is very clear about this. In Revelation 11:3 or 4 it says, "These are the two candlesticks which stand before the Lord of Heaven." Now when we search the Bible for candlesticks, we find that every congregation is represented by a candlestick in Heaven. We read this in Revelation 1. And so it's talking there about congregations then.

And it says they're also the two olive trees. Well, in Romans 11 God speaks of His body as an olive tree, into which we're engrafted. So the Bible itself is teaching us that this is speaking about the congregations or the church as it exists throughout the New Testament period. The 1,260 days is another question, and that derives from the last half of Daniel 9, verse 27, the 70th seven.

CALLER: What would you feel it represents in verse 11 of Revelation 11, when it says that after 3-1/2 days the breath of life from God came into them and they stood on their feet?

HC: That would refer to the rapture at the end of time, when Christ comes. The believers will be resurrected, and they will be caught up in the air to be with Christ. And those who are still standing here will instantaneously be changed into their resurrected bodies and caught up in the air to be with Christ. And this will happen in the presence of all of the unsaved of the world, who are their foes. And this of course will be time for judgment, as we go on in Revelation 11 and see.

CALLER: Oh, I see. I thought that this would be such an instantaneous thing that it wouldn't be actually visible to those who are alive on the earth which were not taken up.

HC: Well, when we read it carefully I think, I haven't read that for awhile, but let's look at that language. It says in verse 11, "And after three days and a half the spirit of life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet and great fear fell upon them which saw them." So it wasn't instantaneous. It was immediate, but it was in the presence of all their foes.

CALLER: Okay. Well, I appreciate your time.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Worshipping God in the Spirit in Jn 4:24 (590B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: In John 4:24 Jesus was talking to the woman at the well, and He says, "God is Spirit and those who worship Him must worship Him in spirit and truth." How do you worship Him in spirit?

HC: The question is concerning John 4:24: "God is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and truth."

When we look at the religions of the world, normally they go through some kind of an outward action of worship. In other words, they have an idol that they look at, an image that they look at and say, "That is God," whether it's the Buddha or whether it's a crocodile, or the sun, or whatever it might be. They have a certain amount of ritual that they go through. And what God is emphasizing here is that the essence of worship is what is in, our own personality, our own spirit, which is identified with the Spirit of God and with Christ Himself, because Christ is in the truth. Jesus said, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life."

Really God is saying, first of all, that we worship Him in the Holy Spirit and in Christ Himself. We can't worship Him unless we are born again, unless we are children of God. It just has nothing to do with some kind of an outward observance or some kind of a ritual that we go through. It requires, if we're really going to worship Him, that we are born again, that we are born of the Spirit, that we are born of the Word of God, that we are in Christ. This is really the first great meaning of this verse, I believe.

CALLER: The reference that God is Spirit, is that one hundred percent accurate then?

HC: Yes, that's altogether accurate. God is Spirit. Now it's true that Jesus took on a human nature. He became of the earth, earthly, so that He was flesh and bone like we are. But when He went back into Heaven, He can't be in Heaven in flesh and bone. He would be there in His glorified spiritual body. And a spiritual body is spirit. Now we don't know what a spirit is. You can't make a drawing of a spirit. You can't give a word picture of a spirit. Nobody can, because that's outside of our frame of reference. That is of the heavens, and we are of the earth. So we just use that word, or the Bible uses that word spirit and we don't really know what it is.

CALLER: What about I Corinthians 12:3, where it says, "Therefore I want you to understand that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calls Jesus accursed and that no man can say that Jesus is Lord but by the Holy Spirit."

HC: The question now is I Corinthians 12:3. What does God mean when He says, "No man speaketh by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed, and no man can say that Jesus is Lord but by the Holy Spirit."

First of all, God is not interested in what we say with our lips. In Matthew 7 Jesus talks about a false prophet and He says, they will say in that day, at Judgment, they will be convinced they have been serving Christ, and they'll argue with Christ, because they're subject to judgment, and they'll argue, "Lord, Lord, did we not do many mighty works in Thy Name? Did we not prophesy in Thy Name?" And the Lord will say, "I never knew you. Depart from Me, ye that work iniquity."

In other words, the fact that somebody uses the words Lord Jesus, the fact that they speak of Him as the Lord Jesus with their mouth, that doesn't mean that they are saved or that they're saying that by the Holy Spirit. But what God means here, that no one can say that Jesus is Lord but by the Holy Spirit, has to be, what are we saying in our heart? If we say that Jesus is Lord, do we really mean that? Does it mean that we have been born again so that Christ indeed has become Lord of our life? And that can only happen by the Holy Spirit.

And if we have the Holy Spirit within us, then we cannot say that Jesus is accursed. That would be an impossibility, because we have surrendered our will to Him. He has become the Lord of our life, and we know with our very being that He is the Lord God and therefore would be altogether the opposite of being accursed He is most blessed.

CALLER: The way I read it there, it says, "No man can say that Jesus is Lord but by the Holy Spirit."

HC: If you just read the verse as it stands, then we have to conclude that everybody in the world who says Jesus is Lord, who talk about the Lord Jesus, the Holy Spirit is motivating them to do that. But when we read this in the light of everything else the Bible says concerning this, and remember the Biblical rule, when we study the Bible, is to compare spiritual things with spiritual. We take any verse and see if there is any other verse that impinges upon it. Now Satan says Jesus is Lord. The demons said, "We know who You are. You are the Holy One of God. Have You come to torment us before our time?" That was an acknowledgement that they were subservient to Him. Effectively they were saying He was Lord. But they're not saved. They weren't saved, and they weren't filled with the Holy Spirit in any sense, either. But nevertheless they still acknowledged that Jesus was Lord.

But in order to really say that He is Lord so that we are moved by the Holy Spirit, it means that we have become a child of God.

CALLER: When I go through a chapter, I'll use highlighters, and I'll take all of the words, like down in verse 14, where it talks about the body and members. I'll outline those with highlighters as I go through it. And then I'll go back through and try to pick off the key words to the particular chapter that I'm studying. And sometimes I get confused.

HC: Well, in the study of the Bible there will be confusion. But the wonderful thing is, if we patiently keep going and reading scripture and comparing scripture with scripture, praying God for wisdom (this is very important), because we don't have the wisdom in ourselves, then the light will dawn, a little here and a little there. And when you come to a truth that really also identifies with a lot of other concepts of salvation that you may have had and that you have been rather certain of, then you'll know that that little nugget of truth is solid, because it fits so many places.

ACTS

Was Cornelius Saved to Begin With in Acts 10:2? (265C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Brother Camping. I'd like for you to explain Acts 10:2. Could you please explain to me if Cornelius was a sinner? And I'd like to take the answer over the radio.

HC: Now let me see if I have your question. You're talking about Acts 10. And you're speaking of Cornelius. And you're wondering, was he a Christian, or was he a sinner? All right. I'll be glad to speak to that.

Yes. In Acts 10 we have a very interesting man in view. And the question is raised: What was his relationship to Christ, as we begin to look at him? Now let me read a couple of verses, Acts 10:1: "At Caesarea [that was up in Judea, a little northwest of Jerusalem] there was a man named Cornelius, a centurion of what was known as the Italian cohort [in other words he was a Roman centurion, a Roman soldier, under the command of Caesar], a devout man, who feared God with all his household, gave alms liberally to the people, and prayed constantly to God."

My, my, that's a pretty high commendation, isn't it? It certainly sounds like this man is a believer, that he has placed his trust in God. But when we continue through Acts 10, we find that he was not saved. We find that he had not become born again. And it was only when Peter came, to bring the Gospel to him, that he actually became a child of God, because you see, in Romans 8:9 it says that we are none of His unless we have the Holy Spirit.

Now Cornelius did not receive the Holy Spirit, we read in verse 44, until Peter began to preach the Gospel to him. Now you see, in the world there are many people that God is determined to save. They are called the elect. They have been predestinated before the foundations of the earth to be saved.

But the exact moment of their salvation is God's business. And God frequently may begin to deal with that person either shortly before or long before salvation actually is accomplished.

We have another example in the case of Paul. He, on the road to Damascus, was struck down. And he cried out, when he was struck down, "Who art Thou, Lord?" And the answer came back, "I am Jesus, whom thou persecutes." And so effectively he had begun to call Christ Lord.

Then for three days and three nights, in his blinded condition, he was in Damascus praying. And we would have to say, "My, he must be saved." He's already called Christ Lord. He is praying for three days and three nights. But when Ananias, the preacher from Damascus, came to see him, Ananias spoke under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit and said to Paul, "Arise, be baptized and wash away your sins," thereby indicating that Paul had not yet become saved, even though he was praying for three days and three nights.

But you see, God was dealing with him. And God was preparing him for that moment when he would become born from above, when he would become a child of God.

Now here, for a long time, is Cornelius and his family. And God is preparing him for salvation. Cornelius begins to find that he has a real interest in the God of Israel. And he is becoming a more and more devout man. And he's beginning to give of his substance, to the cause of the God of Israel. And he's beginning to pray to God constantly. Now does God hear these prayers? Absolutely God hears these prayers. Those who seek will surely find. Those who call upon Him will not be cast out. For those who knock the door will be opened. And for Cornelius, too, God did not disappoint him. In due time there appears Peter to him, with the true Gospel. And then Cornelius also becomes a child of God.

You may have seen this in your own life. Maybe weeks or months or even years before you actually became saved, so that you really could say, with all of your heart, "I know that Christ is my Savior and Lord. I know all of my sins have been forgiven, and I want to serve Him with my whole life," before you came to this total assurance, which is the assurance based upon the fact that you indeed have become born again, you have been interested in the Word. You have asked a thousand questions of your Bible teacher. You have begun to search the Word. You have been intrigued by so many things you heard of the Gospel, but you weren't sure. You didn't really know. You hadn't really come to that final place.

And so this is the way God draws us. As Jesus put it in John 6:44, "No man cometh unto Me except the Father draw him." The Father was drawing Cornelius. The Father was drawing the apostle Paul, before he was saved. And He draws each one of us in one way or another, until finally comes that glorious moment of being born again.

ROMANS

"Life and Peace" in Romans 8:5 (143B)

CALLER: A question that I've been wrestling with is in Romans 8, where it speaks of the Holy Spirit leading to life and peace. Life and peace are the words I'm interested in. And this is my problem. I don't feel like I'm complete. I have a good job, a good-paying job, but I don't feel like a whole person. I just feel like I'm in a rut, and I need some rounding out. Now can you expound on these words, what they mean in Greek, what this refers to, this complete feeling that these words are talking about?

HC: The question is, What is verse 5 of Romans 8 relating to? "For those who live according to the flesh set their minds on the things of the flesh. But those who live according to the Spirit set their minds on things of the Spirit. To set the mind on the flesh is death. But to set the mind on the Spirit is life and peace."

Now you see, the Spirit is Eternal God. He is Holy God Himself. And if we focus our mind on God and want to become right with God, if we want to really be honest with ourselves and really desire to be reconciled to God, then we have taken the first step toward life and peace.

Now what is the life? Before we are saved, we are dead. The Bible says that we who have been dead have been made alive in Christ, in God, through the working of the Holy Spirit in our lives, as He washes our sins away. We are taken out of death into life. And so to focus our mind on the Spirit, on the things of God, is the path to eternal life.

Now the word peace is used. Before we are saved, we are a slave of Satan. We are under his dominion. We are in his nation or his kingdom. And his kingdom, led by him, is antagonistic. It's in rebellion against, it's at war with the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ. Satan is the enemy of Christ. And so before we are saved, therefore, we are at war with God.

But when we become born again, when we focus our eyes on Christ, and our sins are washed away, now we're no longer at war, because we have been taken out of the dominion of darkness, and we have been transferred into the Kingdom of His dear Son. We're at peace. Remember the Bible says that Jesus came as the Prince of Peace, as the one who would bring an end to that warfare.

CALLER: Okay, thank you. And I'll keep listening.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good-by.

The "Gifts" in Romans 12:8 (247B)

HC: Good evening Welcome to Open forum.

CALLER: Yes. I was wondering about the gifts in Romans 12:8.

HC: The question is about the gifts spoken of in Romans 12:8: "He who exhorts, in his exhortation, he who contributes, in liberality," and so on. Actually, God is teaching here that people are different from each other. The salvation is one. We're all saved through the Lord Jesus Christ, and as Christians we all stand on the same ground before God. There's neither Jew nor Greek, nor slave nor free, nor male or female. We all are sons of God.

But God endows each of us with different abilities and different opportunities. One, for example, might be given a gift of music. And he is to use that to the praise of God. Another one may be given a rich inheritance, of property, or whatever. He's to use that in the service of God. Another one is given a very compassionate soul, extra compassionate. And he's to use that in the service of God. And so on. Another one is given the gift of teaching, or the gift of exhortation. And he is to use these in the service of God.

I'm not exactly sure of the definition of exhortation, but when we exhort someone we are counseling with them, we are pleading with them, we are guiding them by what we are saying. I can exhort you to read the Bible more carefully. I can exhort you to . . . it's really to encourage and to counsel. It's another way of saying that we're declaring God's Word, but we're doing it in an encouraging way.

CALLER: Okay then.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Romans 8:21 Explained (414C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. Would you explain to me Romans 8:21?

HC: Romans 8:21: "Because the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God."

Now the word creature here may also be translated creation. And it really serves the verse better if it were translated creation. Let's go back to verse 19: "For the earnest expectation of the creature [or the creation] waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. For the creation [or the creature] was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of Him who has subjected the same in hope, because the creature [or the creation] itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God. For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now."

Now you see, when Adam and Eve sinned in the Garden of Eden, this introduced a very strange situation, because Adam and Eve were the crown of God's creation. They were the highest of the creatures that had been created. They were created in the image of God. And they had been given dominion over the creation.

Now when God created the creation, including mankind, He created it perfect. The Bible says that God saw everything that He had made and it was good. It was perfect. It was loyal to God. There was no rebellion of any kind in the creation.

But now Adam and Eve, the rulers of the creation, had rebelled against God. And they were under the curse of God. So we have that strange situation, where we have the animals and the plants and the birds and the fish and the rocks and the trees, and so on, perfect. But we have the rulers over this perfect creation under the curse of God.

To correct this, God subjected the creation also to the curse of sin. It was not done because of the sin of the creation. It was done because of the sin of mankind who ruled over it. And therefore it says that the creation was made subject to vanity, or to futility, not willingly, but by reason of Him who hath subjected the same in hope. That is, it was to remain subject to vanity or futility, or to the curse of sin forever. But it was to be subjected until God's salvation plan was completed.

Now you'll notice in verse 19 it says that "the earnest expectation of the creature [or the creation] waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God." Why? What will happen at the manifestation of the sons of God? Well, the manifestation of the sons of God will occur at the end of the world, when the believers will be raptured, and our salvation will have been completed.

But you see, it's at the end of the world that the world itself will be made free from the curse that it had become subjected to. Verse 21: "because the creation itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God."

Now let's look at our body. Our body is under the curse of sin. Our body is going to go back into the dust and return to the dust. But out of this dust God is going to recreate us. He's going to resurrect us a glorious spiritual body that will live eternally with the Lord Jesus Christ.

By the same token, this earth, which is cursed by sin, subject to viruses and mosquitoes and tornadoes and floods and earthquakes, and what have you, God is going to destroy. God is going to destroy this universe by fire, and He's going to recreate it New Heavens and a New Earth, where righteousness dwells.

And that is what is anticipated here in Romans 8:21. "The creation itself shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption." That is, it will be recreated a new universe, where there is no corruption, "and it will be brought into the glorious liberty of the sons of God," or the children of God. That is, we who are believers will live eternally in the New Heaven and the New Earth.

CALLER: And the devil will be put in our hands, for us to bind him and rebuke him?

HC: No. No, Satan has already been rebuked at the cross. Christ is the one who defeated Satan. Satan will be cast into hell, and we no longer will have anything at all to do with Satan.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

Standing Before the Judgment Seat in Rom 14:10 (421F)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: You were talking about the people that are going to be judged, and you said that the righteous will be going straight to Heaven. And here in Romans 14:10 it says, "But why dost thou judge thy brother, or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? For we shall all stand before the Judgment Seat of Christ." So I can't understand that now.

HC: The question is raised. How are we to understand Romans 14:10, where it says, "For we shall all stand before the Judgment Seat of Christ," if indeed somehow we as believers do not come into judgment?

You see, in this verse, and you'll find a similar verse in I Corinthians 5:10, God is laying down a fundamental rule for mankind, that he has to answer to God for his sins. He must answer to God for his sins, whether he's done good or evil. And he will be judged by God's Word, which declares that the wages of sin is death. And every idle word, every evil deed, every evil thought, will all come into judgment.

Now you see, for some, that is, for those who have placed their trust in Christ, Jesus as our substitute took upon Himself all of my sins, all of my evil thoughts that I would ever think, all my evil deeds I would ever do, all my idle words I would ever speak. Christ took upon Himself all those sins, and has already stood before the Judgment Throne. And of course He was found guilty.

CALLER: Yes. I understand that. But you have said that the righteous just go straight to Heaven.

HC: The righteous go to Heaven, because we have already done what is called for in Romans 14:10. We have already stood before the Judgment Throne. That is why John 5:24 says that those who believe in Him, the Father, do not come into judgment. They have passed from death into life. They have eternal life.

That's why Romans 8:1 says, "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus." You see, our sins have already been judged. There would be no point for us to stand before the Judgment Throne. Our sins have all been judged already.

The Christian and the Law: Romans 7 (549A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. I have a question about Romans 7. When Paul says that he can't do what he wants to do, was that in his early Christian life, or was he talking about his later Christian life?

HC: The question is, is Romans 7 talking about the apostle Paul before he was saved or after he was saved?

Now when we read, for example, some of the verses here, we certainly would think that he is talking about the time before he was saved. He talks about being sold under sin, he talks about being carnal. But when we read some other passages and verses here, we know that this cannot be. We read, for example, in verse 22, "For I delight in the law of God after the inward man." Now no unsaved person, no unsaved person could make that statement. The Bible declares in Romans 3 that "none seeketh after God. There is none righteous, no, not one." Only someone who is a child of God can say, "I delight in the law of God after the inward man."

And of course he could say this because when he became saved, as is true with all of us who become saved, he received his resurrected soul. In his soul existence, in his spirit existence, that part of his personality that leaves the body at death, he had become a new creature in Christ. He was born from above. And therefore he could declare, "I delight in the law of God after the inward man."

However, he's recognizing that he still has body that lusts after sin. And that body has not been saved yet. It will be saved on the last day. It's guaranteed that this will happen, he'll receive his resurrected body. But at this point in time he hasn't received it as yet. And therefore he finds that this is trouble in his life.

And so he says, for example, in verse 23, "But I see another law in my members (that's in his body) warring against the law of my mind and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin, which is in my members. Oh, wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me from the body of this death?"

CALLER: How are you supposed to let the law of the inward man win out over the law of the flesh?

HC: Good question. How will you let the law of the inward man win out over the law of the flesh? Well, the Bible instructs us, "Crucify the flesh and its desires." The apostle Paul, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, says in I Corinthians 9, in the closing verses, "I buffet my body, lest after saving others I become a castaway." In other words, he beats it down. He gives it no quarter. The minute he becomes to see the lust of the flesh begin to gain the ascendancy a little bit, he prays for victory and he repents and he draws closer to the Lord Jesus Christ. This is the path that all of us walk as children of God.

CALLER: Okay. What relationship does the law have to believers?

HC: What relationship does the law have to a believer?

CALLER: Is God requiring us to keep it now, or are we set free from it, or what?

HC: Are we required to keep the law? Are we set free from it? Doesn't the Bible say that we're not under the law, but we're under grace? Let's see if we can understand this.

Before we are saved, the only path open to us outside of Christ, to get to Heaven, is by keeping the law perfectly. But if we don't keep the law perfectly, the law itself is an accuser against us, declaring, "The wages of sin is death." And so the law has us in bondage. The law is sentencing us to hell. We are under the law, and there's no way in ourselves that we can escape from it.

When we talk about the law, we talk about the whole Bible. Any statement that God has made in the scriptures that we violate, any one at all, is going to send us to hell, unless we keep it perfectly. Now when we are saved, we are free from the law in this sense, that the demands of the law (the wages of sin is death) have been completely paid for by the Lord Jesus Christ. He has taken all of our guilt, so that the law no longer can accuse us when we break it. The law no longer has anything against us, because whatever sin we have committed in the past or in the present or in the future has been paid for by the Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore we are not under the law in that sense, that it is going to send us to hell. We are under the grace of God.

Now that doesn't mean that the law now no longer exists, that it has gone out of existence. If it did, then we would be free to do anything we wanted to do after we're saved. We could murder, we could steal, we could blaspheme God. We could do anything at all if the law didn't exist. No, the law still exists. But we, number one, do not in any sense have to try to keep the law in order to become worthy before God. Nor can it send us to hell if we do sin. But the law rather still exists as the rulebook of the Kingdom of God. It consists of the ordinances God has laid down so that we might enjoy life to the fullest. Now it doesn't threaten us. If we break the law, we're not tampering with our salvation. We're not being again under the shadow of hell.

But when we break the law, because we've become a new creature in Christ, we feel very disturbed by it, because in our resurrected soul we never want to sin again. We'll only be happiest in our new souls when we are keeping the law of God. So the law still exists, we earnestly study it, and we have a tremendous desire to obey it because we love God who has given it to us.

CALLER: I was just reading a book, and in the book it stated that God was requiring nothing from us and that Christians just don't realize that, and they keep trying to live the Christian life under their own power, or something.

HC: Well, I don't know what this author was speaking about, but certainly God does not require anything of us in order to make us worthy. But God gives us the law as an act of benevolence to us, so that we might enjoy life. Anyone who violates God's law thinks that he is pleasing himself, thinks that he is doing something that is noteworthy for himself possibly. But in the long run he is making life difficult for himself. Those who live against the law of God find that life is exceedingly difficult, whereas those who live according to the law of God and follow the law of God find God's blessings are everywhere, and their conscience is clear, they just find that everything works out in their lives to a far better degree than if they break the law.

God has given us the law not as a stricture, not to put us in a straitjacket, but in order that we might enjoy life to the fullest. When God says, for example, to love our neighbor as ourselves, we might say, "Well, my, I want me to be number one. Why should I love my neighbor?" But the fact is that if I extend myself to love my neighbor and do it God's way, I'll find that my own life has a fulfillment, has a goal, has self-realization, has a purpose, that cannot be attained when I am trying to live only for myself. I'm going to find far more joy and happiness and contentment when I obey that law to love my neighbor.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

1 CORINTHIANS

How is Christ the "Second Adam" in 1 Corinthians 15:47? (034A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: For the past couple of weeks I've heard a term used relating to Christ, and I was wondering if you could explain to me where it comes from. And the term is referring to Christ as the second Adam. Where does that come from?

HC: In Romans 5, we find in verse 14: "Death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over those whose sins were not like the transgression of Adam, who was a type of the one who is to come." That isn't the verse. It's either in Romans 5 or 6, or perhaps in I Corinthians 15.

Yes, I think this is the reference. In I Corinthians 15:45 we read: "The first man Adam became a living being. The last Adam became a life giving spirit. The first man was from the earth, a man of dust. The second man is from Heaven." I think that is the reference.

CALLER: I was just wondering because I hadn't heard it too often.

HC: Yes. You see, the reason it's used this way is that Adam came as the head of the human race, to begin the human race. And in order to establish and prove his right to rule, he had to be completely obedient to God and be sure that he would not disobey if he were threatened in any way. And of course Satan came to threaten him, as the angel Lucifer back there in the Garden of Eden, and Adam fell. And the whole human race and the world was plunged under the curse of sin.

Now Christ came as the last Adam, to establish a race, to wrench the kingdom of this world from Satan. And He also had to walk the same path. He had to be completely obedient. He also was to be tempted, just like the first Adam was. And the Spirit drove Him into the wilderness to be tempted.

Of course His task was infinitely greater than that of the first Adam, because He also had to redeem this world from the curse of sin. The world of Adam's day was not under the curse of sin. But He had to make atonement for all of the sins that had taken place during the intervening 11,000 years and going all the way to the present time.

And so Christ as the last Adam had a far more formidable task. But in a real sense His mission was very much akin to that of Adam in the Garden of Eden — to prove His right to rule by His perfect obedience — and to do this in the face of the most difficult kind of temptation.

"To the Weak I Became Weak" in 1 Corinthians 9:22 (141B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Good evening. 1 Corinthians 9:22: "To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak. I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save one." When he says that he became weak (I think we're talking about Paul), what does he mean?

HC: The question is raised concerning 1 Corinthians 9:22, when Paul said, "To the weak I became weak, that I might win the weak," what does he mean by this?

Now let's look at the context. Beginning with verse 19, "For though I am free from all men, I have made myself a slave to all, that I might win the more. To the Jews I became as a Jew, in order to win Jews. To those under the Law I became as one under the Law, though not being myself under the Law, that I might win those under the Law. To those outside the Law, I became as one outside the Law, not being without law toward God but under the Law of Christ, that I might win those outside the Law."

You see, Paul is saying that he capitalized on whatever identification he could make with those to whom he was bringing the Gospel. Paul was a Jew, first of all. And so when he talked to Jews, he emphasized the fact, "I am a Jew. I was a Pharisee. I was trained at the feet of Gamaliel." He identified with the Jews.

Now I don't know who he had in mind when he said "with the weak." Perhaps the Judaizers were the weak, or it could have been the Gentiles. But at any rate, he identified as far as he could with the Jews, without actually taking part in their sins. He said, "those under the Law, though I myself not being under the Law." He identified with them as Jews, but he did not, if they were engaging in acts that were contrary to God's Word, contrary to the Messiah, go that far.

Now by the same token, if he was preaching to the Romans, then he emphasized his Roman citizenship, because he also was a Roman citizen, in order that he might be as closely identified with them as possible. It's the same as if a pastor was brought up on a farm, and now he is preaching to a farming community. He could weave into his sermons the fact that he also was a farmer at one time, and thus develop an identification with his flock, that they might know that he could understand them in their farming problems.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

The Issue of Hair Length in 1 Corinthians 11 (203C)

CALLER: In 1 Corinthians 11:16 it talks about hair. Let's see. In verse 14 it says, "But if a woman has long hair, it is a glory to her. For her hair is given her for a covering. But if any man seem to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the churches of God." It says "It is a shame unto a man to have long hair." So if you could give me a little bit of information on that, I'll take it over the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Good night.

The question is raised concerning this passage in 1 Corinthians 11, where it talks about a woman's long hair, and the fact that it's degrading, or it's a shame for a man to have long hair.

Now the focal point of this passage, I believe, is not hair. The focal point is authority. It starts right out in verse 3, "But I want you to understand that the head of every man is Christ. The head of a woman is her husband, and the head of Christ is God."

God has established authority. There's authority in the Godhead, with Christ being submissive to God. There's authority below, with man being submissive to Christ and the woman submissive to man. Now the evidence of that authority is the fact that a woman is given long hair by nature. This is an evidence that she is under the authority of man, God says.

And we read in verse 15, "Her hair is given to her for a covering." Now one way to read this passage, to really be helped in it, I think, is to substitute the word authority wherever you find the word veil. "She wears a veil [or she wears her long hair] to indicate she is under the authority of man." As a matter of fact, in verse 10 it says, "That is why a woman ought to have authority . . ." [some versions read "veil"] . . . "That is why a woman ought to have authority on her head, because of the angels." The angels are under authority, and if we're born again we're on display to the angelic world, as we read in Ephesians 1 or 3, some place in there. And if they're under authority, then we as born again believers also ought to be under authority.

And so now a man is not under the authority of a woman. God, using the symbol of hair as authority, therefore gives man shorter hair. He's the first one to go bald. His hair by nature does not grow as long as a woman's. And so the big issue here is authority, not hair. It's authority. We want to make sure that man is subordinate to Christ, but that the woman is subordinate to man, particularly in the two areas that God speaks of, in the home and in the church.

"I say, not the Lord" in 1 Corinthians 7:12] and Is it Okay to Serve in the Armed Forces? (242B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I have a question on 1 Corinthians 7:10 & 12, which says, "Not I, but the Lord," and in verse 12 it says, "I say, not the Lord." This seems to indicate that the second is more his opinion and that the first is in the way of a commandment.

HC: The question really is, what are we to do with 1 Corinthians 7:10, where we read, "To the married I charge, not I but the Lord," and then in verse 12, "To the rest I say, not the Lord, that if brother has a wife," and so on? Is this suggesting that there are two levels of authority in the Bible? If it's backed up by the Lord, is it more authoritative than if Paul has just said it?

First of all, we must remember that all scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable for reproof, for doctrine, for training in righteousness, and so on. Secondly, the Bible says that holy men spoke as the Holy Spirit moved them. And so every part of the Bible has equal authority.

Of course it must be read in the context of the rest of the Bible, in order to discover what is really being said. But the whole Bible is the divine Word of God. Now in this particular passage Paul is making reference to the fact, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit (remember, it is God speaking) that the Lord Jesus Christ had quite a bit to say about marriage. The fact is, you can read about this in Matthew 5, in Matthew 19, and so on. And so he is saying in verse 10: "To the married I give charge, not I but the Lord." That is, the Lord Jesus has already spoken about this. And that's a clue to us to search the Gospels to see what He talked to the disciples about.

And then in verse 12 he says, "To the rest I say, not the Lord," and now he's going to discuss an aspect of the marriage relationship that had not been expressed by the Lord Jesus when He was talking to His disciples. But what Paul is going to say is equally authoritative, because it is also under the inspiration of God Himself.

CALLER: Thank you. One more question, and I'll take my answer on the air. It's pertaining to war, and obeying the government. I know that above all we should obey God. But I'm not too sure exactly what God's law would be if a situation of war came up and I was called by the government to go into the infantry and fight.

HC: The question relates to the problem of what do you do if you are called upon to serve your country in the Armed Services, to fight? Now the Bible does teach in Romans 13 that we must be obedient to government in all things lawful. Secondly, when we search the Bible we don't find any place where the Bible says that we are not to serve as a soldier. There is no place where God teaches that it is wrong for a believer to be a soldier. You'll remember when the soldiers came to John the Baptist in Luke 3:14, it says, "Soldiers also asked him, And we, what shall we do?" he didn't say, "Now you'd better get out of the army as fast as you can." He said to them, "Rob no one by violence or by false accusation. And be content with your wages." When the Roman Centurion was saved, there's no suggestion that he was no longer to be a centurion. Now bear in mind, he was a captain in the army of Rome, which frequently would have to kill in order to put down insurrection, or whatever. And so there is nothing wrong in itself in being a soldier. If the war is an unholy war, an unrighteous war, the government has to answer for that. We are simply to be obedient.

Now of course if your Sergeant told you to go out and shoot some prisoners, that would be murder. That would have to be disobeyed. That's a different kind of a situation. But insofar as serving as a soldier and being a buck Private in the front ranks, that in itself is not contrary to the Word of God.

Now wonderfully, in some lands there are alternatives in the event of war. In the United States we have the alternative of serving in the Medical Corps or the Chaplain's Corps, perhaps. And thus a more efficient use of our time can be gained, and we won't have to face the matter of killing another person. But those who do not serve in these alternative corps, who must bear a gun, or as a policeman does today (he bears a gun, and sometimes he might have to kill), that is not contrary to the Word of God.

Baptism for the Dead in 1 Corinthians 15:29 (314C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I have a question about 1 Corinthians 15:29. A friend of mine belongs to another denomination, and they practice baptizing for the dead. And I don't understand that. And I don't understand the verse that this person says they base their doctrine on, which is 1 Corinthians 15:29.

HC: In 1 Corinthians 15:29 we have this very provocative and intriguing verse: "What shall they do which are baptized for the dead if the dead rise not at all? Why are they then baptized for the dead?"

What does God mean by this? Is this indicating that we are to be baptized for the dead? Well, the Bible is its own interpreter. And the first thing we have to do is search the Bible and see if there's anything that we can do on behalf of those who have died, loved ones. Is there anything that we can do for them now that they have died? Can we pray for them and make a change in their situation, or ask God to change their situation? Can we be baptized on their behalf? Can we do anything on their behalf?

Ant we find nothing in the Bible at all that suggests that there's anything that we can do on their behalf. The Bible teaches very emphatically that if a person is a Christian, when he dies he leaves his body and goes to be with Christ in Heaven. If he is unsaved, he goes down to a place of silence, to await the resurrection of the last day, when he is going to be judged and cast into hell. The Bible says, "It is appointed unto men once to die, and after that the judgment." There's nothing in the Bible that suggests that we can be baptized on behalf of someone else.

But then we have this verse, "What shall they do which are baptized for the dead if the dead rise not at all?" God here is speaking about the resurrection of our bodies. In fact, that's the whole message of 1 Corinthians 15. Repeatedly He's talking about the resurrection of our bodies, the character of our bodies, what they'll be (they'll be spiritual bodies), the fact that if there was no resurrection then we would be of all men most miserable, our faith would be vain, and so on.

But our dead bodies, which are in the grave, were dead while we were still living. Spiritually they were dead, as Ephesians 2:1 teaches us, for example, that we who were dead have been raised with Him, have been brought to life. Just because we have been saved, it does not mean that spiritually we are alive in every sense of the word. It is true that we have been made spiritually alive in our soul, in our inner essence, in that part of us that leaves the body at death and goes to live and reign with Christ in Heaven. In that department we have experienced the resurrection. This is the first resurrection. And we are alive with Christ. We are alive forevermore. Therefore the Bible can say we have eternal life.

But we still have a dead body. We still have a body that's sentenced to the grave, and our salvation will not be complete until we receive our resurrected body.

When we are saved we are baptized in water, to officially recognize the fact that we have become saved. But God is saying here that when we are saved and are baptized in water, we are also officially recognizing the fact the day is coming when our dead bodies will also experience the resurrection. The dead that we are baptized on behalf of is our own dead body.

Now if there is no resurrection of the dead, if the dead rise not at all, then the baptism that we experienced means nothing. It means that there's something phony about this whole salvation. Why should we bother with baptism? The fact is, why should we even bother with salvation at all, if there is no resurrection of the dead on the last day?

CALLER: That is beautiful. I thank you so much for clarifying that for me.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

When a Spouse is Unsaved in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16 (321D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I'd like for you to give me a little help with 1 Corinthians 7:10-16, and relate it to salvation, and John 3:16. And I'll take the answer over the air.

HC: That's 1 Corinthians 7:10-16. All right. I'll try to speak to that.

1 Corinthians 7 is dealing mainly with the marriage relationship. Our caller is wondering whether verses 10 to 16 have anything to do with salvation. Well, yes, they do. This is introducing, first of all, the awful situation where a husband departs from a wife. He apparently is unsaved, and she is saved. And he departs.

And the Bible first of all says, "Let her remain unmarried," in verse 11, "or be reconciled to her husband." And then in verse 12 He goes on to say, "If any brother hath a wife that believeth not, and she is pleased to dwell with him, let him not put her away." Every once in a while someone will ask me, "My wife or my husband is unsaved, and he's living a very sinful life. Do I have to continue living with him, since he is unsaved?" Or, "At present we're separated, and he is unsaved. Am I to continue to live with him?" And the Bible here is saying, "By all means! You're married to each other. This is just one of the practical aspects of what happens when we are saved."

And then it goes on in verse 14 and gives a very interesting application of God's covenant promise that "I will be a God to you and your children." God gave this promise to Abraham back in the Old Testament. He reiterated it at various times in the Bible. We read it in Acts 16, for example, at the time that the jailer at Philippi was saved. He was told, "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and you will be saved, with your household." God is saying to parents, "Look, if you're believers in the Lord Jesus Christ, then you have become citizens of the Kingdom of God, and your children, too, are identified with the Kingdom of God. If you bring them up in the fear and the nurture of the Lord, I give you a promise that if you train a child in the way that he should go, in his old age he'll not depart from it." This is the way God works out His program of salvation throughout the world.

Of course He also looks outside of the family, and can save the individual who has no saved parent. But that is not nearly as usual as is the situation where children of believing parents are saved.

Now this concept is introduced here in verse 14: "For the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband. Else were your children unclean, but now are they holy." You see, the question arises here, in the light of God's covenant promise, "I will be a God to you and your children," what happens to that promise in the event that only one of the parents is a believer? Does this mean that the promise no longer holds, by virtue of the fact that one person, one of the parents, is unsaved? And God says, No, no, that isn't so. The very fact that one of the parents is a believer, that makes the family a holy family. It sanctifies the husband, if he is the unbeliever. It doesn't save him, but it does make him also corporately a member of the Kingdom of God, because the wife is a believer who actually has become an eternal citizen of the Kingdom of God. And vice versa. The same would be the case in the event the husband was the believer, and the wife was the unbeliever.

And so the children, too, are holy, that is, set apart. The word holy means to be set apart for the service of God. They, too, are identified in a corporate fashion with the Kingdom of God. And all the promises that come to believing parents who will train their children in the fear and the nurture of the Lord apply, even though only one of the parents is a believing parent.

And then it goes on, "But if the unbelieving departs, let him depart." Going back again to the relationship between the saved and the unsaved partner, if the unsaved wants to leave, if he wants a divorce, let it be so. "A brother or sister is not under bondage in such a case, but God hath called us to peace."

That is, you're not bound to try to maintain that marriage union, that marriage relationship. While in God's sight that marriage is to continue until death parts you, because of the sin of your unbelieving partner, let him go. You're not free to remarry, because you've already been told in verse 11 to remain unmarried, or else be reconciled to your partner. But you're not bound to try to keep that marriage in existence.

And then the question is raised, "For what knowest thou, oh wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? Or how knowest thou, oh man, whether thou shalt save thy wife?" Now here God is saying that the work of saving is God's elective program. It's God's grace. It's God's sovereign good pleasure. And we can't really know who He is going to save.

However, God does give some real encouragement along this line in 1 Peter 3:1, where God is discussing this same question of a believing wife with an unsaved husband. And here we have this wonderful encouragement. "Likewise, ye wives, be in subjection to your own husbands, that if any obey not the Word they also may without the Word be won by the conversation (or the conduct) of the wives, while they behold your chaste conduct coupled with fear." In other words, God is holding out the promise, salvation is very close to your husband. And if you really live by God's rules, if you will patiently obey God in the trials and troubles and turmoils and difficulties that arise because your husband is an unsaved husband, there's a strong likelihood that he will see Christ in you, and salvation may come to him also.

What Does "Baptized for the Dead" in 1 Corinthians 15:29 Mean? (585A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum

CALLER: Hi. My question is concerning 1 Corinthians 15:29. It says, "Else what shall they do who are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?" What exactly does that mean, baptizing for the dead? And is it mentioned anywhere else in the Bible?

HC: The question is, what does 1 Corinthians 15:29 relate to, where it talks about being baptized on behalf of the dead? The word for here really means on behalf of the dead.

Now nowhere in the Bible does it teach that we are ever baptized on behalf of someone else. Therefore we know that in trying to understand what God is saying here we cannot go in that direction. However, when we understand the nature of salvation, then we can see what God means.

You see, before we are saved, both in body and soul we are spiritually dead. We are estranged from God and we're heading for hell. When we are saved, in our spirit existence, or in our soul, we are born again. We experience the resurrection. And of course our baptism, which is an outward action of water, is pointing to the cleansing that has taken place within our soul, the fact that we are a new creature, that we have become saved.

But we're more than just a soul. We're also a body. And that body is as real a part of us as our soul. Our body, however, was not saved at the moment we became born again. Our body still lusts after sin, our body is still going into the grave to return to the dust, at the time we separate our soul from our body, that is, at the time of physical death. Our soul doesn't go down into a place of silence. It goes into Heaven, to be with Christ, because it already experienced the resurrection when we were saved. But in our body we still must be saved. We still must experience the resurrection. So our body is still dead, spiritually, in that sense.

So therefore our baptism not only is recognizing that in our soul or in our spirit essence we have become saved, but it also recognizes that our dead bodies will also become saved, that is, will experience the resurrection from the dead. And so we are being baptized on behalf of our own dead body. And if there were no resurrection from the dead, then that all also would be vain. That would be futile. That is of course the context of 1 Corinthians 15 right here, where God is giving various reasons why it is important that Christ rose. Otherwise there could be no resurrection of the dead.

CALLER: OK then. Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

Tongues and Other Gifts of the Spirit in 1 Cor 13 (374C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'm calling concerning what I heard on Conference Echoes, the gentleman from Silver Spring, Maryland. And I felt that he was kind of doing some semantical contortions with scripture. I agreed with some of what he had to say, but I think to say that 1 Corinthians 13:8 says that tongues, or prophesy, or knowledge are no longer applicable gifts to this present age is simply teaching something that is not there, because reading on down, verse 9 says, "For we know in part and we prophesy in part. But when that which is perfect is come then that which is in part shall be done away." And it's obvious from verses 9 & 10 that what he's talking about is when we get to Heaven, because in verse 12 he says, "For now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face. Now I know in part, but then shall I know even as also I am known."

And it just seems to me so perfectly clear that what Paul is talking about is that these gifts will pass away when we get to Heaven, and there won't be any need of them there. But there's nothing whatsoever that says that the church is not going to have them here throughout the entire church age. And further, in Mark 16, at the very close of that particular Gospel, we find Jesus making a remark about the signs that follow them which believe. He says, "In My Name shall they cast out devils. They shall speak with new tongues. They shall take up serpents. If they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them. They shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

And so it just seems to me that to say that these gifts are no longer with the church is to ignore the total thrust of scripture.

HC: Well, let me comment about this. I did not hear the speaker, but I can look at 1 Corinthians 13.

Now in 1 Corinthians 13 God is simply indicating that tongues shall cease. He doesn't say when they will cease. He gives no intimation as to when they will cease. He simply says that tongues will cease.

Now He also says that prophecy and knowledge will pass away. And then He goes on to discuss, in verse 9 through verse 12, about when knowledge and prophecy will pass away. And He does indicate that they will pass away when we see Him face to face, that is, when we get to Heaven. They will continue on this earth, but they will pass away when we come into Heaven.

But there is no suggestion in 1 Corinthians 13 as to when tongues would cease. It is simply a declaration that they would cease at some point in time. Now when we evaluate, however, what tongues were, and of course 1 Corinthians 12 and 1 Corinthians 14 are the two chapters that especially speak about tongues, there we find that it was a phenomenon that did exist in the church at Corinth. There were those who did receive from God Himself information in a heavenly language. And this served to edify them personally. But they were admonished to seek to interpret it so that the information would also be available to the congregation so that the congregation would be edified.

Now this was altogether possible in that day, because God had not completed His Word as yet. It was still the day when God would speak with revelations coming from other sources than the Bible. They really only had the Old Testament at that time, and so we find the apostle Peter receiving information by vision, the apostle John, the apostle Paul, and individuals in the church at Corinth receiving information in this unknown language called tongues.

But then God completed His divine Word. And in Revelation 22:18 He declared, "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." Now with that statement God effectively is saying, "Now look. I've completed My revelation. And if you think you've received some divine truth by means of a dream or a vision or an angel confrontation, or by a tongue, or whatever, it's not from Me. I have given you the Word of God. And if you are going to look for divine truth from other sources than the Bible, then this is indicative of the fact that you are still subject to the plagues written herein. That is, you're unsaved and you're still subject to hell."

This I believe is what the Bible teaches about this particular gift, that is, any gift relating to additional revelation after the Bible was completed. Now it is true that the Bible speaks about signs and wonders that will still come to pass. The Bible speaks about signs and wonders in a number of places, and tongues was a sign. We read this in 1 Corinthians 14. The word sign there is the word miracle. And the Bible does speak about signs and wonders, particularly in relationship to then end-time church. But ominously; and unfortunately, all of the references to signs and wonders near the end of time are Satanically related.

In Matthew 24:24 God indicates, "False prophets and false christi will arise with signs and wonders to lead astray if possible even the elect." In II Thessalonians 2 we read of the man of sin taking his seat in the temple. And this I believe is Satan ruling in the church. And he will come with signs and wonders of falsehood. And God in fact will make those who follow this believe a lie, that they will be prepared for judgment. God is not neutral in these times.

In Revelation 13 it speaks about the beast that comes out of the earth, the false prophet. And he makes an image, and he gives life to that image, and brings signs to come to pass, even making fire come down from heaven. This is gospels that Satan himself will design, so that he will enslave the nations of the world to a higher degree than ever before. And he will attest to their genuineness, as he comes as an angel of light, by coming with signs and wonders. That is, he will make them apparently like they are genuinely of Christ. But Satan is the big deceiver. And actually they will not be of Christ. And then in Revelation 16 again it speaks about the beast and the false prophets coming with signs to deceive, coming with miracles to deceive. Every reference in relationship to signs and wonders near the end of time relates to Satanic activity. Now that's very serious. That's very heavy. That's very ominous. And it indicates how careful we have to be today, because I do believe, as do many others, that we are near the end of time.

It is a day when we want to make absolutely certain that we get divine truth only from the Bible. It alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. Satan didn't speak through the Bible. Satan can speak in a lot of other ways. He comes with all kinds of occult activities. He comes outside the church, in witchcraft and ouija boards and tarot cards, and so on, and in the church he comes with occult activity. The Bible says so. The Bible says, in II Corinthians 11, that he comes as an angel of light.

Therefore we really want to be on guard, and make sure that the only place where we're going to look for divine truth is the Bible itself. Then we cannot be deceived.

CALLER: I think certainly Satan does go around as an angel of light, granted. But I do not accept the premise, and I cannot accept it, that all of the signs or wonders in the latter times of the church are from Satan. I cannot accept that. For one reason, Joel 2:28 & following says, "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh. And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions, and also upon the servant and upon the handmaiden, in those days I will pour out My Spirit. And I [and this is God talking to Joel here] will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood and fire and pillars of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and the terrible day of the Lord come. And it shall come to pass that whosoever shall call on the Name of the Lord shall be delivered."

HC: Yes, but you see, God is not talking there about Judgment Day at the end of time, the great and terrible day of the Lord, because right after that He says, "And whosoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved," or "will be delivered." And salvation does not come after Judgment Day. Salvation comes all through the New Testament period.

But you see, when Christ went to the cross, that was the "great and terrible day of the Lord." That is when Christ paid for my sins. He was subject to Judgment Day at that time. That is when the sun was darkened, and the moon did not give its light. And that literally did happen, you know. The sun was darkened. There was darkness over the face of the whole earth for a period of three hours, we read. And the language of the signs that were shown is the language of Psalm 18, where God is speaking in dramatic terms about the deliverance that would be provided by the cross.

The fact is, there was a great earthquake. The earth itself reacted to the fact that Christ was on the cross. Now more than that, in Acts 2:16, back there in AD 33, on Pentecost Day, Peter, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, quotes from this very passage, and declares that this, in relationship to the phenomena you are seeing today, as there was the sound of the rushing wind and what appeared to be tongues of fire on the heads of the disciples, and the fact that they were speaking in foreign languages, was evidence that this is the time that Joel prophesied about. In other words, now God is going to begin His program to evangelize the world. The great and terrible day of the Lord has come, and now whosoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved.

Now, if we did not have Revelation 22:18, from the language of Joel 2, as it is explained in Acts 2:17 & 18, where he says, "Your young men will dream dreams and your old men will see visions," we would conclude that throughout the New Testament period (because it's throughout the New Testament period that we have the last days, it is throughout the New Testament period that whosoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved) we could still dream dreams and see visions. But that aspect of the prophecy was limited by the language of Revelation 22:18. Several decades later God declared that we're not to add to the words of this book.

Now the other implications of that prophecy remain. "Whosoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved." Every believer is going to be a prophet. Now in the Old Testament the prophets were only few and far between. They received their information from God from two sources: from the written Word that was complete to their day, and also by means of dreams or visions, in a more exciting way.

In the New Testament, before the Bible was completed, the prophets had the same experience. They had the Old Testament, which was the written word complete to their day, and occasionally they could receive additional information through a dream or a vision. But once the Bible was completed, now as New Testament prophets throughout the New Testament period, we continue to prophesy, that is, to declare God's Word, which is really what prophesying is all about, but our source of divine truth is only the Bible, because it is now the complete Word of God. It is every part of God's revelation that He wants us to know. And so we don't have to be looking for divine truth from any other source.

Now this of course is a fantastic guarantee for the New Testament believer, that he won't be tripped up by Satan. He won't be snared by Satan, because he's looking around for an additional revelation of some kind. He knows that when he goes to the Bible he's got all the revelation, all that God would speak to mankind about. And he can spend his time very patiently studying the Word, searching the scriptures, and knowing all the time that this is the voice of God, this is the revelation of God. What a wonderful guarantee God has given us.

CALLER: A couple more problems. Number one, I see nothing in the context of Revelation 22:18 which says that that verse is applicable to anything other than prophecy of the Book of Revelation itself.

HC: Now let me answer that very quickly, because we've run out of time. He won't be able to cover any other questions on this program. But you see, the Book of Revelation is an integral part of the whole Bible. If you add a chapter to the Book of Revelation, you've added it to the Bible. If you take away a chapter, you've taken it away from the Bible. So whether you want to understand this book to be the Book of Revelation or the whole Bible is really immaterial, ultimately, because the Bible is one cohesive whole. It has one author. It is one book. Therefore this book does ultimately refer to the Bible.

Understanding 1 Corinthians 12:3 (384A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, I want to talk about I Corinthians 12:3, where it says, "No man can say that Jesus is Lord but by the Holy Ghost."

HC: "No man can say that Jesus is Lord but by the Holy Ghost," or "by the Holy Spirit."

CALLER: It starts off, "Wherefore I give you understanding that no man speaketh by the Spirit of God calling Jesus accursed, and that no man can say that Jesus is Lord but by the Holy Spirit." I don't care about the first part, but I'm interested in the second part.

HC: You see, some folk have the idea that as long as someone is speaking about the fact that Jesus Christ is Lord of their life, as long as they are speaking of the fact that they know that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that He was raised from the dead, and so on, therefore they must have the true Gospel, they must be involved in the true Gospel.

The problem, however, is that Satan also says this. Remember the demons that were being cast out by Jesus. They said, "We know who You are. You are the Holy One of God. Have you come to torment us before our time?" They acknowledged that they were under the lordship of Christ. They acknowledged that they were going to be judged by Him. And these demons weren't even close to salvation, obviously.

The real problem is that God is not interested in what we are saying with our lips. God is interested in what we are saying with our heart. Many people pay lip service to the fact that Jesus Christ is Lord. They use all the terminology. And intellectually they believe that He is Lord. But as a matter of fact, in their heart, in their will, in their total being, they have not surrendered to Him as Lord. They are not saying that He is Lord with their conduct, with the fact that they have hung their whole life on Him. And therefore they are not saying that He is Lord, even though with their lips they are saying this.

Do you see the distinction?

CALLER: Where does it talk about confessing Christ? Is that I John?

HC: I John 4, I believe, or I John 3.

CALLER: There it says that we're supposed to test the spirits, and you said yourself on your program many times that we cannot tell who is a Christian, who is a born again believer. So what reason does it tell us to test the spirits to see if they be of God, or telling us here to look for believers by this test, if we can't tell? You can't tell a man by his actions. Many of the people who are not born again believers appear sometimes the most dedicated. So then, if we can't tell, what is the purpose of trying to tell?

It's kind of a commandment to test the spirits. How can we test them if it's so complicated? How do we tell, if we can't tell at all?

HC: First of all, there are two areas where this is particularly applicable, and there is one area where it is not applicable. We cannot go around looking at other people, trying to decide whether they're born again or not. That is not our task. "Judge not lest ye yourself be judged." That is not our task.

But the first area where this is very applicable is in looking at our own life. If we are saying, "Jesus Christ is Lord," and yet our will has not been surrendered to Christ, if we don't read the Bible earnestly, with a view to being obedient to whatever we find there, then we do not have the Holy Spirit. And we can test ourselves, what spirit we have.

Many people have lulled themselves into an idea that they're saved when they're not saved at all. And so that's the first area where we have to make judgment, how do I stand before God? Am I really saying with my heart that Jesus Christ is Lord? Or am I only paying lip service to it?

The other area that we have to make an evaluation is when we are fellowshiping with a congregation. Now there are congregations that say that Jesus Christ is Lord. And yet we look at the doctrines that they teach. We look at what they do with the Bible. If they go beyond the Bible looking for divine truth, then they are not being obedient to the scriptures. If they do not accept the whole Bible as the divine Word of God, then they are not being obedient to the Word of God. And then the likelihood is that we would not want to fellowship there.

CALLER: Doesn't the requirement of not falling into a false gospel include intellectualism? Now I know that you're doing everything that you can to teach the truth on the air. That's what you've done. But for the people that are out of your reach, or the people who don't have the mental capacity to understand the Bible, or the people who don't have the reading capacity, they're forced to look to someone for leadership because they themselves are not capable of studying or determining the meaning of the Bible. They don't intellectualism become part of that condition of finding the truth, Mr. Camping?

HC: First of all, we have to decide what our relationship to God is. It is not based on understanding. It is based on faith. We don't come to God because we understand the Bible. We come to God because we trust the Bible.

Now a person with an IQ of fifty, with a very low-grade mentality, can be a born again believer just as quickly as a college professor can. It has nothing to do with understanding. It has to do with trust.

Now a person who does not have a teacher that can guide him into some of the verses that otherwise are really troublesome, and can open up the plan of salvation to a higher degree, can still be born again. And if he is born again, he will become very uncomfortable when people come at him with a gospel that goes beyond the Bible. God will protect His own.

In John 10, in I think verse 8, Jesus is talking about thieves and robbers that come into the sheepfold. And the context of thieves and robbers in the Bible is those who come with other gospels. And He says, they have come in, "But My sheep will not hear them." Or later on in John 10, in verse 27 He says, "My sheep hear My voice." That is, they know that the Bible is the voice of God. "And they shall never perish. And I have given them eternal life, and no one shall snatch them out of My hand." God Himself is the one who cares for His own.

We're not kept in the truth because a teacher guides us. We're kept in the truth because God Himself protects us. And if we are a child of God, and a teacher comes along with truth, then immediately you'll sense, "Say, this man is true to the Word of God. And I can begin to trust him a little bit."

On the other hand, if we are a child of God and we begin to hear someone teaching that is outside of the Word of God, that is, suggesting divine truth from sources outside of the Word of God, or suggesting that the whole Bible is not the Word of God, there's going to be an uneasiness. You may not be able to put your finger on it, but you're going to be very uneasy. "I wonder if I can trust this man altogether."

CALLER: Let me ask you one other short question, Mr. Camping. Was the wine that Jesus' disciples drank real wine? Is there any way to know if it was real wine?

HC: I believe that the wine the disciples drank was real wine. I do not believe that Jesus drank wine.

CALLER: Was the wine that Jesus made out of water real wine? Was that an alcoholic beverage?

HC: I believe that was real wine. But I do not believe that Jesus drank it.

CALLER: I see. He made it for the other people?

HC: Yes.

CALLER: I was looking in the Strong's Concordance tonight. In the hundreds of references to wine in the Bible, are most of them alcoholic beverages?

HC: I find no evidence at all where we find the word wine to believe that it was anything but alcoholic beverage.

CALLER: I see. Is there any reference to something like beer in the Bible?

HC: No. There is a reference to grape juice and to grape skins, grape seeds, but not to beer, that I'm aware of.

CALLER: So you think that was real wine in the Bible.

HC: I think without a question it was real wine, whether it's called new wine or whether it's called, there are a number of words used for wine in the Bible, and as near as I can tell in every case it's talking about an alcoholic beverage.

CALLER: Okay. Thanks a lot, Mr. Camping. You are very helpful, and good night.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Understanding 1 Corinthians 7:36-37 (525A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: In I Corinthians 7:36 it says: "If any man think he behaveth uncomely toward his virgin." I believe it's talking about engaged people. This goes along with the American Revised Version and the English Standard Version, and several versions. I know that a lot of people would inject the idea that the father is involved here, but they get that from the Apocrypha, and I don't see how in any way you can get the father into this. I think this is two sanctified believers who are engaged to be married. And so I want you to comment on this, if you will.

"If she passes the flower of her age and needs so require, let him do what he will. He sinneth not. Let them marry. Nevertheless he that standeth fast [it's talking about the man now; this is talking about virgins who in this case are both male and female]... he that standeth steadfast, having no necessity, has power over his own will, has so decreed in his heart to keep his virgin, doeth well."

Now it says here that the man in an engaged situation has some say about whether or not the marriage is consummated finally. And I'd like for you to comment on that.

HC: The question is raised concerning I Corinthians 7:36-37. Just what is in view? I think our caller is correct. It is talking about a man and a woman. A father-daughter relationship certainly is not in view. It's talking about a man and a woman who are going together. They may be betrothed to each other, or we would use the word engaged today. They are not married. They are not permitted to touch or to have any sexual desires toward each other. And God says that if they're able to live this way, just as companions, fine. There's real blessing in this. That's verse 37: "He hath power over his own will and hath so decreed in his heart that he will keep his virgin, doeth well." He is able to keep his eyes focused on the Lord Jesus Christ in this relationship, and sexual ideas do not enter into his mind. That kind of relationship can exist between a man and a woman. I suppose in modern language we would call that a platonic engagement.

Now on the other hand, if they are going together and they find that sexual desire begins to develop between them, and of course the premise has to be that they are both born again believers. They shouldn't be going together unless they're both born again believers. They would be violating God's command of not being unequally yoked to an unbeliever. And they find that there is this desire developing, then let them marry. Let them marry. They don't have to feel that it's noble to remain restrained and not marry.

And so God concludes in verse 38: "So then he that giveth in marriage doeth well, but he that giveth not in marriage doeth better." God is indicating that there are some signal blessings in remaining single, but it's not at all contrary to the will of God to be married.

CALLER: Right. Even though this doesn't go along with the laws of the country, it nevertheless jibes with the Old Testament, in the aspect of marriage there, doesn't it?

HC: Yes, I think so.

CALLER: Thank you.

HC: Thank you for calling and sharing. Good night.

What Does "Baptized for the Dead" Mean in 1 Corinthians 15:29? (585A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hi. My question is concerning I Corinthians 15:29. It says, "Else what shall they do who are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?" What exactly does that mean, baptizing for the dead? And is it mentioned anywhere else in the Bible?

HC: The question is, what does I Corinthians 15:29 relate to, where it talks about being baptized on behalf of the dead? The word for here really means on behalf of the dead.

Now nowhere in the Bible does it teach that we are ever baptized on behalf of someone else. Therefore we know that in trying to understand what God is saying here we cannot go in that direction. However, when we understand the nature of salvation, then we can see what God means.

You see, before we are saved, both in body and soul we are spiritually dead. We are estranged from God and we're heading for hell. When we are saved, in our spirit existence, or in our soul, we are born again. We experience the resurrection. And of course our baptism, which is an outward action of water, is pointing to the cleansing that has taken place within our soul, the fact that we are a new creature, that we have become saved.

But we're more than just a soul. We're also a body. And that body is as real a part of us as our soul. Our body, however, was not saved at the moment we became born again. Our body still lusts after sin, our body is still going into the grave to return to the dust, at the time we separate our soul from our body, that is, at the time of physical death. Our soul doesn't go down into a place of silence. It goes into Heaven, to be with Christ, because it already experienced the resurrection when we were saved. But in our body we still must be saved. We still must experience the resurrection. So our body is still dead, spiritually, in that sense.

So therefore our baptism not only is recognizing that in our soul or in our spirit essence we have become saved, but it also recognizes that our dead bodies will also become saved, that is, will experience the resurrection from the dead. And so we are being baptized on behalf of our own dead body. And if there were no resurrection from the dead, then that all also would be vain. That would be futile. That is of course the context of I Corinthians 15 right here, where God is giving various reasons why it is important that Christ rose. Otherwise there could be no resurrection of the dead.

CALLER: OK then. Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

2 CORINTHIANS

The Written Code Kills in 2 Corinthians 3:5-6 (244A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have five scripture references I wish you'd comment on. They're Mark 16:17 & 18, John 14:12, II Corinthians 3:5,6, Hebrews 13:8 and Jude 20. And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. I'll try to speak briefly about each one of these.

The question is raised concerning Mark 16:17 & 18. There we read, "And these signs will accompany those who believe. In My Name they will cast out demons, they will speak in new tongues, they will pick up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing, it will not hurt them. They will lay their hands on the sick and they will recover."

Now as we do with the rest of the Bible, any time we read a verse, we want to begin to read it in the light of everything else the Bible teaches. If we read this verse all alone, it would seem to indicate that God is teaching here that when we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, then we should begin to be able to do certain miraculous things. If we would pick up a rattlesnake, it would not hurt us. If we would happen to drink strychnine, either accidentally or because someone gave it to us, to kill us, it would not hurt us. And certainly when it says that we can lay hands on the sick and they will recover, we should have the power to be able to go into any hospital and go from bed to bed and lay our hands on the sick, and there should be recovery. That is apparently what this is teaching.

But when we begin to look at these verses in the light of everything else in the Bible, we find that it isn't quite like that. We do find that there were a few signs that did accompany the early church as it first began to spread out with the Gospel, just a few. The ability to do miracles was confined, insofar as we can discover in the Bible, to just a few of the apostles. They indeed were able to heal the sick as God gave them power. They were able to speak in foreign languages, as we read in Acts 2. And we do read of the apostle Paul, when he was shipwrecked, that a poisonous viper clung to his skin, and yet he was not hurt by it.

But we also read that we're not to walk by signs and wonders. We're to walk by faith. We're not to walk by sight. The fact is, Jesus said to the Pharisees, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign." This means, therefore, that it was not God's intention that we live by miracles. We are to live by faith in the Lord, humbly trusting Him.

And these signs that are related in the Bible were related and recorded in order that we might have insights into the nature of salvation which God has provided. In other words, when He healed the blind man, He was showing that even as He was able to physically heal that blind man, so He is able to spiritually heal those who are spiritually blind.

So I do not believe that this passage is suggesting in any sense that today we could find those who could lay their hands on the sick, and they will recover. The fact is, I don't know anyone who could go into the hospital and empty it, because he could go from bed to bed. Actually, we don't try to understand doctrine by experience anyway. And just strictly from a Biblical vantage point, we know that this would not be possible.

Now the second question was raised concerning John 14:12: "Truly, truly I say to you, He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do, and greater works than these will he do because I go to the Father."

Now this verse is widely quoted by many who are convinced that Mark 16:17 & 18 is normative for the believer today, that Jesus did miracles and therefore we can expect to do miracles, and even greater miracles than He did.

Well, let's examine that for a moment. Jesus not only healed the sick. He raised the dead. He healed the lepers. He multiplied the loaves and the fish, a tremendous act of creation. He turned the water into wine. He stilled the storm. He walked on the water. He raised Lazarus from the dead, after he had been dead for four days.

Now when we search the Bible, not only do we find that there is no one who did miracles as great as these consistently, but we also, when we look around, find that no one anywhere does miracles of this nature. And so immediately we know that God is not talking about the doing of miracles when He is speaking about the work that we would do.

When we search the Bible further, we find that Christ had two major tasks to do. There were two major areas of work He had to accomplish. And this is where we're going to find our answer as to the meaning of this verse 12 of John 14. And both of these areas of work are quite related.

One aspect is something that we have no part in. And that is His work of going to the cross and dying for our sins. We have no part in that. That is, we do not add in any sense to the salvation that Christ has provided for us. That work was unique. He went to the cross alone.

But Jesus also came as the one who preached the Gospel. We read in Luke 4, where He said in verse 43, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God to the other cities also, for I was sent for this purpose. And He was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee." Now that was the work that God gave Him, to be a preacher of the Gospel.

Now what is the work that God gives us to do? He says, "Ye are My witnesses." We are His ambassadors, Christ as it were making His appeal through us. He says, "Go ye into all the world and bring the Gospel, making disciples." So you see, that identifies with the work that Jesus did.

Now when we examine the success of Jesus, we find that it was very marginal. He preached for over three years, and there were only a handful of believers in all of Judea. But then Jesus went to the Father, and the Holy Spirit was poured out. God began His program to evangelize the world. And Peter preaches one sermon on Pentecost afternoon, and 3000 are saved. You see, literally this promise came true. "He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do [I work to bring the Gospel, and you will bring the Gospel]. And greater works than these will he do." We will be more successful than Jesus, because "I go to the Father." That is, "inasmuch as I go to the Father, God's program to evangelize the world will begin." And therefore you can expect to see far greater success of your efforts to share the Gospel than were realized when Jesus was still on this earth.

Now the third question that was raised is relative to II Corinthians 3:5 & 6. There we read, "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to claim anything as coming from us. Our sufficiency is from God, who has qualified us to be ministers of a new covenant, not in a written code but in the Spirit. For the written code kills, but the Spirit gives life."

Now I'm grateful for this verse, because this points up a very insidious lie, a very insidious doctrine that is being taught by many without realizing that it is something that is very terrible in nature.

There are those who read II Corinthians 3:5 & 6, and they're saying, "The written code, which is the Bible, that kills. That's the letter of the law. But we have to trust the Holy Spirit. And the Holy Spirit, He will give us light." Effectively they're suggesting that we are freed from the shackles of the Bible. We don't really have to pay too much attention to the Bible. We can trust that that Holy Spirit, working in a very unstructured and free way, uninhibited by the rules of the Bible, can do a much more mighty and wonderful work than that which is suggested by the Word of God. This is frequently the implication that comes out of this.

Now this is a very unfortunate and deceitful kind of an idea. This is exactly the kind of thing that would appeal to Satan very greatly. If he can only draw us away from the Word of God, if he can only make us look with some disdain upon the Word of God, if he can only get us into an arena, into a state of mind, into a practice where we are not listening to the Word of God, but we are susceptible to thoughts that might come into our minds, or susceptible to outside influences of one kind or another. And bear in mind that Satan is not limited by the rules of God, that He will not break the silence between the supernatural and the natural. God permits Satan to come with his occult practices of bringing the supernatural into the real life.

And so this just leaves the door wide open for his kind of activity. Now the fact is, the Bible is the living Word of God. It is the articulated, verbalized voice of God, whereby God has declared what we want to know. It is the holy Word of God.

And when it's talking here about the written Word or the written code, or the letter, it is true that it kills. The Bible does kill. The Bible shows us that we're sinners and that we're under the wrath of God and that we're subject to hell. It should drive the sword home, right into the very vitals of our hearts, that we're in deep and terrible trouble.

But it is God the Holy Spirit who gives life. Now how does He give life? Well, He gives life through the Word of God. The Word of God is the Sword of the Spirit. It not only convicts us of sin, which is the beginning point in our path to salvation. But it also convicts us of the fact that through Christ we can be saved of our sins. It convicts us of the fact that we desperately need this salvation, ere we spend eternity in hell. The Holy Spirit, through the Word of God, convicts us that God is holy and perfectly just, and sin is a terrible thing in the eyes of God.

The Word of God is the means by which God effects our salvation. Remember what Ephesians 5 declares? That we are washed with the washing of the Word. It is the Word of God that is identified with the Lord Jesus Christ, who went to the cross for our sins. And it is God the Holy Spirit who takes that Word and applies it to our hearts. He cleanses us of our sins. But He does this through the written Word.

So check your life. If in any way you find a disdain for the written Word, if in any way you hold it on a little lesser level than anything else in the Bible, or let me put it in another way. If in any way you hold it equal to anything else in the world, then you know that the Bible is no longer the infallible Word of God to you. It is something else. And that means that in all probability you have another Gospel than the true Gospel.

Now another verse that was offered for an understanding is Hebrews 13:8. We read there, "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and today, and forever." Now this verse, again, is frequently quoted by those who would want to say, "After all, Jesus healed all kinds of people during His day. And since He is the same today, we would expect that He would heal people from their illnesses today." Or, "He will do other works of miracles today, even as He did then."

Now the Bible isn't saying here in this passage that Jesus' program is the same today as it was yesterday and forever. The details of His program will change from time to time. Jesus Christ is the same. He is Eternal God. He never changes. He's immutable. He is Eternal God. But His program changes.

Now in the days of Noah, did he do miracles? We don't read of any. Jesus Christ is the same. He existed then, too. Did He heal any lepers in the Old Testament? He healed 10 of them, just like that. Well, He did heal Naaman the Syrian. That was all. And there were many many lepers in the Old Testament. Jesus is the same. His program is different.

For 400 years, from the days of Malachi and Zechariah, until John the Baptist was born, there was absolute silence. And yet the Bible was not complete at that time. Was Jesus the same? Yes, He was the same but His program was different. You see, the fact that Jesus did something back when doesn't mean He's going to do the same thing today. His program will change from time to time.

If you are going to say that Jesus healed 2000 years ago, and therefore He heals today, then you're saying that His program is the same today as it was then. And then I should be able to go to Jerusalem and find the God-man Jesus still teaching over there. But He isn't there, because His program is different. He had completed that aspect of His program and had left this earth and had gone to be with the Father. And so His program is changing, depending on what God has in view.

And it will continue to change. Today the Gospel is still going to every nation. The Bible teaches that God's program will change again. There will be a brief period before Christ returns when the Gospel is silenced all over the world. Well, Jesus is the same. He's absolutely the same. He doesn't change. But His program will change, as God gets His preordained work done.

And then we have a last question concerning Jude 20. "But you, beloved, build yourselves up on your most holy faith. Pray in the Holy Spirit." "Pray in the Holy Spirit." Now who is the Holy Spirit, He is Eternal God. He is Eternal God Himself.

Now when we become saved, we enter into God. "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus." We are washed in the Holy Spirit. We enter into God Himself, whatever God means by that kind of language. And I'm not able to explain all of this, because I can't understand God that well. But I know that God uses this intimate and wonderful language to indicate the precious relationship we realize with God when we are born again. When we pray in the Holy Spirit, it means that as children of God who are in Christ, we are communing with God our Father, in whom we dwell. It's this marvelous oneness that exists in the life of the believer in relationship to God Himself.

The fact is, in Romans 8 we read that the Holy Spirit takes our incomplete prayers, our prayers that we hardly know how to pray, and brings them perfectly before the throne of grace, because we belong to Him. As a born again believer, if we are communing with God, we are praying in the Holy Spirit.

This is the only way that we can pray to God, if we're really going to commune with Him.

Well, thank you for those good verses. They're all excellent verses that teach wonderful truths from the Word of God. We must be carefully, however, that we read them in the light of the whole Bible.

"My grace is sufficient for thee" in 2 Corinthians 12:9 (323C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: This is concerning a passage I read in the Bible, and it's concerning Paul the apostle, and it says, "My grace is sufficient for thee." This is what God had said to Paul. And what I wanted to know was, could you expound on that? I've read it before, but . . .

HC: Yes. That's found in II Corinthians 12, isn't it? I'll be glad to look at that.

What does God mean in II Corinthians 12:9, when God tells Paul, "My grace is sufficient for thee, for My strength is made perfect in weakness." Now the context is this: Paul is troubled by a thorn in the flesh, "a messenger of Satan, to buffet him." And in all probability, this thorn in the flesh was the fact that the Judaizers, the teachers who belonged to the church that Paul used to belong to before he was saved, followed him everywhere, and harassed him, got the crowds against him, and were always giving him very serious problems. I mean really serious. They caused him to be beaten. They caused him to be stoned. And he speaks of this as a thorn in the flesh.

Now I'm speculating that this is what it was, but I have Biblical evidence that makes me feel that this is what it must have been. Now he besought the Lord three different times, if this could be removed. Obviously, it would be much easier to bring the Gospel if there wasn't this constant harassment, this constant needling of him, and the threat of being stoned, and the problem of having the crowds turned against him. And so it was a legitimate request.

Incidentally, in the Bible, when you see this three times that really is effectively saying that God has spoken, "No, Paul. You besought Me again and again and again, but this is the context, this is the matrix, this is the environment in which you are to bring the Gospel." Then He said, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

In other words, "You don't need this extra care that you think you would like to have. You don't need to have a bed of roses without any thorns to lie on as you bring the Gospel. You don't have to do it the easy way, because I saved you by My grace, and you are a child of God. By my grace you have been taken out of Satan's kingdom, and you are of royal blood. You are My ambassador. And My grace is sufficient for you. It is sufficient to sustain you and strengthen you, as you bring the Gospel in the face of this kind of adversity. You don't have to have an easy go of it."

The fact is, if we study the rest of the Bible, we find that the role of the believer always is to be in tribulation: "In the world you will have tribulation." Throughout the Old Testament, the prophets were stoned, and maligned, and slandered, and put to death. This is par for the course.

CALLER: Say, for instance, that some is going through a trial, and he's facing hardship. Then that word comes to them in the Bible. This means to sustain and to strengthen, right? That's what grace means?

HC: Yes. In other words, whatever place we find ourselves in the world. Now there are those who become saved, and they're in prison. There are those who are saved who are crippled for life, and they're in a bed that they'll never get out of again. There are people who are saved who are dying of multiple sclerosis. There are people who are saved, and they're in a concentration camp. God's grace is sufficient for any situation that might prevail in the world. His strength is made perfect in our weakness.

You see, it would be one kind of a gospel if the only way the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ would be victorious is if all was well, if everything was perfectly set up so that those involved had perfect health, they had a perfect environment in which to live. Why yes, that certainly would be a very nice gospel. But what does it really prove?

The fact is, you will find the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, as it is shown in the lives of born again believers, in every kind of a situation you want to name. The victory of the cross is sufficient for someone who is wasting away in a concentration camp, or who is wasting away of illness, or who is in a prison for life, or who is a king on a throne, or who is a business man, or a housewife, or a mother, or someone who has just experienced real tragedy in losing loved ones. The victory of the cross is sufficient in every kind of an environment and situation. And in fact, it shows its strength in the weakness in which we find ourselves, in the difficult situation in which we find ourselves.

That's really the sense of this passage. Now incidentally, this passage in II Corinthians 12 cannot be talking about physical illness. It speaks of a "messenger of Satan, to buffet him." Now in Exodus 4 God told Moses in verse 11, "Who hath made man's mouth? Or who maketh him dumb, or deaf, or seeing, or blind? Have not I, the Lord?" I do believe that Paul had bad eyesight. There are several indicators of this in the New Testament. But God would have given him that bad eyesight. It would not have been a messenger of Satan.

On the other hand, these Judaizers were emissaries of Satan. They were trying to silence the Gospel, as Satan tries to do throughout time.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you, Mr. Camping.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

EPHESIANS

Did Jesus Actually Descend into Hell in Ephesians 4:9-10? (323A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Ephesians 4:9 & 10 say, "Now that He ascended, what is it but that He also descended first, into the lower parts of the earth." And I Peter 3:19 says, "By which also He went and preached unto the spirits in prison." Jesus said, when He was on the cross, when He died, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit."

Now there is some teaching that says that Jesus did suffer for men the penalty of sin, and that He also went to hell for us. And then there are some who say that because Jesus said, "It is finished," and "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit," that He did that, and that He did not go to hell for us. And I'd just like to know which is correct. And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. Fine.

The question is raised: How are we to understand passages like Ephesians 4, which indicates that Jesus descended into the lower parts of the earth, and from there led captivity captive? Or I Peter 3:19 or 20, where it says that in the spirit He preached to the souls in Hades, who formerly did not obey in the days of Noah? How do we put all this together?

I think most of the misunderstanding on this particular question is a result of a lack of understanding of what Christ did for us on the cross. A lot of people talk about the fact that He shed His blood for our sins. That's a very Biblical statement. A lot of people talk about the fact that He died for our sins. That's very Biblical. A lot of people talk about the fact that He hung on the cross. That's very Biblical.

But when it comes to the fact that He descended into the lower parts of the earth, or as Jesus put it in Matthew 12, "I must be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth," they have no understanding really of what this is. You see, the problem that Christ faced was the judicial statement of God that "the wages of sin is death." And the death that God had in view not only was physical death, but eternal damnation in hell. This is the penalty that had to be paid if He were to be our Savior.

Mankind is destined for hell, he is committed to hell, because we're all sinners. And in order to save us, it was necessary for God not only to find us in our depraved and desperate condition, sentenced to hell. But He also must pay the equivalent of an eternity in hell on our behalf.

Actually, therefore, from the time that He was in the Garden of Gethsemane, when He said, "My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even unto death," and He threw Himself to the ground, and the sweat was pouring off His body like great drops of blood, into the ground, until Resurrection morning, Christ was enduring hell for our sins. He was enduring the wrath of God for our sins.

Now it is true that at the end of the world there will be a place called hell, where all of the unsaved will be cast, along with Satan and all the fallen angels. Presently there is no hell, at least insofar as we can determine, as an actual place. The Bible teaches that the unsaved, when they die, go down into a place of silence. This is also called Hades in the Bible.

It is not the place "hell," however, where the unsaved go eternally. At least they are not suffering there. At least they're not experiencing the wrath of God there. They are simply waiting for the judgment of the last day. However, in the parable of the rich man and Lazarus found in Luke 16 eternal damnation is spoken of as Hades.

The angels who have fallen, along with Satan, also are spoken of in the Bible as being in pits of hell, or consigned to hell. But in physical location they are active in the world, deceiving the hearts of men. So neither are they in a physical, literal place called hell. They're identified with hell because there is no hope for them. They are consigned to hell, and therefore the Bible speaks of them as if they are in hell. But in actuality, in physical location they are not in a place called hell.

Insofar as I can tell from the Bible, a literal place called hell will only be in existence at Judgment Day, and it must be there because the unsaved must be removed from this earth so that God can redeem it, so that He can destroy it by fire and recreate it New Heavens and a New Earth. And so there has to be a place where the unsaved can exist eternally, under the wrath of God. And that is a physical place called hell.

Hell, however, in its actual essence is not a place. Hell is a relationship with God. Hell is to be under the wrath of God and to experience the wrath of God. Hell is described in the Bible in all kinds of ugly language. But ultimately it is all focusing on this point, that those who are subject to hell are in terrible trouble with God, and His wrath is being poured out upon them.

This is what Jesus experienced, from Gethsemane until the resurrection morning. He experienced the wrath of God, so that He was enduring hell. It was as if He had gone down to hell while He was in the Garden of Gethsemane, and while He stood before Pontius Pilate, and while He hung on the cross. And we of course see this in its climax as the cry is wrenched from His lips, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" That's hell.

Specifically, therefore, when we look at Ephesians 4, and it declares that He descended into the lower parts of the earth, it is simply indicating that He had to come where those who are destined for hell dwell. That's in our presence. He rescued us from the path that was leading directly into hell. And in order to rescue us He had to Himself endure hell for our sins.

"He led captivity captive." Before we are saved we're slaves of Satan. We are entirely under his jurisdiction and his domain. He is our master. But when we are saved, we are freed from bondage to Satan, and we become bondservants of the Lord Jesus Christ. We become His captives, and He takes us out of hell. And He did this by going to the cross, so that we have eternal life and are forever His people.

Jesus, therefore, never did go to a place called hell. The fact is, when we look at Him on the cross, when would He have done this? He was a complete personality until He finally said, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit." And He said, "It is finished." But at that time, in His spirit He went to be with the Father. His body, however, was put in the grave, where it did not see corruption. And this was part of the suffering that was involved in paying for our sins. For this reason Acts 2:31 indicates that Jesus' soul was not left in Hades. Hades in this context has the meaning of eternal damnation. The fact that His body did not see corruption seems to emphasize that the victory of the cross was accomplished. The fact of the resurrection emphasized that the penalty of eternal damnation had been paid in every sense.

But at no time is there a time when He could have gone down to some place. Now I Peter 3:18 or 19 is not saying that He in His spirit descended into hell. It is simply saying that in His spirit, at one time, He spoke to the spirits in prison. Actually, the word hell is not found in I Peter 3. It's actually the word prison.

Now in I Peter 1 we read in verse 10: "Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you, searching for what manner of time the spirit of Christ, which was in them, did signify when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow."

In other words, the spirit of Christ spoke through the Old Testament prophets, including Noah, to the prisoners (the spirits in prison) in their day. Now the spirits in prison were the unsaved of their day. Jesus in His spirit did preach to the spirits in prison, but not when He was on the cross, not when He was paying for our sins. He did this all through the Old Testament period, as He spoke through Noah, and as He spoke through Jeremiah and Ezekiel and Abraham, and so on, even as today the spirit of Christ is speaking to the spirits in prison, as we bring the Gospel. This does not require a physical descent of Christ into hell.

I hope this will clear up that question just a little bit.

PHILIPPIANS

Philippians 1:15-18 (727A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, in Philippians 1:15-18, where Paul is in prison, I know that through Christ he's very happy and he feels that God is using him to carry forth the Gospel. But he says that "some are preaching Christ from envy and rivalry," and then he goes on down in verse 18 and says, "What then? Only that in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is proclaimed; and in that I rejoice." Now does that mean that today, well, say a church has signs and wonders, but still they do preach the Gospel. Well?

HC: Now there are two issues here. In Galatians 1, God, through the apostle Paul, is speaking about the matter of another gospel. He says in verse 8, "But though we or an angel from Heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed." And then, to drive home the point so that we won't miss it, in verse 9 he repeats, "As we said before, so say I now again, if any preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed." Another gospel is a dreadful thing.

But that is not what's in view in Philippians. It doesn't talk here about another gospel. It simply talks about the attitude of the pastor who is bringing the Gospel. Some preach the true Gospel sincerely, but others preach the Gospel (still the true Gospel) out of envy and strife. In other words, God can even use an unsaved man, who is still preaching the true Gospel. In other words, his training has been correct. But the moment that he starts changing the authority so that he believes there is more to divine truth than the Bible, then it isn't a matter of envy and strife. Then it's another gospel. Then it comes into another category altogether.

CALLER: In other words, he's just rejoicing that Christ is being proclaimed even though the man is not saved.

HC: Yes, even though the man's motivation may not be as ideal as it ought to be. Think of Jonah, for example, in the Book of Jonah. Now did he preach the Gospel to the Ninevites out of love, out of compassion – the attributes that ought to be found in a preacher of the Gospel? Absolutely not, he hated the Ninevites. And he was there under protest. But yet what he preached was exactly what God wanted him to preach, and it brought great blessing to the city of Nineveh. And that's the point, you see. Whether we are doing it sincerely or whether we're doing it out of love and compassion, or on the other hand, whether we're doing it for wrong motivation, if it is the truth it still can be used of God to bring salvation. But that's an entirely different matter than when somebody is bringing another kind of a gospel.

1 THESSALONIANS

Comments on 1 Thessalonians 5:1-11 (513E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I wanted to comment on 1 Thessalonians 5:1-11. It seems like today a lot of people are really hung up about the Second Coming of Christ to such an extent that they I think sometimes forget the Good News of the first coming of Christ. And I was wondering if in your opinion Paul was in these first 11 verses of Chapter 5 telling those who are saved, don't get too obsessed about that. When the Lord decides to come, He'll come, and that's it. But perhaps the important thing is to be thankful that you're a child of the day, that you're saved. And as far as looking for events in the Middle East, or anywhere in the world, that's just superfluous, or completely unnecessary, that if we're really saved, we'll want to, through our faith in Christ, through the Spirit, live the right type of life. I was wondering if you could address that question.

HC: In 1 Thessalonians 5, God through the apostle Paul is speaking about the day of the Lord. And in doing this He is giving us some very important insights. In fact, one or two of them are not found anywhere else quite as clearly in the Bible. For example, He is indicating in this passage that Christ does not come as a thief in the night for the born again believers. We read in Matthew 24, in connection with the coming of Christ, that He comes as a thief in the night. We read in II Peter 3, where it says that the elements will melt with fervent heat, that He will be coming as a thief in the night, or as a thief. We read in Revelation 16, where it talks about satanic activity right up until the end and the Battle of Armageddon, that it talks about Christ coming as a thief. And if we look at only those references, we might obtain the conclusion that Christ is going to come silently, or He's going to slip up on us before we know it, and we will have no warning, that He'll come as a thief in the night for everyone.

But in I Thessalonians 5 God is giving us the very important truth, and it's been missed by a great many theologians, that insofar as this language of the Bible concerning Christ coming as a thief in the night is concerned, it does not apply to born again believers. Verse 4: "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief. For ye are children of the light [that is, children of Christ – this is a double meaning here], you are children of the day [again it's got a double meaning, because the day again refers to the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the Day]." And therefore we are not surprised. We are ready for His coming.

And of course in that sense it is a warning to all who read the Bible, be sure that you are ready when He comes. Matthew 24 outlines the warning, where God again and again says, "Watch, watch, you don't know the time." And the only way you can be ready, that you really are watching, is to make sure that you are born again.

And so our caller is correct of course that God is saying the important thing is, be sure that you are ready. And then this day will not slip up on you. But on the other hand, He is also giving a very important truth, that Christ is coming as a thief in the night for the unsaved, and that when He does come it will be sudden destruction for them.

There are lots of people who I think, in their subconscious or even in their conscious brains, are hoping that when Christ comes, then they'll decide on the course of action that they will follow. They'll argue with God that their good deeds are greater than their bad deeds, and therefore God ought to have mercy on them. Or they'll plead for mercy. Or they'll see what most people are doing and follow their lead, or whatever.

But God is insisting here that when Christ comes, He will come as a thief in the night. That is, He will come altogether unexpectedly for the unsaved. They are not ready for His coming in any way. They are laden with their sins. They are not born again. And it will be a terrible day. Sudden destruction will come upon them. And there is no escape. Notice the language of verse 3: "And they shall not escape."

And so while on the one hand God is comforting the believers and telling them not to be too concerned about this, on the other hand He is warning the unbelievers in the congregation, or anyone else who is unsaved, who comes in the hearing of the Gospel, "Be careful now. When Christ comes, if you're not ready, it's too late. There's going to be sudden destruction upon you."

And then of course we also have the marvelous promise of verse 9: "For God hath not appointed us to wrath," that is, to stand for judgment and give an account of our sins and be removed into hell, because of course our sins have all been paid for by the Lord Jesus Christ, and we do not come into judgment, as John 5:24 teaches.

But then it goes on, "but to obtain salvation by Our Lord Jesus Christ." And it goes on with these comforting words, "who died for us, that whether we wake or sleep we shall live together with Him. But wherefore comfort yourselves together, edify one another, even as also ye do."

And so if we are saved, we don't focus on the end of time with any fear or apprehension. We know from the rest of the Bible that they will be difficult days for various reasons. We know that they will be days of great tribulation. The Bible indicates this very clearly. But we are ready. And the only apprehension we have is that we know of all the unsaved, friends and loved ones, who will not be ready and who will be caught in this snare of sudden destruction. That is, they will be cast into hell because of their sins.

1 TIMOTHY

"Endless Genealogies" in 1 Timothy 1:4 Explained (11B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: In 1 Timothy 1:4 it talks about "endless genealogies." What does that mean?

HC: In 1 Timothy 1 we have this statement where Paul, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit is charging certain persons not to teach any different doctrine, "nor to occupy themselves with myths and endless genealogies, which promote speculations rather than the divine training that is in faith."

I'm not really certain what these genealogies have to do with, except that I know this: genealogy has to do with the line that I come from. Now in the Old Testament, you will find that God names various families that come out of each son of Jacob. There are, for example, the sons of Levi, Kohath and Amram, and so on. And then there are the families that come under this, so that in the Old Testament for quite a while a Jewish person could know his genealogical line. He could trace back his blood line all the way to Abraham and know just exactly whether he was of the tribe of Levi or the tribe of Ruben, or whatever it is.

But now 1500 years have passed, and we find that the genealogical descent is no longer important. The fact is, God has emphasized in Romans 4 that Abraham is the father of all believers, not only of the circumcised but of the uncircumcised. But God also has indicated that not all Israel is Israel. In other words, blood descent from Abraham is no longer important. The important question is, "Am I born again? Am I a child of Christ?" As we read in Galatians 3, those who believe in Christ are the true seed of Abraham, are the heirs of the promise that was given to Abraham.

And so in Jesus' day, and afterwards, there were many Jews who were still arguing about their blood descent from Abraham, and would try to work through their genealogical descent, of how they came from Abraham. And God is saying, "Nonsense. Forget it. It's not important." These things profit nothing at all. Who your forebears were doesn't mean a thing.

Isn't that wonderful? Isn't that really wonderful? You don't have to worry ultimately who your father or mother was, or who your great grandfather or great grandmother were. You don't have to worry about whether there were some important people in your blood line, or whether you come from a pure seed, or whatever people want to call their line. None of these things are important. When we come to the Lord Jesus Christ, we stand as an individual before God just as we are. God has created us, and now He has saved us. Praise Him for what He has done.

Thank you for that question.

Will Christ Save the Whole Human Race in 1 Timothy 4:10? (11C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Would you explain First Timothy 4:10?

HC: We read in the Revised Standard Version, First Timothy 4:10: "To this end we toil and strive, because we have our hope set on the Living God, who is the Savior of all men, especially of those who believe." That's an interesting verse, isn't it? Does this mean that Christ ultimately is going to save the whole human race? Because it says here that He is the Savior of all men.

Now the clue word here is this word all. In our language today, when we run across the word all, we mean by that an all-inclusive all: "All of the people in the room were brown-eyed." Well, we expect to see then a room full of people, and without exception they all have brown eyes. But in the Bible the word all is not used that way.

If it were, then we would have to conclude from this first phrase that there is universal salvation. We would have to conclude that Christ ultimately is going to save everyone. And there are people who read this verse, and verses similar to this, and they come to that very conclusion. For example, we find a verse in 1 Corinthians 15 that says, "As in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive." And so they look at these verses and isolate them from the rest of the Bible and conclude that somehow there's going to be universal salvation. But when we read the rest of the Bible, we read, for example, that Jesus teaches that "Broad is the way that leads to destruction, and many there are thereon, and narrow is the way and few there are thereon, that leads to everlasting life," and we know that there is no such thing as universal salvation. We know that most of the people of the world will end up in hell rather than in heaven.

And so we wonder, how can we understand this word all? Well, we find in the Bible that the word all has to be limited to what is possible with the word all. We read, for example, in Acts 2:17: "In the last days I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh." Now we know that God's Holy Spirit is poured out only upon those that are saved, and therefore we know that the word all means God will pour out His Spirit on all flesh who are born again, who actually have been chosen by God to receive God's Spirit. It's a conditional law.

We read in Luke 2:1 where God said, "A decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world shall be taxed." But from the context we know that it referred only to the Roman Empire. It was the area of the world that was subject to taxation.

And so when God says here that He is the Savior of all men, from the rest of the context of the Bible we know that He is the Savior of all men who are to be saved. We are chosen in Him before the foundations of the world, as we read in Ephesians 1:4. And these are the ones for whom He is the Savior. And this is indicated in the second phrase, "especially of those who believe." In other words, the focal point is put on those who place their trust in the Lord Jesus Christ. They ultimately are the ones for whom Christ is the Savior.

Clean and Unclean Food in 1 Timothy 4:4 (14C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Tonight I'm calling about the different foods you're supposed to eat. And this comes out in the 14th Chapter of Deuteronomy. And in 1 Timothy 4:4 it says, "For every creature of God is good and nothing to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving." So this means all creatures. Isn't that right?

HC: Yes. In other words, if you were an Eskimo, and all you could eat was whale blubber, that's food.

CALLER: That's not a fair statement, is it, coming out of 1 Timothy, because in the Old Testament, in the 14th Chapter of Deuteronomy, it indicates the clean and unclean meats that you eat.

HC: You see, the problem we have before us is that we have to see how God changes His commandments. Now in the Old Testament God gave certain rules concerning the offering of sacrifices, for example. Those have been completed in Christ. We're not to offer sacrifices. He became the Sacrifice.

There were a lot of other laws, also, that were given to Israel in order to show them their need to be a separate people. And they could only ultimately be a separate people by placing their trust in God. And God included in this the matter of the eating of clean and unclean animals. Incidentally, that law was already in motion from almost the very beginning, because on the ark Noah put clean and unclean animals.

But when we come to the New Testament, we find in Acts 9 that Peter in a vision, was commanded to eat of these animals which were on this sheet which was let down from Heaven. And there were unclean animals on this sheet, and he was told to eat of these. God commanded him to do this, because that which has been unclean are now to be considered clean.

Actually, the timing of this vision was the time when Peter was instructed to bring the Gospel to a Roman centurion, Cornelius, who was looked upon as an unclean, uncircumcised heathen by the Jews. But he was commanded that the Gospel is for them, too. In other words, the unclean animals in the Old Testament were a figure of the unclean, uncircumcised heathen all around the nation of Israel. But now that Christ has come, the Gospel is to go everywhere. There no longer is a distinction between the nation of Israel and the rest of the world. There is a distinction, of course, between born again believers. But it's not to be reflected in the eating of meats.

You might also look at Colossians 2:16, where God underscores this same truth. "Therefore let no one pass judgment on you in questions of food and drink, or with regard to a feast day or a festival, or a new moon or a sabbath. These are only a shadow of what is to come, but the substance belongs to Christ." Now here God is lumping together the sabbath (and the Old Testament seventh day sabbath is the sabbath day that would have to be in view), the new moon, and the festivals or feast days, which had to do with the Passover and the Feast of Tabernacles and the Day of Atonement, and so on. And right in the same category He puts food and drink. That is, the food laws of the Old Testament are lumped together with the sacrificial laws and the feast day laws, to indicate that all of these were a shadow pointing to the coming of the Messiah.

CALLER: Okay, you made that clear. Now this 1 Timothy 4:4 isn't talking about the foods, but the creatures, right?

HC: 1 Timothy 4:4 is dealing with food, really, because the context is food. In verse 3 we read, "who forbid marriage and enjoin abstinence from foods, which God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth. For everything created by God is good." It could be translated "meats," I suppose. "Everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected, if it is received with thanksgiving." The focal point is on that which we eat.

CALLER: Okay, thank you.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

TITUS

Titus 2:11 Explained (416A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I have one question on Titus 2:11. Can this be isolated to mean that at one time in life

God does appear to all men? I'll take the answer on the air.

HC: The question is raised, and it's the kind of a question that you face as you're studying the Word. I'm very grateful for questions because it indicates those who are raising the questions are puzzling about this verse or that verse.

Now in Titus 2:11 we read, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and Godly in this present world." What is God saying here? Is God saying that the Gospel of salvation has at one time or another appeared to every human being on the face of the earth? Or does it mean something else?

Actually, the Gospel is proclaimed of course as the written Word of God. In other words, we have the Bible as the written Word of God, and we know that that is the Gospel. But the Gospel is also spoken of in another sense in the Bible. We read in Romans 10, where it says in verse 13, "Whosoever shall call upon the Name of the Lord shall be saved." And then it goes on, "How then shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach except they be sent? As it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of peace and bring glad tidings of good things. But they have not all obeyed the Gospel, for Isaiah sayeth, Lord, who hath believed our report? So then faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the Word of God." Now notice, "But I say, have they not heard? Yes, verily. Their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world."

Now in some sense God is saying that the Gospel has been sent to the whole world. Now this quotation of Romans 10, which I have just read, "Verily, their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world," is a quotation from Psalm 19. And so let's go back to Psalm 19 and see how that relates to the question at hand.

And you'll see how similar that is to the question of Titus 2:11, where it says, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men." Now in Psalm 19 we read in verse 1: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork. Day after day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge. There is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out to all the earth and their words to the end of the world."

You see, God is indicating, just by virtue of the fact that He is the Creator God and has created such a beautiful universe in which man can live, in this creation God has presented information concerning Himself. Now it's not the written Word. It's not the articulated, verbalized Word that we call the Bible. It is not the Bible. But nevertheless it is a manifestation of the love of God. It is a manifestation of the nature of God. It is a manifestation of the care of God for His creation. It is the manifestation that there is a God.

Now, within the heart of man, God has put a sense of right and wrong. Man knows intuitively, without ever reading the Bible or hearing of the Bible that it's wrong to kill. He knows intuitively that it's wrong to commit adultery. He knows intuitively that it's wrong to steal. Because he does these things, and because through creation he recognizes that there is a God, He ought to repent. That's why Romans 1:18 indicates that the wrath of God comes upon all men because that which could have been known about God has not been recognized by them. That is, they did not repent of their sins.

So in that sense the Gospel has gone to all men - in the sense that all men should recognize there is a God through creation, should recognize that they have to do something to correct their sinful relationship with God. Of course actually, the Bible gives us a whole lot more information. Once we start reading the Bible, we can get a much better description of the essential sinfulness of man. We can begin to get a real look, in very precise language, of how God looks upon our sins. He spells out that His wrath is upon us and that we are subject to hell because of our sins.

And of course it is through the Bible that we can get a detailed knowledge of how God can save us, how He can satisfy His justice, because the Bible discloses to us the information concerning the Lord Jesus Christ. However, in the broad sense the Gospel has gone out to all the world. It has appeared to all men in every generation, throughout time, from Adam on, in the sense that man lives in this world that has been created by God. And I think that is the sense that we have in view here (at least one of them) in Titus 2:11.

Now notice it says, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation has appeared to all men." I started quoting from Romans 1. And let's just look at that a tiny bit more. Verse 18: "for the wrath of God is revealed from Heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness, because that which may be known of God is manifest in them, for God has shown it unto them. For the invisible things of Him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even His eternal power and Godhead, so that they are without excuse, because that when they knew God they glorified Him not as God, neither were thankful."

God's grace is first of all manifested in His loving care for us in creation. This grace ought to bring salvation. That is, it ought to cause men to cry out to God, "Oh God, have mercy on me." And if anyone ever did, you can depend upon it, before he died God would also bring the rest of the Gospel to him, the written Word of God. Many missionaries will testify of the fact that they have come to a village where the written Gospel had never been preached before, and there they found those who had been uneasy, who were seeking for a better answer. And it wasn't long at all before they were responding to the Gospel. God had been preparing their hearts through the fact that in creation they saw that there was a God and that they must answer to this God.

HEBREWS

The Division of Soul and Spirit in Hebrews 4:12-13 (143A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. You were talking about Hebrews 4:12 and 13. And it brought up a question that I wanted to ask earlier, but I had forgotten about it. The King James Version says that the Sword (God's Word) separates the soul and the spirit. What is the difference between a man's soul and a man's spirit?

HC: The question is raised, What does Hebrews 4:12 mean when it speaks about the Word of God, which is sharper than a two-edged sword, piercing to the division of soul and spirit? And we could go on with the question, "and of joints and marrow."

Actually, sometimes these words soul and spirit are synonymous. The inner essence of man, the part of man that leaves the body at death, sometimes is called the soul and sometimes is called the spirit. But here it talks about the division of soul and spirit. And so it's not using soul and spirit in the same sense.

Now the word spirit is also the same word as breath. And when our breath is separated from our soul, that's at the point when we are dying, or when we have died. The breath of life has returned to God. And the breath of life of every individual returns to God at death. And in our soul, we either go into Hades, if we're unsaved, or we go into the presence of Christ if we are saved. Only at death is there a separation between soul and spirit.

Now by the same token, it goes on and speaks about the division of joints and marrow. Now the marrow is inside the bone, and the separation of joints and marrow only comes at death. As long as a man is alive, there is no separation of joints and marrow. So it indicates that the Word of God is piercing to the death of a man. It is the Word of God that is our judge, that actually will condemn us at the Judgment Throne, because if we are unsaved, the wages of sin is death. And sin is known to be sin by comparing our actions and thoughts, and so on, against the Bible, which is the Word of God.

CALLER: Okay, then it's talking about death. It's talking about what goes on into the after-life and what stays here after death.

HC: I would say that it is a synonymous thought to John 12:48, where it speaks in this way: "He who rejects Me and does not receive My sayings has a judge. The Word that I have spoken will be his judge on the Last Day." The Word of God is a two-edged sword. It cuts away, but it also condemns. It is the "savor of life unto life," we read in Corinthians, or it is the "odor of death unto death." And if a man is unsaved, it is going to come against that man at the Judgment Throne. At death it's going to condemn him.

Deliberate Sin and Our Salvation in Hebrews 10:26-31 (187C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I wonder if you would explain Hebrews 10:26-31.

HC: Okay. The question is raised concerning Hebrews 10:26-31, where it says, "If we sin deliberately after receiving the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins, but a fearful prospect of judgment and a fury of fire which will consume the adversaries." And then it goes on, "A man who has violated the law of Moses dies without mercy at the testimony of two or three witnesses. How much worse punishment do you think will be deserved by the man who has spurned the Son of God and profaned the blood of the covenant by which he was sanctified, and outraged the spirit of grace?"

If we would isolate these verses from the rest of the Bible (and many people do this very thing), we could readily conclude that after we have been saved, and if we then deliberately sin, we are going to lose our salvation, we are going to be under the wrath of God. And this is strongly suggested here because it talks about receiving the knowledge of the truth, and it's speaking of the fact that we were sanctified. And so it strongly suggests that we could lose our salvation.

But before we can ever arrive at a conclusion concerning the meaning of a verse or verses, we must read them in the light of everything else in the Bible. First of all, when we study the Bible, we find all kinds of references to the fact that once we have been born again, we cannot lose our salvation. The Bible teaches emphatically, in such a passage as John 5:24, that if we believe in Him who was sent, Christ, we have eternal life. And that is a present situation with us. And if we have eternal life, it means that it's life that cannot end. It's eternal in nature. We could never lose that life.

More than that, it says we have passed from death into life, and we do not come into judgment. In John 10:27 Jesus said, "My sheep hear My voice and follow Me, and I give them eternal life. And they shall never perish. And no one shall snatch them out of My hand. And My Father is greater than I, and no one shall snatch them out of His hand."

And we read in the closing verses of Romans 8 that nothing can separate us from the love of God, neither life nor death, nor principalities nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, and so on. And we read in Ephesians 1:12 and 13 that He gives the Holy Spirit to those who believe on Him, as the guarantee, or as the down-payment of their inheritance. And we read in Philippians 1:6, I believe, that He who has begun this good work in us will bring it to completion at the Day of the Lord, or words to that effect.

In other words, the Bible is loaded with verses which say that once we are born again, we cannot lose our salvation. So we have to keep all of this in mind when we read these verses. Now the first thing that we read here is that it speaks about a knowledge of. The Bible sometimes uses the phrase to "know God" to mean that we are born again. We are a child of God. This is particularly true in a passage such as I John 2:3, where it says that "Hereby we can know Him, if we keep His commandments."

But on the other hand, the word "know" is also sometimes used in the sense that we know intellectually. We have been brought up in the way of God, but we have never been born again. And this is the way knowledge would have to be understood here. For example, Israel of old had a tremendous knowledge of God through Moses, as they witnessed the signs and the wonders in the wilderness. And yet they perished because of unbelief.

Notice that it does not speak here of having faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. And Abraham, who is named as the father of believers, is spoken of as one whose faith was reckoned to him for righteousness. And so it's talking here about someone who intellectually knows God. Satan would be one of these. We read in Mark 3 where the demons said to Jesus, "We know who you are. You are the Holy One of God."

Now it speaks here of someone who has been sanctified. The word sanctified and the word holy are the same words. Most of the time, or very frequently in the Bible, when we read the word holy, it's speaking about born again believers, as for example, in I Peter 2:9, where it says, "Ye are a holy priesthood." But sometimes the word holy is not used in that sense. It's used in the sense of being set apart to serve God, because of being corporately a member of the kingdom.

An illustration of this is in I Corinthians 7:14, where it speaks of the children of a believing parent. It says that the children are holy. Now it's not saying that they are saved. But because one of the parents is in the Kingdom of God, by virtue of being born again, then the children corporately become members of the Kingdom of God, and are very close to salvation. They have been set apart for the service of God, and if they will trust in Him they too can be saved. And this is the way "holy" or "sanctified" has to be understood in this context, because it's speaking of someone who has known the way of salvation and yet deliberately has turned away from it.

Now another truth that shines through in this awesome passage here. And it is awesome, because you notice how God is emphasizing His wrath. In verse 31 it says, "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." You see, the Bible teaches that there are degrees of punishment.

In Luke 12, in verse 47 we read, "And that person who knew his master's will (notice the word know here) but did not make ready (or act according to his will) shall receive a severe beating." That is Hebrews 10:26-31. But then it goes on in Luke 12, "But he who did not know, and did what deserved a beating, shall receive a light beating. Everyone to whom much is given, of him much will be required. And of him to whom men commit much, they will demand the more."

In other words, those who have never heard the Gospel from the Bible still stand guilty before God because they're sinners. But their punishment will be somewhat less severe. But if we know the way of salvation, and have been brought up in the context of salvation, and then turn away from it, we are walking toward hell. And you can depend upon it, if we continue that way, we are going to be in terrible trouble with God.

In other words, if we have been taught the way of salvation, because we have parents, or Sunday School teachers, or whatever, because we've been going to church, and yet when the chips are down, when we are finally faced with the decision, maybe the decision making process arrives at the moment when we're getting married, or when we're going to go to school, or when certain tragedies happen in our house. What is it going to do? What is our decision? Are we going to say, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord," because we believe with all our heart that Christ is our Savior and Lord, and we don't want to live in sin? Or are we going to take our stand with the world? Are we going to repudiate the Gospel that we have known so much about?

CALLER: They can be saved if they would turn back to God?

HC: Oh, yes. If we would read only Hebrews 10:26-31, we might conclude that if someone deliberately sins after receiving the knowledge of the truth, he has committed the unpardonable sin, blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, for which there is no forgiveness. But that cannot be.

First of all, God Himself tells us what blasphemy against the Holy Spirit is, in Mark 3, where it is singled out as believing that Christ was under the power of Satan. For that there is no pardon for sin. But when we look elsewhere in the Bible concerning those who knew the way, and turned against the way, now can there be pardon for them? The Bible absolutely says, "Yes, yes."

A beautiful passage that speaks to this, amongst many many others, is Isaiah 55, where God is coming to Israel, who has repeatedly turned away from Him, even though they knew the way. He says in verse 6 of Isaiah 55: "Seek the Lord while He may be found. Call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way and the unrighteous man his thoughts. Let him return to the Lord, that He may have mercy on him, and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon."

CALLER: This person is a new Christian, and they feel the Holy Spirit and feel that they're saved, and then in a couple of days it's gone. And they feel like they're not saved. And then it comes back. What can you say?

HC: What happens when there are those who have spiritual highs and spiritual lows? On one day they feel like they're walking on Cloud 9, and Christ feels so close to them, the Holy Spirit seems to be so prominent in their lives, and two days later they are not sure at all that they are saved.

You see, what do we trust in? Do we trust in our feelings? Do we trust in our emotions? Have you ever awakened in the morning, and it's a gray and dismal day, and you didn't sleep very well? Everything looks kind of negative, doesn't it?

On the other hand, have you awakened in the morning after a restful night's sleep, and the sun is shining as you leap out of bed, and everything looks good? These are emotions, and they're not trustworthy at all. We don't walk by feelings or emotions. We have feelings and emotions, but our trust is in the Word of God. That is the authority. That is the standard. That is the rock. That is the foundation. We read the Bible and feast upon it.

Now one of the problems of our life is that we very frequently suffer from spiritual malnutrition. Now if you go two days without eating, or maybe even skip a meal, you begin to feel that it isn't quite so good. Right? You begin to feel headachy. You feel restless perhaps. And if you would continue to go without food, pretty soon you would become physically weak. You're suffering from malnutrition. Now what's the remedy for malnutrition? Food, good food, that is properly taken.

And so it is with spiritual malnutrition. A lot of people who are born again believers wonder why they feel so cold, spiritually. They don't have the joy of salvation. They may even be wondering, "Am I really saved?" They find that even to read the Bible is hard, to get back into it. They're suffering from spiritual malnutrition. They are very weak spiritually.

Now the answer is exactly like that for physical malnutrition. Start eating. But what is the Bread and Water of Life? It is the Word of God. Start eating. There's a feast there. And spend a few hours a few nights a week, reading, and getting more and more acquainted with the Word of God. And you'll find that your life spiritually becomes more constant, more secure and stronger, because as you're reading the Word God is giving you assurances of His faithfulness. He's giving you word pictures of the nature of your salvation. You're beginning to discover more and more cause for joy. Just think, this is me that God is talking about; I'm the one who is saved.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

Do Biblical Warnings in Hebrews 3:12-19 Apply to Believers? (201A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have some verses here that I would like to know if I am understanding correctly. First I would like to let you know that I think they mean. And then you can tell me what you think they mean.

In Hebrews 3:12-19 – now this says that Christians are to be watchful that they not allow unbelief to occupy their hearts, in falling away from the living God. If, as some infer, it is impossible for children of God to quit believing, to fall away from God, then the inspired writer is giving here needless warning. Now in verse 13, continuing the thought expressed in the previous verse, he counsels us that if we are to partake of the blessings of Christ, we must hold firm our confidence unto the end. If, however, there is no way for a child of God ever to lose his faith, then this verse would also be needless.

The writer continues by showing that the ancient Hebrews, who typified God's children under the New Covenant, were not allowed to enter Canaan's rest, because of unbelief and disobedience. These Jews had left Egypt believing in God and obeying His will. But in the wilderness they quit believing and obeying. Therefore they were kept out of the land of Canaan. What is the reason for the inspired writer's use of this illustration?

Hebrews 4:11 says, "Let us labor therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief." And I'll take my answer over the air.

HC: Let me ask you a question, if I may. What you have just said makes abundant sense, and it sounds very logical when you read this passage. But let me ask you a question. What were you saved from?

CALLER: From sins, past sins.

HC: What do you mean, you were saved from sin?

CALLER: From past sins.

HC: I know, but if you were drowning, and somebody jumped in and rescued you, and then afterwards they asked you, "What were you saved from?" you would say, "Well, I was saved from drowning."

Now what does it mean to be saved from your past sins?

CALLER: Well, sin is a transgression of the Law.

HC: It's a transgression of the Law. But what do you mean that you are saved from your past sins?

CALLER: I was saved from the past sins of my life before becoming converted to the Lord Jesus Christ.

HC: I know. But what do you mean, you were saved from your sins?

CALLER: Condemnation of sin.

HC: Oh, okay. In other words, from the condemnation that comes from your sin. All right. In other words, when Christ went to the cross, what did He do for you in relationship to your sin?

CALLER: When He died on the cross, and when I accepted Him, then my past sins have been washed away.

HC: I see. In other words, He just died for your past sins.

CALLER: Past sins.

HC: All right. In other words, He didn't save you from all of your sins.

CALLER: Well, as soon as I was baptized, all my past sins were washed away.

HC: I know, but according to what you're saying, when we understand that He saved us from condemnation, we know that the wages of sin is death. The penalty for our sins is eternal hell, isn't it? Now you're saying that Christ only paid for your past sins. He didn't pay for all of your sins.

CALLER: He paid for those, too, under certain conditions.

HC: Oh, I see. Well, I'm asking you these questions in order to guide you, in order to help you think this out. You see, the reason that we're in trouble with God, the reason that our sins are even mentioned, is that our sins are what make it certain that we're going to go to hell. We're under the wrath of God because of our sins. The Bible declares, "The wages of sin is death." And the death that God has in view is eternal damnation.

Now when Christ came, to go to the cross, the Bible says He became sin for me. That is, He took all of my sins. He stood guilty before God, as if He was the sinner. And He was found guilty, because He had taken my sins. And He was condemned. And He paid the penalty for all of my sins. He endured the equivalent of an eternity in hell.

And therefore the Bible can say that I have been saved, or that there is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus. My sins have all been paid for.

Now the question rises then, if all of my sins have been paid for (because this is what salvation is), what kind of a sin do I have to commit to again come under God's condemnation, so that I'm going to hell? What sin could it be, if all of my sins have been paid for? There's no sin that I could commit that would make me go to hell. This is an impossibility, that I could lose my salvation.

Now one mistake that a lot of people make in reading the Bible is that they see this word brethren, as we find it here in verse 12, "Take care, brethren," and they immediately think that it means that everyone in the congregation is born again. Now they're all brethren. But the Bible teaches very clearly that there's no congregation where everybody is born again.

You read about the 7 churches in Revelation 2 and Revelation 3. And the first mistake that is made by many is that they read this word brethren, or holy brethren, and they immediately assign that phrase to only born again people. They fail to realize that God has His church in visible form as well as invisible form.

Now the organized church, which is composed of believers and unbelievers, all who are members (and only God knows who are the believers in any congregation), is a holy church. It is God's church. And corporately every member of that church is a citizen of the kingdom of God. And in that sense they are holy brethren. The word holy means set apart. It doesn't necessarily mean that one is born again. Now sometimes in the context we know that the word holy is referring to someone who is born again. But it also can refer to those who are in the congregation, who are set apart for the service of God, because they have officially joined the church congregation. But it doesn't necessarily mean that they are born again.

CALLER: Don't you remember, back in Acts, where the 3,000 were born again? These people didn't join. They were added to the church by the Lord.

HC: Now that's a different matter. Those 3,000, the Bible says, were saved. They were saved, and they were added to the congregation. But everybody who is added to the congregation is not born again. These 3,000 were, because the Bible says so.

CALLER: Then how do you know which ones?

HC: We don't. We don't, but God knows. We know in our own heart whether we're born again, if we examine ourselves in the light of the Bible. But we can't look at the other fellow and say, "Now I know that you're not born again." That's God's business. But we read Revelation 2 and Revelation 3, and you'll find that every one of those churches was beset by sin.

CALLER: So you're trying to say that when he's talking about these holy brethren here, that they're not born again.

HC: I'm saying that he's talking about the congregation, about the church. And within that church there are those who are born again, and there are those who are not. But God is coming constantly in the Bible with warnings to the congregation. And He's warning them, now make sure that you are saved. And so He gives an illustration, of Israel of old.

Now you'll notice the reason why Israel perished in the wilderness. They perished because of unbelief. They did not have faith. Now faith is the vehicle that God employs whereby we are saved. It also is a gift of God, too. But the nation of Israel did not have faith.

CALLER: Couldn't you have faith and then lose that faith?

HC: No, not true saving faith. Faith is a gift of God, and it goes all the way to salvation. And then our sins have been covered, and we have eternal life. We can never lose that salvation. That's an impossibility.

This is talking about those in the congregation who have heard the way of salvation. They know the way of salvation. They have been blessed of God, because they are present in the congregation. But they have never surrendered their life to Christ. They have never hung their life on Christ. This is really what faith is, that they have implicitly trusted in Him as their personal Lord and Savior.

And as a consequence, the day comes, just like the day came with Israel, when they go after other gods or they fall away.

They fall away from the congregation, as a matter of fact. And we see this happening in every congregation. There are those who are members for a while, and then finally they go back into sin. They were never born again.

Now this has got to be the way to understand this, because under no circumstance does God teach that we can lose our salvation. That would nullify, would negate, everything that the cross is, that Christ became sin for me, and paid for all my sins. We have to begin with, what is salvation? What did Christ save me from?

And once we understand that, and the awful price that He paid to save me from the wrath of God, the fact that He became our substitute in enduring the wrath of God, once we have all of that into our minds, then we read these other passages, and we can begin to understand how to read them.

Now also in this passage, if you read verse 14, for example, just as it stands, it very clearly is teaching that our salvation is dependent upon our works. It says, "For we are partakers in Christ if we only hold our first confidence firm to the end." In other words, Christ has done all that He could. He provided for our salvation. Now it's up to us to work and be pleasing to God. Otherwise we're going to lose our salvation. Now that's what this seems to teach.

CALLER: Yes, if we hold our confidence unto the end.

HC: Yes. But that's contrary to what the Bible teaches.

CALLER: Why does it say that then?

HC: Because God has written the Bible to foster unbelief.

CALLER: Why did He do that?

HC: Why did He do that?

CALLER: Why would He do that?

HC: Because of what we read in Mark 4, where Christ speaks of parables. The apostles asked Him, "Why do you always speak in parables?" And He said, in verse 11, "To you has been given the secrets of the kingdom of God. But for those outside everything is in parables." Why? So they would understand more clearly? No, just the opposite, "so that they may indeed see but not perceive. They may indeed hear but not understand, lest they should turn again and be forgiven."

CALLER: Is God a respecter of persons?

HC: Not in the sense that there is one chosen nation, or that only certain kinds of people can be saved. But He is a respecter of persons in the sense that only those who come with a childlike trust in God, who just in utter naive faith abandon themselves to the idea that the Bible is the Word of God, and it is to be interpreted by the Bible, we are to let the Bible interpret itself, will begin to understand the Bible. And so only those who endure to the end are the saved ones. And the only reason they're enduring to the end is that they have eternal life.

In other words, our works are a result, a fruit, a proof, the evidence of the fact that we have become born again. Under no circumstance are they the cause, are they the reason for. They are always the evidence or the proof. If we don't have works in our life, it indicates that we don't have faith. Whatever we think is faith is a dead faith. It means that we have not really become born again. We haven't entrusted our life to Christ, if the works are not there.

And only those who are born again will hold fast their confidence to the end, only they. And the reason they will is that no one can snatch them out of Christ's hand. The reason for this is that they have been given eternal life.

And so Hebrews 3 can be read by someone who is isolating it from the rest of the Bible, and it can be used as a proof text for falling from grace, or for being saved by our works. But when we arrive at that conclusion, then we are contrary to everything else the Bible teaches about the nature of our salvation.

And so immediately we have to say, "Well, wait a minute. We've somehow gotten on a wrong track. That's the wrong conclusion, because it won't agree with everything else the Bible says about salvation." We have to read this passage over again, and look at it more carefully. Maybe we understood wrong. We have to examine to see just how God wants us to understand these phrases, you see.

CALLER: Isn't it true that the two most important commandments are to love God with all your soul, with all your mind, with all your strength, and to love your neighbor as yourself? And Christ says, "If you love Me, you will obey My commandments."

HC: Yes, but we don't do that because we're meriting something. We don't do that because we're trying to become worthy. We don't do that because we're trying to insure our salvation. The moment we do any of this, then we're under the Law, and we must keep the whole Law perfectly. And no man can do that. It means that we're under the curse of the Law, and we're headed for hell.

CALLER: Christ is a mediator between us and God, to appeal our case constantly, because we're constantly sinning all the time. So we go to Christ in prayer to ask for forgiveness of our present sins, that we are committing daily.

HC: No. Christ paid for our sins at the cross. He became sin for us.

Now here is a child and his father. And the father dearly loves the child, and the child the father. And now the child disobeys Father. He has done something that is wrong. Now there is an estrangement that has developed between the father and the child. Now the child is not going to be disowned by the father. The father loves the child, and he would never disown the child. But the child finds that he can't talk to the father, because his sin stands between him, his disobedience stands between him and his father. And so he can't stand it after a while, and he says, "Father, forgive me. How could I have done this?" He's not going to be disowned. He's not going to be disowned. He just walks in this estranged way.

And so it is with a born again believer. Our sins were paid for at the cross, and we, if you are born again, and you commit sin, this is a very heavy weight on your heart. You feel very oppressed "How can I have done this? I have offended my Savior and my Lord." Now there's no fear at all, that now I'm going to lose my salvation. That has been put to bed long before, because we have eternal life. But there is this feeling of oppression, this feeling that I have offended my Savior. And so you can't wait, finally, to go to the Lord and pour it out. "Oh Father, forgive me. How could I have done this? I don't want to live this way. Strengthen me that I won't move in this direction of sin anymore." This is the forgiveness that the born again believer is looking for.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you. Good-by.

HC: Thank you. Good night.

Hebrews 10:26 Explained and Sunday Worship (206B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Would you explain Hebrews 10:26? When was worship for Christians changed to Sunday, and are we wrong in worshipping on Sunday? Should we really be worshipping on Saturday? And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you very much. Good night.

The first question that has been raised is concerning this verse in Hebrews 10:26, where we read, "For if we sin deliberately after receiving the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sin, but a fearful prospect of judgment and the fury of fire, which will consume the adversaries." Is this talking about the possibility of losing our salvation, if we sin deliberately after receiving the knowledge of the truth?

Well, let's assume that someone has been saved. Let's first of all ask the question, what has he been saved from? What has he been saved from? From his misery? From his loneliness? From himself, somehow? No. The Bible teaches that before we're saved we're under the wrath of God. We're sinners, and God's wrath abides on us. We're destined for hell.

And Christ came as the sin-bearer. He took my sins, all of my sins, and paid for those sins. Therefore I am saved from the wrath of God. I'm saved from the consequences of my sins. I stand before God as if I am completely righteous.

And so could I find a sin now that I could commit that would make me lose my salvation, if I've actually been covered by Christ's blood, if I'm actually born again? Well, no, because Christ became sin for me. He covered that sin, too. There is no possible way that I could lose my salvation. Every one of my sins has been paid for.

So we know that when we read Hebrews 10:26 it's not talking about a born again believer. A born again believer cannot come under God's judgment. He has passed from death into life. He does not come into judgment, as we read in the Gospel of John. He has eternal life. So it has to be talking about something else.

Now the Bible sometimes uses the word know in the sense of being saved. But at other times the Bible uses the word know in the sense of just having an intellectual knowledge, being acquainted with truth. Now there are all kinds of people in the church today, in the various congregations where they are found, who know that Jesus Christ is the Savior. They know that they are sinners, they know that Jesus was born of the Virgin Mary, born of a virgin. They know that Jesus is God. They know that He went to the cross in order to die for sinners. They know all of these things. But they have never become born again. Jesus told Nicodemus, "Ye must be born again." In other words, you must be the personal recipient of this salvation. You must be personally surrendered to Christ as your Lord and Savior.

Otherwise all of this knowledge won't avail anything. Now what happens, if someone has a knowledge of the truth, of salvation, but has not become born again? Eventually one of two things will probably happen. He will finally be arrested by God and broken down by God to the point where he will begin to cry out, "Oh God, have mercy on me." And so today there are many people in the church who have heard the Gospel for years and years and years, who finally become born again. Praise God for His patience and longsuffering with such.

But on the other hand, unfortunately, there are many in the church today who know the way of salvation, but eventually they don't like it anymore, this trying to make like a Christian. And so either they go running after another gospel that looks more exciting than the true Gospel, which is grievous sin. Or they leave the church altogether, or religion altogether, and simply begin to live like the world. And they in either case are sinning deliberately after receiving the knowledge of the truth. And walking in that direction brings them to a point where there is no salvation, because salvation is not "out there." Salvation is where this truth was that they had been hearing, where the true Gospel is proclaimed. That is where they're going to find salvation. They're not going to find it when they leave the true Gospel. And as long as they walk in that direction, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins. All that is in front of them is hell.

Now wonderfully, even after a man has rejected the Gospel in this fashion and has begun to run after other gospels, or has turned his back altogether against any kind of a gospel, God can still save. And even in that extremity the possibility of salvation exists. So we should not stop praying for these who walk in this way.

Now with regard to the second question about the Sabbath, let me try to briefly outline the Bible's teaching on this. In the Old Testament God did declare in the fourth table of the Decalogue or the Ten Commandments that we are to remember the Sabbath Day, to keep it holy, because God in six days created the heavens and the earth, and He rested the seventh day.

Now if that was the only command we had in the Bible and the only information in the Bible concerning that command, then today we should be observing the seventh day Sabbath, because God so commands. But the Biblical rule is that we interpret scripture by scripture. We can't stop there. We've got to ask ourselves, is there anything else in the Bible that relates to the question of the seventh day Sabbath?

And as we continue to study the Bible, we discover that this seventh day Sabbath became a part of the ceremonial law. God used it as a figure of Christ Himself. We read that He gave the sabbaths in order that the Israelites might know that it was God who sanctifies them. And so we're not surprised to read in Leviticus 23, where God outlines the various feast days, the various festivals, ceremonial festivals that were to be observed by Israel, that the first feast day that's named is the observance of the seventh day Sabbath. And it goes on with the observance of the Passover. And then it goes on into the Feast of Unleavened Bread, and so on.

Now when Christ came, the Bible teaches that all of these ceremonial laws were completed in Christ, and we're not to observe them any longer. Any man today who would want to observe the Passover would be going contrary to the Word of God. He would indicate that he doesn't trust Christ as his Savior, that Christ has not actually come. If any man would be circumcised today for religious purposes, again he would be trying to walk in the shoes of Old Testament Israel. He would be negating the truth of the Bible, that Christ has come and completed that particular ceremonial law.

Now by the same token, when we come to the seventh day Sabbath, we want to make sure that we are not observing that accidentally, or incidentally. And so the church, already in the Bible days, began to observe the first day of the week. We find this in Acts 20:7. The church at Troas gathered together on the first day of the week, to break bread. And on that occasion Paul preached to them. We find in I Corinthians 16:1 & 2 that Paul admonished the church of Corinth to lay aside on the first day of the week that which they were going to give, so there would be no gathering when he came. And of course whenever we give to the Lord, that's part of our spiritual worship, and it's on the day that we worship.

And so the early church began to observe the first day as a day set aside for spiritual nourishment, refueling of the spiritual fires, a day when there was no obligation to work. It's easy to see why they selected the first day. On the first day Christ rose from the grave. And so every Sunday in a certain sense is a commemorative service concerning the resurrection of Christ.

It was on the first day that the Holy Spirit was poured out. As a matter of fact, it was on the first day that God began to create the heavens and the earth, when He said, "Let there be light." And it is the church that has been mandated by God to go out into all the world and shed the light of the Gospel. And so it's altogether fitting and proper that the church worships on the first day.

We are altogether in accord with the law of God when we worship on the first day of the week.

Is Jesus Always the Same in Hebrews 13:8? (244A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have five scripture references I wish you'd comment on. They're Mark 16:17 & 18, John 14:12, II Corinthians 3:5,6, Hebrews 13:8 and Jude 20. And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. I'll try to speak briefly about each one of these

The question is raised concerning Mark 16:17 & 18. There we read, "And these signs will accompany those who believe. In My Name they will cast out demons, they will speak in new tongues, they will pick up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing, it will not hurt them. They will lay their hands on the sick and they will recover."

Now as we do with the rest of the Bible, any time we read a verse, we want to begin to read it in the light of everything else the Bible teaches. If we read this verse all alone, it would seem to indicate that God is teaching here that when we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, then we should begin to be able to do certain miraculous things. If we would pick up a rattlesnake, it would not hurt us. If we would happen to drink strychnine, either accidentally or because someone gave it to us, to kill us, it would not hurt us. And certainly when it says that we can lay hands on the sick and they will recover, we should have the power to be able to go into any hospital and go from bed to bed and lay our hands on the sick, and there should be recovery. That is apparently what this is teaching.

But when we begin to look at these verses in the light of everything else in the Bible, we find that it isn't quite like that. We do find that there were a few signs that did accompany the early church as it first began to spread out with the Gospel, just a few. The ability to do miracles was confined, insofar as we can discover in the Bible, to just a few of the apostles. They indeed were able to heal the sick as God gave them power. They were able to speak in foreign languages, as we read in Acts 2. And we do read of the apostle Paul, when he was shipwrecked, that a poisonous viper clung to his skin, and yet he was not hurt by it.

But we also read that we're not to walk by signs and wonders. We're to walk by faith. We're not to walk by sight. The fact is, Jesus said to the Pharisees, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign." This means, therefore, that it was not God's intention that we live by miracles. We are to live by faith in the Lord, humbly trusting Him.

And these signs that are related in the Bible were related and recorded in order that we might have insights into the nature of salvation which God has provided. In other words, when He healed the blind man, He was showing that even as He was able to physically heal that blind man, so He is able to spiritually heal those who are spiritually blind.

So I do not believe that this passage is suggesting in any sense that today we could find those who could lay their hands on the sick, and they will recover. The fact is, I don't know anyone who could go into the hospital and empty it, because he could go from bed to bed. Actually, we don't try to understand doctrine by experience anyway. And just strictly from a Biblical vantage point, we know that this would not be possible.

Now the second question was raised concerning John 14:12: "Truly, truly I say to you, He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do, and greater works than these will he do because I go to the Father."

Now this verse is widely quoted by many who are convinced that Mark 16:17 & 18 is normative for the believer today, that Jesus did miracles and therefore we can expect to do miracles, and even greater miracles than He did.

Well, let's examine that for a moment. Jesus not only healed the sick. He raised the dead. He healed the lepers. He multiplied the loaves and the fish, a tremendous act of creation. He turned the water into wine. He stilled the storm. He walked on the water. He raised Lazarus from the dead, after he had been dead for four days.

Now when we search the Bible, not only do we find that there is no one who did miracles as great as these consistently, but we also, when we look around, find that no one anywhere does miracles of this nature. And so immediately we know that God is not talking about the doing of miracles when He is speaking about the work that we would do.

When we search the Bible further, we find that Christ had two major tasks to do. There were two major areas of work He had to accomplish. And this is where we're going to find our answer as to the meaning of this verse 12 of John 14. And both of these areas of work are quite related.

One aspect is something that we have no part in. And that is His work of going to the cross and dying for our sins. We have no part in that. That is, we do not add in any sense to the salvation that Christ has provided for us. That work was unique. He went to the cross alone.

But Jesus also came as the one who preached the Gospel. We read in Luke 4, where He said in verse 43, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God to the other cities also, for I was sent for this purpose. And He was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee." Now that was the work that God gave Him, to be a preacher of the Gospel.

Now what is the work that God gives us to do? He says, "Ye are My witnesses." We are His ambassadors, Christ as it were making His appeal through us. He says, "Go ye into all the world and bring the Gospel, making disciples." So you see, that identifies with the work that Jesus did.

Now when we examine the success of Jesus, we find that it was very marginal. He preached for over three years, and there were only a handful of believers in all of Judea. But then Jesus went to the Father, and the Holy Spirit was poured out. God began His program to evangelize the world. And Peter preaches one sermon on Pentecost afternoon, and 3000 are saved. You see, literally this promise came true. "He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do [I work to bring the Gospel, and you will bring the Gospel]. And greater works than these will he do." We will be more successful than Jesus, because "I go to the Father." That is, "inasmuch as I go to the Father, God's program to evangelize the world will begin." And therefore you can expect to see far greater success of your efforts to share the Gospel than were realized when Jesus was still on this earth.

Now the third question that was raised is relative to II Corinthians 3:5 & 6. There we read, "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to claim anything as coming from us. Our sufficiency is from God, who has qualified us to be ministers of a new covenant, not in a written code but in the Spirit. For the written code kills, but the Spirit gives life."

Now I'm grateful for this verse, because this points up a very insidious lie, a very insidious doctrine that is being taught by many without realizing that it is something that is very terrible in nature.

There are those who read II Corinthians 3:5 & 6, and they're saying, "The written code, which is the Bible, that kills. That's the letter of the law. But we have to trust the Holy Spirit. And the Holy Spirit, He will give us light." Effectively they're suggesting that we are freed from the shackles of the Bible. We don't really have to pay too much attention to the Bible. We can trust that that Holy Spirit, working in a very unstructured and free way, uninhibited by the rules of the Bible, can do a much more mighty and wonderful work than that which is suggested by the Word of God. This is frequently the implication that comes out of this.

Now this is a very unfortunate and deceitful kind of an idea. This is exactly the kind of thing that would appeal to Satan very greatly. If he can only draw us away from the Word of God, if he can only make us look with some disdain upon the Word of God, if he can only get us into an arena, into a state of mind, into a practice where we are not listening to the Word of God, but we are susceptible to thoughts that might come into our minds, or susceptible to outside influences of one kind or another. And bear in mind that Satan is not limited by the rules of God, that He will not break the silence between the supernatural and the natural. God permits Satan to come with his occult practices of bringing the supernatural into the real life.

And so this just leaves the door wide open for his kind of activity. Now the fact is, the Bible is the living Word of God. It is the articulated, verbalized voice of God, whereby God has declared what we want to know. It is the holy Word of God.

And when it's talking here about the written Word or the written code, or the letter, it is true that it kills. The Bible does kill. The Bible shows us that we're sinners and that we're under the wrath of God and that we're subject to hell. It should drive the sword home, right into the very vitals of our hearts, that we're in deep and terrible trouble.

But it is God the Holy Spirit who gives life. Now how does He give life? Well, He gives life through the Word of God. The Word of God is the Sword of the Spirit. It not only convicts us of sin, which is the beginning point in our path to salvation. But it also convicts us of the fact that through Christ we can be saved of our sins. It convicts us of the fact that we desperately need this salvation, ere we spend eternity in hell. The Holy Spirit, through the Word of God, convicts us that God is holy and perfectly just, and sin is a terrible thing in the eyes of God.

The Word of God is the means by which God effects our salvation. Remember what Ephesians 5 declares? That we are washed with the washing of the Word. It is the Word of God that is identified with the Lord Jesus Christ, who went to the cross for our sins. And it is God the Holy Spirit who takes that Word and applies it to our hearts. He cleanses us of our sins. But He does this through the written Word.

So check your life. If in any way you find a disdain for the written Word, if in any way you hold it on a little lesser level than anything else in the Bible, or let me put it in another way. If in any way you hold it equal to anything else in the world, then you know that the Bible is no longer the infallible Word of God to you. It is something else. And that means that in all probability you have another Gospel than the true Gospel.

Now another verse that was offered for an understanding is Hebrews 13:8. We read there, "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and today, and forever." Now this verse, again, is frequently quoted by those who would want to say, "After all, Jesus healed all kinds of people during His day. And since He is the same today, we would expect that He would heal people from their illnesses today." Or, "He will do other works of miracles today, even as He did then."

Now the Bible isn't saying here in this passage that Jesus' program is the same today as it was yesterday and forever. The details of His program will change from time to time. Jesus Christ is the same. He is Eternal God. He never changes. He's immutable. He is Eternal God. But His program changes.

Now in the days of Noah, did he do miracles? We don't read of any. Jesus Christ is the same. He existed then, too. Did He heal any lepers in the Old Testament? He healed 10 of them, just like that. Well, He did heal Naaman the Syrian. That was all. And there were many many lepers in the Old Testament. Jesus is the same. His program is different.

For 400 years, from the days of Malachi and Zechariah, until John the Baptist was born, there was absolute silence. And yet the Bible was not complete at that time. Was Jesus the same? Yes, He was the same but His program was different. You see, the fact that Jesus did something back when doesn't mean He's going to do the same thing today. His program will change from time to time.

If you are going to say that Jesus healed 2000 years ago, and therefore He heals today, then you're saying that His program is the same today as it was then. And then I should be able to go to Jerusalem and find the God-man Jesus still teaching over there. But He isn't there, because His program is different. He had completed that aspect of His program and had left this earth and had gone to be with the Father. And so His program is changing, depending on what God has in view.

And it will continue to change. Today the Gospel is still going to every nation. The Bible teaches that God's program will change again. There will be a brief period before Christ returns when the Gospel is silenced all over the world. Well, Jesus is the same. He's absolutely the same. He doesn't change. But His program will change, as God gets His preordained work done.

And then we have a last question concerning Jude 20. "But you, beloved, build yourselves up on your most holy faith. Pray in the Holy Spirit." "Pray in the Holy Spirit." Now who is the Holy Spirit, He is Eternal God. He is Eternal God Himself.

Now when we become saved, we enter into God. "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus." We are washed in the Holy Spirit. We enter into God Himself, whatever God means by that kind of language. And I'm not able to explain all of this, because I can't understand God that well. But I know that God uses this intimate and wonderful language to indicate the precious relationship we realize with God when we are born again. When we pray in the Holy Spirit, it means that as children of God who are in Christ, we are communing with God our Father, in whom we dwell. It's this marvelous oneness that exists in the life of the believer in relationship to God Himself.

The fact is, in Romans 8 we read that the Holy Spirit takes our incomplete prayers, our prayers that we hardly know how to pray, and brings them perfectly before the throne of grace, because we belong to Him. As a born again believer, if we are communing with God, we are praying in the Holy Spirit.

This is the only way that we can pray to God, if we're really going to commune with Him.

Well, thank you for those good verses. They're all excellent verses that teach wonderful truths from the Word of God. We must be carefully, however, that we read them in the light of the whole Bible.

The Kingdom of God is With Us in Hebrews 1:3 (265A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: For my Bible Study lesson, I have to prove that Christ's Kingdom is here now. And I have three verses. I have Luke 17:20 & 21: "Now having been questioned by the Pharisees as to when the Kingdom of God was coming, He answered them and said, 'The Kingdom of God is not coming with signs that can be observed. Nor will they say, Look, it is here, nor There it is. For behold, the Kingdom of God is in your midst.'"

And then I have Luke 24:26: "Ought not Christ to have suffered these things and entered into His glory?" And then I have Hebrews 1:3: "Who, being the brightness of His glory and the expression image of His person, and upholding all things by the Word of His power, when He had by Himself purged our sins sat down on the right hand of God, the Majesty on High."

Now are those correct answers?

HC: Yes, those are good verses. Your question is, "How can we prove that the Kingdom of God is right now?" Remember what Jesus told Nicodemus in John 3?: "You cannot see the Kingdom of God unless you are born from above [or born again]." And then in verse 5 He tells us how we enter that Kingdom. He says, "Verily, verily I say to you, unless one is born of water and the Spirit he cannot enter the Kingdom of God." And so anyone who is born again, or who is born of water and the Spirit, has entered the Kingdom of God.

Now if we've entered the Kingdom of God, then it must be now. Then also read Colossians 1:13, where God says that we have been transferred from the dominion of darkness into the Kingdom of His dear Son. And then remember that John the Baptist, and also Jesus, said repeatedly, "The Kingdom of Heaven [or the Kingdom of God] is at hand." In other words, it's present right now.

You have a good start. And if you have a concordance, you might look up the word kingdom.

CALLER: This is helpful. Thank you very much.

HC: Well, I hope so. Thank you. Good night.

Understanding Hebrews 8:11 (288B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Brother Camping. I would like your explanation of Hebrews 8:11. And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: In Hebrews 8 God is indicating that the old covenant, that is, the covenant of grace as it is modified by the giving of the Law on Mt. Sinai, is being supplanted by a better covenant that is relating, of course, to the Lord Jesus Christ Himself, apart from the ceremonial laws. In other words, the ceremonial laws have all been completed in Christ, and they are not in view right at this moment.

And then in this context He is quoting from Jeremiah 31, where God prophesies concerning this new covenant, and says, "The days will come when I will establish a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah. And this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord. I will put My laws into their minds and write them on their hearts, and I will be their God, and they shall be My people."

And then verse 11: "And they shall not teach everyone his fellow [for everyone his brother], saying, 'Know the Lord,' for all shall know Me, from the least of them to the greatest. For I will be merciful toward their iniquities, and I will remember their sins no more."

Now I'm not certain of the complete implication of this verse. I do know that whatever it means, it came into being from the moment of salvation, or from the moment of the cross. Now in the Old Testament days it was only occasionally that someone was qualified to be a prophet. And they were the ones who taught the others concerning the ways of the Lord. They had the mandate to bring the Gospel, if you will. But the typical believer, while he was saved exactly as we are saved, was not qualified to be a witness.

But once Christ went to the cross, and God began His program to evangelize the world (which is really what's in view here in Hebrews 8), every believer is qualified to be a witness, from the moment that he is saved. And we can read the Bible, and we can know the truth.

Now that doesn't mean that some of the New Testament believers are not especially called to be teachers. And it doesn't mean that we can't learn from each other. But the fact is that every believer does have the qualification to be a witness. And whether we are least in the Kingdom or great in the Kingdom, it makes no difference at all. We are qualified to be a witness, because our sins have been covered and it's God's program to utilize us as ambassadors of Christ, to help evangelize the world.

I think this is the meaning of this passage, although I'm not absolutely certain whether there isn't some other implication also. I hope this will help a little bit.

How is it that Christ "Learned Obedience" in Hebrews 5:8? (323B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I don't understand in the Book of Hebrews why it speaks of Jesus as having to be made perfect through suffering, because Jesus was already perfect.

HC: The question is raised, What does the Bible mean when it says that Christ "learned obedience"? That is found in the Book of Hebrews, in Chapter 5, verse 8: "Though He were a Son, yet learned He obedience by the things which He suffered. And being made perfect He became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey Him."

Now that certainly is an interesting verse. How could it be that the perfect Lord Jesus, how could it be that He had to learn obedience? I think the answer has to be that this is not speaking of the fact that there was any lack of obedience in the personality of the Lord Jesus Christ. I can say that very confidently because of course He was without sin.

But in being obedient to the Father, He had to learn what a dreadful path this really would be. God the Father sent the Lord Jesus Christ to earth to pay for our sins. But the immensity, the enormity of the suffering He must endure would not be known to Christ until He actually endured it.

Now I say this based upon two verses that come to mind. One is when He was in the Garden of Gethsemane. He said, "Father, is it possible that this cup might pass from Me?" And three times He asked this of the Father. "Is it possible that this cup might pass from Me?" Already the wrath of God was beginning to weigh on Him. And we see this in the Biblical language, that sweat was pouring off His body like great drops of blood into the ground.

And we read in Hebrews that He was there with "loud cries." The utter terror of beginning to experience the wrath of God. It's also emphasized in the statement when He hung on the cross, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" It's the awfulness of experiencing something so horrible that even though Jesus Christ was God, He could not appreciate altogether the utter awfulness of it.

But just because He endured it, He was learning what obedience God really entailed. Now I say this also, based on a verse that's found in Matthew 24, and I think in Mark 13:32. Mark 13:32, Christ is talking about Judgment Day, and He says, "But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in Heaven, neither the Son, but the Father." Now that's an interesting verse, isn't it? It's as intriguing as the verse that He learned obedience.

You see, Christ was going to endure Judgment Day. And He had not yet endured it when He is speaking these words. The angels who have fallen are going to endure Judgment Day. And at this point in time they have not yet endured it. The unsaved of the world are going to endure Judgment Day. And as yet they have not endured it.

Now Judgment Day is spoken of in the Bible as the day of the Lord, or as the hour of judgment - particularly, for example, in Revelation 18, which speaks about the hour of judgment. And in this verse 32 God is indicating that all those who must experience the judgment of God do not know what it is. They don't know the immensity of the wrath of God. Even Jesus did not, because none who are to endure it had endured it as yet.

Now God the Father is the one who poured out His wrath on the Son. And therefore, He certainly is the one who was controlling just how much was required to satisfy the justice of God. But Christ, in His human nature, emptying Himself of His glory, learned what obedience to the Father really was, as He endured the awful wrath of God for our sins.

There is no one on the face of the earth today who knows what hell is. No one does. When people say, "I went through hell," they don't know what they're talking about. The unsaved of the world will slowly on come to know what hell is, as they spend an eternity there. But they'll have to be there forevermore before they know the full impact of the wrath of God for their sins. It's not pleasant to contemplate hell, not a bit pleasant. But I hope that everyone who is listening to this program tonight will be so agitated in their souls, so exercised, that they'll know that, "I don't want to go to hell. That's the last place I want to go to."

Now there is an escape from hell. But in order to escape from hell it means we've got to humble ourselves before God. We've got to come with a broken and a contrite heart to Him and cry out for His mercy. We can't be on any kind of an ego trip. We can't believe that there's anything worthy within us, if we're going to escape hell.

Unfortunately, most of mankind is not ready to admit the true nature of their sins before God. They're not ready to admit that they're a miserable, lost sinner, without any hope. That's too demeaning to their sense of well-being, or their pride. And so they remain unsaved.

But if it's the moment of truth, and we look at ourselves as the Bible looks at us, then we're ready to admit, with no holds barred at all, without drawing back at all, that indeed we're under the wrath of God, we are sinners. We deserve to go to hell, and we don't want to go to hell. And we begin to cry out to God for His mercy. We begin to trust in what the Bible declares about our sins, about hell, and about the salvation that Christ has provided. That's the path to salvation.

The Identity of Melchizedek in Hebrews 7:1 (325C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, I'd like to ask about Melchizedek. Who was he? Also, if Jesus died on the cross, how is He God, too? I do believe in Jesus Christ, but I'm being confronted with Jehovah's Witnesses constantly, and I cannot answer the question about His death and being God at the same time. Thank you.

HC: The first question that's raised is concerning Melchizedek. Who was he? And the second question is: How can Jesus be God if He could die on the cross?

Let me answer the second question first. If Jesus was indeed God, as Christians claim that He is, how could He have died on the cross? I could phrase the question a little bit differently: If Jesus had not been God, how could He have been our Savior? If He had simply been some kind of a super man, a very good man at that, how could He have endured the wrath of God so that it effectively became the equivalent of an eternity in hell? Because you see, that is required to save us.

Now of course many people deny the eternal nature of hell. They teach that judgment is really, ultimately, nothing more than annihilation. But that is not taught in the Bible. The Bible indicates that the wrath of God is poured out forever and ever on those who are unsaved, and their torment goes on forever and ever, as we read in Revelation 14.

In order for Christ to redeem us, it was necessary that that grievous penalty be paid. If Christ were anybody but God, He could not have paid for our sins. Only God would be able to absorb the awfulness of God's wrath to such a degree that in the space of three days and three nights of suffering He endured the equivalent of an eternity in hell for us.

The fact is, if anyone believes that Jesus was not God, they do not have a Savior. They can call Jesus Savior all they want, but they have a savior of their own making, who is unable to save them, because anyone other than God could never have paid for our sins.

Now when we speak about Jesus dying on the cross, some have the idea that the Roman soldiers or the Jews actually killed Jesus. And in a sense they did. That was their purpose, to take His life. Certainly the two thieves on the cross were killed by the Roman soldiers, as punishment for their crimes. And Jesus was put on the cross as a common criminal, also to die there on the cross.

In another sense, however, they did not kill Jesus. Remember, Jesus said, "It is finished," when He hung on the cross. And then remember, He said, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My Spirit." After He had suffered all that was required while hanging on the cross, Christ gave Himself up to the Father. He left His body and went to be with the Father.

He did this of His own will. His life actually ultimately had not been taken from Him. The two thieves next to Him had their legs broken because it was the night before the Sabbath day, or the afternoon before the Sabbath evening, and it was necessary that they be taken from the cross before the sun went down. To hurry their death their legs were broken. When the soldiers came to Jesus, they did not break His legs, because He had already died. Did He simply die more quickly than the others? No. No. When He had suffered as He was required to suffer, to pay for our sins, He said, "It is finished." And then He declared, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit." Christ gave up His life willingly altogether. He willingly went to the cross, He willingly suffered for us, and He willingly let His body be put into the grave.

The intent of the Jews, the Sanhedrin, Caiaphas the High Priest, the Roman soldiers, was to take His life. In actuality, Christ gave His life.

Now the other question has to do with Melchizedek. We read about him in Hebrews 7. And in connection with Melchizedek we understand from Hebrews 7 that he appeared to Abraham back in the Old Testament. In the language of Hebrews 7, however, we discover that Melchizedek was actually God Himself. The language will not permit any other understanding but that He was God Himself.

We read in verse 1 of Hebrews 7, "For this Melchizedek, King of Salem, Priest of the Most High God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him, to whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all, first being by interpretation King of Righteousness [now the only King of Righteousness is God, the Lord Jesus Christ], and after that also King of Salem, that is, King of Peace."

Remember what the angel declared when Jesus was born? "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace." Remember what Isaiah said concerning the coming Messiah? That He would be the Prince of Peace. More than that, in verse 3 of Hebrews 7 He declares, "without father, without mother." Do you know anyone else who was without father or mother, except Adam and Eve? No. Nobody at all was without father or without mother. Only Adam and Eve.

But it also says, "having neither beginning of days nor end of life." Now Adam and Eve had beginning of days and had end of life. And therefore it cannot be referring to Adam and Eve. It can only refer to God. He has no beginning, He has no end. He is without father or mother. He is from everlasting to everlasting.

"but made like unto the Son of God, abideth a priest continually [or forever]." He was a figure of the Lord Jesus Christ. He was a type of the eternal priesthood of Christ Himself. In order to establish typology in the Old Testament, God did set up a great number of types in the Old Testament. Abraham was a type of God, Moses was a type of Christ, David was a type of Christ, Elijah was a type of John the Baptist, and so forth.

In order to establish a perfect type of the character and nature of the priesthood of the Lord Jesus Christ, there was no man who would be a perfect type, and so God Himself appeared in the form of a man. He did not take on a human nature, He did not become man as He did when Jesus Christ became man, but He did appear in the form of a man, in the person of Melchizedek, in order to set up a type, a perfect type of the eternal character of the priesthood of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Can One Lose His Salvation in Hebrews 6:4-6? (338E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hi. Would you explain the verses in Hebrews 6:4-6?

HC: Hebrews 6:4-6 is a passage that troubles many many people, because when you read it, it looks like someone could lose his salvation. It speaks of those who have been enlightened, those who have tasted of the heavenly bread, those who have been partakers of the Holy Spirit, those who have repented, and yet they fall away. And if we would build theology just on these few verses, we could conclude that we could lose our salvation.

The Biblical rule, however, is that the Bible is its own interpreter. And no verse, either in the Old Testament or the New Testament, ought to be understood until we have carefully searched the whole Bible, to discover if there is anything that might impinge upon that verse.

Now we know absolutely that if we are born again we cannot lose our salvation. This can be proven from many many vantage points, both in the language of the Bible as well as in the nature of our salvation, the fact that Christ became sin for us and paid for all of our sins. Therefore there is no sin left that could cause us to come under the penalty of sin, causing us to go to hell.

The Bible teaches that we have eternal life. The Bible teaches that nothing can snatch us away from the hand of God. Nothing can separate us from the love of God. So we know that Hebrews 6:4-6 under no circumstance is talking about someone who is saved.

The way to understand Hebrews 6 is to first of all read Hebrews 3 and Hebrews 4. That's really setting the context. In these 2 chapters God is pointing to the nation of Israel, which was in the wilderness in the days of Moses. Now they were eating of the heavenly bread, the manna. They had repented in the sense that they had left Egypt. They had turned away from Egypt and had followed Moses on the wilderness journey on the way to the Promised Land.

They were partakers of the Holy Spirit in the sense that God the Holy Spirit overshadowed them in the day in the clouds and at nighttime in the pillar of fire. They were enlightened, in the sense that Moses was there teaching them about the way of salvation. He was teaching them about the Promised Land, and all that went with it, and about obedience to God. All of these expressions you find in Hebrews 6 would apply to the nation of Israel.

But you read in Hebrews 3, in the closing verses, that most of them perished in the wilderness because of unbelief. Their knowledge, their enlightenment, the fact that they were in the presence of the Holy Spirit, and all of these other things, availed nothing because it did not meet with faith in the lives of those who experienced these things.

And so today, if someone grows up under the hearing of the Word, if he grows up in the presence of the true believers, and in the presence of God as He operates in the corporate church, he may know all kinds of verses from the Bible. He may know the outline of salvation right down to a tee. None of these things avail anything if it does not meet with faith in the life of the hearer.

Now what is faith in this sense? Faith is an abandonment to Christ as Lord and Savior. We have hung our whole life on Him. He is the only one that we ultimately want to be obedient to. He is the one that we have committed our life to. He is the one we trust altogether as the one who has forgiven all of our sins.

To put it in other language, it means that we read the Bible trusting altogether that it is the divine Word, and we read it with a view to being obedient to it, both in its doctrinal teachings as well as in the practices that it calls for, because the Bible is the voice of God. The Bible is the revelation of the will of God.

Only those who have done this are truly saved. A knowledge of the things the Bible teaches, a knowledge of the way of salvation will not save us. If we are not born again, if we have not abandoned ourselves to Him altogether, we're still going to end up in hell as sure as anything.

1 PETER

What is the "Day of Visitation" in 1 Peter 2:12? (093C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, Mr. Camping. I was reading in 1 Peter 2, where it says in verse 12: "that they may see your good deeds and glorify God on the day of visitation." When is the day of visitation?

HC: The day of visitation would be Judgment Day, I would think, because only then are they going to glorify God. Only then is truth going to be apparent. They're going to realize that the believers were right all the time.

CALLER: So that's when the good works are apparent then.

HC: Yes. That's when it's the day of reckoning, you see. Now the world looks at the believers and they look upon them as refuse. They look upon them as the waste of the world. But when Judgment Day comes, then everything will be brought into its proper focus.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much. Good night.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

The Devil as a Roaring Lion in 1 Pet 5:8-9 (586C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I'd like to know about 1 Peter 5:8 & 9, where it says, "The devil goes about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour." Does that mean Christians that are wandering?

HC: The question is raised concerning 1 Peter 5:8 & 9, "Be sober. Be vigilant, because your adversary the devil as a roaring lion walketh about, seeking whom he may devour, whom resist steadfast in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world." Now who is he seeking to devour?

Well, I've become convinced in my study of the Bible that Satan does not know who are the born again believers. All he knows is that there are these congregations where people call themselves Christians, and they serve the Lord. But he also knows that amongst them there are those who can be snared away from the true Gospel. And he can come to them with his wiles, he can come to them through intimidation, through persecution. He can come through other gospels. He can come in a lot of different ways, and there will be those who will throw in the towel, so to speak, and turn away from the true Gospel and begin to follow a gospel patterned after Satan's liking, where they think they're really serving Christ, but actually they are not serving Christ.

And he is seeking for anyone whom he can devour. He doesn't know who they are that will fall, but he knows that in that congregation there are those who are not truly born again. He doesn't know who they are by name, but he does know that they exist within that congregation. So he's going to heckle and hassle that congregation as a roaring lion.

It's just like having a flock of animals out in the wilderness someplace. The lion is always looking for what he can devour. And who does he devour? Well, he devours the young and the aged, the weak cattle that are on the outskirts of the flock, the ones that do not have real strength. And he'll bring one down and have his food for the night. And that's the way Satan hassles the congregation. He looks for those who will prove to be weak in the faith because they have never become born again, and he will either tempt them back into materialism, or he will tempt them into another gospel, or he will persecute them so they will renounce the faith, or whatever. But this really, I think, is what God has in view.

CALLER: Do you think He's talking to people that are not Christians?, Or is He talking to everybody?

HC: Well, constantly in the Bible God warns us, "make sure that you are saved." And this is another question. This is another way of saying the same thing. Be sure that you are saved, because if you're not saved, Satan is right out there with all of his wiles. And remember, he's the master deceiver. He's the father of lies. And he's going to snare you off into another gospel, or he's going to draw you away in some other way. And you resist him. And remember what Ephesians 6 says? What is the armor that we put on in order to resist Satan? It's the armor of salvation, the breastplate of righteousness, the feet shod with the Gospel of truth, and the Sword of the Spirit, and so on. It all has to do with salvation. We get as close to salvation as possible so that indeed we've become born again.

And only when we're born again, and absolutely born again, and know this, are we safe from Satan.

CALLER: How much are we really fighting against Satan, or are we, if we're in Christ and we're truly born again?

HC: If we're in Christ, if we're truly born again, Christ has done the fighting for us. He has become our Conqueror. That is, on our behalf He has conquered. And Satan is a completely defeated foe. We have no fear of him any longer. We are safe in Christ, because Christ has won the battle altogether for us.

Now until we are born again, however, if we're not born again, we're not safe in Christ. Our sins have not been paid for, and we are fair game for Satan. Even though we are corporately identified with the Kingdom of God because of joining that church, nevertheless he's going to hassle and hustle us, and he's going to keep after us. And those who are not born again eventually will fall away.

CALLER: Oh. So that's why in Ephesians it tells us to put on the armor because after we have it on we don't have to worry.

HC: That's right. Put on the whole armor of God. Then we can resist the fiery darts of Satan. Then we're safe, you see.

CALLER: And how did you come to the conclusion that Satan doesn't know who's who.

HC: Well, I came to that conclusion in a very very interesting way. In our Sunday School class we were studying the Book of Ezra. And as we were going through Ezra, we discovered that indeed it was like many other parts of the Bible. It was an historical parable. And it actually was a fact of history, all the things we find recorded in Ezra, but there were spiritual truths that were contained in the language of these historical events. And we discovered as we went through Ezra that those who were on the other side of the river (and we find that reference in a number of places) were really a picture of Satan and his forces, that were seeking to frustrate the building of God's temple, or the sending forth of the Gospel. Ezra came of course to bring the Gospel, to reestablish the law. And the people on the other side of the river were against this.

And then, amongst other things, in Ezra 5 these men from the other side of the river, who spiritually represented Satan and all of his hosts, said to those who were busy with the law of God, "What are the names of the men that make this building?" In other words, they didn't know the names. And they sent a letter to the king, and they said in verse 10 of Ezra 5, "We asked their names also, to certify thee, that we might write the names of the men that were the chief of them. And thus they returned us answer saying, We are servants of the God of Heaven and earth and build the house that was builded these many years ago, which a great king of Israel builded and set up." That has to do with the erection of the temple that Ezra was building at this time. That's particularly in view. And the erection of that temple was a figure of building the house of God. We are all temple builders.

But in this we discovered that these from across the river did not know the names of those who were doing the building. And so immediately the truth began to shine through that Satan does not know who those are that are born again. And I don't know of another verse in the Bible that would suggest that he does. And that of course immediately indicated why he continues to hassle the church and everybody that's in it, because he keeps hoping that he's going to snare someone else away from the true Gospel. And because there are enough people in any congregation who are unsaved, he is victorious now and then, as one will get snared off into another gospel or as one will depart from the church and go back into his old ways, and so on. And so he's very encouraged all the time as he goes along.

CALLER: We know that Satan no longer has dominion over a true born again believer. Does he know that he doesn't have any more dominion over him? And if he does, why would he still be hassling him?

HC: You see, a lot of times we give Satan credit where credit is not due. We must remember, Satan is not God. Satan is not omnipresent. Satan is not infinite in his knowledge. Satan can't be everywhere at once. Satan is a fallen angel, who is a created being.

Now by right of conquest, anyone who is unsaved is a slave of Satan, and those who are far enough away from the true Gospel can be used of Satan in many ways. As wicked people Satan can entice them to persecute and to do wicked things and so on, if God permits him to do this. And frequently God does permit him to do this.

But when a person joins the church, when he is a member of the congregation, whether he's born again or not, then he has come very close to the shelter of salvation. He's where God's people are and where the blessings are all around. And this is not the easiest place for Satan to work. Now he can have an emissary in there. There may be someone in the church who is a false prophet, and definitely the Bible speaks of this. And this false prophet is going to be working his best to try to lure anybody he can in that congregation away from the true Gospel. But let me ask you this. Is there any human being who really knows who is born again? No, we don't know who really is born again. We suspect that this one or that one is born again, and we have to make sure in our own life that we are born again. But we can't really ultimately know who is born again. Only God knows that.

And so Satan likewise doesn't ultimately know who is born again. But he keeps working away at a congregation, hoping to find those who are not, and he rejoices when he can bring someone into another gospel, or lure them away from the congregation. And this is really the activity that any congregation faces. And I really think this relates to 1 Peter 5, where it talks about Satan going about as a roaring lion. He's hassling the flock just like a lion would hassle and come against the sheep, the flock of sheep. If there are any on the outside, or on the outskirts, or who are showing weakness, he will kill that one. And the closer we are to the Shepherd, and the more we entrust our lives to the Shepherd, the safer we are.

Thank you for calling and sharing. Good night.

Casting Our Cares Upon Christ in 1 Pet 5:17 (598A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have one question. It's about 1 Peter 5:7. It says, "casting all your cares upon Him because He careth for you." How do you go about doing this?

HC: How do we cast all our cares upon Christ? God really helps us know how to do this in Philippians 4:6. There God says, "Be careful [that is, be anxious] for nothing." All of the cares of this earth, they are what make us anxious. And He says, "Be careful for nothing. But in everything with prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, make your requests known unto God. And the peace of God that passeth understanding will keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus." There is the formula.

I have a care, I'm anxious. I'm anxious about a loved one, I'm anxious about a sin in my life, I'm anxious about what tomorrow will bring, I'm anxious about this, I'm anxious about that. And God says, come to the Lord with prayer and supplication. Now to supplicate before the Lord means that we don't come arrogantly, we don't come demanding of the Lord. We come as a suppliant, someone who begs the Lord, "Oh Lord, have mercy. I don't deserve this at all, what I'm asking for. But oh, Lord, in Thy gracious mercy, is it possible?" And we rest all this with Him.

Now notice it also says in Philippians 4:6, "with thanksgiving." At the same time that we come with our anxieties, with our cares to the Lord, as we abandon ourselves afresh to Him, we also thank Him for the salvation He has provided. We thank Him for keeping us through the day. We thank Him for the wonderful Savior He has provided, and all the other multitudinous things we can think of to thank Him for. And there are so many.

And then we have the promise, not that God will take the care away, or the anxiety away, but He will give us the peace of God. He will take the anxiety away, but the cause of the anxiety will remain. But we will be able to view that cause now with the peace of God that passes understanding.

CALLER: When I'm worried about things, I ask God to take this away, or give me the peace about it that He wants to give me, but I don't seem to get it. I just seem to wait around and get frustrated.

HC: The problem is that when we go to the Lord with our anxieties we bring them all to God, and we pour our hearts out to God. And then when we get off our knees, so to speak, and we finish praying, we take all those anxieties right back with us. We don't leave them with Christ.

Now the bottom line is that we don't trust Him, you see, sufficiently. We've talked to Him about it, and we've told Him all about it, and we know that He is Eternal God, who cares for us, and nothing happens except it's a part of His divine will, and He's given us promises that He will never leave us nor forsake us. But having known all this, we don't really trust Him. This is all a matter of faith, you see. We've gone through the motions, we've talked to the Lord about it, but we don't dare leave it there. And so a great part of our prayer has to be, "Oh Lord, strengthen my faith. Help me to trust all of these things to Thee."

And if you have your anxieties, if you've talked to the Lord about it and yet you have the anxieties, then you've got to begin to pray, "Oh Lord, forgive me for my faithlessness, that I don't really trust You. I've talked to You about it, but I don't trust You. And oh Lord, forgive me, and strengthen my faith that I will learn to leave them all with You."

CALLER: That really helps. Thanks a lot.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

2 PETER

God Wishes for None to Perish in 2 Peter 3:9? (345A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I was calling in with regard to a question on predestination. The Bible says that God wishes for none to perish.

HC: That's Second Peter 3.

CALLER: It seems that a loving God would not create beings just to destroy them. That doesn't seem very loving. And also, John 3:16. It would seem that God only loved part of the world and not all of it. I'll take my answer over the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you. Good night.

The question is really raised, Is God really fair? Is He really a loving God? Aren't we somehow in error on this doctrine of predestination? How can that accord with the idea of a loving God?

You see, the problem is that we do not understand the holiness of God. We do not really know what it means to be a perfectly righteous God. We're all tainted by sin. Even after we're saved we still have a body that lusts after sin. We're very much at home with sin. Sin is not that big a problem, basically, to mankind, is it? It's everywhere. Everywhere we look we see sin.

But we begin to sense that sin must be something really terrible, when we realize that the punishment for sin is to spend an eternity in hell. That's not a very short time, you know. That's a pretty terrible thing. And when we read the language of what hell is, as the Bible speaks of it as a place where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth, and a place where there's eternal torment, and a place of eternal burning and outer darkness, and so on, we begin to sense that, my, oh my, if God is perfectly just (and certainly He is, because He is holy God), sin must be terrible, to require that kind of terrible punishment. This begins to give us a tiny little insight into the holiness of God.

Now let's look at the human race. And it seems like we have to think about this from time to time. And I'm glad that we can, because we lose sight of these facts. God creates a beautiful world for mankind. This earth was perfect. God saw everything, that it was very good. There was no sin, there was no curse, there was no blemish of any kind upon this earth. And as the crown of God's creation He puts man here, to rule over this creation, to have dominion over it, to be fruitful and multiply, and be a people that would serve God perfectly and live with Him, and have fellowship with Him.

What more could God do? What greater privilege could man have? But mankind, beginning with Adam and Eve, and continuing right down to the last baby that's born on the face of this earth, of their own volition rebels against his Creator God, denies his Creator God, and goes his own way. Rather he begins to serve the creature, or the creation, as we read in Romans 1, rather than the Creator God. It's an open affront. It's repudiation of the God who created us. Certainly God ought to stamp us out. He ought to throw us all into hell, what terrible insolence! What terrible rebellion! What terrible arrogance, that we turn against the Creator God in this fashion, when He has put us in this beautiful world in which to live.

We don't deserve any blessing from God. We don't deserve any mercy from God, when we consider what we have done in rebelling against Him. And bear in mind, we're not animals. We're not non-thinking individuals. We're created in the image of God. We're created with a natural sensitivity to worship God. We know there's a God in Heaven. We within our hearts have a sensitivity to God's justice. We know intuitively that it's wrong to murder and to steal and to lie, and so on. And yet in spite of this we go our own unholy way. God ought to stamp us out.

Then on top of that, to make matters much much worse, God comes with His gracious offer of salvation. Now this offer of salvation is not an idle kind of a thing. If anyone is going to be saved through the Lord Jesus Christ, it is required that Christ would have paid for his sins, that Christ would have endured the wrath of God, so that God's perfect justice could be taken care of.

And so this is a tremendous, tremendous offer of grace that God is giving to the world, that whosoever believeth on the Lord Jesus Christ should not perish but could have everlasting life. And again the Bible tells us that because of the nature of our rebellion against God there's not one of us that would respond to that Gospel. We hate God as Creator, we're in rebellion against Him as Creator, and under no circumstance are we going to want to be redeemed by Him. We like what we are. We like our sin. We're going to take our own chances with eternity. We're going to go our own way.

Could mankind, created in the image of God, affront God any more? Could they be any more rebellious? Can't you see that there isn't the slightest reason why God ought to save any one of us? Don't you ever think that God is unjust in that He lets anyone go to hell. We all deserve to go to hell. Our sins cry out to God's holy Heaven for the way we regard God.

But Christ said, "I will build My church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." It was God's intention from before He ever created the universe that He's going to have a people of Himself. And so God decided just whom He was to save.

Now the fact that He would save one person, does that mean that He was ungracious to the rest of the human race? No, not a bit. The rest of the human race had an opportunity to be saved, but they didn't want to be saved. The fact that the one who was saved had to be drawn by God, had to be irresistibly drawn by God so that his mind was enlightened and his will was surrendered to God, that didn't change anything. This person didn't deserve to be saved, but God said, "I want you. I'm going to save you." That did not mean that the rest were left with any sense of injustice in any way, because they didn't want to be saved.

Now the fact that God has saved a large number of people (a small percentage in comparison with those who are still going to hell, but nevertheless in total a substantial number of people), that is grace magnified over and over again. Why would God do this? Why did I deserve to be saved? Never! I didn't deserve it at all. Why am I saved? I didn't deserve it. It's all God's grace.

That is the message of salvation. We don't have to think for a moment that the fact that some are not elect is injustice on God's part. Read Romans 9, where that very question is raised, Is there injustice on God's part? And the answer comes right back, By no means! God has a right to have mercy upon whom He will have mercy.

Now in Second Peter 2:3 we read that God does not wish that any should perish, but that all should come to a knowledge of the truth. We also read in the Gospel of Luke that Christ wept over Jerusalem. And in another place it says that He declared of Jerusalem, "How oft I would have gathered you as a hen would gather her chicks, and ye would not."

We must remember that it is not a pleasant idea to God that man must go to hell. God takes no pleasure in the death of the wicked, the Bible declares. That is not a pleasant idea to God. God loves His creation, and mankind is part of His creation. But you must remember that God's justice demands that the penalty for our sins be paid, that mankind goes to hell.

It's like the judge who has the criminal in front of him who is guilty of a crime. And the law declares that this man must go to jail for the rest of his days. The judge has no pleasure at all in sending that person to jail for the rest of his life. I am sure that that must be a traumatic experience for a judge. But the law demands that this person has to go to jail. And if this judge is going to be faithful to the law, if he is going to be a righteous judge, then he must send that person to jail. Now that is exactly a picture of God's holy justice. The wages of sin must be paid. God has no pleasure in the death of the wicked.

God wept over Jerusalem because He knew that they were coming under God's judgment because of their sins. He is the Creator of these people. And to see His creation in open rebellion and under the judgment of God is a painful experience for God. But God's holiness and His justice demands that they must pay the penalty.

Now why is it that He didn't save everybody? I don't know. That's God's sovereign good pleasure that He didn't save everyone. We do read in Romans 9 that even the wrath of men shall praise Him. We can't understand the whole picture. We only know this, that God says, "Make your calling and election sure." We only know this, that God says that "Whosoever cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out." Actually, after we're saved, and we try to find out why we came to Him, we'll discover that it was because God drew us.

Now in Second Peter 3, which says that He does not wish that any should perish but that all should come to Him, He of course is particularly talking there about the elect, those whom He had planned to save. The context is that of the patience of God in the face of the continued wickedness of the world. If God would end this world before His prescribed time, that is, before the last of the elect have been saved, then God's whole elective program would have been frustrated. And God does not wish this to be. He wishes that all who are to be saved will be saved.

Now when God really desires that some is going to be saved, no human being could resist the will of God. Don't you ever think that God is saying to us, "Now look. I've done all that I can for you, and now it's up to you." That's not the Biblical teaching. When Christ decided to save us, this decision was made before He ever created this universe. And you can depend upon it that all whom He decided to save will be saved. God will draw them. This is John 6:37-44. And read those verses very carefully.

Well, thank you for that question.

1 JOHN

How Does One "Test the Spirits" in 1 John 4:1? (113C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I've been looking at 1 John 4, and it's got me puzzled. It says, "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but test the spirits, whether they are of God, because many false prophets are gone out into the world." How can you test them? How can you know?

HC: The easiest way we can test the spirits is to discover what the person is doing with the Bible. Well, let me see if I can develop this just a little bit, because this is a very excellent question.

First of all, the question is: How are we to test the spirits? We read in verse 1 of I John 4: "Beloved, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits, to see whether they are of God." And then in verse 2 it tells us how to test the spirits: "By this you know the Spirit of God. Every spirit which confesses that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God, and every spirit which does not confess Jesus is not of God. This is the spirit of antichrist."

Now is this saying that if anyone at all acknowledges that Jesus is come in the flesh, then we can know that that person definitely is of Christ and not of Satan? No, it's not saying that. The key word here is the word confess. Now we have to understand what confess means in the Bible. Satan and his evil spirits, you know, acknowledge that Jesus came in the flesh. When Jesus cast out demons, the demons would say to Him, "We know who you are. You are the Holy One of God." Or they would say, "Have you come to torment us before our time?"

But you see, that was not confession. That was acknowledging Jesus. But you see, the word confession in the Bible means to repent. It means to have the same mind with God. And the evil spirits, of course, could never confess Christ because they were antagonistic toward Christ. Their wills were deliberately opposed to that of Christ.

And so just because people today say, "Jesus this" and "Jesus that," that in itself is not confession. Just because they say, "Lord, Lord this" and "Praise the Lord, the other thing," that in itself is not confession. Confession means that our will has been surrendered to Christ.

Now the Word of Christ is the Bible. And if I say I am surrendered to Christ, and yet I do not submit to the authority of the Bible, if I say, "The Bible is the Word of God, but there's also these other revelations that are from God," and so on, going quite contrary to the Word of God, then I am showing by this that I am not confessing Christ. I am showing by this that my will is not surrendered to the Word of God as the holy book, as the only infallible Word of God. I have a gospel that goes beyond the Bible.

And so this shows that I do not belong to Christ at all.

CALLER: I do appreciate your help. Thank you. Good night.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

What is the "Unforgivable" Sin in I John 15:16-17? (235A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Would you please explain I John 5:16 and 17? What is the sin that leads to death that this verse is talking about? And is this death the death of a believer? Or is this the second death? And if you sin and then die before you can ask forgiveness, can you lose your salvation? What is the unforgivable sin, and can it ever be forgiven?

HC: All right. I'll try to get at those questions. Thank you.

The question that has been raised is a multiple question, and it is concerned with the matter of the potential possibility of a Christian losing his salvation. Is it possible, the question is asked, that there is some sin that we could commit that would be unforgivable? And this is suggested in I John 5, where it says in verse 16, "If anyone sees his brother committing a sin not unto death, he will ask and God will give him life, for those whose sin is not unto death. But there is sin unto death. I do not say that one should pray for that."

And a corollary question is: Supposing I committed a sin and didn't have time to ask for forgiveness. Would this sin in some way endanger my salvation? First of all, we have to get at a basic principle here. What is salvation? What have I been saved from? We have to understand this before we can get into these questions.

The fact is that before we are saved, we stand body and soul as sinners before God. We're under the wrath of God, and the Bible declares that "the wages of sin is death." And the death that God has in view is eternal damnation. It is to spend an eternity in hell, under the wrath of God. That is the ugly picture of where we begin.

Now Christ came to save us from the wrath of God. He came as our substitute in bearing the wrath of God in our place. We read in II Corinthians 5, in verse 21, "for our sake He [that is, God] made Him [that is, Christ] to be sin, who knew no sin, so that in Him [that is, in Christ] we might become the righteousness of God."

You see, for those who have become saved, Jesus became sin for me. He looked down the avenues of time, and He saw all of the sins that I would ever commit, from the day I was born until the day I die, the sins I would commit before I was saved, and the sins I would commit after I am saved. Every sin that I would ever commit (and there are thousands of them), He took upon Himself all of those sins, as well as the sins of everyone else who would ever believe on Him.

Now He went to the cross. And it is at that time that He stood before the bar of God's justice and was found guilty. He was guilty for my sins, not for His own sins. Christ in Himself was sinless. But He was guilty of my sins. And God condemned Him to the equivalent of an eternity in hell, which of course would be required in order to satisfy God's justice in relationship to my sin. And so God poured out His wrath on Him, in order that my sins might be paid for.

So now all of my sins have been paid for. I am a child of God. I am a citizen of God's Kingdom. Why then do I pray daily, "Oh Father, forgive my sins"? Is this in order to make sure that the sins I committed today were also covered by Jesus' blood? No, no, that can't be. All of my sins were covered by Jesus' blood when He went to the cross. The reason I pray, "Oh Father, forgive me," is to reestablish fellowship. Like a child is to the father, I have disobeyed. And so I go to my Heavenly Father each day, "Oh Father, I didn't do as well as I should have. Now I know my sins are covered by Jesus' blood. I know that I am your child. Oh Father, forgive me. I don't want to live this way. Strengthen me that I might live in accordance with Your will. Give me more desire than ever, a stronger faith than ever. Help me to desire to read Thy Word and feed on Thy Word, that I might be strengthened in living for Thee." And so on.

This is the conversation that the born again believer has with his Heavenly Father.

Now should I, in a rash act of anger, let's say, receive a stroke or a heart attack, become unconscious, and it was sinful anger, and I die without ever talking to the Lord about that last act of sinful anger, does that impair my salvation? Not at all. Not at all. That sin, too, was covered by Christ's blood.

There's no way, there's no way that anything can separate me from the love of God, as the closing verses of Romans 8 teach. "There is neither life nor death, nor principality nor power, nor things present nor things to come, nor anything in all creation that can separate me from the love of God."

And so if we have become a child of God, and really born from above, so we've experienced the resurrection of our souls, so that we actually have been raised with Christ, and have eternal life, we never never never have to fear hell again.

But then what is God talking about in I John 5? He's talking about a brother who commits a sin unto death. What can that be? Well, when we search the Bible, we find that there is only one sin for which there is no possible redemption. And that is blasphemy against the Holy Spirit. That is spoken of, for example, in Mark 3.

Now in Mark 3 God details for us what blasphemy against the Holy Spirit is. The scribes and some of the Pharisees accused Jesus, because they believed this to be so, of being under the power of Satan, under the power of the devil. And so they were really saying that it wasn't the Holy Spirit at all who was giving Christ the power. It was Satan who was giving the power. And Jesus said, "For this sin there is no forgiveness." This is blasphemy against the Holy Spirit.

And that's the only sin that the Bible names for which there is no forgiveness. Now anyone who has committed this sin would never ask for forgiveness. They are so seared in their conscience, they are so antagonistic toward Christ that they would never want Him as their Messiah. These same scribes and Pharisees not only rejected Jesus as their Messiah, but they crucified Him.

Now were they brothers of Jesus? Yes. Yes, they were brethren in the congregation. They belonged to the same congregation that Jesus did. They went to the same temple, to the same synagogues that Jesus did. And so if we knew someone in the congregation who, up until this time, had been a Christian brother, and now he has come somehow under the teaching and the belief that Jesus after all was under the power of Satan, then we would know that this brother had committed a sin unto death, and there's no point in praying for that person any longer.

Now there are those who teach that the sin unto death spoken of here in I John 5 is the rejection of the Lord Jesus Christ. Now every sin in a sense is a sin unto death. Every sin is to be paid for by eternal damnation. The rejection of the Lord Jesus Christ is one such sin. It is a sin that will bring eternal damnation. It simply adds to all the other sins that person commits.

But the fact that a person commits a sin, outside of blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, which we've already talked about, or the fact that someone rejects the Lord Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord, that does not guarantee at that point that there is no possible salvation for this person. Many people have rejected Christ again and again and again and again. And ultimately God has broken them down, and perhaps in their old age they have become born again believers. You may know of relatives in your own life, or maybe this has happened to you.

The fact is, the Bible teaches that there is all kinds of hope, even though a person for the moment has rejected Christ. That is not the sin unto death.

Then we would have the dismal, terrible picture of a loved one to whom we've witnessed, and they have said, "No, I don't want to be saved. I can't accept Christ. The salvation plan you offer is too horrendous for me. I don't want to go that way." Then we would have to conclude, there's no point in praying for this loved one anymore. He's committed a sin unto death. There is nothing else that can happen. He is destined for hell, and that's the end. What a terrible thing this would be, wouldn't it, when we think of all of our loved ones who have repeatedly turned a deaf ear to the witness of the Gospel.

But that is not the case. As long as that person is living, and as long as that person has not blasphemed the Holy Spirit, that is, has come to the conclusion that Jesus was under the power of Satan (and I've never met an individual who has committed that dread sin), and as long as this has not happened, regardless of how frequently they have rejected Christ, as long as they are living, there is still the hope of salvation. And we are to continue to pray and pray and pray and pray, and beseech the Lord that possibly salvation might come to our loved one. This I think answers the question.

The sin unto death is blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, and it is the only sin we're not to pray for. Thank you for that.

What is the Sin that Leads to Death in I John 5:16? (339B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I've got a difficult verse in the Bible here, I John 5:16: "If anyone finds his brother committing a sin not leading to death, he shall ask God, and God will for him give life to those who commit sin not leading to death. There is a sin leading to death. I do not say that he should make request for this." I don't understand about the sin that leads to death.

HC: The question is raised as to what we're to do with the language of I John 5, which speaks of a sin unto death.

Now the complicating piece of information here is that it talks of a brother, "If anyone sees a brother commit a sin unto death." Ordinarily in the Bible, when we read "brother," the first idea that comes into our mind is that it's talking about a fellow Christian, someone who belongs to our congregation. Again and again the Bible addresses itself to the congregation as brethren. And sometimes we get the idea that whenever God uses the word brethren, He's talking about born again believers.

We must remember, however, that God is represented on this earth by the corporate body, the organized body of Christ called the church, or the congregation, or the denomination, or the assembly of believers. Everyone who belongs to that is called a brother in the Lord. But that is no evidence of any kind that all of them are born again. The fact is, when we study the Bible carefully, we must come to the conclusion that in any congregation there is a good percentage of those who are members who are not born again. Now we don't know who these are, but God knows who they are.

Now what is the sin unto death? There are those who say that the sin unto death is to reject the Lord Jesus Christ. Well, actually, every sin in a certain sense is unto death. "The wages of sin is death," whether it's the sin of rejecting Christ or the sin of lying, or the sin of cheating, or the sin of being unkind, or whatever. It is a sin unto death in that general sense.

But that kind of a sin is not in view, because the Bible says here, don't pray for this one who has committed a sin unto death. Actually, everything else in the Bible says that we are to pray for those who are sinners. We are to pray for our unsaved loved ones. And yet all of them have committed sins that are going to lead to eternal damnation.

So we know that that kind of sin is not in view. It's another kind of a sin that there's no point in praying about any longer. Now when we search the scriptures we find there is only one sin for which there is no forgiveness. And that sin is blasphemy against the Holy Spirit. We read about this, for example, in Mark 3.

Now the brethren of Christ, that is, the members of the congregation to which Christ belongs, had committed this sin – blasphemy – against the Holy Spirit. It was the scribes, the members of the temple in Jerusalem, to which Jesus belonged, who blasphemed the Holy Spirit. And then God tells us what this is. They accused Jesus of casting out demons by the power of Satan. In other words, they accused Him of being under the power of an evil spirit, or under the power of Satan rather than being under the power of God. And so they blasphemed the Holy Spirit.

And so then in that context Jesus said, "Every sin will be forgiven you, except for the sin of blasphemy against the Holy Spirit. For they had said, He has an unclean spirit." And so if a situation would arise in our congregation where a fellow member—and no saved person would ever commit this sin; that's an impossibility, because a saved person has eternal life—whom we thought was saved, somehow got around to the idea that after all, Jesus was under the power of Satan, that He really wasn't under the power of God, if he really began to believe that, he would have committed the sin unto death, and there's no point in praying for such a one.

Now it's interesting, of course, that these scribes never did want to be saved. They were terrible in their opposition to Christ. They not only rejected Him, but they crucified Him. And if someone in the church came around to the idea that Christ was under the power of Satan, then you can depend upon it, they never would want that salvation, either. They would want nothing to do with Christ.

Now I believe that's the only way we can answer this particular question.

CALLER: All right. I understand now. Thanks a lot.

JUDE

Praying in the Holy Spirit in Jude 20 (244A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have five scripture references I wish you'd comment on. They're Mark 16:17 & 18, John 14:12, II Corinthians 3:5,6, Hebrews 13:8 and Jude 20. And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. I'll try to speak briefly about each one of these.

The question is raised concerning Mark 16:17 & 18. There we read, "And these signs will accompany those who believe. In My Name they will cast out demons, they will speak in new tongues, they will pick up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing, it will not hurt them. They will lay their hands on the sick and they will recover."

Now as we do with the rest of the Bible, any time we read a verse, we want to begin to read it in the light of everything else the Bible teaches. If we read this verse all alone, it would seem to indicate that God is teaching here that when we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, then we should begin to be able to do certain miraculous things. If we would pick up a rattlesnake, it would not hurt us. If we would happen to drink strychnine, either accidentally or because someone gave it to us, to kill us, it would not hurt us. And certainly when it says that we can lay hands on the sick and they will recover, we should have the power to be able to go into any hospital and go from bed to bed and lay our hands on the sick, and there should be recovery. That is apparently what this is teaching.

But when we begin to look at these verses in the light of everything else in the Bible, we find that it isn't quite like that. We do find that there were a few signs that did accompany the early church as it first began to spread out with the Gospel, just a few. The ability to do miracles was confined, insofar as we can discover in the Bible, to just a few of the apostles. They indeed were able to heal the sick as God gave them power. They were able to speak in foreign languages, as we read in Acts 2. And we do read of the apostle Paul, when he was shipwrecked, that a poisonous viper clung to his skin, and yet he was not hurt by it.

But we also read that we're not to walk by signs and wonders. We're to walk by faith. We're not to walk by sight. The fact is, Jesus said to the Pharisees, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign." This means, therefore, that it was not God's intention that we live by miracles. We are to live by faith in the Lord, humbly trusting Him.

And these signs that are related in the Bible were related and recorded in order that we might have insights into the nature of salvation which God has provided. In other words, when He healed the blind man, He was showing that even as He was able to physically heal that blind man, so He is able to spiritually heal those who are spiritually blind.

So I do not believe that this passage is suggesting in any sense that today we could find those who could lay their hands on the sick, and they will recover. The fact is, I don't know anyone who could go into the hospital and empty it, because he could go from bed to bed. Actually, we don't try to understand doctrine by experience anyway. And just strictly from a Biblical vantage point, we know that this would not be possible.

Now the second question was raised concerning John 14:12: "Truly, truly I say to you, He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do, and greater works than these will he do because I go to the Father."

Now this verse is widely quoted by many who are convinced that Mark 16:17 & 18 is normative for the believer today, that Jesus did miracles and therefore we can expect to do miracles, and even greater miracles than He did.

Well, let's examine that for a moment. Jesus not only healed the sick. He raised the dead. He healed the lepers. He multiplied the loaves and the fish, a tremendous act of creation. He turned the water into wine. He stilled the storm. He walked on the water. He raised Lazarus from the dead, after he had been dead for four days.

Now when we search the Bible, not only do we find that there is no one who did miracles as great as these consistently, but we also, when we look around, find that no one anywhere does miracles of this nature. And so immediately we know that God is not talking about the doing of miracles when He is speaking about the work that we would do.

When we search the Bible further, we find that Christ had two major tasks to do. There were two major areas of work He had to accomplish. And this is where we're going to find our answer as to the meaning of this verse 12 of John 14. And both of these areas of work are quite related.

One aspect is something that we have no part in. And that is His work of going to the cross and dying for our sins. We have no part in that. That is, we do not add in any sense to the salvation that Christ has provided for us. That work was unique. He went to the cross alone.

But Jesus also came as the one who preached the Gospel. We read in Luke 4, where He said in verse 43, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God to the other cities also, for I was sent for this purpose. And He was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee." Now that was the work that God gave Him, to be a preacher of the Gospel.

Now what is the work that God gives us to do? He says, "Ye are My witnesses." We are His ambassadors, Christ as it were making His appeal through us. He says, "Go ye into all the world and bring the Gospel, making disciples." So you see, that identifies with the work that Jesus did.

Now when we examine the success of Jesus, we find that it was very marginal. He preached for over three years, and there were only a handful of believers in all of Judea. But then Jesus went to the Father, and the Holy Spirit was poured out. God began His program to evangelize the world. And Peter preaches one sermon on Pentecost afternoon, and 3000 are saved. You see, literally this promise came true. "He who believes in Me will also do the works that I do [I work to bring the Gospel, and you will bring the Gospel]. And greater works than these will he do." We will be more successful than Jesus, because "I go to the Father." That is, "inasmuch as I go to the Father, God's program to evangelize the world will begin." And therefore you can expect to see far greater success of your efforts to share the Gospel than were realized when Jesus was still on this earth.

Now the third question that was raised is relative to II Corinthians 3:5 & 6. There we read, "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to claim anything as coming from us. Our sufficiency is from God, who has qualified us to be ministers of a new covenant, not in a written code but in the Spirit. For the written code kills, but the Spirit gives life."

Now I'm grateful for this verse, because this points up a very insidious lie, a very insidious doctrine that is being taught by many without realizing that it is something that is very terrible in nature.

There are those who read II Corinthians 3:5 & 6, and they're saying, "The written code, which is the Bible, that kills. That's the letter of the law. But we have to trust the Holy Spirit, and the Holy Spirit, He will give us light." Effectively they're suggesting that we are freed from the shackles of the Bible. We don't really have to pay too much attention to the Bible. We can trust that that Holy Spirit, working in a very unstructured and free way, uninhibited by the rules of the Bible, can do a much more mighty and wonderful work than that which is suggested by the Word of God. This is frequently the implication that comes out of this.

Now this is a very unfortunate and deceitful kind of an idea. This is exactly the kind of thing that would appeal to Satan very greatly. If he can only draw us away from the Word of God, if he can only make us look with some disdain upon the Word of God, if he can only get us into an arena, into a state of mind, into a practice where we are not listening to the Word of God, but we are susceptible to thoughts that night come into our minds, or susceptible to outside influences of one kind or another. And bear in mind that Satan is not limited by the rules of God, that He will not break the silence between the supernatural and the natural. God permits Satan to come with his occult practices of bringing the supernatural into the real life.

And so this just leaves the door wide open for his kind of activity. Now the fact is, the Bible is the living Word of God. It is the articulated, verbalized voice of God, whereby God has declared what we want to know. It is the holy Word of God.

And when it's talking here about the written Word or the written code, or the letter, it is true that it kills. The Bible does kill. The Bible shows us that we're sinners and that we're under the wrath of God and that we're subject to hell. It should drive the sword home, right into the very vitals of our hearts, that we're in deep and terrible trouble.

But it is God the Holy Spirit who gives life. Now how does He give life? Well, He gives life through the Word of God. The Word of God is the Sword of the Spirit. It not only convicts us of sin, which is the beginning point in our path to salvation. But it also convicts us of the fact that through Christ we can be saved of our sins. It convicts us of the fact that we desperately need this salvation, ere we spend eternity in hell. The Holy Spirit, through the Word of God, convicts us that God is holy and perfectly just, and sin is a terrible thing in the eyes of God.

The Word of God is the means by which God effects our salvation. Remember what Ephesians 5 declares? That we are washed with the washing of the Word. It is the Word of God that is identified with the Lord Jesus Christ, who went to the cross for our sins. And it is God the Holy Spirit who takes that Word and applies it to our hearts. He cleanses us of our sins. But He does this through the written Word.

So check your life. If in any way you find a disdain for the written Word, if in any way you hold it on a little lesser level than anything else in the Bible, or let me put it in another way. If in any way you hold it equal to anything else in the world, then you know that the Bible is no longer the infallible Word of God to you. It is something else. And that means that in all probability you have another Gospel than the true Gospel.

Now another verse that was offered for an understanding is Hebrews 13:8. We read there, "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and today, and forever." Now this verse, again, is frequently quoted by those who would want to say, "After all, Jesus healed all kinds of people during His day. And since He is the same today, we would expect that He would heal people from their illnesses today." Or, "He will do other works of miracles today, even as He did then."

Now the Bible isn't saying here in this passage that Jesus' program is the same today as it was yesterday and forever. The details of His program will change from time to time. Jesus Christ is the same. He is Eternal God. He never changes. He's immutable. He is Eternal God. But His program changes.

Now in the days of Noah, did he do miracles? We don't read of any. Jesus Christ is the same. He existed then, too. Did He heal any lepers in the Old Testament? He healed 10 of them, just like that. Well, He did heal Naaman the Syrian. That was all. And there were many many lepers in the Old Testament. Jesus is the same. His program is different.

For 400 years, from the days of Malachi and Zechariah, until John the Baptist was born, there was absolute silence. And yet the Bible was not complete at that time. Was Jesus the same? Yes, He was the same but His program was different. You see, the fact that Jesus did something back when doesn't mean He's going to do the same thing today. His program will change from time to time.

If you are going to say that Jesus healed 2000 years ago, and therefore He heals today, then you're saying that His program is the same today as it was then. And then I should be able to go to Jerusalem and find the God-man Jesus still teaching over there. But He isn't there, because His program is different. He had completed that aspect of His program and had left this earth and had gone to be with the Father. And so His program is changing, depending on what God has in view.

And it will continue to change. Today the Gospel is still going to every nation. The Bible teaches that God's program will change again. There will be a brief period before Christ returns when the Gospel is silenced all over the world. Well, Jesus is the same. He's absolutely the same. He doesn't change. But His program will change, as God gets His preordained work done.

And then we have a last question concerning Jude 20. "But you, beloved, build yourselves up on your most holy faith. Pray in the Holy Spirit." "Pray in the Holy Spirit." Now who is the Holy Spirit. He is Eternal God. He is Eternal God Himself.

Now when we become saved, we enter into God. "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus." We are washed in the Holy Spirit. We enter into God Himself, whatever God means by that kind of language. And I'm not able to explain all of this, because I can't understand God that well. But I know that God uses this intimate and wonderful language to indicate the precious relationship we realize with God when we are born again. When we pray in the Holy Spirit, it means that as children of God who are in Christ, we are communing with God our Father, in whom we dwell. It's this marvelous oneness that exists in the life of the believer in relationship to God Himself.

The fact is, in Romans 8 we read that the Holy Spirit takes our incomplete prayers, our prayers that we hardly know how to pray, and brings them perfectly before the throne of grace, because we belong to Him. As a born again believer, if we are communing with God, we are praying in the Holy Spirit.

This is the only way that we can pray to God, if we're really going to commune with Him.

Well, thank you for those good verses. They're all excellent verses that teach wonderful truths from the Word of God. We must be carefully, however, that we read them in the light of the whole Bible.

Did Moses Physically Die in Jude 9? (278A)

CALLER: Concerning Moses' death, did he die, or was he raptured?

HC: Our caller has raised a question concerning the problem of Moses. Did he really die, or was he raptured?

Well, let's go back to Deuteronomy. And there we read in very clear language that he died. Let me just turn to that a moment. Deuteronomy 34:7: "Moses was 120 years old when he died. His eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated. And the people of Israel wept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days. And the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended."

Or verse 5, which is even more plain: "So Moses, the servant of the Lord, died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the Lord. And He buried him in the valley of the land of Moab opposite Beth-peor. No one knows the place of his burial to this day."

So the Bible is crystal clear that Moses died, and God buried him. But now we are amazed to find, in the Gospel of Matthew, that on the Mount of Transfiguration there are two men from Heaven who speak to Jesus about His coming death. One is Moses, and the other is Elijah.

Now of course we're not a bit surprised to see Elijah, because we read in the Bible that he ascended into Heaven in a whirlwind. And therefore he did not die. He went right into Heaven. And certainly he must have received his glorified body as he went into Heaven. Otherwise he could not appear in Heaven.

But Moses is there also. In the Book of Jude, however, we have a little more information about what might have happened to Moses, why he is in Heaven. We read in Jude, in verse 9, "But when the archangel Michael, contending with the devil, disputed about the body of Moses, he did not presume to pronounce a reviling judgment upon him, but said, 'The Lord rebuke you.'"

Now here we have a strange statement about a dispute between Satan and the archangel Michael concerning the body of Moses. I think we can speculate and read between the lines. In view of the fact that Moses comes from Heaven on the Mount of Transfiguration exactly like Elijah, namely, in his glorified body, it would seem that the archangel Michael was sent to resurrect the body of Moses, so that Moses could also be in Heaven in his resurrected body, so that while he died in the land of Moab, and truly was buried, yet he did not remain there. God later on resurrected him so that he appears in Heaven with Elijah.

Now the interesting sidelight to this is that when Jesus was on earth, He had particularly three disciples who were very close to Him. And you know their names, of course, Peter and James and John. Truly there were twelve disciples, but these three were particularly close to Him. They are the three, for example, that went with Him when he was on the Mount of Transfiguration. They are the three who were with Him in the Garden off Gethsemane, at the time that Jesus was beginning to suffer for our sins.

And so the Bible also records, therefore, about three men who are in Heaven in their bodies. There is Enoch, that we read about in Genesis 5, who at the age of 365 "was not because God took him." And then there is Elijah, who ascended into Heaven in a whirlwind, in the presence of a chariot of fire. And then there is Moses, who also apparently was resurrected, because we see him on the Mount of Transfiguration. Again God has three men in Heaven, even as He was very close to three men on earth here.

Well, I don't know what the significance of that is, except that it's an interesting sidelight to this question of Moses' body.

REVELATION

Why is the Tribe of Dan Missing in Revelation 7? (010B)

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. My question deals with the twelve tribes of Israel, as originally named in the Book of Genesis, Chapter 8. My question concerns Chapter 7 of the Book of Revelation, where it speaks of the twelve,000 representing each of the twelve tribes, with the exclusion of Dan and the inclusion of Manasseh, which differs from the original twelve. I was just wondering what happened to Dan, and why is Manasseh substituted?

HC: And you might ask one other question: Why is Ephraim not named, and Joseph is named instead of Ephraim?

CALLER: Well, I was going back to the original. Joseph was one of the original twelve, and at one point Ephraim and Manasseh were mentioned. Levi was left out because he became a priest and he was restored back in Revelation. But the only difference in Revelation 7, from the tabulation in Genesis, is Manasseh in place of Dan. And so I know there have been these changes along, and I was wondering what happened to Dan.

HC: Well, let me say this. First of all, in every naming of the tribes, you will always find that one is not named. Sometimes it will be the tribe of Simeon that's not named. Sometimes it's the tribe of Levi that's not named. In this case it's the tribe of Dan that's not named. And the reason for this is that there were actually thirteen tribes. The half-tribe of Ephraim and the half-tribe of Manasseh eventually become noted as full tribes, but God is constantly emphasizing the number twelve. And therefore, in every enumeration you'll find twelve tribes named. That's the first reason, because God is focusing on the number twelve, which is a symbolical number to indicate the fullness of God's people, or the fullness of the church, even as in the New Testament we have twelve apostles.

Now secondly, both the tribe of Ephraim and the tribe of Dan (and Dan especially, which I'll speak more about in a moment), but in one sense Ephraim and Dan were twins, in that they were the locations of the original worship of other gods.

When the ten tribes separated from the tribe of Judah in 931 BC, upon the death of Solomon, then wicked Jeroboam was their king. He raised up altars at Bethel, which was in the area of the tribe of Ephraim, and at Dan, which was in the area of the tribe of Dan. And this was a grievous sin in the eyes of God. Jeroboam is faulted again and again in the Bible for this. And so these two tribes became notorious for the fact that they were the locations of this original worshipping of other gods, or of false worship, actually.

Now Dan is especially emphasized in the Bible as a figure of Satan himself, very surprisingly. And I don't know why Dan was named in this way, but it's interesting that in the twelve apostles there was one who was a servant of Satan, and that was Judas. And so it was in the Old Testament that God, for His own particular purposes, provided a figure of Satan amongst the tribes. And we find in Genesis 49:17, "Dan shall be a serpent in the way, a viper by the path." Now a serpent or a viper (that's a figure of Satan himself) "that bites the horse's heels so that its rider falls backward." I suppose that Dan, or Judas, in a real sense is a figure of any false prophets that come out of the church. They were amongst us, and then they came out and began to inveigle the congregation into trying to get them to accept another gospel. And this is where the greatest deceit comes from, right out of the body of believers.

What is the "First Resurrection" in Revelation 20:5? (029E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: When it says in Revelation 20:5 that the rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed, and this is the first resurrection, if this is the first resurrection, what actually is that, and what is the second resurrection? I don't understand that.

HC: Well, put a period after "and the rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed." You see, in verse 4 it's saying that when the believers are martyred, they actually do not die. Their bodies went into the grave, that is true. But in their essential being, in their inner essence, they went to live and reign with Christ in Heaven.

But the rest of the dead, the unsaved, when they die, they die. Their bodies go into the grave, and their souls go down into Hades to await judgment. And they will be resurrected on the Last Day, along with the bodies of the believers. But they don't have this privilege of going into God's presence when they die. Then it starts out and explains what the first resurrection is. Now the reason for this is that these martyrs have experienced the first resurrection. Now in Ephesians 2:1 it says, "And you who were dead He made alive." And this is repeated in a number of places in the Bible. Now if we were dead and have been made alive, then in some way we must have experienced the resurrection.

In fact, in Ephesians 2:6 it says, "We have been raised with Christ," talking about born again believers. Now actually, Christ rose from the grave. He was resurrected. And if we have been raised with Him, then we have experienced the resurrection in some fashion.

And when we read Revelation 20, it says that those who have experienced the first resurrection are blessed. Well, that's the born again believers. They are holy. Well, we are the only holy people. We are the saints. It says that we are priests of God. That's what the Bible says of us, that we are a holy priesthood. It says? "Over them the second death has no power." That's hell. And only over the born again believers can it be said that hell has no power. So all of these statements all fit together.

Now actually, we experience the first resurrection at the moment we are saved. In our soul, that real part of us, that is, our inner spiritual essence that leaves the body at death, we, as it were, instantaneously died and were resurrected a brand new soul. That's why the Bible says we're new creatures, or we're born again. That's why at the moment of death, in our soul we can instantaneously go into the presence of Christ without any further change, because we've already experienced the resurrection. In our bodies we can't go to Heaven because our bodies first have to experience the resurrection. And they'll go to be with Christ when they have been raised.

And so these martyrs were able to go into the presence of Christ because they had experienced the first resurrection when they were saved.

The Mark of the Beast in Revelation 20:4 (143E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: In Revelation 20:4, is the mark of the beast on the forehead and on the hand to be taken literally, or is it symbolical?

HC: The question that is raised is concerning Revelation 20:4. What is the beast named there, and what does it mean when it speaks of those who have the beast's mark on their foreheads or their hands?

CALLER: Now in Revelation 13 and in Revelation 17 it speaks about a beast coming up out of the sea with seven heads and ten horns. And that beast is worshipped as God by the unsaved. It is intimately related to the dragon, who is Satan himself. And so we know that the beast is a reference to the kingdom of Satan, or to Satan himself. You can't have a kingdom without a king, nor a king without a kingdom. And the beast and the dragon are references to Satan himself, or to his kingdom.

Now all of the peoples of the world are slaves of Satan. Now when a man had a slave, that slave was marked in some fashion. It either was branded, or his ear was clipped, or whatever. And here it speaks about those who have the mark of the beast, that is, the mark of the kingdom of Satan on them, on their foreheads or their hands. That is, their wills, represented by their hands, have been sold out to Satan. And their foreheads means their intellects, their minds, have been sold out to Satan. They are totally the slaves of Satan.

You see, they are unsaved. They cannot come to life. But if we do not have the mark of the beast, that is, if we are not identified with the dominion of Satan, which of course occurs when we become born again, then to be martyred, or to die, is no victory for Satan. We simply leave our body and go to live and reign with Christ in Heaven as a soul being. And this is what is in view here. "I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded." These are disembodied souls.

CALLER: Yes. Thank you so very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

"He That Hath an Ear" in Revelation 2 and 3 (206C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. In Chapters 2 and 3 of Revelation Christ repeats seven times the words, "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit sayeth unto the churches." Would you comment on how this is being fulfilled during our time? And I'll take the answer over the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you for calling. Good night.

The question is raised concerning a verse that is found quite a number of times in Revelation 2 and 3: "He who has an ear to hear, let him hear what the Spirit is saying." Now what is God talking about here?

You see, back in Isaiah 6, maybe I should go all the way back there, God has commissioned Isaiah to bring the Gospel. Isaiah was a prophet who prophesied to Israel in about 700 BC.

And after He had commissioned Isaiah, then it says, "Then Isaiah heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then I said [that is, Isaiah], Here am I. Send me." And notice the strange language that God uses in Isaiah 6:9, "And He said, Go and say to this people, Hear and hear, but do not understand. See and see, but do not perceive. Make the heart of this people fat and their ears heavy, and shut their eyes lest they see with their eyes and hear with their ears and understand with their hearts and turn and be healed."

Now what's God saying here? You see, Israel of old was typical of those who had been the custodians of the Gospel, or the ones who have heard the Gospel for many many years. But Israel had not responded to the Gospel. Israel had gone its own sinful way. And they in fact were not ready to go to the Lord by faith. They wanted a gospel that they could feel, that they could look at. It was easy for them to go after Baal worship. And so today there are many who go to the Bible, not by faith, but they go trying to analyze everything, and make everything come out logically. And therefore they go to the Bible and discover that it's got a lot of contradictions in it. They discover that there are a lot of statements that don't appear to make any sense at all.

What has happened? God has blinded them. They have eyes, but they see not. They have ears, but they hear not. They in their stubborn, egotistical arrogance are going to come to God their way, rather than God's way. But there and there in the nation of Israel of old, as well as in the population, or the peoples of the world today, there are those who hear the Gospel and they are exercised by it to the point where they come broken before God and admit their spiritual bankruptcy. And they begin to cry out to God for mercy. They begin to place their trust, they find they have a trust in their heart that Christ is their Savior, and how desperately they want Him to be Lord of their life.

What has happened? God has given them ears to hear. God has opened their spiritual ears, as they have come in faith to God. And so now the Bible becomes the living Word for their lives, that guides them into all truth. And so when this statement is offered repeatedly in Revelation 2 and 3? "He who has ears to hear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches," God is saying, effectively, are you one who has had your spiritual ears opened? Have you come to the Bible by faith? Have you come to God with a broken and a contrite heart, with no pretensions of your own, no personal ego of any kind, ready to just implicitly trust and be obedient to what God declares in His Word? Then you're going to hear what God says. You're going to hear how the Holy Spirit has information for you from the Word of God.

But if you come to the Word of God like you come to any book, that you're going to analyze it and try to discover where God has made His mistakes, you're going to find that there's no truth there that satisfies your soul. You're going to find that it's an offensive book, as it talks about a blood theology, as it talks about eternal damnation, as it talks about the fact that man is nothing, that he's a sinner that deserves the wrath of God. You're going to be offended, and you're going to remain in your blindness.

So there is the question, you see. Those who have ears to hear are those who come to the Word by faith.

Understanding Revelation 20:4-5 (212C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question. In Revelation 20, verse 4, does this refer to all of us who are raised with Christ during the time between the cross and the Rapture or only those who are beheaded or martyred for Christ's sake? And also, does the last sentence of verse 5 refer to verse 5, or does it refer back to verse 4? May I take my answer over the air?

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you very much. Good night.

Let me refer to the second question first. Let's read Revelation 20:4-5, where we have this statement: "Then I saw thrones. And seated on them were those to whom judgment was committed. I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded for their testimony for Jesus and for the Word of God, and who had not worshipped the beast or its image, and had not received its mark on their foreheads or their hands. They lived again and reigned with Christ a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were ended. This is the first resurrection."

Now you must remember that in the original Greek, in which this was written, there was no punctuation of any kind. There were no periods. Nor were there capital letters. All the letters were the same and there was no punctuation. Now the translators have chosen to put a period after "This is the first resurrection," and end the verse at that point.

Actually, when we study the context very carefully, "This is the first resurrection" belongs, in a real sense, to verse 6, where it says, "Blessed and holy is he who shares in the first resurrection." It is describing, in verse 6, what is the first resurrection. But it also relates to verse 4, because it explains why these people who had been beheaded in their soul existence continued to live and reign with Christ.

Well, the reason that they continued to live and reign with Christ is that they had experienced the first resurrection at the time that they were born again. Their souls had been resurrected with Christ. Therefore they did have eternal life already. And so there was no way that they could die in their souls.

Now in this context (and this gets to the first question), where it talks about those who had been beheaded, it is concentrating on these who were martyred because these are especially the victims of Satan. Actually, the principle that is spoken of here applies to all believers, in the whole period from Adam all the way to the present time. Anyone at all who was saved, at the moment of death, because at the time he was saved he experienced the resurrection of his soul, immediately leaves his body and goes to live and reign with Christ in Heaven. That is a first principle of what salvation is.

But in this context it is especially speaking about those who have been beheaded, because the context of Revelation 20 is concerned with Satan, the fact that Satan has been bound. He cannot deceive the nations. That is, he cannot keep people in his prison-house as the Gospel is being proclaimed to them. They will be set free, and they'll come forth from every nation.

But God is teaching that while Satan has been bound so that his house can be plundered of his victims, he still is able to martyr. He still goes about as a roaring lion He is able to persecute

Now the question is raised, really, Is Satan, after all then, somewhat victorious? While his house is able to be plundered, is he really not winning the victory anyway? Because look at all of these who are being martyred. And God effectively is saying, No, Satan hasn't won anything, because look where these martyrs went. They didn't go into doom and gloom. They, because they have experienced the first resurrection at the time they were saved, left their bodies and simply changed their residence. They went to live and reign with Christ. And our souls go into Heaven to live and reign with Christ.

And so there was no victory for Satan at all. He hadn't won a thing.

Thank you for that question.

The Two Beasts in Revelation 13 (234B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question on the thirteenth chapter of the Revelation. I was wondering if you could explain what the difference is between the two beasts. And I'd also like to know if you could elaborate on the last verse of the chapter, about the beast's number being 666.

HC: The question is raised concerning the two beasts of Revelation 13. What is the difference between them? What do they signify? And then, the question is asked also about the number 666 that is found in the last verse of the chapter.

The first beast comes out of the sea. It has ten horns and seven heads, with ten crowns or diadems upon its horns, and a blasphemous name upon its head. And it "was like a leopard, its feet were like a bear's, and its mouth was like a lion's mouth. And to it the dragon gave his power and his throne and great authority." Now this is our first clue, that really teaches who this first beast is. "The dragon gave to it his power and his throne and great authority."

Now the dragon is Satan. Again and again in the Bible God speaks about the dragon as Satan, or Satan as the dragon. And the beast therefore would be the kingdom of Satan, totally synonymous with Satan himself. But it is the kingdom of Satan as it is found in the world throughout time. The seven heads refer to the rule of Satan throughout time.

In Revelation 17 we find another reference to this beast, and we find in verse 8: "The beast that you saw was and is not, and is to ascend from the bottomless pit and go to perdition." It says that "the seven heads are seven mountains, or hills on which the woman is seated. They are also seven kings, five of whom have fallen. One is and the other is not yet come. And when he comes, he must remain only a little while." Therefore, it's speaking already in the past tense of seven of the heads, five of the seven heads representing kings who had already reigned. Now this simply is indicating that it is going all the way back into time, wherever the kingdom of Satan has been. It is the rule of Satan as it is found in the earth.

Now the ten horns more particularly relate to the rule of Satan right at the end of time, and tie very closely, incidentally, into the second beast, or in some respects to the second beast, as I'll show in a moment. But the ten horns do refer to the rule of Satan at the end of time because again, when we read Revelation 17, it says in verse 12, "And the ten horns that you saw are ten kings, who had not yet received royal power. But they are to receive authority as kings for one hour, together with the beasts."

Now the interesting thing is that in the Book of Daniel God makes reference to ten horns, out of which the little horn comes. And when we look at the Book of Daniel carefully, we find that in this reference to the ten horns and the little horn, it is really speaking about the false prophets, or it's talking about the church itself. The fourth beast spoken of in Daniel seven has ten horns: "And I considered the horns. And behold, there came up among them another horn, a little one, before which three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots. And behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things."

"Eyes like a man" is a figure of speech speaking about prophets. If we tie that back into Isaiah 29:10, we can see this. Now the beast, therefore is the kingdom of Satan that rules throughout time, although particularly the period that's in view here is the whole New Testament period, the forty-two months of Chapter 5. And in verse 3 it says, "One of its heads seems to have had a mortal wound," indicating that at the cross Satan was dealt a death blow. The kingdom of Satan was dealt a death blow because of Christ's victory on the cross.

But yet, "Its mortal wound was healed. And the whole earth followed the beast with wonder." You see, the kingdom of Satan still goes on, even though the destruction of Satan and all the wicked was guaranteed because of Christ's work at the cross. Yet the kingdom goes on.

Then in verse 4 it says, "Men worshipped the dragon, for he had given his authority to the beast, and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like the beast and who can fight it?" Now this beast is what unsaved man is totally involved in. Any unsaved man is a worshipper of the beast, a worshipper of the kingdom of Satan, a worshipper ultimately of Satan himself.

Now in verse seven it says that this beast was allowed to make war on the saints and to conquer them. And this of course is pointing to the end of time, just before Christ returns, when Satan will be able to silence the Gospel.

Now beginning in verse 11 it speaks about a second beast coming out of the earth, that had "two horns like a lamb, and it spoke like a dragon." Now the minute it says that it spoke like a dragon, we know that again it is totally Satan related.

Now this beast is Satan in his religious rule, particularly, as he works through false prophets and false christ. "Two horns like a lamb." You see, he appears like Christ Himself. Christ is the Lamb that was slain. Remember, in II Corinthians 11 it speaks about Satan going about as an angel of light. Well, that's another figure that is tied in with this other beast that rose up out of the earth. The phrase "out of the sea" or "out of the earth" is a figure relating to hell itself. Hell is sometimes spoken of as the heart of the earth, or the heart of the seas.

Now this beast works great signs, "even making fire come down from Heaven to earth in the sight of men. And by the signs which it is allowed to work in the presence of the beast, it deceives those who dwell on earth, bidding them make an image for the beast which was wounded by the sword and yet lived. And it was allowed to give breath to the image of the beast, so that the image of the beast should even speak, and to cause those who would not worship the image of the beast to be slain."

Now you see, Satan, as he controls the minds of unsaved men, normally does not show himself to be of any life, or the giver of any life, or of having any life characteristics. A political kingdom ultimately is a fairly dead kind of a kingdom. It exists, and then it doesn't exist. It has no supernatural power.

But when Satan comes through his emissaries, false prophets and false christ, who come with signs and wonders, as predicted in Matthew 24:24, as he comes through occult activity of one kind or another, this makes the worship of Satan far more glorious and marvelous. Now of course those who are worshipping him don't understand that they're worshipping him. They are deceived, because Satan is the great deceiver. But nevertheless, ultimately they are worshipping him.

And they give breath to the image of the beast. They make the worship of the kingdom of Satan a live venture, as if through this there is a vital, energetic eternal relationship with the god that they are worshipping failing to realize that their god is Satan, and that he is doomed to eternal damnation.

Now those who worship the beast are spoken of in verse 18 as having a number, the number of man. Now as I've said before perhaps, in the King James Bible the translation is, in this instance, a poor translation. In your King James Bible you'll find that it says, "It is the number of a man." But the word that is used here, the Greek word, is the identical word that is used in the Bible repeatedly where it speaks of Christ being the Son of Man. Now under no circumstance would that be translated the "Son of a Man," because Christ under no circumstance was the Son of a man. He was the Son of Man. He was of mankind. In other words, He was a human being.

And here also the same word is used, so it would have to mean that it is the number of man, the number of mankind, the number of the human race. In other words, anyone at all who is unsaved symbolically has the number 666 on his forehead. It is the number assigned to an unsaved man, who is destined for hell, because he is a slave of Satan.

Now this number originally had its beginning in Zechariah 13, or at least it's referred to there, where it says in verse 8: "Two-thirds I will cut off and destroy, but one-third" And it goes on to speak about the redemption of the one-third. The number two-thirds, if written as a decimal, is .666666. And if we just use the first 3 numbers, we get 666.

And there are at least two illustrations in the Bible where this is put forth. We read about David, when he defeated the Moabites, that he caused them to lie down in three lines. Two of the lines he put to death. One line he spared, and they served him. David there was a type of Christ as Messiah, the two-thirds a figure of those who are under the judgment of God, the one-third a figure of those who are saved.

In II Kings 1 we read of Elijah, that he was sent for by the wicked king of Israel. And a company of men came to take him, and he called down fire from heaven, and they were destroyed. A second company of men came to take him, and he called down fire from heaven, and they were destroyed. A third company of men came to take him, and plead for mercy, and they were spared. Again we have two-thirds being destroyed, one-third being spared.

Well, there, just very quickly, is an outline of some of the ideas presented in Revelation 13.

The Identity of the 144,000 in Revelation 7:4 and 14:1 (260D)

CALLER: Could you tell me who the 144,000 are that John is writing about in Revelation?

HC: The question: that is raised concerns itself with the 144,000. The 144,000 are spoken of in two places in the New Testament: one in Revelation 7 and the second in Revelation 14.

Now in Revelation 14 they are shown to us to be those who have been redeemed from earth. They are those, we read in Revelation 14, who are chaste. This is verse 4: "They have not defiled themselves with women." In other words, they're the perfect bride of Christ. Their sins have been covered by the blood of Christ, and they stand before God as if they had never sinned. And they have been redeemed from mankind: "and no lie was found in their mouth." In other words, when we are unsaved we are slaves of Satan, who is the father of lies. And once we are saved, our sins are covered and we're like those who have never never lied. And this is talking about all born again believers.

Now the number 144,000 is used because God frequently uses numbers symbolically. The number twelve is symbolical of the fullness of God's program. And here He's talking about the number of believers, the fullness of believers.

Sometimes He uses it as twelve plus twelve. And so we have the twenty-four elders in Revelation. Sometimes He uses it as twelve times twelve. And so we have the 144,000. Sometimes He uses it as twelve times twelve times twelve. And so we have the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, which is in size 12,000 stadia by 12,000 stadia by 12,000 stadia. And in the Holy City Jerusalem, which is the fullness of all believers, we have twelve foundations, we have twelve gates, and we have walls that are 144 cubits thick. The whole picture, you see, is symbolical.

And so with the 144,000. It is the fullness of all believers. Now in Revelation 7 they are spoken of as twelve tribes of Israel, because in the Bible God repeatedly speaks of the true believers as being the true seed of Abraham, whereas the blood descendants of Abraham are not necessarily Israel. The true Israel of God are those who are the believers in the Lord Jesus Christ. Read Galatians 3 particularly, and you will see this.

Well, thank you for that question.

When Was Revelation Written? (483B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, Brother Camping. One question I'd like to ask, or two. The first one is, was Revelation written when the Bible was complete as we know it today?

HC: Was Revelation written (that is, the book of Revelation) when the Bible was complete as we know it today? Based on the testimony of the Bible itself, we can know absolutely that the book of Revelation was written as the last book of the Bible, and the last chapter of the Bible would be Chapter 22. It was the last written Word of God. If anything else was written after that, whatever the nature of it may have been, no matter how holy it would have appeared to be, it would have to immediately be discounted as the Word of God because it would be in violation of Revelation 22.

For example, there are theologians who speculate (and I underscore the word speculate) that maybe the Gospel of John was written after Revelation. Well, that's sheer nonsense. That cannot be. That is speculation that is based on no regard at all for the authority of the Word of God. There's no way that any of the books of the Bible could have been written after the Revelation. Had they been, they would never have appeared in the Bible.

CALLER: Any kind of a miracle now is just as impossible, according to the Bible?

HC: Any possibility of an articulated word of God outside of the Bible is impossible, because God says we're not to add to the words of this book. And we know that the miracles were done because God was given historical parables illustrating the nature of salvation. But the rule of salvation is that we walk by faith, not by sight. And when we study the Bible to look for any information at all that might relate to miracles, particularly near the end of time, in every case without exception we find that any language always relates to Satanic activity. And that is terribly ominous.

CALLER: You also made some statements about predestination. Does that mean that people that God didn't plan to save aren't going to be? Or does it mean that God knows who will turn to Him and who won't?

HC: That's a good question. Does God know who will turn to Him and who won't, and those who will turn to Him He predestinates to save? Or does God actually plan whom He is to save, whether they want to turn to Him or not?

Now there's a big school of thought of those who say that God knew who would turn to Him, and these are the ones that He predestinated. Now let's examine that idea for a moment. In Ephesians 2:1-3 God indicates that those—He's speaking there about those who did become saved, therefore they would have been those who were predestinated in some sense—now He describes them before they were saved. And let me read these three verses very carefully, because this tells us about our condition before we were saved:

"And you hath He quickened (that is, He made alive), who were dead in trespasses and sins." Dead! Now that's a pretty heavy word.

"Where in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience." That is, it's talking here about according to Satan's activity.

"Among whom also we all had our conduct in times past, in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind, and were by nature the children of wrath even as others." Now this is describing people who eventually became saved.

Now how could these dead people, spiritually dead slaves of Satan, lusting after sin just like the rest of the world, why would they be inclined to accept the Gospel or to turn to the Lord Jesus Christ? They would have no more desire to do this than anybody else, because they're just as sinful as anyone else. They're just as dead as anyone else.

So the idea that God knew who would turn to Him is contrary to what the Bible allows. That's an impossibility. Secondly, if we would hold that idea, that God knew who would turn to Him, then we have a salvation that is based on works plus grace. In other words, I took the first step. I did a good work by turning to the Lord Jesus Christ. God recognized that, and then He applied His grace to my life and completed my salvation. And so we are partners in salvation, Christ did His work and I did my work. And that is flatly contradictory to the Gospel of grace. "By grace ye have been saved, not of works, lest any man should boast." The moment that we tie in even the least smidgen of our own merits or works into our salvation, then we have to stand before God by our works and we're going to end up in hell for sure. Either we're saved by God's grace or we're not saved.

And so on both of these counts that particular theological idea cannot pass Biblical validation. The fact is, when God predestinated me or anyone else who has become saved, He saw me as a dirty rotten sinner. He saw me as someone who was spiritually bankrupt. He saw me as someone who would never turn to Him. But God inclined my heart and God gave me spiritual eyes so I began to see the sinfulness of my life, so that I would respond to the Gospel. And this is the way He saves everybody that He plans to save.

CALLER: What about in Revelation where it says, "I stand at the door and knock. And if any man opens the door I will come in to him and sup with him and he with me."

HC: Ah, yes. Now the question is, doesn't Revelation 3:20 say something different, because it says, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man hear My voice and open the door I will come in to him and will sup with him, and he with Me." Doesn't this teach conclusively that after all, it is up to mankind whether he wants to be saved or not, that Christ is simply standing at the door and knocking?

Well, the key phrase, the big phrase that is missed here is, "if any man hear My voice." Now look at verse 22: "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches." Well now, here is Lazarus in the tomb, the brother of Mary and Martha. And Jesus is outside of the tomb, knocking on the door of that tomb: "Lazarus, come forth, Lazarus, come forth." Well, Lazarus is dead. He can't hear Jesus. He's dead. Jesus could call like this forever and Lazarus wouldn't come forth. But Lazarus did come forth. Why did he come forth? Because God gave him ears to hear and a will to respond. And Lazarus did come forth. And so when Jesus knocks at our heart's door, as the Gospel call goes forth, only those to whom He gives ears to hear will open the door, because they recognize this is a call that must be obeyed.

In other words, it isn't my will that finally made the difference. It is because God inclined my heart and qualified me so that I would be saved. Now you see, this strips me of all ego or all self-congratulation. There's no way that I can take the slightest glory or the slightest credit for my salvation. I can never think, "Oh my, am I not a wonderful person, because look at me. I chose for Christ, while all my neighbors just continue in unbelief." Nonsense. I can't take one ounce of credit. All I can say is, "Oh God, how is it possible that You saved me when by nature I'm just as guilty a sinner as anyone else? How can it be? And oh Lord, if you saved me all I want to do is live out my life in thankfulness to Thee for what you have done for me."

CALLER: But even if you didn't want to be saved, you would be, because that's what He wants.

HC: Even if I did not want to be saved, I still would be saved, is the next question. And you are absolutely correct. By nature I don't want to be saved. There is no human being that wants to be saved. The Bible says in Romans 3, "There is none that seeketh after God." We all love our sin too much. We all like the idea that we think we're king on the throne of our life. We actually aren't. We're actually slaves of Satan. But we've been deceived by him. And there isn't one of us that wants to be saved.

But God begins to deal with us. The Father begins to draw us. And we become increasingly uneasy because of our sins, and we become concerned about Judgment Day and hell. And we begin to seek for answers. And we don't find our rest until we find our rest in the Lord Jesus Christ. In other words, God gives us the "want to."

CALLER: Thank you, Brother.

HC: Thank you for calling.

The Battle of Armageddon in Rev 16:16 (571A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have one question. It's about I Peter 5:7. It says, "casting all your cares upon Him because He careth for you." How do you go about doing this?

HC: How do we cast all our cares upon Christ? God really helps us know how to do this in Philippians 4:6. There God says, "Be careful [that is, be anxious] for nothing." All of the cares of this earth, they are what make us anxious. And He says, "Be careful for nothing. But in everything with prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, make your requests known unto God. And the peace of God that passeth understanding will keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus." There is the formula.

I have a care, I'm anxious. I'm anxious about a loved one, I'm anxious about a sin in my life, I'm anxious about what tomorrow will bring, I'm anxious about this, I'm anxious about that. And God says, come to the Lord with prayer and supplication. Now to supplicate before the Lord means that we don't come arrogantly, we don't come demanding of the Lord. We come as a suppliant, someone who begs the Lord, "Oh Lord, have mercy. I don't deserve this at all, what I'm asking for. But oh, Lord, in Thy gracious mercy, is it possible?" And we rest all this with Him.

Now notice it also says in Philippians 4:6, "with thanksgiving." At the same time that we come with our anxieties, with our cares to the Lord, as we abandon ourselves afresh to Him, we also thank Him for the salvation He has provided. We thank Him for keeping us through the day. We thank Him for the wonderful Savior He has provided, and all the other multitudinous things we can think of to thank Him for. And there are so many.

And then we have the promise, not that God will take the care away, or the anxiety away, but He will give us the peace of God. He will take the anxiety away, but the cause of the anxiety will remain. But we will be able to view that cause now with the peace of God that passes understanding.

CALLER: When I'm worried about things, I ask God to take this away, or give me the peace about it that He wants to give me, but I don't seem to get it. I just seem to wait around and get frustrated.

HC: The problem is that when we go to the Lord with our anxieties we bring them all to God, and we pour our hearts out to God. And then when we get off our knees, so to speak, and we finish praying, we take all those anxieties right back with us. We don't leave them with Christ.

Now the bottom line is that we don't trust Him, you see, sufficiently. We've talked to Him about it, and we've told Him all about it, and we know that He is Eternal God, who cares for us, and nothing happens except it's a part of His divine will, and He's given us promises that He will never leave us nor forsake us. But having known all this, we don't really trust Him. This is all a matter of faith, you see. We've gone through the motions, we've talked to the Lord about it, but we don't dare leave it there. And so a great part of our prayer has to be, "Oh Lord, strengthen my faith. Help me to trust all of these things to Thee."

And if you have your anxieties, if you've talked to the Lord about it and yet you have the anxieties, then you've got to begin to pray, "Oh Lord, forgive me for my faithlessness, that I don't really trust You. I've talked to You about it, but I don't trust You. And oh Lord, forgive me, and strengthen my faith that I will learn to leave them all with You."

CALLER: That really helps. Thanks a lot.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Could you explain to me Revelation 16:16?

HC: Revelation 16:16: "And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon." The question is, how are we to understand Revelation 16:16, which speaks about this Armageddon?

Now in verse 15 God gives us a clue as to when this takes place: "Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watches and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked and they see his shame."

Now any place in the Bible where God talks about coming as a thief is talking about Judgment Day; He's talking about the end of the world. We read in I Thessalonians 5:2, where God talks about coming as a thief, and then He says, "Sudden destruction will come upon them, and there is no escape." He's talking about Judgment Day.

In II Peter 3 God is talking about the destruction of the world, that the elements will melt with fervent heat, and He talks about this happening at the time that He comes as a thief. And so this is Judgment Day that's in view.

Now He's speaking here of the final wrath of God being poured out upon all of the wicked of the world, and He speaks of it as a battle. In verse 14 He is talking about the unsaved of the world, headed up by Satan. And they're gathered together to the Battle of that Great Day of God Almighty. That's Judgment Day. And God insists that this is so because of the next phrase, "Behold, I come as a thief."

You see, ordinarily when two nations are at war with each other, they go along, and they go along, fighting their skirmishes and their individual battles, and so on. And finally there is a final battle that ends the war. One nation has become decisively victorious, and the other nation is completely destroyed. And God of course is speaking here of the warfare that exists between the Kingdom of God on the one hand, headed up by Christ, and the kingdom of Satan on the other hand, headed up by Satan. This warfare has been going on.

But the end of this warfare is Judgment Day, when Satan is judged and all the wicked of the world are judged and removed into hell. And God speaks of this as a battle. And that is the Battle of Armageddon. God uses other language in Revelation 19, where He speaks about Christ coming on a white horse with His sword protruding from His mouth, which is the Word of God. And then He calls all the birds of prey to feed upon the corpses of the slain, that is, indicating that Judgment Day has come, and the wicked are destroyed. That is, they are removed into hell.

Now God uses the figure of Armageddon because the plains of Megiddo were a place where many decisive battles were fought. And particularly from the Biblical vantage point, this is pointing to the victory of the nation of Israel over the wicked Canaanites, headed up by Cicera, during the days of Judges 4 or Judges 5, when Cicera had 900 chariots of iron and the Israelites had none, but 10,000 of the Israelites marshaled together, and they brought great victory over Cicera and all his hosts. And this was in the plains of Megiddo. It was a type of Judgment Day itself.

CHAPTER 4 – CHARISMATIC ISSUES

GENERAL

The Laying On of Hands (240C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I do have one question, please. The laying on of hands, where is it referred to, and is it permissible today?

HC: All right. The question that's raised is concerning the matter of laying on of hands. Is that permissible today, and where is it referred to in the Bible?

Let me see if I can help you. I think one of the earliest places that we read about laying on of hands is back in Genesis 48. And there we read where grandfather Jacob is going to bless his two grandsons, the sons of Joseph. And Ephraim and Manasseh, the sons of Joseph, are in front of Jacob. And he puts his right hand on Ephraim and his left hand on Manasseh. And then he pronounces a blessing upon them.

Now this matter of laying on of hands is picked up later on in the Bible. We find, for example, in Acts 13, when the apostles are sent forth, that we read in verse 3, "Then after fasting and praying, they laid their hands on them and sent them off."

And when we tie these passages together, and incidentally, in another place we read where the apostle Paul admonished Timothy, "Don't be hasty in laying your hands" on this one or that one. And the implication from all of this is that in the laying on of hands, symbolically it's a representation of imparting a blessing. The blessing that was on Jacob was imparted to Ephraim and Manasseh. The blessing that was on the church in Jerusalem was imparted to these first missionaries, as they went forth.

It is not mandated in the Bible, it is not called for in the Bible. It has no value in itself. But it can symbolize, at any rate, the idea of the impartation of blessing.

CALLER: Is it wrong to be using it in healing today?

HC: In the case of healing, we must remember that, and the question really is: Is it incorrect or wrong to lay hands in connection with healing? Now the Bible does teach that God cares for us. He is the Creator of the world, and He upholds it by His power, and we are to pray for one another. And in James 5 it does speak about anointing someone with oil if they are ill, although the context would show, if we really developed that, that this anointing with oil was really a figure of bringing the Gospel to this one who was ill, and the healing that was looked for there was spiritual healing rather than physical healing.

Actually, it isn't God's purpose to guarantee healing for us, or to necessarily provide healing for us. He does heal. All healing comes from God. And ordinarily God does this because He is the Creator God, who cares for His universe. And if someone is ill, we have the privilege of going to the Lord to beseech the Lord on behalf of this one that is ill.

But insofar as laying hands on that person, I don't really know how this would symbolize anything particularly. I do believe that some of the apostles laid hands on those who were ill. I think that could be shown from the Bible, again with the idea of imparting blessing. But that miraculous healing of the Bible is something that is not typical for today.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Understanding the Name of Jesus (266B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hi, Mr. Camping. You've been talking a lot about the Trinity and so forth. And I noticed, as I've visited different church groups, some of the people's reactions to different things. They seem to be a little different. For example, with regard to our relationship to God and our relationship to Christ. And I've been kind of troubled about this at times, because I've become born again, since I have had this sense of sinfulness and I realize I've got to repent, that I have to turn away from sin, and so forth.

I think I've seen some spiritual growth in my life over the last couple of years. But as I've been around here and there, sometimes someone will come up to you and say something like, "Well, how's your relationship with Jesus?" or they'll say in a Bible study, "Well, we're getting to know Jesus better." And I go home that night, and sometimes the phrases kind of hit me kind of funny, because I guess maybe my background would make me think something like, "Well, let's see, I have a relationship with Jesus. But yet I have a relationship with God, if I know Him."

And sometimes this spills over into areas that people have asked you about. When I pray, it comes more naturally to say, "Oh, Lord," or "Father." And people say, "Isn't Jesus wonderful?" And I don't react to it emotionally like they do, you know? And I think to myself, "Yes, Jesus is wonderful, isn't He? He went to the cross." And I realize He endured the wrath of God for me. And yet I guess when I'm praying I react to the term God, and sometimes it seems like, when so many people speak to me, He's a friend or something. You know? And I guess there's a truth to that, but He's God, too, if you know what I mean. And sometimes I think, "Well, I don't react emotionally like that to Jesus." Is that my pride, that I won't want to react that way? Now I've got to really trust what the Bible says. The Bible says Christ is the Savior, and that's what I've got to believe, because the Bible says so.

HC: Yes, I follow you. In other words, the question you're really posing is, How are we to relate to this phenomenon today where there is so much emphasis placed upon Jesus? We have songs that say, "Jesus." It's almost as if there is something superstitious about the name Jesus.

CALLER: And then sometimes I just can't react to it in that kind of sentimental type of way.

HC: You know, we get on safe ground when we look at the scripture. Now here is the apostle Paul, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, speaking in Colossians 1:3: "We always thank God, the Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ, when we pray for you." Now immediately we see two things here. First of all, he puts the Father Number One. We pray to the father. The fact is, in I Corinthians 11 God teaches that the head of Christ is God. Now we can't understand that, but that's the Biblical language.

Okay. And here we find that we're to pray to the Father. And the fact is, I could refer to all kinds of passages like this, as for example, Ephesians 1:3: "Blessed be the God and Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us in Christ, with every spiritual blessing in heavenly places."

The second truth that shines through here is the statement, "The Lord Jesus Christ." Now the word Jesus is a perfectly good Biblical word: "Thou shalt call His Name Jesus, because He will save His people from their sins." But the word Jesus is not telling the whole story. There is also the word Lord here. And the word Lord indicates that He is the head of the Kingdom. He is the one who is not only the one who has saved us, but He is the head of the Kingdom that we belong to. And we are to recognize Him as head.

The word Christ means He is the Anointed One, that He has been anointed King by virtue of His redemption. Now this comes back to an observation you're making. There is a tendency on the part of some to put Jesus down on our human level, because Jesus was His human name. That was the name that was given Him by Mary and Joseph, Jesus. But He was the Christ.

Now they didn't give Him the name Christ. Christ is the Name that means Messiah. He was the Messiah of the Old Testament. And certainly they didn't give Him the Name Lord. But they were told to name Him Jesus.

Now a lot of people look upon Jesus as not much more than a friend, not much more than someone who was just a wonderful buddy to have around. And they fail to realize that the Lord Jesus is Eternal God, that He is King of kings and Lord of lords, that He is the Almighty Majesty. And we are to look upon Him with awe and reverence and trembling.

CALLER: I don't sort of envision Christ as the person who walked in Palestine 2000 years ago. He did do that then, but I tend to think of God as God Almighty, like you say, the Ruler of the universe. And it's easier for me to have that concept rather than the man as such, although He had to be a man, too.

HC: You see, this phenomenon is further encouraged by an altogether different question. And that is the pictures of Jesus. We have these pictures of Jesus, which are flatly contrary to what God teaches in Exodus 20, that we're not to have make any likeness of God. And yet the picture of Jesus conveys the idea of a benevolent individual, a compassionate man, a longsuffering man. And no picture could ever, ever convey the fact that the Lord Jesus is Eternal God Himself.

CALLER: You don't think there's too much of a problem, then, just stick with the Bible and try to just pray to God, because Christ is God Himself.

HC: Well, yes. We're always on safe ground when we follow the scriptures. Now Jesus was asked how to pray. And He says, "Pray thusly, Our Father, who art in Heaven."

CALLER: Now we should be thankful to Christ for saving us, so they'll say, "Thank you, Jesus, for saving us." It seems to come easier to me to say, "Thank you, Father, that Christ paid the price for my sins."

HC: I always wonder why people want to improve upon the scriptures. Why not follow the rules of the scripture? Why not follow what God has given us examples of? And then we know that we in the will of God. Now if we're going to formulate our own language and try to be more holy and more direct than what God indicates, well, who do we really think we are? And I wonder why men would want to do this.

CALLER: I thought I'd share that. I didn't know whether it was an unusual thing that I might have experienced. You know, you hear so many different opinions on things, you know. It's hard sometimes to separate your own pride from really wanting to respond to God.

HC: And you see, there's another factor here. Now God has very carefully given us His Word. And by praying to God the Father, in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and recognizing that it was the Father who so loved us that He gave His only-begotten Son, and so on, this cautions us that we do not make a caricature of the Lord Jesus Christ. We do not say things about Him that are not so. We just use the Biblical language.

He says, "I and the Father are one." Fine. "If you have seen Me, you have seen the Father." I don't understand that. I don't understand that. All I know is that it's so, because Jesus said so. Jesus and the Father are one, and yet the Lord Jesus prayed to the Father. He was not praying to Himself.

And when the Lord Jesus was on earth, dying for our sins, He was not in Heaven. The Father was in Heaven. Jesus left Heaven. He emptied Himself of His glory and came to earth, in order that He might pay for our sins. These are things we cannot understand.

CALLER: The same thing with the Holy Spirit, when we read about the Spirit. He's also Eternal God.

I appreciate your clearing that up for me. I worry about that sometimes.

HC: And incidentally, you mentioned the Holy Spirit. And there are those today who are making a caricature of the Holy Spirit. It's the "Holy Spirit" this, the "Holy Spirit" that, the "Holy Spirit" the other thing. And they are never talking about the Father. They are almost suggesting that nobody knew about the Holy Spirit until we came along.

Actually, we're only going to be on safe ground when we carefully read the Bible and let the Bible be our guide. And when the Bible tells us to speak of the Father, let's speak of the Father. And if the Bible is speaking of the Lord Jesus Christ, it's speaking of the Lord Jesus Christ. And let's just follow what the Bible says, even though much of it we cannot understand.

CALLER: There are so many books on this subject, on the Spirit, and so forth. When you start looking at all these, you can get pretty confused. I was thinking the other day, and I've heard you say, that it's better to just stick with the Bible. You don't get so confused.

HC: Yes.

Was that an Image of the Lord I Saw? (274B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I would like to ask you a question. This friend of ours took a picture. He was in an airplane. There were these two airplanes, and he was going to take a picture of this other airplane. And as he took the picture, this cloud got in the way, as he stopped the camera. And we have a photograph. When he developed it, I guess he didn't notice it, but there's a figure on a cloud. And it has a robe, and it's arms are stretched out. And my family and I have been looking at this picture and I was wondering if there are any scriptures about seeing figures, or images, or something. His arms are stretched out, and he's on a cloud. And this was taken up in the air, as he was taking a picture of another airplane.

HC: The question that is raised concerns the possibility that there might be an image of Christ or of God seen by man in some fashion. Our caller indicates that somebody took a picture while he was in an airplane, and when they developed the picture there is what appears to be a picture of a man with his arms outstretched.

Now incidentally, this phenomenon has been spoken about many, many times. There are certain pictures being circulated with this kind of a scene on them. First of all, we don't know whether those pictures are authoritative or not. People can do all kinds of things, you know, in the darkroom, to doctor up the slides, or doctor up pictures. And there's a tremendous amount of chicanery and deceitfulness going on. So I would never put any trust in any photograph. A photograph is no proof of anything in itself.

We can know that God Himself would not project anything like this. God has given us His Word. This is the revelation of God which we are to go to. And when He comes again, it will be on the clouds of glory, and every eye will see Him. There will be no mistake that it is Christ. It's the end of the world. The universe will be collapsing.

Now this does not mean, however, that Satan himself, who does break through the barrier between the supernatural and the natural through his occult powers, could not possibly do something like this. This is possible. There are those who say they have seen a cross here or there that just will not go away, for which there is no earthly, natural explanation. And so they believe that it is supernatural in some way.

Well, it's not going to be from God. It may be that Satan may do something like this, because Satan is always trying to get people to turn their eyes away from the Bible. If we begin to look for signs and wonders, then we are already on a path to discredit the Bible. The Bible no longer retains its authority that it should have as being the only divine Word of God. Now God does speak about Satan coming with signs and wonders, near the end of time. It doesn't speak about God coming with signs and wonders until Christ Himself appears on the clouds of glory, but that is the end of time. But prior to this nowhere in the Bible does it speak about God doing signs and wonders.

But it does speak in a number of places of Satan doing signs and wonders. In Matthew 24:24 we read, "False prophets and false christs will arise, with signs and wonders, to lead astray, if possible, even the elect." In Revelation 13 it speaks about the false prophet coming out of the earth, and he will come with signs, even making fire come down from heaven. We read in II Thessalonians 2 about the man of sin taking his seat in the temple. And in that connection it speaks of him coming with signs and wonders of falsehood.

And so all of these references refer to Satanic activity. And all of these references refer to the period of time just before Christ comes back, which is probably where we are today. And so if there is any kind of supernatural activity going on, it is not from Christ. It is from Satan, who comes with signs and wonders.

And therefore, as believers, we would not want to have any interest or anything to do with such activity.

Thank you for sharing that.

Do We Pray to the Father or to Jesus? (278D)

CALLER: Could you tell me how we pray? I was talking to one of my friends. I pray to my Father in Jesus' Name. She said she prays directly to Jesus. Could you help us out there?

HC: The question is raised: To whom should we pray?

Now in this area we have to be very very careful not to become wiser than God. We read the Bible, and we do find that there is a triune God. The word triune is not used, but the Bible speaks of God the Father, the Bible speaks of the Lord Jesus Christ, in whom dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily. In other words, He is eternal God in every sense of the word, and the Bible speaks of the Holy Spirit, that He is God.

And so we might think, well, since the Lord Jesus Christ went to the cross on our behalf, we really ought to pray to Him. He is the most dear and precious to us. And many people pray this way.

But we must remember that God had laid out the rules, and these we are to follow. Remember when the disciples asked, "Teach us to pray," what did Jesus say? "Lord Jesus, who are in Heaven"? No, He didn't say that did He? He said, "Our Father, who art in Heaven, hallowed by Thy Name."

Again, when we study the prayers that are offered, we read, for example, of the apostle Paul, who constantly is talking about his prayers. In I Thessalonians 1 it is typical. We read in verse 2, "We give thanks to God always for you all, constantly mentioning you in our prayers, remembering before our God and Father your work of faith and labor of love and steadfastness of hope in Our Lord Jesus Christ."

In other words, God is insisting that we pray to the Father. Now this is a remarkable thing, you know, because in I Corinthians 11 we read that the head of Christ is God. The Father is the essence of God in the highest possible way that we could think of God. Not that the Lord Jesus Christ is any less. But it is God the Father who sent the Son. It is God the Father in whose Name Jesus came.

If you read the Gospel of John, through Chapters 5,6,7,8, you will see that again and again Christ referred to the Father, and that He comes on His authority, and that the Father is everything. And it is to Him that we are to pray. And we don't want to get holier than the Bible. We don't want to say, "I know, but Jesus is God, too. And why can't we pray to Him?" Well, let's just be obedient to what God has laid down.

Now it's true that the deacon Stephen, at the moment that he was martyred (we read about this in Acts 7), he had a vision, in verse 55 of Acts 7: "And he, full of the Holy Spirit, gazed into Heaven and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God. And he said, 'Behold, I see the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God.'" And then he prayed, in verse 59, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit."

And so this is a very special illustration, in which Stephen is actually looking into Heaven, a very unusual situation. But that's not typical. Throughout the New Testament we find that we are to pray to the Father.

Now Jesus said, "Whatever you ask, you ask in My Name." In other words, we go to the Father in the Name of Jesus. And "in the Name of Jesus" means to go on the authority of Jesus. Effectively, Jesus is saying, "You can talk to the Father, you can have open access into the throne room of Eternal God. What a magnificent blessing and opportunity this is. And it's all made possible on My authority, because I paid for your sins at the cross. I made it possible that you might become right with God. You have been covered by My righteousness. And therefore you can talk with the Father."

And so this is why we pray, "Our Father." And then we pray, "for Jesus' sake," or "in the Name of Jesus," which is indicating that we are doing so on the authority of Christ.

Now nowhere in the Bible does it say that we pray to the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is Eternal God, who is active in the world, evangelizing the world amongst other tasks. He fills us in order that we might be qualified to be an evangelist, to be a prophet. But we don't pray to the Holy Spirit, even though He is Eternal God in every sense of the word. We pray to the Father.

Comments on Today's Church Scene (383B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have just been listening to you for a few weeks, and I don't know your feelings about this new charismatic movement that's going through the country, but it's somewhat confusing to me sometimes. And I just wonder what you do think about it, and what you feel about the tongues movement. You do believe in people being healed by God, don't you?

HC: Absolutely I do. No one becomes well except God makes them well. God cares for this world. He supports this world by His power. He is watching over this world. But I do not believe that miracles are being done as Jesus did them when He healed the ten lepers, or when He raised Lazarus from the dead. That's a different matter altogether.

CALLER: Well, yes, I know what you mean, although I've had people tell me that they have seen miracles somewhat to that degree. For instance, my sister-in-law, who has osteomyelitis, had some elders pray for her. And her foot was black, and she said it turned to its normal color at the time that they prayed for her.

HC: Well, let me just say this. The place where we find truth is in the Bible. Our minds are very deceptive. We can't trust what our minds tell us, nor can we believe everything that we hear. There is a tendency on our part to sometimes see things more hopeful than they really are. There is a tendency to exaggerate occasionally. I'm not saying that your sister lied to you or anything like that. All I'm saying is that the way we find truth is not by some kind of evidence out there. It's by what the Bible declares. And the Bible declares that Christ did not go to the cross to give us physical healing. The Bible does say that God upholds this world by His power, and therefore He does heal, if it happens to be His will. Lots of times it isn't His will, and people die of disease.

But God cares for unsaved people, and He cares for saved people. He cares for those who have been prayed over, and He cares for those who have not been prayed over. God is concerned about this world, and He does bring healing. But insofar as the miracles that Jesus did, they were very special in nature. They were instantaneous. He set aside the ordinary rules, the ordinary laws that govern the universe, so that instantaneously a man with a withered hand could have a whole hand.

Now that is not happening today. Instantaneously lepers could become well. And that's not happening today. Instantaneously Lazarus could come out of the grave. And that's not happening today

Secondly, we're living in a day when we're very near the end of time. All of the Biblical information points to this. And Christ warned, when we get near the end of time, that the church would be overrun with those who come with signs and wonders. In Matthew 24:24 Jesus declared, "False prophets and false christ will arise, with signs and wonders, to lead astray if possible even the elect."

The fact is, when we study the Bible we find no reference to signs and wonders near the end of time relating to true Gospel activity. All of the references, and there are a number of them, which relate to signs and wonders taking place near the end of time, are all Satanic in origin. And that's very ominous. That's very traumatic to read about.

If you look at Matthew 24:24, or II Thessalonians 2:8-10, or Revelation 13 or Revelation 16, you'll find in all four of these places references to signs or miracles. And in every case it has nothing to do with the activity of Christ in bringing the Gospel.

CALLER: Well, this is what's so confusing to me. We came from a really fundamental church, and when we moved from Arizona to California we still received the newsletter from our old church. And our pastor, in the last several newsletters that we've gotten, has really denounced, for instance, the new charismatic movement.

HC: Incidentally, on this program I don't like to talk about any congregation or denomination or movement. We'll just talk about what the Bible declares.

CALLER: Oh. Well, it's just confusing to me because of the fact that I know so many wonderful Christian people in this, and if we call these things Satanic, how can these people claim to be Christians? How can we say that it's of Satan? That's what I'm wondering. For instance, healing, or speaking in tongues, or I don't know all the other things that seem to be associated with this, although if you don't want to go into it it's all right. But it's very confusing to me.

HC: Let me see if I can help you. Remember earlier I said that we do not build doctrine by outside evidence. We build it by the Bible. Now you can look at many gospels and sects and cults, and so on, today. And you can find people who are lovely people, who are decent moral people, who are find citizens and who are very zealous for their cause. And if we would try to make a study of the gospel that they hold or the religion that they hold by their lives, by the good things they do, by their benevolent attitudes, and what have you, and their love for their fellow man, we would have to give their particular gospel or religion the very highest approval.

But you see, the test of the true Gospel is not in the lives of people we look at, because we can't look at a person's heart. Only God can look at a person's heart. The test of the true Gospel is, "What does the Bible say?"

Now the Bible indicates that it alone and in its entirety is the divine Word of God. In Revelation 22:18 & 19 we read, "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein. And if anyone takes away from the words of this book, I will take away his share in the book of life," and so on. In other words, God is indicating that we are to look at the whole Bible as the Word of God, and we're not to look at anything else as the Word of God.

That means that any gospel, regardless of how beautiful it may seem, or the people who are involved in it may appear to be, any gospel which believes that the Bible is the divine Word of God, but which also believes that there is another book or another source of divine truth, such as visions or voices or tongues, or whatever, is by definition another gospel rather than the true Gospel, because those who hold to that kind of a gospel are saying that there are at least two sources of divine truth. There is the Bible, and there is this other source over here.

Or any gospel which declares that only part of the Bible is the divine Word, and that there are parts of the Bible that are not to be looked upon as the divine Word, would also by definition be another gospel.

Now this is the way we have to decide what is the true Gospel. Any denomination or gospel or congregation of belief that one holds has to be understood in the light of, "How do they relate to the Bible? Is it alone and in its entirety the divine Word?"

Now we're living in a day right near the end of time, when the church – the churches, the denominations, the groups of believers as they are found throughout the world – is becoming increasingly lax in maintaining the authority of the Bible. The church is not being true to its responsibility to remain faithful. Now it's still the church of Jesus Christ. It still has a mandate to bring the Gospel. It's still represented, to use Biblical language, by a candlestick in Heaven. But it is beginning to rewrite the rules. It's rewriting the rules on divorce and remarriage. It's rewriting the rules on population control, and rewriting the rules on who has authority in the church, who may preach, and so on. And the church is rewriting these rules.

It's rewriting the rules insofar as what the Bible consists of. It's countenancing books that are called paraphrases of the Bible, which are not the Bible at all. It no longer is nearly as interested in a deep and urgent study of the Word of God. The church is increasingly interested in social activity, in music activity. Now music is fine in itself. Social activity is fine in itself. But God says, in Hosea 4:6, "Because you have rejected knowledge, I will reject you from being a priest before Me." In other words, we are turning away from the Word of God as being the final authority.

Now as part of the judgment on the church, or as part of God's bringing His wrath upon the church because of its activities, the Bible indicates, and all of this was planned and prophesied in the Bible, there's nothing that's happening that's out of control, or beyond what we could expect, that as we approach the end of time the church will be assaulted by those who come with these other gospels, and particularly those who come with gospels that feature signs and wonders. They'll come with a gospel that looks so much like the true Gospel that even the true believers would be deceived if this was possible. It talks about this in Matthew 24:24: "False prophets and false christ will arise, with signs and wonders, to lead astray, if possible, even the elect."

The elect are the true believers. Even they could be led astray if they were not held by Christ, because these who come as false prophets and false christ, in the Name of Christ, believing they are followers of Christ, come with a gospel that looks so much like the true gospel that even the elect would be deceived if possible.

And this is a judgment on the church, because the church is not remaining faithful. And ultimately this will result in the silencing of the Gospel. The day will come, and it's fast approaching, when God will take away from the churches and congregations and denominations and groups of believers, as we have known them throughout the New Testament period, the credential or the right to be the custodian of the Gospel.

The Gospel will be silenced. We're not to that point yet, but that time is coming.

Now because we live in this dynamic and interesting and also traumatic time, we have the experience of seeing the vision in the church. Let me illustrate this. Up until our generation, if we had lived, let's say, fifty years ago or one hundred years ago, or two hundred years ago, and we belonged to a congregation, the church members would have come into the fellowship of believers there, and ordinarily (there would have been a few exceptions, but ordinarily) they would have lived and died in that congregation. We would have believed they were children of God, or born again believers. And finally, when Mrs. Jones or Mr. Smith died, we would all be very happy in our sadness that our dear friend had gone home to be with the Lord, that finally he is rejoicing with Christ in Heaven. And this would have been a normal experience.

We, however, are living in a day when the church is being assaulted by these other gospels (and there are many of them), so that anyone at all in the congregation who is not a born again believer and according to everything we read in the Bible, there is no congregation, there is no denomination, there is no church, no group of believers at any time in history that consisted altogether of born again believers. Even the disciple band did not consist entirely of born again believers. The churches of Asia Minor, in Revelation 2 and 3, did not consist entirely of born again believers. And there is no church that consists entirely of born again believers.

Well, as these other gospels come, and they're very glorious gospels, you know. They appear so dynamic, they appear so significant. And certainly they talk about Christ and the blood of Christ, and all these things. As they come, anyone who is not a born again believer, anyone who has been desperately making like a Christian and as near as we can tell is a Christian, will be snared off into these other gospels.

And so this is where the trauma comes. This is where the division comes. This is where the strife in the congregation comes from. And this is what makes it very difficult to live today. This is a day when you cannot evaluate the gospel by the lives of people. You can only evaluate the gospel by the Bible. And you want to make sure that in your own life you remain true to the Bible, as being alone and in its entirety the divine Word of God.

CALLER: That's what I'm trying to do, but it seems so confusing to read all these things. But can I just ask you this? If this is not of God, why do they seem to be glorifying God in all that they do, and bringing others to Him? How could this be serving Satan, if they are bringing others to Christ and winning souls to Him? How could it be detrimental, or how could it be of Satan if this is the case?

HC: All right. Let's raise this question. And that's a very good question. How is it possible that a gospel, any gospel that is not the true Gospel, could really glorify Christ in a tremendous way, apparently, and really apparently bring many people to Christ? Is this possible? And the Bible says absolutely so.

In Matthew 7, beginning with verse 15, Jesus is talking about false prophets. And He says, "In that day (that is, at Judgment Day)," these false prophets will be so certain that they were followers of Christ that they will argue with God at the judgment throne and say, "Lord, Lord." In other words, they were very familiar with saying, "the Lord Jesus" this and "Praise the Lord" that, and so on. "Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in Your Name (in the Name of Christ)? Did we not do many mighty works in Your Name? Did we not cast out demons in Your Name?" In other words, "Weren't we against Satan in Your Name?" And what will the Lord say? "Depart from Me, ye that work iniquity I never knew you."

So don't underestimate Satan. Now we read in II Corinthians 11 that Satan comes as an angel of light. Most people quite frequently fail to realize the magnificent deceiver that Satan is. If someone comes to you and lies to you, and it's a flagrant outright lie, so that you can spot it in a minute, you say, "Oh, you liar." That person was not a very good liar, was he? He was a liar, but he was an amateur at the business.

But when Satan deceives, he is the master deceiver. He is the master con artist. When he deceives somebody, they have no idea that they have been deceived. They have no idea. He's so subtle, he's so clever. He comes as an angel of light, that is, a messenger of God, with the message of salvation of the Lord Jesus Christ. And he just twists it enough, so that it's not the true Gospel. That's why Matthew 24:24 says that even the elect would be deceived, if that were possible. That's how clever Satan is.

And so don't you believe it for a moment that Satan won't glorify the Lord Jesus Christ. Of course he will. He'd be glad to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ, if in so doing he can gently lead someone away from the true Gospel.

CALLER: Well, it makes me so sorry for the ones that are being led into all this, but I guess the only solution is to just pray for them, and pray for their true salvation and the leading of the Holy Spirit.

HC: Well, this is a day when we want to be sure that we remain with the true Gospel. On this program I never hold up one congregation or one denomination, or one group of believers above another, because I believe there are true believers in most denominations. But this is the only thing we can hold up. There's only one thing we can hold up, and that is the Bible, the Bible. It alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. And if we'll only take that, and remember that, and keep going to the Bible for our authority. If we're going to decide what doctrine is true, check it out in the Bible. Don't check the evidence on the outside, because our minds are tricky. Our minds deceive us. And we're not sure whether we're being told the whole story. We can't read the heart of men, and so on. But we can read the Bible. And in the Bible God gives us the straight story, absolutely straight story. We can depend on what we read there.

And as long as we're reading the Bible and trusting it as the divine Word, Satan can never come at us with his deception. He doesn't speak in the Bible. God speaks in the Bible. The Bible is the voice of God. Every time we read the Bible we know this is God speaking to us. If I would receive a vision or something else, I would have no idea who was speaking to me, whether it was out of my mind, or whether I was hallucinating, or whether Satan himself was coming at me. I'd have no way of knowing, none whatsoever.

But when I read the Bible, I know that is God speaking to me.

CALLER: I sure appreciate your helping me. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Understanding the True Gospel (675A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Mr. Camping, I was wondering if I could clarify a few things with you. I'm trying to understand your message of salvation. As I understand it, we must know and understand the true Gospel, and we must constantly be on guard against false gospels. And we must be very careful of people who may be giving us false gospels, although they themselves fully believe in what they're saying, and may apparently be able to back it up with Bible Scriptures. Is this basically correct?

HC: Yes, I would say that is basically correct. Every false gospel (and we call it a gospel only because they still talk about the Lord Jesus and the shed blood, and so on) has an authority that is wider or narrower than the Bible alone and in its entirety. And yet those who follow it are convinced they are following truth, and their doctrines have some Biblical validity. That is, they find verses that will support whatever doctrines they are teaching. Now of course they're looking at those verses from the vantage point of their larger authority, so that they interpret the verses very frequently differently than if they were following the true Gospel. But nevertheless they are convinced that they can back up at least some of what they're preaching from the scriptures.

CALLER: How then is a simple person such as myself supposed to know and recognize the true Gospel, without apparently extensive background and training, which apparently you had?

HC: There are two things that I might say. First of all, the Bible says Jesus' sheep did not hear them. And the context is where Jesus is saying, "All that have come before Me are thieves and robbers." And God identifies thieves and robbers in the Bible as a term that relates to those who are followers of other gospels than the true Gospel, and yet they claim that they are saved.

What I'm trying to say is that the Bible teaches that ultimately it is God who guides us into truth and keeps us from being snared into a false gospel, if indeed we are to be saved, if we are indeed one of God's elect. That is a commitment that God makes. But at the same time, God does warn, "Beware of false prophets." And God tells us to test the spirits, and so on. And wonderfully, there is a very simple test. It's so simple, and yet so few theologians have ever expressed it. And that simple test is that any religion or any gospel is determined by the authority under which it operates. As I've said so frequently, if you are a Muslim how do you know how you are to live, or what you are to believe as a Muslim? Well, you go to the writings of Mohammed. He is the authority, and these writings are looked upon as divine.

And so if you're a true believer, what is your authority? The authority is the Bible, alone and in its entirety. We're not to add to the words of this book, nor take away from the words of this book. Therefore, if someone talks about the Bible, and really believes the Bible is the authority, and yet he also believes there is another source of divine truth, then by definition he has a wider authority than the Bible alone and in its entirety. And therefore they have a different gospel than that which would be determined or structured by the authority of the Bible alone and in its entirety.

CALLER: What I'm concerned about myself is that I understand several messages that I've heard you give, signs or miracles or visions or speaking in tongues, or any of the number of manifestations of the Holy Spirit, are now pure signs of the reverse. These things don't happen any longer, in other words. And now if you receive signs, or if you see a miracle, it is definitely from someone who is representing a false gospel.

HC: All I can do is tell you what the Bible teaches. As the Bible talks about the character of the church at the end of time, where I believe we are, we find that in every case (there are no exceptions to this) where it talks about signs and wonders in the church it always relates to Satanic activity. And that's a very ominous fact.

Now the interesting thing is that those churches that are interested in signs and wonders (and they're legion today, they're growing and proliferating all over the world) invariably those churches are also interested in visions and voices and tongues, and so on. But visions and voices and tongues are an admission that God is still speaking today, that God is still bringing divine revelation. Therefore the Bible is not alone the Word of God. They are saying there is more to the Word of God than the Bible. And so by definition their authority is a different authority than the Bible alone. And so it's no wonder therefore that they're also interested in signs and wonders. Any gospel that is not the true Gospel is not of God, and if it's not of God it's of Satan. There is only one true Gospel that is of God, and that is the Gospel that is structured by the Bible.

CALLER: What about the case of signs and miracles that are pertinent only to today, but still fit the scriptures? Doesn't that relate to the place where Christ said, "By their fruit ye shall know them," that a good tree cannot bear evil fruit and an evil tree cannot bear good fruit? That's the only real test that I've ever found - that Christ said to test the prophets on that basis, by whether their fruit was good or evil.

HC: But what is the fruit? You see, if the Bible says we're not to add to the words of this book, and now someone says, "That's fine, but I believe that God is still speaking today, that He still comes with visions, and so on," then he is rebelling against God. He is rebelling against the authority of the Word of God. And so regardless of how moral he may appear or how often he talks about the Lord Jesus or the blood of Christ or the church or the resurrection, or whatever it may be, the fact is they are designing a gospel that they want rather than a gospel that is structured by the Bible. This is where the whole thing begins and ends, and that is with the authority. The Bible is the authority. It is the only authority. The entire Bible is the authority. And the moment we depart from that, then we are starting to go down a path that is designed from our own minds, if we're hallucinating or dreaming, or whatever; or it even could be of Satan, if the vision did come from him.

That's the problem that we're facing today. Are we willing to surrender our will to the authority of the Bible alone and in its entirety? That is where the true Gospel is. And we aren't willing to do that if start looking for divine truth in a vision or a voice or something else.

CALLER: Then you're saying that God no longer speaks to people.

HC: I'm very certain He does not, in any kind of a verbalized or articulated way. God indicates that we're not to add to the words of this book I'm very positive about that.

But I also know that in the secular world, for example, mediums and so on are convinced that they are receiving messages from God, and I know that Satan does speak through ouija boards and tarot cards, and so on. And so God certainly allows Satan to break the silence between the supernatural and the natural. Now the Bible warns in Second Corinthians 11 that Satan comes as an angel of light, or as a messenger of light. In other words, he comes looking exactly like the Lord Jesus Christ. And the Bible speaks of Satan's ministers as being ministers of righteousness. So deceitful is Satan that these ministers are convinced that they are serving Christ, absolutely convinced. But God calls them emissaries of Satan, or false prophets.

If Satan is allowed to break the silence between the supernatural and the natural in the secular world, then certainly he'll do it in the church. But he's going to do it in the most holy surroundings. And so we're living in a very dangerous era, a very dangerous time. And the only security we have is that we listen only to the Bible as the Word of God.

CALLER: You just made a remark that I'll have to question you about. You say that if Satan was going to speak out like that, it would only be in the most holy places. Shall we say from Bethlehem, in a manger? Shall we say from a simple man walking around in the most rural country area?

HC: No. The most holy place insofar as the Bible is concerned is the church. Bethlehem is not a holy place. Bethlehem is the place where Jesus was born, but that doesn't make it a holy place.

CALLER: I would say the manger was.

HC: No, it's not a holy place. Jesus was born there, but that which is holy is that which has been set apart for the service of God. And the temple that God speaks about is the body of believers. And that's exactly where God warns that Satan will operate. In Matthew 24:24 God says, "False prophets and false christms will arise with signs and wonders, so lead astray if possible even the elect." Now the elect are the true believers. They are the ones who have been chosen by God from the foundations of the world. And they are found in the churches and congregations that hold the true Gospel. These churches are going to be harassed by false prophets, who come in the name of Christ, with a gospel that looks so close to the true Gospel that even the elect would be deceived, if that were possible. It's not possible. God gives us that assurance in other passages. But it will be so close to the true Gospel, because Satan comes as an angel of light.

But one of the factors that we can recognize immediately, as stated in Matthew 24:24, is that they will come with signs and wonders. And so any time someone is featuring signs and wonders it's really a red flag: Watch out! Watch out! That can't be of God, because the true Gospel is not interested in signs and wonders. It's interested in walking by faith. And it's an evil and an adulterous generation that seeketh for a sign.

CALLER: Then how would a person know if he was one of the elect?

HC: We know we're one of God's elect if we have become a true believer, if we know that our sins have been paid for and that Christ is our Savior and Lord, and we're convinced that the Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. It is the Word of God. But if we say we're saved, if we say our sins have been paid for, and yet we have become convinced that there is more to divine truth than the Bible, then we don't know what salvation is. The Bible says that if anyone adds to the words of this book, God will add to him the plagues written therein, which is another way of saying that he is still subject to damnation, which brings us to the conclusion therefore that he is still unsaved.

CALLER: The thing is, though, if I believe all the things that you say, then how can I be sure that what I read in the Bible is really the true Gospel, and that I'm not deceiving myself.

HC: You see, we have to start with faith. By faith we have to believe that the Bible is the Word of God. Now the Bible is not something that has just been written in the last 100 years, and it's a popular best-seller because it's caught man's fancy. The Bible is a book that has stood the test of 2,000 years in time, and millions of people have hung their lives on it. And when we study the Bible very carefully, we find that the internal evidence of the Bible clearly demonstrates that it is a supernatural book. There are just far too many truths hidden within it and pouring out of it to ever allow it to be anything but a book that is God breathed. In fact, the Bible says of itself that holy men of old spoke as the Holy Spirit moved them.

We start therefore with the Bible. The Bible is the Word of God. It's not some publisher's book, it's not some church's book. It is the Word of God itself. And the Bible says of itself that we're not to add to it. And those who have hung their lives on the Bible and have trusted everything that the Bible offers have come to salvation, and they know that they're saved because the Bible is the living Word of God. As they read the Bible, the Holy Spirit witnesses with their spirit that they are a child of God. And this is not in any articulated or verbalized fashion. It is simply that they sense in their hearts that yes, this is truth, I believe this. And God's wish becomes their command.

CALLER: The verse that you keep quoting from, about he who adds to or takes away from this book, is right at the end of Revelation. And when I read it, I can see no reference to the rest of the Bible, only to the prophecies of the book of Revelation. That's where you and I would disagree. How do we know that you're right and I'm wrong, or I'm right and you're wrong?

HC: The Bible is one cohesive whole. The Bible is not a series of sixty-six books, each standing on its own merits, so that you can do with any one of those books as you wish. The Bible is one Word, it is the Word of God. And if you add something to the book of Revelation you have added it to the Bible. And if you take something away from the book of Revelation you have taken it away from the Bible.

CALLER: The point is this. I would agree that you could not add to or take away from any of the books of the Bible. But when I read Revelation, I only read that that is a curse, or a wrath of God, particularly pertaining to that book, because if anyone disturbs one word of that prophecy he throws the whole prophecy off, thereby blinding anyone who would understand it.

HC: Supposing that someone added a verse to the book of Revelation and it was a verse from another part of the Bible. There's a lot of redundancy in the Bible, where God uses the same verse even in the same chapter, over and over. If someone added a verse to Revelation that was found elsewhere in the Bible, they have now thrown Revelation out of balance. But the fact is, they have added something to the Word of God. They have put something there that God has not said, that God has not decreed at that particular point.

The Bible is the Word of God. This is the big point. And we either believe this or we don't believe it. And if we don't believe it, then we can make our additions to the book of Revelation, and once we do that when we read Revelation 22:18 we're going to interpret it in the light of our wider revelation. And we've already accepted the principle that God is still speaking today. And so then we're going to read Revelation 22:18, and we're going to say, "Well, whatever it means, I know it doesn't mean that God is not speaking today, because my later authority indicates that that conclusion is impossible." That's exactly the trap that you get into.

But if we just let the Bible speak to us, then we know that we stop with the book of Revelation. That is the end of revelation. The curious thing is that so frequently those who are interested in signs and wonders are also interested in adding to the Bible, adding further visions, and so on. And yet the Bible is very clear that signs and wonders near the end of time are related to Satanic activity. And yet they don't seem to fear that they may have fallen prey to this.

Secondly, if I would receive a vision, a glorious vision, some holy vision, knowing that Satan goes about as an angel of light, how do I know it's not of Satan? He's no dumbbell. He's not going to come against me with a red suit and a forked tail and a pair of horns. He's going to look like Christ. He's going to look as much like Christ as he possibly can. And so how do I know that I'm not being conned by him? The only reason I know I'm not being conned by him is to not listen to him, because the Bible says that he goes about as an angel of light. And the Bible says we're not to add to the words of this book. So if I received that vision tonight, I would be on my knees praying, "Oh God, have mercy on me. What happened to me? How did I ever become this kind of a prey? How come Satan became this interested in me?" I would reject it out of hand.

Here God has given us this magnificent Bible, and there is no individual in the whole wide world who has really come to understand it altogether, because it is the matchless riches of the revelation of God's grace, and no one has plumbed the depths of the riches of the Bible. And here it is to read, and every word that you read, you know absolutely, this is the Word of God. God has given us the instruction to compare spiritual things with spiritual, that is, we let the Bible be its own interpreter. And as we search the Bible and compare one part of the Bible with another part, we can begin to get more and more information as to what God is really teaching. It's just a marvelous, marvelous experience in getting into the Word of God. And virtually nobody is doing this. And yet my, how entrancing it is, how intriguing it is, that maybe God would bring a vision or something else. And frankly, I want nothing to do with visions or voices. I don't want to be conned by Satan. I want to be absolutely obedient to the Word of God.

And we live in a free land. If someone else would rather take a chance with visions and voices, and if he's intrigued by signs and wonders, fine. We live in a free land. He can do this. But from my vantage point of studying the Bible, I know that it's not the gospel of the Bible. And if you don't have the true Gospel, then you don't have salvation. And frankly, eternal damnation is a pretty long time, and it's pretty awful. And I wouldn't want to take any chances that I might end up in hell, because I'm following the wrong gospel.

CALLER: OK. In other words, you are certain that you are saved.

HC: I'm absolutely certain I am saved.

CALLER: Because you have studied the Bible, and it fits your beliefs. Your interpretations fit your beliefs, and so you are certain of them.

HC: It does not fit my interpretation. I have studied the Bible, and I have come to the point where I am ready to surrender my will, my interpretation, my anything, to the Bible itself. The Bible is the authority. And any time I can learn, it's going to be from the scriptures, not from my mind. It's going to be from the scriptures. And the more I study the Bible, the more I'm going to learn. It is the Word of God. It is what I bow to altogether.

CALLER: What I mean is, what you read in the Bible substantiates what you believe, and so therefore you are convinced that you are saved. Is that basically what we're talking about? I'm trying to find out for myself.

HC: The Bible teaches that we're sinners, we're under the wrath of God, that we deserve to go to hell, and except for God's grace that's where we go, that if we believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as the one who has paid for our sins, if we find in our life an earnest desire to do God's will, not for merit, but because we love God and because we find this earnest desire in our hearts, then we can know that we know Him. And so when I find these characteristics in my life, that I really believe this with all my heart and have these desires within me, then I know, based upon the Biblical statement, that I am saved.

CALLER: I agree with basically everything that you've said there. And I don't believe my faith in God is any less than what yours is. But I do find that I disagree with you on some points of the Bible. And this causes me some problems because . . .

HC: Yes, but it depends on what points you're disagreeing on. If you're disagreeing on the authority itself, if you believe that there is more to divine revelation than the Bible alone and in its entirety, then you have a different gospel than I have. And of course that's your privilege. On the other hand, if you agree with me that the Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word, and yet you disagree on this point or that point, then it's a matter that both of us have to keep studying. And if we keep studying, since truth is one piece, we are going to come closer and closer to each other. No one can have truth unless he has truth; and if two people have truth then they agree with each other.

CALLER: I believe that I am totally open to the will of God and obedient. And I do believe that the Bible is the one and only true Word of God. But I do believe that the Bible does leave some space for directions from God, specific directions from God, at a time period later on in the history of man.

HC: By that statement, if you are referring to an articulated or a verbalized statement, through a dream or a vision or a voice, or whatever, then you are negating your first statement, where you say that the Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. Effectively you're saying, 'But I believe there still is additional divine revelation.' And then you by definition have a different authority.

DREAMS AND VISIONS

Does God Speak to Us in Dreams? (111D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'm a Sunday School teacher, and I have a girl in my class, a teenager, and she wanted to know why she keeps having dreams and they keep coming true. And I didn't know what to tell her.

HC: The question is, What do we do when we know somebody, or this is happening in our own life, that we have dreams and they start coming true? This is a fairly serious business, because it means that we have begun to listen to those dreams as being some kind of a revelation from God. We have that dream, and we think about it and we pay a lot of attention to it. And we really memorize it in our mind, so that later on, when it appears to come true, then we are convinced that it must have been from God.

Actually, the Bible teaches that there is only one source of divine truth, and that is the Bible. If we add anything to the words of this book, God will add to us the plagues written therein. Now we have an enemy whose name is Satan. And he desperately tries to snare us away from the Word of God. And so he may begin to plague us, with dreams or with visions or with whatever, in order to try to get us to listen to something else besides the Word of God.

Or we may be doing this in our own minds. We all dream. Dreams are as common as grass. We would not be healthy unless we dreamed. And it may be that we dream, and just the fact that we are listening so carefully and looking for these things (Will they begin to take place in the future?), causes us to begin to look upon this as the Word of God. And in that sense we are worshipping other gods.

Whether it's from Satan or whether it's out of our own mind, it really doesn't make any difference. We are not to listen to that. And if she will go to the Lord and ask forgiveness, if she will cry out for His mercy, "Oh Lord, forgive me, that I would ever think about a dream as being some divine message. Forgive me for not listening only to the Word of God," and if she'll level with the Lord and mean business with Him, so that Christ is her Savior and Lord, then she's not going to have this happen anymore, that things would be foretold so that they would come true. ESP, dreams, anything at all that appears to come true is of an occult world that is alien to God.

CALLER: When she told me that when she goes to bed at night and has these dreams, they come true, I began to wonder. I'll have her pray then, and ask the Lord to forgive her for this?

HC: Yes. And if she has a dream, pay no attention to it. We dream every night. Sometimes we remember the dream more vividly than others. A lot of times we don't remember the dream at all, and we think we haven't dreamed. But we dream every night. But we are not to pay any attention to the dream.

You will find that if you are troubled about something, you might have a nightmare. You dreams relate to perhaps a flashing thought during the day, some TV program you watched, or it may relate to just a phrase that somebody uttered. But if we begin to pay attention to the dream, and begin to think, "Maybe God was trying to tell me something," then you're walking into trouble. Then you're opening the door to Satan, to allow him to begin to prey on you. This is the opening he wants. He likes nothing better than that we look for divine truth from a source outside of the Bible, because then he can come with messages in one occult way or another. And if we're identified with the Bible, he'll try to make his messages sound exactly like the Bible, so we get accustomed to this procedure. And then gradually he will woo us and bring us additional information slightly different from the Bible. And in that way we'll no longer be able to interpret the Bible accurately. And so he'll have us.

CALLER: I hope I don't frighten her with this, or cause the pastor to get angry with me. I had spoken to him, and he said, "Oh yes, I've had premonitions." He said, "Don't worry about it. It's nothing. It isn't Satan." He's not much on Satan. But I knew if I asked you, I'd get the right answer. So whether or not he gets angry with me, I'll tell her what you said.

HC: Well, this is what I would recommend. And you can do it very gently. You can just tell her, "Now there is an occult world." But really start out with Revelation 22:18, where God declares that we are not to add anything to the words of this book. The Bible alone is the divine Word of God.

And then emphasize to her, "Now look. To dream is as natural as anything. Everybody dreams. But what we do with that dream, there is where the problem lies. And so don't pay any attention. And ask the Lord for forgiveness, that you might never again pay any attention to those dreams."

CALLER: All right. Well, thank you so much. Good evening.

HC: Thank you. Good night.

Does God Allow Revelation Today Through Dreams? (112B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Concerning the subject of dreams, I don't feel we could possibly reach any agreement, or agree together on dreams, because actually the Bible gives many examples of dreams. For example, in the Book of Genesis it's used to restrain Abimelech from evil. And in the New Testament, in the first chapter of Matthew, verse 20, the angel of the Lord spoke to Joseph concerning the birth of Jesus Christ. So there are many examples where the Lord has used dreams to speak to His children.

HC: But you see, those examples are all given to us before the Bible was completed. They in fact became a part of the Holy Canon, of the Bible itself. That was entirely possible in those days. They did not have the whole Word of God, as we have today. But now God has completed His revelation. God says we are not to add to the words of this book. It alone is the divine revelation.

And so if God means what He says there, then we would not expect that He would violate His rule and come with additional divine revelation in a dream, or in a vision, or whatever.

CALLER: Joel 2:28 says that in the last days God would pour out His Spirit on all flesh. It's saying that the young men would see visions and the old men would dream dreams, and it goes on. Perhaps you could explain this Scripture to me better. I interpret it as meaning that as the Lord pours out His Spirit upon all flesh, which would mean all mankind that we are going to be dreaming dreams. And I recall that you asked a lady to ask the Lord to forgive her for dreams she's had. It just seems to me that maybe Joseph should have asked the Lord to forgive him for the dream he had about the birth of God Himself. And these other people who had dreams of revelation from God, according to you they should have asked God for forgiveness for even having had the dream.

HC: No. You see, they had their dreams before Revelation 22:18 was written, before the Bible was completed. Now the "last days" spoken of in Acts 2:17, where Joel's prophecy is quoted, began at Pentecost, because in verse 16 Peter declared: "This [that is, this phenomenon that you see] is what Joel spoke about when he said, 'In the last days I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh.'"

And so it is true that it was possible in the Book of Acts, in that timetable, before the Bible was completed, for a born again believer to have a vision or receive a revelation from God in addition to what was in the written Word. They did not have the whole written Word.

But now we have the whole written Word. And God says we are not to add to the words of this book. Now the big question that we have to face is, "Are we going to look at the Bible as the only divine Word of God?" And of course when we obey the Bible, we are worshipping the God who has given us this truth.

Or are we going to say, "Well, the Bible is the Word of God, but God also speaks this way and that way and the other way." In that case, of course, we're worshipping the god who has given us truth in these other ways. And the Bible says that it alone is the Word of God. And so that would make us guilty of worshipping other gods.

It's not accidental, you know. In Deuteronomy 13, God prophesied something that is very much related to this. In Deuteronomy 13 God said in verse 1: If a prophet arises among you (in other words, this is one of our fellow believers, apparently, and notice the next verse) or a dreamer of dreams (that's very significant, you see) and gives you a sign or a wonder (in other words, he's not only a dreamer of dreams—that is, he is convinced that God is still speaking—but he also comes with signs and wonders; he looks more legitimately of God that you could ever believe), and the sign or wonder which he tells you comes to pass, and if he says, Let us go after other gods (in other words, "Let us be obedient to that truth which I am bringing to you, which I believe is divine, which is from sources outside of the Word of God"), gods which you have not known, and let us serve them, you shall not listen to the words of that prophet or to that dreamer of dreams. For the Lord your God is testing you (God knows about this; He's allowing this to happen to discover, are you going to be faithful to the Word of God or are you not) to know whether you love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul. You shall walk after the Lord your God and fear Him, and keep His commandments, and obey His voice. And you shall serve Him and cleave to Him.

You see, the moment we go outside of the Bible to look for divine revelation, we immediately are a prey of Satan. The Bible teaches in II Corinthians 11 that Satan goes about as an "angel of light." And he is free to use his occult powers. We see this in the secular world very very clearly. In the secular world we know of mediums who can divine the future. We know of people who can read the future in tarot cards and in the ouija boards, and we know of witchcraft, and all of these things. Satan is very active in an occult way in the secular world.

The Bible tells us that he will be active in the church, where the true Gospel is proclaimed. And so we don't want to get snared by him at all. And the only way we can be absolutely certain that what we're listening to is not the voice of Satan but only the voice of God is to listen to the Bible, because the Bible cannot possibly be from Satan in any sense. But a dream, a vision, a revelation, a voice, any of these other things, since Satan is able to convey truth this way in the secular world, he can certainly do it within the church. And the Bible warns us that he will; he'll come as an angel of light.

CALLER: Yes. Satan is very busy in the church today. But everything that I have mentioned so far has been in the Word of God, all these various dreams, and so on. As an example, if I was to have a dream that one of my children was going to be in an accident, I certainly wouldn't refrain from telling them that particular day to be especially careful while driving. Maybe I wouldn't mention that I had a dream, but I think I would say, "Be especially careful today while you're driving," or if possible I would try to do something to prevent what happened in the dream. I couldn't go to the Lord and ask Him to forgive me for having had the dream. If I didn't say anything and one of my children went out and got hurt or got killed, it would probably produce something within me that would make a pretty weird person out of me.

HC: You see, it isn't the dream that's the problem. It's what you do with it. Now the moment you react this way, and say, "Aha! God has spoken to me," or "I've had this dream and now I'd better warn somebody," you are being obedient to that dream. You have reacted to that dream as if it were the voice of God. You have therefore effectively said this, "I know that the Bible is the Word of God and I want to be obedient to it. But also there is the Word of God that came to me in a dream, because I want to be obedient to that, too." And so now you have added to the Word of God. You have said the Bible is the Word of God, and you have said that this dream is the Word of God. And so you've added to the words of this book. You have looked elsewhere for a divine revelation.

And this is what you have to repent of, that you made any effort at all to be obedient to what you heard in your dream. And you know, Satan is always looking around for a way to get a foothold. But the moment we repudiate him, and we cast our lot only with Christ, and turn away from this other activity, then this activity ceases.

Those who have had problems with ESP, and experiences of this nature, testify that when they surrendered their life to Christ, all of this has ended. All of this kind of occult activity ends. Now maybe I'm an abnormal born again believer, but I can tell you, I don't receive messages in dreams about the future. I don't have any kind of an occult life, where I have premonitions or where I have ESP going on, or whatever. It just doesn't happen in a normal born again believer's life. But I know this, that if I want to know something about the future, I've got to read the Bible. This doesn't mean that I don't have times when I might feel depressed, or I might have some kind of a heavy weight upon me. It may be that I didn't eat a good meal yesterday. It may be that I have a deep anxiety about a loved one, and this is depressing me, but I'd never look upon these as premonitions, as something that is going to happen.

I know that everything is in God's hands, and if I want to know the future, I can go to the Lord Jesus. We read in Deuteronomy 18, where God is talking about diviners, "These are an abomination." He said, "I will raise up a Prophet like unto you [He's talking to Moses], and Him you shall heed." And that Prophet is the Lord Jesus Christ, and we only listen to Him. And the Bible is the Word of Christ. It is the Word of God. "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us."

CALLER: I understand that prophecy is telling of the future. I'm sure it's one of the spiritual gifts, prophecy. But this is the reason I wanted to refrain from going into dreams, because I really felt that we probably wouldn't reach any mutual agreement.

Dreams and Visions – Joel 2:28 Explained (114D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello What I'd like for you to do is explain Joel 2:28 for me, where it says, "Your old men shall dream dreams and your young men shall see visions." The way I feel right now, I've only been a Christian for a few short months. But before I gave my heart to God, I would have these dreams. And I would look them up in the dream book. And they would seem so encouraging. The explanations would be something like, "Good financial success," or "Good things will happen," or things like this. And I've found that my life has been restored. God has restored my life from what I was supposed to be, and from what I did on my own, and where I am right now.

But I feel that the more that we can attune our mental faculties to God, the more He can reveal Himself through our mental faculties. Am I on the right track?

HC: I don't think so. You see, in Joel 2, when God said in verse 28, "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh. Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy. Your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions," we have to look at that in the context of the whole Bible.

Now in the Old Testament, before the Holy Spirit was poured out at Pentecost, God saved people just like He saves people today. But He did not mandate them, nor qualify them ordinarily to be a witness. It was only occasionally that a prophet would arise. And that prophet would declare the Word of God. Now that prophet would receive his information from two sources. One was from the Bible that he had complete to that point in time, which of course was an incomplete Bible. And occasionally God would also bring additional information which was the Word of God in the form of a dream, or a personal visitation, or a vision, or whatever. And in this way God added to His Word.

Now it was God's program that when the Holy Spirit was poured out at Pentecost, right after Christ went to the cross, that every born again believer would be a prophet, would be a witness, would be qualified to declare God's Word by being filled with the Holy Spirit.

And so to emphasize this, God uses the language of this more glamorous way that the Old Testament prophets received truth. He speaks about the fact that "your old men will dream dreams, and your young men will see visions." In other words, they will be bona fide prophets. Everyone who is a born again believer will be a prophet. Now that was fine for that day, in the Book of Acts, because the Bible was not yet complete. It was still possible in that day for someone who was a born again believer to receive a dream or a vision. The fact is, we know that Peter received a vision. We know that the apostle John received a series of visions on the Isle of Patmos. All of this was possible because the Bible was not yet complete.

But then God finished His Word. And He declared in Revelation 22:18; "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." In other words while up until this time you have the written Word, but you also have the possibility of hearing from Me from other sources, that possibility no longer exists. From now on the only way I am speaking is through the Word of God. And if you think that you have something else from Me, which would be equivalent to adding to the Bible, it simply indicates that you are still under damnation. You are still subject to hell. You don't understand that the Bible alone is the divine Word of God.

And so ever since the Bible was completed, there have been those who have had dreams, who have had visions, who have seen apparitions of one kind or another. And many of them seem to be so very holy. But you can depend upon it, none of this activity was from God.

And so today, if someone says, "I've had a dream that came true," that dream was not from God. It may have been out of their own mind. It could have been coincidental that it came true. Or it could be that they're being preyed on by Satan.

And you can see why this is. If I received a dream that I was convinced was from God, and suppose that dream appeared to relate quite strongly to the Bible, and yet it might deviate very slightly but in an area which I could hardly detect. Perhaps in this dream I dreamed that there was going to be a great famine next year, or that there was going to be a war, or whatever. Now you can depend upon it, that every time I read the Bible, if I accepted that dream as being the voice of God to me, every time I read anything in the Bible concerning the future of this world, I'm going to read it in the light of my dream. I'm going to use that dream as the telescope through which I have to look at the information in the Bible. In other words, that information from that dream will cause me to modify what the Bible actually teaches. Because when I read the Bible and try to understand it, I am to look only at the Scripture. It alone is the interpreter, not something out here that I thought was the Word of God.

And so by accepting that dream as the Word of God, it is going to close the Bible to me. The Bible no longer will be a book that I can understand. And the more I listen to this other information which I believe was divine, the farther away I'll get from finding the true understanding of the Bible.

And I think this is the reason that many folks could never come to agreement with me about certain passages in the Bible, because I choose to understand the Bible by letting the Bible alone be the interpreter. But if someone else is going to understand those same verses, and they are looking upon the Bible as the Word of God, and they're also looking upon certain visions or dreams or revelations they've received as the divine Word of God, and they are going to interpret the Bible with that information additionally, they can't possibly come to the same conclusion I would come to.

Thank you so much for calling. Good night.

Are Dreams and Visions for Today? (330C)

CALLER: What does the Bible say about dreams? In Joel it says in the last days your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions.

HC: The question is raised concerning the Biblical declaration of dreams and visions. In the days of the Bible, that is, before the Bible was completed in about AD 95, the possibility of believer receiving divine truth directly from God in the form of a dream or a vision was possible. And that's why in the days of Pentecost, AD 33, when the last days began (the last days encompass the whole New Testament period, beginning with the cross), in that day it was still possible to receive divine truth in that fashion.

But once the Bible was completed that possibility no longer exists, because God indicates in Revelation 22:18, "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." Now that doesn't mean that we lose our prophetic office. The main thrust of Joel 2, as it's quoted in Acts 2:17-21 or 22, is not that throughout the New Testament period people will dream dreams and see visions, but that all believers will be prophets. They will all be qualified to declare God's Word. Now a prophet, in the days of the Bible, had two sources whereby he could receive divine truth. The usual source was the Bible, which was an incomplete Bible in those days. The more exotic, the more exciting source, was to receive a special revelation of some kind in a dream or a vision. And this is spoken of in Acts 2:17.

Once the Bible was completed we continue to be prophets declaring God's Word, but our source of truth now is circumscribed by the Bible. It now is the complete revelation of God. We no longer are to expect that God will speak to us in this more exotic or more exciting way of coming to us in a dream or a vision, because that would violate Revelation 22:18.

CALLER: Okay. So that will not occur.
HC: That will not occur. If someone today receives a vision, or a voice or a dream that they believe is from God, however holy it may appear, or how exciting it may appear, you can depend upon it, it was not from God, because God will not violate His own Word.

HEALING / EXORCISM / SIGNS & WONDERS / MIRACLES

Miraculous Healings (099E)

CALLER: Okay. I've heard you talk a few times about healers, you know, those who heal people. And a friend of mine was listening to one of these preachers. And he said that people there actually went in wheel chairs and walked out, and things like that. And I was wondering why you say that there's no healing going on today.

HC: The question is raised, in view of the fact that you can go to healing meetings today, and see people who come in wheel chairs walk out as if they are healed, doesn't this make a lie of the idea that God is not miraculously healing today?

Well, we first of all cannot trust an experience that we see. We do not build doctrine or truth by experience. That's a pragmatic way of doing it, and this is the way, for example, the scientific community does it. They run experiments, and based on the experiments they form a postulate or an axiom. They arrive at some kind of a law. When you drop an apple and it falls, and then you drop a silver dollar and it falls, and then you drop a feather and it falls, pretty soon you begin to sense that there's a law. And finally they call it the law of gravity. It's based on experiment, that there is a law of gravity, and so on.

But when we get to spiritual truth, we do not find out what the rules are by experience, because experience can be very deceiving. We have to find out what the rules are by the Bible. The Bible is the only trustworthy guide.

One of the laws, for example, that is being promulgated today by those who believe in miraculous healing is that Christ went to the cross to give us whole bodies, to heal our physical diseases. And they can quote a couple of passages in the Bible, a couple verses of the Bible, that appear to indicate this. But when we read the whole Bible, and compare all the Scriptures, we find that that absolutely is not so. The Bible indicates that even though we're saved, even though in our spirit we go to be with Christ at death, our bodies will go into the grave. Our bodies will waste away. This is God's program, for saved people as well as unsaved people.

So therefore under no circumstance is Christ indicating, or the Bible indicating, that Christ went to the cross to give us physical healing. Secondly, the Bible indicates that we're to walk by faith, not by sight. The Bible indicates that an evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a miracle, or seeketh for a sign, and so on and so on.

Well then, once we understand the biblical statement, then we wonder, "Well then, what's happening out there?" Well, if I go to see a magician, for example, I don't know how he pulled a rabbit out of a hat. I don't know how he did all the things that he did. I saw it with my eyes, certainly. I saw lots of things. But I know they were impossible things. I know that somehow he didn't really do that.

But my mind is very easily deceived, my mind is very tricky. I went to see this magician knowing that he would deceive me this way, and knowing that my own mind would deceive me. This is the basis of many of the circus side shows, and so on. Our mind is very tricky. We see what we want to see very frequently.

And so if people go to a place where there is reputed to be miraculous healing, then they're going to see miraculous healing. Their minds are conditioned to see this. Now true, there is some healing that is taking place. A tremendous amount of illness, and it's real illness, is psychosomatic in nature. Ulcers, hardening of the arteries, arthritis, migraine headaches, skin disorders, paralysis, are just a few of the diseases that frequently owe their basis to body tension, to anxiety that's within a person. And if that person will put his trust in anything at all, then the tension is removed, whether that trust is in the evangelist, in the healer, or in the Bible, or in whatever it is. If there is a real positive trust there, then the symptom will also go away. There will apparently be healing. And it will be real healing. But it's not the miraculous healing that we read about in the Bible at all. It's simply that the tension has been removed.

Secondly, there is a certain amount of chicanery. I don't know how much, and I wouldn't even care to know how much or how little. But I know there is some, where there is just outright deception, in an effort to convince people that there is this kind of healing.

The important thing, however, is that if you go to a healing service, and you look at those on hospital beds, who are very obviously in need of a healing, or could stand a healing very nicely, as you look at their twisted limbs or their emaciated bodies, ridden by disease, whatever it may be, these kind always go out the way they came in, where there is very obvious disease. And these are the kind that Jesus healed, and the apostles healed. When James and John stood outside the temple gate, and the man was there with the withered limbs, who had never walked in his whole life, you can imagine what pencil thin legs, twisted little bone structure he had from his waist down. And yet instantaneously he stood up and jumped and ran, and so on. Now that kind of healing is not going on today.

CALLER: Okay. I heard about this girl in Oakland who bleeds every Easter, from her hands and her feet, where Jesus was nailed to the cross. And the doctors haven't found any explanation for it. I was wondering, is this another sign that Jesus is coming soon?

HC: It's not a sign from God, if indeed this is happening, and I don't believe everything I read, or that people tell me, because there's tremendous exaggeration today. I just don't believe everything that I read about. But assuming that it were true, it certainly is not a miracle done by God. God does not come with those kinds of signs and wonders today. God comes with the Word of God. It is the place where we're going to find divine truth. If you want some kind of an indication that we're near the end of time, read the Bible. It is the trustworthy account.

CALLER: Okay. And I've just got one more quick question. Who wrote the Book of John?

HC: The Gospel of John was written by the Apostle John.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you.

HC: Thank you so much for calling. Good night.

Are Believers Empowered to Cast Out Demons? (132A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Since I am a Christian, do I have the power, through Jesus Christ, to cast out demons?

HC: Your question is, since you are a born again believer, do you have the same power that Jesus had to cast out someone else's demon?

Now it is true that the Jews of Jesus' day who had become born again (the seventy and the twelve apostles) did go forth, and they did cast out demons. We must remember, however, that the task of the believer is to be a witness of the Lord Jesus Christ. And it is the work of God to do the saving. How . . . What does that have to do with casting out demons?

Well, you see, a person who is unsaved is a slave of Satan. He may be beset by demons. He may be demon possessed, or he may be an emissary of Satan, a false prophet. Or he may just be an ordinary slave of Satan, such as most of the people of the world are.

Now when we bring the Gospel, that is the key that unlocks the prison house of Satan. And we are authorized by God to bring that Gospel. We are authorized to witness to those who are unsaved. And whether they are demon possessed, or whether they are simply an ordinary slave of Satan, makes no difference. If they respond to the Gospel, if they come with a broken and a contrite heart, and put their trust in the Lord Jesus Christ, they will be saved, and then demons will be removed from their life. They no longer will be under the power of Satan in any sense.

And so we are the vehicle that God uses to bring the Gospel, but it is God Himself who applies that Gospel to the life of someone who is unsaved, and frees them from Satan's dominion. Therefore we don't have to go around looking for somebody who is demon possessed. Everyone who is unsaved is a slave of Satan. Everyone who is unsaved is going to hell. Our job is not to try to cast out demons. Our job is to witness and let God do the freeing. Let God apply that Word as He will, in accordance with His own sovereign good pleasure.

And in fact, when the disciples cast out demons this was simply to give us an illustration, a literal illustration, of the power of the Gospel. It was not suggesting that we are to go around doing these same miracles, but the casting out of demons was a picture to show that Christ's power was greater than Satan's power. The demons could not stand before the Word of God.

Have Signs and Miracles Ceased? (410C)

HC: Good evening Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Good evening. Brother Camping. My wife and I have been discussing tonight how, at the completion of the Bible, sign miracles and tongues and messages from God ceased. I wondered if you could please go into as much detail as possible in showing me in the scripture verses where this shows when this happened, when the Bible was completed.

HC: That signs and miracles ceased?

CALLER: Yes, that when the Bible was completed, now we have the Bible and it alone is the Word of God, that we don't have any more divine truth from elsewhere.

HC: You're speaking of two things now. You're talking about divine truth from other sources, and you're also speaking of miracles. Are you interested in both of these questions?

CALLER: Yes. And I also have another question, concerning Malachi 4:6, the last part of that, where God says, "lest I come and smite the earth with a curse." I wondered if you could explain that.

HC: All right, I'll try. The question is raised concerning the matter of miracles and of other revelation. Actually they are two separate subjects. The matter of other revelation, other sources of divine truth than the Bible can be handled very simply.

Until the Bible was completed, God did bring His prophets additional information occasionally. That's the way the Bible was developed. A prophet would receive information from God in a vision or in a dream or by an angel confrontation. This then was written down, and this was added to the Bible, until we have the full revelation of God's will.

As long as this procedure was going on, it was possible, for example, to receive information from God in an unknown language called a tongue, as we read in I Corinthians 12-14. But when God completed the Holy Word, when He came to the last chapter of the last book, remember, the Bible is one cohesive whole. It has one Author, the Holy Spirit. Even though He spoke through a great variety of people, nevertheless there is one Author, and that is the Holy Spirit, God Himself. And when God came to the last chapter of the book He was writing, He declared in Revelation 22:18, "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." In other words, God effectively is saying, if anyone thinks that there is additional divine truth than what is recorded in the Bible, then by this act of rebellion against God he is indicating that he is still subject to hell. He is still subject to damnation. God has spoken. Everything that had to be said has been said. And this is what we are to look upon as the divine Word.

Now insofar as miracles are concerned, first of all we must remember that while today a great many people relate miracles or signs and wonders to Pentecost, a study of the Bible reveals that there is no such relationship. There were far more miracles done before Pentecost, before the Holy Spirit was poured out, before God began His program to evangelize the world, than after. No one since the time of Jesus has done miracles as Jesus did. And Jesus, remember, was on earth and did all of His miracles before the Holy Spirit was poured out. This is a very important consideration that those who want to relate miracles to Pentecost must consider.

Now it is true that when we look at the church after Pentecost we do find a few of the disciples, five in number actually, who still did miracles for a little while - miracles of healing particularly. But even in their case, as we go on in the Bible, we find that the Bible gradually has nothing more to say about it. We find finally, for example, Paul, who originally was able to do quite a number of miracles, counseling with Timothy to take a little wine for his stomach's sake. There was no possibility of miraculous healing.

More than that, when we study the Bible, we read, for example, in II Corinthians 5:7, "For we walk by faith, not by sight." Jesus Himself said to the Jews, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign," or "seeketh for a miracle." You see, Christ was already indicating that signs and wonders were not normative insofar as believing on the Lord Jesus Christ.

In Luke 16, in the Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus, in the closing verses, you will recall that the rich man cried out to Abraham, "Send Lazarus from the dead, that he may speak to my five brothers who are unsaved." The fact that someone was raised from the dead should bring them to their spiritual senses. And Abraham answered, "If they do not believe Moses and the prophets," that is, if they do not believe the Word of God, "neither will they believe if someone is raised from the dead." In other words, anyone who suggests that God will first do a sign or wonder in order to encourage someone to become a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ, that is not according to the purpose or the program of Christ.

The fact is, when we study John 6, we find that Jesus had a great following because of all the miracles He did. But when Jesus really began to talk about the true nature of the Gospel that He was bringing, then most of His disciples, all in fact except for the twelve, left Him. They weren't interested in the salvation program that Christ was talking about. They simply were excited about the miracles that He was doing.

The Bible declares, "The just shall live by faith." Now the most ominous and conclusive statement that I might say about miracles, which are called signs, the word sign or miracle is the same Greek word in the Bible, in connection with the end of time, where I as well as many others believe we are, because so many signs are pointing to the fact that we are near the end of time, the ominous and terrible fact is (and let this be clearly understood) that every place that the Bible speaks about signs and wonders in connection with the time right near the end of time is always a reference to Satanic activity. It's always a reference to Satanic activity. And that ought to cause anyone at all who is interested in miracles or signs to pause and think it out very clearly. "What kind of a path am I really walking?"

Matthew 24:24 recites, "False prophets and false christ's will arise, with signs and wonders, to lead astray if possible even the elect." II Thessalonians 2 records for us that the man of sin will take his seat in the temple. And he will come with signs and wonders of falsehood."

Revelation 16 speaks about Satan coming with signs. Revelation 13 speaks about the image that Satan erects, that it will come with signs. Everything in the Bible that relates to signs and wonders right near the end of time always is Satanic. Now of course when Christ comes on the clouds of glory on the Last Day, Judgment Day, that will be a great sign. That will be a great wonder, because this is Christ Himself coming. But that's the end of time. Anything that relates to the years just before the end of time that is concerned at all with signs and wonders is always related to Satanic activity.

This really is so emphatic and so plain in the Bible that it would seem to me that anyone who calls himself a Christian ought to really lie awake nights wondering why he's interested in signs and wonders, if indeed he is.

Now in Malachi 4 we read about the coming of Elijah the prophet, a prophecy that really was pointing to the coming of John the Baptist, prefigured by the prophet Elijah. In verse 5 of Malachi 4, "Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." Of course the "great and dreadful day of the Lord" is the Judgment Day when Christ hung on the cross.

There are two Judgment Days in the Bible. One was at the cross, when Christ paid for the sins of those who became believers. The other Judgment Day will be on the Last Day, when those who are not covered by Christ's blood will have to stand for judgment on their own behalf, to pay for their own sins. That will be the end of time.

"And he (that is, Elijah, or John the Baptist) shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children and the heart of the children to the fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse." Now I'm not really knowledgeable as to why this precise language is used. I just have never done a word study on this particular verse, and therefore I don't really feel qualified to speak on it. I will say this, however. Because of man's sin, the earth is cursed. Because of man's continuing sin, eventually Judgment Day comes. And one of the activities of Judgment Day is that this earth must be burned with fire. This earth must be destroyed. Of course it will be recreated New Heavens and a New Earth. Having said this, however, I'm not really sure how this ties in with this phrase, "lest I come and smite the earth with a curse."

I might suggest this, however. And that is that if Christ did not come, and after all, John the Baptist's coming has no standing, no force whatsoever, except in the fact that he was the announcer of the Lord Jesus Christ. John the Baptist's work gained significance only as it anticipated the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. If the Lord Jesus Christ did not come, of course John the Baptist would not have been there to announce Him, either, because there would be no announcer required. If Jesus had not come, then there would be no salvation at all. There would be no redemption of this world, either. Have you ever thought about that?

This world is going to be redeemed. Christ went to the cross to redeem this world. We read about this in Romans 8, around verses 19-22, that the creation was subjected to vanity, not of its own will, but by Him who subjected it in hope, that is, in hope for the redemption of this earth. Even as our bodies that are to be redeemed return to the dust of the earth and are destroyed in the earth, but are resurrected a perfect Spiritual body likewise this earth, this universe, is going to be destroyed by fire. But that is preliminary to it being recreated New Heavens and a New Earth, where righteousness dwells, as we read II Peter 3. If Christ did not come then this earth would be forever under the curse of God. There would be no New Heaven and New Earth. And perhaps this is the meaning of Malachi 4:6.

Is Healing Going On Today?

(411B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I have a few questions. One of them is, how rich does the Bible consider rich?

HC: How rich does the Bible consider rich? First of all, the Bible does not consider physical riches as being rich, necessarily. A man can be physically rich, and if he has not salvation, he is of all men most miserable. He is doomed to hell, and is to be pitied.

To be really rich is to be born again, to be a child of God, because then we are heirs of all the promises that are given in the Bible. We are heirs of the New Heaven and the New Earth. We become sons of God. We will reign in this New Heaven and New Earth eternally as kings. There is no one richer than a born again believer.

Now we can't see these riches with our naked eye today. Now we live on this earth in sackcloth, as it were, to use the figure shown in Revelation 11. We live humbly. We live patiently, bringing the Gospel. We are the physically poor of the world to a very high degree, frequently. But we are the heirs. We are the sons of the King. And once we've spent a few years here on this earth, we go home to our homeland which is Heaven. And from then on everything gets better and better. We are the rich of the world, really.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you. And I have another question. In Isaiah 30:15 it says, "For thus sayeth the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel. In returning and rest shall ye be saved. In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength. And ye will not." Does that mean you won't be able to be in quietness and confidence, or what?

HC: The question is raised concerning Isaiah 30:15, where God is using this language. First of all, let's get the context. The context of Isaiah 30 is that God is warning Israel that they are subject to judgment and hell, that God is going to destroy them because of their wickedness, their apostasy. And in verse 14 He uses the language of Judgment Day of the last day: "He shall break it as the breaking of the potter's vessel that is broken in pieces. He shall not spare, so that there shall not be found in the bursting of it a shard to take fire from the hearth or to take water withal out of the pit." God is speaking here of final judgment.

Now in verse 15 He is saying that it doesn't have to be this way. He says, "For thus sayeth the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel. In returning and rest shall ye be saved." You could be saved if you would rest in the Lord, if you would rest in Christ as your Messiah, if you would quit trying to get into Heaven on your strength, on your good works, on your deeds that you think ought to be looked upon as worthy by God, if you would quit trying to satisfy your own personal pride and take credit for what you are doing, if you would only recognize the dismal truth about yourself, that you're sinners and you're under the wrath of God. And the answer to it is to admit this and rest in the salvation that God is going to provide. Rest quietly, and confidently in this.

"But ye would not. But ye said, No. For we will flee upon horses. Therefore shall ye flee. And we will ride upon the swift. Therefore shall they that pursue you be swift. One thousand shall flee at the rebuke of one. At the rebuke of five shall ye flee." In other words, they're saying, "We will put our confidence in the things that we own, in our horses, in our physical strength, in Egypt," in whatever they could find their strength in. And God says, "You're going to be destroyed. You're going to be so weak that one could destroy a thousand of you."

And this of course is speaking very pertinently to us today. There are all kinds of people who are placing their confidence in their good works, in their worthy lives, in their righteous deeds, in their desires to please God along this line. They really believe that God will look with favor upon them because look how hard they're trying to please God. And God will say, "No. No."

Or they've placed their trust in their money, or in the lands they own, or in their physical strength, or the guns they have in the house, or whatever else it may be, or in their nation, whatever it may be. And God says, "No. None of those things have any strength whatsoever, because you're still under the wrath of God. You're still subject to Judgment Day and hell unless you have placed your confidence only in the Lord Jesus Christ. You realize that you're a sinner and that you're spiritually bankrupt, and you're in deep and terrible trouble with God. And therefore you cry out to God for mercy. You rest in Christ. You trust only in His Word as being sufficient to save you."

CALLER: Okay. I've heard you talk a few times about healers, you know, those who heal people. And a friend of mine was listening to one of these preachers. And he said that people there actually went in wheel chairs and walked out, and things like that. And I was wondering why you say that there's no healing going on today.

HC: The question is raised, in view of the fact that you can go to healing meetings today, and see people who come in wheel chairs walk out as if they are healed, doesn't this make a lie of the idea that God is not miraculously healing today?

Well, we first of all cannot trust an experience that we see. We do not build doctrine or truth by experience. That's a pragmatic way of doing it, and this is the way, for example, the scientific community does it. They run experiments, and based on the experiments they form a postulate or an axiom. They arrive at some kind of a law. When you drop an apple and it falls, and then you drop a silver dollar and it falls, and then you drop a feather and it falls, pretty soon you begin to sense that there's a law. And finally they call it the law of gravity. It's based on experiment, that there is a law of gravity, and so on.

But when we get to spiritual truth, we do not find out what the rules are by experience, because experience can be very deceiving. We have to find out what the rules are by the Bible. The Bible is the only trustworthy guide.

One of the laws, for example, that is being promulgated today by those who believe in miraculous healing is that Christ went to the cross to give us whole bodies, to heal our physical diseases. And they can quote a couple of passages in the Bible, a couple verses of the Bible, that appear to indicate this. But when we read the whole Bible, and compare all the scriptures, we find that that absolutely is not so. The Bible indicates that even though we're saved, even though in our spirit we go to be with Christ at death, our bodies will go into the grave. Our bodies will waste away. This is God's program, for saved people as well as unsaved people.

So therefore under no circumstance is Christ indicating, or the Bible indicating that Christ went to the cross to give us physical healing. Secondly, the Bible indicates that we're to walk by faith, not by sight. The Bible indicates that an evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a miracle, or seeketh for a sign and so on and so on.

Well then, once we understand the Biblical statement, then we wonder, "Well then, what's happening out there?" Well, if I go to see a magician, for example, I don't know how he pulled a rabbit out of a hat. I don't know how he did all the things that he did. I saw it with my eyes, certainly. I saw lots of things. But I know they were impossible things. I know that somehow he didn't really do that.

But my mind is very easily deceived. My mind is very tricky. I went to see this magician knowing that he would deceive me this way, and knowing that my own mind would deceive me. This is the basis of many of the circus side shows, and so on. Our mind is very tricky. We see what we want to see very frequently.

And so if people go to a place where there is reputed to be miraculous healing, then they're going to see miraculous healing. Their minds are conditioned to see this. Now true, there is some healing that is taking place. A tremendous amount of illness, and it's real illness, is psychosomatic in nature. Ulcers, hardening of the arteries, arthritis, migraine headaches, skin disorders, paralysis, are just a few of the diseases that frequently owe their basis to body tension, to anxiety that's within a person. And if that person will put his trust in anything at all, then the tension is removed, whether that trust is in the evangelist, in the healer, or in the Bible, or in whatever it is. If there is a real positive trust there, then the symptoms will also go away. There will apparently be healing. And it will be real healing. But it's not the miraculous healing that we read about in the Bible at all. It's simply that the tension has been removed.

Secondly, there is a certain amount of chicanery. I don't know how much, and I wouldn't even care to know how much or how little. But I know there is some, where there is just outright deception, in an effort to convince people that there is this kind of healing.

The important thing, however, is that if you go to a healing service, and you look at those on hospital beds, who are very obviously in need of a healing, or could stand a healing very nicely, as you look at their twisted limbs or their emaciated bodies, ridden by disease, whatever it may be, these kind always go out the way they came in, where there is very obvious disease. And these are the kind that Jesus healed, and the apostles healed. When James and John stood outside the temple gate, and the man was there with the withered limbs, who had never walked in his whole life, you can imagine what pencil thin legs, twisted little bone structure he had from his waist down. And yet instantaneously he stood up and jumped and ran, and so on. Now that kind of healing is not going on today.

CALLER: Okay. I heard about this girl in Oakland who bleeds every Easter, from her hands and her feet, where Jesus was nailed to the cross. And the doctors haven't found any explanation for it. I was wondering, is this another sign that Jesus is coming soon?

HC: It's not a sign from God, if indeed this is happening, and I don't believe everything I read, or that people tell me, because there's tremendous exaggeration today. I just don't believe everything that I read about. But assuming that it were true, it certainly is not a miracle done by God. God does not come with those kinds of signs and wonders today. God comes with the Word of God. It is the place where we're going to find divine truth. If you want some kind of an indication that we're near the end of time, read the Bible. It is the trustworthy account.

CALLER: Okay. And I've just got one more quick question. Who wrote the Book of John?

HC: The Gospel of John was written by the apostle John.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you.

HC: Thank you so much for calling. Good night.

Do Miracles Take Place Today? (502A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: You mentioned that you do not believe in miracles of today. Do you have any Biblical support for this?

HC: The question is: do miracles take place today? Now first of all, let's define a miracle. A miracle is where God sets aside the normal rules by which He governs the universe and does something very different. For example, when Jesus walked on the water, He set aside the law of gravity. And that is not happening today. When Jesus multiplied the loaves and the fish, He had to set aside all kinds of rules in order to accomplish that. And that is not happening today. When Jesus raised the dead, that is contrary to the way God governs the universe normally. And that is not happening today. The Bible teaches that an evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a miracle. The Bible says we walk by faith, not by sight. Miracles are not a normal part of God's salvation program.

Now it is true that in the days of Elijah, Elijah was able to do a few miracles, and these are recorded for us in order that we might through these get insights as to the nature of God's salvation plan, because these were actually like historical parables.

The same was true when Moses did miracles, when Christ did miracles, when He opened the eyes of the blind, that was a picture of the way we are. Spiritually we are blind. And even as Christ could open the eyes of the spiritually blind, so He could also open our eyes, who are spiritually blind.

CALLER: But Christ did not necessarily open the eyes of those who were spiritually blind. He opened their spiritual eyes as well as their physical eyes.

HC: Of course the miracle of salvation continues today. And it is true that Christ forgave the sins of this one and that one, and that's the miracle of salvation. But in the opening of the physical eyes, that was a picture, a parable, an historical parable. It was a true fact of history, but it was like a parable. And through this He was showing us that even as He opened the physical eyes so they could physically see, so He opens our spiritual eyes so we can spiritually see.

CALLER: Okay. I don't seem to agree with you, because you do not have any Biblical backing for this. What I would like to say is that, do you believe in the Holy Spirit?

HC: Let me ask you this, I'll answer your question. I certainly do believe in the Holy Spirit. He is God Himself. But let me ask you this, so that we'll know whether we have the same authority. Do you believe that God is still bringing revelations today?

CALLER: I do.

HC: All right. Now if you believe that, in other words, if you believe the Bible is the Word of God (and I think you would probably say that it is), and you also believe that God is bringing revelations today, then your authority is different than my authority. And this is a very important point. You see, if your authority is different than mine, then we're going to read the same verses, and we're going to come to different conclusions, because you're looking at these verses in the light of your authority, and I'm looking at these same verses in the light of my authority.

Now my authority is that the Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. And therefore there is nothing else that could be considered to be a divine revelation. But now suppose that your authority is the Bible plus what might be brought in a vision today. Then since the vision is the later word, it will negate some of the things in the Bible. And obviously you're going to understand the Bible differently than I would. And we could talk together for a long time and never come to agreement, because we have a different authority.

CALLER: I believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God. In John 14:26 He says that the Comforter would also bring things to come. Do you believe that?

HC: The only thing God brings is the Word of God. He has spoken. He has said all that He is going to say. If you believe that God is still speaking today and is still going to give you declarations of the future, or whatever, fine. Then your gospel is different than the Gospel I believe, obviously. You have a different authority. You have a different law-book that you are using. Your law-book is the Bible plus these other things that you are hearing.

CALLER: The reason I called you is that last week you made a statement that there are no more miracles. Christ Himself said in John 14:12, "Truly, truly, I say unto you, whosoever believes in Me shall do the works that I do. Greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto My Father." He said it emphatically so.

HC: You believe that that verse is teaching that we can do miracles?

CALLER: Of course I believe in miracles.

HC: All right. Now let's examine that verse. "The works that I do ye shall do, and greater works than these shall ye do." Now letting the Bible be the authority, we search the Bible to find out what Christ had in view. First of all, let's assume for the moment that He's talking about miracles. Let's look at the miracles He did. He walked on the water, He multiplied the loaves and fishes, He stilled the storm, He raised Lazarus after he had been dead for four days, He healed the ten lepers, and so on and so on.

Now there is nobody, nobody who has done miracles of this nature. It just has never happened. And so we know that that isn't what Christ has in view at all. Secondly, His work was not to come and do miracles. His work was twofold.

First of all, it was to go to the cross to pay for our sins. Now we know of course that Christ does not have that in view, because we cannot add anything to the work that Christ did on the cross. That's His unique work. But He also came to bring the Gospel. He said, "As the Father has sent Me, so send I you." And we read in Luke 4 that He said, "I was sent to preach the Gospel." And that is the work that He also has assigned to us as believers: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel."

Now let's examine that work and see how that stacks up. We find, as we search the Bible, that Jesus preached for about three and a half years. And after that length of time there's a handful of believers. There were 120 in the Upper Room, maybe a little more than 500 in all of Galilee, after three and a half years of preaching.

But then Christ went to the Father, and He began His program to evangelize the world. And on Pentecost Peter preaches one sermon and 3000 are saved. Now he's doing exactly the same work Jesus was doing, but it was a greater work, because far more were responding to the Gospel. You see, that verse has nothing at all to do with miracles, nothing at all. And those who would like to think that it's speaking of miracles are doing so without any Biblical authorization.

CALLER: Okay. I see in Matthew 4:23 . . .

HC: You see? you're not facing this question. You're not facing this verse. This verse very clearly is not talking about miracles.

CALLER: What is it talking about?

HC: About preaching the Gospel. That's the work that Christ came to do.

CALLER: Look at Matthew 4:23.

HC: Matthew 4:23?

CALLER: Let's read it, because He said, Whosoever believes in Him shall do the works that He did. And in Matthew 4:23 He specifically shows . . .

HC: While it is true that He went about all Galilee teaching in their synagogues and preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of diseases of the people, the fact is that healing people is not the work God assigns to the born again believers. There is no statement in the Bible that says that every believer is assigned the task of healing people. But the Bible does indicate that every believer is assigned the task of bringing the Gospel, "As the Father has sent Me, so send I you," or "Ye are My ambassadors," or "Go ye into all the world and bring the Gospel." We are all qualified to declare God's Word.

But now where in the Bible is it intimated that everyone is either qualified or mandated to heal the sick.

CALLER: Now I do agree with you that not everybody has the gift of healing. By the same token, I cannot deny that there is miraculous power of God being performed. In Joel 2:28 He says, "In the latter days I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh."

HC: Acts 2:17 is not talking about miracles at all. It doesn't discuss miracles at all. It says that your young men will prophesy and dream dreams. And that's another subject that we could talk about at another time. But it doesn't talk about miracles.

Now when we go from verse to verse, you see, you are still convinced that they're all talking about miracles. And I understand that, because your authority is different. You come at the Bible differently than I would come at the Bible. And we can visit the rest of the evening, but we'll never come to agreement.

CALLER: Can you tell me if God ever changes? Does God change?

HC: God does not change, but His program does. His program does. For example, before Jesus went to the cross, there were far more miracles done than at any other time in the history of the world before or since, by more people, to more people, in the presence of more people. Not only did Jesus do miracles, but the twelve did miracles, the seventy that were sent out did miracles, and thousands upon thousands of people witnessed these miracles. And all of this, incidentally, was before the Holy Spirit was poured out, which many people forget altogether. This was before the Holy Spirit was poured out.

Now after Christ went to the cross and the Holy Spirit was poured out, we search the Bible and we find that God's program was substantially different. We only find five of the apostles maybe, and certainly the deacon Stephen, who still did some signs or wonders. But as we continue in the Bible and go through the Book of Romans or Ephesians, or Galatians, we find no reference at all to this kind of activity, because that was not normative after the Holy Spirit was poured out. God's program changed.

Now before Jesus came on the scene, there were no miracles being done at all, none whatsoever. It was not God's program. So God is the same, but His program changes. And so those who want to argue that Jesus is the same yesterday, today and forever, that's a fine Bible verse found in Hebrews, but that has nothing to do with the fact that we could expect miracles today because Jesus did them when He was living. It has nothing at all to do with that.

CALLER: I would suggest that you and I might meet together personally, to investigate what God is really saying to us.

HC: No, you see, there would be no way that we could ever come together, because we have different authorities altogether. We have to first start out, if, for example, two judges were going to adjudicate a case, and one was going to use the law of the United States and another was going to use the law of Mexico, they would never come to agreement, because they have different law-books. They have a different authority. And that is the reason on each of these verses that you have quoted we come to different conclusions altogether. Your authority is different. But thank you so much for calling and sharing. Good night.

Divine Healing (557A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I have a question about healing. On a program which we watch on TV they do a great deal of healing, and they always give all the credit to Christ and God. And I'd like to hear what you feel about that healing, and how the Bible relates to it.

HC: The question has to do with so called divine healing. We know from the Bible that God heals. God upholds the universe by His power. He upholds His creation. And any time you receive an injury, or if you're operated, or if you have the flu, or whatever, you are healed by God, who provides His healing mercies. And normally this takes some time. It may be a short period of time or a long period of time. But there is healing.

Sometimes this healing is very dramatic. Sometimes the doctors may conclude that there is no hope, and yet you become well again. This is because doctors have a limited knowledge of the body and the way God cares for our bodies. And if it's God's program, even a person who is very very ill and who has been given up as having no hope can become well again if it is God's will.

The question at issue today is the question of so called miraculous healing. Now miraculous healing has to do with a situation where the ordinary rules by which God governs the universe are set aside. If, for example, I broke my arm and then someone prayed over me and instantaneously my arm would be whole again, that would be miraculous. None of the normal healing processes were included in that. It was just an instantaneous healing.

If I, for example, was born without a hand, or with a crippled hand of some kind so that it was very atrophied, and then someone prayed over me and suddenly I had a whole hand, that would be a miraculous healing. Now this kind of healing is not going on today. That's not possible. The only miracle that God wants us to look at is the miracle of the cross. The Jews came to Jesus seeking for a miracle, and Jesus said, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a miracle. The only miracle I will give you is the miracle of the prophet Jonah (or the sign of the prophet Jonah), who was three days and three nights in the belly of the fish. So the Son of Man will be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth."

However, there is a tremendous interest in physical well-being. The world of course is exceedingly interested in this. You can understand this, because the unsaved people, for them this is all that they have to go for. And so they're very interested in this. They would do anything they can in order to have whole bodies. Many people who call themselves Christians also become tremendously interested in this, and think that this really is the great thing that we have to look for. And so this is very highly featured.

Then they begin to talk about miracles. And of course if you look long enough for a miracle, then you will see a miracle. That doesn't mean a miracle really has occurred, but our minds are very deceptive, and so we think that we have seen a miracle.

CALLER: Well, how do you compare this with 1 Corinthians 12:9, where it says, "To another gifts of healing by the one Spirit."

HC: The question is, what about 1 Corinthians 12:9, where it talks about the fact that within the church God has given various gifts? Now first of all, we have to look at the church in its total expanse. The church has existed for 13,000 years. There have always been a body of believers on this earth someplace. And when we look at the Biblical statement of the church for the first 11,000 years, we find that virtually nobody had the gift of healing. There was one leper cured in 11,000 years, God indicates. There was only one leper cured in the Old Testament, or in Israel, and that was the leper Naaman. Elisha was the one who commanded him to wash in the River Jordan, and he was healed. But there just was no miraculous healing going on of any kind, except just with two or three exceptions of this nature. And yet the church existed. The congregation of Israel was the church just as much as the Baptist Church is the church, or any other congregation is the church. And yet there was no healing going on.

Now Jesus came on the scene, and for three and a half years there was a tremendous amount of healing going on by Christ. I mean miraculous healing, where He healed the ten lepers, He raised Lazarus from the dead, He did acts of healing that were absolutely beyond man's mind to get hold of. The twelve apostles did acts of healing, possibly the seventy who were sent out did acts of healing, and so very briefly the church did have those in it who did do acts of healing.

Well, then Christ went to the cross, and the Holy Spirit was poured out. And we search the Bible, and we find that in the early church for a little while, perhaps six of the apostles and one of the deacons did do acts of healing, for a little while. But no one else did; not another soul.

And then God indicates, when we begin to approach the end of time, when He speaks of signs and wonders, that this is by the activity of Satan. And so we would not expect to find any miracles today. So even though the Bible says that within the church there may be those who do healing or miracles, God nowhere infers that this is going to be a constant or a continuing thing, or something that we could expect at any time in the history of the church. No, that is not normative in any way at all. It is not a bit normative.

CALLER: Is it too strong to say that it's your conclusion that if some group practices healing, or apparently practices healing, that is evidence that they're not good?

HC: Oh, I would not make a judgment of any group. I would only say this, that if I am going to preach the Gospel, then I want to stick to the Bible. Now if someone else wants to preach a gospel and they want to include healing in it, and anything else they want to include in it, that's their business. I can't make a judgment of them. But all I know is that I want to stick with the Bible. And the Bible nowhere infers that God guarantees whole bodies for us. The fact is, the Bible teaches exactly the opposite, that our bodies will wear away, will waste away, and finally we will die. This is the nature of mankind. The Bible teaches that. And the Bible rather teaches us that Christ went to the cross to heal us of our sin-sick souls. For we were straying like sheep. By His stripes we are healed. In other words, Christ went to the cross to give us something infinitely more important than physical healing.

Now if a group wants to speak about healing and make that a big thing in their gospel message, that's their business. And all I know is that there is no miraculous healing going on. I'm very convinced of this from everything I read in the Bible. I know that people see what they want to see, I know that there is a certain amount of chicanery, a certain amount of deceitfulness that's going on, and I know that there's a certain amount of psychosomatic illness, so that when a person places his trust in anything at all then the result of his tension, which might be a real disease, will also disappear. And so it will look like a miraculous healing. And beyond that I do not believe that there is miraculous healing going on.

CALLER: Thank you for your time

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

TONGUES / THE HOLY SPIRIT

Tongues and the Baptism of the Holy Spirit (140A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Would you please tell me who in the Bible ever received the baptism of the Holy Ghost without speaking in tongues?

HC: Who did? The question is raised, "Who in the Bible received the baptism in the Holy Spirit without speaking in tongues?" Well, the 3000 did. They received the baptism in the Holy Spirit without speaking in tongues. We know that the jailer of Philippi was saved, and so he received the baptism in the Holy Spirit, and he didn't speak in tongues. We know that Lydia and her family were saved, and they did not speak in tongues. All the Old Testament believers, they were saved and they did not speak in tongues.

CALLER: The Holy Ghost fell for the first time on the day of Pentecost. Isn't that true?

HC: Well, yes, you are correct that at Pentecost there was a slight change, in that the believers became qualified to be witnesses at the time they were saved. And this is really why it's spoken of as baptism in the Holy Spirit, because the Holy Spirit came to evangelize the world. And so in a strict sense we would have to say yes, only those who were saved after Pentecost were baptized in the Holy Spirit.

But we only read of three places in the Bible where anybody spoke in tongues, or spoke in a foreign language. The first place is in Acts 2. The disciples spoke in a foreign language at the time the Holy Spirit was poured out. There was no evidence there that they were saved at this point in time, but they had entered into this new program of the Holy Spirit to evangelize the world.

In fact, we see the power that came upon Peter, because he preached one sermon and 3000 were saved. Then in Acts 10 we read about the family of Cornelius, at the time they were saved. Now they were representative of the Gentiles in Judea. The situation in Acts 2 was a representation of those who were in Jerusalem. When Cornelius and his family were saved, they also spoke in a foreign language.

And incidentally, the phenomenon of tongues, in the Book of Acts, is quite different from that which we read about in 1 Corinthians 12-14, because in 1 Corinthians 12-14 God declared that there was to be an interpreter, and not more than two or three were to speak in a foreign language. It was quite different. The foreign language that was spoken of in the Book of Acts did not require interpretation, because it was simply a foreign language that was understood by others that were there. And there were more than two or three who spoke in this foreign language.

Now in Acts 19 we have the representatives of the world, the twelve Ephesians. They were out in Asia Minor, outside of Judea. And when they were saved, when they were baptized in the Holy Spirit, they spoke in foreign languages.

In Acts 2 there were people from 18 different nations, and they understood the disciples in their native tongues. In Acts 10 and in Acts 19 God does not tell us what language it was, but neither was there any interpretation. It just simply says that they spoke in a tongue, and it would have to be in a foreign language.

CALLER: It says they spoke in tongues. And Paul said, "I wish they every one of you spoke in tongues," because he said, "I spoke in tongues more than every one of you," but that it's better to prophesy. So how can you explain that?

HC: Well, you see, it was true that in the days when the Bible was being written, it was a real blessing to receive a direct revelation from God. I'm sure that this must have thrilled these individual members of the church of Corinth, that God had actually given them a message. True, it was in an unknown language, but this really edified them, that God would pick on them to give them a message. And they were asked by God to seek to interpret, so that this message could be made available to the whole congregation.

CALLER: You said a while ago that when a person receives salvation, he receives the baptism of the Holy Ghost, too. But in Acts 19 we find John's disciples, who were already saved, who were already believers. But when Paul asked them, "Have you received the Holy Ghost?" they said they had never even heard that the Holy Ghost had come. So how do you explain that? They were believers. To me it means that when you receive salvation, you are not necessarily baptized in the Holy Ghost.

HC: Your question really is: What are we going to do with this account in Acts 19? Apparently it reads here that these Ephesians had been saved, and yet they had not received the Holy Spirit yet. Does this mean that this is a transaction that takes two steps?

Actually, when we read this, this is apparently what it says. But we must remember, we cannot read the Bible in any part without reading everything else that the Bible teaches also. Now in Romans 8:9 the Bible says that if we do not have the Spirit, we are none of His. If the Holy Spirit has not entered into us, we are not His. We are still unsaved.

Secondly, when the Bible uses the word disciple it does not necessarily mean that we are born again. In John 6:66 it speaks about many of the disciples turning away from Jesus, because they did not like what He was saying. Just because they were disciples doesn't mean that they were born again. Neither does the word believe mean that they're born again. As I pointed out earlier, in Luke 8 we read of those who believed for a while, and then they fell away.

When we just read Acts 19, it seems to be talking about born again believers. But when we read it more carefully, we find that they couldn't have been born again, because the Holy Spirit had not come into them. Therefore they could not have been saved. Now we analyze this, and we see that they were baptized into John's baptism. Now John the Baptist's baptism was the Old Testament baptism. It was outmoded. The ceremonial laws had all been done away with. It was an absolutely incorrect baptism to be administered. It was as if it was putting these men under the ceremonial law again. And therefore they had to be re-baptized in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ. And this only happened after Paul came there and acquainted them more clearly with the true Gospel. And that's when salvation came to them.

CALLER: You mentioned John the Baptist. When he was preaching once, he said, "I baptize you in water, to bring you to repentance." "But," he said, "there is one who will come after me who will baptize you with the Holy Ghost and fire." How do you explain that? And you said that the same day you receive salvation, you're baptized in the Holy Ghost, too. So how do you explain it? What you are saying is different from what John is saying.

HC: What does the Bible mean when John the Baptist said, "I baptize you in water, but there comes one after me who will baptize you in the Holy Spirit and fire." When we are born again, we are washed of our sins. We experience the washing of regeneration, or the washing of the Word. The Gospel itself is the water by which we receive the knowledge of salvation.

And we are baptized in fire in the sense that our cleansing is made possible because Christ has become our substitute in enduring the fires of hell on our behalf. We cannot be saved, we cannot be right before God, unless we have paid the penalty for our sins, which the Bible calls for, and which is an eternity in hell. Hellfire must have been endured.

Now Christ endured it on our behalf, and so we are like those who have come out of hell. We have endured eternal fire, and now there is no longer any condemnation that comes against us. And this is to be provided by the Lord Jesus Christ. He went to the cross in order to do this on our behalf.

CALLER: In Revelation 22:18 it says, "If any man adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written therein." But verse 19 says, "And if any man takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the Book of Life." So how do you explain verse 19?

HC: How do we explain Revelation 22:19 where it speaks of those who take away from the book of this prophecy?

The Bible is the whole and complete infallible Word of God. Now if I, for example, go through the Bible and pick and choose, if let's say, I take a verse and say, "I like this verse, but I don't like some other verses that contradict it, and so I'm only going to take that verse and I'm going to build my doctrine from that verse," in that case I am taking away from the Bible. Or if I say that the first eleven chapters of Genesis are simply a parable of some kind, that they're not actually history, and I won't accept them as the divine Word of God, then I am taking away from the Word of God.

CALLER: To me you're taking away speaking in tongues from the Bible. Wouldn't that be a way for your name to be taken out of the Book of Life?

HC: The question is raised: If the Bible speaks about speaking in tongues, and now we say that that's not possible, isn't that taking away from the Word of God? Well, let's see. In the Old Testament we read that the males were to go three times a year to Jerusalem, to offer sacrifices. In fact, in the New Testament, Jesus did that, and the disciples did that. Now we don't do that any longer. Are we taking away from the Word of God?

CALLER: But Jesus said that we are not under the Law anymore. Sacrifice was just a matter of the Law, the way they were supposed to do it, but now we don't have to offer any sacrifices. I think the only sacrifice we offer is our own body, our own flesh.

HC: All right. Now how do you know that? How do you know that we're not under the Law?

CALLER: The Bible says it.

HC: Now that's exactly right. The Bible says it. In other words, in one place the Bible says that we are to do certain things, and in another place the Bible explains further that there comes a time when we are not to do certain things, the very same things. We've let the Bible be its own interpreter.

Now in one place in the Bible it speaks about tongues as a possibility, and it relates the experiences of those in the church in Corinth. But in another place the Bible says that we're not to add to the words of this book once the Bible is completed. And so the Bible has instructed us that this can't be possible any longer. We let the Bible show us and guide us. And so we're not taking away from the Word at all. We're actually making certain that we have the whole Word of God before us.

CALLER: What should we put in place of speaking in tongues? The only way they could know that someone received the baptism of the Holy Ghost is that everybody could hear him speak in tongues. The reason people knew that the 120 on the day of Pentecost received something was that they were heard to be speaking in tongues. And the same with John's disciples. The only way people knew that they had something new, something different, is because they heard them speaking in tongues. Otherwise nobody would know they had received the Holy Ghost.

HC: All right. Now let me ask you. In other words, you're wondering, what evidence is there then of salvation? Let me ask you. When the 3000 were saved, you see, there is only one baptism, the Bible teaches. There is only one baptism. The Bible says, in Ephesians 4, there is only one faith, one baptism. And that baptism is baptism in the Holy Spirit.

CALLER: But look at Hebrews 6.

HC: What do you mean Hebrews 6?

CALLER: I think in Hebrews 6 He spoke of "baptisms," plural, many.

HC: Oh, well, there were Old Testament ablutions, there were Old Testament washings. There was the baptism of John the Baptist. This is what Hebrews 6 has reference to. The Bible has a lot to say about washings, about ablutions. The word baptism is the word washing, or purification.

But when we get to the New Testament, and we're talking about what salvation is, in Ephesians 4 the Bible says there is one baptism. Now that is the washing that occurs at the time we are saved, at the time that we enter into the work of the Holy Spirit, as He evangelizes the world, because at that time we are filled with the Holy Spirit. We are qualified to be a witness.

Now our water baptism has no substance in itself. It is simply a shadow or a reflection of the Spirit baptism that occurred at the time we were born again. And that's the only baptism that there is. There is only that one baptism.

CALLER: Are you talking about baptism in water or the Holy Spirit?

HC: The Holy Spirit saves us, not the water. The water does not save us. The Holy Spirit saves us.

CALLER: Is it Ephesians 4:4, where he said there is one body? What verse is that?

HC: In Ephesians 4, he's saying this in verse 5: "There is one Lord, one faith, one baptism."

CALLER: One Holy Ghost baptism. But in Hebrews he wasn't referring to anything from the Old Testament. When he talks about baptisms in Hebrews, he didn't say how many.

HC: No. In Hebrews 6 we simply have an outline of everything that God teaches about salvation. We have the whole Old Testament that speaks about salvation. We have the whole New Testament that speaks about salvation. The Book of Hebrews has a lot to say about the Old Testament laws, and how they were pointing to salvation. All of this is in view here in Hebrews 6. The whole Scripture actually is in view. And the Scripture teaches about many ablutions: the washing of the priest in the temple, the baptism of Jesus, and of course the baptism in the Holy Spirit, which is the New Testament baptism. But when we get to Ephesians 4, it cuts through all this and says, now when we get all done with this, when we're going to look at what salvation is, there is one body, there is one Spirit, there is one hope, there is one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God.

Now you asked an earlier question, "What is the evidence of salvation, if there is no speaking in tongues?" Actually, what is ever the evidence of salvation? The outward evidence is non-existent. There is no outward evidence. The only evidence is what has happened within the heart of a man, in that he has become born again, in that he finds in his life an earnest desire to live for Christ.

Now when the 3000 were saved in Acts 2, there was no outward evidence that they were saved, but they were saved. They didn't speak in tongues. The Bible doesn't say that at all.

CALLER: That's the only evidence they had of receiving the Holy Ghost.

HC: No, that is not taught anywhere in the Bible. Nowhere in the Bible is that taught. There are gospels that teach that. But that is not the Gospel of the Bible. When the jailer of Philippi was saved he didn't speak in tongues. When the Ethiopian eunuch was saved, he didn't speak in a tongue, when Lydia was saved, she didn't speak in a tongue.

CALLER: They didn't record that, but if we just build on Acts 19, okay. In Isaiah 28:11 it says, "With stammering lips and another tongue will He speak to these people." What does that mean?

HC: Well, now you've come to a very, very ominous passage. You see, in 1 Corinthians 14 God has something terrible to say, right in the context of this phenomenon of the people at Corinth speaking in a tongue. He says in verse 20, "Be babes in evil," or "Be babes in malice." Now why would He say that? That's a terrible thing to put in here, right when He's talking about what appears to be a joyful thing, of receiving information from God in an unknown language. He says, "Be babes in malice, but in thinking be mature. In the Law it is written, By men of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners will I speak to this people, And even then they will not listen to Me, says the Lord." Thus tongues are a sign (or a miracle) not for believers, but for unbelievers, while prophesy is not for unbelievers but for believers.

Now let's go back to the Law then to find out what God refers to. Let's first of all go to Deuteronomy 28, because that is the initial reference. And then we'll look at Isaiah 28.

Now in Deuteronomy 28 God is talking to Israel before they went into the land of Canaan. And in verse 47 He is warning them what will happen if they're not satisfied with the salvation He has given them. He says in verse 47 of Deuteronomy 28: "Because you did not serve the Lord your God with joyfulness and gladness of heart, by reason of the abundance of all things [in other words, you weren't satisfied with what I gave you], therefore, you shall serve your enemies whom the Lord will send against you in hunger and thirst, in nakedness and in want of all things. And He will put His yoke of iron upon your neck, until He has destroyed you. The Lord will bring a nation against you from afar, from the end of the earth, as swift as the eagle flies, a nation whose language you do not understand, a nation of stern countenance, who shall not regard the person of the old or show favor to the young. And they shall destroy you."

In other words, God is saying, "If you are not satisfied with My salvation, then I'm going to come against you with people whose language you do not understand, and they're going to destroy you as a judgment of Mine."

Now this was re-emphasized in Isaiah 28. In Isaiah 28:11 we read, "Nay, but by men of strange lips and with an alien tongue the Lord will speak to this people, to whom He has said, This is rest. Give rest to the weary. And this is repose." In other words, the true rest that God is offering is the Gospel of salvation. "But they would not hear. Therefore the word of the Lord will be to them precept upon precept, precept upon precept", that is, the word of the Lord will be their judge. It is the Sword of the Spirit to judge them. "here a little, there a little, that they may go and fall backward, and be broken and snared and taken."

Now God is saying that because Israel would not listen to the Word of God, He would bring a people with strange lips and with an alien tongue against them, to judge them. And that nation was the nation of Babylon, the nation that they played the harlot with. And eventually Babylon destroyed Israel. They are the nation that came with a foreign language.

This is re-emphasized in Jeremiah 5. In verse 15 we read, "Behold, I am bringing upon you a nation from afar, O House of Israel, says the Lord. It is an enduring nation. It is an ancient nation, a nation whose language you do not know, nor can you understand what they say. Their quiver is like an open tomb. They are all mighty men. They shall eat up your harvest and your food. They shall eat up your sons and your daughters. They shall eat up your flocks and your herds. They shall eat up your vines. They shall destroy with the sword."

In other words, these are the references that God is making in 1 Corinthians 14. And He's saying that God, because God is the author of the Word of God, even though He used the apostle Paul to speak, is saying, "If you aren't satisfied with the Gospel I give you, I'm going to come against you with a people with a language you do not understand. And it's going to come against the unbelievers in the church, not the believers. They're going to be interested in the true Word of God, in prophecy. But the unbelievers, it's a miracle for the unbelievers. And I'm going to destroy you by it." That is what God is teaching.

CALLER: Only unbelievers spoke in tongues at that time?

HC: No. I'm saying this, that God set up a testing program. Now in the Old Testament, in the Garden of Eden, God set up a testing program. He put a tree in the Garden, and this was to reveal whether Adam and Eve would be faithful in being obedient to God. And of course they failed the test. Eventually they ate of the tree they should not have eaten.

Now in 1 Corinthians 12-14, God effectively has set up an identical testing program. In the church of Corinth 2000 years ago, there was a legitimate phenomenon of tongues, in which God actually spoke to these people in an unknown language. Okay, that's recorded for us. But that is going to be used as a testing program. That is, it will be misused at the end of time, as an assault on the church, to snare people away from the true Gospel. And by means of this, God will bring judgment against the church, because they have not been satisfied with the Gospel that He has offered them. He is going to bring an assault against the church. This is the ominous, the terrible implication of 1 Corinthians 14:21.

CALLER: As far as I can understand, you are against speaking in tongues, right? What about verse 39?

HC: Your question is, In 1 Corinthians 14:39, where it says that we're not to forbid speaking in tongues, how are we to look at that? Well, in the church at Corinth, obviously they were not to forbid speaking in tongues, because it was a legitimate possibility in that day. But the Bible itself indicates that it no longer is possible because of what we read in Revelation 22:18.

So if you want to speak in a tongue, that is your privilege. God allows people to go their own way in the world, and people do all kinds of things. You can speak in a tongue, you can look for visions, you can do anything that you wish. You can build your gospel any way that you would like to. That is your privilege.

But if I'm going to be true to the Word of God and let it be circumscribed by the Word itself, by the Bible itself, then I personally would never never want to be looking for some kind of a message from God in an unknown language or in a known language, because then I would know I am going contrary to the Bible. I want to listen only to the Bible as the revealed Word of God.

Thank you so much for calling.

Understanding the Baptism of the Holy Spirit (234A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I'd like to ask a question about baptism in the Holy Spirit, if you could explain how it works, as far as speaking in tongues is concerned? And also some scriptures backing up the baptism in the Holy Spirit. I understand that the Holy Spirit is a free gift of God, upon accepting Jesus Christ. And so I just wondered, why would a person have to be specially baptized in the Holy Spirit? And I'd like to take my answer on the radio.

HC: All right. Fine. Good night.

Our caller has raised a question concerning what the Bible means by baptism in the Holy Spirit, and how that might relate to tongues. Actually, there is no relationship, let's first of all talk about baptism in the Holy Spirit. In the Old Testament God used four signs particularly to officially declare what salvation really was, or pointing to salvation.

There was circumcision. And that would indicate that even as the foreskin of a person's body was cut off, so we must have the foreskin of our heart cut off. We must be cut away from our flesh and its sinful lusts. Or another expression that was used was the burnt offering. They would offer a meal offering or an animal sacrifice as a burnt offering. And that was pointing to Christ, who became our burnt offering.

A third sign was that of the shedding of blood, of a turtledove, or a lamb, or an ox, pointing to the shed blood of the Lord Jesus Christ, the fact that Christ would endure the wrath of God for our sins.

A fourth sign that was used in the Old Testament was that of water ablutions, again to ceremonially indicate that a person had been cleansed of his sins. Now that particular sign, the washing in water, was picked up by God as the language that would speak about what salvation constituted following Pentecost.

Actually, there was a shift, a very slight shift, in the impact of salvation after Pentecost. Basically, salvation was not changed. In order to be saved, one had to have his sins washed away, one had to become born again, one had to become a new creature in Christ. He had to experience the resurrection of his soul. And the Holy Spirit, who incidentally is eternal God, would be given to the person who had become saved.

But following Pentecost, or beginning with Pentecost, God added one additional dimension, and that is, since at Pentecost God began His work to evangelize the world, and in His program to evangelize the world He would utilize every born again believer, by qualifying him at the point of salvation to be an evangelist, or to be a witness, therefore God utilized a different expression in talking about salvation. Christ began to talk about being baptized in the Holy Spirit.

We read this, for example, in the Gospel of John and in the Gospel of Luke or Matthew. But the last time we read about it is in Acts 1. Jesus is saying there in verse 5, "For John baptized with water [that's speaking of one of the Old Testament signs, because John the Baptist was a prophet who was on the Old Testament side of the cross], but before many days you shall be baptized in the Holy Spirit." That is, before many days you will become qualified in My New Testament program of not only being saved, but being ready to be a witness. You will be filled with the Holy Spirit in the sense that you will be qualified to be a witness for Me. And this would be characteristic of every New Testament believer.

And so when we are saved, we can speak of the fact that we have been baptized in the Holy Spirit. The word baptize means to wash or to cleanse, to purify. And therefore it denotes that our sins have been washed away, and we have become identified with the Holy Spirit, in His New Testament program to evangelize the world. We are filled with the Spirit from the time that we are saved, and that is a phrase that simply says that we have become qualified to be a witness. That is what baptism in the Holy Spirit has to do with.

Now it has nothing to do with miracles or signs or wonders, or whatever. It is true that when God first begins His program to evangelize the world, in the four areas particularly singled out by Christ to the disciples, God did at least one miracle to indicate to them that He meant exactly what He said, and also to give us further insights into the nature of His program to evangelize the world.

And so in Acts 1:8 He said, "You shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you shall be My witnesses, in Jerusalem, in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth." And so we find in the Book of Acts one illustration in each of these places of a special miracle, to indicate that God meant exactly this, that this is where the Word of God was to be sent, in God's program to evangelize the world.

Jerusalem of course is the record of Pentecost, in Acts 2. Samaria is the record of Acts 8, when the Samaritans believed. Judea is the record of Acts 10, when the family of Cornelius was saved. They were Romans, they were Gentiles, living up in Caesarea. And in Acts 19 we read about the twelve Ephesians who were saved, and that is the record of the ends of all the earth.

Having done that, we never find another miracle that occurs at the time that we are saved.

Now when we talk about tongues, we're talking about something altogether different. In the letter of Paul to the church at Corinth, in the 12th and 13th and 14th chapters, we do find that in that early church there was a phenomenon known as tongues, or speaking in an unknown language. This was a gift that was given to a few in the church at Corinth, including Paul, whereby certain individuals would receive information from God in an unknown language. It bears no relationship to baptism in the Holy Spirit. That is, this was not a gift that was bestowed upon them at the time they were saved. This was simply a gift that did occur in the church at Corinth to various believers there.

And they were instructed to pray that they might interpret. The purpose of interpreting was so that this information that was given to them from God might also be available to the whole congregation. This was a possible phenomenon in that day, because God had not completed the Bible as yet. The holy scriptures that they had had been written down and consisted primarily of the Old Testament. Slowly on letters of Paul were being circulated among the churches. But fundamentally, they had only the Old Testament. And God was still providing information in addition. Peter received a vision. The apostle John received visions on the island of Patmos. Paul received visions. Agabus received a vision. This was possible in that day because the Bible was not complete.

But then, approximately AD 95, God completed the Bible. God is the author of the Bible, and in the last chapter of the Bible He declared in Revelation 22:18: "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." And with that statement God closed off the possibility of any further information coming from God outside of what He had already written in His Word, the Bible. From that point on we would never expect anyone to receive a vision from God, a voice, a tongue, or whatever, because God would not violate His own rules. God has declared, "I've given you the Word now." Effectively He is saying to us, "I've given you My Word, the revelation of My will. Now you are to study it, you are to be obedient to it." And so we are not to expect any phenomenon like that which has occurred at various times during the time when the Bible was not yet completed, when individuals received visions, or when they spoke in a tongue.

Now there are people throughout the New Testament period, following AD 95, who have declared that they did receive a vision. And some of these have been written up, and they sound very glorious, and they sound very meaningful. And there are people today who still claim they receive visions, and there are people who say that they speak in tongues.

Well, all of this activity may take place. But based upon what the Bible declares, we know that it cannot be from God. It might be out of their own minds. It might be hallucinatory. Our minds are very tricky, you know. Or it might even be from an evil source.

And so we must not expect this gift today. Now anyone at all can be baptized in the Holy Spirit, if he will recognize that he is a sinner, that he is under the wrath of God because of his sins, and that there's no way that he can help himself out of this terrible situation in which he finds himself. And if he will call upon God for mercy, and if he will begin to trust in what the Bible declares concerning the Lord Jesus Christ, that He will forgive his sins if he will trust in Him, then he too can be saved. And when he is saved, when he is born again, then he has been baptized in the Holy Spirit. His sins have been washed away, and he has become identified with the Holy Spirit in His New Testament program to evangelize the world.

More than that, the Holy Spirit has taken up his abode within him.

Well, thank you for that question.

The Pouring Out of the Holy Spirit in Joel 2:28-31 Explained (259C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question for you. I would like to have you explain Joel 2:28 through 31. I would like to know what period in time he is speaking of. It sounds to me as though he was talking to men of that day, but then I read down in Joel 2, and it sounds as if all of this is to be followed by Judgment Day. So I'm just a little bit confused about whether the time is yet to come for all of these things he's talking about, or whether they have already come.

HC: All right. I'll be happy to speak on that. We have before us a question concerning the meaning and understanding of Joel 2:28-32. Now this is an excellent passage to give us a lesson in how to understand the Old Testament Scriptures. We have here a passage in which God declares, through the prophet Joel:

And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh. Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions. Even upon the menservants and the maidservants in those days, I will pour out My Spirit. And I will give portents in the heavens and on the earth, blood and fire and columns of smoke. The sun shall be turned to darkness and the moon to blood, before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes. And it shall come to pass that all who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be delivered, for in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those who escape, as the Lord has said. And among the survivors shall be those whom the Lord calls.

Now in trying to understand a passage, one of the principles that we must follow is to search the Bible to see if there is anything else that relates to it. Now in this particular instance, we have very excellent information at our fingertips, because we find this very same passage is quoted, not absolutely precisely, but very close to precisely, in Acts 2, where at the time that the Holy Spirit was poured out, on that Pentecost Day back in AD 33, the apostles are beginning to speak in foreign languages, and there are these other signs the tongues of fire on their heads, and the sound of the rushing wind. And now Peter stands up and says that "This is what was spoken by the prophet Joel."

And then, beginning in verse 17 of Acts 2, down through verse 21, he quotes these very same verses, not completely exactly, but very close to exactly. For example, in the first phrase, in Joel 2:28 it says, "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh." Well, when Peter quotes it, he, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, adds a little bit more truth. And he says, "And in the last days it shall be, God declares, that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh." And then he goes on and continues the quotation.

And so we know immediately that Joel 2, beginning with verse 28 to verse 32, is that which was prophesied concerning the pouring out of the Holy Spirit, or the beginning of God's program to evangelize the world. Now as one of the aspects of evangelizing the world, it was God's purpose that every believer would become a prophet, that is, would be qualified by God to become a witness.

Before Pentecost in AD 33, only occasionally a believer was so qualified. Only occasionally was there a prophet raised up who was under the activity of the Holy Spirit and would be qualified to be a spokesman for God. But it was God's intention that, beginning with Pentecost, immediately after Christ ascended to Heaven, after paying for our sins at the cross, God would begin to evangelize the world, and He would do this by putting His Spirit on all believers, qualifying them to be a witness.

Now the difficult language is verse 30 of Joel 2: "And I will give portents in the heavens and on the earth, blood and fire and columns of smoke." And then the next verse: "The sun shall be turned to darkness, and the moon to blood before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes." And that is also quoted in Acts 2, because in verse 19 of Acts 2 we read, "And I will show wonders in the heavens and signs on the earth beneath, blood and fire and vapor of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood before the day of the Lord comes, the great and manifest day."

Now is this talking about something different, or is this also to be understood as part of the event that is being described here in Acts 2, the pouring out of the Holy Spirit? Now it's certainly part of the same quotation. And God has declared: "This is what was spoken by the prophet Joel." And he's referring to it in the present tense, that this is what has occurred.

Moreover, in verse 21 of Acts 2, it says, "And it shall be that whoever calls on the Name of the Lord shall be saved," which is taken over from Joel 2:32: "And it shall come to pass that all who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be delivered. For in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those who escape, as the Lord has said. And among the survivors shall be those whom the Lord calls." Now from Acts 2:21 we know that this is talking about the fact that the Gospel would go into all the world. And anyone from any nation, who believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, would be saved. And this is the second part of God's program to evangelize the world. The first part was that every believer would be qualified to be a witness. That's spoken of in Acts 2:17.

The second part is that God the Holy Spirit would bring believers forth from every nation. And that is Acts 2:21. And since Acts 2:21 is covering most of the information of Joel 2:32, and since Joel 2:30 and 31 is all part of the same context that is being quoted in Acts 2, as being fulfilled at the day of Pentecost back in AD 33, we know that we must read verses 30 and 31 and 32 of Joel 2 as being related to that which happened in AD 33.

Now let's see if we can do a little bit better work with this. First of all, let's look at verse 31. That's the easiest one to look at. "The sun shall be turned to darkness and the moon to blood before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes." Now there are two days spoken of in the Bible that relate to the sun being turned into darkness. One of these days is the Judgment Day of the last day, at the very end of time. We find, for example, in Revelation 6, where God declares in verse 12: "When he opened the sixth seal, I looked and behold, there was a great earthquake. And the sun became black as sackcloth."

And we read in Matthew 24:29, in speaking about the end of time, when Christ would return in judgment: "Immediately after the tribulation of those days, the sun will be darkened." And so we know that this is one possibility. But Judgment Day is at the end of time. So that does not relate directly to the prophecy of Joel 2, because Acts 2 indicates that it was fulfilled back in AD 33.

Well, we also discover that when Christ hung on the cross, the sun did not give its light. Remember? Over the whole world the sun's light was hid for three hours. And so the sun was turned to darkness at that time.

Now at the same time, if the sun is turned to darkness, the moon would not give its light, or it would be turned to blood. That has really a double meaning, the moon being turned to blood, because the moon, well, let me give the physical meaning first. And then we'll look at the spiritual meaning perhaps as an afterthought.

But if the sun does not shine, then the moon does not shine, because the moon gets its light as reflected light from the sun. And so we see the same thing in Revelation 6:12, where it says, "The full moon became like blood," at the time that the sun became black as sackcloth. That's at the end of time.

But when Jesus hung on the cross, the sun did not shine. And therefore the moon would not have given its light. Now was the cross a "great and terrible day"? Well, yes. It was Judgment Day, wasn't it? What kind of Judgment Day? Well, you see, those who are not saved, who do not have Christ as their Savior, must answer to God on the last day for all of their sins. And they will be condemned by God, and they will be cast into hell, to begin to suffer the penalty of God for their sins. That's Judgment Day, at which time the sun will be turned to darkness and the moon to blood.

But there is also Judgment Day at the cross, because Jesus had become sin for us. He was standing before God as a guilty sinner on our behalf, and He was condemned, exactly as the unsaved will be condemned on the last day. He was condemned for our sins, and God began to pour out His wrath on Him, and Christ did endure the equivalent of an eternity in hell for our sins. This all took place when Christ hung on the cross, that was Judgment Day. That was the "great and terrible day of the Lord" just as much as the last day is a great and terrible day of the Lord.

And so verse 31 fits into the context. You see, it's speaking here about an event that would occur when Christ would go to the cross, and the Holy Spirit would be poured out. And here it says that in connection with this, "the sun shall be turned to darkness, and the moon to blood before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes," that is, at the time that Christ went to the cross to endure the wrath of God for our sins. This was the great and terrible day of the Lord spoken of in Joel 2:31.

Now let's go back to verse 30 and see if we can figure that one out. "And I will give portents in the heavens and on the earth, blood and fire and columns of smoke." Now this is language that is actually taken from the Old Testament. Back in II Samuel we find a song of praise penned by David, who is a great type of Christ, incidentally, in II Samuel 22. And he wrote this psalm or this song of praise, which is also found in Psalm 18, incidentally, at the time that he was delivered from the hand of all of his enemies and from the hand of Saul.

Now David is a great Messianic type. He is a type of Christ Himself. And even as David was literally delivered from the hand of his literal enemies, so Christ went to the cross, and there He obtained victory over all of the enemies that sought to destroy Him, namely, Satan and all of his hosts.

And so we read this song of praise, and we find that it is the language of Christ hanging on the cross, enduring hell. II Samuel 22:5: "For the waves of death encompassed me. The torrents of perdition assailed me. The cords of Sheol entangled me. The snares of death confronted me." That is the language of Christ enduring hell for our sins.

Then notice this song going on. Notice verse 8 of II Samuel 22: "Then the earth reeled and rocked. The foundations of the heavens trembled and quaked, because He was angry. Smoke went up from His nostrils and devouring fire from His mouth. Glowing coals flamed forth from Him. He bowed the heavens and came down. Thick darkness was under His feet." And so on and so on.

Now this is poetic language describing the majestic nature of God, as He poured out His wrath on Christ on the one hand, and on the other hand as He brought victory over Satan and all the enemies of God. And notice how similar this language is to Joel 2:30 or Acts 2:19, "And I will show wonders in the heaven above and signs on the earth, blood and fire and vapor of smoke." Now to some degree this was literal. The sun was darkened, the moon did not give its light. There was a great earthquake. These literal signs were there. But it is actually going beyond this, and giving us a paean of praise, a song of praise, illustrating the majesty of God, as God's wrath is poured out, and as victory is obtained over the wicked.

And so verse 19 of Acts 2 and Joel 2:30 are also speaking of Christ on the cross, as He gets victory over sin, which is a prelude to the pouring out of the Holy Spirit, or a prelude to God's program to evangelize the world.

Now this brings us to verse 32 of Joel 2: "And it shall come to pass that all who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be delivered." And we know from Acts 2:20 that this is referring to Christ's promise that whoever turns to the Lord Jesus Christ will be saved.

Now this gives us a little bit of insight as to who these are who will bring the Gospel. "For in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those who escape, as the Lord has said. And among the survivors shall be those whom the Lord calls." Now that again is somewhat ambiguous language. It's not quoted in Acts 2, but it is totally a part of the context of what is quoted in Acts 2:32. It is directly related. It is in the same context. It says, "All who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be delivered, for in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be those who escape." And so it's got to be talking about the events that began with the cross, and were coming into full fruition when the Holy Spirit was poured out in AD 33, immediately after the cross.

Now you see, what God is saying here is that Mount Zion and Jerusalem effectively are figures of the body of believers that is sent forth into the world to bring the Gospel. Mount Zion is a synonym, in this instance, of the body of believers. Now true, the first believers came from Jerusalem. But it actually is a figure that goes on throughout the New Testament period, because the phrase before is covering the whole New Testament period. "It shall come to pass that all who call upon the Name of the Lord shall be saved (or shall be delivered)." And that's a promise that continues throughout the New Testament period.

And so Mount Zion and Jerusalem, therefore, while literally began as the believers who were Jews, living in Jerusalem, is actually expanded to include all who are born again believers, and who are those who are being saved. Now it says they "shall be those who escape." Escape what? Well, what does the New Testament say? "How shall ye escape, if ye neglect so great salvation?" Escape what? The wrath of God for our sins. And so anyone who is a born again believer is included amongst those who escape. They are the survivors, they are those who are not subject to judgment - "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus" - they are the ones whom God has called and predestined to be His own.

Now I could go on in Joel 3, which is part of the same context. We see that verses 1 and 2 are also talking about the cross. But that's another subject altogether.

What Does it Mean to be Baptized in the Holy Spirit? (314B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'd like to talk about the baptism in the Holy Ghost. There's something special that comes after the initial conversion I believe, and I know that we receive the fullness of the Holy Ghost right at conversion, but I hear on TV, on Christian television and from some people at school, about certain people not being baptized in the Holy Ghost yet. And yet they're Christians. And they turn to Luke 4:1, where it says, "And Jesus, being full of the Holy Ghost, returned from Jordan and went into the wilderness." One person I talked to said that he always had the Spirit but that at this one time he was filled with that Spirit, for the work that he had to do. Now I just would like to know if you can make this clearer for me.

HC: The question that is raised is concerning the nature of being baptized in the Holy Spirit, or becoming filled with the Holy Spirit. Are we saved, and then later on baptized in the Holy Spirit? Are we saved, and later on filled with the Holy Spirit?

Actually, the Bible teaches, in Ephesians 4, I believe that there is one baptism. There are not two or three baptisms. There's only one baptism. And God speaks of this baptism (Ephesians 4:5 is the verse I'm thinking of). Actually, this baptism is the baptism we receive in the Spirit at the time that we are saved, at the time we become born again. That's the only baptism the Bible knows about.

Now it's true the Bible speaks of water baptism. But water baptism is merely a shadow or a reflection of the Spirit baptism, of the washing of our sins. Baptism means to be washed or to be cleansed, or to be purified.

Now the phrase, "baptism in the Holy Spirit," really finds Biblical emphasis beginning with Pentecost. The reason for this is that back in the Old Testament God used other signs and figures than this in emphasizing who were really saved. He did use baptism, but He also spoke of circumcision. He spoke of burnt offerings and of blood sacrifices, that were pointing to the coming Messiah. But circumcision was really the sign that someone received to indicate that they had become identified with the body of Christ.

But when the Old Testament believer was saved, he was saved exactly as we are saved. The Holy Spirit came into his life. The Bible says in Romans 8:9 that unless we have the Holy Spirit we are none of His. When they were saved, they received the Holy Spirit just as we do. But they were not mandated, nor were they qualified, to be a witness. Only occasionally in the Old Testament do we read of someone who was filled with the Holy Spirit. That is, this is language to indicate that they had been qualified to be a witness.

Now John the Baptist was filled with the Holy Spirit from his mother's womb. His mother Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit as she exclaimed concerning the Messiah. And His father Zechariah was filled with the Holy Spirit. All of this happened before Pentecost.

But that was the unusual kind of thing. Ordinarily a person was not filled with the Holy Spirit. That is, God did not use this language when He spoke about the ordinary believer. But when we come to Pentecost, two things have happened. First of all, all the Old Testament signs have been completed in Christ. Never again is there to be circumcision, never again is there to be a blood sacrifice, is there to be a burnt offering.

But God did pick out of the Old Testament signs the idea of baptism, and highlighted that as the sign to be employed that showed that we had been baptized in the Holy Spirit. But the bigger piece of information was that beginning with Pentecost, every born again believer was qualified to be a witness, because you see, at Pentecost God began His program to evangelize the world. The pouring out of the Holy Spirit, which we read about in Joel's prophecy and in Isaiah, and other passages in the Old Testament, and which was fulfilled at Pentecost, was speaking of the time when God would begin to evangelize the world.

Now in evangelizing the world two things would happen. Number one, God would begin to draw believers out of every nation. Satan had been conquered at the cross, and it was God's program to begin to draw believers out of every nation. That's the first big thing that happened. And we see this dramatically of course on Pentecost afternoon, as three thousand are saved from eighteen different nations.

Secondly, every believer from now on is qualified to be a witness, so that the work of bringing in the saved from all of the different nations would be accomplished through the testimony, through the witnessing of believers as they're found throughout the world. And God referred to this qualification as being filled with the Spirit.

So you see, our salvation is the same as in the Old Testament, but now we're all like Old Testament prophets. We are filled with the Spirit from the moment we're saved. That is, this is speaking of the fact that we have become qualified to be a witness.

There is no such thing as a second baptism. There are blessings, of course, that keep coming if we're saved. You can speak about a second or third or fourth or a ninth or a twelfth or a nineteenth blessing. Every day God's blessings are renewed. But insofar as baptism is concerned, that occurred at the time we were saved, and only then.

There are a lot of gospels around today. The Bible tells us that there would be a lot of other gospels. But there can only be one true Gospel. And the true Gospel is circumscribed by the Bible. The Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ (the revelation of this Gospel) is given to us in the Word of God, the Bible. The Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word.

Now today there are lots of gospels that talk about the Lord Jesus, that talk about baptism, and talk about the blood of Christ, and all of these things. But any gospel that looks to some other source for divine truth than the Bible by definition must be another gospel, because the moment you say the Bible is the Word of God, and then you say, but there's also the Word of God here or there, in a vision or a voice or a tongue, or an angel confrontation, or whatever you think it is, the moment you say that that, too, is the divine Word, then obviously you've got a different sourcebook. You've got the Bible plus this other information. And therefore, by definition it's another gospel.

And of course, if you have another gospel, then you're going to come to a lot of different conclusions about what the Bible teaches, because you'll evaluate, you'll interpret the Bible not only by the Bible itself but also by the information you received from these other sources.

CALLER: There's one TV show on . . .

HC: Yes, but I don't like to talk about any names or movements or churches, or anything like that. If you just want to mention the TV show and not mention any names . . .

CALLER: No, I wasn't going to mention the name. They just really push the baptism of the Spirit. The people that they have on they let on are all Christians, but they prefer that they have this emotional thing which they refer to as the baptism in the Holy Spirit, where they've all spoken in tongues, and that is the evidence of their being filled with the Holy Spirit. They had been saved a long time before that, probably.

HC: Now, you see, the definition of the true Gospel has to do with what the Bible is. Now if you hold that divine truth comes from another source...in an unknown language like a tongue, or from a vision, or whatever... then you have a gospel, that's true. And you can believe you're saved, and you can call yourself a Christian, and you can talk about the blood of Christ. But you're saved on a different basis than the bible. You've got a different kind of a gospel than the Gospel of the Bible.

We cannot decide what the Gospel is by the lives of people. We can decide what the Gospel is by the Bible. And so the thing you have to listen to is the Word of God, the Bible. That is the only authoritative source of truth.

CALLER: Okay. I believe that. I know that's true. At times I had been wondering if there was something from God that I hadn't received. And at the same time I knew that that wasn't true. I knew that I had the Holy Spirit right in the beginning. But still, you know, hearing some of my friends say this and that, and telling about their church, where some of these things happen, some of these movings of the Spirit, I was getting kind of shaky about it, wondering why it hadn't happened to me.

HC: Yes. The Bible indicates that the just shall live by faith. The Bible indicates that we don't walk by sight. The Bible indicates that signs and wonders were done when Jesus was on earth, before the Holy Spirit was poured out. Signs and wonders continued for a little while after the Holy Spirit was poured out. But whenever the Bible talks about signs and wonders near the end of time, it always speaks of it as events that do not come from God.

We're living in a day when we really have to place our trust only in the Bible. We have to be more careful than ever. God warns, in Matthew 24:24, that false prophets and false Christs will arise with signs and wonders, to lead astray if possible even the elect.

CALLER: This one church I went to looked so real. I mean, it was full of people. And a couple of people stood up, and God supposedly spoke through them. It all looked so real. And I still don't know if it was or not . . . or what.

HC: The only source of divine truth is the Bible. And anything else, any gospel at all that looks outside of the Bible for divine truth, by definition it's another gospel. And God warns about this in Revelation 22:18: "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." And so we live in a free land, where we can hold any kind of a gospel that we would like. And that's a wonderful thing, that we live in this kind of a land.

CALLER: But at this church they proclaim the Word of God.

HC: Yes. But you see, if I would have a gospel where part of the divine truth that I regard as my authority is the Bible, then of course I'm going to talk about the Bible, and I'm going to use the language of the Bible. And I may have some correct information, to some degree, from the Bible.

But if I have more than the Bible as my source of divine truth then obviously my authority is wider than the Bible, isn't it? And God warns that we're not to listen to anything outside of the Bible as divine. We're not to add to the words of this book. If I read the Bible and I say, "That's the Word of God," fine. If I have a vision and I say, "That's the Word of God," then I have added to the Bible, haven't I? I've got two sources now. I've got the Bible, and I've got the information that came to me from the vision. And God says if that's the case, then I'm still subject to the plagues that are written in this Bible.

More than that, you'll remember in Matthew 24:24 Jesus said that these false prophets will deceive, if possible, even the elect. Now the elect are the born again believers. They're in the church where the true Gospel ought to be proclaimed, and yet other gospels will look so much like the true Gospel that even the elect would be deceived, if that were possible. And so this indicates how careful we have to be to make sure that the gospel we follow is circumscribed by the Bible.

CALLER: Okay. Now just one more little thing. Do you think I should stay away from this church then?

HC: All I can tell you is that if you want the true Gospel, you should go where the true Gospel is being proclaimed.

CALLER: I do go to a church like that.

HC: All right. Then that's where you ought to go. And the Bible says in Second John 10 that if anyone brings another gospel or another doctrine, you're not to give them any greeting.

CALLER: Okay.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Seeking the Gifts of the Holy Spirit (373A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: In I Corinthians 12, 13 and 14 it talks about the gifts of the Holy Spirit, and that we ought to actively seek after these gifts. And I was wondering how we are to go about doing this. Do you just ask for them and hope to receive them, or what?

HC: The Bible, in I Corinthians 12-14, says, "Seek especially to prophesy." Remember that?

CALLER: Yes.

HC: Now why does it say, "especially to prophesy"? You see, the only person who legitimately is a prophet in the eyes of God is the born again believer. And since Pentecost every born again believer, man, woman or child, is given the office of a prophet. The gift that we really are to seek is that we might be qualified by God to declare God's Word. That's what prophesying really means in the broadest sense, to declare God's Word.

Now the source of God's Word is the Bible. This is what we are to declare to others. Now God also speaks about other gifts. There is the gift of faith, and every born again believer has the gift of faith. Now there are other gifts. There's the gift of teaching. Some are better teachers, more qualified to be a teacher than others. But every believer is qualified to be a witness, and that is what we are to seek, to make sure that we are born again.

Now in times past there were some very special gifts, which are also named in I Corinthians 12-14. For example, there was the gift of being able to do miracles. Before the Holy Spirit was poured out, and this is always kind of an amazing thing to me. You know, there are people today who speak about the gifts of the Spirit and relate this to Pentecost. They want to identify with Pentecost, and then they make a big thing about the gifts of the Spirit. And they particularly focus on gifts like doing miracles, or healing. But the fact is that there were far more people who were gifted by God to heal and to do miracles before Pentecost than after Pentecost. And that is never mentioned. But that is the fact.

When Christ was on earth, there were the seventy that went out, there were the apostles, and of course there was Jesus Himself. They had special gifts of being able to do miracles, or being able to heal. After Pentecost we only read of five of the apostles - that is all - there's not another individual after Pentecost recorded in the Bible who was able to heal or do miracles. We read it of Peter and James and John and Philip and Paul. These are the only ones.

And so it is true, what I Corinthians 12-14 indicates, that there were some who had the gift of healing and of doing miracles. But actually, to do miracles or healing is not really an integral part of God's ongoing program. Healing and doing miracles is to bring signs. The word sign in the New Testament is the word miracle. And Jesus already, when He was on earth, warned the Jews, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign," or for a miracle.

Later on we read that we are to walk by faith, "The just shall live by faith," not by sight. In other words, miracles and healings, miraculous healings, are not a part of God's salvation program, even though for a little while some did this, during the days when the Bible was still being prepared.

Now there was also the gift of speaking in heavenly languages, called tongues, in I Corinthians 12-14. This was at a time before the Bible was completed. It was still the day when an apostle could receive a vision from God, or an individual might receive an angel confrontation, or he may receive a message from God in a dream. All of this was possible, because the Bible was not complete.

And so also it was true in the church at Corinth. There were some who received some kind of a message from God in a heavenly language, and they were admonished to be sure to have someone interpret it, particularly if it was in the presence of the congregation, so that the whole congregation could be edified by this message from God. And so it became a revelation from God.

Now all of that was possible only until the Bible was completed, because when the Bible was completed God indicated, in Revelation 22:18, "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." In other words, He closed off the possibility that ever again would He be speaking with divine truth from a source other than the Bible itself.

CALLER: But do you believe then that people who speak in tongues, or who claim to speak in tongues, or the faith healers, are not from God then?

HC: According to what the Bible teaches, anyone who claims to have received a message from God, whether it's in an unknown language, or whether it was in a vision, or a dream, or whatever, you can depend upon it, it was not from God. It may have been out of their minds, it may have been a hallucination, it may even have been from Satan, because Satan goes about as an angel of light. He works overtime in the secular world in the occult activity. And certainly, since the Bible warns constantly about his activity in the church, we would expect to see occult activity in the church.

A lot of the miracles, of course, that are being done are not really miracles. No one is doing miracles today like Jesus did. No one is healing those who have withered limbs, so that instantly they are able to walk around. No one is raising the dead. No one is healing those who have leprosy instantaneously. No one is able to go into a hospital and go from bed to bed and heal each one. That is not happening today.

There is a lot of activity that is looked upon as miraculous healing. Some of this is psychosomatic illness that has been corrected by the fact that the patient is putting his trust in what the healer is saying. Some of it is chicanery. Some of it is deception. And so forth. There may be a lot of explanations for it.

But the kind of healing that Jesus did is just not being done today.

CALLER: Okay, granted. But I know many devout Christians, I myself included, I mean, I have spoken in tongues, and I would hate to think that this was from Satan. I couldn't believe that, not the way I feel when it happens. I feel very close to God. I feel a very personal relationship to Him.

HC: Well, I can't answer to you, or tell you where your tongues came from I can only tell you what the Bible says. Now I do want to say this, that in II Corinthians 11 God does declare that Satan comes as an angel of light. Now I know, speaking for myself personally, I would want to make absolutely certain that any visitation I had was from God. And the only thing I'm certain of is the Bible. I know that that is from God. I also know that Satan does go about as an angel of light. He is able to practice his occult powers. And therefore I would not want anything to do with anything at all that relates to the occult. The Bible is not an occult book. When we become saved, it is true that a supernatural event has occurred, and that we have experienced the resurrection of our souls, we've become a child of God, and all of this is supernatural.

But the supernatural has not broken into the everyday world in the sense where we can touch it and see it and feel it. And the occult activity is where this happens. The medium, for example, is able to do this, as she claims to be talking with those who have departed. And actually, she's speaking with evil spirits, obviously. Witchcraft is of this nature. Occult activity is everywhere.

If you really want to be absolutely safe in Christ, then you want to listen only to the Word of God, and you want to carefully examine anything that goes on, to make sure that it is not something that is beyond the Word of God. And there are many gospels today, many, many gospels. But there's only one true Gospel. Now each gospel thinks that it is the true Gospel. There are many gospels, for example, which start out with the Bible. They believe that the Bible is the divine Word of God. But they also believe that another book is the divine Word of God. Well then, by definition that's going to be a different gospel than if we believe only the Bible is the divine Word, because our authority is going to be different. The gospel that has another book is going to have a far more expanded authority than just the Bible.

Now by the same token, there are gospels that start out with the Bible, and they also believe that God is speaking through visions today, or revelations outside of the Bible. Well, then their authority is the Bible plus what they expect to receive from these visions or these revelations, or these dreams, or whatever. So by definition it's another kind of a gospel than that which would be circumscribed just by the Bible. Obviously you're going to have a different foundation upon which to build truth.

Now I personally believe that the only true Gospel is circumscribed by the Bible. It alone and in its entirety is the divine Word.

CALLER: I agree with you, but the Bible says that the Spirit will intercede for you when you don't know quite what to pray for. And Paul says, "I thank God that I speak in tongues," and it is something.

HC: But you see, when Paul said that he was still living at a time when God had not completed His divine Word. The apostle John was going to receive a series of Revelations on the island of Patmos after that. And other of the apostles received visions. For that time that was entirely possible.

But now we have the whole Word of God. Now we have the entire Word of God, and it alone is the divine Word. We have to make a decision, and every person makes this decision. Am I going to trust the Word of God and it alone and in its entirety, or am I going to start out with the Word of God and then either take away parts of it that I don't particularly care for, as some religions or some gospels do, or am I going to add to it whatever comes along by other visitations?

Now in either of the latter two cases, you end up with a different gospel, even though you may think you have the true Gospel. But obviously it's going to be a different gospel, and you're going to come up with different doctrines, and that happens much more quickly than if you believe the Bible alone is the divine Word.

Now I admit, the true Gospel is not very exciting. This is one of the problems that people face. There are many gospels today that are very exciting. There are manifestations, and there's so much outward evidence that some kind of a miraculous thing has occurred. And so this becomes exceedingly exciting and enticing.

The true Gospel isn't like that at all. The true Gospel has to do with a broken and a contrite heart. The true Gospel has to do with coming to God like the publican of old. "Oh God, have mercy on me. I'm a sinner." It has to do with walking by faith, patiently reading the Bible to discover what God's will is, and trusting, and being obedient to what is in the Bible, and not trying to do like those around Jesus, looking for something that is a miracle, like Jesus warned, "An evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign [or a miracle]."

The true Gospel, as the world looks at it, is not a bit exciting. It strips us of our self-respect, of our pride. We've got to admit that we're nothing but a rotten sinner before God. There's nothing that I can do to contribute to my salvation. My works mean nothing. There's no manifestation. Heaven doesn't open up in a bolt of light of any kind. There's no feeling of some kind in my soul. It means that I simply have trusted implicitly and altogether in what the Bible declares. And that is the nature of the true Gospel, and that is not very exciting to most people. Most people want something far more wonderful than that.

But the true Gospel, once we have it, we know that we are safe in Christ. We know that Satan can have nothing on us. There's no way that he can get at us. He can't deceive us with a vision or something that looks exactly like it is Christ speaking. There's no way he can do this, because we have the Bible as the only source of divine truth.

CALLER: Are you saying then that the sections of the Bible that relate to gifts of the Spirit, that relate to being able to pray to God through the Spirit, were meant for the people then and not us now?

HC: There are statements in the Bible that, in fact, the whole Bible has to be read in the light of the whole Bible. I can point out passages, for example, in the Old Testament where the Israelites were commanded to go to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover, or their children were commanded to be circumcised. And when we come to the New Testament, we see that Jesus was circumcised. And we see that Jesus celebrated the Passover. He was strictly obedient to those Old Testament commands. But we don't do those things anymore. Why don't we do those things anymore? Because later on in the Bible we find that those particular laws were completed in Christ's going to the cross.

All right. Now by the same token, you can read in I Corinthians 12-14 where it talks about gifts of the Spirit, it talks about healings and miracles and tongues. And that was all valid for that day. Those things could have happened. But we have to finish reading the Bible. We interpret scripture with scripture.

Just as we finish reading the Bible and we find that no longer are we to do what Jesus did and be circumcised on the eighth day, nor are we to do what Jesus did and celebrate the Passover or celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles. Why don't we do it? Because when we interpret those statements in the light of the rest of the Bible, we find we're not to do this any longer.

Now by the same token, when we read the rest of the Bible and find that God has completed His holy Word and that we're not to walk by miracles, then we know that we're not to expect those things today. And yet we have the whole Bible to follow.

The amazing thing to me is, and it's an amazing thing to me, in a sense, in another sense I can understand it. But we have this marvelous holy scripture, which is the revelation of God's will for man, in which we can read word by word, phrase by phrase, sentence by sentence, paragraph by paragraph, and every one of those words and phrases and sentences and paragraphs is the voice of God. And no man has ever plumbed the depths of the riches of the Word of God. And we can spend hour after hour, thousands of hours, studying it and comparing it and chewing on the Word and meditating on the phrases. And we always know, absolutely, this is the Word of God. We absolutely know that it is God's voice for us.

And yet with all of this possibility, men today want something different. They want something more. They want something that they can hear. They may not really be sure of what they hear, but this is what they're going to pay attention to.

Now frankly, I want to rest my case with the Bible. And I know that when I stick with the Bible I'm on very safe ground. And thank you so much for calling. Good night.

Tongues and Other Gifts of the Spirit in 1 Cor 13 (374C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'm calling concerning what I heard on Conference Echoes, the gentleman from Silver Spring, Maryland. And I felt that he was kind of doing some semantical contortions with scripture. I agreed with some of what he had to say, but I think to say that I Corinthians 13:8 says that tongues, or prophesy, or knowledge are no longer applicable gifts to this present age is simply teaching something that is not there, because reading on down, verse 9 says, "For we know in part and we prophesy in part. But when that which is perfect is come then that which is in part shall be done away." And it's obvious from verses 9 & 10 that what he's talking about is when we get to Heaven, because in verse 12 he says, "For now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face. Now I know in part, but then shall I know even as also I am known."

And it just seems to me so perfectly clear that what Paul is talking about is that these gifts will pass away when we get to Heaven, and there won't be any need of them there. But there's nothing whatsoever that says that the church is not going to have them here throughout the entire church age. And further, in Mark 16, at the very close of that particular Gospel, we find Jesus making a remark about the signs that follow them which believe. He says, "In My Name shall they cast out devils. They shall speak with new tongues. They shall take up serpents. If they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them. They shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

And so it just seems to me that to say that these gifts are no longer with the church is to ignore the total thrust of scripture.

HC: Well, let me comment about this. I did not hear the speaker, but I can look at I Corinthians 13.

Now in I Corinthians 13 God is simply indicating that tongues shall cease. He doesn't say when they will cease. He gives no intimation as to when they will cease. He simply says that tongues will cease.

Now He also says that prophecy and knowledge will pass away. And then He goes on to discuss, in verse 9 through verse 12, about when knowledge and prophecy will pass away. And He does indicate that they will pass away when we see Him face to face, that is, when we get to Heaven. They will continue on this earth, but they will pass away when we come into Heaven.

But there is no suggestion in I Corinthians 13 as to when tongues would cease. It is simply a declaration that they would cease at some point in time. Now when we evaluate, however, what tongues were, and of course I Corinthians 12 and I Corinthians 14 are the two chapters that especially speak about tongues, there we find that it was a phenomenon that did exist in the church at Corinth. There were those who did receive from God Himself information in a heavenly language. And this served to edify them personally. But they were admonished to seek to interpret it so that the information would also be available to the congregation so that the congregation would be edified.

Now this was altogether possible in that day, because God had not completed His Word as yet. It was still the day when God would speak with revelations coming from other sources than the Bible. They really only had the Old Testament at that time, and so we find the apostle Peter receiving information by vision, the apostle John, the apostle Paul, and individuals in the church at Corinth receiving information in this unknown language called tongues.

But then God completed His divine Word. And in Revelation 22:18 He declared, "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." Now with that statement God effectively is saying, "Now look. I've completed the Holy Word. I've completed My revelation. And if you think you've received some divine truth by means of a dream or a vision or an angel confrontation, or by a tongue, or whatever, it's not from Me. I have given you the Word of God. And if you are going to look for divine truth from other sources than the Bible, then this is indicative of the fact that you are still subject to the plagues written herein. That is, you're unsaved and you're still subject to hell."

This I believe is what the Bible teaches about this particular gift, that is, any gift relating to additional revelation after the Bible was completed. Now it is true that the Bible speaks about signs and wonders that will still come to pass. The Bible speaks about signs and wonders in a number of places, and tongues was a sign. We read this in I Corinthians 14. The word sign there is the word miracle. And the Bible does speak about signs and wonders, particularly in relationship to then end-time church. But ominously; and unfortunately, all of the references to signs and wonders near the end of time are Satanically related.

In Matthew 24:24 God indicates, "False prophets and false christs will arise with signs and wonders to lead astray if possible even the elect." In II Thessalonians 2 we read of the man of sin taking his seat in the temple. And this I believe is Satan ruling in the church. And he will come with signs and wonders of falsehood. And God in fact will make those who follow this believe a lie, that they will be prepared for judgment. God is not neutral in these times.

In Revelation 13 it speaks about the beast that comes out of the earth, the false prophet. And he makes an image, and he gives life to that image, and brings signs to come to pass, even making fire come down from heaven. This is gospels that Satan himself will design, so that he will enslave the nations of the world to a higher degree than ever before. And he will attest to their genuineness, as he comes as an angel of light, by coming with signs and wonders. That is, he will make them apparently like they are genuinely of Christ. But Satan is the big deceiver. And actually they will not be of Christ.

And then in Revelation 16 again it speaks about the beast and the false prophets coming with signs to deceive, coming with miracles to deceive. Every reference in relationship to signs and wonders near the end of time relates to Satanic activity. Now that's very serious. That's very heavy. That's very ominous. And it indicates how careful we have to be today, because I do believe, as do many others, that we are near the end of time.

It is a day when we want to make absolutely certain that we get divine truth only from the Bible. It alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. Satan didn't speak through the Bible. Satan can speak in a lot of other ways. He comes with all kinds of occult activities. He comes outside the church, in witchcraft and ouija boards and tarot cards, and so on, and in the church he comes with occult activity. The Bible says so. The Bible says, in II Corinthians 11, that he comes as an angel of light.

Therefore we really want to be on guard, and make sure that the only place where we're going to look for divine truth is the Bible itself. Then we cannot be deceived.

CALLER: I think certainly Satan does go around as an angel of light, granted. But I do not accept the premise, and I cannot accept it, that all of the signs or wonders in the latter times of the church are from Satan. I cannot accept that. For one reason, Joel 2:28 & following says, "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh. And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions, and also upon the servant and upon the handmaiden, in those days I will pour out My Spirit. And I [and this is God talking to Joel here] will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood and fire and pillars of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and the terrible day of the Lord come. And it shall come to pass that whosoever shall call on the Name of the Lord shall be delivered."

HC: Yes, but you see, God is not talking there about Judgment Day at the end of time, the great and terrible day of the Lord, because right after that He says, "And whosoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved," or "will be delivered." And salvation does not come after Judgment Day. Salvation comes all through the New Testament period.

But you see, when Christ went to the cross, that was the "great and terrible day of the Lord." That is when Christ paid for my sins. He was subject to Judgment Day at that time. That is when the sun was darkened, and the moon did not give its light. And that literally did happen, you know. The sun was darkened. There was darkness over the face of the whole earth for a period of three hours, we read. And the language of the signs that were shown is the language of Psalm 18, where God is speaking in dramatic terms about the deliverance that would be provided by the cross.

The fact is, there was a great earthquake. The earth itself reacted to the fact that Christ was on the cross. Now more than that, in Acts 2:16, back there in AD 33, on Pentecost Day, Peter, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, quotes from this very passage, and declares that this, in relationship to the phenomena you are seeing today, as there was the sound of the rushing wind and what appeared to be tongues of fire on the heads of the disciples, and the fact that they were speaking in foreign languages, was evidence that this is the time that Joel prophesied about. In other words, now God is going to begin His program to evangelize the world. The great and terrible day of the Lord has come, and now whosoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved.

Now, if we did not have Revelation 22:18, from the language of Joel 2, as it is explained in Acts 2:17 & 18, where he says, "Your young men will dream dreams and your old men will see visions," we would conclude that throughout the New Testament period (because it's throughout the New Testament period that we have the last days, it is throughout the New Testament period that whosoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved) we could still dream dreams and see visions. But that aspect of the prophecy was limited by the language of Revelation 22:18. Several decades later God declared that we're not to add to the words of this book.

Now the other implications of that prophecy remain. "Whosoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved." Every believer is going to be a prophet. Now in the Old Testament the prophets were only few and far between. They received their information from God from two sources: from the written Word that was complete to their day, and also by means of dreams or visions, in a more exciting way.

In the New Testament, before the Bible was completed, the prophets had the same experience. They had the Old Testament, which was the written word complete to their day, and occasionally they could receive additional information through a dream or a vision. But once the Bible was completed, now as New Testament prophets throughout the New Testament period, we continue to prophesy, that is, to declare God's Word, which is really what prophesying is all about, but our source of divine truth is only the Bible, because it is now the complete Word of God. It is every part of God's revelation that He wants us to know. And so we don't have to be looking for divine truth from any other source.

Now this of course is a fantastic guarantee for the New Testament believer, that he won't be tripped up by Satan. He won't be snared by Satan, because he's looking around for an additional revelation of some kind. He knows that when he goes to the Bible he's got all the revelation, all that God would speak to mankind about. And he can spend his time very patiently studying the Word, searching the scriptures, and knowing all the time that this is the voice of God, this is the revelation of God. What a wonderful guarantee God has given us.

CALLER: A couple more problems. Number one, I see nothing in the context of Revelation 22:18 which says that that verse is applicable to anything other than prophecy of the Book of Revelation itself.

HC: Now let me answer that very quickly, because we've run out of time. He won't be able to cover any other questions on this program. But you see, the Book of Revelation is an integral part of the whole Bible. If you add a chapter to the Book of Revelation, you've added it to the Bible. If you take away a chapter, you've taken it away from the Bible. So whether you want to understand this book to be the Book of Revelation or the whole Bible is really immaterial, ultimately, because the Bible is one cohesive whole. It has one author. It is one book. Therefore this book does ultimately refer to the Bible.

The Significance of Being Filled with the Spirit (401B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. My question is, What is your interpretation of being filled with the Spirit? And could you give scriptural references wherever you can?

HC: The question is raised concerning the phrase, being "filled with the Spirit." There are many who speak on this matter of being filled with the Spirit. It is a rather popular topic today.

Actually, to be filled with the Spirit means to be under the control of the Spirit, that is, to let the Spirit more and more take control of your life. Now in the general sense that is true. But God has a very specific meaning when He talks about being filled with the Spirit.

We find, for example, that John the Baptist was filled with the Spirit from his mother's womb. As we search out this phrase, we'll find that exceedingly frequently it is used in the same breath with another phrase, namely, that someone spoke out or witnessed concerning the Lord Jesus Christ.

We read, for example, that Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist, was filled with the Spirit and said, I don't recall the exact words. Elizabeth, the mother of John the Baptist, was filled with the Spirit, and exclaimed, we read about the disciples, right after Pentecost. They were filled with the Spirit, and spoke in other languages. We read in Ephesians 5:18, where God says, "Don't be drunk with wine, but be filled with the Spirit." And remember what phrase follows? "addressing one another with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs."

I find that when we synthesize all these statements we find that to be filled with the Spirit in the particular sense means that we have become qualified to be a witness for the Lord Jesus Christ. Now under no circumstance does being filled with the Spirit have to do with something that happens again and again and again. We either have the Holy Spirit, and are a born again believer, or we don't have the Holy Spirit because we're still unsaved. And the Holy Spirit is not given by measure, as we read in John 3. The Holy Spirit is not a commodity of some kind, where we can be half filled, or a quarter filled. We either are given the Holy Spirit in the sense of being filled with the Holy Spirit, or we don't have the Holy Spirit.

According to what we read in the Bible, before Pentecost it was only occasionally that we would read of someone who was filled with the Holy Spirit. I sighted three of them: John the Baptist, Elizabeth, and Zacharias. We read of Micah that he, being filled with the Spirit, said what he had to say. But it's a fairly unusual phrase before Pentecost, although it is found.

But after Pentecost, beginning with the disciples in Acts, we find that that is to be normative for every believer. They are to be filled with the Spirit. That is the command of Ephesians 5:18 & 19: "Be filled with the Spirit."

When we understand that God really is saying that we are to be His witnesses, all of this begins to hang together. Before Pentecost it was only occasionally that God qualified someone to be a witness. It was not His program at that time that every believer would be a witness. And so it was only occasionally that someone was filled with the Spirit. Now this has nothing to do with whether we're born again, it has nothing to do in itself. We can't be filled with the Spirit without being born again. Only those who are born again are legitimate witnesses, or ambassadors, or Christ.

But it really means that you have the Holy Spirit, which was true before Pentecost as well as after. But it means that more particularly you have been qualified to be a witness. And so after Pentecost every believer was to be a witness.

One of the most unusual places where we find a reference to being filled with the Spirit is in the Old Testament, in Exodus 35, where they are building the Old Testament tabernacle. Now the Old Testament tabernacle was the forerunner of the temple. And the superintendent who was named by God to build the tabernacle was a man by the name of Bezellel.

Interestingly, we read of Bezellel that he was filled with the Spirit. In verse 30 of Exodus 35: "And Moses said unto the children of Israel, See, The Lord hath called by name Bezellel, the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah. And He hath filled him with the Spirit of God, in wisdom, in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship, and to devise curious works, to work in gold and silver and brass," and so on.

Now what does that have to do with witnessing? Is my whole synthesis shot down now? Doesn't it stand now because we find that Bezellel was filled with the Spirit? And we don't read of Bezellel that he spoke to anyone. He was not a prophet. He was the superintendent. He was charged with building the tabernacle. He was a craftsman.

And yet it says of him that he was "filled with the Spirit." But you see, that fits right into what we discovered in the New Testament. To be filled with the Spirit is to be a witness, and the purpose of witnessing, declaring God's Word, is to build the temple of God. We are temple builders in the New Testament.

Remember I Peter 2:4 or 5? We are lively stones in the house of God. Or in Ephesians 2 it says that we are built into a temple of the Lord. You see, whenever we are bringing the Gospel, we are being temple builders. But that's exactly what Bezellel was. He was a temple builder. He was the superintendent of the tabernacle. So we're not at all surprised therefore that it speaks of Bezellel that he also was filled with the Spirit. Can you see how beautifully and cohesively the Bible fits together?

To be filled with the Spirit really means, in its most intense Biblical sense, I believe, to be commissioned by God to be a witness, and a witness of the true Gospel, of course. In Ephesians 5, where it says, "Be filled with the Spirit, addressing one another with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs." God is simply saying, "Be sure that you are a born again individual, so that you are legitimately an ambassador of Christ." And as an ambassador of Christ you of course are filled with the Spirit, so that you can be a legitimate witness of the true Gospel.

Talking in Tongues (558A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Recently a Christian told me that all Christians should be filled with the Holy Spirit and that the evidence of that experience is to speak in tongues. But I was always taught that you shouldn't . . . that tongues was just another gift of the Holy Spirit. But he's saying that it's used to help you to understand the Bible more and to worship the Lord better. And I was just wondering about your opinion. Could you give me some Scripture that would just settle this in my mind? Because he's saying that filling of the Spirit and baptism of the Spirit mean all the same thing. And I'm really confused about it.

HC: The question is, what does baptism in the Holy Spirit mean? What does filling of the Holy Spirit mean?

CALLER: Do all Christians have that experience? He's saying that in order to really be a Christian that's growing you should be filled with the Holy Spirit and receive these tongues.

HC: The fact is that in I Corinthians 12-14, where the matter of tongues is very thoroughly discussed by God, there is no reference of any kind to the filling of the Holy Spirit. Nor is there any reference to the fact that it is a result of being baptized in the Holy Spirit. Actually, to be baptized in the Holy Spirit means to be saved. We must be born again. And the word baptism means to be washed or to be cleansed. It's a phrase that indicates that we have been saved and we have become identified with the Holy Spirit in the work of sharing the Gospel. And the gift of tongues that was found in the church of Corinth was not given as some sign or evidence that someone had become saved, any more than any other gift was that sign or evidence.

As a matter of fact, because tongues was a heavenly language in which they spoke, and when it was interpreted it served to edify the congregation, therefore it was like an additional revelation. And since the Bible says in Revelation 22:18 that we're not to add to the words of this book, we know therefore that that is not possible today. Whatever the phenomenon is that is seen today, it is not of God. It is either hallucinatory, or it is self-hypnotism, or it is out of their minds, or it is of Satan. But it is not of God. That cannot be.

Now when God uses the phrase being filled with the Spirit, every born again believer since Pentecost is filled with the Spirit simply because he is saved. But it means simply that we have become qualified to be a witness. We must remember that the Holy Spirit is Eternal God. He is not a quantity of any kind. God is everywhere present. These phrases, "baptized in the Holy Spirit," "filled with the Holy Spirit," "Christ breathed on the disciples the Holy Spirit," these phrases are not discussing God as if He is some kind of a quantity that now comes into their life. We have to understand these phrases as indicating some part of the program of God in His salvation program.

Now when Christ breathed on the ten apostles in John 21, I believe it is, and said, "Receive the Holy Spirit," this was before Pentecost, and He was simply effectively saying to them, I now commission you to be prepared to begin the New Testament congregation, which will begin at Pentecost. When the Holy Spirit was poured out, this was not a quantity of God being poured out. This was simply language to indicate that now God had begun His program to evangelize the world. When the disciples were filled with the Holy Spirit, when we are filled with the Holy Spirit, it is simply language to indicate that we have become qualified to be a witness of the Lord Jesus Christ.

CALLER: Okay. And if the church is basing its doctrine on that, and they believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and that He died on the cross for our sins, but they believe also in this baptism or filling of the Spirit, would you suggest that I continue there? It's making me really confused now.

HC: The question is, at what point do we feel safe within a congregation? I struggled with that question actually for years, and over a period of a couple of years I studied this question very very intensely and very carefully. And I prayed constantly, "Oh Lord, where is truth?" because I was deeply concerned about that very matter. How are we to understand a lot of these things that are happening?

And after a couple of years of very intense study, reading everything I could on the question, both in the Bible and outside of the Bible, it finally dawned on me. You know, sometimes we have very thick skulls, and it takes a while before God really opens our eyes. But finally I realized how we can tell whether we are following the true Gospel or not.

And it's very simple when you stop to think of it. Revelation 22:18 & 19 say that if we add to the words of this book, God will add to us the plagues written therein, and if we take away from the words of this book, God will take away our share in the Book of Life and in the holy city. In other words, God effectively is saying the Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word.

Now before the Bible was completed, it is true that occasionally they would add to it. Someone would receive a message in a vision or in a dream, or in an angel visitation. And then this information was added to what they had already had in the written Word. And so they would have a more complete idea of the revelation of God for their lives.

But when God completed His Bible and came to the last chapter, Revelation 22, there God said, if you add to the words of this book, it indicates that you're still unsaved. "I will add to you the plagues written herein." In other words, you are in rebellion against Me. You are expanding the Word of God beyond what it ought to be.

And so I came to the conclusion...all right, then it's very simple. I want to always be sure that I believe that the Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. There is no other divine Word. Now we live in a free country. If someone decides, well, this book also is the divine Word, all right. They can do that. But then by definition they're another gospel. They have the Bible plus this other book which they think is divine. If someone says, "I believe the Bible is the Word of God but this message I received in this unknown language called a tongue, or in this vision, is also the divine Word," fine. They can do that, but then by definition they're another gospel, because they have a different source of divine truth than I have, since I only have the Bible.

And even though these groups still talk about the blood of Christ and the death and resurrection of Christ, and so on, nevertheless they are going outside of the Bible in seeking divine truth, and they fall under the problem of Revelation 22:18 or 19. And so I would encourage anyone to seek out a church which holds that the Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. Then you have only one authority, and that's the Bible.

CALLER: Okay.

HC: Thank you for calling and sharing.

Is Talking in Tongues for Today? (565B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Good evening, Brother Camping. I have a question concerning the use of tongues for today. I've heard you speak on this recently, that it is not for today. And I'm seeking some answers about this. I'm a little bit confused about it at this time, because my husband and I thought we had received the gift of tongues. And at one time we were going to a church that practices this in the church, where they have the interpretations, and everything. And we were just wondering if you could give us some Scripture that would help us to understand better whether tongues is for today or not.

HC: Let me ask this question concerning tongues. When you thought that you had the gift of tongues, or whatever you've been taught concerning tongues, was this something that just came out of your own life, or was this presumably something that you believed came from God? In other words, was it God somehow speaking through you?

CALLER: Well, that's how we felt, yes, that it was a gift from God.

HC: It was a gift from God, but actually, or let me rephrase the question. Did you think that the words that you were speaking, even though they were not understandable, were just gibberish, incoherent words, or were they actually words that were conveying some kind of a message, either a message of praise or a message of prayer or a revelation of some kind, that it really was a message from God?

CALLER: The way that we felt was that it was a gift from the Lord and that it was a way that the Lord would speak through us, that there might be things that He would want us to pray about that we would not know how to pray for, or that there might be something that He would want us to pray about and that by using the gift of tongues we would be saying what the Lord wanted us to say.

HC: In other words, God was actually putting words into your mouth, in an unknown language, that was a revelation from God. And it could be in the form of a prayer, or it could be a praise, or something else.

Now that's exactly what happened, of course, when we read in the Bible some of the prayers that are found in the Psalms. Of course they were not in tongues, in an unknown language, but they were in a known language. And so we find various prayers to God. They are actually spoken by men, but holy men of old were inspired by God as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. In your case, if you truly believed it was of God, you also hoped that someone might interpret, so that others might be edified by what you had been receiving. Isn't that true?

CALLER: Not entirely. I never spoke out in the congregation, either I or my husband. We basically used it for our own prayer language.

HC: I see. But if it had been in the congregation, then of course you would have hoped that someone would interpret.

CALLER: Well, I don't know. That's what's confusing.

HC: All right. Actually then, let me put it the other way. If we actually were going to believe that tongues were normative for today, and we spoke in tongues in the congregation, according to what we read in I Corinthians 14, then God's rule was that there should be someone there to interpret. In verse 28, "If there be no interpreter, let him keep silent in the church and let him speak to himself and to God." And also of course the women were to be silent in the church, insofar as that phenomenon was concerned, as it took place in the church at Corinth.

CALLER: Right.

HC: All right. You see, when the Bible was being prepared, before the Bible was completed, from time to time God would give additional revelation. He had the written Word, which was complete to that point in time, whenever this was. And then there was additional revelation. And this additional revelation could come in the form of a prayer (and I've already used the Psalms as an example), it could be in the form of a prophecy of some kind, where God is foretelling future events, as was the case with the apostle John on the island of Patmos. He received the visions that now have become the Book of Revelation. Or it could be in the form of exhortation, as for example, when God would speak through one of the prophets, to exhort the people or warn them of impending doom if they did not change their ways, or whatever. But in any case it was additional divine truth that was added to the Word of God.

Now at the time that I Corinthians was being written, that is, when the apostle Paul was writing this letter to the church at Corinth, the Bible consisted of the Old Testament. That was the written Word of God, what we call the Old Testament. There was no New Testament. And in fact, God was still completing the New Testament. God was still giving revelation to this one or that one. And additionally, He was breaking the silence in individual cases, bringing messages directly to them. We find this, for example, when He brought a message to Elizabeth, to tell her of John the Baptist, or to Zechariah, his father, or when the angel spoke to Joseph concerning the fact that Mary was with child of the Holy Spirit.

And there were various other times that God the Holy Spirit spoke in this way. And that's because they did not have the whole Word of God. And whatever they did receive, they could add that to the written Word that they already had, and so they would have a more complete revelation. They would take, for example, the letter that the apostle Paul wrote, and they would begin to recognize that this was the Word of God, and that it could be added to what had already been written in the Old Testament. And so they would have a more complete revelation.

Well, that was all fine, until God came to the last of His divine revelation. He came to Revelation 22:18, and then God declared, "If anyone adds to the words of this book...." Now that had been going on before, and it was legitimate, that they would add whatever they received from God to the words that had already been written. But now God is saying, "If anyone adds to the words of this book [and there's only one book that's in view and that's the Bible; it's one cohesive whole] I will add to him the plagues written herein." In other words, effectively God is saying, "My revelation is completed. There's nothing more that you are to look for. If you want to know divine truth, read the Bible. I've given you the whole revelation." And by the same token, He also warned in the next verse, "If anyone takes away from the words of this book, I will take away his share in the Tree of Life." In other words, make sure that you believe that the whole Bible is the Word of God.

Therefore, the next year, after Revelation was penned, if some individual received information in a vision or in a voice or a dream, and thought that it was of God, they could know it was not of God, because there was nothing more to add. And so when various individuals came on the scene with their visions (and this has been going on to some degree all through the New Testament period), and they were convinced that it was of God, you could know that it can't be of God because we're not to add to the Word of God.

We're living in a day when a great many people, all over the world, are claiming that God is speaking to them, through visions and dreams, voices or tongues. And invariably, you'll find that if people are interested in tongues, they're also interested in visions and voices and dreams, because it's all of the same kind. It is all based on the premise that God is still speaking today.

And so actually, if you were going to allow that this is happening, that God is speaking today, what we really should do then is go back in history and find every statement that anyone had ever received in the form of a vision or a tongue, that had been interpreted, or whatever, and we could write all this down and gradually have a more and more complete revelation of God. And of course by now the Bible would be several hundred thousand volumes thick, if every one of these things had been written down.

But the fact is, God said no, we're not to add to the words of this book. And so this kind of activity that's going on we know cannot be of God. Now it may be hallucinatory. You know, you want this badly enough and you're convinced that this has to be. And so our minds are very tricky, and so we can engage in self-hypnotism or in self-deception of some kind. And so we will have an activity of this kind. Or it could be of Satan. Satan could be accommodating us. You know, when we are seeking for something that is not God's will, and we ask for it long enough, then we're leaving ourselves wide open to allow Satan to accommodate us with this. Whatever it is, it was not of God.

CALLER: But if you were a born again Christian, Satan couldn't possibly be speaking through you.

HC: Now you raised another interesting question. If you are a born again believer, Satan could not speak through you. Yes, that is true. That is a true statement. But the fact is, the Bible indicates that Jesus, for example, said in John 10:8, "All that came before Me were thieves and robbers." Now the Bible defines thieves and robbers as those who claim to be saved and come into the temple, and say, "We're delivered," and yet they are Baal worshippers. That is, they are worshippers of other gospels.

And Jesus said, "All that came before Me were thieves and robbers, but My sheep did not hear them." In other words "My sheep," those who are born again, would not get snared into this. And that's a very significant statement. For example, in Matthew 24:24 Jesus said, "False prophets and false christians will arise with signs and wonders, to lead astray if possible even the elect." Now the elect are the born again believers. And He's saying that if it were possible they would be deceived because those who come with these signs and wonders, and incidentally, isn't it a fact that those who are interested in the supernatural activity of tongues and visions and voices are also interested in signs and wonders? They're all part of the same cloth, you see.

And Jesus says, the elect will not be deceived. They would be, "if that were possible," but we have these others promises "My sheep will not hear them," or like Romans 8 indicates, "Nothing can separate us from the love of God," and so on. So the fact that someone thinks he is born again, or says he is born again, is no clear evidence that he is born again. And if we begin to look for divine truth outside of the Bible, then we effectively are saying we don't want the authority of the Bible, we want something more. And we are indicating by this that there's a strong likelihood that we may not be saved.

And so, on the other hand, if you were saved, then it could have been self-hypnotism or some kind. It would not be Satan in that case.

CALLER: Well, this is what I'm wondering, because at the time that we felt we received this we were going to a church where this is encouraged. And this is what we understood that the Bible is teaching. And I guess at the time we didn't research it well enough ourselves. But recently I've been feeling more and more uncomfortable about it and have come to the point where I never use it anymore. But I've just been very concerned about it because my in-laws did start going to this particular church, and they are still going there. And it really does concern me, because there are prophecies given, and interpretations. It concerns me because I had heard you say just recently that this is not of God. So I wonder...

HC: When you use that phrase, "We don't use that anymore," that's an interesting way you've put that. It implies that if you or your husband wanted to speak in tongues, by an act of your will you could speak in a tongue. Now if this were of God, obviously this could not happen, because God doesn't just... we can't turn God on whenever we want to turn God on. God is sovereign in these matters. And this suggests very strongly that whatever you were doing it was simply an activity within your own mind. You had conditioned yourself so that you could go into a certain ritual or a certain speech pattern, and you could do it at will. And because you had been told that this was of God, therefore you felt very good about it that this was happening. But there's a good probability that it didn't go beyond this, that it was just out of your mind.

CALLER: So what would you say then in the case of family that is still going to this church? I do believe that they are born again Christians.

HC: Now that's a very good question, a very pertinent question. When we know someone, and frequently it will be a close family member, or it can be a trusted pastor, or an aged couple whom we've known for years and years, and they've been pillars in the church, and they become involved in a gospel that looks beyond the Bible for divine truth, so effectively it is another gospel, what are we to do? Are we to understand then, because we're convinced they're born again, that there must be some saving grace in this activity? How can we relate all this together? And this is where it really gets confusing.

Now the answer has to be, and it's a sad answer, but nevertheless it's the only true answer, is that we must discover truth by the Bible, not by what we see in the lives of others. You can look at people in numerous denominations and congregations that definitely we would call another gospel, because they have other books that they also think are divine, and so on, and we can see in their lives a zeal for God, we can see a loving spirit, we can see fidelity to the Word in a lot of ways, we can see family loyalties, we can see many marvelous things. But we know that they're not saved because they don't believe all the things in the Bible concerning the blood of Christ. And that's easy to make a determination in that case.

But you see, the fact that someone is zealous, the fact that someone says he loves God and we see what apparently is the fruit of the Spirit, and all of these other things, in his life, that is not the way we determine whether someone is really a child of God. We have to determine it by the Word of God itself. And the Bible says, "My sheep did not hear them." The Bible says, "the elect would be deceived, if that were possible." And I know of many cases in which a person has belonged to another gospel and has been saved while he was in that other gospel, because we're saved by the Word of God, we're not saved by the church we belong to. But after he is saved, he becomes very uncomfortable, and it isn't long at all until he repudiates the gospel that he has been in, because he has become convinced that it cannot be of God.

CALLER: Do you think that you should go to the people and share the truth that you have received, through scriptures, with them.

HC: Now the question is, what are we to do in situations like this? First of all, we are to pray for them. This is one ministry that God has given to all of us. And when we have loved ones who are unsaved, or are in other gospels, or in other religions that are not the true religion, we truly ought to pray for them. Secondly, we are to witness to them as the opportunity arises. You must bear in mind that they may not be interested in hearing from you at all. They may be completely convinced that they are in the true Gospel, and they will be very antagonistic toward being witnessed to. And of course you cannot force it on them.

Now the Bible speaks of the fact that as we approach the end we will come into great tribulation. And I am convinced that that is one of the aspects that really brings great tribulation to the true believers, as we see loved ones, those whom we love very dearly, snared off into other gospels, and they just have no interest in the true Gospel.

Wonderfully, it is still the day of grace. And even though someone is completely blinded today, he still can be saved. I think the time is going to come, as near as I can tell from the Bible, when we finally enter the final tribulation period, that it will be beyond the day of salvation. In other words, all who are to be saved will have been saved. And then the activity of these other gospels will be very very widespread, according to what we read in Matthew 24, and that will bring great trauma to the true believers, because we'll know it is too late, and yet we have dearly beloved loved ones who are still, who have repudiated the true Gospel. That's part of the sorrow and the suffering that we undergo in this world.

CALLER: Thank you. That really has helped me a lot. It's helped me to have a better understanding of it. Can I give you one other quick question and take my answer over the air?

HC: Surely.

CALLER: If you are going to a church and you feel that in that church there has been definite signs that it's coming into apostasy, and you feel that the Lord is leading you from that church into a church that does preach the true Gospel according to the Bible, God's Word, do you owe it to the pastor to go to him and explain why you are leaving? Or should you just not say anything unless somebody comes to see you and asks you why you have left?

HC: The question is, how much should you discuss with the congregation that you are leaving the fact that you really think the church is going into apostasy?

I think that certainly it would not hurt to discuss this with the pastor. This probably would be the wise and fair thing to do. Of course it cannot be from the standpoint of bitterness or from the standpoint of one last lick at him because you're so discouraged by what you have heard. It should be done in love. It should be done from the vantage point that hopefully this might encourage him to rethink his position so that he might know this. It could be used of God, in other words, as a chastisement, where he will say, "My, maybe I have been wrong, and maybe I have to do some soul searching." There's always that possibility.

I certainly think that would be the wise thing to do.

Thank you so much for calling and sharing.

Being "Slain in the Spirit" (643B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Brother Camping. I have two questions please. The first is, what is meant by "slain in the Spirit," like when a person falls backwards, seemingly unconscious, when hands are laid on him in healing? Is this referenced in the Bible, and where?

HC: What does it mean to be "slain in the Spirit"? This is a phenomenon that is increasingly popular in many many denominations and congregations. Actually, it is something that relates to something in the Bible, but if it has any relationship to anything in the Bible it is very ominous. It is a very terrible thing that is happening.

In the Bible there are only four references to failing backwards, and each one has to do with the judgment of God. Each one has to do with those who are under the judgment of God, who are subject to eternal damnation. And indeed they are slain, but it's a picture of eternal damnation that has come upon them. And so while this thing is happening today, I really believe that it is not of God. I believe that it is something that is a sign that, I really think that it is, in the Bible to fall backwards is the equivalent of calling down fire from heaven, and it could very well be the phenomenon that is spoken of in Revelation 13, where it talks about Satan even making fire come down from heaven, in verse 13 of Revelation 13.

In other words, it is something that is not at all a blessing. It is not something that I would look upon as being desirable. I believe it is something that if it relates to the Bible at all relates in a terrible way.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you on that one. The other question is, if you're playing cards not for money, but just for the fun of it, like playing Pinochle or Cribbage, is this a sin? And if so, where does it say so in the Bible?

HC: The question is, is it wrong to play cards just for points rather than for money? Is that a sin? Of course the Bible doesn't say you are not to play Poker, that you are not to play Cribbage, you are not to play Canasta, and so on. The Bible just doesn't put it that way. The more I study the Bible, however, I find that in the Bible casting the lot was a very sacred event. Now casting the lot means to pull straws to see who gets the shortest straw, or it means to throw dice to see if a certain number would come up, or to spin an arrow. All of these things were casting the lot. We have no control over what is going to come up. And in the Bible casting the lot was a sacred event that, when employed rightly, was to determine what God's will was in the matter.

For example, when the nation of Israel was being divided in the land of Israel, we read in the Book of Joshua that the lot was cast. By casting the lot God's will was determined. When a replacement was required for Judas, after he had committed suicide, two men were found that were qualified and the lot was cast to discover God's will, which one would God pick out? Now that's a very sacred and rightful use of casting the lot.

However, when we cast the lot to decide who is going to buy the cup of coffee (we flip a coin), or when we cast the lot in games, even games like Rook and these other seemingly innocent games, I really believe that we are going contrary to the will of God. Now I know many will say, "Wow, that's really getting pretty picky." But as we go along in life, and we want to live more and more close to the Lord, we want to do it God's way more and more, and we must remember that games, most of the games were not designed by Christians who earnestly love the Lord and who had thoroughly studied the Bible. They are designed by the world. And even the so called Christian games, like "Going to Jerusalem" and so on were patterned after the games of the world.

Now there are games that are simply games of skill, that have nothing to do with casting the lot (chess or checkers, or Chinese checkers, or some of these games), and they would be perfectly valid as long as we do not spend so much time with them that we waste our time.

CALLER: Then in your opinion, and according to the Bible, we shouldn't play cards?

HC: In my opinion we should not play cards. Now there's one other factor that may be a little more substantive for many. And that is, the Bible says, "Do not give any appearance of evil." And of course the normal deck of cards that is used for Poker or for Blackjack, or gambling games, has that very heavy association. And so again I think the less we know about cards the better it is for us. We don't even want to be misunderstood as we use those kind of cards.

CALLER: Okay. Well, thank you, Brother Camping.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

CHAPTER 5 -- CHRISTMAS

Questions Concerning the Wise Men (001A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. I have some questions about the Wise Men. First, why didn't the Jews know that Jesus was going to be born if the Wise men knew?

HC: How is it possible that the Magi or the Wise Men knew that Jesus was going to be born and not the leaders in Israel? After all, Jesus was born as someone of the nation of Israel. He was a Jew, and He was actually to be the most important individual who ever would come to any nation, and certainly to the nation of Israel.

God had His own mysterious plan. The Magi were in another nation altogether, probably in the nation of Persia. Actually, they knew about His birth, the few shepherds knew about His birth, and two or three individuals, like Simeon and Anna, knew about His birth. And that's about all. It was just not God's plan that anyone else would know about His birth. He was to be born very humbly; He was to be born without any publicity of any kind. God had His own purpose for showing each one that He was born.

Now actually, the Magi represented the world. They represented the whole world, as they brought their gifts to Him. And Christ came as the Savior of the world. Remember when He was introduced by John the Baptist, He was introduced, "Behold, the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world." The Magi were not Jews and were actually representatives of the world. The shepherds were a representative of something else, and we can talk about that at another time. But the Magi were actually a representation of the world, all the believes from the world who would come to bring their gifts of love to Him.

CALLER: Do you think they might have been saved? Does the Bible tell us if the Wise Men were saved? And how did they know about the star?

HC: The question is, how did the Magi know this whole thing? We wonder. They saw a star in the East. From the historical record, from a secular record, we know that there were three conjunctions of the planets in the year 7 BC. These are fairly rare in the heavens. The ancients watched the heavens very very closely because what was happening in the heavens, they believed, was a portender of things that might come to pass. And certainly the astronomers of that day became very skilled in predicting eclipses, and so forth. And so the fact that there were three conjunctions during that one year at least would have been very interesting to them.

Now the Bible doesn't talk about this. This is simply from the secular record. However, they also saw a mysterious star, a special star. And from the sacred record, from all the information we can gather, in all likelihood Christ was born in the year 7 BC. And that was the time they saw the star. Now on what basis would they have come to the nation of Israel? First of all, the three conjunctions of the planets, we know from the secular record, were part of the heavens that were associated with the nation of Israel. That's speculation. But that is from the secular record.

However, we also know that there was a time several hundred years later, when very important Jewish people had been citizens of Persia, from which these Magi came. Daniel, for example, was a ruler in Persia under Cyrus, who was the king of the Medes and the Persians. Remember that the nation of Judah had been destroyed by the Babylonians in 587 BC. Then in 539 BC, a few decades later, the Medes and the Persians had destroyed Babylon, or conquered Babylon. And so all of the sacred books and the sacred writings that were in the possession of the Jews would have fallen into the hands of the Persians, that is, all those that had found their way into the land of Persia.

Now we can speculate this, that these Magi, well, it's not a speculation that they saw the star. Definitely they saw the star. The first thing they would have done (and now we're speculating) is that they would have gone to all their sacred writings, whatever they had around, to discover, is there anything here in any of them about a star? And finally they would have run across the sacred writings of the Jewish people that had been deposited in Persia about the time of Daniel, undoubtedly. And there they would have read, in Genesis 49, that a sceptre would rise in Judah; that is, a king would be born in Judah.

In Genesis 49 we read in verse 10, "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet". Now the sceptre has to do with the coming of the King. In Numbers 24, and this would have been particularly attractive to heathen Magi, heathen astronomers, because the man who gave this prophecy was a heathen just like the Persians were, we read in Numbers 24:17, "I shall see him, but not now: there shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel, and shall smite the corners of Moab, and destroy all the children of Sheth."

Now here we have a star rising out of Jacob; and a sceptre, that is, a king, is to be born in Israel. And so based on that verse, I am absolutely certain that these Magi came to the capital of Israel, Jerusalem. And lo and behold, as they started to move toward Jerusalem, the star guided them to Jerusalem, even apart from any knowledge they may have had of what the Bible may have said. The star would have guided them to Jerusalem.

Now they came to Jerusalem and inquired of the Jewish leaders there, "Where is the King that is born? A sceptre shall rise out of Israel." A sceptre is what a king holds to indicate that he has authority. "Where is the King that has been born?" And no one there knew anything about it. But their theologians realized that in Micah 5:2 God had declared that out of Bethlehem a King would come. And so they said, "Try Bethlehem, maybe there's a king that is born there."

And the Magi found, to their utter delight, that the star they were following led them right to Bethlehem and stood over the house where Jesus was. Now obviously this star was not way up in the heavens. Otherwise it could not have singled out a single house. There is no star that would stand and mark out a single house. It was a very special miraculous star that was just high enough in the heavens so that it could stand directly over one house and not over the neighbors' house. And that is the star that they followed. And it was all a miracle, of course. But they could have gotten their information out of Numbers 24, particularly.

CALLER: Okay, I have two more questions and then I'll hang up and take my answer over the air. How do we know how many Wise Men there were? And do you think they might have been saved? Does the Bible tell us that?

HC: The question is, how many Wise Men were there? Anyone knows that there were three. You pick up any Christmas card, and there are always three and they're riding on camels. The fact is, there were not three. That is strictly someone's imagination, that there were three Wise Men. Undoubtedly there was a whole company of people that came from, I say, Persia. The Bible doesn't say Persia, but the secular record shows that there was a second ruling class in Persia at this time in history called the Magi or Magen. That word identifies with the word that we find in the Bible.

Because Persia was hundreds and hundreds of miles from Israel, three men would never have traveled there. They would have been beset upon by bandits. It would have been the most foolhardy thing in the world to do. Undoubtedly there could have been a company of a hundred or more soldiers and officials from Persia that came along.

Now the reason that we get the idea of three Wise Men is that they brought three kinds of gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh. But this is simply a company of Magi who came, and they brought three kinds of gifts. But under no circumstance must we think that there were only three of them. The fact is, the Bible declares that all Jerusalem was troubled. They were really troubled. Why were they troubled? In the first instance, they were troubled, "Is Persia trying to create a war with Israel?" And certainly if only three men had come that would not have been a very scary thing. But undoubtedly there was a fairly large company of people who came, of soldiers and officials who came. And this was quite unnerving to the officials in Jerusalem.

Now were they saved? The Bible doesn't say. It's possible that some of these Magi were saved. That is, they may not have been saved when they came there, but by the time they left they may have been saved. That is not at issue. The Bible doesn't get into that. What is at issue is that through this God is teaching us that the world is going to bring its gifts to the Lord Jesus Christ, the gifts being that the saved of the world are going to come to the Lord Jesus. And Christ came as the Savior of the world, so that whosoever believes on Him could become saved.

Why Did the Angels Appear to Shepherds Only? (002A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. I'd like to ask you a question about, the other night you were talking about the manger and Christ and the Christmas story, and why He came in a manger. And I was wondering why the angels appeared only to the shepherds and not to anyone else. Why didn't they come to the chief priests and the rabbis or all the princes of the day?

HC: Yes, that's a very curious question, isn't it? We read that there were a few shepherds abiding on the hills, who were keeping watch over their flocks by night. And these shepherds were certainly not very great. These shepherds had no standing. The big people, the high priests and the king and all the others, wouldn't have been out there as shepherds. Why would God come only to these shepherds to announce the birth of the Lord Jesus?

We read about this in Luke 2:8: "And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night. And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them and the glory of the Lord shone round about them, and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: For behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you. You shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angels a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men. And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into Heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem and see this thing which has come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And they came with haste and found Mary and Joseph and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it they made known abroad this saying, which was told them concerning this child."

Now notice that in this statement the angel declares this, "For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior." These shepherds, who were very lowly people, were actually a type or figure or representation of all that Christ had come to seek and to save. Jesus came for the lost of the world. And the lost are those who are the off-scouring of the nations, those who have no standing in the nations. They're just people for whom Christ came to pay their sins. And when we become saved, of course, then we in turn become a shepherd. We, as ambassadors of Christ, are given the task of sending forth the Gospel into the world. We care for the sheep of the world, if you will.

It's very significant that after they had seen the Christ child they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child. And that's a picture of all of us. When we come to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ we want to use our time and energy and money, etc., in order that the Gospel might go into the world because this is the dynamic task that God has assigned to us.

These shepherds, therefore, were a dramatic picture of all who would believe on Him, all for whom Christ had come to die. And they were the only ones that Jesus told about His birth at this particular time, or that the angels told about His birth at this particular time. And they typified all of us who have become shepherds to the world.

CALLER: Thank you.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Is the Sharing of Gifts at Christmas Unbiblical? (002B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hi, Mr. Camping. I wanted to ask you a question. I recently got married, and my husband and I have been talking about how we're going to raise our children in the light of the Bible. And we have been thinking that we don't want to teach them anything, like the world does, about Santa Claus, etc., at Christmas time. But even though we really want to teach them biblical things, we in our family exchange gifts as part of, we have a dinner and we have a celebration, and we do exchange gifts because we just want to. And I really would like to know your opinion about that. What do you think about it?

HC: The question is, on Christmas is there anything unbiblical about exchanging gifts? And the answer is no, there's nothing unbiblical about that at all. The Bible doesn't design Christmas day for us. The Bible doesn't even talk about Christmas day. It is a day that we have kind of arbitrarily selected as a day to celebrate the birth of our Lord, and it's not uncommon that when we're happy, when we're rejoicing, that we do exchange gifts. And as we give gifts to our children, it is really in a sense commemorating God's great gift to us, the gift of salvation. Spiritually we are His children. And that might hold forth.

However, if we're really going to make Christmas meaningful, and of course you've already indicated that you're not interested in Santa Claus. That is totally pagan. That is a denial of the Scriptures altogether. Santa Claus has no part in the life of the believer. But if you're really going to make Christmas meaningful, as you give gifts to your children, talk to them about this, that "Now you've received that toy [or whatever], and we gave you these gifts, but now we're going to sit down and we're going to talk about a gift that God has given to us." And you can really get into the whole message of Christmas, and go through everything that you know about it, about the shepherds and the Magi, and about the manger, that there was no room for Him in the inn. And discuss with your children everything you can about it.

It's a remarkable time, you know, right in the context of the gift-giving, to get into the whole matter of what the birth of Christ really means to this world and to us who have come to believe on Him.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

Is it Sinful to Observe Christmas? (002C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I'd like to ask about the holidays, whether Christians should celebrate them or not.

HC: Well, there are those who try to contend that it is sinful to observe Christmas. Now the Bible does not command us to observe Christmas. It would not be sinful if we did not observe Christmas. We're not commanded to observe Christmas. But on the other hand, to observe Christmas as a day when we celebrate the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ, is not contrary to the Bible in any way.

And I rejoice that at one season of the year we can focus our eyes, and hopefully the world itself to some degree focuses their eyes on this marvelous event of the fact that God took on a human nature and became a human being so that He could be the Savior of all who would believe on Him. I just don't find anything in the Bible that would say that that was a sinful practice.

CALLER: So you say that you can observe the birth of Christ.

HC: I believe that with all my heart. Now we don't observe it, saying, "We know that Jesus was born on December 25." In fact, we know He was not born on December 25. More likely He was born in October some time, or late in September. At least, the burden of the evidence points to that. But it's immaterial as to the precise day that He was born. On Christmas a day has been selected simply as a day when we celebrate or remember the birth of Christ. And no intention is made that this is the day that He was born.

CALLER: Do you know the day He was crucified, around the time?

HC: Yes, He was crucified in the spring of the year, on Passover Day. He was crucified in AD 33, and it would have been around March or April.

CALLER: Okay.

No Room at the Inn? (002D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, Brother Camping. I had some thoughts and a question that I'd like to share with you and get your input on. My comment is this. I've been thinking about how rebellious we all are by nature, and that if it weren't for the Lord's intervention in our lives we would never have any room for Him in our hearts. And my question is this. Is this implication of Luke 2:7, where we read about Mary having to lay the Baby Jesus down in a manger because there was no room for them in the inn?

HC: This is a question that has real significance in our lives. In Luke 2 we find in verse 7, "And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn." And then it goes on and talks about the shepherds.

You see, we stand amazed. In fact, we stand aghast at the fact that the Lord Jesus, who is Eternal God Himself, who is King of kings and Lord of lords, and remember, He was born a King. When He stood before Pilate He said, "To this I was born," when Pilate asked Him, "Are you a King?" He was born a King, and you would certainly expect Him to be born in a palace, or at least under very royal conditions. But we find that there was no room for Him in the inn. And He had to be born in a manger.

Now in the historical context it's fairly easy to understand. The city of Bethlehem was swollen with people who came from all over the land of Judea, all over the land of Galilee, to register. And perhaps it was at the time of the fall feast of Tabernacles. And they had come to enroll. And so everything was jammed.

But on the other hand, we stand amazed that here is a couple. She is about to bear a child. In fact, she is almost in labor. And you would think that somehow, considering the milk of human kindness, someone's home would have been opened so that there would have been a little bit more comfortable circumstances in which He could be born.

But the fact is that the Bible says that there was no room for them in the inn. Now this word inn is a very curious word. In the parable of the Prodigal Son we find one kind of a word for inn, but in this context it is an entirely different word for inn. It is a word that is found in Luke 22, in a very unusual place. In Luke 22 we find the same word, where it is translated guest chamber. And it is the place where Jesus ate the Passover. We read in verse 11, as Jesus is giving instructions to the disciples to find a place to eat the Passover, at which time He's going to initiate the Lord's Table, "You shall say unto the Goodman of the house, The Master saith unto thee, where is the guest chamber where I shall eat the Passover with My disciples?"

Now that certainly is a curious word, guest chamber. Now the Passover had altogether to do with the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ as the Messiah, and you would think that certainly a guest chamber ought to be available, a very special room ought to be available for Him, because He came as the Messiah. But the fact is, there is no room in the guest chamber. There is no room in the inn. There is no room for Him insofar as even the Passover is concerned. How do we tie all of this together?

You see, the problem is that Christ came to His own and His own received Him not. They did not want Him. They did not want Christ as their Messiah. They did not want to honor Him in any way. We read in John 1:11, "He came unto His own and His own received Him not." The fact is, the end of it all is that Christ was crucified. His death was plotted by the Sanhedrin, the ruling body of the Jews, by the scribes and the Pharisees. They wanted Him killed.

And in the very act of denying Christ the right to the guest chamber, that is, the right to the Passover, the right to having a place of honor, the right to being part of the Jewish nation in all that it is, in the very act of denying Him this, you see, when they cut Him off, when they crucified Him, they effectively were saying, "We don't want Him to be identified with the nation of Israel. We don't want Him to be identified with us in any way. The ceremonial laws, the Passover, and all that goes with that, which was eaten in the guest chamber, that is for us. That is not for Jesus. We want him cut off. We want Him denied any of this." And that already was anticipated when He came, when He was born. Before He is even born He is denied a place in the inn, in the guest chamber. The denial of Christ by His own people is already taking place, symbolically, of course, not in actuality to any high degree, although there is certainly a physical implication here.

But in the denial of Christ, so that He could not have His place in the guest chamber, that is, as being privileged to partake and able to partake of the nation of Israel, in that denial He became the Passover. He became the Lamb that was slain. All of this was necessary in order that He might be the Lamb. He had to be denied these privileges. He had to be cut off from the nation of Israel and denied by them, because He had come to endure hell for our sins. And the nation of Israel was simply the instrument in God's hand to bring about the crucifixion of the Lord Jesus Christ, or the atonement, to bring about the fact that He would pay for our sins.

And a few nights ago someone asked about the manger, and we saw that in being born in a manger not only does that indicate the humble circumstances in which He was born, but also that identified Him with the whole creation, with the fact that He came to redeem not only man but the whole creation from the bondage to sin. And it also emphasized of course the humble circumstances of His birth, that He was rejected of His own nation.

A Christian Perspective on Christmas (003A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. I have a question I would like to ask, and I would appreciate any comments that you might be able to give to me. My family is fairly well to do, and at Christmas time we usually go all out with the traditional celebration. And they're used to drinking egg nogs and hot toddies, and they always expect to exchange expensive gifts. But now that I am a Christian I just wonder what my attitude should be about this, and what about my participation in our family celebration? And I'll take my answer over the air.

HC: All right. Thank you so much for calling and sharing. This is a problem that is very very difficult and a problem that is caused by the fact that there are two kingdoms in this world. On the one hand there is the dominion of Satan, to which all of us belong by nature. The whole human race are slaves of Satan by virtue of the fact that we are the human race. And on the other hand, there is the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ, which we enter into when we have become saved. We read in Colossians 1:13, "We have been translated out of the dominion of darkness and into the kingdom of His dear Son," that is, the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ.

These two kingdoms are mutually antithetical to each other. That is, they are in direct opposition. They are antagonistic toward each other. When we were in the kingdom of Satan, that is, before we were saved, and all of our family and all of our friends were in that kingdom, we got along very well. Everybody was in general agreement that our lifestyle was agreeable, our mores, our conduct was generally agreeable. Oh yes, we fought and scrapped somewhat with each other, but nevertheless there was a certain harmony because we all agreed that we could drink and carouse, and we all agree that we could spend our money this way or that way, generally speaking.

But now one of us becomes a child of God, and that's where the problem arises, because whether we recognize it or not, or whether our loved ones recognize it or not, we have betrayed our kind. We have left the dominion of Satan, and we have been transferred over into the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ. That is, we have joined the enemy.

And Jesus speaks about this, that if any man does not hate his father or mother then he cannot be His disciple. Now that doesn't mean that we are to physically hate our father and mother, but the context indicates that He is simply saying there that we must love God more than our father and mother. And we are to hate our father and mother only in the sense that they are still slaves of Satan, and we don't like the world any longer in which they live.

The fact is, Jesus said in another place, "I did not come to bring peace on the earth but a sword." Now that seems to be directly contradictory to another verse that says that He came as the Prince of Peace. Indeed, the peace that He came to bring was the peace that comes to those who have been in rebellion against God, who were at war with God and now have come to be at peace with God. That is the peace that Christ brought. But in so doing, when we become at peace with God we become at war with our fellow men who remain unsaved.

Now generally speaking, this goes along fairly well. The fact that we have become a child of God does not trouble the family too much. They may think we've become a little odd, or they may think we have become involved in some kind of a sect or a cult. They may think that we have been brainwashed somewhat and they worry about us. But generally it doesn't shine through too much. They simply wonder what happened to us.

But it's at a time like Christmas that the antithesis shines through, that indeed there are the two kingdoms. Here is the dominion of Satan. We love our loved ones dearly. Traditionally, historically they have served their drinks and had their booze around and their partying and their Santa Claus, and all of these things. This is a tradition in the family. It has no useful spiritual significance at all. It is simply a time to engage in this kind of revelry.

And now we come along and we become a child of God, and now what am I going to do? I don't want to drink anymore because that's the hallmark of the world. That's the badge of the world, if you will, the one thing that the world today thinks that they need, and it's the ever present item at every party – the spiked punch or the booze – that is readily available. And because we are not of the world any longer, we don't want to serve the world, and we are in a different kingdom altogether, we decide we're not going to drink.

Well, all right, they can countenance that. We don't have to. They will just think, "Well, she's become a teetotaler, what an oddball!" But then some of the other things that go on make the true believer cringe just a little bit. It seems so wrong. Now how are we to conduct ourselves?

We must remember that we are in the world but we are not of the world. We cannot get out of the world. That's the first thing. We cannot become a hermit and go out to the side of a mountain someplace and isolate ourselves from the world, to become separate from the world. Occasionally someone will get that idea and he'll get his little band of followers, and they'll go off to the wilderness someplace and set up a commune of some kind, in an effort to do this. That is contrary to the Bible.

Number two, the Bible indicates that we are witnesses to the world. We have a testimony to bring to the world. That is the number one priority of every child of God. You must recognize that if you have become saved your number one mission field is your family. Oh, I don't mean that now you are to start preaching at them every time you see them. I don't mean that now you've got to become a pastor to them and make a big nuisance of yourself by talking about Christ every time you speak to one of them. The chances are they wouldn't put up with it anyway. They would drive you out of the house after awhile.

But it does mean that first of all your life ought to be lived to the glory of God. You must be the one in your family who is especially patient, who is especially tender, who is especially concerned about others, who is especially looking for the one who needs a little encouragement. Your whole family gets together. And before you were saved, what is the thing that very frequently you wanted? You kind of wanted to be the center of attention. Oh, that's true of most of us anyway. We have a lot of pride in our life. We like to kind of be in the limelight. We like to be recognized. We like to show off. Our stuff. This is one reason that booze is so nice because you take that drink and your inhibitions drop away, and you feel so carefree and happy, and what you say seems so wonderful now, so wise. You don't really know that you're making a donkey of yourself, but in your own eyes you really think you are achieving your goal of being acceptable to the most people.

But now you go to that party. You're invited to a family dinner or a family get together. Go there. But go there thinking, "I'm going to be the fragrance of the Lord Jesus Christ." No, not in order to gain any pride for yourself, not in a holier-than-thou attitude, now looking down your long nose at the sins of others. There's going to be plenty of sin on display. But remember, the sin is not against you. The sin is against the Lord Jesus Christ. But we live in a sinful world. But in that very sinful environment (which is just a caricature of the sinful environment this world is anyway) you are going to try to serve.

How are you going to try to serve? Well, you have your cousins there, you have your family, and there's someone over here that's kind of sitting off on the side, and a little morose and a little bit downcast, for whatever reason. And very gently you go over and you say, "Tell me something about yourself." Or start talking about something that you know he is able to talk about. And try to open him up, and be a friend to that person. Maybe the hostess of the party is beside herself with anxiety, running in and out of the kitchen, to make sure that the food is going to be properly served. Go to her and say, "Look, I'm here. Is there any way I can help? Where's an apron so that I can help you?" Now you don't try to take over. Don't make that mistake. But you're there, you're available, and try to do what you can.

This particularly becomes acute if it's the kind of a party, now in your case, if it's a wealthy home maybe you have people who come in to do the dishes and clean up. But frequently at these kind of activities the hostess is loaded with the responsibility. Everybody else gets busy chatting away in a corner here or there, and she's stuck with trying to keep the food moving, and so on. You can be the first one over there to see if you can assist in any way.

In other words, just be around to be the one ready to take on whatever task has to be done, no matter how humble it may be. And just be the fragrance of Christ. And if there is an opportunity to witness, gently witness. Seize that opportunity. Don't make a big announcement. Don't stand in the middle of the floor and say, "Now I'm going to tell you about Christ." And you know full well that in their drink-filled minds this is going to, this is not the place for this. It's not going to be accepted. It's just going to be a wet blanket on the whole party. This is not the place for it.

But there may be one individual there who needs your prayers, who needs your thoughts, and you try to minister to that individual. And otherwise just quietly on the sidelines try to be as unostentatious as possible. Whatever you do, don't try to call attention to yourself. And remember, the environment is very sinful because people are sinners. Remember, it is only God's grace that you have become saved. Remember that you have the truth and somehow God may be providing an opportunity for you to share that truth. And you might be praying in your heart for that opportunity, that it might arise.

Someone may drink too much and get in his cups and he is miserably suffering because of it, and you might be there to comfort, where everybody else is too busy with their own getting of attention. This I think is the way you can serve. And while you're in a sinful environment, you don't have to take part in the sin, you may be there ready to serve, so that in the midst of their sins there may be an opportunity to share the Word.

I hope this will help a little bit.

The Question of Sharing Gifts at Christmas (003B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I have a question concerning Christmas. My question is, is it biblical for us to give gifts at Christmas time, to celebrate Christ's birth? Is there any biblical reason for us not to give gifts?

HC: Interesting question. Are we out of God's will when we give gifts on Christmas? I think the main reason that we give gifts on Christmas is that we see the Magi, these men from probably Persia, and when they came to greet the Baby Jesus (who was about two years of age by that time) they brought gifts, gold frankincense and myrrh. They brought gifts to the baby Jesus, and these gifts anticipated the whole work of the Lord Jesus Christ. The frankincense and myrrh were, the myrrh related to the coming death of the Lord Jesus. The frankincense related to the prayers of Christ, and the fact that He would be the firstfruits of all who would ever believe on Him. And the gold really referred to the fact that believers would come from all over the nations to the Lord Jesus. We are typified by gold and silver and precious stones. But they brought gifts to Him.

And therefore, when we celebrate Christmas, we decide we're going to give gifts to each other. Now that practice of giving gifts when we are very happy, when we are rejoicing, incidentally is a practice that the world has done from time immemorial. We find this dramatically related in Revelation 11, where in verse 10 it talks about the time when the two witnesses are killed. Then those who look at the bodies of these two witnesses rejoice and are happy because these two witnesses have been a torment to them, and they exchange gifts. Exchanging gifts is an idea in which we are rejoicing because of something that has occurred.

The problem, however, is that when we exchange gifts at Christmas, and the idea itself is not foreign to the Bible because the Magi brought gifts to Christ, but we unfortunately frequently and very normally, perhaps, forget to whom the gifts were brought. Now the Lord Jesus of course is the one who received the gifts from the Magi, because it was His birthday. When we have a birthday at home of a child, everybody brings a gift to that child.

But now the question is, how do we bring a gift to Christ on His birthday, that is, on Christmas, when we are celebrating His birthday? One way of course is, the Bible does say that because you have given this to one of the least of these My brethren you have given it unto Me. And so as we give gifts to family members who have a need of this or a need of that, we can say, because we love them and because we have a desire for the very best for them, this gift for our loved one is, as it were, a gift unto Christ. And I suppose that would stand some scrutiny.

However, when we think about the gifts that we give to our loved ones, a lot of them are very frivolous. A lot of them are very unnecessary. A lot of them are very luxurious. They really are not serving that individual well at all.

But there is a way in which we could become far more careful in our gifts and far more Biblical and God glorifying in our gifts. Now remember, the end is that we want to give gifts ultimately to the Lord Jesus Christ, to His glory. Suppose now that we could give gifts so that the body of Christ could be built up, because after all, the body of Christ is intimately identified with Christ Himself.

But how do you build the body of Christ? You build the body of Christ by sending forth the Gospel. But how do you send forth the Gospel? Well, by providing funds so that missionaries can be sent out, so that a radio ministry like Family Radio can send out the Gospel into all the world.

And so while I do not think that it is unbiblical to give modest gifts to family members, I believe that we can enhance our gift giving to a very high degree by making gifts to various individuals and organizations who are about the task of sending forth the Gospel to enable them to do a better job of sending forth the Gospel. That is, I believe, the highest kind of giving we can do. And that will match, as accurately as possible, the gifts that the Magi brought, as they came to worship the baby Jesus.

Thank you for sharing that question.

Santa Claus and Children (004A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. I would like to know, how would you handle this situation? A little child comes home from public school and starts talking about Santa Claus. How would a parent deal with this without hurting the child? And should the parent make a big deal about this in front of a child? And how should they distract the child's attention away from Santa Claus without hurting the child?

HC: A very interesting question and a very practical question, because every time we start getting closer to Christmas, Santa Claus looms very large in the minds of people.

The fact is that little children by nature are not attracted to Santa Claus. They are actually afraid of him normally. He is an imposing figure with his red suit and his big beard, and children by nature are not very attracted to him. But parents really believe that their little two year-old ought to get the joy of knowing Santa Claus. And so they instruct their children, normally, to be interested in Santa Claus, and they begin to talk to their children about Santa Claus, that he's going to provide a gift for you, Santa Claus loves you, and if you do wrong Santa Claus may not have a gift for you. And they begin to tell all kinds of stories to their children about Santa Claus. By the time the children are in school they are ready to be very interested in Santa Claus.

But now what is a parent really to do? The Bible says, "Thou shalt not bear false witness." When we tell our children that there is a Santa Claus and that Santa Claus is going to bring a gift to them, and we really point to that man with the red suit and the white beard, we are lying to our children. It is an outright lie; it's a outright falsehood. It is very serious, for two reasons. First of all, it is grievously serious because we are disobeying God's command to speak the truth. Secondly, it is serious because we are undermining our own integrity with our children. Later on they're going to learn that Santa Claus is only a man dressed up in a red suit and a white beard. They're going to see more than one Santa Claus, and there's going to be confusion. When they get a little older they'll begin to understand. Whether the child recognizes it or not, or whether the parent recognizes it or not, the integrity of the parent has been severely weakened more than he may realize. For both reasons this is a very wrong thing to do.

Actually, when you examine this idea of Santa Claus, Santa Claus is the world's substitute for God the Father. Who is the giver of every good and perfect gift? God is. Who is the one who punishes us for wrongdoing? God does. Who is the one who knows everything about us? God does. But all of these attributes are ascribed to Santa Claus. It is a very insidious, deceitful way of denying that it is God who rules over us.

Now I'm a Christian parent. I have a little youngster. What am I to do? The fact is that we are to begin to teach them these things when we walk by the way, when we lie down and when we rise up. We're to bring our children up in the fear and nurture of the Lord. We have to begin to instruct them that this world is a very deceitful world. And so when they're two or three years of age we can begin to, when we're driving downtown and they see a Santa Claus, we can say, "Oh, do you see that man over there? He's dressed up in that red suit and that white beard, and he calls himself Santa Claus, and a lot of the children think that he is the one who gives them gifts. But that isn't really so. If they get a gift on Christmas it comes from their parents, or their brothers and sisters, or their uncles and aunts. They are the ones who bring them gifts. But you know, there is someone else who really gives us the gifts, the greatest gifts that are most important, and that is our Heavenly Father. And He is the one who really gives us gifts."

Now you take your child to the next corner or the next store, and you say, "You see, there's another man dressed up in a red suit. Look at all those children sitting on his lap and telling him what they'd like for Christmas. Do you know what's really happening?"

We should tell our children the truth: "The parents are listening, and the idea is that when they hear their children say they want this or that, then the parents will try to get that for their youngster for Christmas." We can be very honest about it. We want our children to grow up realizing that the world is very deceptive. We want them to realize that they can trust their parents with the truth. We want, above all, that our children recognize that God is the giver of every good and perfect gift.

Thank you for that question.

Can We Know the Date of Christ's Birth? (004B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. Could you please explain what it means in Galatians 4:4, where it talks about Jesus being born of a woman in the fullness of time? What is that referring to? Does the fullness of time mean December 25, or what?

HC: Actually, you're asking two questions. One question is, what does it mean that Christ was born in the fullness of time? The second question that you've really asked is, can we know the date of His birth? Was He actually born December 25?

First of all, the fullness of time simply is indicating that God has a very precise timetable for the unfolding of His Gospel program. Nothing is happening by whim or caprice. God does not begin the whole plan of salvation by simply deciding, "I'll make my decisions as I go along, and when it seems appropriate then I'll send the Lord Jesus Christ to be the Savior."

When we think about this, already from before the foundations of the earth, God had elected or named those who were to be saved. And since we're saved in all different generations all through the whole duration of the earth's existence, all of this had to be understood by God in a very meticulous fashion. By the same token, God had a very precise time when the Messiah would come. We find, for example, in Daniel 9 that God prophesied concerning the coming of the Messiah and said that it would be seventy sevens of years, or 490 years after the command to rebuild the temple that the Messiah would be cut off, or that He would bring in everlasting righteousness and He would bring in an end to sin, which means the time that Christ would go to the cross.

Actually, we find that that was anticipating that in AD 33 Christ would be crucified. And I'm not going to try to show this at this moment, but that is exactly what that was really saying. It gives a very precise timetable there for the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. God has a very predetermined, well thought through, definite plan. And everything must happen in exact accord with God's plan.

And so when the time came that Jesus was to be conceived, when the Holy Spirit would overshadow Mary and Jesus would enter her womb, and He entered into her womb, because after all, Jesus is eternal God, who is from everlasting. This was not the beginning of His creation, as would be true of a human being who is created in the womb. Actually, Christ simply took up His abode within Mary's womb and was born as a baby in the fullness of time.

Now what can we know about the date of Christ's birth? First of all, there is no suggestion in the Bible at all that Jesus was born on December 25. The early church decided that that would be an appropriate date to celebrate the birth of Christ because it was a pagan day that was used to celebrate the fact that the days now would begin to lengthen. It was the time of the winter solstice. The days had been getting shorter and shorter up until about the 22nd of December, and around that date the days would begin to get longer. And so they selected that day to celebrate the birth of the Lord Jesus.

That's a very appropriate day, incidentally, because the Bible indicates that He is called the Day. "This is the day the Lord hath made." He is also called the "Sun, who rises with healing in his wings," or the "Daystar that rises in the East." The sun of course has to do with the length of the day. And so it's an excellent day to commemorate the birth of Christ, even though there is not the slightest biblical evidence that He was born on December 25.

Actually, if we would work it out from the biblical evidence, we could probably conclude that Jesus was born in the Fall of the year, around September or October. How can we know this? Well, we can know this because of the priest Zacharias, who was officiating in the temple, who later on became the father of John the Baptist.

Now we find that Zacharias was ministering in the temple during the time of course of Abia (that's in Luke 1:5). And when we go back into the Old Testament, we find that the temple service was divided into twenty-four courses. And when we work out the time of the year when the course of Abia would have been offered, and recognize that that was about the time when Elizabeth, Zacharias' wife, would have become with child with John the Baptist, and then recognize that John the Baptist was six months older than the Lord Jesus (and the Bible is very clear about that fact), then we would come to a conclusion that Jesus in all likelihood was born around September or October, in the Fall of the year.

But God does not seek to give us any further information as to the precise date. God has His own purposes for that, but God does indicate that He was born in the fullness of time. Incidentally, likewise in connection with the year that Christ was born, there is no definite language in the Bible that would suggest the year of His birth. However, there is a lot of circumstantial evidence in the Bible that points to the year 7 BC as the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Right now you are probably saying, "No, that can't be. Our calendar is keyed to the birth of Christ, and that presumes that Christ was born in the year 0, or 1 AD or 1 BC, or somewhere in there." But the fact is, very mysteriously, the priest who many many years ago was assigned the task of working out our calendar made an error in arriving at the birth of Christ. He made an error of several years. We know that this is so because Herod, for example, the Herod who killed all the babies in Jerusalem, actually died in the year 4 BC. There is abundant secular evidence to that fact. While that's not a biblical statement, there is lots of secular evidence, and there's no controversy about it. He died in the year 4 BC.

Secondly, we know that when the Wise Men or the Magi, came seeking the Christ Child, they told Herod that they had seen the star two years earlier. And so that means that Jesus would have been born in at least 6 BC. And if there were any time at all from the coming of the Magi and the death of Herod, it could easily be that Jesus could have been born anywhere between 6 BC and 9 BC. But all the circumstantial evidence of the Bible points to 7 BC. And from the information we have in the Scriptures, in all likelihood He was born in the Fall of the year, around September or October.

But December 25 is an excellent date to celebrate His birth, because first of all it was a pagan day, and it's always good to commandeer a day that the unsaved of the world have tried to use for their own interests and make it God's day in some way. That's not a bad idea in itself. But also it's because it's the time when our days begin to lengthen in time, and therefore it points to Christ as the Sun of righteousness, who rises with healing in His wings.

But the big truth of all is that everything is under the control of God. Christ was born in the fullness of time. Christ will come on the last day, in the fullness of time, when God's plan calls for it. There is nothing done by caprice in the Bible. Everything is done with utmost precision as far as God's salvation is concerned.

The Problem With Nativity Scenes (004C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, Mr. Camping. I was listening to last night's program, and on it someone mentioned about the significance of Jesus being born in a stable. As a follow-up to that, I was wondering, is it okay to have a nativity scene on the mantle in our home? I notice that in some homes it's very common to see these things at Christmas time.

HC: That's an interesting question, too. What about a nativity scene? I remember years and years ago, when I was much younger, and my children were small, and I was not nearly as experienced in the Word of God as I am today, we did have a nativity scene. And every Christmas we would bring out the little stable and the little doll in the stable, and so on. And it was always very pleasant to have in our room, and the children enjoyed it very much.

But as I continued to become acquainted with the Word of God, and I recognized that we are not to make any image of God of any kind, and in order to have a nativity scene we have to have a doll in that manger, and that doll represents Christ. And Christ is God. As a baby He was God, as a grown man He was God. When He hung on the cross He was God. He never ceased to be God. Therefore I gave up the nativity scene as soon as I really came to that conclusion. I laid down the rule very gently of course, that we cannot have the nativity scene anymore. The children were disappointed for a little while, but they got used to the idea.

Now if you could have a nativity scene with some lambs and some goats and some straw and a manger, and so on, and there's nothing in the manger, I suppose you could have a nativity scene. But of course it wouldn't be very meaningful if there was nothing in the manger. And so if you feel you have to have a doll of some kind or a figure of some kind in the manger, representing the Lord Jesus, then based on what I read in the Bible, I think that it is contrary to the Word of God.

CHAPTER 6 – CHURCH AND RELIGION

CHURCH ATTENDANCE

Fellowship, Attending Church, and Personal Witness (147C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Mr. Camping. I have a problem and a proposed solution. And I was wondering if you could tell me if you think the solution is right.

HC: Okay.

CALLER: I'm a born again believer, and I believe that by praying, reading God's Word, and loving people by helping them, and fellowship, are all very important. But the last fellowship has been leading me into confusion, and I know confusion isn't from God.

For example, almost every night I try to attend some type of fellowship. This happens to be in various areas, because no place has a fellowship every night. At one fellowship many people speak in tongues, all at the same time, without anybody interpreting. And I feel it's not right.

And in another, a person says to me, "The Holy Spirit is speaking through me. And if you don't agree with me, you're actually disagreeing with the Holy Spirit." And in another, a person visits my home to, I guess, witness to me, and says that I'm not saved because I'm not going to his church.

And what I propose to do about this is to not go to any fellowship right now, but just to get as solid foundation in His Word. And I believe that by His power, through the Holy Spirit, He will let me understand His Word without having to have a human teacher. And then, after I get really a good knowledge, then I'll seek a true fellowship and a true church.

Could you comment on my proposed solution?

HC: All right. Let me see if I can make an observation. Your question really is, When it is so difficult to find a fellowship or an assembly where they are really true to the Word of God, shouldn't I just not attend for a while and try to study the Bible and grow in the Word of God, and then seek one?

The Bible does not teach that. The Bible teaches that we ought to assemble together with believers. Now this doesn't mean that we have to fellowship every night with other believers. It may be that we can only fellowship just on Sundays with other believers. The Bible doesn't set any timetable on this.

But you ought to find a group of believers. It may be a very small group. The Bible doesn't tell us how large it has to be. "If two or three are gathered in My Name, I am in the midst of them." And find the group of believers that is at least as close to truth as possible. They won't be a perfect group. There is no perfect group. And begin to fellowship with them.

Now the other thing you suggest is very salutary. Begin to study the Bible. And you're right. If you will diligently work in the scriptures, and become as acquainted as possible, God will lead you into truth. You can learn very very much without a teacher. Then when you do hear a teacher, you also will be equipped to know whether he is doing a good job of being in accord with the Bible, or whether he is not doing a good job.

Thirdly, I would suggest that you also begin to take on a program of being useful to the Lord. We are saved to serve. We are saved to be a witness. Now that program may be a very small program. Let me just throw out a couple of suggestions, and you can add to it all kinds of other suggestions.

There may be some neighborhood children, and you want to begin to teach them. Invite them over for some crackers and Kool-Aid, and share something from the Word of God with them on a regular basis. It may mean that you can visit a nursing home. Aged people in nursing homes are so lonely and so hungry for visits. And just to visit with them and smile at them, and give them a little reassurance, praying for an opportunity to witness, is a grand way to be of some help.

And it may mean that in your work or at your school you might encourage a few others to come to some kind of a Bible study. There are many many things that you can do. It may mean that you would get hold of some good tracts and think of places where you might place these, or look for opportunities where you might give one out now and then. This can be a part of your ministry.

Now I do agree with you that we are living in a day when there are all kinds of gospels. And we read in II John 10 that if anyone brings another gospel, we are not to give them any greeting. And so if you belong to a congregation which you have become convinced is bringing another gospel, because they are going beyond the Word of God in looking for divine truth, then it's time to leave that congregation. It's time to find a congregation that is going to be more true to the Word of God.

And we're living in a day when there might have to be some shifting around, you see.

CALLER: What about the instruction that Paul gives that you should stay where you are after you have become born again?

HC: There is no statement in the Bible that you have to stay in a congregation where you first experienced salvation. There is nothing in the Bible that says that.

CALLER: Is he referring to the job that you have at the time?

HC: I think what you're referring to is when Paul says, "Be content in whatever state you are." But you're not content in whatever state you are if it is a state in which you are going contrary to God's Word. Let's suppose that you were an embezzler when you were saved. Well, you don't stay an embezzler. Okay, so by the same token, if you were saved in a congregation (and this frequently happens, incidentally) that later on you discover is really a congregation that is going contrary to the Word of God, even though they use the Bible a little bit and God used this to save you, then by no means should you stay in that congregation.

CALLER: I should use my conscience and my knowledge of the Word as a guide then?

HC: You should use your knowledge of the Word as a guide.

What If One Cannot Physically Attend a Church? (319B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: The question of the previous caller was about the authority of the church on earth, etc. The next question is: What about a person who is a shut-in, who has divorced himself from a church which he did not feel was proclaiming Christ, and has no ability to go out to a church and become a church member? How does one take Communion, which he feels is absolutely necessary? What is one's status at that point?

HC: That's a very good question. And I'm very grateful for this question, because it may clarify some of the things that I said earlier.

First of all, we are not saved by the church. Church membership is not a requirement for salvation. While it is the church that is instrumental in sending out the Gospel, and the believers are the ones who support Gospel radio stations, and it is believers who band together to send out missionaries and to produce printed literature that can go out so that others might read about the Gospel, all of this is done by bodies of believers. The actual fact of salvation is a very personal relationship between an individual and God, where that individual has surrendered to God. He's confessed his sins. He's cried out to God for mercy. He's placed his trust in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Now, if that person is saved and there is no church that he can belong to—if he's on a desert island, or if he's a shut-in, he's a soldier on the battle field, or whatever—then he can't belong to a church. And that does not impair his salvation in any sense whatsoever. God has people all over the world who become saved, let's say, through short-wave radio, who have no church of any kind in their community or in their tribe, or wherever they may be. They simply hear the Word, they respond to the Word. God does His work of saving grace in their lives, and they are children of God. If later on they are able to join a church, then they should. But if there is no church, if there are no other believers around to fellowship with, then their salvation is still not impaired in any way.

And so it is in your case, if you're a shut-in. Your salvation is not impaired in any way. Now the Bible nowhere says how often we are to partake Holy Communion. If you're a shut-in, or if you're on the battlefield, or if you're on a desert island, and there is no church, then you don't partake of Communion. It's not going to impair your salvation in any way.

If you're able to partake of Communion, if there is a church that you can join which is faithful to the Word, and the pastor and elders will come and have a Communion service with you in your home, wonderful. That's a little bit extra blessing. But it's certainly not a requirement for your life. I would suggest in your case that you pray that God perhaps might show you a way in which you could become identified with a body of believers.

CALLER: I did that twice, at your suggestion, about three years ago. One required a church membership. I was in its parish, but I could not go along with its doctrine, which was based on tradition. The other was a church that was very receptive, and its denominational affiliation certainly was excellent. It preached the Word of God. But in this particular congregation the pastor had gone off into the charismatic movement, and I frankly said, "No, thank you." And after these two attempts, I felt that the door was really slammed in my face.

HC: Well, it could be, you know, that God is teaching you the same thing that He taught the apostle Paul: "My grace is sufficient." Now you're a shut-in. God has provided some very definite limitations in your ability to get around. And it could be that God wants you to learn that His grace is sufficient.

On the other hand, God may be teaching you patience, and He wants you to try it again and again. There may be other congregations that you could test out. A lot of times, you know, God puts testing programs in our life just to encourage us to be patient, just to encourage us to endure in the face of some obstacles of some kind.

If there is not a congregation in your community, and there are many small communities where this is true, if there is not a congregation that is true to the Word of God, then the body of believers may be no larger than a family, or two families that begin to come together. And they may begin to have a church. In your own case, if you're a single individual, you may just have to live alone and endure faithfully under this kind of a situation.

Of course marvelously, marvelously, because of radio you can fellowship through the radio with other people. You don't feel nearly as much alone as if you were without this blessing.

May God continue to give you much wisdom.

CALLER: Thank you.

HC: Thank you. Good night.

FIDELITY OF WITNESS

Can We Discern Hypocrites in the Church? (114B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: We know that Christ, when He was on the earth, could discern true believers from liars or hypocrites. Should we as Christians, with the Holy Spirit and God's Word, be able to distinguish hypocrites from true believers? I think that's a very important question. What do you do when there are people who are hypocrites and are using God's Word as a shield for their own self-righteousness? And I hate to say it, but I've encountered many people that I know aren't really saved, yet they believe they are, and are using God's Word as a tool of deception. And many people are doing what Paul warns against in Galatians 1, and that's believing in a false gospel, a false doctrine.

HC: The question that has been raised is this matter: Inasmuch as Christ could, as eternal God, know when a person was really born again, can we as Christians, under the discerning power of the Holy Spirit, discern whether a person we're looking at is truly a born again believer? The answer, of course, is no. We cannot do that. We cannot look upon a man's heart.

Any man who is living like a Christian, who confesses Christ, we assume that he is a born again believer. Only God knows for sure what's in his heart. Only God knows whether he really has surrendered his will to Christ. Now the Bible does say, "By their fruits ye shall know them." And one way that we can suspect that someone may not be right with God is going to relate to what they do with the Bible.

The Bible says that if you add to the words of this book, He will add to you the plagues written therein. And so one of the first questions we have to wonder is, "What are we going to do with the Scriptures? Are they alone the divine Word of God, or are we ready to accept truth from any other kind of source, whatever it may be?"

Now what do we do when we know somebody is coming with another gospel, or when we know somebody is hypocritical, or whatever? The answer is that we can pray for them. If they come at us with another gospel, we don't want to have conversation with them. The Bible teaches in the Epistle of Second John, in verse 10, if someone comes with another doctrine, we are to give them no greeting. The only purveyors, the only witnesses who are the true witnesses, should be those who are bringing the true Gospel. But certainly we can pray for those who think they are saved, and yet they are not saved.

Judgment Begins at the House of God (150B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I want to ask a question about the Judgment Day. Is it true that the church will be judged first?

HC: The question is raised: At Judgment Day will the church be judged first? The Bible does say in I Peter 4, that "Judgment begins with the household of God." And in Jeremiah 25, where God is judging, it speaks about judgment coming upon Judah and Israel, and all of this, and then afterwards upon Babylon also.

And so there are a number of passages that imply that judgment will begin with the church. But I think that we are seeing this already. I think God has in view something a little different than Judgment Day itself. Let's look at what happened in the Old Testament.

Now we have in the Old Testament some very sinful nations. We have a nation like Babylon, which is unrelated to God. It's just a grievously sinful nation. And then we also have at the same time a nation called Israel, or Judah, which is presumably God's people. Now which nation was first destroyed? Which nation was first conquered? It wasn't Babylon. It was Judah. God used Babylon to come against Judah until it was completely destroyed. The temple was leveled, and it ceased to be a nation at all.

Now about fifty or sixty years later the Medes and the Persians came, and they conquered Babylon. And finally, during the days of Alexander the Great, Babylon was utterly destroyed, so it never again became a nation. But you see, of the two nations Judah was destroyed first. Now Judah is a figure of the church, and Babylon is a figure of the kingdom of Satan, or the nations of the world.

Now as we approach the end, we're going to find that God's judgment begins to be poured out against the church. Now we're not talking about Judgment Day itself yet. We're going to see that because of increasing apostasy in the church, finally the Gospel will be silenced. This is spoken of in Revelation 20 as Gog and Magog, the nations from the four corners of the earth, coming against the camp of the saints, or the Beloved City.

It is spoken of in Revelation 11 as the two witnesses that are finally killed, the two witnesses being the representation of the church as it brings the Gospel throughout the New Testament period. The Gospel is silenced.

We read it in Daniel 8, where it speaks about the "continual" being taken away, the "continual" referring undoubtedly to the candlestick that always burned in the temple, representing the light of the Gospel. And it is taken away, for a period of 2300 evenings and mornings.

And this must happen before Judgment Day comes on Babylon, or upon the nations of the world. The church must be judged as an organization. Now the born again believers don't lose their salvation.

They aren't killed. Some of them may be, if there is persecution, and there always is some persecution going on in the world. But as an organization it will be silenced. The unsaved in the church, they don't face Judgment Day yet. They will still face that as part of Babylon, at the end of time. But nevertheless, the church as a viable, as a useful organism of God, is neutralized, even as Judah was neutralized, as the temple was destroyed in the days of Judah, back in 587 BC.

And after that Babylon, or the kingdom of Satan, is judged. And that includes all of the unsaved of the world. They come into judgment and are cast into hell. And that's at the end of time.

CALLER: The Christian will judge the world?

HC: Yes. The question is raised: Doesn't it say that the Christians will judge the world? Indeed we will. I don't understand all the implications of this, but in I Corinthians 6:3 it says that we will judge. And in Revelation 2 it also speaks of those who conquer will rule the nations with a rod of iron, which is a figure, again, relating to Judgment Day.

Now we are in our resurrected bodies at that moment. If we have died, we have been resurrected and caught up in the air to be with Christ. If we were living at that time, we have been changed instantaneously into our resurrected bodies and caught up in the air to be with Christ. And Christ has come as the Judge.

Now the first thing He has done is that He has completed our salvation by giving us our resurrected bodies. But now the work of judging begins. And I don't know how this is going to be. This is the end of time. We're on the threshold of eternity. But all the unsaved have been resurrected simultaneously with the resurrection of the believers, and they stand for judgment. And we will be active in the judging process. But how this will be, I'm not really sure.

CALLER: Would it be like a court, do you think?

HC: I have no idea how it will be, because we'll be outside of time then. We'll be in our resurrected bodies. Christ will be in His glory. We know that the unbelievers must give an account of everything they've ever done. Now remember, God is the Creator of mankind; God is the one who is conducting this whole program. And how this will all be done, I have no idea because I can't understand an infinite God. And I certainly cannot understand eternity. We're outside of time then. We're on the threshold of eternity.

CALLER: If I said that Christ will judge the church, and the Christians will judge the unsaved of the world, would you say you really don't know?

HC: I don't think you could say that, or put it quite that way. Christ is the Judge of the world. But you see, already, when we were saved, we are seated with Him in heavenly places, we read in Ephesians 2:6. We're already reigning. Now we're reigning in the sense that it's Christ's task, by going to the cross, to provide salvation for those whom He planned to save from before the foundations of the earth. And as people are being saved, Satan's rule is being reigned over. We plunder the house of Satan as we bring the Gospel. And in that sense we are reigning.

But Christ's work is more than just that Satan's house will be plundered of its victims. He reigns over Satan in that sense, but also in the sense that He is going to judge him and cast him into hell. Now even as we were partakers in the task of bringing the Gospel, and in that sense reigning with Christ, even though it is Christ who actually did the saving, so perhaps in some measure, it will be Christ who is judging, and we will be involved as a vehicle of some kind in the judging process.

CALLER: When we speak about our transfigured bodies, they don't have blood in them? What does it mean, transfigured?

HC: The question relates to: What about our resurrected or our transfigured bodies? Now in I Corinthians 15, in the whole chapter God deals with the question of the resurrection of our bodies. And He comes to this very question in verse 35: "But someone will ask, 'How are the dead raised? With what kind of body do we come?'" And now God says, "You foolish man. What you sow does not come to life unless it dies. And what you sow is not the body which is to be, but a bare kernel, perhaps of wheat or of some other grain. But God gives it a body as He has chosen, and to each kind of seed its own body."

In other words, God is saying. Look at a grain of wheat. You put it in the ground. It looks like a dead little thing. And it springs forth as a beautiful plant, that really bears hardly any relationship to that seed which was put in the ground. Now by the same token, we can't speculate at all about the kind of body that will be raised. We only know that we are buried like that grain of wheat, and we are raised with a glorious eternal body that God will give us. And probably it will bear no more resemblance to the body that went into the grave than that plant bears to the seed that was put in the ground.

CALLER: That makes me more curious.

HC: Yes. It makes us more curious, but it also makes us marvel at the grace of God, marvel at the grace of God, that this is for me. This is the future that God has planned for me. We often become very ecstatic when we think of some joy that is going to come to us in our lifetime, some honor that might be conferred upon us, or some vacation, or whatever it may be. We really rejoice in anticipation. But this kind of a thing, in relationship to this earthly scene, is like nothing at all as compared with the marvelous future God has for us in eternity, in the New Heaven and the New Earth.

And it's so close, you see. We're actually one breath away from eternity actually. We don't know when God will take us. And certainly we're drawing very close to the end of time itself. And so really, for the born again believer, the future is totally in front of us.

CALLER: May the Lord bless you, and thank you.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Diviners, Mediums and False Prophets (151B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Brother Camping, I need to ask you a question. What is the New Testament position on divination?

HC: The New Testament position on divination is found in the Old Testament, simply because the New Testament insists that all Scripture is given by inspiration of God. That's a New Testament verse. And in the Old Testament, it says in Deuteronomy 18 that one who divines is an abomination to God.

More than that, those who divine, who try to foretell the future, apart from what they read in the Bible, are believing that they are receiving a message from God. And in Revelation 22:18 God says, "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein." In other words, it's impossible to actually receive information from God apart from the Bible, once the Bible was completed.

Therefore we can readily begin to see that anyone who claims to divine the future, to be able to know the future, apart from the Bible, is not being used of God. He is being used of some other source.

CALLER: Four weeks ago I met a pastor, a real pastor. And he told a group of us, Brother Camping, these words: "I am a trance medium. I can leave my body at will and visit other places. I have contact with the other side. My grandmother came to me and visited me, and we talked. And she promised me that I would get a car. And sure enough, the next morning I got the very car that my grandmother told me I would." Would you comment on that?

HC: Yes. Just because, first of all, someone is a pastor does not mean that he is of God. Jesus speaks, for example, in Matthew 24:24 of "false prophets and false christ, who will come with signs and wonders, to lead astray, if possible, even the elect." There are plenty of pastors around who are not of God. The only people who are of God are those who hold only to the Bible as the Word of God.

Now there is of course an occult world, composed of Satan and his evil spirits, the fallen angels. And Satan does give individuals insights into the future. Now he's not always right, because God can circumvent Satan. But apparently Satan does have some access or some way of looking into the future. And he is able to convey that information to individuals.

But any kind of occult activity is listening to Satan rather than listening to God. And so we are to have nothing at all to do with that.

CALLER: All right. The final thing is, he said, well, he really has a going church. And he said, "I prayed for a new organ, and God spoke in an audible voice and said, 'Yes.'" And he got it, Brother Camping. He said, "I prayed for a new Steinway piano, and God answered 'Yes' audibly." And he got it. And the last thing he asked God for was a telephone. They didn't have a telephone, and the people said they couldn't afford it. And he asked God for a telephone and now he has three. And he said, "Brethren, if you don't believe it, you can come in the church and look at them. They're there." And many people will testify that he has actually stood up in his congregation and told them what was going to happen, and it happened. He has blessings, and a lot of people follow him.

HC: It may be that these things are happening, but that doesn't mean he is of God. Let me read to you from Deuteronomy 13, where God speaks about a very similar condition. Before I read this, let me emphasize that when we hold something to be the Word of God, and we want to be obedient to it, we are worshipping the God who has given that particular document. In other words, if I look at the Bible and I say, "That's the Word of God and I want to be obedient to it," effectively I am worshipping the God who has given it.

By the same token, if I receive a vision or hear a voice, or whatever, and I am convinced that it is from God, and I want to be obedient to what I saw in that vision, then I am worshipping the God who has given me this vision.

Now in Deuteronomy 13 God warns thusly, beginning in verse 1: "If a prophet arises among you." Okay, now "a prophet arises among you" means that it's someone of your own people. And he claims to declare God's Word. That's what a prophet is. "If a prophet arises among you, or a dreamer of dreams [notice the immediate focus there is on someone who holds to dreams] and gives you a sign or a wonder, and the sign or wonder which he tells you comes to pass [notice how legitimate he is], and if he says, 'Let us go after other gods which you have not known [in other words, let us listen to the voice of other sources of divine truth than the Bible, if you really want to put it in the language of today] and let us serve them,' you shall not listen to the words of that prophet or to that dreamer of dreams, for the Lord your God is testing you, to know whether you love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul. You shall walk after the Lord your God and fear Him and keep His commandments and obey His voice, and you shall serve Him and cleave to Him."

You see, God in these days is allowing this to happen, and through this God is testing congregations. Are they going to listen to the Bible, or are they going to listen to that which purports to be divine truth from other sources?

CALLER: Amen! Well, Brother Camping, are there prophets today?

HC: Yes. Every born again believer is a prophet. Now in the widest application a prophet is someone who declares God's Word. And whenever we witness to someone concerning the Word of God, we are acting in a prophetic capacity. Now a lot of times we think of a prophet as someone who can foretell the future. Now of course we can to some degree.

When we witness to someone and we tell him, "Judgment Day is coming," we are foretelling the future, aren't we, because that is a future event. It hasn't happened as yet. But we have received our information from the Bible.

CALLER: Amen. What is a trance medium? I've never found it in the dictionary.

HC: Well, I don't exactly know the meaning of any of those words because I have no interest in becoming involved in that kind of an activity. But from your description, he claims that he is able to speak with the dead. Now obviously he cannot speak with the dead, that is, dead people. Dead people go down to a place of silence, the Bible says. But he can talk to those who are spiritually dead angels, those who have rebelled against God and have become the helpers of Satan. And they will mimic dead people. They will deceive such individuals into thinking that they are speaking to dead loved ones. And in this way these individuals are bound more tightly than ever by Satan.

CALLER: What shall I do for this brother? He's serious. What is a Christian's responsibility, other than to pray for him?

HC: All you can do is pray for him, and pray that God might give you an opportunity to open the Word to him. But he is convinced that he belongs to God, that God is doing this work through him. And my guess is that he will not listen to you at all. He'll simply say, "Well, you don't understand." And so remember, his sin is not against you. His sin is against God. Because you love your fellow man, you can pray for him. And it is only God who can make a difference in his life. There's nothing that you really can do, except to pray for him.

What is the True Gospel? (343B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: With all the religions and doctrines there are in this world today what do you think is the true Gospel?

HC: The question that is raised is, what is the true Gospel? The Bible indicates that it alone and in its entirety is the divine Word of God. This is particularly underlined in Revelation 22:18 and 19. There God declares that if anyone adds to the words of this book, He will add to him the plagues written herein. Or if anyone takes away from the words of this book, He will take away from him his share in the Tree of Life.

Effectively God is saying there that the Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. It is the Gospel. It is the articulated message of salvation that God wants mankind to hear. Now when we examine any sect or cult or gospel or religion, we can examine it in the light of this information.

There are two kinds that we're going to find. There are many that say, "Yes, the Bible is the Word of God, and we're ready to be obedient to it. But we also believe that there are other sources of divine truth. There is another book here that we look upon as being inspired. There is the possibility that God is still speaking today in revelations, or visions, or whatever." "This too is a source of divine truth." Therefore, that particular gospel, or religion, or whatever, regardless of how it may use the language of the Bible, or speak confidently of salvation, by definition is not the Gospel of the Bible. It has an authority that is more than the Bible, because the Bible is their authority, and also other utterances, that come by visions, or in other books, or from the church, or whatever have authority. It therefore is not the true Gospel.

By the same token, there are those groups that say, "Yes, we believe the Bible is the Word of God. It is our authority." But in practice they deny that certain parts of the Bible are relevant for them today. There are churches, for example, who deny the historicity of the first 11 chapters of Genesis. They look upon this simply as some kind of a parabolic statement, without any substance in history. That then becomes another gospel, because they are denying that Genesis is what it really is.

There are those who deny that the Old Testament has any relevance at all. They say it's for the Jews, it's not for us today. Then you begin to walk in the direction of another gospel.

There are those who pick and choose from the Bible. They read certain verses that seem to teach that the Holy Spirit is not a person at all, but only a force or an energy of some kind. And they simply set aside and disregard those verses that specifically address themselves to the question that the Holy Spirit is indeed a person, a person of the Godhead. And by this denial of these passages we begin to see another gospel rather than the true Gospel.

The easiest way to evaluate any gospel at all is by seeing what they do with the Bible. If they do not accept the Bible alone and in its entirety as the divine Word, then by definition you have another gospel. And when you continue to search out the doctrines that are going to be forthcoming from this other gospel, you'll find that more and more of their teachings deviate from what the Bible really teaches.

Joking About Godly Matters (375C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I was watching TV one night, a program which I no longer watch. But I wondered if there was something that we can do about this. It's called "All's Fair," I believe. And the man in the program was a joke writer, and he said that President Carter would use his jokes if he would accept Jesus Christ as his personal Savior. Now to me that was very offensive. I think it's a terrible thing to say about the Lord. Why do they have to put things like that on the program?

HC: Let me ask you this: Have you ever heard someone who claims to be a Christian make a joke about something in the Bible, or something about the church?

CALLER: Yes, I suppose I have.

HC: Yes. This happens very, very frequently. Even pastors will do this. I've done this in the past. Every time I ever do this, however, if I speak flippantly in any sense of the Bible, or of the church, or of this denomination or that denomination (and it's a real temptation to do that, because that's what you've become familiar with), I realize that this is a grievous sin before God, because these are holy things. The Bible is very holy, and in no way ought it to be the environment of a joke. We have the whole world to joke about. We can joke about cows or flowers or clouds, or whatever. But when we start talking about God, or start talking about anything in the Word of God, or about His body, the church, then that must not be joked about.

The reason I say this, or broaden this question, is that it's easy to look at the secular world and say, "Why do they joke about holy things?" because we become offended when we see this on a TV program, or wherever. But actually, we in the church very frequently are more guilty than they. And more than that, we ought to know better.

So I really think that the place to begin to correct this is right with me — that is, in our own life, make sure that never will we joke about holy things, and encourage those that we come in contact with also. That is a "No-No." And then I think that God will take care of the others.

GENERAL CHURCH ISSUES

Some Comments on Evangelists

(009C)

CALLER: I was wondering if you could give me your idea of evangelists. I was raised a Catholic, until about two years ago, when I became a Christian and started going to a Baptist church. They're really straight on the Bible, but we've had several evangelists come to the church, and it seemed like, as we were going through the week, that it was just making a mockery of Christ. It was like he was selling Him to the audience, you know, putting Him up for whoever will, and I was just wondering what your idea of this type of evangelism is.

HC: First of all, the office of an evangelist is biblical. Ephesians 4:11 reads: "And His gifts were that some should be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, some pastors and teachers." An evangelist is commonly thought of as a person who is concerned with the Gospel message. He is not teaching. He does not stay in one place teaching the congregation into the deeper truths. He is not a pastor in that he is working in a congregation, attending to all the pastoral needs of the congregation. He comes into a situation to present the Gospel and then goes on to somewhere else to present the Gospel.

Now everyone who calls himself an evangelist is not necessarily doing a good job as an evangelist. An evangelist is faced with some real temptations, just as pastors and teachers are. An evangelist, for example, may without realizing it come to a point where he really believes that he is a failure unless he can see so many people saved. Like notches on the gun of a killer, he will want to have so many scalps of those who have been saved. And so he will use very many devices, and whatever, to get people to make some kind of a commitment for Christ. This can become very hollow and very superficial.

We must realize that salvation is by God, not by an evangelist. An evangelist is a witness of the Gospel, but by no means is he the one who is getting people saved. God does the saving. Or, sometimes an evangelist in his desire to get the crowds to come, or to get real interest in his work, may have to resort to a certain amount of showmanship, a certain amount of joke-telling and story-telling, and what have you, to keep his whole line interesting. And this again can very frequently empty the Gospel of its power. The presentation of the Gospel is serious business. It's a matter of heaven and hell, of life and death, of time and eternity. There is a tremendous amount at stake when the Gospel is being presented.

Some evangelists do a very competent job, and of course some do not. The best that you can do is try to learn what you can from any evangelist who comes in your church and forgive him for what is done very poorly. Every evangelist, like every pastor, like every prophet, has feet of clay. No one is going to do a perfect job.

But I have to agree with our caller that sometimes when someone comes, somewhat as an expert, you know, you bring someone in from the outside to have a series of meetings, and subconsciously we regard him as somewhat of an expert. Because he has been brought in, we expect something special, something extra great. And then when we get what does come we can get very disappointed, and particularly if it's in the area where the Bible is approached very superficially, or where it really becomes somewhat of a show-biz kind of a thing. We can really feel that we have not received what we have expected. And it takes very much patience and self-control in that kind of a situation.

What is the Relationship Between the Church and Heaven? (192D)

CALLER: Do you think that the church and the Kingdom of Heaven are synonymous terms? Or what is the relationship between the church and the Kingdom of Heaven? I do believe in an eternal Heaven, but in these last times is the church a type of a manifestation of the Kingdom of Heaven, to be used as a witness to those who don't understand the Kingdom of Heaven?

HC: A question was raised, which is a very contemporary question, What is the relationship in the Bible of the church to the Kingdom of Heaven? First of all, what is the church?

Well, the Bible indicates that the church is the body of believers. When did it really come into existence? Well, it came into existence from the very beginning of time. People are surprised, you know, when you call the Old Testament believers a church. But the Bible itself does this.

We read, for example, in Acts 7, where the deacon Stephen, a man well learned in the Scriptures, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, says, in verse 38: "This is he who was in the congregation" [or in the church; it is the same word ekklesia that is found throughout the New Testament, that is translated church], "This is he who was in the church in the wilderness, with the angel who spoke to him at Mount Sinai, and with Our Father." You see, the Old Testament congregation was a church. And throughout the Old Testament you find the word congregation or assembly. It was the body of believers, which consisted primarily of Israelites, but it was augmented by the proselytes, like Rahab the Harlot, or Ruth the Moabitess. It was the church.

In the New Testament the church was vastly increased, so that it included primarily people from every nation in the world, with Israelites, blood descendants of Abraham, having a much smaller part, percentage-wise. But it's still the same church. It's headed up by Christ. He is the one who said, "I will build My church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

The church was very small in the Old Testament, but it was Christ's intention to build it, so that it would become a great and glorious body, consisting of believers from every nation.

Now what's the Kingdom of God, or the Kingdom of Heaven, or the Kingdom of Christ? Actually, the Kingdom that we enter into when we are saved is the Kingdom of Christ. He is our King. He is our Head. That's why when Jesus came, He said, and John the Baptist also said, "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand." The King had arrived. And in order for the Kingdom of God to be effectuated, it was necessary for Christ to go to the cross.

There are those who say, "You know, the Jews rejected Christ as their King. And therefore God put into the works an alternative plan where He has the church age." Well, I often think, supposing that the Israelites had accepted Jesus as King. Where would they ever have gotten eternal life? Where would we receive eternal life? If they had accepted Christ as King, then there would have been no cross. And without a cross, there could not have been salvation.

The fact is, the Jews did want to accept Him as a political King. They were all rejoicing when He went into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday, ready to accept Him as a political King. They misunderstood altogether, even as many people misunderstand today, that the Kingdom of God is not a political Kingdom. It is a spiritual Kingdom.

We read in Colossians 1:13: "We have been transferred from the dominion of darkness into the Kingdom of His dear Son." In John 3:3 it says, "We shall not see the Kingdom unless we are born again," and we "cannot enter that Kingdom unless we are born of water and the Spirit."

So the fact is, the church and the Kingdom of Heaven, or the Kingdom of God, are one and the same, one and the same. The church has to do with the body of believers. The Kingdom of God has to do with the body of believers. The church is headed up by the Lord Jesus Christ. The Kingdom of God is headed up by the Lord Jesus Christ.

Now the fact that Christ only went to the cross in AD 33 does not mean that He wasn't the head of the Kingdom in the Old Testament. Christ is the Great "I AM," and the impact and the efficacy of the cross reached all the way back to Adam and Eve, even as it reaches all the way forward to us. There is only one Kingdom.

It's interesting, you know, that Israel was a figure of the church in a literal sense, and it was also called a kingdom. Jesus said in Matthew 8, "The sons of the kingdom will be cast out." Because we are a member of the church does not mean we are saved. We can be cast out, if we're not born again.

If we are a member of the church, corporately we're a member of the Kingdom of God. But that doesn't mean that we have eternal life, that we are personally related to the Kingdom of God, in the eternal sense. Only when we've been born again will we live forever in the Kingdom of God.

But if we are a member of the congregation, if we are a child of believing parents, then corporately we have entered the Kingdom. Corporately we have entered the church. But only when we personally have become saved do we have eternal life and will we remain forever in the church, or in the Kingdom of God.

Now once we catch this, we don't have to fuss with trying to find nuances and slight differences between the Kingdom of Heaven and the Kingdom of God and the Kingdom of Christ. They're all one Kingdom, because Christ is God, and Heaven is only where God is. It is the citizenship that we receive, as Philippians 3 puts it: "Our commonwealth is in Heaven." That is the Kingdom that we belong to when we have become saved. And we belong to it eternally.

Well, thank you for that question.

The Validity of Church Authority (198C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I'm a new Christian, and I've got several problems that I'd like to ask about. I became saved, I guess, about nine months ago now. And I've had many many problems with regard to the organized church.

The problem is, Mr. Camping, that I realize that once I accepted Jesus Christ into my heart as my Savior, I was reborn and I was placed in Christ's church. He places people in His church Himself, the believers. But the Christian people who brought me to know Christ have really disillusioned me by the fact that, number one, they don't believe in organized churches. And I'd like to know just why. And we talked about it. And right now I just finished a Bible Study group at a church. And this Christian who brought me to the Lord says that the organized churches of today are trying to all get together into one unity. And he points out in the scriptures that this was ungodly. And I don't have the scriptures that he gave to me, but I'd just like to find out if there's truth in this or not. He says that Christmas is pagan and not Christian. And he said that God ordains ministers, that there's no need for ordained ministers, but that the Lord will take care of this. And I'm really confused.

HC: Actually, your question is facing this whole matter of the relationship of Christ to the church, and the church to the believer. Now deep in the heart of man there is this rebellion against authority. And this carries right into the church. Man does not want anyone over him. He wants to feel absolutely free, This is rebellion against authority.

The child, for example, rebels against the parent. He doesn't want to be under the thumb of the parent. The student rebels against the teacher, and the citizen frequently rebels against the government that rules over him. Well, the same is true in the church. That is, in the Christian world there are those who say, "Well, I'm not going to be under the authority of the church."

Now the Bible teaches that we are to be under that kind of authority. If you read I Corinthians 5 and 6, you will find that the apostle Paul, who was one of the rulers in the church, speaks of excommunication of someone who was in the church and who was living in a sinful way.

We find in Matthew 18 that Christ saying that if someone sins against you, tell it to that person alone, and then in the presence of two or three, and then tell it to the church. And if he won't hear the church, then let the church deal with him.

In I Timothy 5 it speaks about the elders who rule well. The whole thrust of the Bible is that we are under the authority of the church. We are to join a congregation and be under the authority of those who rule in that congregation.

Now it is true that there are congregations and denominations that are trying to form a one-world organization. Unfortunately, in trying to do this, they have to find the lowest common denominator in regard to spiritual matters, and so they end up with a doctrinal position that is nothing at all. It can't be the rigid teachings of the Bible itself, because no two denominations are that close on these things. And so it is doomed to failure.

But the fact that there are denominations and congregations that want to form a one-world church of some kind does not negate the fact that God has set up congregations. You read Revelation 2 and 3. God speaks there of the church at Ephesus, the church of Smyrna, the church of Laodicea. And they're all congregations, you see, that people belong to. The Bible says that we're not to neglect the assembling together of the saints.

Now insofar as the ordination of those who rule, the apostle Paul under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit told Timothy, "Don't be hasty in the laying on of hands." In other words, don't ordain men as elders or deacons in a hasty fashion. Make sure that they are properly qualified. And so a congregation appoints (or nominates or elects) those who are to rule over them, who have the highest possible spiritual qualifications. And these are outlined in I Timothy 3.

So anyone who teaches that we don't have to have a church, or we don't have to be under the authority of a church, is teaching contrary to the Bible.

CALLER: Okay, then what about this particular assembly? I'm not going to mention any names, because they don't have a name, evidently. But they gave me a tract, and it said that Christmas was pagan and not Christian. And this upset me for so long. Like I said, I've been a newborn babe in Christ for I guess about nine months now. And it really messed my Christmas up this year. It's really difficult for me. I can't understand.

HC: I would say this. The fact that they are teaching you error concerning the nature of the church means that you want to be very careful about anything that they teach you. They are not resting altogether on the Bible.

In connection with Christmas, you raised the question of the Biblical validity of Christmas. The Bible does not teach anywhere that we are to celebrate Christmas. There is no command of this kind. The fact is, the Bible does not even reveal the date of Christ's birth. We really don't have any idea of the exact day that Christ was born.

But we do know in the Bible that when Christ was born, the angels celebrated His birth, appearing to the shepherds and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." We know that the shepherds recognized the birth of Christ by bringing the Baby Jesus homage, by coming to Him.

We know that the Magi came to Jesus with gold and frankincense and myrrh and rendered homage to Him, and recognized His birth in so doing. And so it certainly is not contrary to the Bible to have a day set aside on which we are going to recognize the birth of Christ. It is not called for in the Bible, nor is it prohibited in the Bible. It is not contrary to the Bible.

And I think that it's a wonderful thing that once a year we see such a high percentage of people pay homage to Christ, even though the majority of the people are unsaved. At that time of the year there is a call to look again at the Christ.

CALLER: Well, this is what I thought. Anything that glorifies Christ should be followed. But then, you know, when you keep getting slapped down about it, then you begin to wonder. And so if God's got a plan for my life, He must be telling me, because I'm so confused, that I've got to go somewhere else to get some answers.

HC: Frequently this is the case. We have to keep looking to find a body of believers that is closer to the truth.

CALLER: Right. Well, Mr. Camping, thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Thank you. Good night.

The Difference Between Religion and Christianity (371C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I'd just like to know, what really is religion as opposed to Christianity? And there are people who are of certain religions, but they're also Christians. If they're Christians and if they know personally the Lord Jesus Christ, why are they still in their religion, too?

HC: The question is raised, What is the difference between the fact that people are interested in religion, and that of the Christian Gospel?

You see, mankind was created by God in the image of God. He was created a religious being. He was created with a sense in his soul that he must worship God, that he must reckon with God. The very fact that pagans offer sacrifices, by throwing their babies into the River Ganges, or having burnt offerings, or whatever, indicates that they realize that there's a God of some kind that they have to deal with. The idea of God is inherent within the heart of man. All men are religious. Even those who claim to be atheists, by the very fact that they are protesting, "There is no God," they give evidence that they are able to think in terms of God, and they are loudly trying to convince themselves that it isn't really so that there is a God. But an animal doesn't argue about whether there is a God or not. An animal was not created religious.

Now the Christian religion, that is, the true Christian religion, is the Gospel whereby man can indeed become identified with God again. Because of our sins we are estranged from God. Because of our sins we are in rebellion against God, and eternally we will be cut off from God. Now man senses this, and therefore he has some kind of a religion whereby he thinks he can become right with God. But it's only through the Christian Gospel, the Gospel that is bounded by the Bible alone and in its entirety, only by this Gospel can we know the true path, the only way of becoming right with God.

Jesus declared, "No man cometh unto the Father but by Me." He declared, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life." He is the only way that we can have eternal life.

CALLER: I still don't understand why there are different teachings and different religions. And some are not found in the Bible. How can people still belong to that religion and still be a Christian? Or maybe they aren't Christians.

HC: They aren't Christians. You see, those who are true believers actually make up a very narrow segment of society. The Bible talks about a remnant chosen by grace. A remnant is just a tiny little part. The Bible says, "Broad is the way, and many there are thereon that leads to everlasting destruction. But narrow is the way and few there are that find it that leads unto everlasting life."

All kinds of gospels and religions prevail. And those who are adherents to these are confident they've found an answer. But it's an answer designed after their own minds. It is not an answer that is given to them from Heaven, from God Himself. The Bible is the only book that faithfully declares, in an infallible fashion, the means by which we can come to God. It is a revelation from God Himself, where God has indicated the design of His path of salvation. And it's through the Lord Jesus Christ. It is the only path that has real life to it, that really will work.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you.

Comments on Today's Church Scene (383B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have just been listening to you for a few weeks, and I don't know your feelings about this new charismatic movement that's going through the country, but it's somewhat confusing to me sometimes. And I just wonder what you do think about it, and what you feel about the tongues movement. You do believe in people being healed by God, don't you?

HC: Absolutely I do. No one becomes well except God makes them well. God cares for this world. He supports this world by His power. He is watching over this world. But I do not believe that miracles are being done as Jesus did them when He healed the ten lepers, or when He raised Lazarus from the dead. That's a different matter altogether.

CALLER: Well, yes, I know what you mean, although I've had people tell me that they have seen miracles somewhat to that degree. For instance, my sister-in-law, who has osteomyelitis, had some elders pray for her. And her foot was black, and she said it turned to its normal color at the time that they prayed for her.

HC: Well, let me just say this. The place where we find truth is in the Bible. Our minds are very deceptive. We can't trust what our minds tell us, nor can we believe everything that we hear. There is a tendency on our part to sometimes see things more hopeful than they really are. There is a tendency to exaggerate occasionally. I'm not saying that your sister lied to you or anything like that. All I'm saying is that the way we find truth is not by some kind of evidence out there. It's by what the Bible declares. And the Bible declares that Christ did not go to the cross to give us physical healing. The Bible does say that God upholds this world by His power, and therefore He does heal, if it happens to be His will. Lots of times it isn't His will, and people die of disease.

But God cares for unsaved people, and He cares for saved people. He cares for those who have been prayed over, and

He cares for those who have not been prayed over. God is concerned about this world, and He does bring healing. But insofar as the miracles that Jesus did, they were very special in nature. They were instantaneous. He set aside the ordinary rules, the ordinary laws that govern the universe, so that instantaneously a man with a withered hand could have a whole hand.

Now that is not happening today. Instantaneously lepers could become well. And that's not happening today. Instantaneously Lazarus could come out of the grave. And that's not happening today.

Secondly, we're living in a day when we're very near the end of time. All of the Biblical information points to this. And Christ warned, when we get near the end of time, that the church would be overrun with those who come with signs and wonders. In Matthew 24:24 Jesus declared, "False prophets and false christ will arise, with signs and wonders, to lead astray if possible even the elect."

The fact is, when we study the Bible we find no reference to signs and wonders near the end of time relating to true Gospel activity. All of the references, and there are a number of them, which relate to signs and wonders taking place near the end of time, are all Satanic in origin. And that's very ominous. That's very traumatic to read about.

If you look at Matthew 24:24, or II Thessalonians 2:8-10, or Revelation 13 or Revelation 16, you'll find in all four of these places references to signs or miracles. And in every case it has nothing to do with the activity of Christ in bringing the Gospel.

CALLER: Well, this is what's so confusing to me. We came from a really fundamental church, and when we moved from Arizona to California we still received the newsletter from our old church. And our pastor, in the last several newsletters that we've gotten, has really denounced, for instance, the new charismatic movement.

HC: Incidentally, on this program I don't like to talk about any congregation or denomination or movement. We'll just talk about what the Bible declares.

CALLER: Oh, Well, it's just confusing to me because of the fact that I know so many wonderful Christian people in this, and if we call these things Satanic, how can these people claim to be Christians? How can we say that it's of Satan? That's what I'm wondering. For instance, healing, or speaking in tongues, or I don't know all the other things that seem to be associated with this, although if you don't want to go into it it's all right. But it's very confusing to me.

HC: Let me see if I can help you. Remember earlier I said that we do not build doctrine by outside evidence. We build it by the Bible. Now you can look at many gospels and sects and cults, and so on, today. And you can find people who are lovely people, who are decent moral people, who are find citizens and who are very zealous for their cause. And if we would try to make a study of the gospel that they hold or the religion that they hold by their lives, by the good things they do, by their benevolent attitudes, and what have you, and their love for their fellow man, we would have to give their particular gospel or religion the very highest approval.

But you see, the test of the true Gospel is not in the lives of people we look at, because we can't look at a person's heart. Only God can look at a person's heart. The test of the true Gospel is, "What does the Bible say?"

Now the Bible indicates that it alone and in its entirety is the divine Word of God. In Revelation 22:18 & 19 we read, "If anyone adds to the words of this book, I will add to him the plagues written herein. And if anyone takes away from the words of this book, I will take away his share in the book of life," and so on. In other words, God is indicating that we are to look at the whole Bible as the Word of God, and we're not to look at anything else as the Word of God.

That means that any gospel, regardless of how beautiful it may seem, or the people who are involved in it may appear to be, any gospel which believes that the Bible is the divine Word of God, but which also believes that there is another book or another source of divine truth, such as visions or voices or tongues, or whatever, is by definition another gospel rather than the true Gospel, because those who hold to that kind of a gospel are saying that there are at least two sources of divine truth. There is the Bible, and there is this other source over here.

Or any gospel which declares that only part of the Bible is the divine Word, and that there are parts of the Bible that are not to be looked upon as the divine Word, would also by definition be another gospel.

Now this is the way we have to decide what is the true Gospel. Any denomination or gospel or congregation of belief that one holds has to be understood in the light of, "How do they relate to the Bible? Is it alone and in its entirety the divine Word?"

Now we're living in a day right near the end of time, when the church — the churches, the denominations, the groups of believers as they are found throughout the world — is becoming increasingly lax in maintaining the authority of the Bible. The church is not being true to its responsibility to remain faithful. Now it's still the church of Jesus Christ. It still has a mandate to bring the Gospel. It's still represented, to use Biblical language, by a candlestick in Heaven. But it is beginning to rewrite the rules. It's rewriting the rules on divorce and remarriage. It's rewriting the rules on population control, and rewriting the rules on who has authority in the church, who may preach, and so on. And the church is rewriting these rules.

It's rewriting the rules insofar as what the Bible consists of. It's countenancing books that are called paraphrases of the Bible, which are not the Bible at all. It no longer is nearly as interested in a deep and urgent study of the Word of God. The church is increasingly interested in social activity, in music activity. Now music is fine in itself. Social activity is fine in itself. But God says, in Hosea 4:6, "Because you have rejected knowledge, I will reject you from being a priest before Me." In other words, we are turning away from the Word of God as being the final authority.

Now as part of the judgment on the church, or as part of God's bringing His wrath upon the church because of its activities, the Bible indicates, and all of this was planned and prophesied in the Bible, there's nothing that's happening that's out of control, or beyond what we could expect, that as we approach the end of time the church will be assaulted by those who come with these other gospels, and particularly those who come with gospels that feature signs and wonders. They'll come with a gospel that looks so much like the true Gospel that even the true believers would be deceived if this was possible. It talks about this in Matthew 24:24: "False prophets and false christ will arise, with signs and wonders, to lead astray, if possible, even the elect."

The elect are the true believers. Even they could be led astray if they were not held by Christ, because these who come as false prophets and false christ, in the Name of Christ, believing they are followers of Christ, come with a gospel that looks so much like the true gospel that even the elect would be deceived if possible.

And this is a judgment on the church, because the church is not remaining faithful. And ultimately this will result in the silencing of the Gospel. The day will come, and it's fast approaching, when God will take away from the churches and congregations and denominations and groups of believers, as we have known them throughout the New Testament period, the credential or the right to be the custodian of the Gospel. The Gospel will be silenced. We're not to that point yet, but that time is coming.

Now because we live in this dynamic and interesting and also traumatic time, we have the experience of seeing the vision in the church. Let me illustrate this. Up until our generation, if we had lived, let's say, fifty years ago or one hundred years ago, or two hundred years ago, and we belonged to a congregation, the church members would have come into the fellowship of believers there, and ordinarily (there would have been a few exceptions, but ordinarily) they would have lived and died in that congregation. We would have believed they were children of God, or born again believers. And finally, when Mrs. Jones or Mr. Smith died, we would all be very happy in our sadness that our dear friend had gone home to be with the Lord, that finally he is rejoicing with Christ in Heaven. And this would have been a normal experience.

We, however, are living in a day when the church is being assaulted by these other gospels (and there are many of them), so that anyone at all in the congregation who is not a born again believer and according to everything we read in the Bible, there is no congregation, there is no denomination, there is no church, no group of believers at any time in history that consisted altogether of born again believers. Even the disciple band did not consist entirely of born again believers. The churches of Asia Minor, in Revelation 2 and 3, did not consist entirely of born again believers. And there is no church that consists entirely of born again believers.

Well, as these other gospels come, and they're very glorious gospels, you know. They appear so dynamic, they appear so significant. And certainly they talk about Christ and the blood of Christ, and all these things. As they come, anyone who is not a born again believer, anyone who has been desperately making like a Christian and as near as we can tell is a Christian, will be snared off into these other gospels.

And so this is where the trauma comes. This is where the division comes. This is where the strife in the congregation comes from. And this is what makes it very difficult to live today. This is a day when you cannot evaluate the gospel by the lives of people. You can only evaluate the gospel by the Bible. And you want to make sure that in your own life you remain true to the Bible, as being alone and in its entirety the divine Word of God.

CALLER: That's what I'm trying to do, but it seems so confusing to read all these things. But can I just ask you this? If this is not of God, why do they seem to be glorifying God in all that they do, and bringing others to Him? How could this be serving Satan, if they are bringing others to Christ and winning souls to Him? How could it be detrimental, or how could it be of Satan if this is the case?

HC: All right. Let's raise this question. And that's a very good question. How is it possible that a gospel, any gospel that is not the true Gospel, could really glorify Christ in a tremendous way, apparently, and really apparently bring many people to Christ? Is this possible? And the Bible says absolutely so.

In Matthew 7, beginning with verse 15, Jesus is talking about false prophets. And He says, "In that day (that is, at Judgment Day)," these false prophets will be so certain that they were followers of Christ that they will argue with God at the judgment throne and say, "Lord, Lord." In other words, they were very familiar with saying, "the Lord Jesus" this and "Praise the Lord" that, and so on. "Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in Your Name (in the Name of Christ)? Did we not do many mighty works in Your Name? Did we not cast out demons in Your Name?" In other words, "Weren't we against Satan in Your Name?" And what will the Lord say? "Depart from Me, ye that work iniquity I never knew you."

So don't underestimate Satan. Now we read in II Corinthians 11 that Satan comes as an angel of light. Most people quite frequently fail to realize the magnificent deceiver that Satan is. If someone comes to you and lies to you, and it's a flagrant outright lie, so that you can spot it in a minute, you say, "Oh, you liar." That person was not a very good liar, was he? He was a liar, but he was an amateur at the business.

But when Satan deceives, he is the master deceiver. He is the master con artist. When he deceives somebody, they have no idea that they have been deceived. They have no idea. He's so subtle, he's so clever. He comes as an angel of light, that is, a messenger of God, with the message of salvation of the Lord Jesus Christ. And he just twists it enough, so that it's not the true Gospel. That's why Matthew 24:24 says that even the elect would be deceived, if that were possible. That's how clever Satan is.

And so don't you believe it for a moment that Satan won't glorify the Lord Jesus Christ. Of course he will. He'd be glad to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ, if in so doing he can gently lead someone away from the true Gospel.

CALLER: Well, it makes me so sorry for the ones that are being led into all this, but I guess the only solution is to just pray for them, and pray for their true salvation and the leading of the Holy Spirit.

HC: Well, this is a day when we want to be sure that we remain with the true Gospel. On this program I never hold up one congregation or one denomination, or one group of believers above another, because I believe there are true believers in most denominations. But this is the only thing we can hold up. There's only one thing we can hold up, and that is the Bible, the Bible. It alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. And if we'll only take that, and remember that, and keep going to the Bible for our authority. If we're going to decide what doctrine is true, check it out in the Bible. Don't check the evidence on the outside, because our minds are tricky. Our minds deceive us. And we're not sure whether we're being told the whole story. We can't read the heart of men, and so on. But we can read the Bible. And in the Bible God gives us the straight story, absolutely straight story. We can depend on what we read there.

And as long as we're reading the Bible and trusting it as the divine Word, Satan can never come at us with his deception. He doesn't speak in the Bible. God speaks in the Bible. The Bible is the voice of God. Every time we read the Bible we know this is God speaking to us. If I would receive a vision or something else, I would have no idea who was speaking to me, whether it was out of my mind, or whether I was hallucinating, or whether Satan himself was coming at me. I'd have no way of knowing, none whatsoever.

But when I read the Bible, I know that is God speaking to me.

CALLER: I sure appreciate your helping me. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Music in the Church (435A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'd like you to discuss eternal security, and the idea that you can fall from grace. And also, about the spirituality of music in the church. Some church music seems melancholy, and in some churches now we have a lot of rock music, religious rock. And one other point I'd like you to discuss would be, did God know that Adam was going to fall, that man was going to fall?

HC: All right. Let me ask you one question concerning your first question: eternal security. If someone asked you (if you believe you're saved), "What are you saved from?" how would you answer him?

CALLER: I'm saved from eternal damnation.

HC: You're saved from eternal damnation, good answer. Now why is it that you're saved from eternal damnation? In other words, what was going to bring you to eternal damnation in the first place?

CALLER: Because Christ died on the cross.

HC: Why did that save you from eternal damnation?

CALLER: I accepted Him into my heart.

HC: Why did the fact that you accepted Him into your heart save you from eternal damnation? In other words, what did Christ's dying on the cross, or the fact that you accepted Him, have to do with the fact that you're saved from eternal damnation? You notice there's a gap of some kind there, isn't there?

CALLER: I know that we have to follow in good works. In Ephesians 2:8-10 it talks about that.

HC: All right. We have to do good works after we're saved. But does that save us from eternal damnation?

CALLER: It says, "If you love Me you will keep My commandments."

HC: "If you love Me you will keep My commandments." Okay. So by keeping His commandments, does that insure that we will be saved from eternal damnation?

CALLER: Well, we're saved by His grace.

HC: We're saved by His grace. We're saved from eternal damnation by His grace. All right, but what does that mean, that we've been saved by His grace?

CALLER: Through faith.

HC: Through faith. What does that mean? You see, the missing ingredient in our discussion, I purposely asked you these questions to get you thinking, because once you understand salvation you'll automatically know the answer to the question of eternal security.

Those who believe we can fall from grace, that we can lose our salvation, do not, I'm afraid, understand what salvation really is. They don't really understand what happened that our salvation was accomplished.

Now let's start at the beginning. Here I stand. I'm a sinner. It's because of my sin that I must go to hell. Is that true?

CALLER: That's true, yes.

HC: "The wages of sin is death." That is the reason I'm condemned to hell. Now the only way that I can not go to hell is that something has to be done about the judgment of God that rightly ought to come against me because of my sins. Someone has to take care of that situation.

And that's what Christ did when He went to the cross. The Bible says He became sin for me. And He was found guilty for my sins, and God poured out His wrath on Him as payment for my sins. That is why when Christ went to the cross He made possible my salvation, or He made possible the fact that I will not suffer eternal damnation, because He suffered eternal damnation on my behalf, as my substitute. He became sin for me. He took my guilt for all of my sins, and paid for my guilt. So therefore no guilt can be imputed to me any longer. Is that clear?

CALLER: Yes.

HC: Now what sin would I have to commit in order to lose my salvation? What sin would it be? When you stop to think of it, there is no sin, is there? Because Christ became sin for me. He took all of my sins, and paid for them. So there's no way that I could lose my salvation.

More than that, when I was saved God declared that I have eternal life. Now what does that mean? Is that just a figure of speech? I have eternal life, the seed or the possibility of eternal life exists within me? Or do I actually have eternal life? The Bible says I have eternal life.

The Bible also says I'm born again. The Bible also says I'm a new creature in Christ. Well, how is all of this? The Bible teaches that in my soul, or in my spirit, I have experienced the resurrection. I have received my resurrected soul. I've been raised with Him. Now it didn't happen in my body, but it happened in my soul.

At death what happens? In my body I can't go into Heaven, because I still have my sin-cursed body. But lo and behold, in my soul I do go into Heaven, don't I? Because my soul has already experienced eternal life. Now if I have eternal life, then I can't die. Otherwise my life would not be eternal. So from that vantage point I could never lose my salvation.

Or again, Jesus Himself said in John 10:27, "My sheep hear My voice and follow Me, and I have given them eternal life, and they shall never perish. And no one shall snatch them out of My hand." These are the promises, you see. And there are many other promises of a similar nature.

CALLER: In Revelation it talks about being blotted out of the Lamb's Book of Life.

HC: Not out of the Lamb's Book of Life, but it speaks about being blotted out of the Book of Life. At least in Psalm 68 it speaks of that.

You see, in Adam we all begin in the Book of Life. Because Adam was the head of the whole human race, in a real sense we were in his loins. And he began without sin, he began as an eternal being who would live forever with God. In the day that he sinned, of course, the seeds of death were sown in him, he experienced physical death, and he also was estranged spiritually from God, in spiritual death. And that became the lot of all mankind.

The Bible uses the figure that we are in the Book of Life, but if we die wicked, that is, unsaved, then we cannot remain in the Book of Life. We are included amongst those who are cast in to hell. Or it uses another figure, that we are enrolled in the Lamb's Book of Life, if we are saved.

CALLER: Okay. There is a man who has led an extremely Godly life. He has professed Christ openly in the church, been baptized in water. As far as those in the congregation, we see this man as a Godly man, as being saved, a born again Christian. And he leads a Godly life for several years. But then he backslides. (And it talks about backsliding in II Peter, I believe.) And then let's say now he's backslidden, and Christ comes back. At that point is that man saved?

HC: Now remember, when a man is saved he is born again. He's received his resurrected soul. Now there are all kinds of people in the church today (and I don't know who they are, but God knows them, we can't point the figure at anyone else, but God knows who they are, and the Bible speaks of these) who really believe they're saved. But actually they're not saved. They are really making like Christians. They're trying to do things that Christians do, and desperately they're trying to live a life that is pleasing to God so that God will look with kindness upon them. But they have never personally broken before God, admitting their own sinful rottenness and cried out to God for mercy. They don't really know what it is to be born again. They don't really know what it is to trust altogether only on the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation. There are all kinds of people in the church today who are trusting in their good works in one sense or another. And if we do that in any sense at all, then we're not saved.

Now as near as we can tell, we think they're saved, because they look just like someone who is saved. As long as they continue to stay that way in the church, and if they died that way, we would have to assume that they went to Heaven. But frequently they don't continue that faithfully. The temptations of materialism or of pleasure or some other sin come along, and they fall away. And so then we have the evidence that they were never saved. They were never saved, no matter how holy they may have looked.

If they were truly born again, and they began to fall into sin, by the temptations of lust or materialism or pleasure, or whatever, they could not continue in that sin, because in their new soul, their resurrected soul, they would be violated. They would be so troubled, they would be so oppressed, they would be so abhorred by their sin as they got deeper and deeper into it, that finally they couldn't stand it. They would cry out, "Oh God, have mercy on me. How could I go this way?"

If someone claims to be a believer and lives like a believer for many years, and now he falls into sin, and in the face of what the Bible says, in the face of what the elders of the church admonish him about, he continues in his sin and he excuses his sin, and alibis for his sin, the likelihood is that he's not born again at all. That's incongruous. That's an impossibility for him to live this way.

CALLER: Okay. So he was professing Christ, but he wasn't possessed by Christ.

HC: He was professing Christ, but he had never become born again.

CALLER: That makes sense.

HC: All right. Now your other two questions. Let me answer the last question first. Did God know that Adam was going to sin? Absolutely yes. We read in Ephesians 1:4 that we were chosen in Christ from before the foundations of the earth. We read in Revelation 13 that the Lamb of God was slain from the foundations of the earth.

The whole program of salvation was carefully developed and designed and outlined, down to its most minute detail, before God ever created the heavens and the earth. God has never been surprised by anything that has happened on this earth.

The other question that's been raised is concerning music. A lot of Christian music today is of the rock variety, or something between the rock variety and some other kind of contemporary music. Just how does all of this fit into the plan of God? Or how are we to relate to it?

The Bible teaches in Ephesians 5:18, "Don't be drunk with wine, but be filled with the Holy Spirit, addressing one another with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs." Now the content of this language really is that it's talking about music that is related to God. And if it's related to God it's going to be related to His word. Putting it in another way, it's going to be holy music. It is going to be music that is set apart from the music of the world in a very distinctive way, because it is the music that is conveying the thoughts that relate man to a holy God, a just God. It's going to convey the love of God, and all of the other attributes that we find concerning God in the Bible.

A lot of the music of the world, you'll find, is like the painting that you see, where someone apparently splashes some different colors on the canvas. I was in an art studio a few weeks ago, and they had some paintings on display. One painting was for sale for $1,500, and my 4-year-old grandson could have done just as well, I think. It was really a pain to behold. I thought it was a travesty on the whole art profession. Well, that's my personal feeling about it.

Actually, that painting, however, was indicating the confused and bewildered and mixed-up nature of the soul of the artist. And music is frequently the same way. A lot of the rock music, and a lot of even Christian music that we hear, is conveying the confusion that exists within the soul of the composer.

The music we ought to sing, however, is not music that's confused and messed up and mixed up. It ought to be music that identifies with the Bible, with the holiness of God, with the majesty of God, with the greatness of God, with the love of God, with the wonder of God. The most sublime, the most beautiful, the most marvelous music on the face of the earth ought to be the Christian music. It's the music that soothes the soul. It's not the music that gets us all upset inside and agitated, and so on. That's not Christian music. Gospel music ought to be majestic, it ought to be holy music, set apart from the music of the world in a very distinctive fashion.

Now of course because music very frequently has lyrics, there are voices that are singing, we have a double opportunity to make it great and grand music, because in the lyrics God can be praised. In the words that are offered the will of God can be articulated in a very beautiful way.

That's the goal of Christian music. And when we view a lot of the music that calls itself Christian, we have to say no, no, no. It will never make it.

Can a Priest or Minister Forgive Sin? (439B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. My friend gave me the verse John 20:23 as a reason that it's okay to confess your sins to a man or to a priest or to a minister. I was wondering if you could help me out, and give me verses that would clear this up.

HC: It is true that if we read John 20:23 and not read it in the context of the whole Bible, it seemingly is teaching that the church is responsible for the forgiving of sins. However, when we read the rest of the Bible, we find that it is only God who can forgive sins. A man can't forgive sins. It's only God who forgives sins. It is God who decides who is to be saved. God chose us from before the foundations of the earth, as we read in Ephesians 1:4.

In I John 1:9 it says, "If we confess our sins, He [that is, God] is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Man cannot forgive sins. Only God can, because God is the one who knows the heart, and God is the one who has made provision for our forgiveness.

But God has established upon earth the organized representation, official representation of His body and of His work on earth in the church. And it is the work of the church to be the custodian of the Gospel. The church is to bring that Gospel to the four corners of the earth. And it is the Gospel that is the key that unlocks the prison house of Satan. It is the Gospel that is the vehicle that God uses to bring forgiveness of sins. God the Holy Spirit takes that Gospel and applies it to the hearts of unbelievers, and they are forgiven.

Now actually, it's because the church was faithful in bringing the Gospel that there is forgiveness of sins. And the fact is, the church in its official capacity welcomes these newcomers into the body of Christ. They of course entered spiritually into the body of Christ at the moment they were born again, and that's altogether God's work. But once they're saved, they join the church. And at that time they're baptized, to indicate that their sins have been forgiven, that they indeed are a member of the body of Christ.

Nowhere in the Bible does it teach that man can forgive sins. Only God can forgive sins. But the church, as it brings the Gospel, is acting on behalf of God to offer the keys that unlock the prison house and makes possible the forgiveness of sins.

Now you'll remember in the experience of Jesus, in Luke 8 or Luke 9 when Jesus was preaching in a house, there were four friends who had a friend who was crippled, or had the palsy. And they opened the roof and let him down into the house. And then you'll recall that Jesus forgave their sins. And the Jews there were astounded at this, and offended by this, because they correctly said, "Only God can forgive sins." And of course Jesus is God, and rightly He can forgive sins.

And then in that context Jesus said, "So that you might know that I have power to forgive sins." He healed the man also, indicating that He is the giver of life, not only physical life but also eternal life, which occurs when our sins are forgiven.

CALLER: The real drawback to that verse, John 20:23, is "As the Father has sent Me, I send you." It's almost like saying, "As the Father has sent Me, to save the world and to forgive sins, so I send you." It really sounds literal. I wish it didn't read that way. How do you take that verse? What does it really mean? Only that God has given to the church the right to be the custodian of the Gospel, the privilege of being the custodian of the Gospel. And it is through the Gospel that forgiveness of sins is provided.

We find the same truth in Matthew 16:18. Jesus is talking to the disciples, and He says in verse 18 of Matthew 16, "Thou art Peter and upon this rock [and the rock He's referring to is Christ Himself, because He is the rock] I will build My church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. And I will give unto thee the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven, that whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth . . ." And actually, in the real tense of the verb here it's really saying, "And whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall have been bound in Heaven." It's already an accomplished fact in Heaven. "And whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall have been loosed in Heaven." What the church is witnessing is actually something that has already been accomplished by Christ or by God Himself.

Now if we separate Matthew 16:19 from the rest of the Bible, yes, we could get the idea that the church can forgive sins. But let's be very practical about this. Here is a man who is a sinner, as every human being is. And he stands before an official of the church, a pastor or an elder, or whoever we think has the authority to forgive sins. Now how can this elder or this pastor, or whatever else we want to call him, know absolutely that is man is one of God's elect? Can he know?

Of course he can't know. Only God knows who the elect are. So if this man is coming and saying, "I'm a sinner, and I repent of my sins, and will you forgive my sins?" how can this pastor know whether this man's sins are to be forgiven? Because only the sins of the elect are forgiven. Now if this man is really on the path to salvation, he will be coming very sincerely and very honestly, and really be seeking truth, and really be looking for the way of salvation.

But no pastor can really know that. We assume that those who confess Christ are believers, but actually we can't really know the hearts of these people. And we know from the Bible that the church has got lots of people in it who are not saved, even though they may have all confessed Christ.

And so there's no basis even. First of all, man is in no position to forgive sins. Secondly, there's no basis upon which he could make a decision as to whether he can forgive the sins of this man, even if he had the power so to do. Only God knows what is in the heart of man. Only God knows whom He is going to save. Only God can work out this whole plan of salvation.

But because the church is intimately associated with the bringing of the Gospel and with the teaching of the Word and with the bringing in of those who are saved into the organized church, therefore God uses this language that "Whosoever sins ye remit, they are remitted," and so on.

CALLER: Okay. That sounds real good. I really appreciate this. Do you know anything about the sacraments, certain sacraments that some churches believe they have to go through, for extra or additional grace, for mortal sin, or something like this?

HC: Are there certain sacraments you can go through in order to cover certain kinds of sin? This is not Biblical in any sense at all. The Bible teaches that Christ is our eternal High Priest, and He has offered Himself one time as the sacrifice. And therefore we can go to Him confessing our sins, and He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

Anyone who's going to go to some individual and seek forgiveness of sins is doing so without any Biblical validation whatsoever. It's God's program that we go to Christ for the forgiveness of sins. And no matter how grievous our sins are, no matter how grievous they are, they will all be forgiven through the Lord Jesus Christ. There's no sacrament that we have to offer for the forgiveness of sins.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much. You've been of great help.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

On Disagreeing with a Bible Teacher (537A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. We just started a study in the Book of Revelation this evening in church. I talked to the pastor who is giving the study, and don't agree with him in some of the basics of what he's talking about. In that I don't agree with him, should I keep silent, or do I have an obligation to speak up and tell it as see it?

HC: The question is, if we are in a group of believers or a congregational set up and the pastor or the evangelist or the teacher, whoever he may be, makes observations that we feel are contrary to the Word of God, what are we to do?

Well, if it's in the congregational meeting, of course, where there isn't a forum there for asking questions or raising issues, then of course you must keep silent. When the pastor preaches a sermon, you are there worshipping, and that's all you can do. Afterwards, privately, you can go to your pastor and say, "Pastor, I'm troubled by some of the things I heard tonight. I'm troubled by this verse or that verse." And offer him the passages, and ask for an explanation, if he possibly can give it. "In the light of what you said in your sermon tonight, or in your teaching tonight, what do you do with this verse?"

Now on the other hand, if it is in the form of a seminar, where perhaps there will be a message given for a half hour or forty-five minutes, or whatever, and then there will be a time of questions and answers afterwards, then by all means ask, since this is the nature of Bible study. And everyone who is a servant of God bringing the Word of God ought to be ready to give an answer from the Word of God. This ought to be a delight on their part, to face any and all scriptures. And by all means you should very tenderly and very respectfully of course raise the question, if that opportunity is afforded. "Teacher, or pastor, or professor (whatever you would address him), you know, you said so and so. Now what do you do with that particular teaching in the light of these verses here in the Bible? These seem to be contrary to what you have taught. How do you reconcile this?" And this is the way you can approach it.

I think that is better than simply standing up and saying, "Now Pastor, I disagree with you, because I read so and so." It would be better to raise the question, "What do you do with these verses?" And give him an opportunity to try to explain. And then if he does not explain, then I would again ask the question, "Pastor, I read this verse and it seems to me to say this, and the language is very plain. And I don't know what else in the Bible contradicts this. And somehow I'm troubled by what you are teaching tonight." But you want to be very tender and very patient and very respectful as you raise these issues.

CALLER: I see.

The "Holy Father" and the Antichrist (650A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a couple of questions, and I would like to make a comment or two. I would like to know, would it be considered blasphemy against God for a man to take the title of Holy Father?

HC: Would it be blasphemy against God to take the title of Holy Father? The Bible says, "Call no man your father." Now it is true that we have our earthly fathers. We have a father who is our blood father, and we call him "Father." And that's not contrary to the Word of God.

But if we look upon anybody in place of God, a father in place of God the Father, then of course it is blasphemy. Then it would be entirely contrary to the Word of God. In fact, if a man is a spiritual leader of a flock, it would be far safer and wiser to call him a pastor, which really means shepherd. He is the shepherd of the flock.

Now Christ of course is the Good Shepherd, but those who are pastors are under shepherds, guiding the flock.

CALLER: I'm sure you're familiar with II Thessalonians 2:3: "Let no man deceive you by any means, for that day shall not come except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition, who opposes and exalteth himself above all that is called God or that is worshipped, so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God."

Then I'll drop down to verse 9, "Even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders." And I follow the newspapers quite a bit. And as the Lord raised up Pharaoh to show His power, that His mighty works might be declared throughout the earth, there is no doubt that the beasts written of in Revelation will appear in these prominent positions that men hold.

HC: Actually, when we study the Bible, we find that the man of sin here in II Thessalonians 2 (I'm very convinced of this) is no one else but Satan himself. And he is the beast that comes out of the sea, or the beast that comes out of the earth. It is Satan and his kingdom.

Now he is manifested in men of course. And we read in Matthew 24:24 about "false prophets and false christ, who will arise with signs and wonders, that is, anyone at all who comes with a gospel other than the true Gospel is an emissary, ultimately, of Satan. He is being used of Satan to woo people away from the true Gospel. And if they're not saved, many will be wooed away from it. It doesn't necessarily mean that they have to be prominent in the world. A lot of people, when they think of the antichrist or the man of sin, think of some figure-head who is very very notable, in a very very high position. No, that's not required at all. Anyone at all who comes with any gospel other than the true Gospel is an Antichrist, is someone who is coming as Satan's emissary. And in II Thessalonians 2 God has His eye on Satan. He is the one who is ultimately worshipped in any gospel other than the true Gospel, even though they may think that they're worshipping Christ, because it's not the Gospel of the Bible, ultimately.

Therefore it is a false gospel, and they're worshipping Satan, even though they don't realize it. This I believe is what God has in view here.

CALLER: You're saying that the beast with the seven heads and the ten horns then would be Satan himself.

HC: Yes, or the kingdom of Satan as it's revealed throughout time, and will continue to be on the scene right up until the end of time, but will be particularly dominant during the final tribulation period, when Satan is loosed. And that's particularly the time of the ten horns.

CALLER: Okay then, the second beast who follows after him will, I believe, be a man - the one with the two horns. I've been doing a study on that. Each horn signifies a king. So this beast with the two horns would signify two people, and I believe they would be behind a very large congregation. And there are two in the world today, one that is based in the Middle East, and also there is one that is based in Rome. And these two horns would be these two kings of this beast, working signs and wonders.

HC: These men you're referring to aren't able to do signs and wonders. They just aren't able to do that. Whether they have the true Gospel or not is another question. But when God talks about this beast in Revelation 13, with two horns that speak like a dragon and yet look like a lamb, God is emphasizing that this is the rule of Satan as he comes as an angel of light. Remember II Corinthians 11, where God talks about Satan coming as an angel of light, and his ministers as ministers of righteousness. And he causes all to worship the dragon.

This is simply talking about Satan as he comes through other gospels. And they are legion today. Everywhere there are all kinds of gospels that are holding forth. And I define another gospel as any gospel that goes outside of the Bible looking for divine truth, or which refuses to look at the whole Bible as the Word of God. I believe there's only one true Gospel, and this circumscribed by the Bible. The Bible alone and in its entirety is the divine Word. And any gospel that will not measure up to that definition is another gospel. And if it's another gospel than the true Gospel, it will be a false gospel. And these are found everywhere today.

CALLER: That's true, but in this one church that I'm talking about, with over 600 million people in their congregation, has doctrines in their church saying that this man is endowed with infallible abilities, which in fact would make him to be God, because only God is infallible.

HC: While there may be a church here or there that is obviously is not the true church, that does not mean that that church embraces all that the Bible is talking about. You see, the Bible is not concerned with just one denomination at any time in history. The Bible is concerned with the whole kingdom of Satan, as it exists in the world. Now the kingdom of Satan runs the gamut all the way from Eastern religions to those gospels that are so close to the true Gospel that even the elect would be deceived, if that was possible. And there's every variety in between. And it finds its place in every country of the world, in every city of the world. Everywhere we find the kingdom of Satan holding forth, with one kind of a gospel or another.

By the same token, we find the true Gospel sprinkled throughout all the nations of the world. And it is not confined to one denomination. It can be found in many different denominations. But this is the conflict that God talks about in the Bible. God does not single out this particular denomination or that particular denomination, any more than He singles out nations. We don't find Russia mentioned in the Bible, or China mentioned in the Bible, we don't find the United States mentioned in the Bible. We do find some of the ancient nations, like Egypt and Israel, mentioned certainly. But the modern nations are not mentioned in the Bible at all. God is not concerned about modern nations as individual nations, any more than He's concerned about individual denominations, regardless of how large they may be or how powerful they may be. God is concerned about the dominion of Satan on the one hand, and the kingdom of Christ on the other. And Satan's dominion has its big names and its little names. It has its big denominations and its little congregations. It has its religions that bear no relationship to Christ, and it has those that are so close to the true Gospel that even the elect could be deceived. We find all of this as part of the kingdom of Satan.

However, in these last days God particularly warns that the major assault will come against the true church by those gospels that are so close to the true Gospel that they would even deceive the elect, if that were possible. The doctrines are so close, and the practices are so close. But the first thing we can recognize them by is that they have a real interest in signs and wonders, which the true church has no interest in.

CALLER: You just said that signs and wonders wouldn't be possible in these last days, but I know for a fact that there are people going around claiming to have these.

HC: No, I did not say that. I'm only saying that the man that you mentioned, for example, doesn't do signs and wonders. While he is looked upon by his people as a great religious leader, he doesn't do signs and wonders. But there are plenty of gospels around, plenty of them, that may not appear evil in the sight of many, but nevertheless they do feature signs and wonders. And these are found all through the world.

Thank you so much for calling and sharing your thoughts.

PRAYER

Does God Have a Timetable for Answering Prayers? (013D)

CALLER: Yes. I'd like to know if God has a timetable for answering prayers of born again Christians. And if so, if you can give me some Scripture to back it up.

HC: Does God have a timetable? We know that God is perfect in His wisdom, perfect in His program, perfect in His desires for our lives. To use an illustration, we may be praying for an unsaved husband, let's say, or an unsaved child. And insofar as we are concerned we are quite convinced that nothing could be more wonderful than to have that unsaved husband or unsaved child saved about five minutes from now, after we begin praying. We really think this is just the most wonderful idea possible, and certainly nothing could be better than that. Now God may have in mind to save that husband or child, or whatever else that we are praying about, but God may have a lot of other plans that have to be worked out first.

For example, He may want that unsaved husband to be, first of all, a real testing program in the life of the wife, so that her faith will be strengthened, so that she will grow to a very high degree first. Or maybe He's got some other things that He wants to happen in that family's life before that husband is saved. God may take two years to answer that prayer, or He may take sixty years to answer that prayer. With God, the Bible teaches, a day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years is as a day.

In other words, God does not keep time like we do. God is really outside of time. He is in eternity. The Scripture I quoted, incidentally, is II Peter 3, where the question in view is, "Why is God so slow about coming? Why doesn't He, with all the wickedness that's in the world, come in judgment and stop all of this wickedness?" And in II Peter 3:8 God says, "But do not ignore this one fact, beloved, that with the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years is one day. The Lord is not slow about His promise, as some count slowness, but is forbearing toward you, not wishing that any should perish, but that all should reach repentance."

In other words, in this context God is saying that He is very patient with unsaved men, because He doesn't want to come before everyone who is to be saved has been saved. And so God's timetable is unrelated to our timetable. We think it has to happen right now, especially when it seems so beneficial to everybody concerned. But God has got a much more wonderful plan in mind, frequently, and He is much wiser. He knows what He is going to do with this sad situation that troubles us so much, and how He's going to make that work for good. He promises, in Romans 8:28, that all things work out together for good for those that love Him, who are called according to His promise.

And so the Christian is asked to patiently wait upon the Lord, and the wonder of it all is that every time we become anxious about the question that we're coming to the Lord with, we can go to Him with it again, and again, and again, so that afresh we can rest in Him.

Do We Pray to the Father or to Jesus? (278D)

CALLER: Could you tell me how we pray? I was talking to one of my friends. I pray to my Father in Jesus' Name. She said she prays directly to Jesus. Could you help us out there?

HC: The question is raised: To whom should we pray?

Now in this area we have to be very very careful not to become wiser than God. We read the Bible, and we do find that there is a triune God. The word triune is not used, but the Bible speaks of God the Father, the Bible speaks of the Lord Jesus Christ, in whom dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily. In other words, He is eternal God in every sense of the word, and the Bible speaks of the Holy Spirit, that He is God.

And so we might think, well, since the Lord Jesus Christ went to the cross on our behalf, we really ought to pray to Him. He is the most dear and precious to us. And many people pray this way.

But we must remember that God had laid out the rules, and these we are to follow. Remember when the disciples asked, "Teach us to pray," what did Jesus say? "Lord Jesus, who are in Heaven"? No, He didn't say that did He? He said, "Our Father, who art in Heaven, hallowed by Thy Name."

Again, when we study the prayers that are offered, we read, for example, of the apostle Paul, who constantly is talking about his prayers. In I Thessalonians 1 it is typical. We read in verse 2, "We give thanks to God always for you all, constantly mentioning you in our prayers, remembering before our God and Father your work of faith and labor of love and steadfastness of hope in Our Lord Jesus Christ."

In other words, God is insisting that we pray to the Father. Now this is a remarkable thing, you know, because in I Corinthians 11 we read that the head of Christ is God. The Father is the essence of God in the highest possible way that we could think of God. Not that the Lord Jesus Christ is any less. But it is God the Father who sent the Son. It is God the Father in whose Name Jesus came.

If you read the Gospel of John, through Chapters 5,6,7,8, you will see that again and again Christ referred to the Father, and that He comes on His authority, and that the Father is everything. And it is to Him that we are to pray. And we don't want to get holier than the Bible. We don't want to say, "I know, but Jesus is God, too. And why can't we pray to Him?" Well, let's just be obedient to what God has laid down.

Now it's true that the deacon Stephen, at the moment that he was martyred (we read about this in Acts 7), he had a vision, in verse 55 of Acts 7: "And he, full of the Holy Spirit, gazed into Heaven and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God. And he said, "Behold, I see the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God." And then he prayed, in verse 59, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit."

And so this is a very special illustration, in which Stephen is actually looking into Heaven, a very unusual situation. But that's not typical. Throughout the New Testament we find that we are to pray to the Father.

Now Jesus said, "Whatever you ask, you ask in My Name." In other words, we go to the Father in the Name of Jesus. And "in the Name of Jesus" means to go on the authority of Jesus. Effectively, Jesus is saying, "You can talk to the Father, you can have open access into the throne room of Eternal God. What a magnificent blessing and opportunity this is. And it's all made possible on My authority, because I paid for your sins at the cross. I made it possible that you might become right with God. You have been covered by My righteousness. And therefore you can talk with the Father."

And so this is why we pray, "Our Father." And then we pray, "for Jesus' sake," or "in the Name of Jesus," which is indicating that we are doing so on the authority of Christ.

Now nowhere in the Bible does it say that we pray to the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is Eternal God, who is active in the world, evangelizing the world amongst other tasks. He fills us in order that we might be qualified to be an evangelist, to be a prophet. But we don't pray to the Holy Spirit, even though He is Eternal God in every sense of the word. We pray to the Father.

Praying in Jesus' Name (340B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I'm in a prayer group, and I didn't agree with the instructor, but we were asking him how to pray, and he said it was more important to pray in Jesus' name than it was to pray in His will. And I don't agree with that. And I just wanted you to talk a little bit about that.

HC: The question is raised, when we pray, are we to pray in Jesus' will or in Jesus' name? Let's analyze what the Bible says about this.

Actually, Christ said, "If you ask anything in My name, it will be given unto you." Now what did He mean by that? It is by virtue of what Christ has done for us by going to the cross that we have access to the Father. It is on His authority that we can go to the Father. We do not go to the Father because of any merit in ourselves, because of any right that we have. We do not have an essential right to come before God, because in ourselves we ought to be sent to hell for our sins.

But on the authority that Christ has given us we dare come to the Father. In fact, we are told to come boldly to the throne of grace. We're told to pray without ceasing. So in every prayer we ought to be thinking, we are coming in the name of Christ or on the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Now we also must pray in the will of Christ. We do not go to Christ asking God just to give us the desires of our heart, whatever they are, without any regard for God's will. Our will is tainted by sin. Our will is not altogether trustworthy. We don't have the big picture. God does.

Because we are saved, we trust implicitly in God. We know that He will always do what is best for us. We have the joy and the privilege of going to God and unburdening ourselves, telling Him all the desires of our heart. But having said all this, we also recognize that maybe we've asked for things that wouldn't be good for us at all, even though we think at the moment in our minds that they might be good. And so we want to make sure, "But Lord, your will be done. You know what is best. We would never want accidentally or incidentally to superimpose our will on your will. We rest with you."

So actually, it isn't one or the other. We ought to be praying in the will of Christ, and we ought to be praying in the name of Christ. In the name of Christ it is on His authority we dare to come to the Father. In the will of Christ it is that we are indicating our total trust in everything that God does.

CALLER: Thank you.

Interceding for a Troubled Friend (380B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, Brother Camping, I have a friend who has a problem and I was wondering if you could give me some insight on it. Several years ago she became involved in fortune telling and had her fortune cast through Tarot cards. And since then she's been the victim of depressions and nightmarish type dreams. And just very recently she became a born again Christian, and since then she stopped taking the anti-depression type drugs that she was taking to counteract the depression. But when she stopped taking the drugs these manifestations have intensified. And I was wondering if you could give me any insight as to whether there is a Biblical reason for anything like this happening in this day and age and what I can do to help this person.

HC: One thing of course you can do is to pray that God will intervene in her life. The Bible teaches that God's perfect love casts our fear. This person, of course, has been living very close to Satan for a while, with her Tarot cards and the kinds of things that she got into. And so this really made a very severe impact upon her life.

Now if she is truly born again, if she is truly born again, now remember, to be born again means that we are hanging our whole life on the Lord Jesus Christ. It means that we've placed our whole trust in Him. It means that we don't fear hell or damnation. We know that Christ has paid for our sins. But neither do we fear Satan any longer.

CALLER: She knows this, and she wants to seek relief from this. I was there, and another person who was a good friend of mine was there when she did come to know the Lord. And we truly believe that she is a born again person. And she needs relief from this thing that she's undergoing right now.

HC: The relief will come only as she trusts in the Lord. Remember what Philippians 4:6 & 7 says? "Don't be anxious," or "Be careful for nothing. Be anxious for nothing. But with prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, make your requests known to the Lord, and the peace of God that passes all understanding will keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus." That's a faithful promise of God.

The anxiety will hit her again and again. Every time she becomes anxious, she should go to the Lord, "Oh God, have mercy on me. Take this fear out of my life. Help me to remember how I stand before Thee. What a wonderful thing has happened in my life, that I belong to Christ, that I am a child of His, that I have all of the promises of the Bible that He will leave me nor forsake me, that even though I go through the valley of the shadow of death, He will be with me, that nothing can happen to me outside of His control and keeping."

She should feed on the Word of God. Just read the Psalms. Read Psalm 23 over and over and over again, making this really a part of her life, that her trust is in Christ. Right now she's at the sixty-four dollar question: Is this matter of being a Christian only good for people who don't experience anything serious in their lives?

You see, it's very easy to be confident, I'm a believer when all is going well, when there is no particular stress that we are facing. But if we're really a child of God, if we're really born again, it should stand the test when we're undergoing severe trauma or severe testing. This is what God is really helping her to see, "Is my trust really in God, or am I only paying lip service to this?"

If my trust really is in God, if I really believe that God means what He says, that He will not leave us nor forsake us, that He will give His angels charge over me, that I have no fear of Satan at all, then what am I fearful about? Then what am I fearful about?

CALLER: Well, she expressed the opinion that it was possible that she was suffering for the salvation of some other, or something like this.

HC: I don't know of that in the Bible.

CALLER: Well, neither do I. And I tried to point her to Ephesians 6:10-18, where we take on the armor of God, and verses like this, where she can, through reading the Word of God and filling her mind with the Word of God, come closer and closer into unity with Him, and by this alleviate her fear. I've tried to point out to her that in her mind is where this battle is taking place. This is the means which Satan uses to attack us, through the medium of our minds.

HC: Satan will not attack through her mind, if she belongs to Christ. Satan has no hold on her of any kind. Satan can't touch her. The whole question is, where does she stand in relationship to Christ? It is her old nature that has been identified with her past life, which has been seared and hurt by her past life, that is not willing to trust.

But in her new soul, where she is born again, there ought to be this confidence in Christ. Now it can be demonstrated, in the face of the experience she's going through right now. She must recognize, "Okay. In my old body there is this fear that keeps creeping up on me. But I'm to crucify the flesh and its desires, its lusts. I'm to put it down. I'm not to listen to that. Oh God, have mercy on me when I begin to feel fearful. Forgive this sin. Forgive this sin, because ultimately it is the fact that I'm not trusting in Christ the way I ought to. Oh Lord, strengthen me in my trust. Help me in my unbelief."

This is the cry of the believer. And keep going back to the Lord, and thank Him for His blessings. And then the moment that anxiety begins to develop, go back to the Lord, "Oh Lord, forgive me. Now I'm beginning to sin all over again. I'm not trusting the way I ought to. Oh Lord, forgive me. Strengthen me in my trust. And encourage me to turn away from this kind of fear."

This fear develops because we take our eyes off Christ. Fear develops because we're not really sure whether God is going to care for us all the way.

CALLER: I tried to explain to her that perhaps this was a testing of her faith, and that she should turn to the Lord for release from this, and just absolutely put her trust in God.

HC: But to put feet under that is very difficult, isn't it?

CALLER: Right. Absolutely.

HC: It's one thing to hypothetically say, "Yes, this is what you ought to do," and it's another thing, when you've lived close to fear for a long time, to let go. But you see, this is characteristic of any besetting sin.

A person who by nature is addicted to alcohol, and there are certain people who very easily become involved in alcohol. They become drunkards. It doesn't mean that in five seconds after they become saved they'll never have any desire for alcohol again. This may trouble for a little while.

The same is true of any besetting sin. If a person has a vicious temper, that is always there. And they've really delighted in just letting it fly when things went badly. They don't, in five seconds, get victory over that. But if they recognize this is rebellion against God, then there can be victory. There will be some failures, but there will come victory.

The same is true of someone who has a lustful desire to desire, or is subject to evil desire, a sexual desire that is wrong. All of these sins that are deeply besetting sins, we have difficulty getting victory over. Now the path is always the same. We must repent. We must turn away from it. The path of turning away from fear is not an easy path. But if we'll deliberately concentrate on those passages in the Bible that indicate that God cares for us if we'll feast on these verses and remind ourselves of this, and cry out to God for forgiveness, when we do become anxious, then we're going to begin to get victory over that sin, too.

CALLER: One other thing. Would it be efficacious at all for myself and perhaps three or four other Christians to gather together to pray for this person in this specific regard? Is there any Biblical basis for that?

HC: The Bible teaches, "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." It however does not mean necessarily that you have to gather with others to pray. The fact is, Christ insists that prayer ought to be done in our inner closet, where nobody knows what we're praying. It's wonderful when we can encourage others to pray with us. That's why we have Prayer Time on Family Radio. We don't do this, however, to assault the throne of God, like getting as many signatures as possible to Congress, to sway their decision one way or another. We do this only because this is the Christian fellowship that we have one with another. We pray for one another.

However, if one person is praying, or two persons or twenty persons, the question is, what is going on in my heart? Am I really bringing this to God, as an earnest desire, and letting His will be done?

CALLER: Well, do you think it would be good for me to pray with this person herself?

HC: It could be, it could be. There's no formula for this, you see. There is nothing that's indicated. If you did pray with her, this may be helpful to her. But her trust cannot be in you. Her trust has got to be in Christ. It has to be in Christ.

And she has to look at herself very honestly, "Is my trust really in Christ, or am I really just paying lip service to this? Am I just intellectually trusting Christ? Am I in fact not really trusting Him with my whole heart?" That's the big question.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much, Brother Camping.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

Silent Prayer (393B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Harold Camping, I'd like to ask a couple of questions. First of all, is there anything in the scriptures about silent prayer? And the second question is, can Satan read our minds?

HC: The first question is, is there anything in the scriptures about silent prayer? First of all, the Bible does talk about . . .

CALLER: I was thinking about Joshua 1:8: "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth, and thou shalt meditate therein day and night." That's the gist of the verse.

HC: Joshua 1:8: "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein. For then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success."

We have the same idea in Psalm 119, where God indicates, for example, in verse 97, "O, how love I Thy law! It is my meditation all the day." And the Bible also gives other verses in Psalm 119 which . . .

CALLER: Also relate to meditation. Now I wanted to know if all these verses that talk about meditation indicate that there is such a thing as silent prayer.

HC: The Bible indicates, for example, "Pray without ceasing." Now if God means what He says, that we are to pray without ceasing, it means we have to be able to pray in every kind of a situation. Certainly, therefore, God anticipates that we will be praying within our hearts. There's a passage someplace that indicates that God knows what we will ask before we even ask it. God knows our secret thoughts.

CALLER: Then do all of these verses collectively indicate that a Christian can pray to God in the mind?

HC: Yes. I really believe that with all my heart, that our thoughts are just as, for example, here's an excellent proof text. In Psalm 19:14: "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my Redeemer." This clearly indicates that God knows exactly what we are meditating on within our heart. And in our meditation, if we're praying to Him, God knows this just as readily as if we were praying out loud.

Now the second question is, does Satan know our thoughts? The Bible indicates that when we are born again, we have been transferred from the dominion of darkness into the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ. This is Colossians 1, I think verse 13. Now that means that no longer are we under the rule or control of Satan. He no longer has anything on us. We are a citizen of Christ's Kingdom. Christ is our Lord. He is our King. Satan bears no relationship to us. Therefore I am quite convinced that Satan has no idea what's going on in my heart or in my mind.

CALLER: I see. Then you don't think Satan can read our minds.

HC: I don't think he can for a moment.

CALLER: I see. Thank you, Brother Camping.

HC: Now on the other hand, this brings to mind this matter of ESP. You know, there are these people who have the ability to read your thoughts. Now if I would present myself to such a person as a born again individual, and said, "Can you read my thoughts?" at that point I think that (and I believe that all of this kind of action, such as ESP and occult activity is Satanic), I think that's the reason that it will work. There is this spirit world. And I think that when I present myself this way, "Read my thoughts", I am effectively placing myself in his hand to some degree. And perhaps he can read my thoughts.

CALLER: By us being yielded, you mean?

HC: Yes, by yielding to him I'm really opening myself to him, to Satan, to use me. Actually, the Bible teaches that we are to turn away from Satan, that we are to trust only in the Lord Jesus Christ. We should not have any part in any kind of occult activity of this nature.

CALLER: Right. I believe that, too. Thank you, Brother Camping. I want to say in closing how much my wife and I enjoy your program and your faithfulness to the Word and to the Lord Jesus Christ, our Savior.

HC: Thank you so much for calling. Good night.

Praying for the Dead (537B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes, Brother Camping. I would like to know some scripture references and your comments concerning praying for the dead. And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: The question has to do with the question, does the Bible have anything at all to say about praying for the dead?

Actually, the Bible indicates in Hebrews 9, "It is appointed unto man once to die, and after that the judgment." Let me find that reference, so I'll give it to you precisely. In Hebrews 9:27 it says, "As it is appointed unto man once to die, but after this the judgment."

In other words, God is saying that once we have died the next event in our life is Judgment Day, if we're unsaved. Of course we'll talk about the saved person in a moment. For mankind in general, for the human race in general, God has decreed that "the wages of sin is death." The death that He has in view is eternal damnation. And once we die we will go down to a place of silence. We read this in Psalm 115:17 or verse 18: "The dead do not praise God, nor do any that go down into silence."

And then we read in John 5:28 & 29, "The hour cometh when all who are in the tombs will hear His voice and come forth, some to the resurrection of everlasting life and some to the resurrection of everlasting damnation." That is Judgment Day for those who are faced with everlasting damnation. Their sins have not been paid for, and there is no point in praying for them. There's no way, after they die, that there can be any change in their situation. There's no possibility of their being saved if they died unsaved. They are destined for hell. They are destined to stand for judgment, and because they have sinned and have no covering for their sins by the blood of Christ, they will end up in hell. There is absolutely no point in praying for someone who has died unsaved.

Now let's see, if our friend is saved, are we to pray for him? Well, the Bible says in II Corinthians 5:8, "To be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord." If a loved one dies who is saved, he leaves his body behind, but in his soul existence, which is as real an existence as his body's existence, he goes to live and reign with Christ in Heaven. And again there's no point in praying for him. He has come into the highest felicity. He has come into the brightness of Christ's glory, and he is living and reigning with Christ in Heaven. So there's nothing that we can do to change his situation either. He is home with the Lord. This is the ideal place for him to be.

And so therefore there is no point in praying for the dead at all, none whatsoever. We can't change a thing. We can plead with God after a person has died, "Oh Lord, deal kindly with this departed brother. Could it be that he will have an abundant entrance into Thy kingdom." We can pray all of these things, but it doesn't mean a thing, because the moment of death seals the destination of that person, whether he was ... if he died a saved man, he went to Heaven; if he died an unsaved man, he went into Hades, a place of silence, to await the resurrection of the last day, when he will stand for judgment and then be removed into hell.

Some Guidelines Concerning Prayer (566A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question on prayer. My husband and I own some property in another state, a house. And we've been trying to sell it for over a year, and I've been faithfully praying every night and every day about it, and waiting for the Lord's answer. And my husband was talking with another Christian last week, and this particular Christian (my husband had shared the burden with him) said, "Let's pray about it right now," and they did. And this Christian asked the Lord if we would sell our house in a month. And my question is, is this proper, to put a time limit on the Lord? Or should we ask Him to give us an answer in a month, or is that something that shouldn't be done?

And another question I have is, could you give me some guidelines as to how I should pray about something that hasn't been answered for a year? I know prayer is just a really important subject, and even the disciples had problems with it because they asked Jesus how to pray. And so these are my two questions.

HC: Yes. The question is, how are we to pray? Are we to set up time frameworks in what we're asking God about?

You know, we have to remember what prayer is, and we have to remember to whom we are praying. We're not praying to someone that we're making bargains with. We're not setting up conditions. We're not dictating to God in any sense whatsoever. Let's always keep this in mind.

Secondly, let's always keep in mind that God is sovereign, God knows exactly what is best in every situation. And we want to make certain that God's will be done.

All right. Specifically, you own a house in another state. You'd like to see it sold, you're asking a certain price for it. Obviously at some price it could be sold. But you have determined probably what you feel is the fair market value, and that is the price you would like to receive. And so you are praying the Lord that it might be sold at approximately that price.

Well now, first of all, how do you know that it's God's will that you are to receive that price? How do you know that it's God's will that you are to be free of this house, if it's some kind of a burden, or you need the money, or whatever? How do you know that God wants you to be free of that? Maybe God want's that house to be kind of a testing program in your life for the next several months. And if you pray, "Oh Lord, we're praying now by faith that this house will be sold in the next month," how can we dictate to God that way? Maybe it isn't God's will that it be sold in the next month, and we certainly aren't going to set up conditions. We don't want our will ever to be superimposed upon God's will.

And so we might pray, "Oh Lord, it is our desire that this house might be sold in the next month at fair market value." But then we better hasten to add in our heart, and maybe out loud also, "But oh Lord, you are sovereign in these matters, you know what is best for us. It may be that you have a different program altogether. You may want us to struggle with this matter for several more months so that we can learn patience, so that we can learn to trust in Thee a little bit more. Or maybe you have a better thing coming along. Maybe there's something on the horizon that we don't know about where it would be beneficial that we still owned the house two months hence. We don't know about these things. All we know is that we've put it up for sale, and we've tried to put a reasonable price on it, and there is no buyer for it. And oh Lord, we wait upon Thee in this matter. And if it is your will that something else ought to be done, then incline our hearts that way." But under no circumstance do we want to dictate to God.

You know, prayer is that marvelous privilege we have of unloading ourselves to God. You know, the Bible says in Philippians 4:6, "Don't be anxious about anything." In the King James it says, "Be careful for nothing." It really means, don't be anxious about anything. Now you're anxious about that house. Will it be sold? We need the money, so on and so on and so on. And the Bible says, "Don't be anxious about anything. But in everything with prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving."

In other words, we supplicate before God. We don't deserve the privilege of talking to Him. We come as a suppliant, someone who is undeserving altogether. We're really begging of God, could this be possible? And yet not our will, but Thine be done "with thanksgiving." We've got so much to be thankful for. After all whether that house is sold or not really doesn't make one bit of difference insofar as our eternal salvation is concerned. We're only strangers in this world, passing through. Whether we have a lot of money or a little money, or a little bit more or a little bit less, ultimately it's not really important because we can't take a penny with us. And we want to focus our eye on the fact that the all important thing is that we are saved. We thank God for that. We thank Him for the privilege of telling Him our desires. We thank Him for the fact that we know that His will is better than ours, and that we can rest in His will, knowing that whatever it is, it is going to be the best program.

And then what does God say? He gives us a promise. We come to Him with prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, and "the peace of God that passeth understanding will keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus." He doesn't say that He's going to solve our problems, does He? He doesn't say that He's going to immediately bring a solution to this matter that we are so earnestly seeking. He simply says that He will give us His peace. We will learn afresh to rest in Him, knowing that it's all going to turn out all right in the end, although maybe we've got a lot of patience to learn before it's all ended.

This is one of our major problems. We're so impatient. We think if we've waited for something for a year or two, or maybe three years or four years, that we've waited a long time and now, Lord, you'd better get with it. Somehow you're not doing very well on our behalf. But stop to think of it. How many of us, and how many of our friends were not saved until they were sixty years of age or older? And God of course knew that He was going to save this person, because it was God's program to save those whom He has chosen. And yet God patiently waited — one year, two years, three years, four years, five years, ten years, twenty years, thirty years, forty years, fifty years — and that person still did not surrender his will to Christ And then finally God has to put the pressure on him a little more, and He begins to open the eyes of that person. And at the age of sixty or seventy salvation comes. How patient God is! How patient God is!

And if God can wait these kind of years, then we can learn to have a little of that patience also.

Praying in Your Closet (900X)

CALLER: I have a question, when Jesus was talking about praying, He says, when you pray in your closet . . .

HC: Yes.

CALLER: Well, something like, when you're alone you should pray . . .

HC: Well, no, the setting is that there are those who display their holiness, their righteousness, on their sleeves so to speak. They want others to see "Look how righteous I am."

And this is even a temptation in our day. Someone is asked to pray, and they think about it, and try to think of flouncy phrases, beautiful statements, so that as they're praying out loudly and others hear them pray, they will be complimented "Oh, what a beautiful prayer that was" and . . . Well, that's about all the good that prayer did, was to get a compliment, because God is not interested in praying that's there to please man.

Prayer is communication with God. And in order to obviate and get rid of any idea of trying to please man, most of our praying—although there are times of public prayer, the Bible offers some suggestions on that—but ordinarily most of our praying is of very private matter, between me and the Lord.

As a matter of fact, the Bible says, "Pray without ceasing." That means, that any moment in any situation, we can go to the Throne of Grace and pray, and the only one we care about hearing that prayer, really, is God. It's not that we want others to hear it.

CALLER: Thank you.

RITUAL & LITURGICAL ISSUES

Fasting (013C)

CALLER: How does one fast?

HC: In the Bible there is no suggestion whatsoever as to how we fast. In the days of Nineveh, if you read Jonah 3, they fasted by not eating food or drinking water, and sitting in sackcloth and ashes, that is, to indicate total mourning for their sins. But nowhere in the Bible are we commanded to fast, and nowhere is there given any kind of description for fasting. If we want to fast, it's our personal privilege so to do, but it has to be something that's entirely between us and God.

And when I hear someone say, "Well, I fasted three days, or forty days," or whatever, I think, "Well, you've gotten whatever blessing there was in that the moment that you said that. Someone might have thought you were a pretty holy person, but that's about all it's worth."

The Role of Women in the Church Assembly (113D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question about women being silent. I found two places in the Bible where it talks about women prophetesses. I'm talking about Luke, where it talks about Anna. Because I'm studying for my ministry, and I'm a woman. And I'm trying to understand. In one part of the Bible it does speak of the fact that women should be silent. And then in another part it speaks of women being prophets. And I'm quite baffled.

HC: Well, let me see if I can help you a little bit. First of all, the Bible teaches that every born again believer, particularly beginning with Pentecost, is a prophet. We all are qualified by God, by being filled with the Holy Spirit from the moment we are saved, to be a witness. And so a woman can be a witness just as quickly as a man.

Now Anna was a prophetess in the Old Testament because she was on that side of the cross. She was not a priest, however. She was not one of the rulers in the synagogue. She was simply a prophetess. She had occasionally something to say that came from God, even as a woman or a child, or anyone at all who is a born again believer, can declare God's Word to his neighbor or to anyone who will listen.

Now that's fine, that's fine. A woman in the New Testament days today can be a witness. You can witness to your neighbors, you can teach a Sunday School of women, or teach a Sunday School of children. But when it comes to the assembly, when it comes to the congregation, the Bible says the woman is not to rule or have authority. That's where the line is drawn.

A woman may be a missionary, for example. And so she witnesses to the natives in the jungle village. But when the church is formed, when they become an organized body, she is not to be the preacher in that church. A man is going to have to come forth to be the preacher in that church. And she is not to rule in that church. She is still a missionary, just helping where she can and witnessing wherever she can.

CALLER: What my problem is, and I'm trying to understand it, is that you said when it came to the church itself, a woman could not have any authority. But I don't consider myself as ruling in the situation. I feel as though I'm ministering to the congregation, the same as though I were a doctor ministering to the sick or the ill.

HC: You see, your debate really cannot be with me. Your debate is with God. God has declared in I Corinthians 14:34 that the women are to be silent. God has declared in I Timothy 2:12: "I permit no woman to teach or have authority over men." Now God has laid these rules down. I did not write the rule book. God did.

And so you have to make your debate with God. Why does God do this? Well, I don't know why God does it. But God does what is perfect and what is right. The question we have to ask ourselves is: If I find it in the Bible, what is my posture going to be? Am I going to rationalize and try to find a way around it? And people do this all the time. They want to follow a particular line of action. They want to follow a particular practice. And so they struggle with the Word of God. And they look for a way around. They try to see if they can't read something more into the verse, or whatever.

Well, that's a hard way to live. It's a lot better if, when we read it in the Bible and there it is, we say, "Lord, I believe. Help Thou my unbelief. And now give me the faith, the trust, that I will walk that way also." Then we know that we're on very safe and solid ground, even though it may not agree with what we think may be the best.

We must remember that in our own actions we are tainted by sin. We are terribly influenced by the world in which we live. And so we can't trust our own thinking. We can't trust our own actions. We can't trust our own wisdom at all. It is so faulty. But when we follow God's rule book, when we do it God's way, we can rest assured that we know we're on a good and wonderful path. We can know that it's not going to lead us the wrong way.

CALLER: I'm aware of that. I'm not trying to get around it or to find an easy way out, or something like that, because if I can clearly understand that it's definitely wrong for me to stand in the pulpit and to minister to the congregation, that's all right. I can understand it. Then I would step down. I don't feel as though I am in authority.

HC: What you're really, I'm afraid, trying to say is that you read this in the Bible, and in your old nature, and we all have an old nature. I can speak very candidly about this, because I have found things in my life where it's been exactly the same situation. In my old nature I don't like what I read. I'd love to find a different kind of an answer. And so the first thing I say to myself is, "Maybe I didn't read correctly. Maybe there is more to it than what appears on the surface. Maybe if I could do a very serious investigation into this problem, I could find an answer that is (now I'm going to speak very candidly) more acceptable to what I really want to find in the Bible."

Many times I've seen this happen in denominations, where there are those who want to change practices within the denomination to suit what they feel would be acceptable. And so at important turning points in the denominational history they legislate for study committees. It always amuses me. What is the purpose of this study committee? Is it really to investigate the Scriptures? Or is it to figure out how to write a document that is very learned and beautifully spelled out, which will allow those who want it to do their own thing, regardless of what the Bible says? Because normally, in many of these areas, the Bible is rather plain. But it takes some real careful deliberation and very careful language to draw up a paper that will permit us to get around the Word of God.

Now I've seen this happen again and again and again, in the church, and I've seen it in my own life from time to time, where I might tend to be guilty this way.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: Good night.

The Question of Tithing (130B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Brother Camping. I'd like to ask you a question about tithing to the church. I realize that it says to give a tenth to the church. If you're financially unable to do this, what happens? We give what we can, and it is kind of hard for us. But this is what we want to give, and we do give this. But I hear that if you give a tenth, the Lord will help from then on. But if we were to do this, financially it would be impossible for us to meet our monthly bills. I was wondering what you thought of this.

HC: The question that is raised is concerning tithing. What do we do when we have our bills to pay, and it takes almost everything that we earn in order to pay these bills. And if we would actually pay a tenth to the Lord, then we know that we would not have sufficient money for our bills.

Actually, there is a prior question that must be raised. Are we living beyond our means? How did we get ourselves into this situation, where we have all of these bills to pay? You see, the problem is that we live in a world which we like, and we like the products of this world. We like to own a home, and we like to have a home that is a decent home. We like to have a refrigerator. We like to have a television set. We like to have a certain kind of a car. We like this, and we like that. And we feel very comfortable with these things, because this is what everybody else is doing, this is what our fellow Christians are doing, and therefore we don't really give it a second thought. We like these things, and we very quickly use up all of our resources.

We go to the very extreme of our resources in achieving what we like.

And then suddenly it occurs to us. Wait a minute! Wait a minute! We've got to give to God. We ought to have something for Him. But unfortunately we've already committed ourselves up to the hilt. We're already in so deep that now we're struggling with the question, "If I pay to the Lord, then I can't pay my debts that I've contracted, and now what do I do?"

So really the first answer to the question is that we've got to back up and say, "Well now the first thing I've got to do is get my standard of living corrected. I'm living beyond my means. I've committed myself for too much." Now let me ask you. What would happen if you became ill and you weren't able to work. What would happen? Well, you might have to sell your TV set. The creditors would take it back. You might have to sell your house, because you couldn't make the payments. And so you'd have to go into a rental. You would make certain moves, wouldn't you? Of course you would. You'd have to, because you've become ill.

Because you were forced to make certain moves, you would make them. Now the honorable thing, and it's not an easy thing to do, of course, the right thing to do, if we're really going to be very candid about it, is to as quickly as possible get to a place where we can do it right. Namely, we've got to reduce our standard of living. We've got to give up some of these things that we've bought on time. We can't pay for them. We shouldn't have bought them. We ought to live in a lesser home, or we ought to live with an older car, or whatever it is. Now that would be the courageous and right thing to do, I feel very convinced. Not many of us would be willing to do it. I admit that. I'm part of the human race also. But I believe that would be the correct thing to do.

That is, to live in a way that would be God-honoring, in everything that we are doing. And if we did it that way, then we would also find that there is sufficient to give to the Lord.

Now the wonderful thing is that when we work out our life so that we are God-honoring in what we give to the Lord, we also experience blessings that we never anticipated. Now I'm not speaking right now of the idea that God is suddenly going to make us rich physically. I'm not talking about prosperity. That may come or may not come. God doesn't promise us physical prosperity. There are Christians who are in concentration camps who are enjoying fantastic blessings of the Lord.

But the blessings of God are, first of all, spiritual blessings. There is a peace in our heart, there's a security, there's a joy of obedience that we never knew could be there. We are secure in God, because we know that we are doing it God's way. We know that we have been sold out to Christ. We have committed ourselves to Him. And that joy, that peace is so marvelous as compared with the joy we thought we were getting because we were buying things, because we bought some more new clothes or because we bought a nicer car, or because we bought some new furniture. That kind of joy is just for the moment.

Have you ever had this experience, that you just desired and desired and desired that boat or that car or that new TV set or that hi-fi equipment, or that new carpet, or whatever it is. And once you owned it, and it became just a little bit older, just a little bit older, after you'd only owned it a short time, all of the joy you were anticipating you were going to have in owning this really didn't amount to much after all. You've almost forgotten about it. Okay, yes, we have the car, but you know, it's just a car. That kind of joy is not lasting.

But the joy of obedience, that is lasting. That is deep and secure. And that's the kind of joy we ought to be looking for. If we get ourselves into a situation where we cannot give to the Lord as we should, the opening shot is to look at our whole financial situation, our whole commitment that we have made and say, "Look. We've overextended. We've gotten more bills than we can stand. We've got to back up and straighten this out as soon as we can." And then you're going to find that you have enough to do what you have to do in giving to the Lord.

Now God tells us that we are stewards of our time and of our energies and of our wherewithal. God purchased us by the price of His blood, and everything we own belongs to Him. And God has given us the responsibility and the privilege of using all of this, of using our lives to get on with the Gospel. No, not all of us are going to be missionaries and ministers. But we are all to be concerned, as a primary concern in our life, with the spreading of the Gospel. And when we contribute to the mission program of our church, when we contribute to mission organizations that are bringing the Gospel, we are actively obedient to God in the mandate He has given us to bring the Gospel.

And so we want to make sure that we don't get so intrigued by and fettered to this world that we are limited in our ability to get on with the major task of bringing the Gospel.

Is Casting the Lot for Today?

(147D)

CALLER: May I ask you a question and take my answer on the air?

HC: Surely.

CALLER: When the Book of Acts speaks of lots being drawn, when they chose Matthias to replace Judas, does this indicate that Christians today should use lots to make decisions? And if so, when and how?

HC: The question has been raised concerning the lots that were cast in selecting Matthias as a replacement for the apostle Judas Iscariot, who betrayed the Lord. The lots were cast to determine God's will. Was it to be Joseph, or was it Matthias who was to be the replacement? And they cast lots to discover God's will, praying, "Lord, who knowest the hearts of all men, show us which one of these two Thou hast chosen to take the place in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas turned aside. And they cast lots for them, and the lot fell on Matthias, and he was enrolled with the eleven apostles."

Now is there ever a time when we are to cast lots? Yes, there can be a time. I think this has to be done very very judiciously. The casting of lots is a very sacred trust. It ought to be done only when we really are earnestly seeking God's will and praying for His will. It ought not to be done profanely in any way. Now perhaps it may be a situation where there are two alternatives, there are two opportunities to serve. We can't take both of these opportunities. We look at both of them, and weigh the pros and cons. And we find that they're equal in opportunity. And we really don't know what to do. In that particular instance it would be permissible, I think, based on what I read in Acts 1, to cast lots, to draw straws, but doing it in total dependence on the fact that through this you're asking God to guide.

I have seen this happen in the election of officers in a congregation, where a tie vote results between two men. And it is therefore impossible to know who should be chosen. And so the lot is cast in order to break the tie. Again, this is done prayerfully, and it really is recognized that in this way we are asking God to make choice. This would be permissible.

This ought not to be a frequent thing. This ought not to be a thing that is just done promiscuously. God gives us a mind. God helps us to think these things out and weigh the evidence. And we are able to make judgment. There generally is one path that is more wise than another. Therefore, because it is more wise, it ought to be the path that we ought to follow.

If God closes the door on that path, then we know also that God has spoken in this way, that this is not to be in accordance with His will.

Understanding Communion (227B)

CALLER: Could you tell me about Communion? They used to say that it miraculously changed into the body and blood of Christ, which I know is ridiculous. But I just wondered, how are we to view it? Some people say that whenever you eat or drink, you should remember the sacrifice of Christ. I know that it's like a remembrance of Christ's death, but a lot of people just do it once a month, or something like that. You know, they set it up as a special time.

HC: Your question really has to do with the nature of the Communion service and the frequency of its occurrence. Now to get a little bit of a perspective, let's look at the Old Testament ceremonies that God commanded. They had the Passover. That was celebrated once a year. They had the Feast of Tabernacles. That was a once a year observance. They had various baptismal rights, like the priest had to wash his feet and hands before he could go about his priestly duties. There were quite a number of these ceremonies in the Old Testament.

Now in the New Testament, after the cross, all of this was fulfilled in Christ, but God did give us the sacraments. One was that of baptism. That is, the command was that there was to be water baptism. And that really carried the same essential meaning as Old Testament circumcision. It was a sign, an outward official declaration that we had become a member of the Kingdom of God, a citizen of the Kingdom of God.

But then you have the matter of Communion. Now it's interesting that Christ instituted the Communion service right after He ate the Passover, didn't He? In the upper room, He ate the Passover, and then He instituted the Lord's Supper. And so this puts the Lord's Supper and the Passover in a very interesting relationship to each other.

Now the Passover was remembering the angel that passed over the camp of Israel when they left the land of Egypt. The avenging angel did not kill anyone in the home if there was blood on the door posts. And this was pointing to Christ, who is our Passover – the fact that He would provide the blood whereby we would be saved from the avenging enemy.

Now the Lord's Table, the Communion service, is looking back on the shed blood of Christ. We read in I Corinthians 11: "This is My body, which is for you. Do this in remembrance of Me. In the same way also the cup, after supper, saying, This cup is the new covenant in My blood. Do this as often as you drink it in remembrance of Me. For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until He comes."

Therefore the Communion Supper is looking back on the cross, just as the Passover Supper was looking forward to the cross. Now therefore we begin to sense that probably we ought to partake of the Communion service not less frequently than at least once a year, because the Passover was celebrated once a year. The Bible is silent as to any rules concerning the frequency of its observance. There are churches that celebrate the Communion service once every three months. That would be very Biblical. Some celebrate it once a month. That's very Biblical. Some celebrate it weekly. That also, I suppose, could be looked upon as Biblical, because the Bible is silent concerning its frequency.

However, in the light of the fact that it is so related to the Passover, I have a feeling (and this is only a feeling, it's not a Biblical admonition of any kind.) that it certainly would be proper and probably wise not to celebrate the Lord's Supper too frequently, lest it become very commonplace, and lest it lose its significance. But that's only a personal observation. It's not a Biblical declaration.

CALLER: I don't think too many little kids know what they're doing when they take Communion. I remember when I took Communion the first time after I was saved, it really meant something to me.

HC: You're making the observation that we ought to know what we're doing when we partake of Communion, and therefore little children ought not partake. And you are absolutely correct. The Bible says that if anyone does not discern the body, he is guilty of the body and blood of the Lord, and is bringing judgment upon himself.

Now the only person who can discern the body is someone who is born again, somebody who knows what it means to be saved. And therefore we ought to be really careful to know that we're born again before we partake of the Lord's Table.

CALLER: Thank you very much, and I won't take any more of your time.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

The Laying On of Hands (240C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I do have one question, please. The laying on of hands, where is it referred to, and is it permissible today?

HC: All right. The question that's raised is concerning the matter of laying on of hands. Is that permissible today, and where is it referred to in the Bible?

Let me see if I can help you. I think one of the earliest places that we read about laying on of hands is back in Genesis 48. And there we read where grandfather Jacob is going to bless his two grandsons, the sons of Joseph. And Ephraim and Manasseh, the sons of Joseph, are in front of Jacob. And he puts his right hand on Ephraim and his left hand on Manasseh. And then he pronounces a blessing upon them.

Now this matter of laying on of hands is picked up later on in the Bible. We find, for example, in Acts 13, when the apostles are sent forth, that we read in verse 3, "Then after fasting and praying, they laid their hands on them and sent them off."

And when we tie these passages together, and incidentally, in another place we read where the apostle Paul admonished Timothy, "Don't be hasty in laying your hands" on this one or that one. And the implication from all of this is that in the laying on of hands, symbolically it's a representation of imparting a blessing. The blessing that was on Jacob was imparted to Ephraim and Manasseh. The blessing that was on the church in Jerusalem was imparted to these first missionaries, as they went forth.

It is not mandated in the Bible, it is not called for in the Bible. It has no value in itself. But it can symbolize, at any rate, the idea of the impartation of blessing.

CALLER: Is it wrong to be using it in healing today?

HC: In the case of healing, we must remember that, and the question really is: Is it incorrect or wrong to lay hands in connection with healing? Now the Bible does teach that God cares for us. He is the Creator of the world, and He upholds it by His power, and we are to pray for one another. And in James 5 it does speak about anointing someone with oil if they are ill, although the context would show, if we really developed that, that this anointing with oil was really a figure of bringing the Gospel to this one who was ill, and the healing that was looked for there was spiritual healing rather than physical healing.

Actually, it isn't God's purpose to guarantee healing for us, or to necessarily provide healing for us. He does heal. All healing comes from God. And ordinarily God does this because He is the Creator God, who cares for His universe. And if someone is ill, we have the privilege of going to the Lord to beseech the Lord on behalf of this one that is ill.

But insofar as laying hands on that person, I don't really know how this would symbolize anything particularly. I do believe that some of the apostles laid hands on those who were ill. I think that could be shown from the Bible, again with the idea of imparting blessing. But that miraculous healing of the Bible is something that is not typical for today.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

The Significance of Anointing with Oil (251B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I was wondering what the anointing with oil means. And also, I was wondering if you could tell me where the Ten Commandments are in the Bible.

HC: Let me answer your second question first, and then I'll look at your first question. Where are the Ten Commandments found? They are found in two places. You'll find them in Exodus 20 and in Deuteronomy 5.

The question is raised concerning the anointing of oil. We find in the Bible that anointing with oil was used to commission someone for a particular task in the Old Testament. We find that when a man was commissioned to be king, he was anointed with oil. Or if someone became a priest, his head was anointed with oil.

Now this practice of anointing with oil, while it was used in the Old Testament particularly for these two reasons, became a form of greeting in the New Testament days. We read in the Gospel of Luke, I believe it is, yes, in Luke 7, that Jesus is in the house of a Pharisee named Simon. And Simon is not giving Jesus a very warm greeting at all, because the Pharisees ordinarily were really at great odds with Jesus. And now there comes this woman into the house who is weeping, and she has an alabaster flask of ointment, and she wet His feet with her tears and wiped them with the hair of her head and anointed His feet with the ointment. And then this Pharisee Simon remonstrates with her. And then Jesus says this to Simon in verse 44 of Luke 7, "Turning towards the woman He said, Simon, do you see this woman, I entered your house and you gave Me no water for My feet. But she has wet My feet with her tears and wiped them with her hair. You gave Me no kiss. But from the time I came in she has not ceased to kiss My feet. You did not anoint My head with oil. But she has anointed My feet with ointment. Therefore I tell you, her sins which are many are forgiven, for she loved much. But he who is forgiven little, loves little."

Now here we see three greetings, the washing of the feet, the kiss, and the anointing with oil. Now interestingly enough, there are statements in the Bible that indicate that we Christians are to practice these three greetings. Now watch out. We have to be very careful what we do with these. We read, for example, in a number of places, "Greet one another with a holy kiss." We read in John 13 where Christ washed the feet of the disciples, and He said, "I have given you an example. Do so one to another."

And we read in James 5, "If anyone is sick among you, let him call for the elders of the church and anoint his head with oil." And then it goes on to say, "The prayer of faith will save the sick one."

And so under certain circumstances we find references to all three of these practices. Now the question right now is asked about the anointing with oil, and so I won't get into the foot washing, although that has a very interesting and Biblical explanation as to what God means by that. But the anointing with oil really has to do with bringing the Gospel.

You see, in the Old Testament, when a man became king, he was anointed on the head with oil. When a priest was made priest, his head was anointed with oil. Now when we become saved, we become a priest. Oh yes, we do. The Bible says, "Ye are a holy priesthood." The Bible says in Revelation 1:8, "You are a kingdom of priests." We become a priest. That is, we have an office of intercession. And we also become a king. We become seated with Him in heavenly places. We reign with Him on earth. And when we leave this earth we go to live and reign with Christ in Heaven in our soul existence.

And so in order to be a priest, in order to be a king, we must have our head anointed with oil. Incidentally, this was already anticipated in Psalm 23. Do you remember? We read there in verse 5, "Thou prepares" a table before me in the presence of mine enemies. Thou anointest my head with oil. My cup overflows." This is a figure speaking of the fact that I have become saved. I have become a priest, I have become a king in the service of God.

And so when God talks about anointing someone with oil, He is not talking about literal oil. He is talking about the fact that we are to bring the Gospel. We are to share the Gospel with that person, because in sharing the Gospel we are making provision for the possibility of his salvation. In the Old Testament it was actually a practice that was utilized in anointing a king or a priest. But the larger meaning is simply pointing to the fact that it is a command that we are to bring the Gospel. It was used in Jesus' day as a greeting, but it had far greater implications.

And actually, if we study out the washing of the feet, and I think the holy kiss (although I've never really done extensive work on the matter of the kiss), I think we would find that all three of these greetings relate to the matter of sharing the Gospel.

Communion and Forgiveness (257D)

CALLER: If you have hurt someone very, very deeply, and of course you repent after, and you beg the party to forgive you, and they will not, absolutely will not, can you go to Communion?

HC: In other words they will not accept your forgiveness?

CALLER: They will not. I've forgiven them for not forgiving me, I mean. But I still don't feel at ease because they will not forgive me. And I've sent a great sum of money, and everything, thinking maybe that would solve it. But nothing, they just spend the money and don't even acknowledge it, and won't acknowledge my pleading.

HC: Well, let me see if I can help you.

The question raised is a very practical question. The question is raised concerning the matter of forgiving somebody who will not forgive us, or accept our forgiveness.

Now the Bible says, in Matthew 6:14, "For if you forgive men their trespasses your Heavenly Father also will forgive you. But if you do not forgive men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses."

Now what am I to do? I have sinned against someone, or they have sinned against me. At any rate, there is something that is between us that is not right. And now, because I want to be right with God, I don't want to stand this sin of a lack of forgiveness between me and God, this bitterness that I might feel in my soul toward this person, I go to this person and I say, "I forgive you. I forgive you, and would you please forgive me? Can't we be reconciled one with another?"

And you've gone to the Lord and confessed your sin and know that He has forgiven you for your sin. You've gone to your friend and patiently and tenderly tried to make reconciliation. But your friend is adamant. Your friend says, "No, I will not forgive you. You were too bad. You were too awful." They are treasuring, they are nourishing, they are feeding on this bitterness that is in their own soul. They love it too much. What are we to do?

Can we now go to Communion? Can we feel that we have straightened out this matter between ourselves and God? Well, yes indeed, we can. The Bible says in Romans 12:16, "Live in harmony with one another." And then in verse 17, "Repay no one evil for evil, but take thought for what is noble in the sight of all. If possible, so far as it depends upon you, live peaceably with all."

Now that's all the further we can go. We want to be at peace with our neighbor, we have asked for forgiveness, we have confessed our sins to our neighbor and he refuses to be reconciled, then our neighbor has to answer to God for his action. We have done what God has asked us to do. We can know that we are right before God in this matter, and we need not struggle in our conscience anymore with it, even though we may be grieved in our hearts because we cannot be reconciled.

But this is all that we can do. As much as it depends upon us, we are trying to live peacefully with all. If our friend does not want to live peacefully, that is something outside of our control.

Preparing a Son or Daughter for Communion (325A)

CALLER: How does one prepare a child for Communion?

HC: The question that's raised is concerning how one can prepare a child for Communion. Actually, the Communion service, whereby we partake of the elements of the broken bread and the poured out cup, grape juice or wine, is to be reserved for those who know they are born again believers. The Bible says, "If anyone discerns not the body, then he will bring judgment upon himself." To discern the body means to have some knowledge of what salvation is, and to be particularly involved with God in that salvation.

Therefore most churches wisely restrict Communion to those who are just a little bit older. Young children are not included ordinarily, because they may not realize the import of Communion. They may appear to be saved, but they may not necessarily be saved, although of course a child can be saved just as an adult can be saved.

But once a person has some knowledge of what salvation is, and really knows that they are born again, that their sins have been forgiven, when they really know that they have repented of their sins and trusted in the Lord Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord, then they are prepared for Communion. Then they are to partake of Communion when it is offered.

Tithes and Offerings (345B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello, Brother Camping. I've got a question as far as tithing is concerned. I understand that the first ten percent is considered a tithe, and anything thereafter is an offering. I'm confused about what exactly is the ten percent. Is it ten percent of one's gross earnings or his net earnings?

HC: The question is raised concerning tithing. Actually, in the Old Testament God did give a command to national Israel, as part of that economy, that they were to give one tenth of all of their produce, all that they earned, as a tithe unto the Lord. And this was used to support the tribe of Levi, from which the temple service came.

In the New Testament church, the body that is represented by congregations and denominations all over the world, God sets a far higher standard: He wants everything. Romans 12:1 puts it so beautifully, "I beseech you, brethren, by the mercies of God, that you present your bodies a living sacrifice." God tells us that He has qualified us to be ambassadors of His to bring the Gospel. As custodians, as stewards of all that God gives us, we are to make as much of it as possible available to see that the Gospel goes out into the world.

So God does not tell us to give a tenth; He wants everything. Now we have other responsibilities. In I Timothy 4 God indicates that we have to care for our families, "He who does not care for his own is worse than an infidel." We have that responsibility.

But our task is to spend the money that God gives us as custodians, whether it's our salaries or whether it's an estate that we control, or a business, or whatever, so that as much of it as possible can be utilized in the Lord's service.

Most Christians find that a tithe is a good beginning point for giving. You don't have to argue whether it's a tenth of the net or a tenth of the gross. You can't bargain with God. The less you give, the less your blessings will be. The more you give, the more your blessings will be.

Remember the little woman, the very poor woman, who brought her two coins and who put them into the temple treasury? She didn't argue with herself, "I wonder if I ought to give a tenth of the net or a tenth of the gross." What did Jesus say of what she gave? "She gave her entire living." Now actually, the money that she gave was only a tiny fraction of a denarius. According to the Biblical evidence, a denarius was the normal salary of a working man. It was the normal daily earnings of someone who had a family to support. That was a denarius.

This woman, in her income, received only a tiny fraction of a denarius. In other words, she was a very impoverished woman. She was a very poor woman. On today's scale we could say that if the average income of a family in our land is (let's pull a figure out of the air) $8,000, or $9,000, she was a woman who earned maybe like $800 or $900 a year. She was very impoverished by any standards at all.

Now she could easily argue, "I am so poor, I am so poor. I have a hard enough time keeping soul and body together. How can I give anything to the Lord? Certainly the Lord doesn't expect anything from me." But what did this woman do? She took her whole living for that day, and she brought it and put it into the temple treasury. Now she was giving all that she could out of something that was a very little bit. It only meant that what she had left was even tinier than tiny.

It puts all of us to shame. It puts all of us to shame. There is none of us that have given quite that way. But notice, notice. She is the one who received the commendation of the Lord Jesus Christ. Now does that give you some kind of an insight as to the nature of our giving?

Never never bargain with the Lord. God loves a cheerful giver. Read Luke 6, where God declares, "Give and it shall be given to you, good measure, pressed down, running over." The language goes something like that. It is the language to indicate that, this is Luke 6:38: "Give and it shall be given unto you. Good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over, shall men give unto your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete, withal it shall be measured to you again." If you're stingy in your giving to the Lord, then you're going to find that God is stingy in His blessings to you. If you are generous in your giving to the Lord, as this widow was with her two mites, then you're also going to find you have God's commendation.

Is it Displeasing to God to Hold a Rosary? (419A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: For a long period of time I carried a rosary with me, during a long, long illness. And I lost it at one point. And I came to the conclusion, perhaps that was a graven image. And I come to a point in my life where I strongly desire to hold this rosary. And the whole question is brought up again. Would this be displeasing to God? I guess that's what I'm asking.

HC: The question is raised: Is it displeasing to God to hold a rosary, or hold any other artifact in our hands, or to look upon it, in connection with religious worship?

Actually, the Bible teaches that God is Spirit. We worship Him in spirit and truth. We do not look at objects as being sacred or as being holy or as being helpful in our worship. We are to put our mind's eye on God, who is a Spirit. This is what faith is all about. We read about God in the Bible. We can't draw a mental image of God, because the Bible doesn't give us that kind of information. But in our mind's eye, nevertheless, we worship Him as God, the Great One who is unknown in form or substance. All we know is that He is God.

We see the evidence that He is God in the creation around us. We read about Him in the Bible that God has given us. And on the basis of this we worship Him as God. We are not to look at anything else.

There are two areas where God has specifically directed our attention, and only two areas. One is baptism in water. God has asked us to be baptized in water as an official outward evidence of the fact that we have become born again. Secondly, God says that occasionally we should partake of the Communion table – the bread and the wine or the bread and the grape juice – and in so doing remember that Christ's body was broken for our sins, and His blood was shed for our sins. This is the only outward kind of an artifact, or whatever, that God calls our attention to. Anything else would be superstitious. It would be in the area of something that would begin to go contrary to the Word of God.

CALLER: Yes, I looked upon this as some magical power. But it gave me great comfort, which I so desire right now. My question is if comfort is pleasing to God.

HC: The question is, is comfort pleasing to God? Of course comfort is pleasing to God. But when we seek our comfort from something else than God, if we think we're getting to God through something else, then we are displeasing to God. Jesus says, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest." The Bible says, "Don't be anxious about anything. But in everything with prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, make your requests known to God. And the peace of God that passeth understanding will keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus." God declares in Psalm 23, "The Lord is my Shepherd. I shall not want. We go to Him, you see. We don't go to something that we think has some magical power. There are people in the secular world who carry a rabbit's foot, or a gold coin, or some other trinket, and they really superstitiously believe that that gives them good luck, or strength, or whatever. They have placed their confidence in this trinket.

Now we can do the same thing if we're not careful. That is a denial of God. God is the one from whom we derive our strength and our comfort and our security. We go to Him and only to Him for our strength.

I hope this will help you. And really put your mind's eye back on the Lord Jesus Christ. Read Psalm 23 very carefully.

CALLER: I've read it so many times.

HC: All right. Then read some of the other psalms again, "The Lord is my strength and my rock." Go through the psalms verse by verse. Now you may be sick of reading it because you may not like what you see there. When the Bible says, "The Lord is my Shepherd," and you can't see the Lord, you can't take hold of Him. The secular man can take hold of a rabbit's foot. He can see it. He can feel it in his pocket, and that gives him comfort. We all want to walk by sight. The Bible says that we do not walk by sight. We walk by faith. We are cautioned by the Bible to keep our eye on God, whom we cannot see with our eye.

We can keep our eye on Him by patiently reading the Bible. That is God's voice speaking to us. What you should do as you read the Bible is put yourself in this frame of mind. I'm going to open this Bible, and this is like I am sitting in the presence of Eternal God. And He has a message for me. He is going to speak directly to my heart. Every word that I read in the Bible is from the mouth of God, and it is for me.

Now because He is Infinite God, there's a lot in the Bible I won't understand. But I do know that it is still the voice of God. And what a joy, what a glorious privilege this is.

CALLER: I have read my Bible from cover to cover. I have read the New Testament at least 100 times, in its entirety. I read it constantly. I am cut off from the world because I'm a shut-in, and . . .

HC: All right. Now the question is, as you read it, are you abandoning yourself to it? As you read it, are you praying, "Oh God, oh Father, I want this Word to be part of me. I want to live according to this Word?"

CALLER: I read it with the attitude and with the constant prayer, "Show me what You would have to say to me."

HC: Now as you examine your will, as you look at yourself honestly, can you really say that your will is altogether surrendered to God, so that you want to do what God wants you to do?

CALLER: There are times when my nature does not want to, but the desire of my heart is always to do what He would wish me to do. My prayer is to know His will for my every thought, feeling, action and being.

HC: All right. Then when you get these desires, when you begin to think about some object that you would like to hold in your hand . . .

CALLER: Something for comfort.

HC: But God is your comfort. You see, when you say your will has been surrendered to Christ and that you want to be obedient to Him, and God says, "Come to Me. I am the one who will comfort you. I am the one who will give you strength", and yet you say, "No, no, I want something to hold in my hand," then you'll have to ask yourself the fair question, "Is my trust really in God? Do I really understand what it means to be abandoned to Him? Or is my trust really some other place?"

And that's a good question to ask. Just look at yourself very honestly. Can I really say, when I look at myself honestly, that I trust God all the way? When He says to me, "The Lord is my Shepherd. I shall not want," do I really understand that the Lord is my Shepherd, my Shepherd? He will care for me. "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil." That's God speaking to me. I'm the little lost lamb that He came to seek and to save. I'm His sheep now, and He is my Shepherd. And I know, because God is on the throne, because He upholds this world by His power, because He has given this revelation of Himself in the Word of God, I know that God is real. I know that even though I can't see Him, He's here with me. He promises me He will never leave me nor forsake me. Therefore I know He is with me. The Bible says that my body is the temple of the Holy Spirit. Therefore I know that He is with me. The Bible says that He gives His angels charge over me, to care for me. Therefore I know that He has surrounded me with His angels, to strengthen me and watch over me.

He has promised me that nothing, that all things work out together for good for those who love Him, who are called according to His purpose, and I'm one who loves Him, who is called according to His purpose. Therefore I know that everything that happens in my life is going to be the very best for me because God has so declared it.

This is what faith is, you see. This is what faith is, when we abandon ourselves to Christ, when we hang out whole life on Him without being able to take hold of Him with a physical hand.

CALLER: I certainly trust God for my salvation and for my life after my death. But in the meantime, no, there is no trust that God will sustain or carry through. And I guess that's why I take a rosary.

HC: All right. Now you've come to the big question. What does it mean to believe that Jesus saves me if Jesus is not Lord of my life? You see, a lot of people have the idea, "I really believe that Jesus is my Savior, but I'm not sure that He is Lord of my life." Now that means that that person is not saved as yet.

If we are truly born again, then Jesus has become Lord of our life. Then it means that we do trust Him, moment by moment, day by day, for being the one to give us security and support, and supply us with every need, and so on. If we find that we cannot trust Him day by day for everything that is necessary, then the likelihood is that we don't quite understand what salvation is as yet.

Salvation is not coming to an intellectual agreement with God, where we read the fact that I'm a sinner, I'm under the wrath of God, Christ is the one who paid for the sins of sinners, and I accept all that. Therefore I am saved. That is not salvation.

CALLER: Then what is it?

HC: That would have to be called an intellectual kind of a faith, or an emotional faith. But salvation has to do with having to abandoning myself to Christ, where I have surrendered my whole personality, my whole being, to Him, where I have cast myself on Him altogether, so that my whole life depends upon Him.

CALLER: My every breath depends upon Him. But the tribulation and the affliction and the pain and the sorrow, I can in no way think that God gives that to me.

HC: The Bible says that He does. Isn't God who created you able to take all of this away from you in a moment of time? Of course He is. But if you are His child, if He has saved you, you are a son of God now. You are of royal blood. You are a co-heir with Christ. And if God leaves you with your pain and your crippled condition, whatever it may be, it means that this is God's wonderful will for your life. He wants you to be the living epistle of the grace of God in this kind of a situation. Someone else will be the living epistle of the grace of God in a jail, someone else in a hospital, someone else in a concentration camp, someone else in a palace, someone else as a wife, someone else as a husband, someone else as a businessman, someone else dying of some dread disease, whatever. God places each one of us in this world to be the evidence, to be a living epistle of the grace of God in whatever condition God has placed us.

And this is where God has placed you. And now you can glorify God in your affliction. God's grace is sufficient for you as you continue in your affliction. God will sustain you. God will keep you. When the day comes when your work as an ambassador is done, God will take you home. It may come sooner, or it may come later.

But in the meanwhile, in your affliction and through your affliction you continue as the living epistle of the evidence of the grace of God. This is where you are to serve as an ambassador of God. Each one of us has a different set of circumstances through which we're going to be the evidence of the grace of God.

And we're on display. The Bible teaches that principalities and powers witness of the grace of God in our lives, in whatever lot we may be. Now Job is an outstanding example of this. Job was the evidence of the grace of God when all was well with him. But he was also the evidence of the grace of God when everything had been taken from him. God permitted Satan to take everything from him. Well, God ultimately was responsible, because God gave Satan permission to take all of this away from him, all of his children, all of his possessions, his health, so that he was in bitter, bitter, bitter pain and misery. And yet through it all the grace of God did shine. Job, in the midst of his heaviest suffering, could say, "I know that my Redeemer liveth."

Ultimately Job's blessings returned, full force. And ultimately yours will, and mine will, and for all of this, this will occur. After our time of suffering through tribulation in this world—and the Bible says, "In the world you will have tribulation," that's normative for the believer—after we have suffered a little while, then we're going to spend an eternity in heavenly bliss, without any suffering or sorrow. That is still coming. The best by all odds is still in front of us.

CALLER: As I said to you earlier, salvation for eternity and for eternal bliss is there, but how does one cope with what seems to be insurmountable in the present time?

HC: You cope with it by keeping your eye on Christ. One of our problems is this: we worry. We see the difficulty that is at present. We begin to think, "I have an incurable disease. I have a problem that I just don't know how I'm going to get around." And then we begin to worry, "It's going to be here next week, and next month. This problem is going to stay with me. How can I bear it?" And so we begin to get weighed down today with the worry of next week, of next month, of next year, until finally we're just burdened down to the ground. We're ground in the dust with this great big load of worry.

Now the Bible warns against this. The Bible says, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." In other words, if there's going to be something that's going to trouble us tomorrow, tomorrow is time enough to worry about it. Don't start worrying today. If there's going to be something next month that's going to trouble us, don't worry about it today. Next month is time enough to begin to worry about it. That's a fundamental rule that God gives us.

Secondly, God says, "Don't be anxious about anything. But in everything, with prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, make your requests known to the Lord." Now He doesn't say He's going to take your problem away. But He does say that He will give you the peace to endure that problem. He will give you the peace that passes understanding and keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

Now let's be very specific. Here is a person who is suffering an illness, let's say. And there's pain that goes with it, or a crippled condition. She can look back on the last twenty minutes and see that God has cared for her during the last twenty minutes, so that she's been able to endure this pain or this affliction. "Praise God. Praise God. I've been able to endure it. Now oh, Lord, will You strengthen me for the next twenty minutes, so that I can endure it for the next twenty minutes." And so twenty minutes later you look back and say, "Praise God. I've been able to endure it."

CALLER: I'll live with this for the rest of my life.

HC: All right. Now that's your problem. You said, "for the rest of my life." But you're not to think about the rest of your life. First of all, you don't know how long the rest of your life is. The rest of your life might be twenty-four hours.

CALLER: If God would take me, that would be merciful. But no, I have to go on living.

HC: Well, I know. But you see, if you begin to think about the rest of your life, and in your mind's eye you think about five years or ten years or twenty years, or whatever, and carry that weight of worry today, it's going to grind you down into the dust.

But if on the other hand you say, "I have this affliction that God has placed on me. And today I have to live with it, and God will strengthen me. I don't know about tomorrow. I don't know what God is going to do tomorrow. I have no idea whether I'll even be here tomorrow. God doesn't tell me anything about that."

CALLER: That would be great.

HC: But that's exactly the way we have to live. We live from moment to moment. We don't live thinking about tomorrow. We live for the moment. And so you have an affliction. The doctor tells you it's for the rest of your life. Okay. He's told you it's for the rest of your life. But he has no idea how long the rest of your life is. He has no idea whether God might make some changes in your life, because doctors don't know everything. All you know is that the doctor has told you that you have a particular illness that is today. Now tomorrow morning, you wake up and you find you still have the same illness, and now you pray God for strength for today, to endure this affliction today.

And at the end of the day you thank God that He has cared for you, that you have been able to endure it today. Now the next morning you wake up, and you start all over again. It's a brand new ball game every single morning. His mercies are renewed every morning.

The moment that you begin to think, "Oh my, I have this affliction today, and tomorrow I've got to suffer again," at that point you cry out, "Oh God, have mercy on me. I'm sinning. I'm beginning to worry about tomorrow. And You've told me that sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. I must not worry about tomorrow. Your grace will be sufficient tomorrow. I know that. And so I'm not going to think about tomorrow. I'm just going to think about today, that Thou art caring for me today. And I praise You for this today."

CALLER: What I can't understand is, I'm very angry with God that I must live, when so many times I was at death's door. And why I had to keep on living is just beyond my comprehension.

HC: Let me make a suggestion to you. Suppose that you're not ready to die as you think you might be. Suppose God knows something about you that you don't know as yet. And God, in His mercy, is keeping you alive until you come to the point where you know that you have fully surrendered to Him. Wouldn't it be tragic, wouldn't it be tragic if you thought you were saved, and God took you out, and you were not saved, so that the next thing you knew you would be facing the judgment throne. Wouldn't that be awful?

But suppose that God, in His great mercy, continues to sustain you, so that through this you are coming face to face, more and more realistically, with the fact that "my life has not been surrendered to God the way it ought to be. How can I be angry with God? That's not faith. That is wanting to do my will. And if my will is paramount, I'm not ready to die. If my will has to be worked out, I'm not ready to die. I'm only ready to die when my will has been completely subordinated and submerged in God's will, so that I am ready to accept, without any question, His decision as to whether I'm to live or die, whether I'm to live with pain or live free from pain." When you come to that point, then you're ready to die.

But at that point you are also ready to live, because you have completely surrendered your life to Christ, and whatever happens is the very best then.

CALLER: You frighten me.

HC: Well, maybe I do. I would rather frighten you while you're alive than try to frighten you when you're dead. You see, a lot of people write me and they say, "Oh my, the way you talk sometimes. You frighten me. Why didn't you leave me alone?" And I answer in my mind, or if I'm able to write, and I frequently don't answer letters the way I should because I am very busy, but at least I think, "Isn't it far better to be frightened while I'm still alive, and I can look at myself honestly, than to take chances on dying unsaved and end up in hell? What a terrible thing that would be."

Now the evidence of being saved, let me repeat it again, the evidence of being saved is to have become completely abandoned to God, realizing that I am altogether in His hand. He can do with me whatever He wants to do. He can bring pain into my life, He can take all my worldly possessions away. He can send persecution against me. He can do anything He wants to me, because I belong to Him, and He is my God, and He does everything perfectly. I have my own ideas about what I think would be good for me, but my ideas are tainted by my own sins. I don't trust my ideas. But I do trust in God. And if it's His good pleasure to take my health away, praise the Lord. If it's His good pleasure to take my family away, praise God. If it's His good pleasure to take all my possessions away, praise God.

All I know is that He is my Lord and Savior. He paid for my sins. He has given me eternal life. I can just rest in Him, regardless of what is to come. And I know, because He is the infinite God who has created the universe and who upholds it by His power, He knows everything about me; there's nothing that escapes His attention. And therefore, I'm in tremendously fine hands.

SUNDAY WORSHIP

See: APPENDIX 4

Hebrews 10:26 Explained and Sunday Worship (206B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Would you explain Hebrews 10:26? When was worship for Christians changed to Sunday, and are we wrong in worshipping on Sunday? Should we really be worshipping on Saturday? And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you very much. Good night.

The first question that has been raised is concerning this verse in Hebrews 10:26, where we read, "For if we sin deliberately after receiving the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sin, but a fearful prospect of judgment and the fury of fire, which will consume the adversaries." Is this talking about the possibility of losing our salvation, if we sin deliberately after receiving the knowledge of the truth?

Well, let's assume that someone has been saved. Let's first of all ask the question, what has he been saved from? What has he been saved from? From his misery? From his loneliness? From himself, somehow? No. The Bible teaches that before we're saved we're under the wrath of God. We're sinners, and God's wrath abides on us. We're destined for hell.

And Christ came as the sin-bearer. He took my sins, all of my sins, and paid for those sins. Therefore I am saved from the wrath of God. I'm saved from the consequences of my sins. I stand before God as if I am completely righteous.

And so could I find a sin now that I could commit that would make me lose my salvation, if I've actually been covered by Christ's blood, if I'm actually born again? Well, no, because Christ became sin for me. He covered that sin, too. There is no possible way that I could lose my salvation. Every one of my sins has been paid for.

So we know that when we read Hebrews 10:26 it's not talking about a born again believer. A born again believer cannot come under God's judgment. He has passed from death into life. He does not come into judgment, as we read in the Gospel of John. He has eternal life. So it has to be talking about something else.

Now the Bible sometimes uses the word know in the sense of being saved. But at other times the Bible uses the word know in the sense of just having an intellectual knowledge, being acquainted with truth. Now there are all kinds of people in the church today, in the various congregations where they are found, who know that Jesus Christ is the Savior. They know that they are sinners, they know that Jesus was born of the Virgin Mary, born of a virgin. They know that Jesus is God. They know that He went to the cross in order to die for sinners. They know all of these things. But they have never become born again. Jesus told Nicodemus, "Ye must be born again." In other words, you must be the personal recipient of this salvation. You must be personally surrendered to Christ as your Lord and Savior.

Otherwise all of this knowledge won't avail anything. Now what happens, if someone has a knowledge of the truth, of salvation, but has not become born again? Eventually one of two things will probably happen. He will finally be arrested by God and broken down by God to the point where he will begin to cry out, "Oh God, have mercy on me." And so today there are many people in the church who have heard the Gospel for years and years and years, who finally become born again. Praise God for His patience and longsuffering with such.

But on the other hand, unfortunately, there are many in the church today who know the way of salvation, but eventually they don't like it anymore, this trying to make like a Christian. And so either they go running after another gospel that looks more exciting than the true Gospel, which is grievous sin. Or they leave the church altogether, or religion altogether, and simply begin to live like the world. And they in either case are sinning deliberately after receiving the knowledge of the truth. And walking in that direction brings them to a point where there is no salvation, because salvation is not "out there." Salvation is where this truth was that they had been hearing, where the true Gospel is proclaimed. That is where they're going to find salvation. They're not going to find it when they leave the true Gospel. And as long as they walk in that direction, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins. All that is in front of them is hell.

Now wonderfully, even after a man has rejected the Gospel in this fashion and has begun to run after other gospels, or has turned his back altogether against any kind of a gospel, God can still save. And even in that extremity the possibility of salvation exists. So we should not stop praying for these who walk in this way.

Now with regard to the second question about the Sabbath, let me try to briefly outline the Bible's teaching on this. In the Old Testament God did declare in the fourth table of the Decalogue or the Ten Commandments that we are to remember the Sabbath Day, to keep it holy, because God in six days created the heavens and the earth, and He rested the seventh day.

Now if that was the only command we had in the Bible and the only information in the Bible concerning that command, then today we should be observing the seventh day Sabbath, because God so commands. But the Biblical rule is that we interpret scripture by scripture. We can't stop there. We've got to ask ourselves, is there anything else in the Bible that relates to the question of the seventh day Sabbath?

And as we continue to study the Bible, we discover that this seventh day Sabbath became a part of the ceremonial law. God used it as a figure of Christ Himself. We read that He gave the sabbaths in order that the Israelites might know that it was God who sanctifies them. And so we're not surprised to read in Leviticus 23, where God outlines the various feast days, the various festivals, ceremonial festivals that were to be observed by Israel, that the first feast day that's named is the observance of the seventh day Sabbath. And it goes on with the observance of the Passover. And then it goes on into the Feast of Unleavened Bread, and so on.

Now when Christ came, the Bible teaches that all of these ceremonial laws were completed in Christ, and we're not to observe them any longer. Any man today who would want to observe the Passover would be going contrary to the Word of God. He would indicate that he doesn't trust Christ as his Savior, that Christ has not actually come. If any man would be circumcised today for religious purposes, again he would be trying to walk in the shoes of Old Testament Israel. He would be negating the truth of the Bible, that Christ has come and completed that particular ceremonial law.

Now by the same token, when we come to the seventh day Sabbath, we want to make sure that we are not observing that accidentally, or incidentally. And so the church, already in the Bible days, began to observe the first day of the week. We find this in Acts 20:7. The church at Troas gathered together on the first day of the week, to break bread. And on that occasion Paul preached to them. We find in I Corinthians 16:1 & 2 that Paul admonished the church of Corinth to lay aside on the first day of the week that which they were going to give, so there would be no gathering when he came. And of course whenever we give to the Lord, that's part of our spiritual worship, and it's on the day that we worship.

And so the early church began to observe the first day as a day set aside for spiritual nourishment, refueling of the spiritual fires, a day when there was no obligation to work. It's easy to see why they selected the first day. On the first day Christ rose from the grave. And so every Sunday in a certain sense is a commemorative service concerning the resurrection of Christ.

It was on the first day that the Holy Spirit was poured out. As a matter of fact, it was on the first day that God began to create the heavens and the earth, when He said, "Let there be light." And it is the church that has been mandated by God to go out into all the world and shed the light of the Gospel. And so it's altogether fitting and proper that the church worships on the first day.

We are altogether in accord with the law of God when we worship on the first day of the week.

Why Is Sunday Our Day of Worship? (321C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: The question is this. I have a friend in a denomination that I won't name, but they believe that once saved, always saved, as I do. And I'm sure they are Christians as well as I'm a Christian. But they asked me why we held Sunday as a holy day. And I checked the New Testament, and I really can't justify it. The only reason I could give was that Christ rose on a Sunday, and that Pentecost was on a Sunday, and the disciples met on a Sunday. Therefore I said we worshipped on Sunday in honor of Christ, His resurrection from the dead. She said that Christ Himself never once mentioned about keeping Sunday or the first day of the week as the holy day or the Sabbath day. And in fact, when He was on earth, He rested on the Sabbath, which was Saturday. And even Mary and the others who went to the tomb came on Sunday because Saturday was the Sabbath, the day of rest. And I have no answer for that really. I'll hang up, and I'd like to have you comment on that, if you would.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you for calling.

The question raised is concerning why the church, and I speak of all kinds of congregations and denominations, worship on Sunday rather than on Saturday. Let me see if I can answer this very briefly.

First of all, the Bible does not say anywhere, "Thou shalt worship on the first day of the week." The Bible doesn't say that. But the Bible does indicate very clearly that the seventh day Sabbath of the Old Testament became a part of the ceremonial law. It was one of the feast days. Read Leviticus 23, where God outlines the various feast days, and you'll find that it is the first feast day that is mentioned.

The Sabbath of the Old Testament was a type of Christ Himself, even as the Passover service was a figure of Christ Himself. And of course when Christ went to the cross, the ceremonial laws were completed. And therefore we are not to continue to observe any of the ceremonial laws.

Now the Lord Jesus, while He lived, observed all of the ceremonial laws. He observed the Passover. He was circumcised. He worshipped on the Sabbath day all through His lifetime, because He lived on the Old Testament side of the cross. After Christ went to the cross, we find in Acts 20:7 that the Jews began to worship on the first day, the Christians rather, the New Testament Christians. And they gathered together at Troas to break bread on the first day.

Secondly, we find in I Corinthians 16:1 & 2 that God through the apostle Paul commands the church at Corinth to lay aside on the first day, so that there would be no gathering when he came. Now when we bring our offerings, we generally do it at a worship service. And here the first day is mentioned. And of course you can see why God singled out the first day. It is the day that Christ rose from the grave. It is the day that the Holy Spirit was poured out. And incidentally, it's also the day when God began His creation.

Then in Colossians 2:16 & 17 we read, "Let no man therefore judge you in meat or in drink, or in respect of an holy day or a feast day, or of the new moon or of the Sabbath [now the Sabbath ordinarily was the seventh day Sabbath], which are a shadow of things to come, but the body is of Christ." The Sabbath here is put in exactly the same place as the Old Testament laws on the foods, the Old Testament laws on the feast days, the observance of the new moon, there were certain sacrifices that had to be offered on that particular day. The Sabbath is put in the same place, because that was all part of the ceremonial law.

Now there are some who believe that they want to worship on Saturday, and that's their privilege. But I think the church historically has been altogether correct, already beginning in the days of the Apostles, in beginning to worship on the first day.

Sunday is Our Day of Worship (539A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Good evening, Brother Camping. I have a question that is rather upsetting me quite a bit, so I was going to ask you to try to get me out of it. In Genesis 2:2 & 3 God said He rested on the seventh day, and He sanctified it, and He blessed it. Now I'm a Christian, I'm a child of God. And it does concern and upset me sometimes, and I wonder if I'm worshipping on the right day. Was the day changed, and why do some people worship on Saturday and others on Sunday?

HC: All right. I'll try to answer that question for you. The question is, in view of the fact that God rested from His labors on the seventh day, in view of the fact that in the Ten Commandments God commands us to work six days and rest the seventh day, shouldn't we be worshipping on Saturday? And there are a few who say, yes, indeed, we ought to be worshipping on Saturday. There has been no change in this commandment.

However, when we study everything that the Bible has to say about the question, then we come up with some different conclusions. You see, the Bible is its own interpreter, and we can't just take a statement as it stands and say now, this is it and anybody ought to be able to read it, it's as plain as the big nose on my face, so what else is new? We have to examine anything and everything the Bible might offer that might relate to that particular question.

Now we find, for example, that in the account of the Ten Commandments as it's given in Exodus 20, God gives as a reason for honoring the seventh day the fact that God in six days made the heaven and the earth, the sea and all that in them is. That ties back to Genesis 2. But amazingly and significantly certainly, in Deuteronomy 5, where God a second time gives the Law, we find that God does not give this as the reason for observing the Sabbath Day. He says in verse 15 of Deuteronomy 5, "And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt and that the Lord thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm. Therefore the Lord thy God commanded thee to keep the Sabbath Day." Well, that's an entirely different reason, isn't it?

Actually, when we look at the going out of Israel from Egypt, we find that that was a picture of us leaving bondage to sin and going into the blessedness which is the Lord Jesus Christ. You'll remember that they went out of the land of Egypt at the time the Passover was instituted. The land of Egypt is called the house of bondage. It's a figure of the sin that we're into when we are unsaved. And to leave Egypt, spiritually speaking, means that we have left the bondage of sin and have entered into the freedom of being with the Lord Jesus Christ, as the Israelites did when they went into the wilderness. They were no longer slaves of Egypt.

And that is pointing to the Lord Jesus Christ, even as the Passover, which was instituted at the time they went out of Egypt points to the Lord Jesus Christ, so therefore God is indicating that the seventh day is pointing to the Lord Jesus Christ, to the fact that we are saved in Him. Now this is reinforced for example, in Ezekiel 20, where God says in verse 12: "Moreover, also I gave them My Sabbath, to be a sign between Me and them, that they might know that I am the Lord that sanctify them." In other words, the Sabbath, the seventh day

Sabbath, as well as the other Sabbaths that God gave, were signs or ceremonial laws that pointed to the fact that Christ would be the Redeemer. In Leviticus 23, when God is outlining the various feast days, we're not surprised to find that the first feast day that is emphasized is the seventh day Sabbath. And then from there He goes to the other feast days.

Therefore we're beginning to see that while the Fourth Commandment is part of the moral law, that we are to have one day set aside when we are not to work, one day out of the seven, nevertheless it has very distinct ceremonial implications. And so to make sure that we don't miss this point, in Colossians 2, in the New Testament, God declares in verse 16, "Let no man therefore judge you in meat or in drink or in respect of an holy day..." This language is totally related to the ceremonial laws that were given in the Old Testament. "...or of the new moon or of the Sabbath, which are a shadow of things to come, but the body is of Christ."

Now if all the other feast days – the Feast of Tabernacles, the Feast of Unleavened Bread, the Passover – if all of these feast days had been completed in Christ and we're not to observe them any longer, then certainly it means that we are not to observe the seventh day Sabbath of the Old Testament any longer. It would be a refutation, it would be a negation of the fact that Christ has gone to the cross to pay for our sins.

Now the New Testament church was faced with this problem. They lived, first of all, on the Old Testament side of the cross, and then Christ went to the cross. While on the Old Testament side we find that Jesus went to the temple on the Sabbath day and the Jews all worshipped on the seventh day Sabbath, that was proper. That was ordained by God. But now what is the New Testament Christian to do? We find of course that the apostle Paul, when he's bringing the Gospel, visits the synagogues. That's where the Jews are. These are the ones who have the first knowledge of the Word of God. And so he goes there in order to preach to them.

But what about the church? When does it begin to meet? We're not surprised that in Acts 20:7 we find that the church at Troas is meeting together on the first day of the week. And it was at that time they broke bread. It was at that time that Paul preached to them until midnight.

We also find in I Corinthians 16:1 that God makes reference to the first day of the week, that we are to lay aside what we plan to give to the Lord on the first day of the week, "that there might not be a gathering when I shall come." Now we bring our offerings to the Lord when we worship. And here again the offering to the Lord is related to the first day of the week.

Now we can see why the New Testament church began to observe the moral implications of the Fourth Commandment by worshipping on the first day of the week. In so doing they set up the same rhythm that had been established in the moral law, six days of work and one day that is set aside when they are not to work. Secondly, by worshipping on the first day instead of the seventh day, they did not come under the ceremonial implications of the Fourth Commandment of the Ten Commandments. And thirdly, of course, the first day of the week was given special significance by God, because it was on the first day that Christ rose from the grave. It was on the first day that the Holy Spirit was poured out. It was on the first day that God began His creation.

And so beginning already before the Bible was completed, we find the New Testament church beginning to worship on the first day of the week. Now if you'd like to see this in greater detail, I have written a paper on the Sabbath question. And if you would write me at Family Radio, Oakland, CA. 94621, I would be very happy to send you a copy of this paper, if this would be of any help to you.

CHAPTER 7 – CREATION ISSUES

CREATION SCIENCE

What Type of Animal Was Leviathan in Job 41 (093B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I want to thank you for this program. It's the first time I've ever called, but I appreciate listening to it.

We have a neighbor that's very concerned because the Bible never speaks anything about prehistoric animals. And I mentioned this to a fellow I work with, and he said he was listening one time when you gave a scripture describing the skin, etc., of dinosaurs. And I was just wondering if you would mind taking a few minutes to give me some of those verses.

HC: Yes. There is a passage in the Bible that describes a very fearsome beast which cannot be a beast that lives on the earth today. And that is described in Job 41, the whole chapter of Job 41. As it's described, it reminds you of the dragons that you read about in mythology. Now those myths, of course, are myths, but they still have their roots in some kind of truth way back when. And we find, of course, the fossilized bones of very huge animals that once roamed the earth.

Now when the Flood came, 7000 years ago, the world was destroyed, and all of these prehistoric (the word prehistoric really means those that lived before the invention of writing, before any written history could be recorded) animals, that lived before the Flood, would have been destroyed, although Noah was commanded to put 2 of every kind into the ark. So you can be sure that there were a couple of baby dinosaurs and a couple of baby this and baby that on the ark.

But the weather conditions were much colder after the Flood. The fact that the ice covered a large part of some of the continents was because of the Flood. And so the worldwide temperature was much lower. And so the environment was not conducive to large scale development of these large animals again.

But it seems that as long as 3000 years after the Flood, when Job was written, because the Book of Job was written around 1800 BC, whereas the Flood occurred in 4990 BC, there could have still been living some of these large animals, that had survived the Flood by coming into the Ark, and who again multiplied to some degree.

And so you have this vivid description of an animal in Job 41. It says, for example, in verse 7: "Can you fill a skin with harpoons, or his head with fishing spears? Lay hands on him. Think of the battle. You will not do it again."

Or in verse 10: "No one is so fierce that he dares to stir him up. Who then is he that can stand before Me?" And then verse 12: "I will not keep silence concerning his limbs or his mighty strength or his goodly frame. Who can strip off his outer garments? Who can penetrate his double coat of mail? Who can open the doors of his face, round about his teeth, his terror? His back is made of rows of shield shut up closely, as with a seal. One is so near to another that no air can come between them. They are joined one to another. They clasp each other and cannot be separated. His sneezings flash forth light, and his eyes are like the eyelids of the dawn."

And then it goes on in verse 23: "The folds of his flesh cleave together, firmly cast upon him, and immovable, as hard as the stone, hard as the nether millstone. When he raises himself up, the mighty are afraid at the crashing. They are beside themselves. Though the sword reaches him, it does not avail, nor the spear, the dart or the javelin. He counts iron as straw and bronze as rotten wood. The arrow cannot make him flee. For him sling stones are turned to stubble. Clubs are counted as stubble. He laughs at the rattle of javelins. His underparts are like sharp potsherd. He spreads himself like a threshing sledge on mire. He makes the deep boil like a pot. He makes the sea like a pot of ointment. Behind him he leaves a shining wake. One would think the deep to be hoary. Upon earth there is not his like, a creature without fear. He beholds everything that is high. He is king over all the sons of pride."

Now this is actually a figure of Satan himself. From the context we would gather that. But nevertheless it is a literal animal that seems to have been living in that day.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

Is Adam and Eve Fact or Fiction? (099B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. I'm taking a class, and the other day we were discussing the Genesis story. And our teacher said that Adam and Eve represent all of mankind, because the name Adam means man, and Eve means woman. So Adam and Eve weren't really two people, and they were like everybody.

And he also said that the Genesis story is just an attempt to explain how sin came into the world, but he said it's not really a true story. And he also went on to say that the Bible isn't a historical book and that Genesis isn't a scientific book, but it does have science in it. And while the Bible isn't a historical book, it does have history in it.

Now I don't believe any of this that he said, but I've tried to contradict him in class, but I just seem to run out of things to say. And I get the feeling that if I keep talking, other students will feel like I'm trying to show off. Do you understand what I mean?

HC: I understand. You see, first of all, we accept the Bible as the Word of God by faith. And you have learned to do this. You have learned to entrust your life to what you read in the Word of God. And so when you hear anyone make disparaging remarks about the Bible, as if it isn't everything that it purports to be, you feel very offended. You feel like you have to defend it.

But you must realize that those who are making these statements do not have their spiritual eyes open. They have not accepted the Bible by faith. And so I would suggest this to you, that you might try this topic. And I don't think for a moment that you're going to get anywhere with it. But you might try it anyway, just to see what happens.

And if you do stand up in class, be sure that you do it very humbly and very tenderly, because it is so easy to get a feeling, because you may know the Lord and you sense that most of the rest of the class does not, of superiority. "Look. I'm a child of God, and you're still slaves of Satan," so to speak. And even though you're not thinking it out loud, that may be very deep in your consciousness, particularly when you sense that they are so blind in their unbelief.

But just bear this in mind. If you know the Lord, it is only because of God's grace, His unmerited favor toward you. And except for His grace, you would be just as blind as anybody else. But very patiently, and very humbly, and very tenderly, you might ask your teacher, "Well now, is the Bible the infallible Word of God?" If he says it is not, that is, if he does not think the Bible is trustworthy all the way through, then ask him, "Well, how can I know what part of it I can trust and what part of it I cannot trust?"

Now this is leading into the fact that if I have to be the judge as to what is trustworthy and what is not trustworthy, then I am the authority over the Bible, and as a matter of fact, none of the Bible is worth reading, because I simply am not a qualified judge. And it means that the whole Bible is suspect. I could be selecting the wrong verses to trust and throwing out the other verses. It just makes the whole Bible a shambles.

Now if, on the other hand, he says, "Yes, I believe the Bible is infallible, the Bible is the divine Word of God," then ask him, "What is your biblical authority to say that the Genesis account is not historical, that it is not true, because you have to have biblical authority if you believe that the Bible is the infallible Word of God."

For example, I can read the account in Luke 16 of the rich man and Lazarus that Jesus talked about. And I can read everything that is there, and I can decide that that is not an historical event, that that is a parable that Jesus is teaching. Why can I decide that? Because when I read everything that He says here in this account, I realize that it does not follow the historical pattern that ought to be in accordance with the rest of the Bible.

For example, it says there that the rich man died and went to Hades, and there he plead with Abraham to send Lazarus to take a drop of water and put it on his tongue. That would indicate that he went to Hades, and he had a body there. Secondly, it would imply that he was already in torment even though Judgment Day had not come, because in that same context it says that he said to Abraham, "Send Lazarus from the grave to go to my five brothers who are not saved." So that would have to be on this side of Judgment Day.

Now I know from the rest of the Bible that when an unsaved man dies, he goes into the grave and his body returns to the dust. His body does not go into Hades. His body goes into the grave and returns to the dust to await the judgment of the Last Day.

Secondly, I know that when he dies, an unsaved man, his soul goes down into silence, and torment does not begin until after the Last Day, when he is resurrected to be judged, at which time he will be cast into hell.

And so, for these as well as a number of other reasons of a similar nature, I know that the account in Luke 16 is not an account of an actual historical event. But rather it is a story that Jesus told to act as a parable, to teach some wonderful spiritual truth, even as He told parables like the kingdom of heaven is like a man who went forth to sow. And he sowed the seed on good soil, and on rocky soil, and so on. And that is simply a story He was telling. It was not an actual historical event.

But when we get to the Book of Genesis, and we read, step by step, all that we find in Genesis, and then search the Scriptures to see if there's anything in the Bible that might suggest to us that what we read about Adam and Eve was simply a story, a parable, and that it actually was not history, we cannot find anything at all like that.

For example, in the New Testament we find in I Corinthians 15 where God says, "As in Adam all died," referring to historical Adam.

CALLER: Well, my teacher said that Paul was the first person to misunderstand it, and that really Adam wasn't a man. What do you think about this belief that Adam, meaning man, represented all men.

HC: Well, the word Adam is the word man. And in a certain sense we were all in the loins of Adam. We read in Genesis 3: "The man called his wife's name Eve because she was the mother of all living." Certainly they were the progenitors of the whole human race.

But when your teacher made this statement, "Paul was the first to misunderstand," immediately he confessed that he does not believe the Bible is the Word of God. He is saying, "These are the writings of Paul, and Paul was mistaken." In other words, he is saying that the Bible is simply a book. It is not the Word of God to him. And then, of course, if this is the case, he's going to come up with all kinds of doctrines contrary to the Word of God, because he doesn't believe in the authority of the Word of God.

And so don't be surprised at what you're going to hear. Don't be amazed at the ideas that will be set forth. But they will not be biblical.

CALLER: Then should I as a Christian try to keep saying what I believe?

HC: The Bible says, "Don't cast your pearls before swine." And what God means by this is that the Gospel is a great and wonderful pearl. And the unsaved of the world are sometimes illustrated in the Bible under the figure of swine or dogs, which were the most unclean beasts to the Jews of Jesus' day, and they're set forth this way in the Bible.

And when we offer the Gospel, if they will not listen, if they mock, if they ridicule, we simply keep silence. We're under no mandate from God to keep plugging away. When the Judaizers came while Paul was preaching the Gospel, and they harassed him and made life miserable for him, he simply left them and went on to the next city. When the Jews would not listen to him, he said, as we read in Acts 28, "Okay, if you Jews will not listen to me, I'll go to the Gentiles. They will listen."

And so in this class, you'll get to the point where you say, "No one listens to me. I'll keep silent."

CALLER: When he says these things, it really bothers me so much, because I know they're not true. But nobody in the class is really that interested.

HC: They're not interested. Now if he expressed interest, if someone in the class expressed interest, wonderful. Then you've got an open door to witness.

CALLER: Thank you very much, Mr. Camping. Good night.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

Science Versus Christianity (114C)

CALLER: Let's say, hypothetically, you were in charge of a Science Department. What do you consider is truth in Science, and what function should Science play in the world in the remaining days?

HC: What is the function of Science?

CALLER: Yes. There seems to be a conflict today between Science and Christianity. And there really shouldn't be, in my opinion. And I was just wondering, what function should Science have? What is truth in Science?

HC: The question has to do with, "What is truth in Science, and what is the function of Science?" Let me see if I can develop this question for just a moment.

Actually, Science is the study of the world around us. God of course has created this world in a very complex and intricate way. Man investigates this world and can use the results of this investigation to do one of two things: he can use it for his own selfish interests, and ultimately they will become destructive, or he can use the developments of this world as produced by Science to further enhance his relationship with God.

When we, for example, buy a radio station and dedicate it to bringing the Gospel, we are using the products of Science in order to enhance and do a more efficient job of bringing the Gospel. When we study the universe and see the brilliance of stars out there, we can glorify God for what a magnificent God He is.

Science does serve a useful function, therefore, in helping us to live more and more to the glory of God.

Unfortunately, of course, most people are unsaved. And most people turn the whole business all around. They begin to worship the scientist. They begin to look upon the scientist as their savior, as the one who can find a way out of man's predicament. They begin to worship this creation. They see in this creation and the products that come out of this creation, out of the ground, their security. And so they begin to worship the scientist and the ground from which he derives his things.

This of course is an abomination to God. This is putting the whole thing backwards. And so the very thing that ought to bring glory to God actually is going to bring the wrath of God upon man.

The Origins of Race (178E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I was wondering where the different races of mankind came from, and if there's any way you could show from Scripture where they came from. It would be very much appreciated, and I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you. Good night.

The question is raised: Where did the races come from? Does the Bible give us any clues? We know this from the Bible, that Adam and Eve, our first parents, were created about 13,000 years ago, in the year 11013 BC. At least that's the date I come to when I work out the genealogy and chronology in Genesis 5 and Genesis 10. The world then continued for 6023 years, until the year 4990 BC and multiplied rather slowly. It doesn't speak during this period of various nations. It simply indicates that mankind developed. And I personally believe that it didn't develop into a huge number of people. It might have grown to be a million people or thereabouts.

And then, in the year, 4990 BC, because of the wickedness of the people of that time, God destroyed the world by the flood, which killed off everything with the breath of life, with the exception of those men and animals and birds which were in the ark with Noah and his family. And you can read about this devastating flood in Genesis 6 and Genesis 7 and Genesis 8.

Then, in Genesis 10, we read what is sometimes called the Table of the Nations. On the ark, back there in 4990

BC, which is incidentally about 7000 years ago, there were four men and four women. There was Noah and his wife, there was Noah's son Shem and his wife, Noah's son Ham and his wife, and Noah's son Japheth and his wife. And these were all the children that Noah ever received, according to the Bible.

Now therefore Shem, Ham and Japheth became the progenitors of the whole human race as we know it today. Now in verse 2 of Genesis 10, we read of the sons of Japheth, Gomer (and the character of that word seems to suggest Germany, maybe), Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech and Tiras, the sons of Gomer, Ashkenaz, Riphath and Togarmah, the sons of Javan, Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim and Dodanim.

Now some of these words sound a little bit familiar. Tarshish was a city, eventually, that was located up in the northern area of Palestine, along the seacoast. Kittim refers probably to Cyprus. In other words, that's an island out in the Mediterranean Sea, moving out toward the Roman Empire, you see. And so it says, "From these the coastland peoples spread. These are the sons of Japheth in their lands, these with their own languages, by their families and in their nations."

And so the best we can do is to suggest that the European nations, essentially, came from the line of Japheth. We don't have any more information than that. "Then the sons of Ham; Cush, Egypt, Phut and Canaan. The sons of Cush; Seba, Havilah, Sabath, Raamah and Sabtecha, the sons of Raamah; Sheba and Dedan. Cush became the father of Nimrod. He was the first on the earth to be a mighty man. He was a mighty hunter before the Lord. Therefore it is said, Like Nimrod, the mighty hunter before the Lord." And the beginning of his kingdom was Babel, Erech and Accad, all of them in the land of Shinar. Out of that land he went into Assyria, and built Nineveh, Rehoboth and Calah, and Resen between Nineveh and Calah: that is the great city. Egypt became the father of Ludim and Anamim, Lehabim and Naphtuhim, and Pathrusim, Casluhim." You know, I didn't learn these words early enough. If I had lived about five or six thousand years ago, I could probably pronounce these.

But when we study the sons of Ham, we find that the Egyptians, the Assyrians, the Ninevites, Egypt, are all under the lineage of Ham. They all come from him. But again, we don't get any more information concerning how the nations were finally formed. God doesn't give us any insights as to why there are different skin colors, or precisely where the Chinese came from, or whatever. We can only get this general idea, particularly from the sons of Ham, from whom we get some very specific ideas.

And then Shem, we read about him that he became the father of "Ellam, Asshur, Arphaxad, Lud and Aram. And the children of Aram; Uz, Hul, Gether and Mash." And so on. And the one fact we do get from the sons of Shem is that Abraham, who became the beginning of the nation of Israel, came from Shem.

Now we do know this, that while the Flood occurred in 4990 BC, and Shem, Ham and Japheth, the sons of Noah, became the progenitors of the human race, about 3100 BC, God confused the languages. The people, as they multiplied, began to congregate in the plains of Sumar, or the plains of Shinar, or the fertile crescent in the area of Assyria and Babylon. And except for nomads that had gone off into various parts of the continent that existed in that day, most of the people were very gregarious, and they stayed together in the fertile crescent, in the area of Babylon.

And so around the year 3100 God confused the languages, and also separated the continents, so that it was divided into the continents that we have today. Perhaps at the time that He confused the languages He also may have begun a change in skin color. But that's pure speculation. All we know is that beginning around 3100 BC, we have the different nations developing in earnest, so that they were kept apart by vast bodies of water, and also they were kept apart by differences in language.

Well, there's just a thumbnail sketch of what the Bible teaches about the table of nations.

Evolution and the Age of the Earth (222A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Could you help me? I would like to teach in Sunday School about evolution versus the Bible. Could you give me some pointers on that?

HC: Your question is, How can you give a few points on the problem of evolution versus the Bible?

First of all, the Bible is very emphatic that God created the heavens and the earth. It you look, for example, at Exodus 20, here we find a very straightforward statement in verse 11: "For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested the seventh day." Now that's a flat statement that is not contradicted anywhere else in the Bible.

Moreover, this is what Genesis I teaches, that on Day One He created this, and Day Two He created that, and so on. So, to begin with, the Bible indicates very clearly that God created the universe.

Secondly, when you look at creation, you can immediately see that a Creator was required. Now you look around your room. And you see a lamp, you see a rug on the floor, you see things on the walls, you see doors and doorknobs, and all kinds of things. How many of these things came into existence without some kind of a mind thinking it out and making those objects? Well, not a thing, was there? Not one thing. Anything that you see in your room was made by someone. There's no possibility that any of those objects, your chairs or your furniture, or the lamp, or the light fixture, none of these things could ever have come to pass in billions of years without somebody making them.

Now the same is true when you look at the part that man did not make. You look at a plant. Could that have come into existence by blind chance or billions of years, anymore than your chair could have come into existence? Somebody had to make it. It had to be a Creator. And when we look at the things that man makes, they really aren't complex at all. That chair is really a fairly simple object. Even though you or I may not be able to make it, nevertheless, compared, let's say, to all of the mysterious and wonderful ways that your fingernail is made, or then you can start talking about your finger, and then your arm, and then your whole body, such a complex and mysterious and wonderful object, that could never have come to pass by chance, anymore than that chair could have.

So the world itself cries out that there must be a Creator. There must be a Creator, just like your room cries out and says that somebody must have made these things. They did not come to pass by accident.

Now you can look at evolution from another vantage point. The idea of evolution is that somewhere back when, lower objects, through blind chance, became higher objects, until finally life came into existence. And finally the fish became birds, and birds became animals, and animals became monkeys, and monkeys became man, and so on, whatever path that the evolutionist wants to go.

Now if that was possible, then it would also be possible for you to take a lot of little pieces of metal, and wood, and anything else that you could lay your hands on, and you could put them in a box. And then you could start shaking that box. And if you shook that box long enough, according to the theory of evolution, eventually a beautiful typewriter would come out, or maybe a wristwatch, or maybe something else would come out that was useful, because this is the theory of evolution, that by blind chance certain molecules got into right relationship with other molecules, and pretty soon things began to develop that were worthwhile.

Well, of course, on the face of it that's utterly ridiculous, isn't it? That's utterly ridiculous. Fact is, evolution is one of the most impossible theories that one could ever imagine. It is so absolutely impossible to think that that newborn baby somehow has evolved from something else. That's utterly impossible to contemplate. But because men's minds are blinded, and because they absolutely intuitively don't want to admit that there is a God, because if there is a God, it means there's a Judgment Day. And if there's a Judgment Day, it means they've got to answer for their sins. And so they are convinced that there must not be a Creator. There has to be evolution.

And yet they accept the theory of evolution by blind faith, because there's no evidence of it anywhere. There is no evidence. Everything in the creation cries out that there's a Creator, there's a Creator, there's a Creator. Everywhere you look, the evidence is there that there's a Creator. And yet they cling tenaciously to the idea of evolution by the blindest kind of faith, and the most tenacious faith, without realizing how blind they really are.

Another reason the evolutionist clings to what he clings to is that the idea of evolution is that the world has been around for millions and millions of years. And if this is really so, then the world ought to continue for another several million or billion years. And therefore, if there was the slightest possibility that there was a Judgment Day, it's so far down the trail that we don't really have to worry about it. And so the theory of evolution is very attractive from that standpoint.

The theory of evolution holds the idea that that which is less complex becomes more complex. Or, to put it in another way, that which is less useful can gradually become more useful, because everything began from an amoeba and worked up through the ranks, until finally we have man as the highest expression of the evolutionary process.

Now the fact is, the scientific law itself indicates that exactly the reverse is so, that that which is more complex will gradually deteriorate into that which is less. That which is more useful will deteriorate into that which is less useful. And we can illustrate this very easily. If you have a brand new shining car, and you put it out in a vacant field, according to the evolutionary idea (and this almost sounds like a caricature, and really it is). But nevertheless it illustrates the point.), if you left that car long enough, let's say a few hundred thousand years, pretty soon that car would become a more useful object. It would become even more shiny and bright and wonderful than when it was first put out in that field. Now we know that just exactly the reverse is true.

If you put that car out in that field and then come back ten years later, it will have rusted, it will have begun to deteriorate all over. And if you came back a thousand years later, the odds are that the whole thing would have been completely returned to the dust of the earth.

So, you see, the theory of evolution is exactly contrary to the laws of science themselves. The theory of evolution is not scientific in any sense. It is not practical, it is not logical. But it is a requirement for unsaved man, who desperately is trying to kid himself that there is no judgment upon his sins, because the theory of evolution is based on a universe that does not have a God.

And therefore, if there is not God, there need not be hell. There need not be a Judgment Day.

CALLER: Just one more question. How old is the earth then?

HC: According to the Bible, the earth is 13,000 years old. As I have tried to work out the chronology of Genesis 5 and Genesis 10, I believe that creation occurred in the year 11,013 BC and the Flood occurred in the year 4990 BC.

Now incidentally the oceans themselves, completely apart from what the Bible says, give very mute testimony to the fact that the earth is very young. In the oceans we of course have minerals, or elements, ions of elements actually would be a proper term to use, which are a product of the continental masses. As the rains fall on the continents, there is erosion, isn't there? And the dirt and the rock flecks, and so on, are swept eventually into the streams. And from the streams they finally find their entrance into the ocean.

Now if scientists could measure the amount of silicon (which is one of the elements that's very common throughout the world) flowing in these ocean streams into the ocean every year, and make an estimate of how many tons of silicon went in, and then if they could estimate the amount of silicon that actually was in suspension in ocean water, then they could obtain a figure as to how long it took for this silicon to come into the ocean water.

Now according to the theory of scientists who are talking about the age of the earth, the earth is four and a half billion years old, and our present oceans are at least 150,000,000 years old. And so you would think that therefore elements have been flowing into ocean water for a long, long, long time. Well, I actually went to the Earth Science Library at the University of California at Berkeley, where there are many, many excellent books written by scientists, who know nothing about the Bible and have no relationship to the Bible. These are simply scientific books on ocean water.

And it is indeed true that scientists have measured and estimated the amount of the various elements that are going into ocean solution every year. And they have also measured the amount of these same elements, or ions of elements, that are in ocean solution. And to their amazement, at least eighteen of the elements that are in ocean solution are in such short supply that they would have been furnished by less than 1,000 years of continental weathering. Now this is exactly what one would expect if the earth, after all, was only very young. And you have some very hard droughts, and so you have differential erosion, and so some of these elements would be going into ocean solution very slowly, whereas others would go more rapidly.

Then I thought, "Well, maybe the ocean water is saturated, super-saturated by all of these elements, and they've all been going out as sediment on the floor of the ocean." But scientists, again, have written that nowhere in the world is any ocean water super-saturated. That is, nowhere is there a place in ocean water, on an average basis, where conditions prevail that heavy precipitation would occur, because the ocean water cannot contain any more elements.

But then I thought, "Maybe in spite of the fact that there is not a supersaturated situation, maybe elements could go out of ocean solution by some unknown process, and maybe the sediments on the floor of the ocean would have something to say about this." But, again, the scientists have been doing a lot of work studying the ocean floor. And they are frankly amazed that vast areas of the ocean floor are almost bare of sediments, which is exactly what we would expect with a very young earth that's only 10 or 15,000 years of age, and where the erosion has only been occurring for this length of time.

Now scientists, of course, are puzzled about this. And they now have concocted the idea that the floor of the ocean is like a great plate, that is slowly on sliding under the continental masses. And as it slides under the continental masses, the sediments are cleaned from it. Now that's straight speculation. There's no measurement that they've ever made of the floor movement. It is straight guess work because, again, they will not accept the Biblical statement that the earth is very young.

But, you see, in this ocean water, the oceans are dramatically proving to us that the earth is, after all, very young, on the order of 10 or 15,000 years. And the Biblical statement, I believe, shows us that the world is only 13,000 years of age.

CALLER: Thank you so much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

The Age of the Earth (230D)

CALLER: My question is, is there any difference between the age of the earth as determined by geometric method and as determined by the Bible?

HC: The question that was raised is: Does the age of the earth as found in the Bible correspond in any sense with the age of the earth spoken of by the archaeologists and the geologists and paleontologists, the secular scientists?

No, there is no relationship at all. You see, the secular scientists, and unfortunately some Christian scientists, also, look at the evidence that they find concerning what might relate to the age of the earth, but they have to make guesses as to how to understand this evidence. And these guesses are called assumptions.

Now the conclusions that they derive by examining the evidence in the light of the guesses or assumptions obviously cannot be any more accurate than the guesses or assumptions themselves. And therefore their conclusions are quite erroneous. Now they look at a rock, and they examine the content of that rock. They know exactly how much of certain radiometric minerals are in it, and how many isotopes of something else are in it, and they can measure this very accurately.

But then they make assumptions. They assume, for example, that all things have continued, without any catastrophic change, since the very beginning. And they assume other things of a like nature. And then they finally decide that this rock is 200 million years old, or whatever their conclusion may be.

Now their assumptions, of course, are only guesses. And in fact we know that some of their guesses are outright incorrect, because the Bible teaches that all things did not continue the same since the beginning. The Bible teaches that there was a flood in Noah's day, that absolutely changed the surface of the earth. And this must be taken into account, if we're going to look at any evidence that we find today.

Now the Bible teaches, I believe, that the earth is something like 13,000 years old. Scientists talk about an earth that is four and a half billion years old. Quite a difference, isn't it? The amazing thing, however (and not really amazing at all), is that when we look at the evidence carefully, we can find from the evidence that the scientists produce plenty of indication that the world is not millions and millions of years old, but rather that it is more like ten or fifteen thousand years old. And at another time we might go into some of that evidence.

What Happened to the Dinosaurs? (325D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a child in the second grade, and in school they're studying about dinosaurs. And she was reading some of the answers to me, and it says that they lived 200 million years ago. Now I have heard someone say that you wrote a book called "Adam When" and you believe that our earth is really not as old as scientists believe. Now I have two questions. Can you tell me how old you think our earth is, and where did these dinosaurs go? I mean, if Noah was to bring two of every animal onto the ark, what happened to the dinosaurs?

HC: The question is, How old is the earth? I believe the earth is about 13,000 years old. I believe that God created the heavens and the earth, Adam and Eve and the dinosaurs and all the other animals, in the year 11,013 BC, according to Biblical reckoning.

Now according to the fossil record, the archaeological record, the early earth was much warmer than it is today. They have found many fossils of broad-leaved plants, fossil fuels (oil and so on) in the earth, which come from heavy vegetation that existed early on the earth. The evidence is that during the first several thousand years of the earth's existence it was warmer than it was subsequent to the flood.

Then, in the year 4990 BC, the flood occurred (6023 years after creation). Noah was commanded by God to put two of every kind, as well as seven of the clean animals, into the ark. And this would have included a couple of dinosaurs, certainly. They didn't have to be full grown dinosaurs. They could have been baby dinosaurs. After all, the purpose was simply to continue the species.

After the flood, however, the earth became much colder. This would have introduced the Ice Age. The fact is, immediately after the flood, according to the theological evidence, the continents were about 30% covered by ice. Today they're still about 10% covered by ice. So the world was quite a bit colder. So the climate was not conducive to the maintenance of these large animals that were heavy vegetable eaters.

However, in the Bible itself we find language that seems to speak of this kind of a huge creature living all the way until about 1800 BC. The book of Job was written about that time, about 1800 BC, and if you read Job 41, it is speaking of some kind of a fierce animal, a very fierce animal. You might find in the margin of your Bible that it speaks of a crocodile, but that is simply somebody's speculation. The word crocodile is not found here.

And when you read the language here, you will find that it is really talking about some kind of an animal that lived, and it sounds like a huge dragon of some kind. It could very well have been a dinosaur or some related creature that still continued to live up until 1800 BC.

At any rate, as a whole kind of animal, it did become extinct, probably to a large degree as a result of the colder temperatures that followed the flood.

Now in the fossil records, which are bones of animals in the rocks, in the sandstone, that is, rocks that have been put down by water deposition, we find imprints of leaves and even footprints of animals in clay. The reason that we find them is because of the cataclysmic nature of the flood. Today fossils are not being formed. When an animal dies, gradually the skeleton of that animal withers away and returns to the dust. And it would take a huge landslide to cover that animal, and other conditions prevailing, to produce a fossil. And that ordinarily does not happen.

But we find all kinds of animals that have been fossilized, and sea creatures and leaves and plants, because of the instantaneous, cataclysmic nature of the flood. Now it's significant that in some of the fossil beds, here in the United States, they have found the footprints of a dinosaur in the same stream bed, in the same clay strata, with the footprint of man, indicating that man and dinosaurs lived simultaneously, which of course is exactly what the Bible teaches.

CALLER: How come they never bring that up, though, when they're teaching science?

HC: Because the scientists ordinarily have decided on evolution, and they have developed their timetable for evolution. And because they have a blind faith in evolution, therefore they don't want to face these other questions. There are all kinds of embarrassing questions they could face which they do not face. They simply call that an anomaly or a puzzle that doesn't fit the pattern. But they just don't want to face this. They are locked into their evolution theories.

CALLER: Would that then go along with their finds of heads that they say are millions of years old, and they try to trace this back to then? Was this a human being from the flood time? Would that be it? Or is it an ape?

HC: You see, this introduces another very interesting fact. The Liekes, scientists who are working in Africa, frequently have their findings written up in the National Geographic Magazine. And it wasn't so many years ago that they believed that the oldest human, as we know him today, was about several hundred thousand years old. They found other fragments of skulls, or fragments of other bones. (Ordinarily they don't find a whole skeleton. All they find is some fragments, and they try to reconstruct from that.) But in an examination of these fragments they concluded that there was some kind of a man-like animal that lived as long as maybe two million years ago.

But in recent years they have found fragments of skulls, and parts of skeletons, in Africa, that date by their method to as far back as two and a half or three million years. And yet they have all the evidence of being a normal human being. And of course this is a great puzzle to these scientists. We of course who believe in the Bible say, no, that's no problem at all. First of all, their timetable is all awry. It's all wrong. While they decide that the skull is three million years old, we know that that's an impossibility, because the Bible won't permit it, and neither will the scientific evidence permit it.

If we look at the character of the oceans, and so on, it can be proven very readily, just from the scientific evidence, that this world couldn't be more than 15,000 years old, or thereabouts.

But nevertheless, on their own timetable, they find this. And we say, No, that's not a problem. The human beings have been here as long as the animals have. Now they may have found skulls and pieces of bone of apes, or monkeys, or even other animals that lived before the flood and have since become extinct. But anything at all that looks like a human is a human. Mankind began as a full-blown human being, in Adam and Eve. The fact is, Adam and Eve were more perfect humans than any of us are. We are the product of the degeneration of the human race because of sin. We have our twisted spines and our sloped shoulders, and our whatever it may be, our weaknesses in our bodies and skeletons, and so on, as a result of the curse of sin upon the earth. And Adam and Eve began as perfect humans.

CALLER: One other question. I was reading this book—and this really started me—it said that Christ was crucified in the nude. Is that true?

HC: That is true. The Bible says that they took His garments from Him. Now you must remember that Christ had become a curse for us. To endure hell for our sins is to be under the curse of God. It is a terrible thing. It is to be cut off by God. And it is to have all of our sins exposed before God. When Christ was stripped of His garments, that was really a figure of the fact that He had become sin for us. He stood exposed before God, with all of our sins. He had become a curse for us. It is the language of the Bible to indicate the awfulness of the price that Christ paid for our sins.

Someone says, "He was crucified in the nude," as if, "Horrors! He was naked. Couldn't somebody throw a blanket around Him?" No, no. That isn't the point at all. The fact that His garments were stripped from Him indicated He had come under the curse of God. He was the off-scouring. He was the refuse. He had been abandoned by God. He was naked before God. It's to indicate the terrible, terrible thing that Christ had to undergo in order that He might be our Savior.

CALLER: It makes you just want to sit down and cry that they would do that to our God.

HC: But this was required in order that we might be saved. This is the evidence of God's love. Had Christ not done this... remember, they did not crucify Christ. But Christ willingly came to be crucified. Christ was born to be crucified. Christ came to be crucified. Christ came to Jerusalem and made certain that they would crucify Him. It was His purpose to be crucified. This was the only way that He could become our Savior. This had to be, because of God's love for us.

Creation Versus Evolution (348A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. Good evening. Perhaps you could help me a little bit with a kind of perplexing problem I've encountered. I go to a local college, and I'm taking a geology course. And in the course of studies there have been a number of people who have come into the class and preached on their evolutionary theories. And the textbooks of course promote the theory that the earth is some four and a half billion years old.

It's very hard to refute these claims, because the staff or faculty has the general opinion that they know everything that has happened from the beginning of time, almost on a personal level. They feel very confident in their belief. Could you possibly give me any kind of background to help me in these studies, so that at least in my own mind I could have your view of the age of the earth. And how can I prove this out for my own well being?

HC: The question is raised, "How can I know that the earth is not four and a half billion years old? How can I know something that is more trustworthy than what is being offered by scientists today?"

First of all, any secular scientist (and unfortunately, a few Christian scientists, that is, scientists who are Christians, who have come to the conclusion that there is such a thing as theistic evolution) effectively denies the Biblical account of the Flood of Noah's day. You read the language of Genesis 6, 7 and 8. Read it very carefully, very slowly. That language leaves no possibility except that at one time in the earth's existence this earth was destroyed by water, so that there was tremendous mountain building afterwards, and so on. The fact is, read Psalm 104 in the light of Genesis 6, and there it says, in Psalm 104, that the valleys were deepened and the mountains were raised up, and so on, to indicate that there was a place for the water that came upon the earth.

Now these secular scientists do not acknowledge that such a drastic thing happened. They operate from the vantage point that everything has been uniform, that change has occurred without that kind of a cataclysmic event. The Flood alone, therefore, negates all of their presuppositions.

You must also remember that when they look at evidence, they measure, for example, the amount of Carbon 14 in carbon, and they measure the amount of Carbon 12, and then they make certain assumptions as to what this means. Well, carbon is a little more exact, because it's more recent in history. The half life of carbon is only 5,730 years, or thereabouts. But let's talk about argon, or uranium — some of this radiometric dating. They measure the various elements that are in a rock, and then they make certain conclusions, or make certain assumptions concerning what has happened in the past. And on the basis of these assumptions they arrive at their conclusions.

Well obviously, their conclusions can't be any more accurate than their assumption. And so while they may be very confident of what they're stating, we know from the beginning that their assumptions are erroneous. Their assumption that there's never been a flood, their assumption that all things have begun from an evolutionary beginning, these are wrong assumptions, right from the very beginning.

More than that, from the Bible we have the clear statement in Genesis 1 and Exodus 20, and elsewhere, that God created the heavens and the earth in six days. God spoke, and it was so. This immediately negates everything that the secular scientist is saying, because he denies that God can bring these things into existence just by speaking.

We have a powerful dramatization of this creative act at the wedding of Cana of Galilee, as it's recorded in John 4. There were these six large stone jars filled with water, which is H₂O, hydrogen and oxygen. And instantaneously Jesus turned it into wine. Now wine also has the element carbon in it. Therefore it was a creative act.

We see it when He multiplied the loaves and the fish. This was an act of creation. Only God could do this. And if He could do it in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ, certainly He could do it when He created the heavens and the earth.

Moreover, if you've studied Carbon 14 at all, have you noticed that at some point they've indicated that the rate of formation of new Carbon 14 (and it's formed by the act of cosmic rays coming into our atmosphere) all over the world is at a higher rate than the overall rate of disintegration of Carbon 14. The rate of disintegration actually is about seventy-five percent of the rate of formation.

Now actually, if this world were hundreds of thousands of years old, even as short a life-span as 100,000 years, and if Carbon 14 had been being formed at a uniform rate for the last 100,000 years, eventually you would get equilibrium, so that the rate of decay all over the world would equal the rate of formation. So scientists puzzle over the fact that the rate of decay is only about seventy-five percent of the rate of formation. It's the kind of a phenomenon that we would expect if the beginning of the formation of Carbon 14 was a very recent phenomenon, that is, if the sun had been created only very recently.

Let me illustrate this way. Let's say the rate of formation of new Carbon 14 was one hundred pounds per year. That's a ridiculous figure, but just for the sake of argument, it was hundred pounds per year. Well, the first year, that means at the end of a year there would be hundred pounds of Carbon 14 in the whole earth that could begin to disintegrate. The next year another hundred pounds would have been formed. So now you have two hundred pounds that disintegrate. So the rate of decay would be at a higher, there would be more pounds disintegrating every year.

Let's say that one pound disintegrated every year out of every hundred pounds that existed. Well, the first year one pound would disintegrate, the second year two hundred pounds now have been formed. There would be two pounds disintegrating. The third year another hundred pounds was formed, and so there would be three pounds disintegrating, until finally you'd get equilibrium. So the amount going in would equal the amount going out. And that's what you would expect if the world was hundreds of thousands of years old.

The fact is, however, a lot lesser amount is being formed. That is, a lot lesser amount is being disintegrated than that which is being formed, indicating that the beginning of the formation of Carbon 14 was fairly recent. And I think it can be shown that it identifies with the longevity that the Bible talks about, namely, about 13,000 years.

Now these are just a few things. Or again, if you look at the oceans. Now you might talk to your geology teacher same time about the oceans. In geology you learn about the continental masses, you learn about the scaling of rock because of ice action, you learn about the disintegration of rock because of the action of wind and of rain, and how these sediments flow into the rivers and then into the ocean.

Now you would expect that if the earth had been around for a long time, let's say even as short a period as 1 million years, there ought to be some kind of an equilibrium between the oceans and the continental masses. That is, we ought to find the same percentages of elements in the oceans and in the sediments on the ocean floor as we find in the continental masses, because through a million years, through this kind of erosion that takes place, the various elements as they appear percentage-wise in the continental masses would also appear in the ocean water.

Actually, there are all kinds of books written by scientists who know nothing about the Bible, and they have measured rather carefully the percentages of the various elements in the continental masses, and they have measured the various elements in solution in ocean water, as well as on the ocean floor, and there's no relationship between the two. That would also indicate that the oceans are very young.

More than that, you would expect that if you knew how much of any element flowed into ocean solution each year from all of the continental masses, then if you could measure the same amount in ocean solution, you would be able to tell how old that ocean really is. In other words, let's say there was a pound of silicone that actually eroded each year from all of the continental masses all over the earth, and eventually ended up in the ocean in ocean solution. And that was occurring at the rate of about one pound per year, again a ridiculous figure, but only for the sake of this illustration. And now you went into the ocean, and you took samples of ocean water and found that after calculating all of the amount of silicone in the ocean solution you found that there were a million pounds of silicone in ocean solution, or on the ocean floor, that would indicate that probably the earth then is a million years old, because it would take about a million years, at an erosion rate of a pound per year, to arrive at a million pounds in ocean solution.

Well, scientists have actually done this. They've measured the elements in ocean solution. Lo and behold, they were flabbergasted to find that eighteen of the elements in ocean solution have a residency of less than 1,000 years. That is, they are in such short supply in ocean solution that they would have been provided by less than 1,000 years continental weathering. Now that's an astounding fact, if indeed these oceans had been millions of years old.

The fact is, silicone, in measuring the amount of silicone in ocean solution, they find that it is found in ocean solution in an amount that would have been provided by about 8,000 years of continental weathering. Well, that's very close to the figure that the Bible shows to be the age of the earth. The Bible shows the age of the earth to be 13,000 years, I believe. And so that figure isn't far off at all.

Of course you might ask, "Well then, maybe you only find silicone in short supply in ocean solution because it's all on the ocean floor." But they've done a lot of work on the ocean floor in recent years. And again they find that most of the ocean floor is almost bare of sediment. Vast areas are almost bare of sediment.

To get around this, scientists have concocted the idea that the ocean floors are great plates that slip under the continental masses, cleaning themselves. And that's the reason that we have the ocean floor almost bare of sediment. Well, that's purely a theory. There's no evidence that this is happening. In fact, there's lots of evidence that this is not happening. If this were occurring, you would think there would be a vast pile-up of sediments along all of the continental areas. And this just isn't the case. There are deeper sediments along same of the continental shelves, but not along all of them.

If scientists would look at all the evidence they have in view, and dismiss their evolutionary theories, which is actually the ideology that goads them on, and would get rid of their inhibition insofar as recognizing a Creator God, then they could look at their evidence with open eyes, and they'd have to conclude that the world is 10 or 15,000 years old.

CALLER: The theory of plate-tectonics seems to permeate the entire course, since this is a recent discovery, and seems to, scientifically, as they see it, provide the answer as to why the continents have shifted and the poles have shifted. They promulgate this theory that they have found the reason for their theories are the magnetic lines in rock, which they have taken core samples from in the earth, showing that at one time in history the rocks were pointed in another direction than what the poles are now. Since they don't feel that the poles shifted, they feel, I suppose, that the plates have shifted.

It's very hard to talk to a professor who holds this theory, naturally.

HC: All you have to ask him is, where is the proof of this? Now the magnetic bands, that is no proof. Those magnetic bands could have been caused from lots of things. In the flood of Noah's day, when the bowels of the earth were opening up, and the volcanoes were acting, and the magna was flowing from the earth, and the waters from heaven were enveloping the earth, there would have been all kinds of erratic motions of the earth, possibly, which could have caused a shifting in the magnetic bands, backwards and forwards.

They simply are in theory relating the magnetic bands to plate-tectonics. Now the interesting thing is that thirty years ago, or thereabouts, the idea of plate-tectonics was virtually unknown altogether. But you see, as some of these other questions have surfaced, they've got to find an answer. And rather than go to the Bible, they concoct another theory. And it's purely a theory.

They have found, for example, that there was at one time one huge continent. And they propose that over the last 150 million years this continent has broken up, and now we have the North and South American continents, and so on. Well, they're correct, of course, that there was one huge continent at one time. The Bible indicates this.

But there's no evidence that they have been able to bring forth that there is movement between the continents today. With all of their ability to measure the speed of light and all kinds of other things, they have not been able to measure any perceptible movement between the continents, which is what you would expect if this theory of plate-tectonics held, or if this theory that the continents are drifting apart at the rate of several centimeters a year, so that over the last 150 million years we have what we have today, held. The Bible simply says that in the days of Peleg (and according to the Biblical record, it was about 5,000 years ago) the earth was divided. The Bible is very matter of fact that there was one continent, and the earth was divided.

But it doesn't suggest for a moment that this is a very slow moving kind of thing.

CALLER: Then it is cataclysmic, according to the Bible, I'm just curious as to what evidence is shown in that respect, something to approach this man with. I don't want to really contest his viewpoint, other than from a scientifically based type of proposition. They do have kind of a way of reducing a student to look like a blithering idiot, especially if it has anything to do with a belief in God. So that's why I'm trying to approach him in this way.

HC: Well, of course you cannot convince your college professor that he is wrong. He is blinded in his faith. His faith is in a "no God" creator, that is, that there is no Creator God. His faith is in his evolutionary theories. He builds everything around this. He is altogether blind in this.

The best I would suggest is that you do some research on the matter of oceans. I wrote a book called "Adam When," which you might get at your Christian bookstore, which lays out this thing. And I think in one of the chapters I went into this whole matter of the ocean situation. And read that very carefully. And then pose some of those questions to him, and see what he wants to do with them.

CALLER: Excellent. I appreciate your time, and I will make one last comment. One other class I'm taking is Psychology. I called about a week ago, and I wanted to know about psychic people, whether to avoid them or not. And it just happens, as a follow-up to that, that the college has gone ahead and recruited the services of a local psychic person, who is going to be speaking at the college, and it's a required part of the curriculum, that everyone attend this. And of course a psychic will be giving demonstrations of the occult upon members of the audience. And I thought that you might like to know the trend that the school system is going in. And of course if you don't attend they make you out to look like a religious nut. So I'm sure you're familiar with that.

HC: You see, at that point you have to make a decision. Am I going to allow myself to be maligned, to be slandered, to be called a religious nut, and stand for Christ nevertheless? Or am I going to try to be accepted by all and deny Christ?

As Christians we're going to suffer affliction. As Christians we are going to be maligned. We are going to be misunderstood. We, however, must remember, ultimately we answer to God, not to man. And it's before Him that we stand or fall. And we want to be sure that we stand faithful before God.

CALLER: Okay. I didn't think it would ever come to this in the school system, but it's quite a shock. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

The Descendancy of Black People in Gen 10:6 (418A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I would like to know if black people are descended from Ham, one of the sons of Noah.

HC: Yes, that is correct. The residents of Africa, of North Africa, of Babylon, of the land of Canaan, are the descendants of Ham.

CALLER: Okay. In my Bible, the Living Bible illustrated, there is a footnote that Ham was not the ancestor of the Negro as once erroneously supposed. Now from the information that you have just supplied me, I would like to get this out of the Bible.

HC: Well, the book that you're referring to is not the Bible. You can depend upon that.

CALLER: The book, "The Way," is not considered the Bible?

HC: That is not the Bible. That is a paraphrase of some kind, and it is not the Bible. Now we read in Genesis 10, in verse 6, "The sons of Ham, Cush and Mizraim and Phut and Canaan, the sons of Cush; Seba and Havilah, and Sabtah, and Raamah, and Sabtecha, and the sons of Raamah; Sheba and Dedan." Then it goes on and talks about Cush, that he begat Nimrod, and so on.

Now Cush is related to Ethiopia, which of course is in Africa. As near as we can tell, the inhabitants of Africa and North Africa, which would be Egypt and right up into the fertile crescent, Mesopotamia, where Babel and Erech were, and the inhabitants of the land of Canaan, which later on became the land of Israel, were all the descendants of Ham. Now that doesn't mean that the sons of Japheth or the sons of Shem did not also come into these lands. Nor does it mean anything bad that certain peoples are the descendants of Ham. There is nothing negative in the Bible concerning this particularly. It simply means that Ham was one of the three sons of Noah, and certain nations came from Ham and certain nations came from Japheth and certain nations came from Shem. I'm not even certain how all this devised.

CALLER: Okay. Then I am to assume that "The Way" is not the Bible.

HC: Anything that calls itself a paraphrase of the Bible is not the Bible at all. It is simply the work of men who are trying to develop some kind of a commentary on the Bible, but it must never be considered to be the Bible.

CALLER: Fantastic. Thank you very much. Good night.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Some Questions on Creation (418B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum

CALLER: Hello. I wonder if the Bible says anything about how long the time was between the creation of Adam and Eve and the fall of man in the Garden of Eden. And also, how do you determine the age of the earth? Also, I would like you to comment on Carbon 14 dating. I don't understand that. And I'm also interested in the New Heaven and the New Earth. The Bible says that this earth is going to melt away, and there will be a New Heaven and a New Earth. Is this going to be a literal earth. And if so, what would be the nature of it?

HC: All right. The first question had to do with how long were Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden before they fell into sin? The Bible doesn't tell us how long it was, but we do know that Adam was 130 years old, I believe, when he begat Seth. We read this in Genesis 5:3: "And Adam lived 130 years and begat a son in his own likeness, after his own image, and called his name Seth."

Now before Seth was born, according to the Biblical record, we have these events that did transpire. Adam and Eve were created in the Garden of Eden, they fell into sin, and they were driven out of the Garden. Eve conceived and bore Cain. She conceived again and bore Abel. These two sons grew up to manhood. Cain eventually killed Abel, and then after this Seth was born. That means that all of these events took place with a span of 130 years.

Therefore I would estimate that Adam and Eve were in the Garden of Eden a comparatively short period of time. It may be as short a period of time as a few months, certainly not more than a few years. That's all we can do. We can only speculate. We can't really know for certain.

The second question that was raised is concerning the dating or the chronology of mankind. There was a man named Usher several hundred years ago who worked out a chronology based on what he thought was the Biblical data, and he came up with a date of 4004 BC for the creation of Adam. However, in inspecting his chronological plan, he was not true to the Bible. For example, he figured that the nation of Israel was 215 years in Egypt. Well, the Bible is very straightforward and clear in saying that they were 430 years in Egypt. So his dating program is contrary to the Bible. Secondly, it is contrary to science altogether. Written history goes back in unbroken fashion at least to 3000 BC, or approximately to 3000 BC. According to Usher's chronology, the Flood occurred around 2300 BC. And certainly if the historical record since the invention of writing went back to 3000 BC, it would have recorded this flood. Usher's chronology was neither Biblical, nor did it match the scientific data.

In studying the Bible, however, I have found that the Genesis account of Genesis 5 and Genesis 10 or 11 is really a calendar. When it talks about Noah, for example, it says that in the 600th year, the second month, the 27th day of Noah's life the Flood came (or whatever the date was). At least the calendar was tied to the age of Noah. Now that was a big clue as to how God kept the calendars. We keep our calendar the same way. We say the year 1977 AD, Anno Domini, the Year of Our Lord. We tie it to the birth date of Jesus. Presumably He was born 1900 and some years ago. In Exodus 6 we find certain information concerning the death ages of the descendants of Levi. We find that Levi died at the age of 133, or something like that. He had a descendant who died at the age of 137 and who in turn had a descendant who died at the age of 133, who in turn was the father of Aaron. And we know from the Biblical record that Aaron left the land of Egypt at the age of 83, according to the Bible.

When we assume that these four men—Levi, Kohath, Amram and Aaron—in their own time were the calendar reference patriarchs, even as Noah was in his day, then Kohath would have been born the year Levi died, Amram would have been born the year Kohath died, and Aaron would have been born the year Amram died. When we make these assumptions, we find that indeed the timetable works out exactly with the other information the Bible offers, namely, that the nation of Israel was in Egypt for 430 years.

What I'm trying to say is that God has built within the framework of the Biblical record the evidence that God indeed kept the timetable of mankind in a certain bloodline, in the nation of Israel it was in the tribe of Levi, by making each man that came on the scene a calendar reference patriarch during his lifespan. In the year that he died someone else in his bloodline, who was born the year that he died, became the next calendar reference patriarch.

To make a long story short, following this premise, and working back through the information wherever we can dig it out in the Bible, I have come to the conclusion, and I believe that this is accurate, that Adam and Eve were created in the year 11,013 BC. The Flood took place in the year 4990 BC. Abraham was called out of Haran in the year 2092 BC. The division of the continents occurred about 3100 BC, and so on. And in studying the scientific evidence I find no contradiction of any kind.

Now the question is raised, then what about the radioactive dating, where scientists look at rocks and measure the various chemicals within the rocks, the isotopes, and they conclude that this rock is two million years old, or whatever? We must remember that the evidence scientists look at is true and trustworthy, of course. They can physically measure exactly how much of this is in the rock or how much of that. That is accurate.

But when the scientist is going to decide how old that rock is, based on this evidence, he must make certain assumptions. One grand assumption that all scientists make in this kind of dating is that this earth has continued, substantially without change, from its beginning. They disregard altogether, for example, the Flood of Noah's day. They absolutely pay no attention to the fact that at one time this world was altogether deluged by water so that the very face of the earth was changed altogether, and all of mankind was destroyed. This is indicative of the fallacious assumptions that scientists make.

Now obviously, if their assumptions are incorrect, the conclusions that will derive from their assumptions will be as incorrect as their assumptions. Therefore we're not surprised that they come up with conclusions that are altogether contrary to the Bible.

When we actually read the Bible, however, and start out with the Biblical premises, and now look at the evidence that the scientists find, we find their evidence is altogether in agreement with the Bible. As an illustration, the question is sometimes raised concerning radial carbon dating. Now there is an isotope of carbon that is formed that has a half-life of 5730 years, I believe. And it is formed in the first place by the activity of cosmic rays bombarding the atmosphere. And these in turn are formed by the sun and the light-bearers. Now if the earth were, say, 100,000 years old, or a million years old (pick any large number of this nature), then there should exist a state of equilibrium insofar as carbon 14 is concerned. That is, there ought to be as much new carbon 14 being formed each moment of time or each year of time as there is being decayed into carbon 12. There ought to be a state of equilibrium.

The fact is, however, scientists are amazed to find that this state of equilibrium does not exist. It's what they are looking for, but it does not exist. They find that the amount of carbon that decaying is only about 75% of that which is being formed, exactly the condition that would prevail if this earth were only 10 or 15,000 years of age. In other words, beginning with the year 1, when the sun was created, at the time of the creation of Adam and Eve, if at that time the formation of carbon 14 began, and continued for 10 or 15,000 years, by now we would have that condition where we would have about 75% of carbon 14 actually decaying as compared with the amount that is being formed, new carbon that is being formed.

I give this very roughly and very generally only to indicate that the very anomaly or questions that the scientist raises (and he calls them anomalies or questions, because they do not agree with his assumptions and his conclusions) do show us that the Bible is correct. The Bible does supply the answers as to why these unforeseen problems arise in the scientific evidence. Now the last question that was raised is: What does the Bible say about the New Heaven and the New Earth? We don't have a lot of information. II Peter 3 describes it as a place where righteousness dwells. Revelation 21:1 says that the seas are no more. Isaiah 65 or 66 indicates it is a place of great bliss, even as we find in Revelation 21 and 22. There's no suffering or sorrow.

We know there is no sun. Jesus Christ is the Sun; He is the Light. There is no temple. Jesus Christ is the Temple. There is no sorrow, there is no affliction, there is no sin. It, of course, is a world, a universe, that is altogether different from this universe because it is populated by different kinds of beings. This universe, this earth, is populated by men with flesh and blood and bones. We are very material in existence. Our dimensions are length and width and height. It's a beautiful creation because it was created by God, that is, this creation. But this creation is altogether designed for physical man as we now exist, along with the animals and the birds and the fish, and so on.

The new creation, however, is created for people who have their resurrected spiritual bodies. And the Bible says that flesh and blood shall not inherit the Kingdom of Heaven. Therefore there's a whole new set of dimensions. I don't know what these are, because my mind can't go beyond the three dimensions of length, width and height, that is, that which I can taste or feel or touch.

But nevertheless it has to be designed to accommodate people who are in resurrected spiritual bodies. Secondly, it will be the place where God Himself dwells with us in all of His sovereign majesty and infinite glory. This earth could not go on dwelling here in His glory. We would all be consumed, the Bible says. We couldn't stand His presence. In order for us to be in His eternal presence forevermore, in the New Heaven and the New Earth, it has to be a different kind of a creation.

We can depend upon this, that God is not limited in His ability to produce something beautiful. We can see fantastic beauty and wonder in the wings of a butterfly. We can see it in a rainbow. We can see it in a rose. We can see it in the eyes of a newborn baby. We can see it in a mother's smile. We can see it in the song of a meadowlark. We can see it in a leaf. We can see it in a thousand different ways, the matchless, matchless ability of God to create that which is wonderful and beautiful and marvelous.

But this world does not contain the limit. It is not the final framework in which God can demonstrate His ability to create that which is marvelous and beautiful and wonderful, and so on, to behold. You can depend upon it that the New Heaven and the New Earth will be again as beautiful in its own way, and maybe even more beautiful, than this present earth, because it is God who creates it. It is going to be simply wonderful beyond words to describe. There are no human words that can really describe it, because it is outside of time. It's outside of our dimensional system. It's in the presence of God's glory. Therefore there is no possible way that we can really describe the New Heavens and the New Earth, any more than we can really describe what we will be when we have our spiritual bodies. All we know is that, to use a phrase that the Bible uses, we'll know that it is glorious, glorious, glorious.

But let me underscore this. The only people who will be in that New Heaven and New Earth will be those who have become born again, those who have responded to the Gospel, those who have looked upon themselves honestly as sinners under the wrath of God, who have cried out to God for mercy and have thrown themselves on the mercies of God, hanging their whole life on Him as their Lord and Savior. Only saved people will enter the New Heaven and the New Earth. The Bible says outside (and outside is hell) is where mankind will be who are unsaved. They will be enduring the wrath of God in an eternity of hell. And that is where you will go if you are unsaved.

If you are not saved tonight, you are taking the greatest chance known to man. Now you may be unsaved because you really realize that to become saved means you've got to turn from your sins. It means that you've got to surrender your will to God. And for the time being you want to have the pleasures of this world. You feel that this is too great a sacrifice to make at this time. Maybe later on you are willing to give up your sins and cast your lot with Christ. Now this is really playing Russian Roulette with a vengeance, because you have absolutely no assurance that you're going to live until tomorrow morning. You are not guaranteed one more breath. What you're really saying is, as Esau of old, "Give me my mess of pottage right now, my joy right now. And I'll take my chances with eternity."

Now the trade is a fantastically bad bargain. That bowl of soup that you're having now, the pleasures that you're deriving right now, you're going to risk paying for by an eternity in hell, for these few pleasures. Now that is a very big payment to make for a few pleasures. You're taking an awful chance, hoping that you will live to enjoy these pleasures and still be able in time to come to Christ. And you have no assurance that you're going to have that time. The Bible says, "How shall ye escape if ye neglect so great salvation?" The Bible says, "Now is the acceptable time, now is the day of salvation." Don't wait. Don't walk that tightrope, taking that chance. Take your eyes off that bowl of pottage, the pleasures of this moment. It really is unimportant. Put your eyes on Heaven, and think how wonderful that is, and begin to desire Heaven with all your heart.

And as you begin to desire Heaven and eternity with the Lord Jesus Christ, an eternity where there will be no suffering or sorrow, then you're going to find that the things of this world look pretty jaded and much like nothing. And you'll begin to cry out, "Oh God, have mercy on me. I am a sinner. I don't want to come under the wrath of God. I don't want to continue this way."

The Difference Between Spirit and Soul (552A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: In I Thessalonians 5:23 it says, "And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly, and I pray God that your whole Spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of Our Lord Jesus Christ." Could you possibly explain the difference between the human spirit and the human soul?

HC: The question is, how are we to understand I Thessalonians 5:23, where it talks about your whole spirit and soul and body, being preserved blameless unto the coming of Our Lord Jesus Christ?

Actually, only in this verse and one other in the Bible do we find that it talks about the soul and Spirit and body all in one sentence. Normally the soul is a synonym for the spirit of man, or the spirit is a synonym for the soul of man. We know that the body is what goes in the grave. That's easy to understand. We know that in our soul we go to be with the Lord Jesus Christ when we die, that is, if we are saved. And that is sometimes called the spirit. But why would God use the term soul and Spirit together here?

The word spirit also can be translated breath, and breath is the evidence of life. Now both unsaved man as well as saved man has the breath of life, and that returns to God at the time that we die. However, our breath does not have uniqueness. There isn't the breath of one man as opposed to the breath of another man. Breath is simply the fact that we live, that we have life. And it is the word spirit.

And so the only thing I can think of is that God here has in view the breath, the soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of Our Lord Jesus Christ. In other words, our life is preserved and we will continue to live eternally.

CALLER: There is no real distinction.

HC: There's no Biblical distinction that I'm aware of between soul and spirit as being a substantive, unique part of human existence. Soul and spirit are used interchangeably about the spirit essence of man. The body of course is the physical or the flesh part of man. And that is all that the personality of man consists of.

CALLER: Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

The Place of the Earth in the Universe (584A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I have a question. Nowadays the trend scientifically is toward Einstein's Theory of Relativity. He was, as I guess everyone knows, a scientist born in Germany who fled Germany in, I guess, the 30's. He borrowed a lot from a man named Albert Michelson, who was born in Germany or Prussia, and was involved in the Michelson-Marley experiment, and he had written publications on the velocity of light and light waves and their uses. And there were other people. A man by the name of Hans Warbigger, who didn't have much publicity in the United States, but did in Germany, due to a particular philosophy also had an interpretation of the universe based upon what he called eternal ice.

All these people have their own points of view as to what is the universe, what governs the universe. By the way, the Michelson-Marley experiment wanted to prove the relative motion of the earth to the universe - or in those days I guess they called it the ether, or whatever it was. But I was just wondering. Your specialty is the Bible, specifically. How would you define, insofar as your understanding of the Bible is concerned, God's plan as revealed in the scriptures of the earth and its relationship to the universe? And I'll take your answer over the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you very much. A very interesting question. Actually, mankind is fascinated by this grand universe in which he finds himself. He takes his mightiest telescopes, even radio telescopes, and points them out into deep space and finds that there are galaxies of stars extending out billions of light years into space. With light traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles per second, they figure out how far that would travel in a year, and then measure that by several billions years, and you get an idea how far distant some of the stars are.

And wherever he looks, he finds billions upon billions of stars, far beyond his ability to count them. And he looks at this and he wonders, what is this universe? How did it come into being? What's going to happen in the future? He asks all kinds of questions.

Well now, it's very interesting that the Bible puts all of this into its proper perspective. We of course, being just a very tiny little individual on a very great earth, and the earth being only a very tiny little speck in our solar system, or at least within the galaxy in which our solar system is located, we look with awe and wonder at this universe.

But when we get the proper perspective and we realize that there is a God who created all of this, then we can bring the whole thing down to size. Now the Bible teaches, in Genesis 1, and throughout the Bible, that God's first concern was the earth, the earth, not the universe, not the stars, not the sun, not the moon, not anything out there, but the earth itself. And as a matter of fact, it's very significant that when they send these exploring missions out to some of the other planets – Mars and Jupiter, and Venus, and so on – we find there, as we look at those other planets, that they are altogether different from the earth. They have great ranges of temperature, they have huge storms going on, huge volcanoes, or whatever. Some are dry and barren. In no way do they give the slightest appearance of earth, with its trees and its beautiful flowers and its benign temperatures, its temperate climates, and all the things that we find on this earth. When we want to look at the jewel of the creation, we look at the earth, insofar as the material universe is concerned.

It's true that as we look at the universe we see other astounding things, like the brilliant light that comes from the stars, and so on. But insofar as the part of the universe that shines with the greatest brilliance, it is the earth itself, because of all the beauty and the marvelous interrelationships that exist here on this earth, and the fact that there is life on this earth. It's very significant that they have never found the slightest vestige of life on the moon or on Mars or on any of the other planets anywhere out there. And of course it's when you get to the question of life that you're really beginning to look at that which is exquisite beyond our imaginations. We can't have the slightest idea – we haven't the slightest idea, really, of what life is.

Now the Bible says that when God created the earth, and that was the center of His attention, He formed first of all the vegetation on this earth, after He had formed it out of the water, on the third day of creation. Then on the fourth day, almost in an offhand manner, God says, "He made the stars also," as if to say, what else is new?

Let's look at a molecule, or at an atom, of which molecules are made. And we see that they are very precise, with their protons and electrons. Mathematically they figure all the way through. They are like miniature universes. No matter how you divide the atom into smaller and smaller particles, you never come to the end of it. There's still some further division that can go on, if you have the equipment that enables you to do this. And of course it is God who created this. When He spoke and the earth came into existence, all of these fascinating forms of material existence came into being.

But the very same God who created the atom, which is so tiny that we cannot see it, and it takes thousands of them so that we actually see something with our naked eye, and we can't even see the electrons and neutrons that make up the atom. This is the very same God who spoke, and the stars came into existence, the billions of stars out in deep space. And why did God create the universe? Psalm 19:1 says, "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament (that is, the expanse of the heavens) showeth His handiwork."

You see, God is indicating His power, His creative ability. And He doesn't require billions of years, as the scientists would suggest, to do all this. He simply did this on the fourth day of creation, taking six days of twenty-four hours to create the earth and the whole universe, because God is God.

Now that's what happened 13,000 years ago, according to Biblical reckoning (I believe that can be shown.) And the Bible teaches that this universe, as mighty as it appears to us, is going to come to an end. We read in II Peter 3, and the end of the universe will be simultaneous with the end of this present earth, II Peter 3:10, "But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise. And the elements shall melt with fervent heat. The earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up."

It goes on in verse 12, "Looking for and hastening unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved. And the elements shall melt with fervent heat. Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for New Heavens and a New Earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness."

And so this grand universe, that has existed now for the same period of time, namely, 13,000 years, is going to be destroyed on the last day. And we're coming to that very rapidly. We're approaching that last day very, very rapidly. All the signs in the Bible that relate to the return of Christ and the end of the universe are beginning to develop before our eyes.

And so the duration of the universe is going to be approximately 13,000 years. Now one of the interesting facts that keeps the scientists going in their attempt to understand the universe and understand matter, understand this creation, is that they find that everything obeys very precise rules. Have you ever thought about this? The reason that scientists were able to put a man on the moon (that's a long way out there in space) or that they could send a space mission out to one of the other planets that are hundreds of thousands of miles away from here and even millions of miles away from here, the reason that they're able to do that is that everything within the universe interrelates with each other in accordance with very precise mathematical relationships, because God has created it. He has designed it. The same as if you were going to build an automobile; everything has to interrelate within that automobile. Otherwise it will not function. You just can't throw a lot of materials together and then expect to have an automobile. Or if you're going to bake a cake, you just can't go into your shelf and get a little of this and a little of that, and throw it all in a pot and then expect that a cake is going to come forth. It has to be designed. There's just a certain amount of salt, a certain amount of baking soda, or flour, or whatever else you're going to put into that which you are going to bake. And only then are you going to have a beautiful cake.

And so it is in the universe. Everything is very precisely designed by God so that there is precise interrelationships with everything else. And of course, because man's mind is patterned after the mind of God, therefore he sets out to discover this. He first of all discovers that two plus two makes four, and then he discovers that two times three makes six. And then he can go on from there and get more and more involved in his mathematical equations. And he'll find that these things begin to relate with the universe. Everything is very precise.

And so as he uncovers this rule or that law, whether it's the law of gravity or the law of something else, he is simply uncovering one of the perfectly designed laws that God has laid down in establishing, in building, in designing the universe. And of course man is very grateful. He really thinks he's done something. And that of course keeps him excited and interested to keep going even further. And so he can do more and more with the elements of this universe, as he designs computers, and so on. And with computers he can go through his equations much more quickly, so that he can cover even more and do even more with the universe.

And all of this is possible because in the first instance everything in the universe, going all the way from the smallest elements of matter to protons and electrons, going all the way through the universe to the stars themselves, they all interrelate in this very precise fashion. And the only time that they don't is when the anomalies occur because of the curse that is upon this universe, upon this earth. It is under the curse of sin. It has been cursed of God, because of man's sin. And therefore there will be the viruses and the weeds and the thorns and the anomalies that develop, that don't follow a normal pattern. Otherwise everything will, the basic rules can be uncovered.

But when man comes along with his theories that the earth is four and a half billion years old, or the universe is thirteen billion years old, or whatever it may be, if it is contrary to the Bible (and of course those theories are), then you know that man has gone down a blind path. His assumptions are so erroneous that his conclusions are also so erroneous, and he should start all over again.

Actually, if scientists would start with the Bible, and I'm firmly convinced of this, if scientists would start with the Bible and try to uncover all the information they possibly could from the Bible, recognizing it is the Word of God, and use that as their foundation, and then in the light of that begin to examine the evidence they're finding, their production of new information would go far more rapidly than it has.

For example, they wouldn't be fussing around with this idea of four and a half billion years. They would realize they have to fit everything within a 13,000 year period, and then lots and lots of enigmas and problems that they can't solve would begin to fit. For example, they wonder why the floor of the ocean is so bare of sediment. If the earth has been around for millions and even billions of years and if the continents erode because of the action of ice and weather, and so on, and the erosion materials go down through the streams into the ocean, and finally when the ocean water is saturated they precipitate out as sediments on the bottom of the ocean, you would think that there would be vast quantities of sediment on the ocean floor.

But the fact is that, except along the shorelines, most of the ocean floor is relatively bare of sediments. And so scientists speculate and cogitate and meditate, and come up with schemes and theories, like platonic, namely, that the ocean floor is divided into huge plates that gradually slip under the continental masses, and thus they clean themselves of sediments, and that's why we have the bare ocean floor. Well, they wouldn't have to come up with these speculative ideas at all if they would recognize that the earth is only 13,000 years old. How much sediment would they expect to find on the ocean floor, with continental weathering going along like this?

And then when they examine the amount of elements in the ocean water, they would find that they began to approximate exactly what they would expect with a world that is only about 13,000 years of age.

Well, so much for that little bit of an essay.

THE HOLY SPIRIT

When Did the Holy Spirit First Make Himself Known? (010A)

CALLER: At what time did the Holy Spirit make Himself known to the world?

HC: The Holy Spirit made Himself known at creation. We read in Genesis 1:2: "The Spirit brooded upon the face of the waters." The Holy Spirit, who is Eternal God, was already present at creation, and repeatedly we find references in the Old Testament to the Holy Spirit. We find that the Holy Spirit came upon Saul, to qualify him to be a king. We find that He came upon wicked Balaam, to qualify him to speak about blessings from God. And this was back in around the year 1409 BC.

The Holy Spirit spoke through Noah, the Bible says in the New Testament. This was back in 4990 BC. So the Holy Spirit has been present throughout time in the world. He is Eternal God.

Now God the Holy Spirit made Himself manifest in a very special way at Pentecost, back in AD 33, fifty days after the cross, when He began His work, which was actually a two-pronged work. First of all, He qualified every born again believer to be a witness. Beginning at that point in time, every born again believer received that ability, to be a witness. This was not so before that time. Only occasionally God so qualified a person. And secondly, at that time it was God's purpose that the Holy Spirit would bring the Word of God into power, so that it would free men from the shackles of sin. And so we see this very dramatically at Pentecost, when 3000 are saved. The power of the Gospel became manifest in the new and wonderful way that had not been so to the same degree before.

The Work of the Holy Spirit (013B)

CALLER: I'd like to know, how does the Holy Spirit work?

HC: The Holy Spirit is Eternal God. The Holy Spirit has always been present on the earth. He is active in every aspect of God's program. He was active at creation, Genesis 1:2: "The Spirit brooded upon the face of the waters." The Holy Spirit came upon various kings of Israel, to qualify them as king. The Holy Spirit came upon saved as well as unsaved men, so that they might declare God's Word. Balaam would be an example of an unsaved man. The prophets would be examples of saved men.

The Holy Spirit restrains sin in the world. God keeps mankind from being more sinful than they are. Otherwise mankind would destroy themselves. And then, particularly in relationship to the born again believer, the Holy Spirit cleanses us from our sins. He is the One Who takes the shed blood of Christ, as it were, and applies it to our lives. He is the One who washes away our sins, as the Father draws us to Himself. And then the Holy Spirit indwells us and fills us so that we are qualified to be a witness. This is all the activity of the Holy Spirit.

It is the Holy Spirit who is the One who gives us various gifts, so that we can be used of the Lord. He gives us the gift of faith, so that we might believe on Him. He gives us the gift, if we have it, to be a preacher, or an evangelist, or whatever. These are all part of the activity of eternal God in the Person of the Holy Spirit.

CALLER: Is it your conscience that bothers you after you read the Word of God, or what is it?

HC: Well, God works through our conscience. And this is because God's laws are written on our hearts. If we are saved, or if we are in the process of being saved, God Himself will prick our conscience and apply that Word to our heart. It's the Word itself that becomes the Living Word. As we read the Word, it's a two-edged sword, and it pierces right into our hearts and exposes us. It cuts us open, so that we are face to face with our sin. And because we were created in the image of God, and therefore we know intuitively that this is sin. And then if God has given us the faith to draw us to Himself, we'll become very sensitive to this sin, and exercised by it, so that we will begin to call out to God for help.

CALLER: I still don't understand how the Holy Spirit works, though.

HC: You're thinking in relationship to salvation? The Holy Spirit is Eternal God. Let's get that before us, number one. He is Eternal God, and God deals with mankind. The Holy Spirit restrains sin in natural man. Otherwise man would destroy himself. "Out of the heart of man comes murder, adultery, fornication, thefts," and so on. And unless God the Holy Spirit actually kept the lid on, so to speak, we'd all become Stalins and Hitlers in the shortest possible time.

The Holy Spirit also is the Person of the Godhead who is used of God to apply the Word of God to our lives, to make us sensitive to it and to be conscious of it. It is God the Father who actually draws us to Christ.

CALLER: Well, could it be like an inner voice or something like that?

HC: Well, God does not articulate to us except through the Word, but when we get under conviction, when we really begin to have a real sensitivity in our soul that we're sinners, and that we're under the wrath of God, this is because the Holy Spirit has put it there. He has begun to apply God's Word to our life.

Who is the Holy Spirit? (093D)

CALLER: Good evening. Would you please explain what the Holy Spirit is? And is the Holy Spirit with you all the time, whether you're good or bad?

HC: The question is raised: Who is the Holy Spirit? The Holy Spirit is Eternal God. God manifests Himself as one God, but He also manifests Himself as three Persons. And this is a divine mystery, which no man can unravel. Our finite minds are not capable of understanding an infinite God, and certainly not this particular aspect of Infinite God.

But while there is one God, yet God reveals Himself to us as God the Father, who sent the Son, the Lord Jesus Christ, who is also Eternal God in every sense of the word. And He also reveals Himself as the Holy Spirit, or as the Spirit of God, or as the Spirit of Christ. And the Holy Spirit is Eternal God, although He is a separate Person from the Son or from the Father.

Now the Holy Spirit has been present in the world from the very beginning. We read about Him in Genesis 1:2: "The Spirit brooded upon the face of the waters." We read about Him as He qualified Balaam to prophesy. Balaam was a very wicked man, and yet he prophesied very beautifully things of God, because the Holy Spirit came upon him. You can read about this in Numbers 23.

The Holy Spirit came upon an unsaved king, Saul, so that Saul was qualified to be a wise king, at least to some degree, a wise king over Israel. The Holy Spirit was active in the Old Testament in speaking through the prophets, through Noah, or through Isaiah, as they declared the Word of God.

The Holy Spirit was busy writing the Bible. The Holy Spirit spoke through men of old, and so what they wrote down became our Bible. This was all the activity of God the Holy Spirit.

Now the Father finally sent the Son, the Lord Jesus Christ. And this is where the second Person of the Godhead puts in His appearance, when He was born as a baby. And He went to the cross for our sins, and then He returned to the Father.

And then the work of the Holy Spirit began in earnest. And the Bible speaks of the Holy Spirit being poured out, or the Holy Spirit being sent. This is language to indicate that the program of God to save the world, to save people from every nation, began in earnest. And so, beginning with Pentecost, every born again believer was qualified by the Holy Spirit to be a witness. He was filled by the Holy Spirit. This was the way he was qualified to be a witness.

And the Holy Spirit is busy breaking down the hard hearts of those who are being saved. Now the Holy Spirit is also active in restraining sin in the lives of the unsaved, so that they will not be so sinful, which is their basic nature. And such utter sinfulness would make them destroy themselves. Actually God the Holy Spirit is restraining sin in their lives.

So the Holy Spirit is very much present throughout the world. He's present within us. He fills us so that we are qualified to be a witness. He is busy in the world dealing with the unsaved, both in saving them as well as restraining sin in their lives even if they are not saved. God the Holy Spirit is Eternal God, just as much as God the Father or God the Son, who is the Lord Jesus Christ is Eternal God.

GENEALOGIES

Are Americans and Britons Descendants of Israel? (035B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I just wanted to say in response to the last caller. I kind of had a head knowledge of God, and I didn't really have a personal experience with Him until He brought sickness into my life. At the time I didn't know what was happening until after it was all over. But I found out that it brought me closer to Him. So He does work that way.

HC: He really does.

CALLER: It might be kind of frightening at first, but after awhile you look back on it, and it's pretty wonderful.

My question tonight is about the old theory that Americans and the British are descendants of the Israelites.

HC: There's not a figment of truth in it.

CALLER: But where does that idea come from?

HC: I have no idea. I have no idea where any man gets any idea. You know, our minds are as prolific in our imagination as you want to name. With our minds we can go to the moon, we can go to the stars, we can dream up all kinds of things. And if we dwell on an idea long enough, pretty soon we begin to believe it. And if someone else has had the idea before, and they wrote about it, then we're more convinced than ever that it may be true.

Ideas ultimately come out of our minds, of course. But there isn't the slightest possibility that this is true. This would be absolutely and totally foreign to the Bible.

CALLER: Have they ever traced the descendants of the tribes of Israel? Where did they disperse to?

HC: Well, yes. The Bible indicates that up until the year 722 BC we have the nation of Israel as it existed in the land of Palestine. It was about two million strong approximately, two to three million. And it consisted of two nations, the nation of Judah to the south, and the nation of Israel, comprised of the ten tribes, to the north.

In 722 BC the Assyrians came and destroyed the northern kingdom of the ten tribes. Now some they took captive into Babylon, some they left there to till the fields, and so on. And they also imported Assyrians to live there. And these became a mixed race, called the Samaritans. They still existed at the time that Jesus came.

And some left the northern area and came into the land of Judah and became part of the two tribes. So you have remnants of all the twelve tribes with the two tribes. And so that then became Israel, from the year 722 BC until 587 BC.

Then in that year, that nation, the nation of Israel as it was not constituted, predominantly of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin with a smattering or remnant from the other ten tribes, was destroyed by the Babylonians. And some were taken captive into Babylon. Many of course were killed. And again, some were left as the poor of the land, right in the land of Palestine.

Then, beginning in 539 BC under Cyrus the Mede, and later on in 458 BC under the reign of Artaxerxes, the king of the Medes and the Persians, some of the Jews from any of the twelve tribes went back into the land of Palestine. And gradually, from this, the nation of Israel was rebuilt until it existed as the nation of Israel as it was in Jesus' day. At that time, of course, they had drifted under the heel of the Roman Empire.

Then in 70 AD the Jewish nation was destroyed by the Roman Empire. The fact is, in Jerusalem itself, according to the secular historians, something like more than a million Jews were killed. And so the nation was pretty well annihilated. And the balance were just dispersed into the nations. So they have continued to exist until the very present day, except for those who returned to Israel beginning in 1948.

Now the Europeans, and of course most Americans, because most of them come from Europe — either from England or Holland or Hungary or Spain, etc. — probably have their genealogical line completely separate all the way back to Noah. The Bible speaks of Noah, back in the year 4990 BC, that he had three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth. Now we know the Jewish nation comes from Shem. We know that the Babylonians, the Assyrians, the Canaanites, the Egyptians and the people of Africa come from Ham. But the coastland peoples were the descendants of Japheth. And in all probability most of the Europeans came from Japheth.

And so the probability of England or Americans or Europeans being related to the twelve tribes, or the ten so called lost tribes (they're not really lost, because this is a figure of speech that people use, not knowing what the Bible declares) is just about nil.

CALLER: So they're not really lost.

HC: No. They've just been integrated into the nation of Israel and severely decimated by the judgments that God has brought against them.

CALLER: I think also that some people that the word Britain in Hebrew means "Son of the Covenant," or something like that.

HC: Well, I wouldn't pay any attention to that because it's not biblical.

CALLER: I have a friend who just got into that, and he's been telling me a lot about it. And I'm not that much of a Bible scholar, but I can tell that a lot of it's groundless. Did you not write something about this?

HC: No. I never am interested in writing about other religions or cults or gospels. I have written a couple of books on the Bible itself. But I just feel that it's not our job to go through life lambasting others. It's our job to positively offer what the Gospel declares, and let God bring the conviction in the heart.

UNIDENTIFIED FLYING OBJECTS

The Question of UFO's (226A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. I have a question with relationship to UFO's. It's pretty much accepted that there is something there. But as to exactly what it is, maybe no one knows. But it seems that there is something there. I was wondering if you could possibly relate UFO's to the Bible.

HC: All right. I'll try. The question that is raised is concerning UFO's. The observation is made that there seems to be plenty of evidence that there is really something there. Does the Bible have anything to say about this?

First of all, let's try to decide, why are people so interested in UFO's? You see, UFO's are a product of the world in which we live. We live in a world that is fundamentally convinced that the beginning of this earth and the universe was through an evolutionary process. You can pick up almost any piece of scientific literature that deals with the beginning of the world, or the nature of the world, and it will take as a fact, it will assume as a fact the idea of evolution.

It's really amazing, when you read some of the scientific journals and discover this to be so. There's not even a suggestion of a creative process or of the fact that there was a God who created it all. Now of course the reason for assuming evolution to be a fact is that man intuitively does not want to face the idea of a God who will judge him, because he knows deep in his heart that there is a Judgment Day. He knows there is a God. But if he can somehow convince himself that there is no Creator, that this world all came into being by itself, over the last eons of time, then somehow, if there is a God, He's so far removed from this creation there's nothing to worry about.

More than that, if this world has been around for millions of years, then it is probably true that it will be around for more millions years. And this means that if there is a Judgment Day, it's way beyond anything that we will ever have to worry about. All of this is subconscious, but nevertheless it is there.

Now because of the evolutionary idea (and it's firmly imbedded into all of our scientific literature), mankind has become convinced that if this sun, which is our sun, with its 9 planets rotating around it, had nine planets, then amongst the billions upon billions of stars that are found in deep space, which appear to be suns just like our sun, you would think that many many of them would also have evolved with planets revolving around them. That certainly is logical, isn't it? If our sun evolved with nine planets revolving around it, then certainly these other billions of stars to a high degree would have planets revolving around them.

Now of the nine planets revolving around the sun, if one of them evolved in such a way that it was able to support life, and actually became an environment that fostered life, so that we have our present life situation on this earth if that occurred to this planet, in our solar system, then the odds are very very great that the same thing could have happened again and again and again our in deep space, amongst the other suns that are in deep space.

And so it is therefore entirely logical to believe that there must be life out there. It is absolutely logical that there is life out there, if we can believe that our earth evolved, through a process of evolution, by blind chance, which incidentally is the most fantastic idea that man could ever concoct, because it is so far from the truth. But that's another matter.

And this, incidentally, is why so much money is spent, or at least one of the main reasons why so much money is spent, to go to the moon, and to send space probes out to Mars, and so on. Man is desperately trying to prove what he believes is a fact, that there is life out there. The interesting thing is that with all of the millions and millions of dollars that have been spent they haven't found the slightest suggestion of life in deep space, neither on the moon nor on Mars nor any other place. There just is none.

Now when you have a philosophical climate that assumes, as a fact, that there is life out there, then you've got a very fertile environment in which to see

UFO's. And this comes to the second aspect of UFO's. You see, man's mind is very tricky. If you go into a circus and go to the side show, and you watch a magician, you believe you see certain things, because your mind has been guided to make you believe that you're seeing certain things. Now you didn't really see certain things that you thought you saw. But your mind tells you that you did see them. This is of course the whole foundation of the magician. We think we see something, but we're not seeing quite what we think we see. Our minds are very tricky. We can be deceived very easily.

And so when we establish a climate, when we develop a climate where all kinds of people are convinced that there are people in outer space somewhere, and all of the Buck Rogers, Space Patrol, and novels, etc. all add to this kind of idea, pretty soon it is easy for people to begin to see literal evidence of this. And this is where the UFO's come into play.

First of all, there is a lot of phenomena that has a natural explanation, such as marsh gas, or weather balloons, and so on and so on. But people viewing these things have become obsessed with the idea that there are people in outer space. And so their mind says, "I have seen an unidentified flying object.

More than that, even though they don't see anything, they can be convinced they saw something. Our minds are very tricky. If you believe in something long enough, pretty soon you're going to see it. Now for people who believe that there's life in outer space, when they read reports of a sighting here or a sighting there, all of this is giving them further conviction. They're more certain than ever that there are unidentified flying objects. And so they are more and more ready to see one at a moment's notice. And indeed, before long they will. They may even see it with little green men, and they may even have an experience of going aboard one of the UFO's.

I think that a lot of these reports where we read that someone has seen little green figures, or has gone aboard a UFO, or whatever, are from people who really believe that they really had this experience, that they really did see these little green figures, or whatever they may be. So tricky is our mind.

And so the more there is written about it, the more convinced some become. Now the interesting thing is that when it comes to something really substantive, that is, where there is actually a UFO, which somebody can touch and which somebody can photograph, etc., these things never happen. It is always just barely there, just a little bit of evidence. "Oh, we saw something on a radar scope," or "We saw something here," or "We saw something there." But there is never anything that is really of flesh and blood variety, if you know what I mean. There's nothing that has real substance, because all of this is in the minds of men.

Now this, of course, offers a very fertile field for Satan to work, also. Satan is the great deceiver. And he of course is anxious to keep people from thinking about the Lord Jesus Christ, and thinking about the God of creation, from thinking about the Bible as being the final authority. And therefore, Satan can easily continue the deception and cause people to be more convinced than ever that they really have seen something.

Now the Bible of course teaches that the earth was created about 13,000 years ago. And the stars were created on the fourth day. So they can't be over 13,000 years old. The Bible teaches that one of the first things that's going to happen when Christ returns is that the stars will fall to the earth. The universe will begin to collapse.

There is no life out there at all, none whatsoever. It's all in man's mind, altogether. And if we place our trust firmly in the Bible, you're not going to see any UFO's, none at all. You can't possibly see a UFO, if your trust is in the Word of God, because you're not going to be deluded by your own mind. You're not going to be deluded by all the reports that you read.

Well, thank you for that good question.

Are UFO's Somehow Related to Angelic Activity? (247C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I was calling about UFO's. Could there be a possibility of these beings from other places being angels from God?

HC: The question is raised, "Is it possible that UFO's are somehow related to angelic activity?" We know that they cannot be angels. The angels are ministering spirits sent by God on behalf of those who are being saved. And angels will not violate God's rules. God has laid down His rules that the Bible is the sourcebook of truth. We are to find God's will in the Word of God, ever since the Bible has been completed. So it cannot be angel activity.

Now it is possible that Satan, in his deceptive program, might cause people to see what they think is a UFO, even as he causes a medium, let's say, to think that she is seeing the spirit of a departed dead, let's say, or like the Witch of Endor thought she was seeing Samuel. Actually, all she was seeing was an apparition that was concocted by an evil spirit. And so this possibly could happen. Yes, this could happen.

But that doesn't mean that they are being from outer space, or that we're being invaded, or that they really have substance. You see, evil spirits are spirit beings, and there is no substance there insofar as this world is concerned.

CALLER: I believe they are, myself. And you said there are no references to UFO's in the Bible. And I can see quite a few. There are many stars that do strange things, like the star that led the wise men for so long. That was rather ironic a thing for a star to do. There was the pillar of fire that led the Jews out of Egypt, and led them to the Promised Land. There were quite a few references to pillars of fire, to stars, in those ancient days. Men didn't know what to write down. They had to write down what they saw, or what they thought they were. How would they know what to explain, other than a light of some sort, a cloud?

HC: Your observation is that since the Bible speaks about Elijah going to Heaven in a chariot of fire, or in a whirlwind with a chariot of fire, and the Bible speaks of the pillar of fire in the wilderness, and so on, that these possibly were references to UFO's, and the people who wrote the Bible didn't know quite what to write down.

Now right at this point we've got the sixty-four dollar question: Is the Bible the Word of God, or is it not? Is the Bible the work of ancient men, who didn't really know whereof they were writing, and could not really say what they'd like to say? Or is the Bible the infallible Word of God and absolutely trustworthy in all that it says? In other words, when it speaks about a pillar of fire, was it a pillar of fire? Or was it something else? And when the Bible speaks of Elijah going to Heaven in a whirlwind, with a chariot of fire, were they these things or were they something else?

Now that's where the big question is. If the Bible is going to be the Bible, and it's going to be the Word of God, then we must accept these statements to be what they say. If these writers didn't know what they were writing about, and they were actually writing about UFO's, then we have no Bible. Then we have absolutely no salvation. We have absolutely no salvation. We might as well close shop insofar as looking at the Bible as the inspired Word of God. We might as well start searching for truth some other place, and hope that somewhere out there in the wild woolly world there's truth. Either we take the Bible, and the whole Bible, as the infallible Word of God, or we have to scrap it. You can't take part of it.

CALLER: I am a born again Christian, and I definitely believe it because God told me so. It was my first experience with God, and I really didn't believe for sure. You know, I thought maybe He was dead or something, or didn't care about us. And He told me that there were angels, and that's when I believed in God.

HC: How did He tell you there were angels?

CALLER: Two and a half years ago there was a big UFO thing going on, and that scared me. And I was scared to death. And in my first sincere prayer of my whole life, I asked God for help, because I was scared. And He told me, "Don't be afraid. I am with you."

HC: How did He tell you?

CALLER: And He said, "They are angels."

HC: Now let me ask you another question then. How do you know that was a voice from God?

CALLER: Because I was immediately at peace. And I had called out for God to answer me. And God would not have let anyone else answer but Him.

HC: How do you know God would not have let anyone else answer? When God has given us His Word . . .

CALLER: He's not going to let Satan answer.

HC: But you see, here's the problem. If God has given me His Word, and He's given me eyes to see, and He's given me the Bible to read, and it's in plain black and white what He wants me to know, and now I repudiate that Word, and I don't read the Word, and I cry out to God, "Oh God, show me, show me," effectively I'm saying, "Look. I don't trust the Word. I have to get some information." And God of course has given us His Word. He wants us to go to the Word, and He may just stand aside and let someone else give us the information.

CALLER: I have gone to the Word, and I have looked in the Word. And I can't find anything that says No.

HC: You see, this brings me to a second observation. Because you have effectively said that the Bible is the Word of God, and you've also said that this voice that you've heard is the Word of God, therefore now you are interpreting the Bible not only by the Bible itself but also by this experience you had where you heard this voice. And of course then you're going to come up with different answers as to what the Bible means, because you have a different foundation. You have a different source of truth than if you had only the Bible.

Any time we add to the Bible, let's say that there's also a source of divine truth over here, or over there, then, from that point on, we're not going to get the same answers from the Bible anymore. If we limit our belief to the fact that the divine Word is confined to the Bible, and let it alone be its own divine interpreter, then we'll come to one set of conclusions. We're going to find our answers in one direction. But if we're going to add, and say that there's also divine truth over here, then our understanding of the Bible is going to come up with different answers. And so I can understand then why you are ready to believe that maybe the pillar of fire wasn't a pillar of fire.

Now I read the Bible in the light of everything the Bible says, and I'm convinced it was a pillar of fire. There isn't one word in the Bible that says it was not a pillar of fire. And therefore I know it was a pillar of fire, because the Bible says so. And the same with Elijah going up in a whirlwind. There's nothing else that detracts from that.

But if I was going to read the Bible, and say, "Well, it's the divine Word, but I also have other information over here which I think is divine. If I had an experience like that, I would absolutely disregard it. I would cry out to God for mercy." How is it possible that even the suggestion came into my mind that I could hear divine truth from a source outside of the Bible? I would want nothing to do with it.

I know that when I read the Bible, I absolutely cannot be coned into some direction I should not go. I know that, because the Bible is from God. I also know that the Bible teaches, particularly in II Corinthians 11, that Satan goes about as an angel of light. And as an angel of light, it's easy to think about Satan out there in the secular world, in witchcraft and ouija boards, and seances, and what have you. That's easy to see. But when God says that Satan goes about as an angel of light, that is, he comes looking as holy as God Himself, and with the Gospel of God Himself, because that's what an angel of light is, then I've really got to be on guard, and I know that the only authoritative source of divine truth where I'll never be betrayed is the Bible itself.

CALLER: Thank you, Brother Camping.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Have You Really Studied the Subject of UFO's? (562A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I heard you speak the other night with reference to flying saucers. The impression I got was that you think that it's somewhat of a highly unlikely manifestation, as far as extra-terrestrials are concerned. Was I correct?

HC: Yes, you are correct. I'm very convinced there are no flying saucers.

CALLER: Okay. What I wanted to know is, have you studied the subject, or have you read much of the evidence concerning this subject, like the Condo report, for example, which covers many of the UFO sightings?

HC: I haven't read in detail about this. I do know this, that nobody has ever found a nut or a bolt from one of these flying saucers, so-called flying saucers. Nobody has ever really taken a valid photograph of one. But aside from that, I do read the Bible. And the Bible tells us something about this universe. Now the whole phenomenon of flying saucers is spawned by the fact that scientists have been saying now for a long time that this world is billions of years old, and it has developed by the process of evolution. And since our sun has nine planets, I believe, going around it, and since there are billions upon billions of other suns in the universe, certainly many of them must have planets around them.

And since presumably one of the planets going around our sun developed through the billions of years so that it was able to produce life, as has occurred here on earth, certainly by any laws of probability at all there must be many other planets some place out there that have produced life. And if there is life out there, then certainly the odds are that some of that life could be far more intelligent than our life, or could have progressed far faster scientifically than our planet has, and therefore it is logical to assume that there might be visitations from out there to this planet earth.

Now this I believe is the foundation, the thinking that has produced this whole phenomenon of flying saucers. And when scientists of note, scientists who write in some of the most prestigious scientific magazines of the world today, write about the possibility of life out there, then certainly it is logical, it is not abnormal at all, to contemplate the visitation of that life to this planet.

However, when we read the Bible, we find that all of this kind of speculation is absolutely impossible. The Bible indicates that this earth is about 13,000 years old, and the universe is no older than the earth. The Bible details for us in Genesis 1 that the stars and the sun and the moon were created on the 4th day. And it details the fact that the whole universe therefore was created in 6 days. And from the language of the Bible we know that they were 6 days 24 hours in length, about 13,000 years ago.

Secondly, the Bible indicates that the whole universe came under the curse of sin, and when Christ comes again on the last day, which could happen in the next decade or two, if we're that close to the end of time (and I really believe that we are), then the Bible indicates that the universe also will be destroyed. The elements will burn with fervent heat. Now therefore the Bible indicates that the universe, all those stars out there, have a life span equal to the earth, or about 13,000 years. And nowhere in the Bible does God intimate or suggest that any life was created out there.

As a matter of fact, after spending literally millions of dollars in space exploration, even sending men to the moon, to try to prove or find some evidence that there is life out there, thus far scientists have not found the slightest, not even the slightest suggestion of life out in deep space, because there is none. Nowhere is this suggested in the Bible. And so you can listen to these scientists, and all that they say sounds very fine and very plausible and very possible. But the Bible says no, it's an impossibility. It just doesn't fly at all.

And so when people talk about flying saucers or visitors from outer space, I say no, that's impossible because there is no life out there. And so then, knowing that our minds are as tricky as they are when you watch a magician pull a rabbit out of a hat, you know the rabbit wasn't in the hat, but you saw him pull it out of the hat. And so your mind and your eyes aren't doing very well right at that point. You are seeing things and believing things that you know could not have happened. And so the same is true with any area where we begin to really devote our attention and become obsessed with it. We're going to begin to see things and believe things that really are not true.

CALLER: I agree with you completely on that, and I also believe, as you say, that the scientists try to make things sound very attractive and very convincing. I believe that's especially true where they say that the universe was created by what the scientists call the "big bang." I'm sure you've heard that. I disagree with that, because I believe God did create the universe. With reference to our universe, it's true that it would be as old as this planet. But there are also other universes beyond this universe.

HC: Now when you say that there are universes beyond this universe, the Bible speaks only about the universe. And when they are looking out into deep space, they see just an unending number of stars out there. That is the universe. Now when you say there are universes beyond this universe, where do you read that in the Bible? Or where can you get that from?

CALLER: I'm not quoting that from the Bible.

HC: All right. But you see, when scientists say there are universes beyond universes (although I've never heard that expression quite that way), all they're saying is that no matter how far they peer out into space they find the evidence of God's creation. And God can just as easily (because God is God) speak and there are billions of molecules or atoms or electrons or protons in a drop of water as He speak and create billions of star clusters out in space. But it's all the same universe, you see.

CALLER: It's all the same universe, that's true. Now as far as the stars are concerned, I want to bring up a really interesting case. This is about a New Hampshire couple, Barney and Betty Hill. Now some people say, "Oh yes, I've heard that name before." And some may say, "Who are they?" Barney and Betty Hill were enroute home from some friends' place, and they were abducted, or taken aboard this craft, this alien craft from wherever. Now what makes the story so conclusive, or you might say, so indisputable, is the events that happened on the craft. They were brought into what they described as an examining room. They were both put on what they thought were like large operating tables, and they were examined, physically. Some were taking skin scrapings, bits of hair, and they were put into little plastic bags and put aside. And later one of the aliens was showing Mrs. Hill a map aboard the craft.

Now why I'm saying this is so conclusive is this. In 1963, under hypnotic suggestion (they had gone to a psychiatrist because they were having deep-rooted problems, physically and mentally, and they were going through deep depressions at this time; they couldn't understand what was happening to them, because when they left they were told that they would not remember anything that happened to them at all, so at this time they were seeing a psychiatrist so they could understand what was going on, like I said, there were a lot of deep-rooted anxieties, and there were also a few hours of time that had been missed, they couldn't understand where this time had gone), so in 1963 under hypnotic suggestion, Betty Hill drew from memory the map shown to her aboard the space craft. The astronomers became fascinated, for what if the map corresponded to a pattern of real stars from an alien viewpoint?

Now the astronomers reasoned that the majority of star systems likely to have life-supporting planets were located in the obscure southern constellation of Verticular. Yet three stars in the cluster were unknown until 1969. No astronomers on earth knew their position in 1963. But that same year Betty Hill drew a map which contained these undiscovered stars. The astronomers at Ohio State University requested that a computer put them in the correct position, out beyond the incredible double star system of Zatar Verticular I and Zatar Verticular II, which is 220 trillion miles, 37 light years away from earth, looking towards our sun. Now what is really fascinating is that the computer duplicated, with virtually no variations, the map of Betty Hill.

HC: You see, first of all we've got to decide, what is the authority? And the Bible is the authority. And the Bible absolutely negates any possibility of life in deep space. That is an impossibility.

Number two, we must remember that there is a spirit world. And it is possible that Satan can mix up these things. You know, when people talk about ESP, when they talk about occult activity of one kind or another, Satan is always at the bottom of it, because he is the prince of the powers of the air. And so he can confuse situations and make men believe this or believe that. And of course secular psychiatrists or secular scientists don't recognize Satan. They have no idea about these things.

It's very significant to me that a lot of people who are involved in flying saucers and unidentified flying objects also look upon this to a high degree as some kind of a religious experience. Or it becomes very close to a religious experience in one way or another. And it could well be that Satan capitalizes on this and helps to confuse the issue.

But regardless of whatever report you might read, you must remember that if you trust what somebody has written, first of all you don't know who the reporter is, you don't know whether he's exaggerating, you don't know whether he's given you absolutely all the truth. The fact is, he doesn't know all the truth. No one does. And yet it can be written in a very plausible fashion. But I for one would pay absolutely no attention to it. I know that that is an impossibility.

And there are many clever writers today who are able to write in such a way that you can hardly know where truth is any longer. But that's why it's so wonderful to have the Bible, because with the Bible we have the framework of truth. And any time you start reading some science fiction of this nature, and you discover that it's going outside of that framework of truth established by the Bible, then you know you're being taken. You're either being taken by Satan, who is spinning a lie in somebody's life through some kind of occult activity, or you're being taken just by the normal deceitfulness of man. Or you're being taken by your own mind, because your own mind is not clearly seeing things.

But the Bible always is the framework. It is the authority, and the Bible would have to say no, that whole story is absolutely implausible. There is no life out in deep space. There was not that kind of a contact made. That's an impossibility. And I'll buy the Bible any day. I'll accept the Bible's authority any day over against what I read in somebody's magazine, or what testimony somebody's giving on a TV program, or whatever.

CALLER: To tell you the truth now, if it came down to a thing of what truth I would accept, I'd accept the Bible first, before anything else.

HC: All right. Then what you should do is very carefully read the Bible again and again, and spend a lot less time reading this other thing. In fact, I've learned this in my life. Many years ago, when I was really working very hard on this matter of signs and wonders, and some of the other gospels that were developing so very rapidly in the world in our day, I read a lot of material of this nature, books dealing with the occult in one way or another. And I finally began to discover that this was a very unwise thing to do. And I no longer read any of this at all. I will have nothing at all to do with it. As far as anything that deals with the occult or supernatural activity, the only book I want to read is the Bible, because unfortunately, when you read that kind of material, ultimately you are eulogizing Satan. You are giving credit to him. And he dotes on that kind of attention. And the focal point is moved away from Christ.

Now the marvelous thing about reading the Bible is that there God clearly puts on display the nature of Satan, what he is and what he can do, and so on. And yet He shows him forth in the context that is the proper context, as a defeated foe, with Jesus Christ being the one who receives all the honor and the glory. And therefore, if you're at all interested in any kind of this wild speculation, stick with the Bible, and don't read that other material. All it'll do is clutter your mind with a lot of things that are worthless.

CALLER: The way I feel about it, I don't intend to lose sight of what I have come to. In other words, I won't get carried away with it. But as you said about reading this, this was not something that was written by a writer. This is a true story of a couple. Now I saw the woman on a TV show.

HC: But you have to remember that people, for the attention they receive, or because they are self-deceived, what you're really saying is, you saw someone on a "talk" show who was talking about an experience they had, and you would believe that rather than the Bible. No, you're not saying that. You said, I'd rather believe the Bible. But the fact is, where the rubber meets the road, that when you face the question, the woman on TV or the Bible, you're ready to buy what the woman says on TV. And frankly, if I heard that same thing on TV, I'd say, nonsense. I don't buy it. I don't believe it. I don't know what happened to her, but I don't believe it, because it's contrary to the Bible. And I don't accept it for a moment.

There are all kinds of people, you see, who are self-deceived. And I just don't want to be conned by anybody. I trust the Bible. When I read it in the Bible, then I know that I've got really solid ground, and nobody can deceive me.

CALLER: I understand that, but the only reason I say that this case stands out above all is not so much because of what she said, but only because of the fact that in the map that she drew she...

HC: You see, you're still listening to what she said and what others are saying. And so you still have to face the question. Are you going to believe this whole yarn because it is so plausible and because it has so much authority, and because of this and because of that and the other thing? Or are you going to believe the Bible? And if you're ready to believe this other because they've taken you in, fine. That's your privilege to do, but then you're not believing the Bible in my judgment.

If the Bible says that this universe is 13,000 years old and that it's going to be destroyed by fire on the last day, and God has made no provision for the salvation, nor has He discussed anybody out there, then I know there is no life out there. And so any time somebody comes to me, regardless of how authentic it may appear, or regardless of the proofs they may offer, I'll say no, that isn't possible. I may not know why it's not possible, I may not be able to put my finger on where they are self-deceived, but I know that on the bottom line it is not true. It absolutely is not true, because it does not agree with the scriptural evidence. The Bible is my authority.

And that's the way we have to go through life, if we're going to let the Bible be our authority.

CHAPTER 8 – END TIME PROPHECY

GENERAL

Why is the Tribe of Dan Missing in Revelation 7? (010B)

CALLER: Good evening, Mr. Camping. My question deals with the twelve tribes of Israel, as originally named in the Book of Genesis, Chapter 8. My question concerns Chapter 7 of the Book of Revelation, where it speaks of the twelve,000 representing each of the twelve tribes, with the exclusion of Dan and the inclusion of Manasseh, which differs from the original twelve. I was just wondering what happened to Dan, and why is Manasseh substituted?

HC: And you might ask one other question: Why is Ephraim not named, and Joseph is named instead of Ephraim?

CALLER: Well, I was going back to the original. Joseph was one of the original twelve, and at one point Ephraim and Manasseh were mentioned. Levi was left out because he became a priest and he was restored back in Revelation. But the only difference in Revelation 7, from the tabulation in Genesis, is Manasseh in place of Dan. And so I know there have been these changes along, and I was wondering what happened to Dan.

HC: Well, let me say this. First of all, in every naming of the tribes, you will always find that one is not named. Sometimes it will be the tribe of Simeon that's not named. Sometimes it's the tribe of Levi that's not named. In this case it's the tribe of Dan that's not named. And the reason for this is that there were actually thirteen tribes. The half-tribe of Ephraim and the half-tribe of Manasse eventually become noted as full tribes, but God is constantly emphasizing the number twelve. And therefore, in every enumeration you'll find twelve tribes named. That's the first reason, because God is focusing on the number twelve, which is a symbolical number to indicate the fullness of God's people, or the fullness of the church, even as in the New Testament we have twelve apostles.

Now secondly, both the tribe of Ephraim and the tribe of Dan (and Dan especially, which I'll speak more about in a moment), but in one sense Ephraim and Dan were twins, in that they were the locations of the original worship of other gods.

When the ten tribes separated from the tribe of Judah in 931 BC, upon the death of Solomon, then wicked Jeroboam was their king. He raised up altars at Bethel, which was in the area of the tribe of Ephraim, and at Dan, which was in the area of the tribe of Dan. And this was a grievous sin in the eyes of God. Jeroboam is faulted again and again in the Bible for this. And so these two tribes became notorious for the fact that they were the locations of this original worshipping of other gods, or of false worship, actually.

Now Dan is especially emphasized in the Bible as a figure of Satan himself, very surprisingly. And I don't know why Dan was named in this way, but it's interesting that in the twelve apostles there was one who was a servant of Satan, and that was Judas. And so it was in the Old Testament that God, for His own particular purposes, provided a figure of Satan amongst the tribes. And we find in Genesis 49:17, "Dan shall be a serpent in the way, a viper by the path." Now a serpent or a viper (that's a figure of Satan himself) "that bites the horse's heels so that its rider falls backward." I suppose that Dan, or Judas, in a real sense is a figure of any false prophets that come out of the church. They were amongst us, and then they came out and began to inveigle the congregation into trying to get them to accept another gospel. And this is where the greatest deceit comes from, right out of the body of believers.

The Book of Revelation – An Overview (186A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I was wondering if you could give an overview of what you think the Book of Revelation is. And how would you subdivide the book? Maybe the first three chapters would mean a certain thing to you, and then the next ten would mean that, and maybe the latter eight would mean something else. So I was wondering if maybe you could donate a little time to the Book of Revelation, because I personally find that a lot of people are having problems interpreting it.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you for sharing that question.

The question is raised concerning the last book of the Bible, The Revelation. What is its nature? What is God really doing with this? How could we subdivide it? And so on.

Now in Revelation 1 it starts out to give us the purpose of the book. "The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show to His servants what must soon take place. And He made it known by sending His angel to His servant John, who bore witness to the Word of God and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, even to all that he saw."

Now God is going to give the apostle John a series of visions, in order that through the writings of John, who is the instrument in God's hand, He might give us the Word of God, because the Book of Revelation, like the rest of the Bible, is part of the divine revelation of God. And it's concerned with the events that are going to transpire. And, of course, in places, as we'll see when we study the Book of Revelation, the Book of Revelation goes all the way back to the beginning of time, or to the cross, in order to develop the context and bring us to the New Testament period, or to the end of time.

I suppose the main focus of the Book of Revelation is the victory of Christ over Satan. If you ever wonder about the difficulty you are facing personally as a Christian, or if you wonder about the difficulties that this world is facing, as it is reeling and rocking under the hammer-blows of the rule of Satan, sit down and read the Book of Revelation in one sitting. And you will see, shining through the Book of Revelation, the victory of Christ over Satan. Even though at times it looks like Satan is winning, again and again and again the conclusion comes through that Christ has won. He is King of kings and Lord of lords. And of course it ends with the last two chapters, where we have visions that deal with the New Heaven and the New Earth.

Now in the first chapter we have a vision of Christ Himself, indicating that He is the First and the Last. He is the one who rules and conquers. He has the keys of death and Hades. And He is the one who is the head of the churches.

In Revelation 2 and 3 God gives us a description of seven of the churches that existed in that day, in order to do two things. These seven churches are typical of the churches that would exist at any time in history. On the one hand these descriptions are given to encourage. No matter what happens, we know that Christ is aware of what happens. "I know your works, your love and faith." "Do not fear what you are about to suffer." Christ is always there, and is aware of what is happening in the church. "I will confess his name before My Father." "He who conquers, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God." And so on.

The first thing that we find in these chapters 2 and 3 is the fact of Christ's awareness of what is happening here on earth, in the body of believers, and that He encourages us. But also in these two chapters we find many many warnings. Watch out that you are not snared. Watch out that you don't fall. "I have this against you, that you tolerate the woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess. Behold, I will throw her on a sickbed, and I will strike her children dead, and all the churches that know that I am He who searches mind and heart," and so on.

He warns, "I know your works. You are neither cold nor hot. I would that you were cold or hot. So because you are lukewarm and neither cold nor hot, I will spue you out of My mouth. Those I love I reprove and chasten. So be zealous and repent."

On the one hand, there comes the encouragement. On the other hand comes the warning. The church that has become apostate will be cut off from Christ. It no longer will be a church of the Living God.

Then in Chapters 4 and 5, particularly, we have visions focusing on Christ. The vision is in Heaven, four and twenty thrones around the throne of God. And these four and twenty thrones would be a revelation of the church as it reigns in Heaven. When we leave this earth, we go to live and reign with Christ in Heaven. But the focal point is on Christ Himself.

Verse 11 of Revelation 4: "Worthy art Thou, our Lord and God, to receive glory and honor and power. For Thou didst create all things, and by Thy will they existed and were created." Or again, in verse 9 of Revelation 5: "Worthy art Thou to take the scroll and to open its seals. For Thou wast slain and by Thy blood didst ransom men for God, from every tribe and tongue and people and nation, and hast made them a kingdom and priest to our God, and they shall reign on earth."

We see in Revelation 4 the emphasis in this psalm of praise to Christ that He is the Creator, in Chapter 5 the fact that He is the Redeemer. Now let me interject right here that the Book of Revelation is not chronological. It is not an unfolding of a time plan of the end of time. Many many teach that it is chronological.

They begin already with the seven churches, and they say that the first church was the church right after the disciples. And then the second church was in its period in history, and so on. And we perhaps are in the period of the seventh church. That is not suggested anywhere in the Bible. And it's certainly not suggested in the Book of Revelation.

If the Book of Revelation were chronological, then everything past Revelation 6 would have to be in the New Heaven and the New Earth, because in Revelation 6, beginning with verse 12, we have a vision of Judgment Day itself. Each chapter, each paragraph, has to be looked at on its own merits. It's a separate vision from the visions before or after, and has to be analyzed on its own merits.

Now in Revelation 6 we see the vision of Christ going forth to conquer. And as the church goes forth to conquer with Him, they are persecuted, as seen by the second horseman. They become apostate, as we see by the third and fourth horsemen. And then God gives us a vision of the end of those who have persecuted the church, and those who have remained faithful, and those who have not remained faithful.

In verse 9 we see the souls of those who have been slain for the Word of God, the martyrs. They are in Heaven, and God emphasizes here that it's going to be a while before the end will come. But they must patiently wait for the vengeance of God.

And then in verse 12 and through to the end of Chapter 6 we see a dramatic account of Judgment Day, as the universe begins to collapse, as the world falls apart, and as the unsaved call upon the mountains to fall on them and the rocks to crush them, for the great day of their wrath has come.

Now in Revelation 7 we have a preparatory statement to the final warning judgments that God is going to bring against the world and which are outlined in Revelation 8 and 9 and Revelation 15 and 16. The thrust of this passage is, first of all, that God is not going to allow these final warning judgments to come upon the earth (and I say allow because Satan will be the instigator of these, as we shall see in a moment) until all whom God plans to save will have been saved.

He says in verse 3, "Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees until we have sealed the servants of our God upon their foreheads." And the number sealed are 144,000, a symbolical number in this context to indicate the fullness of all believers. God is not going to allow the final trauma that will envelop the earth (and this final trauma will be just ahead of Judgment Day itself) until everyone has been saved whom God had chosen to be saved.

And then the veil is pulled back, from verse 9 to the end of the chapter, and God gives us a picture of all who have been martyred throughout time, all of the believers throughout time, who are in Heaven. And there is a vast multitude, "which no man could number, from every nation and every tribe and people and tongue, standing before the throne and before the Lamb." Here again we see that beautiful picture of the victory of the Christian.

Now these are those who have "come out of the great tribulation." The Christian's walk in this world throughout time has been one of tribulation. Now this scene is offered here in Chapter 7 perhaps because of the traumatic events that are going to envelop the world beginning with Revelation 8 and 9. And the assurance is that no matter what happens on this earth, no matter how great the tribulation might be, we cannot lose, because the moment we die we go to live and reign with Christ in Heaven. We will be included amongst that vast throng that we see in Revelation 7, beginning with verse 9.

Now in Revelation 8 and 9 we see here a description of final plagues, or warning judgments, that will come upon the earth. And the instigator of these is Satan himself. They are brought as an effort to try to destroy the body of Christ. This I believe is the reason that constantly we find here the numeral 1/3. I believe it relates back to Zechariah 13:8, where God assigns the number 1/3 as a symbolical number representing those who are being saved.

And the purpose of these plagues is to try to silence the Gospel. And possibly Satan will be able to do this. But in doing this, actually he will bring terrible trauma to the unsaved of the world. We read in verse 6: "In those days men will seek death and will not find it. They will long to die, and death will flee from them."

This will be a self-destructive activity of Satan himself. And while it will be directed at the world, to try to silence the Gospel, actually he cannot harm the born again believers. We read in verse 4 of Revelation 9: "They were told not to harm the grass of the earth or any green growth, or any tree, but only those of mankind who had not the seal of God upon their foreheads." While the born again believers may die in this nuclear war, or whatever it may be, he cannot really hurt them because they will simply change their residence, and go to live and reign with Christ in Heaven.

But it will be a vast warning judgment upon the unbelievers. Now in Revelation 15 this same event is pictured again, in Revelation 15 and Revelation 16, through verse 11. Only this time it is pictured from the vantage point of the judgment of God, as the anger of God. Not the final wrath of God, not Judgment Day. That is not in view here as yet. But it is a great warning of God, a warning judgment of God. It's instigated by Satan, as we can gather from Revelation 8 and 9, but it will be used by God against the unsaved of the world, as a warning judgment against them. And it will transition finally into Judgment Day itself, as we see in Revelation 16 beginning with verse 12. Revelation 16 ends with Judgment Day, just as Revelation 6 ended with Judgment Day.

Revelation 10 is a transition paragraph, which is simply indicating that when the seventh trumpet-blows, that is, when Judgment Day comes (and it's coming; it's very close), then everything is going to be revealed. Now in Revelation 11 God backs up, and he's going to talk about the church. He's going to talk about how they bring the Gospel throughout the New Testament period. And finally they will be silenced. Now that was the purpose of Revelation 8 and 9, to silence the Gospel. And Revelation 11 will show that this really happened.

It begins with measuring the temple. In other words, the implication here is that God defines the timing of the earth's existence by the number of the born again believers rather than by the names of the unsaved. Once that temple is complete then Christ will return.

And then it speaks about the church as it witnesses, prefigured by the two witnesses. And finally they are killed. And then this is followed by Judgment

Day. And so Revelation 11 ends with Judgment Day.

Now Revelation 12 looks at the whole package of salvation, or the conflict between Satan and Christ, from another vantage point. Here it's the dragon that's going to devour the child. The child is Christ. And it gives us an insight into what is happening to Satan and his angels as Christ goes to the cross. We see that Michael and his angels cast out the dragon and the fallen angels, so they no longer have a place in Heaven. They were defeated by the blood of Christ. And then it declares that the serpent goes after the woman, which is the body of Christ. But she is nourished, during the New Testament period, by Christ Himself.

Revelation 13 backs up again and indicates the authority of Satan, as he rules in the world. He's symbolized here by a beast with seven heads and ten horns. And it indicates his total rule over the earth, including that of religious rule, as prefigured by the beast that comes out of the earth, that has two horns like a lamb and speaks like a dragon. And it really discusses the control that Satan has over the peoples of the earth, throughout the New Testament period.

Revelation 14 continues with another vision. And here we see a vision of the victorious church in Heaven. It is under the figure of 144,000, the fullness of all the believers. Now in Revelation 12 and 13 we see the church on earth, as the woman that's nourished in the wilderness. And it has its troubles, because the serpent is after it, trying to destroy it. In Revelation 13 we saw that the vision indicated the rule of Satan, both religiously as well as politically, and in every other way, and how most of the peoples of the earth worshipped Satan.

But in Revelation 14 we see that for the born again believers there is victory. No matter how powerful Satan had looked, there is victory. We see them in Heaven, as we saw them earlier, in other chapters of the Bible. And they are victorious. In fact, in the last half of Revelation 14 it speaks about the wrath of God being poured out on the unsaved. And the chapter ends with Judgment Day, even as Revelation 6 ended with Judgment Day, and Revelation 11 ended with Judgment Day. So Revelation 14 ends with Judgment Day.

And as we saw already, Revelation 16 ends with Judgment Day. Now Revelation 17 and 18 deal almost exclusively with the judgment of Satan's kingdom. It indicates the fact that they come under the wrath of God. There's an implication in these chapters of the fact that Satan's kingdom had begun at the very beginning of time. Of course, it goes all the way back to Adam and Eve, in the Garden. But finally they are judged. "In one hour thy judgment has come. Fallen, fallen is Babylon the Great!" Babylon being a figure of the kingdom of Satan.

And then in Revelation 19 we find again an account of Christ coming to judgment. Verse 11: "I saw heaven opened and behold, a white horse. He who sat upon it is called faithful and true. And in righteousness He judges and makes war." And it goes on to describe Judgment Day. You notice how again and again in the Book of Revelation God gives us a word picture of Judgment Day, how awful this will be for the unsaved.

Revelation 20 is a book that approaches the whole New Testament period from a slightly different vantage point. It shows why the Gospel can go out. That is because Satan has been bound. And it shows that even though he is bound, he can still martyr. "I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded. They reigned with Christ a thousand years." Satan is bound, but he can still martyr the believers.

But he doesn't win, because they are in Heaven reigning with Christ. And then it gives us the information, very important information that relates back to Revelation 8 and 9, that right near the end Satan will be loosed, that he will again deceive the nations. He will assault the born again believers. And he will seek to destroy them. But Judgment Day comes upon him. "Fire came down from heaven and consumed" these wicked, all of the kingdom of Satan, wherever it is found on the earth.

And then again we have a description of Judgment Day, in the closing verses of Revelation 20. Revelation 21 and 22 are visions concerned with the New Heaven and the New Earth. They look beyond time into eternity, and complete the victorious account of what happens to people who belong to the Lord Jesus Christ.

You see, the Book of Revelation is a whole series of visions. They are listed under trumpets, under bowls of wrath, under seals. But it isn't a chronological opening. It's simply a series of visions to give us insights as to how Satan is going to be working throughout the New Testament period, how Christ is going to be working throughout the New Testament period, what happens to us when we are martyred, when we seem to be defeated by Satan.

And again and again the theme is, Christ has won. He has conquered. And Judgment Day is portrayed again and again, because Judgment Day is when everything comes to an end, and all the wicked are cast into hell.

The Four Horsemen of Revelation (6230B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. The horsemen in Revelation 6. Does that point to Christ?

HC: The question is raised concerning the four horsemen of Revelation 6. I'd like to speak just a moment on that, and so I'll go into it.

This is an interesting question, and we haven't talked about this for some time, so I would like to look at it for just a moment. In Revelation 6 we have a reference to four different horsemen. In verse 2, "I saw and behold, a white horse. And its rider had a bow, and a crown was given to him, and he went out conquering and to conquer." Now who is this horseman? What does this phrase represent?

When we search the Bible, we find that the color white is always used in connection with that which is pure, that which is holy. We find, for example, in Revelation 19, when Christ comes at the end of time, at Judgment Day, that He comes on a white horse. He sends out His Gospel into the world. "A crown was given to him," we read. Remember in Ephesians 1, it says that He was raised from the dead and was seated at the right hand of God, and was given rule and authority over everything, not only in this age but in the age to come. So that identifies very well.

Now what about this fact that it says that its rider has a bow? Well, back in Psalm 45, we find an interesting commentary on that. In Psalm 45:3 we read, "Gird your sword upon your thigh, O Mighty One. In your glory and majesty [you see, it's talking about God Himself] ride forth victoriously for the cause of truth and to defend the right. Let your right hand teach you dread deeds. Your arrows are sharp [notice the arrows — to have arrows means that you have a bow] in the heart of the king's enemies. The peoples fall under you. Your divine throne endures forever and ever. Your royal scepter is a scepter of equity. You love righteousness and hate wickedness." You see how Psalm 45 identifies very beautifully with the Lord Jesus Christ as He's seen in Revelation 6:2.

As we go out with the Gospel, it is Christ who is out conquering and bringing to subjection those who are the unsaved and who are becoming born again believers.

Now the second passage is speaking there about a red horse: "Its rider was permitted to take peace from the earth, so that men should slay one another. And he was given a great sword." Now this in all likelihood is talking about the persecution that comes against believers, as they go forth with the Gospel. Red signifies the shedding of blood. To take peace from the earth the born again believers are the ones who bring peace to the earth. And yet this horseman is one who is taking peace from the earth. And very frequently this kind of a sword, that is spoken of here, is spoken of in the sense of slaughtering the believers.

We are reinforced in this, I think, when we look at verse 9, where it says, "I saw under the altar the souls of those who had been slain for the Word of God." This word slain here is the same word that is used in verse 3, "that men should slay one another." And he was given a great sword.

In other words, as we bring the Gospel, it is against adversity. It is against persecution. It is being resisted constantly by the forces of evil, who do not want the Gospel to go out.

Now the third horseman is a little different problem altogether. There we read, "I saw, and behold, a black horse. And its rider had a balance in his hand. And I heard what seemed to be a voice in the midst of the four living creatures saying, A quart of wheat for a denarius, and three quarts of barley for a denarius. But do not harm oil and wine." Now what could this be referring to?

The reference, I think is, first of all, going back to Ezekiel 4:16. Now how do I get to Ezekiel? Well, simply by taking a concordance and looking up every possible reference to wheat and barley and denarius and famine, and a balance, and all of these things. And this is the passage that stands out.

In Ezekiel 4:16 we read that God is faulting Israel in the days of Ezekiel, because they had run after other gods. They had not been true to the Gospel of their day. And therefore He said, "Son of man, behold, I will break the staff of bread in Jerusalem. They shall eat bread by weight and with fearfulness, and they shall drink water by measure and in dismay. I will do this that they may lack bread and water and look at one another in dismay, and waste away in punishment."

Here God is really indicating that spiritual famine will be on the earth because of the sinfulness of the body of believers, in not being true to the Gospel. In this context, in verse 10, He says, "And the food which you eat shall be by weight, 20 shekels a day. And once a day you shall eat it. And the water you shall drink is by measure, the sixth part of a hind. Once a day you shall drink." And it's the same idea that's presented here in Revelation 6.

Now when it says "Do not harm oil and wine," I believe that this is referring to the fact that those who are born again believers will not come under judgment, wine referring to the shed blood of Christ, those who are identified with Him, oil referring to the anointing that we receive when we are a born again believer. As false prophets and as false pastors lead the church away from the true Gospel, so that there is spiritual famine, those who are born again believers will not lose their salvation.

Now the fourth horse: "I saw, and behold, a pale horse. And its rider's name was death." Incidentally, there's another reference that I'd like to check a minute, in Leviticus 26, to see if that relates to this. There is a statement in connection with the third horse, where again God is faulting Israel because they would turn away from Him. He says, in verse 23 of Leviticus 26, "And if by this discipline you are not turned to Me, but walk contrary to Me, then I also will walk contrary to you. And I Myself will smite you sevenfold for your sins. And I will bring a sword upon you that shall execute vengeance for the covenant. And if you gather within your cities, I will send pestilence among you. And you shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy. When I break your staff of bread, ten women shall bake your bread in one oven and shall deliver your bread again by weight. And you shall eat and not be satisfied."

Again it's using the same kind of language, to indicate the spiritual famine that will come if they go contrary to the Word of God. Now the fourth horseman: "And I saw and behold, a pale horse, and its rider's name was Death. And Hades followed him. And they were given power over a fourth of the earth, to kill with sword and with famine and with pestilence and by wild beasts of the earth."

Now Ezekiel 14:21 assures us that God here is talking about judgments that will be brought by God against the church for their failure to remain faithful to the Word. In Ezekiel 14 we read, in verse 21 (and the context is that they have gone after idols, they have gone after false prophets, and therefore God is bringing His wrath against the body of believers): "For thus says the Lord God, How much more, when I send upon Jerusalem My four sore acts of judgment, sword, famine, evil beasts and pestilence, to cut off from it man and beast." The same language, you see, that you find in Revelation 6:8, where it talks about this fourth horseman who kills with sword, with famine, with pestilence and by wild beasts of the earth.

The four and the one-fourth that we find in Revelation 6 I think in both cases are speaking about the worldwide nature of this, the fact that God will not tolerate unfaithfulness within the church. He will bring judgments against the church if they are not faithful.

To summarize then, we find that the first horseman gives us a picture of the Gospel as it goes victoriously throughout the earth, to accomplish the work God has set forth for it. The second horseman gives us a picture of the resistance that will be encountered by this Gospel as there are those who will persecute those who bring the Gospel. The third and the fourth horsemen are figures of the judgments that will come against the church when it is not faithful in bringing the Gospel. It really is a very excellent outline of the whole matter of the responsibility of bringing the Gospel — the joy, the glory, the wonder of it all, the tribulation that comes because of it, and the judgments of God when we are not faithful in bringing the Gospel.

The Identity of the 144,000 in Revelation 7:4 and 14:1 (260D)

CALLER: Could you tell me who the 144,000 are that John is writing about in Revelation?

HC: The question: that is raised concerns itself with the 144,000. The 144,000 are spoken of in two places in the New Testament: one in Revelation 7 and the second in Revelation 14.

Now in Revelation 14 they are shown to us to be those who have been redeemed from earth. They are those, we read in Revelation 14, who are chaste. This is verse 4: "They have not defiled themselves with women." In other words, they're the perfect bride of Christ. Their sins have been covered by the blood of Christ, and they stand before God as if they had never sinned. And they have been redeemed from mankind: "and no lie was found in their mouth." In other words, when we are unsaved we are slaves of Satan, who is the father of lies. And once we are saved, our sins are covered and we're like those who have never never lied. And this is talking about all born again believers.

Now the number 144,000 is used because God frequently uses numbers symbolically. The number twelve is symbolical of the fullness of God's program. And here He's talking about the number of believers, the fullness of believers.

Sometimes He uses it as twelve plus twelve. And so we have the twenty-four elders in Revelation. Sometimes He uses it as twelve times twelve. And so we have the 144,000. Sometimes He uses it as twelve times twelve times twelve. And so we have the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, which is in size 12,000 stadia by 12,000 stadia by 12,000 stadia. And in the Holy City Jerusalem, which is the fullness of all believers, we have twelve foundations, we have twelve gates, and we have walls that are 144 cubits thick. The whole picture, you see, is symbolical.

And so with the 144,000. It is the fullness of all believers. Now in Revelation 7 they are spoken of as twelve tribes of Israel, because in the Bible God repeatedly speaks of the true believers as being the true seed of Abraham, whereas the blood descendants of Abraham are not necessarily Israel. The true Israel of God are those who are the believers in the Lord Jesus Christ. Read Galatians 3 particularly, and you will see this.

Well, thank you for that question.

The Sequence of End-Time Events (261A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum,

CALLER: Could you explain your version of what the Millennium is. What's the purpose of it? And then also I wanted to ask you, if you feel that we'll be raptured at the end of the tribulation, then obviously we're not in the tribulation right now, if you read the description of it. Then the Lord won't be taking us home until after the tribulation, so why should we be looking up for our rapture now? Do you understand what I mean?

HC: Your question really deals with, what is really the sequence of events? What are we looking for? You've used three terms. You've used Rapture, Tribulation and Millennium.

Now in your judgment, what is the sequence of events?

CALLER: I've always been taught, and even in good Bible studies, and I've even found out for myself from the scripture, that we would be raptured before the tribulation began. And this has always been my impression. And I'm very interested in what you've said about it, and this is why I'm asking more about it.

I understand that we would be raptured, and there would be the tribulation, and at the end of the tribulation the millennium would come, and Christ would reign for the thousand years. But I understand now that you don't believe that way, because you believe in the symbolical terms in the scriptures. But ministers in the pulpits today are saying, "Look up and be ready, because Christ can come at any time." You know, we should just be ready. And even Paul said that it could be today. Well, if it could be today, we aren't going to be raptured until . . .

HC: Paul did say that it could be today?

CALLER: He said that he was looking for, I really am not sure on the scripture.

HC: No, he didn't say today. Now you see the phrase that because I look at the symbolical meaning of scriptures, therefore I conclude that the rapture cannot be immediately, whereas those who hold that the rapture could be immediately do not look at it symbolically.

Actually, no one reads the Bible without some symbolism. There are certain phrases that have to be understood symbolically. And there are other passages that must be understood literally.

Now when we talk about the timing of the Rapture, there is no symbolism applied. The Bible is very very plain as to the timetable of the Rapture, that it is the Last Day, that it is the end of time. There isn't any possibility of coming to any other conclusion. And I'll be very happy to go through the scriptures, to show this. And if it is the Last Day, the end of time, at the time the universe is collapsing, on Judgment Day, then it means that there cannot be a thousand years after that. There cannot be a millennium of time after that, because that would be a contradiction in terms altogether.

When you ask for the purpose of the millennium, first of all we have to decide, when is the millennium? Now the only place in the Bible where we read about the thousand years is in Revelation 20. And we find a number of references to a thousand years in the first seven or eight verses.

Now we can't tell from Revelation 20 when this thousand years will be, nor can we accept that we know it will conclude with Judgment Day. We know that, because at the end of thousand years Satan will be loosed and then he'll be cast into the lake of fire. And so that's Judgment Day. We know that from Revelation 20. And we also know from Revelation 20 that whatever God means by this binding of Satan, he is not completely removed from the scene, because in verse 4 of Revelation 20 John sees in this vision the souls of those who had been beheaded, and they lived and reigned with Christ during this thousand years.

Now it's speaking here of disembodied souls: "I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded." And so this indicates that whatever God means by the binding of Satan, and He does give a clue in Revelation 20, because He says that he will be bound so that "he will not deceive the nations." That's one clue He gives.

Secondly, in Revelation 20, He indicates that he'll still be able to martyr people, because there are people being beheaded. But it's no victory for Satan. In their souls (the souls of those who had been beheaded) they lived and reigned with Christ. And so they went to Heaven.

CALLER: Now I was always taught that the souls of those who had been beheaded means those who will be beheaded during the tribulation. And they're supposed to be watched, and then they come back to life after the tribulation.

HC: It's not talking in Revelation 20 about the tribulation. It doesn't mention tribulation. It simply says, "I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded." Now to use a parallel phrase, "I saw the hand of the man." Did I see the whole man? No, I only saw his hand. "I saw the hand of the man who was killed." All I saw was his hand. "I saw the souls of these who had been beheaded." John only sees their souls. Now disembodied souls don't live and reign on earth, do they?

So now we've got some questions already developing, haven't we? We know that the millennium ends with Judgment Day. And we know that whatever it means by Satan being bound, it does indicate that he'll still be able to martyr. And since those who are martyred are reigning in their souls, than it's talking about them going to Heaven, because this is what the rest of the Bible teaches. "To be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord," in Heaven. So that gives us some clues about what this millennium might be.

Now when we look at the first three verses where it talks about the binding of Satan, the first thing we have to do, like we have to do with all of the Bible, is to study the rest of the Bible to see if there's anything at all that might possibly relate.

Some people, unfortunately, who say, "We take the Bible literally," what they really mean by that, without thinking it through, is that they read a sentence, and it makes sense as it stands, and without checking further in the Bible to see if that phrase is used in some other fashion in the Bible, they accept it as it stands. In other words, they really are saying, "We don't interpret scripture by scripture. We let scripture make sense as it stands by itself." And that can't be, of course. We never can do that. We've always got to let the Bible interpret itself. And it always will, if we can be patient enough, and really search it out.

Now in Jude 6, and in II Peter 2:4, we find language that is very very similar to the first three verses of Revelation 20. In Jude 6 we read, "And the angels [and remember, Satan is a fallen angel] . . . And the angels that did not keep their own position but left their dwelling have been kept by Him in eternal chains, in the nether gloom, until the judgment of the Great Day." Now that's in the past tense, and it was written a few decades after the cross. We can't tell where Revelation 20 was referring to, but Jude was written in the past tense, a few decades after the cross. And it's saying that they have already been put in chains, in the nether gloom, until the judgment of the Great Day. Whatever God means by this language, it was already accomplished.

Now in II Peter 2:4 we read the same thing, the past tense again. "For if God did not spare the angels when they sinned, but cast them into hell, and committed them to pits of nether gloom to be kept until the judgment, He did not spare the ancient world but preserved Noah, a herald of righteousness." In other words, he's citing things that have already been accomplished. And Peter is writing in the past tense, a few decades after the cross.

And so we know that whatever God means by the language of Revelation 20:1, it was already an accomplished fact a few decades after the cross. And so that means, if the end of the thousand years of judgment Day, or near to Judgment Day, and if we've already had over 1900 years since the cross, a thousand years has got to be understood in a symbolical fashion.

It could be a literal fashion, if we were only in the year 800 AD, or something, and a thousand years had not transpired as yet. But because we know that more than 1000 years have passed since the cross, we know that the millennium or the thousand years must be understood in a symbolical fashion, as God frequently does in the Bible, as He speaks, for example, of His love continuing for a thousand generations. There it's symbolical, you see.

And so we know that the beginning of Revelation 20 had to occur some time before a few decades after the cross, and it would end some time just before Judgment Day. In other words, it's the whole New Testament period: the millennium.

CALLER: We're living in the millennium now?

HC: We're right near the end of the millennium. Jesus said in John 16, "In the world you will have tribulation." Tribulation or affliction is normative for believers throughout time. That is constant. Now the increase in tribulation right near the end of time, that Christ spoke about in Matthew 24:21, "And then there will be great tribulation, such as this world has never known," will be simultaneous with the end of the thousand years.

Remember, Revelation 20 says that Satan will be loosed from his prison, and he will deceive the nations again, and he will gather them, Gog and Magog, from the four corners of the earth, to attack the camp of the saints or the Beloved City. Now that is talking about what will cause this great tribulation in Matthew 24:21. It will be Satan's attempt to silence the Gospel. And he will be successful in doing this.

He will marshal all the nations. In other words, he will come with political power, through such ideologies as Communism. He will come with social pressures, cultural pressures. And more successfully then ever, he will come through other gospels.

We can see it in all kinds of activity today, as other gospels proliferate, and as they are getting more and more successful. I really believe we're at that time when Satan is being loosed. And this is why we see such a tremendous increase in wickedness in the world, both in the church and outside of the church.

CALLER: Then we'll be able to identify the antichrist?

HC: I believe Satan himself is the antichrist, and he is already coming. Now in John 2 it says that there will be antichrists who come out from among you. Let me read that language, because it really tells us what an antichrist is.

In I John 2:18: "Children, it is the last hour, and as you have heard that antichrist is coming, so now many antichrists have come. Therefore we know that it is the last hour. They went out from us [in other words, they were fellow believers], but they were not of us. For if they had been of us, they would have continued with us. But they went out, that it might be plain that they all are not of us."

In other words, antichrist is particularly the activity of Satan in working through false prophets and false christs who will rule in the church. This is what Matthew 24:24 is speaking about: "False prophets and false christs will arise with signs and wonders, to lead astray if possible even the elect."

CALLER: That's maybe where the Satan worshippers come in.

HC: Well, that's one rabid form of this. But this isn't what Jesus warns about. When He talks about the abomination of desolation standing in the holy place, in Matthew 24:15, He's talking about other gospels that look so holy that even the elect, the true believers, would be deceived, if that were possible.

CALLER: If what you say is true, that we will not be raptured until the end, when Jesus comes to take us . . .

HC: Let's look at the timing of the Rapture, for just a moment. He cannot come now. Those who say that He may come tonight are doing so without Biblical validation, in my judgment.

CALLER: Jesus Himself said that no one knows the day or the hour or the time.

HC: Yes. We may not know the day or the hour. But that doesn't mean that we can say that He will come at any moment. Even God Himself warns, in II Thessalonians 2. Notice this language. A lot of times we fail to realize the significance of what God is saying. He says in verse 1 of II Thessalonians 2: "Now concerning the coming of Our Lord Jesus Christ and our assembling to meet Him [Aha! He's saying that we will assemble to meet Him], we beg you, brethren, not to be quickly shaken in mind or excited, either by spirit or by word or by letter purporting to be from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord are one and the same." And we're going to see that it's the Judgment Day. It's all one and the same.

CALLER: But I thought it was in the twinkling of an eye.

HC: His coming is not in the twinkling of an eye. The phrase, "the twinkling of an eye," has to do with the changing of the believers sin-cursed body to his resurrected body at the time of His coming. That's a phrase found in 1 Corinthians 15, in verse 51 or 52, where God declares, "We'll not all sleep, but we'll all be changed, in a moment, in a twinkling of an eye."

And then He says when. That's the timing of the Rapture, you see: "at the sound of the last trumpet." And the last trumpet, the seventh trumpet, that's Judgment Day, according to Revelation 11. And here in II Thessalonians 2 He's saying, "Now concerning the coming of Our Lord [the day of the Lord], let no one deceive you in any way. For that day will not come unless the rebellion comes first, and the man of sin is revealed, the son of perdition, who opposes and exalts himself against every so-called god or object of worship." That's Satan who takes over the rule of the church. He silences the Gospel. This is what is being spoken of here.

CALLER: I don't see how he can do that if we the saints are still here.

HC: Well, let me read Matthew 24:24. Matthew 24:24 says, "False prophets and false christians will arise with signs and wonders, to lead astray, if possible, even the elect." Now who are the elect? The born again believers. We are the elect. Now where do we normally congregate, to worship God? In the church, where the true Gospel ought to be proclaimed.

But here it's talking about false prophets and false christians, leading astray, if possible, even the elect. That means that the church has been infiltrated, and has begun to be ruled over by those who come with another gospel, and who actually are not of Christ at all.

And they're coming with a gospel that looks so holy and so much like the true Gospel that if it were possible (and it's not possible, because no believer can be snared away from Christ), even the elect would be deceived. And they come with signs and wonders. In other words, they come with a Gospel that features miracles and wonders, and it looks far more exciting than the true Gospel.

Now this is saying the same thing as II Thessalonians 2, where it talks about the man of sin taking his seat in the temple. The temple is the body of Christ. To take one's seat means to rule, or have authority. And Satan, through these false prophets and false christians, gains the rule over the church. He is able, as God brings judgment against the church because of its increasing rejection of the holiness of God, the Word of God, and so on, as is seen very greatly today, to rule. And the true Gospel, through this, will be silenced.

CALLER: In scripture, too, it teaches that they'll put up an image of the antichrist.

HC: Revelation 13 speaks about an image of the beast. And I really believe that is referring to the other gospels, any gospel that is not true, that is giving an object that the unsaved people, who think they are Christians but they are not, because you can't be an unsaved person and truly be a born again believer, obviously, something that they can worship. They will be convinced that this is it.

And remember in Revelation 13, where it talks about that image, it speaks again about signs, doing great signs.

CALLER: In a sense we could be into the tribulation now.

HC: We are entering into that period. I believe that we're getting . . . But the Gospel still is able to go throughout the world. It has not come to that point. But what we're beginning to see is that there has to be a transition time.

Now we look at the period when Judah was finally destroyed, in 587 BC. They were not instantly destroyed by Babylon.

They had a marvelous King Josiah, who ruled from the period of about thirty-one years, from about 640 BC until 609 BC. And then, at the comparatively young age of thirty-nine, he was killed in a war, a very unnecessary war. And for the next twenty-three years Judah, or Israel, gradually decayed and disintegrated.

First they were in bondage to Egypt, and then they were in bondage in some degree to Babylon. And finally, in 587 BC, Babylon utterly destroyed Jerusalem. They destroyed the temple, they brought a great many of the Jews captive into Babylon. And that's the kind of period we're in. We're in a transition period, where the true Gospel is getting squeezed out more and more. Other gospels are gaining the ascendancy. Political ideologies that are anti-God are gaining the ascendancy.

CALLER: Why are the Jews getting Israel back, if these are supposed to be symbols of the church today?

HC: The question is raised about the nation of Israel. Well, you know, Jesus predicted this. Remember, He said in Matthew 24:32, "From the fig tree (and in the Bible I believe the fig tree is a figure of national Israel) learn its lesson. As soon as its branch becomes tender and puts forth its leaves, you know that He is near, at the very gates."

Now look. It talks here about leaves. It doesn't talk about fruit, does it? "When you see the fig tree put forth its leaves, you know that summer is near," and therefore Christ is at the very gates.

Well now, when Jesus saw the fig tree in His day, and He put out His hand to find fruit, and there was no fruit, what did He do? He cursed it because there were only leaves. All right. Now what about the nation of Israel today? Is there fruit? No. As a nation they are as antagonistic toward Christ as Messiah as they ever have been. There is a remnant chosen by grace of Jews being saved, and this is thoroughly predicted in the Bible. But as a nation it is a nation amongst the nations, a viable, independent nation, but it's all leaves.

And so this is soundly predicted in the Bible as one of the signs of the end. And Jesus also had something to say about what was going to happen. Luke 21:20 says, "When you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then know that its desolation is come nigh." And Jerusalem is surrounded by armies, both the literal Jerusalem, over there alongside the shores of the Mediterranean Sea, and we too, the spiritual Jerusalem, are surrounded by armies that want to destroy us. And they will be destroyed, and so will the church be destroyed.

The believers will not all be killed, of course. There will be many, many, many believers who will patiently wait for the end.

Well, that gives you a few things to think about.

CALLER: It really does. I think it's very interesting. I wish there was some kind of literature out, a book or something, that people could get, to really research this.

HC: Let me encourage you to read the Bible. Now read Matthew 24 very carefully. Don't read it once, but read it again and again and again and again. Matthew 24 is an excellent statement. And you don't have to read it symbolically or anything else. Read it as it is put here. And you'll see the timetable of the end.

Understanding Matthew 24 (305B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Hello. I'm reading Matthew 24, and it's a little puzzling. And according to this New American Standard, it says, "See that no one misleads you," and that there will be Wars and rumors of wars, and tribulation, and false prophets will arise, lawlessness, and so on.

And down farther it says, "Let him who is on the housetop not go down," and "Woe be to those who are with child," and "Pray that your flight not be in winter or on the Sabbath." Now the way I figure that out, that can't be the last days.

HC: Why can it not be the last days?

CALLER: If it would be the last days, why would it tell you not to come down off the housetop, and "Woe be to those who are with child"? Because if it was the very last days, what difference would it make where you were?

HC: First of all, immediately when we read these passages, we start thinking about a particular moment in time. But look at Luke 17. Leave your finger in Matthew 24. And if you turn to Luke 17, where Jesus is talking about Judgment Day itself, He's using as a figure the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah. And you'll remember that Lot and his family were driven out of Sodom and Gomorrah. And right on the heels of them leaving Sodom and Gomorrah, fire and brimstone were rained down on these cities, and they were destroyed. The fact is, Lot's wife looked back, and she was enveloped in that very destruction.

Now notice what it says, in verse 29 of Luke 17: "But the same day that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed them all. Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed. In that day he which shall be upon the housetop, and his stuff in the house, let him not come down to take away. And he that is in the field, let him likewise not turn back. Remember Lot's wife."

You see, God is not talking here about taking time to go down into the house. He's really talking about an attitude. What was Lot's wife's interest in?

CALLER: She was interested in the city. That's why she turned around.

HC: Yes. She was more concerned about the things of this world than she was about a right relationship with God. And she was consumed in the judgment.

So at the Last Day, when Christ comes again, if we are still worshipping the creation, which the unsaved man does (he finds his security, his joy, his hope, in the things of this world) if that is our attitude, that we find our hope, our joy, our security, in the things of this world, we are going to be consumed in the Judgment Day, even as Lot's wife was.

This language, of not going down into the house, is not speaking about us literally standing on the roof of the house and running down. From this context we learn that it is really addressing itself to the question of where is our love, where is our concern?

Lot's wife's concern was in the things in her home, in the city that she lived in. She couldn't bear to leave them. And because of this attitude, she was consumed in the judgment. If our attitude, when Christ comes again, is that kind of an attitude, we also will still be subject to judgment.

CALLER: Yes, I can see that. But why would it speak about, "Woe to those who are with child"?

HC: Well, again, we have a commentary on that in the Gospel of Luke. Remember when Jesus was carrying the cross? And as He carried the cross, the women cried out after Him. And then Jesus turned on them and said, in Luke 23:28, "Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for Me, but weep for yourselves and for your children. For behold, the days are coming in the which they shall say, 'Blessed are the barren and the wombs that never bare, and the paps that never gave suck.' Then shall they begin to say to the mount; in, 'Fall on us,' and to the hills, 'Cover us.'"

Now in Luke 23, just as in Luke 17, Christ equated going down into the house with the very moment when Judgment Day had come. So here He is equating the language of "Blessed are the barren" (or in other words, "Blessed are those who do not have children") with Judgment Day, because "Then shall they begin to say to the mountains, 'Fall on us,' and to the hills, 'Cover us.'" From Revelation 6:15 or 16, we know that that is the time when Christ comes, and the unsaved are in mortal fear of Him, and will be calling to the rocks to crush them and the hills to cover them.

Actually, again Christ is teaching here an attitude. You see, there are a couple of factors in view here. First of all, an unsaved parent couldn't care less about his children, insofar as how they are going to be brought up spiritually. And yet he has a certain love and concern for his children.

Now remember in Sodom and Gomorrah. What happened to the babies there? They were destroyed. What happened in the Flood of Noah's day? What happened to the babies? They were destroyed. Now can't you see a parent that has children, and Judgment Day has come, and suddenly he realizes that he has done nothing to, it's bad enough that he himself must be thrown into hell, under the wrath of God. But what an awful thing to know that his family, his whole family, is going to go there. It's just going to add to the turmoil and the awfulness of his predicament. It would be far better if he had no children, if he had no responsibility toward these.

You see, Judgment Day is the final moment. There's no escape, there's no turning around, there's no more time to correct any past mistakes. He has made no effort to train his children in the fear and the knowledge of the Lord. He has made no effort to bring them the Gospel. And their eternal destiny, in all likelihood, is going to be very similar to his own.

CALLER: Well, that's the reason I wondered. I know it's supposed to be in the twinkling of an eye. And why would you worry about coming down off the housetop to get your coat?

HC: You see it's not talking about an actual thing that we would do, but it's talking about an attitude, the same as when it talks about, "Pray that your flight will not be in winter." Now again, a "flight in winter"? That talks about an escape of some kind.

You see, Jesus equates His coming with summertime, in Matthew 24:32. "Now learn a parable of the fig tree. When its branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, you know that summer is nigh. So likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the door."

Okay. Christ is equating His coming with summertime. Now anyone who is not ready is not seeing that it is summertime, that it is time for Christ's return. They are as if they are in winter. They are still thinking that it's a long time before Christ will return, or at least, whatever they're thinking, they're not ready for His return. They are like those who are in winter. Only the true believer will be like those who are in summer. We will know that it is time. We will be ready at any moment that that might happen.

CALLER: There were a few things in there that kind of had me baffled. And another one was verse 30, when it says, "All the tribes of the earth will mourn." Well, the tribes of the Jews were not considered tribes, and I thought it was speaking more about the fall of Jerusalem, or something like that.

HC: No. In verse 30, where it says, "All the tribes of the earth will mourn," look at the language carefully. "All the tribes of the earth will mourn." That is, this is another way of saying, all the nations of the world, all the peoples of the world, will mourn.

Now why will they mourn? Well, Revelation 6 tells us why they will mourn, why they will weep. Because Judgment Day has come. They will be in terrible trouble. In hell they will weep and gnash their teeth. And already, just anticipating judgment, there will be great weeping, because the time of retribution has arrived. It will be a terrible, terrible moment for those who are unsaved. Words cannot describe the awfulness of Christ's return for the unsaved.

CALLER: Well, I just wondered, because Matthew 24 is quite a chapter to study.

HC: Well, you know, I remember years ago, when I had not worked as long in the Bible as I have at the present, I struggled with Matthew 24. Of course I read whatever commentaries I could lay my hands on, and I found that virtually every commentary related Matthew 24, at least to a high degree, to the fall of Jerusalem in AD 70. And so for a long time, for several years, I tried to piece through Matthew 24, to identify, what verse refers to AD 70, and what verse refers to the return of Christ? And I always had great difficulties.

I must confess that as I have continued to study the Word, and compare scripture with scripture, and just generally become more acquainted.

You know, you keep reading and reading and reading. And pretty soon you get a little better idea of the way God speaks, I suppose. But at any rate, presently I am altogether convinced, altogether convinced, that Matthew 24 does not have AD 70 in view at all, not a bit, that the whole chapter of Matthew 24 has the end of time in view. It begins this way, and it goes all the way through.

Remember, already in Matthew 24:3, "And as He sat upon the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, saying, 'Tell us. What shall these things be, and what shall be the sign of Thy coming and of the end of the world?'" And that sets the context of Matthew 24. It's the end of the world.

CALLER: This says, "the end of the age."

HC: Or the end of the age. But you see, elsewhere in the Bible we read that the New Testament period is the end of the ages. We are the last days, the whole New Testament period. Remember Hebrews 1:1? "In these last days He has spoken by His Son." Now before the coming of Christ we have the period from Adam until the Flood, which actually works out to be a little over 6000 years. And then we have a rather bleak period, from the Flood until Abraham is called out of Ur of the Chaldees, a period of about 3000 years. And then we have a period of about 2000 years, during which God dealt through the nation of Israel.

And now we come to the Christ, to the cross. And the Bible speaks about the "last days," or the "end of the ages." In Matthew 24:13 it says, "This Gospel must be preached to every nation, and then the end will come." So it's the end, you see.

CALLER: That's what's kind of confusing, if you haven't studied any more than I have. Another thing that threw me back to thinking it was Jerusalem was when it says, "Pray that your flight not be in winter or on the Sabbath." Well, if it was in winter, they had to hide in caves. Or if it was on the Sabbath, the Jews weren't allowed to travel. So they'd be stuck.

HC: But that isn't what's in view.

CALLER: You see, there's little things like that that crop up, that kind of had me a little bit confused.

HC: Well, join the party. These are not easy verses to understand. But I really believe that in these verses, "Pray that your flight be not in winter or on the Sabbath," "Do not go down into the house," that you will be included amongst those who will be saying, "Blessed are the barren," all four of these references are language that is being addressed to the question: Be careful that you are saved! All four of these are speaking of those who are unsaved, who are not ready.

Later on in Matthew 24 Jesus became more specific. He said in verse 42, "Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord cometh." And this is really the focal point. Be sure that you are ready. Be sure that you will not be included amongst the unsaved.

CALLER: Well, of course there are a lot of hidden things in here. If it was too plain, we'd never read it. We'd just read it once and put it down and say, "Oh, I understand that."

HC: Well, God has His own purposes for writing the way He did. That's for sure.

CALLER: That's what I mean. You have to search the scriptures daily.

HC: Exactly. That's what God wants us to do.

CALLER: You read a novel once, and you say, "Oh, I read that?" and put it back on the shelf, where you forget it. But this way, you have to keep searching. Anyway, that helps a lot. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

CALLER: Good night.

The USA in Prophecy (325B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. Does the Bible have anything prophetic to say about the United States?

HC: Is there anything in the Bible that specifically refers to the United States insofar as the future of this world is concerned? There is nothing in the Bible that indicates or names the United States. While it is true that God does name historic nations like Egypt and Israel. He does not name any modern nation that I'm aware of. It certainly does not name Russia or China or the United States or Germany, or any of these nations.

However, God does indicate His judgment upon the world. And when He speaks of His judgment upon any nation, God has in view the whole world. The whole world, including the United States, is going to experience God's damning judgments, God's wrath poured out because of the infidelity, the fornication of the body of believers, the church, as it's found in many congregations and denominations throughout the world. And the Bible of course also indicates that the Gospel will be silenced. This will occur in the United States just as well as in every nation. And then of course the Bible speaks of Judgment Day itself coming, which will involve all the peoples of the world.

Obsession with End-Time Prophecy (379A)

CALLER: Time and time again we've heard questions and discussions about end time prophecy, the rapture, and so on. And I realize that this is a very important part of the Christian's life, looking forward to Christ's return, and all. But surely, at least I used to find myself obsessed with this and nothing else. And I was wondering if perhaps you could discuss putting the end time prophecy into a proper perspective, as far as our daily walk in the Christian life is concerned. And I'll take that on the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you.

We have a very good question that has been asked. How does end time prophecy and its discussion and its pressure on our thinking life interrelate with a Christian perspective of walking uprightly before God? In other words, is it important, really, that we worry about when Christ is going to come, or is it important that we be concerned with the details of Christ's coming again? Does it really make any difference what we believe concerning His return?

Frequently, when we get into these questions, some will tell me, "Well, really it isn't important at all. The important things is that I am a believer."

Let me answer it this way. There are at least two ideas that come to my mind. Number one: The Bible says that all scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for correction and training in righteousness, and teaching, and so on. In other words, God has given us a lot of information in the Bible concerning His return. He has not put it in there just as some kind of a curiosity, something for some theologians in their ivory towers to debate over a little bit, wondering just how all this is going to be. God has put everything in the Bible in order that we might be trained in righteousness, in order that we might grow in grace.

And so whether we are studying the origins of this earth from the Bible, that is, we're studying the Book of Genesis, or whether we're studying the activities and experiences of the nation of Israel, or whether we're studying the Gospel concerning the events that occurred when Jesus was on earth, or when we are studying end time prophecy from the Bible, each and every part of this study is equally important.

Now that's something we must understand. Each and every thing is equally important. We must never believe that this is important but that is not so very important. Everything is important.

Now when we begin to reflect on this just a little deeper, we can see why this is so. There is a tremendous interrelationship that exists between every aspect of the teaching of the Bible. We cannot really understand salvation, for example, unless we also begin to understand something about where sin came from, why we are sinners. We cannot really understand God unless we see Him as the Creator, as He's revealed in Genesis 1 and 2. We really cannot understand God's covenant promises unless we carefully read Genesis 12 through 24, and discover how God dealt with Abraham of old, because in the New Testament God, in a number of places, refers to Abraham and to the patriarchs. And if we don't study Genesis, then we won't get the full grasp of how these chapters and verses impinge upon the salvation story.

And by the same token, if we really want to know even more about our salvation, it helps like everything to know about the end times and what is going to happen. Now let me show you how important this is.

There are those today who teach, "Yes, I'm saved by grace." And I think they are saved by grace. I can't judge what's going on in the heart of anyone. That's not my question at all. But then they go on and start talking about how God is going to use the nation of Israel to do a mighty work of bringing the Gospel in this world, and how the nation of Israel are the chosen people, and they will have prior rights somehow, and that Christ is going to set up an earthly throne, a political throne, on this sin-cursed earth.

Well, when I study the Bible apart from the end time, I find that we're saved by grace, we become children of God, we're sons of Abraham, we're of the seed of Abraham, if we're born again. Our heritage is an eternal heritage. We are inheritors of the whole earth, as we read in Romans 4:13. The Holy Spirit is the one who came to evangelize the world. Our focal point is not on creation and this sin-cursed earth. Our focal point is on the Lord Jesus Christ and an everlasting heritage.

And so if we have the wrong thinking on the end times, it will begin to bend our thinking on the nature of salvation. It will begin to warp our thinking as to what our salvation really is. We won't have the full picture that it is altogether eternal, that it is altogether glorious, that it is altogether beyond this sin-cursed earth, and so on and so on. We begin to focus on a salvation that is limited to this sin-cursed earth, limited to a Christ who is going to reign as a man on this sin-cursed earth, limited to a work of bringing the Gospel that no longer is the work of the Holy Spirit but is the work of the nation of Israel. And so we begin to get a warped idea of what salvation really is.

It's imperative that we keep searching the scriptures, that we continue to study these questions about the rapture and the tribulation and the return of Christ, because as we get Biblical answers, we will find that they will begin to tell us more and more about the glorious nature of our salvation, and that our salvation is eternal in character, and that we are the recipients of the highest blessings when we have become born again, and that God did not have to change His program because He was rejected by His countrymen when He came on earth two thousand years ago. And the church of the New Testament is not some kind of an interlude. The church is the working out of God's program.

What I'm trying to say that there is no aspect of theology, that is, the study of God or the study of the Bible, that is unimportant. But it is imperative that the foundation for our study is the Bible. And if we can bring ourselves to this point (and by God's grace only will we arrive there), where we are ready to be open to everything the Bible teaches, ready to compare scripture with scripture, however it's going to take us, then we're going to find a real joy and a real glory in searching the scriptures.

But if we are not ready to be open to everything the Bible teaches, if we have been taught certain things and we don't want to lose any regard for those who have taught us at all, in other words, if we want to maintain our thinking that those who have taught us have taught us absolutely correctly, without error, and therefore we don't really want to look at these questions again in the Bible lest we might be troubled somewhere, then we're not going to grow in grace the way we ought to. Then we're not going to really begin to get a full and wholesome picture of the marvelous salvation that God has provided.

Let me say this again. All scripture, all scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for reproof, for correction and training in righteousness, all scripture. Now the Bible is talking about the Bible. It's not talking about a lot of books that have been written. And there are a lot of fine books that have been written. But realize, please realize, when you read a commentary, I don't care how marvelous, what a beautiful Christian the writer was, always read a commentary or a book about the Bible with a grain of salt. Realize that he at times will be speculating. The writer will at times be incorrect. The writer may be correct most of the time, but there are times when he does not have the proper insight. There is no book that has been written, ever written, that is infallible, that's always accurate in every aspect. There is no such book.

And therefore you are not doing a disservice, when you read somebody's book about the end time or about any other subject, and you begin to raise a lot of questions, "I wonder how he can say this. I wonder if this really is what the Bible teaches." You're not doing him a disservice. You're not putting the author of this book down in any way. You're simply doing what is being faithful to God.

The only book that we can read and know that the author knew what he was talking about, and that it's absolutely accurate and trustworthy, is the Bible. That's why on this program I keep saying, "Don't trust me. Don't trust me. Keep asking questions. Keep wondering if I know what I'm talking about. And check me out in the Bible. Let the Bible be the authority, because I am not infallible, even as no one who has ever written a book about the Bible is infallible."

And if we'll get in the habit of doing this, more and more of us will do this, then we're going to have the joy of discovering that everything the Bible talks about, whether it's the return of Christ or the origins of the earth, or the miracles that Jesus did, or whatever, all have their proper place, and they all add to our understanding of this fantastically marvelous salvation, this incomprehensible salvation, that God has provided for us.

Luke 21:34-36 and the End-Times (425D)

HC: Good evening, Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I was listening to the radio tonight, and there was some discussion of the last days and the Biblical prophecy about it, in conjunction with Revelation. And in Luke 21:36 it says, "Watch ye therefore and pray always that you may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of Man." And as he starts Chapter 21, he's talking about the things that we will be facing in the last days, and they do relate somewhat to Revelation. So I was wondering if verse 36 could be related to Revelation and some of the things that were foretold there.

HC: The question that is being raised is concerning Luke 21:36, where Christ is speaking about His return. Let's read these three verses, beginning in verse 34, "Take heed to yourselves lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkenness, and the cares of this life, so that that day comes upon you unawares. For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth. Watch ye therefore, and pray always that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all those things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of Man."

Now the caller is raising the question, does this relate to some of the things we read about in Revelation, or in other parts of the Bible that speak about His return? One of the best commentaries on this particular passage, I think, is Matthew 24. Throughout Matthew 24 Jesus is talking about His return. And the big warning that He is hold forth there is, watch out for false prophets. Again and again in Matthew 24 He calls attention to this. This is highlighted very specifically.

For example, in Matthew 24:24 it says, "False prophets and false christ will arise with signs and wonders, to lead astray if possible even the elect." Now the elect are the born again believers. That means that these false prophets will be working where the elect are. They will be working in the church, where the true Gospel ought to be proclaimed. Because it says that even the elect would be deceived if that were possible, it indicates that these will come with a gospel that looks so holy, that is so identified with the name of Jesus and the blood of Christ and the resurrection, and all of these holy things, that even the true believers could be snared if that were possible.

And of course the first evidence that something is afoul is the fact that they are featuring signs and wonders: "False prophets and false christ will arise with signs and wonders, to lead astray if possible even the elect." Now in John 10:8 we read, "All that ever came before Me are thieves and robbers." Now I won't develop this right now, but in the Bible thieves and robbers have to do with those who come with other gospels, those who come as wolves in sheep's clothing, to harass the flock and try to snatch out of the flock anyone possible to make them follow other gospels.

But notice what it says in verse 8: "All that ever came before Me are thieves and robbers. But the sheep did not hear them." In other words, those who were the true believers, who were truly born again, did not get snared by these false prophets, by these false gospels. Anyone of course who was in the congregation, and bear in mind that congregations are filled with people who are unsaved, and everybody in the congregation isn't necessarily born again, who was not born again was tantalized, intrigued by these other gospels, because they were so exciting. They brought signs and wonders. They brought a "here and now" thing that was far more marvelous than the true Gospel. After all, the true Gospel means to walk by faith, to repent of your sins and walk patiently by faith, not by sight. It means to have nothing to do with signs and wonders, because Jesus said that "an evil and an adulterous generation seeketh for a sign." Our trust is in what the Bible declares, that we are saved and that we are children of God and that we're looking for an eternal place with the Lord in the New Heavens and the New Earth, and so on, not with some kind of a dramatic thing that is going to be here and now.

And so anyone who isn't saved is going to be attracted into these other gospels. But the sheep will not be snared. Now this is what Luke 21 is talking about. It's speaking about the fact that there will be those who will be overcharged with drunkenness and the cares of this life. Now drunkenness in the Bible is also a synonym for running after other gospels. We find this in Ephesians 5:18: "Don't be drunk with wine, but be filled with the Holy Spirit." It's not talking there in the first instance about physical drunkenness. The whole context has nothing to do with physical drunkenness. The context of Ephesians 5 is that of those coming with false doctrines, with another gospel. Don't get involved with that. "But be filled with the Holy Spirit." That is, those who are true believers, who are born again, are filled with the Holy Spirit, language that means we have been qualified to be a witness. The fact is, in Ephesians 5:19 it goes right on, "addressing one another with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs." That's what the true believer's role is, not to be attracted by these other gospels.

We become worthy only by becoming saved. Luke 21:36 says, "Pray that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things." We're not worthy because of any personal worthiness. We're not worthy because there is something intrinsically marvelous about us. Isn't God lucky, so to speak, that we are on this earth and that He can save us? No, no, no. The Bible says that we're wretched sinners. We're under the wrath of God. We deserve to go to hell. We are like a worm in God's sight.

Now we become worthy only because we have become covered by Christ's righteousness. His righteousness has been imputed to us. So we have become a child of God. We have become a citizen of God's Kingdom. And now we are counted worthy. We're counted worthy all because of what Christ has become for us. Now we are counted worthy. It means, in other words, that you are saved. "Pray that ye are counted worthy" pray that ye are saved, so you will escape this. You see, if you are saved, if you're born again, then as the church is assaulted by other gospels you will not be snared, you will not be caught.

Now remember in Matthew 24 that we started out to understand Luke 21:34-36 by examining Matthew 24, and remember in that context it says repeatedly, "Watch." Watch, be ready, because you don't know the time of Christ's return. Watch.

Now the only way we're watching, that we're ready, is to be saved, is to be born again. For the unsaved, those who are being snared into other gospels, those who are being caught up by these moneychangers in the temple, to use Biblical language, for them Christ's return will come as a snare, verse 35 or Luke 21: "For as a snare shall it (that is, the day of the Lord, Judgment Day) come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth." They are not ready.

Oh, they're talking about Christ's return. And they sense that it's time for something to happen. But they're not thinking in terms of personal judgment, the fact that they're facing hell, because they have been deluded. They have been blinded into believing that all is well with their soul because they are all tied up in these other gospels that look so glorious. But in actuality they're not in the true Gospel. And we can only be saved by being related to the true Gospel. We cannot be saved by being related to a false gospel, by imbibing and drinking from a false gospel. If we're going to be saved, we have to realize that the true Gospel is circumscribed by the Bible. It alone and in its entirety is the divine Word.

So the prayer of anyone today must be, "Oh Lord, may I know that I'm a born again believer. May I know that regardless of when you come, whether it's to take me in breath three breaths from now, or tomorrow morning, or next month, or whether it's the fact that you are going to come on the Last Day and rapture me, be as it may, may I know that I'm a child of God."

Now how can I know that I'm a child of God? When I know in my heart that I want to be obedient to everything that is in the Bible. I have this ongoing earnest desire to be submissive to anything and everything that I find in the Bible, because the Bible is the voice of God, my Lord, God my Savior.

If that earnest desire isn't there in our hearts, and if that earnest desire isn't translating into a life of substantial obedience to God, then we are not saved. And one of the commands that God gives us is that we are to look for divine truth only in the Word. We're not to add to the words of this book.

The Seven Churches and the Seven Seals (470D)

HC: Good evening, Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I wanted to ask you a question on Revelation. And it's about the seven churches talked about in Chapter 2, and also the seven seals that are in Chapter 5. I was wondering, do they mean anything today, the seven churches?

HC: The question is, do the seven churches that we find discussed in Revelation 2 and 3 have any bearing on us today? Does it have any meaning? There are those who say that the seven churches are to be understood in a chronological fashion, that actually we are living in the age of the last of the seven churches.

But actually, there's no intimation, no suggestion in the Bible, that we are to understand these seven churches in any kind of a chronological fashion. That would be sheer speculation, because there is nothing in the Bible that suggests this. These were seven churches that actually did exist at the time the apostle John was writing. And as we study these seven churches we get insights as to the nature of the organized church of the Lord Jesus Christ as it has stood throughout the New Testament period. Any church today will find characteristics of itself as they read about these seven churches. I don't find anything chronological here at all.

Now insofar as the seven seals are concerned, which is also asked about here, the seven seals have to do with the presentation of the Gospel throughout the world. The first seal has to do with the fact that Christ goes forth conquering and to conquer. The picture is of a rider on a white horse with a bow. And it's a figure taken from Psalm 45:4 & 5, where it speaks about God riding triumphantly, conquering. It is the Gospel as it goes forth.

The second seal, where the rider is on a red horse and peace is taken from the earth, is a picture of the fact that as the Gospel goes forth there will be great persecution. Satan will persecute. He will kill. He will do everything possible to frustrate the Gospel.

The third seal has to do with the black horse, and the pair of balances in his hand. And when we really check this out in the light of other passages in the Bible, we find that it's a warning to the church that if they are not faithful, then God is going to take the Gospel away from them. God is going to bring judgment upon them.

And then in the fourth seal we see the rider on the black horse, or on the pale horse, rather. And it is a picture of the fact that indeed God's judgment does come upon the church, because it will not remain faithful. Eventually the Gospel will be silenced.

The fifth seal really gives us an insight into what happens to those who are persecuted, who are born again believers. And they are seen in Heaven under the blood of Christ, or under the altar. That is, they are covered by the blood of Christ. They are redeemed. And they're crying out for God's vengeance to come, for God's justice to be satisfied.

And then the sixth seal gives us a picture of Judgment Day itself.

The seals are quite unrelated to the seven churches, except that we find certain warnings in the language of the seven churches that relate to these six seals, that God will bring judgment upon them if they are not faithful, that the church is used of God to send forth the Gospel, to conquer the forces of evil, and that finally God will take away the authority of the church if they are not faithful, which is akin to judgment coming upon the church.

CALLER: What actually do the churches mean? Are they seven churches throughout the whole world?

HC: The seven churches that we read about, actually, the number seven in the Bible is a figure signifying the perfection of God's plan. Now it is God's plan that throughout the New Testament period, beginning with Pentecost in AD 33, God would be represented upon earth by various denominations and congregations throughout the world. And these would be the official stewards of the Gospel. They would be the places where the born again believers would be found. And they would be sending forth the Gospel into the world.

And the seven churches we find recorded for us in Revelation 2 and 3 are really a figure or a picture of the organized church of Christ as it has gone forth in the world throughout the New Testament period, not in any chronological order, however. They simply are in total a picture of the perfection of God's plan to have His congregations throughout the world.

CALLER: Oh, I see. Okay. I want to thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night

The Fate of the Earth (499A)

HC: Good evening Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Brother Camping, I have a question with reference to what happens to the earth when the end of the world comes, at Christ's second coming.

HC: The question is, what will happen to this earth when the end of the world comes?

Now we find two or three passages that speak to this. We find, for example, in Matthew 24:29 that: "The sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give her light, and the stars will fall from heaven." We read in Revelation 6, where it says that there was a great earthquake. "The sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood, and the stars of heaven fell to the earth, even as a fig tree casts her untimely figs. And the heaven departed as a scroll when it is rolled together, and every mountain and island were moved out of their places."

The most dramatic picture, and the one that shows the ultimate destruction of the earth is found in II Peter 3, where we read in verse 10: "But the day of the Lord shall come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise. And the elements shall melt with fervent heat. The earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up." And then it says in verse 12, talking about the day of God, "wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved and the elements shall melt with fervent heat."

This earth will be altogether destroyed, just parallel to the situation of our bodies. If we die before the last day, our bodies are put in the grave and return to the dust. They are altogether destroyed. And yet they're recreated a new spiritual body that is perfect in every way, that is, if we're born again. And the same thing will be true of the earth. Christ went to the cross to redeem this universe. And so it will experience this redemption in the sense that it will be recreated New Heavens and a New Earth, where righteousness dwells, as we read in II Peter 3.

CALLER: These scriptures I looked up, Ecclesiastes 1:4, Psalm 78:69 and Psalm 104:5, seem to refer to the earth as lasting forever. Could you explain those?

Yes. You see, when God comes to you and me as human beings, and He says that He has given us eternal life, that we will live forever, we must remember that we do not live forever in our present bodies. Do we? We live forever, it's still me, I'm a unique personality, I'm not someone else after I've been resurrected, but nevertheless, it's me who lives forever in my resurrected body. There is this change that occurs that involves a resurrection. My old body goes back to the dust, and my new body is resurrected. Nevertheless God says that I will live forever.

The same is true of the earth. This earth is going to exist forever, no, not as this present sin-cursed earth. But this present sin-cursed earth will be burned by fire and recreated New Heavens and a New Earth. Jesus said, for example, in the Beatitudes, "The meek shall inherit the earth." Not the earth as it's presently constituted, under the curse of sin, but this earth as it will be constituted when it becomes the new universe, the New Heaven and the New Earth.

CALLER: So basically, it's like when the Flood came in Noah's time. The earth was cleansed, and there were new heavens and a new earth in the same respect. Isn't that so?

HC: Is the Flood of Noah's day analogous to this principle of a New Heaven and a New Earth? We could say it is a figure of it or a type of it. But of course it falls far short of reality. It is true that the earth that then existed was destroyed by water. The whole face of the earth was ravaged. And the whole population of the world was destroyed except for those in the ark. And God began all over again. And in that sense it is a figure.

But it of course falls far short of the actuality, because when God talks about the elements melting with fervent heat and the universe being destroyed, it means that it's going to be destroyed? just as when our bodies return to the dust. If you would examine the grave of someone who died thousands of years ago, ordinarily you would find nothing there at all. It just becomes part of the dust of the earth.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you very much.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Daniel's Seventieth Week (548A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. You were speaking earlier on Daniel's Seventy Weeks. And I have a question. In verse 26 it says that the Messiah shall be cut off, and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city. Is it talking about Jesus there?

HC: Yes. The Messiah was the one who was cut off. To cut off means to come under the judgment of God. And He actually is the city that was destroyed. Remember that He called Himself a sanctuary? "Destroy this sanctuary . . ." Jerusalem is a figure for the body of Christ, and Christ is the head of the body. And so in a real sense He is the city, and the people of the prince that destroyed Him of course was the nation of Israel. They are the ones who plotted His crucifixion.

CALLER: Now you were saying that the last half of the seventieth week was at the cross. Now Matthew 24:15 also refers to the abomination of desolation. Is that the same thing? That's the end of time - right?

HC: Yes, that's right near the end of time, the abomination of desolation.

CALLER: Is that making the last half of that week 1900 years or more?

HC: No. You see, in Daniel 9:27 it indicates that in the middle of the seven years sacrifice and offering ceases. That's the cross. That we can't get away from. That's the only point that could be. And we know that the end of the seventieth week is at the consummation and the decreed end being poured out upon the desolator or the desolate. And that's Judgment Day.

And then in addition, it talks about the overspreading of abomination, and that of course, we know from Revelation 20, would identify with the loosing of Satan right before Judgment Day, or Matthew 24:15, where it talks about the abomination of desolation standing in the holy place. That again is right before Judgment Day.

CALLER: But I still don't understand. When does the seventieth week end then?

HC: At Judgment Day.

CALLER: That's what I mean. Then that means the last half.

HC: Oh, I see. That makes the last half of the seventy sevens the whole New Testament period. Absolutely.

CALLER: The first half was dealing in sevens of years.

HC: The first half was actually three and a half years. It went from the baptism of Christ in AD 29 until the crucifixion of Christ in the spring of AD 33. And as a matter of fact, the 483 years before that, the 62 sevens, were actually literal years that did pass by.

But you see, God in these seventy sevens has two paths that lead to the Messiah. They both begin in 458 BC, when Ezra went to Jerusalem to reestablish the Law there. Now to reestablish the Law spiritually is speaking about building the house, or building the city. We are temple builders, or city builders, as we share the Gospel.

Now the first path goes from 458 BC right to the cross, in verse 24. "Seventh weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression and to make end of sins," and so on. From 458 BC to AD 33 is exactly 490 actual years. And that's seventy times seven, 490 years.

But then beginning in verse 25, God gives us a second path to Christ. Only this time it goes to Christ's coming in judgment. The first path was the first coming of Christ, which was exactly 490 years. The second path also ends up with Christ, but it's not quite as simple a path. First of all, it begins with seven sevens of years, or forty-nine years.

Now forty-nine years in the Bible is a Jubilee period. It's the period between two Jubilee years. It happens that 458 was the last Sabbath year of the last Jubilee period. 457 was a Jubilee year, and that means that the first seven sevens of the second path (beginning in verse 25) go from one Jubilee period to the next, which would bring us from 458 BC (the Jubilee year was 457, and the next Jubilee year was 407 BC. All right. Now we're up to 407 BC.

Then it says that there were sixty-two sevens, and these come in unbroken fashion, which is a period of 434 years. The first seven of seven ended with the Jubilee year of 407, so the next year, which would begin the 434 years, would be 406. And going from 406 to AD 29 is exactly 434 years. And then beginning with AD 29 and going for half of a seven brings us to the spring of AD 33, when Christ was crucified.

But now God in this second path is going to take us all the way to the second coming of Christ, and so He indicates that the last half of the seventieth seven is the whole New Testament period. It ends with Judgment Day. And God picks up that figure of three and a half years in Revelation 10, in Revelation 11 and in Revelation 12, as He talks there about 1,260 days, or 42 months or three and a half years, or a time, times and a half a time, which again would speak of the last half of the seventieth seven.

CALLER: And what does it mean, "the end therefore shall be with a flood"?

HC: Well, a flood, I'm not sure of the exact language of this, except that it would indicate the total destruction of that which is in view. When Christ died on the cross, He endured hell for our sins. It was not just a partial destruction of the city and the sanctuary. But it's like Jesus said, "Destroy this sanctuary." And He meant destroy it. He was killed. He endured hell for our sins. And then He said that in three days He would rebuild it.

CALLER: Okay. Very good. Thank you.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

Zechariah 13 and 14 Explained (645C)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Brother Camping, I would like to ask you if you could explain Zechariah 13 & 14 to me. I have a very hard time understanding when it says that His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives. I heard you say there is no future for national Israel. But how do you explain these two chapters?

HC: The question is raised concerning Zechariah 13 and 14. Verse 1 of Zechariah 13 tells us what Zechariah 13 is all about: "In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for uncleanness." Now when was there or will there be a fountain opened for national Israel or for anyone else to have their sins paid for?

CALLER: That's at the cross.

HC: That's at the cross, at the cross, precisely. In other words, Zechariah 13 is prophesying concerning the coming of the Messiah as He goes to the cross. That we can be very certain of. And if you look at verse 9 it emphasizes this. Or look at verse 7: "Awake, O sword, against my shepherd." Now who is God's shepherd, that came to pay for our sins? The Lord Jesus Christ. And was the sword against Him? Yes, indeed. He is the one who died for our sins. And of course the church was scattered. The disciples were scattered at the time that He went to the cross.

But the ones who are saved, typified by the third of verse 9, "I will bring the third part through the fire and will refine them as silver is refined and will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on My Name and I will hear them. I will say, It is My people, and they shall say, The Lord is my God." Now we have been refined because Christ has endured hell, the furnace of fire, if you will, on our behalf. And so we can say, "The Lord is my God." And Christ says of us that we are His people.

So Zechariah 13 very distinctly is talking about the cross. Now Chapter 14, however, is talking about Judgment Day. It talks about all the nations against Jerusalem to battle. And Jerusalem in this context is not literal Jerusalem. And if you read it carefully, you can see that it could not be, because it says the city shall be taken and the houses rifled and the women ravished. And yet it says half the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city. Well, how can it be taken and have half the people still remain there? It doesn't make any sense. If it is taken, it means that the whole city would be destroyed.

But this language is talking about the church, the congregations that will be assaulted at the last time by other gospels, by Satan. And those who go forth into captivity are those who fall snare of these other gospels. And yet half will not be taken. That is, the true believers will remain faithful to the Word of God.

And then it says in verse 3 that the Lord shall go forth and fight against those nations. Now this is picked up in Revelation 19 and Revelation 20, where it talks about Christ coming in judgment. Ant He speaks of it as warfare, as a battle, because the whole relationship between the dominion of Satan on the one hand and the Kingdom of Christ on the other is one of warfare, and this is going to talk about the final battle. And the final battle is Judgment Day. It's not really a battle, but it's the time when Satan is judged, and is cast into hell.

Now let's look at verse 4: "His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives." And it goes on and talks about how the mount is going to be split and then in verse 5 it says, "Ye shall flee to the valley of the mountain, for the valley of the mountain shall reach unto Azazel. Yea, ye shall flee as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Azziah, king of Judah. And the Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee." Ah... Now at the time that He sets His feet on the Mount of Olives, it says, "The Lord my God (that's the last part of verse 5) shall come and all the saints with him."

All right now, in the New Testament God speaks about this. God tells us what this is going to be. We read in I Thessalonians 3:13, "to the end He may establish your hearts unblameable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all His saints." Now when is He coming with His saints?

Well I Thessalonians 4:14-17 tells us this. It says in verse 14, "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him." That's at the end of time, you see, because it says that the dead in Christ shall rise, and the resurrection of the believers is the last day, we learn from John 6.

And so Zechariah 14 is talking about the end of time. It's talking about Judgment

Day, when Christ comes on the clouds of glory and He gathers in His elect, and at the same time the resurrection of those who have died occurs.

CALLER: But this is not literal then.

HC: No. You see, His feet standing on the Mount of Olives is a figure to indicate that He is coming in judgment. We find the same kind of a figure, for example, in Micah 1:3: "For behold, the Lord cometh forth out of His place and will come down and tread upon the high places of the earth. And the mountains shall be molten under Him, and the valleys shall be cleft as wax before the fire and as the waters that have poured down in a steep place. For the transgression of Jacob is all this and for the sins of the house of Israel," and so on. In other words, God is talking about judgment coming and using a figure of Him coming down and treading, or putting His feet on the high places of the earth. And that is the figure that's used in Zechariah 14:4. It is a figure employed to indicate that Christ is coming in judgment.

But as He comes in judgment He comes with His saints, as verse 5 teaches, because it is also the time of the Rapture. And that agrees precisely with the New Testament.

CALLER: Yes. How about verse 16?

HC: Verse 16 says, "And it shall come to pass that everyone that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles." Now you see, the ones who are left are the true believers. They are the remnant chosen by grace out of all the nations of the world. And they are the ones who continue to worship God eternally. God is using Old Testament language of the ceremonial worship in speaking about our worship of the Lord throughout eternity.

CALLER: I thank you so much, Mr. Camping.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

THE TRIBULATION

Believers and the Final Tribulation (180A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. A week ago one of the pastors said that God would never let believers go through the Tribulation. Then a little further along in his conversation he said that we must always take everything literally in the Bible that is meant literally, and not spiritualize that which we cannot. In the light of that statement, how in the world can we understand a Scripture such as John 16:33, which says, "In this world you shall have tribulation."

Now there are many Scriptures in the New Testament that speak about tribulation, such as Matthew 13, Matthew 24, Mark 13, Acts 14, Romans 2, Romans 5, Romans 8, Romans 12, II Corinthians, and on and on. And I'd like to ask you to comment on this question and on the Scriptures that I've offered, and I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: Thank you for calling. Good night.

First of all, let me comment briefly on this observation of taking the Bible literally. Now I've heard this kind of a comment many many times, that we are to understand the Bible literally. If we mean by that that when the Bible speaks historically, we are to understand it historically, I'll accept that. But if we mean something else by that, then I have a big question mark in my mind. And I'm thinking of this.

There are those who read the Bible, and they say, "Well, the verse says 'so-and-so', and we are to just take it because the verse says it. What else is new? What else do we have to talk about? But the biblical rule is that we have to understand Scripture by Scripture. And I can't underscore this enough. We've got to become more and more in the habit of letting the Bible explain itself.

For example, in Revelation 19 it talks about Christ coming on a white horse, with a sword protruding from His mouth, when He comes in judgment. Now there are those who say that we take that literally. What they mean by that is that we just read it, and it says that He's coming on a white horse with a sword protruding from His mouth, and that's what we are to expect to see.

Well, that isn't the way we are to read the Bible. We are to examine the context, and we are to look at the phrases and the words that are used, to see how they're used elsewhere in the Bible. Now we know, for example, that the sword is the Word of God. And this is a picture of Christ coming with the Word of God. We know that there are not horses in Heaven. There just are not horses in Heaven. But the horse is used prominently in the Bible in battle. Again and again, when we read the Old Testament, we read about all the horses that Solomon owned, or that the enemy owned. And it's a white horse. White is constantly used in the Bible to signify purity. And so we find that Christ is coming as King of kings and Lord of lords, to bring judgment upon the nations. And the Sword of the Spirit is the Word of God, which will judge the nations. They will be measured by the standard of God's Word.

Again, if we read Revelation 13:1, where it says, "I saw a beast coming out of the sea, with seven heads and ten horns," now if we're going to understand that just as it stands, without examining that statement in the light of everything else in the Bible, we've got to conclude that God is saying that there's going to come a time when out of the ocean there's going to come this strange beast, with seven heads and ten horns. And you try to draw a picture of that seven heads and ten horns. That doesn't make any sense, does it? We sense that already. But when we look at the rest of the Word of God, we find that it indicates the sea frequently is used as a figure of hell. Frequently it's used as a figure of the place where Satan's abode is.

We find, for example, in Jonah 3, where Jonah is thrown into the sea, and out of the belly of hell he cries, out of the heart of the seas. The seas are frequently a figure of hell. A beast is used in the Bible, particularly in the Book of Daniel, to signify political rule, or certain rule of men on this earth. And so this beast ultimately, when we continue to search out the Scriptures, we will find is a representation of the Kingdom of Satan, as it rules throughout time. And the ten horns represent the rule of Satan in the end time, just before Christ's return.

Now we know that there are many passages that stand as they are, to be understood literally. When God says that Moses went up into Mount Sinai, there's nothing in the Bible at all that says the he didn't go into Mount Sinai. There's nothing to suggest that that's anything but a historical statement, that he went up into Mount Sinai. When God created the heavens and the earth in six days, there's nothing in the Bible that suggests anything different than that. And so we know that these are straight historical statements of fact.

But any passage has got to be examined in the light of the rest of the Bible. Otherwise we're going to end up with wrong doctrine. Now as I've said many times on this program, the Bible is written to foster unbelief, to foster wrong doctrine. Jesus spoke in parables, so that "seeing they would not see, and hearing they would not hear." In other words, He clouded the truth. He covered the truth. And the only way that we can go to the Bible is to go by faith that it is the Word of God, and it is its own interpreter. It is not subject to private interpretation. And then we will actually find what is truth.

When I say that it fosters unbelief, I could prove from the Bible very quickly that we are saved by our works. And I could marshal a dozen verses to prove this, that we are saved by our works. Now you immediately say, "Now wait a minute. That isn't the Gospel. We're saved by grace." Well, how do you know we're saved by grace? I can show you a lot of verses that say we're saved by works.

Well, the only way we can synthesize all this and tie all these verses together is to look at everything that speaks of salvation. And then we'll find that these passages that speak about our works, and how they figure in our salvation, are really speaking of the fact that the works are the evidence of our salvation. And so on and so on.

We've got to read the Bible in the light of the Bible. Now when the Bible talks about tribulation or affliction, we have to read it very very carefully. We can't put words into the mouth of the Bible, so to speak. I think, for example, of an illustration of this. Have you ever heard Revelation 3 referred to as a proof text that we would not go through the Tribulation? This is Revelation 3:10: "Because you have kept My word of patient endurance, I will keep you from the hour of trial which is coming on the whole world, to try those who dwell upon the earth."

Now I've heard this verse offered many times as a proof text that we will not go through the Tribulation. Now when I read this, I don't find the word tribulation here at all. The word tribulation, as we find it in Matthew 24:21, "And then there will be great tribulation, such as this world has never known," is the Greek word thlipsis. And it is found more than a dozen times in the New Testament.

Ordinarily it's translated tribulation or affliction. But here is not found the word thlipsis. The word trial is the Greek word peirasmos, and it is never translated tribulation or affliction or trouble in the Bible. It is simply saying here, "I will keep you from the time when God is going to bring the world to trial."

Now if you have been accused of a crime, you have to go to trial. You stand before the judge. But the born again believers do not go to trial, because we have passed from death into life. Or again, frequently I Thessalonians 5:9 is used as a proof text that we will not go into tribulation. There it says that God has not destined us for wrath but for salvation. But the word thlipsis is not found there at all.

The word wrath, if we check that out in the Bible, is the Greek word orge, and we find it used, for example, in Revelation 6:16. In the context here God is talking about the collapse of the universe. He's talking about the dread and terror of the unsaved, as they call to the mountains and rocks, "Fall on us and hide us from the face of Him who is seated on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb." That's the same word wrath that is used in I Thessalonians 5:9: "For the great day of their wrath has come. And who can stand before it?" Now this is talking about Judgment Day, and we do not come into judgment.

Now on the other hand, when we read the Bible carefully on this subject of tribulation, as has already been offered by our caller, the Bible does teach that in the world you will have tribulation, thlipsis. In fact, if you read the Bible, you'll find (and you can count this), if you research this with a concordance, the word tribulation or affliction or trouble or persecution used over three hundred times in the New Testament. And in more than ninety-five percent of the instances where it is used, it is used in connection with the body of believers, or those who have been born again.

And so this is the normal posture of the believer, to endure tribulation, and why shouldn't he? He's an alien, he's a stranger in a sin-cursed world. The majority of the people of the world are antagonistic toward God, and so this is bound to be a climate, an environment of trial and tribulation and affliction for the believer.

Now the Bible teaches that as we approach the end, wickedness will multiply, as we read in Matthew 24. And so if wickedness multiplies, then we would expect that tribulation would multiply, because as wickedness multiplies it means that the lot of the believer is more and more difficult. And so we're not surprised to read in Matthew 24:21, "And then there will be great tribulation, such as this world has never known and never shall know. But then, notice: "But for the sake of the elect, those days will be shortened."

Now when we search the Bible for all the information we can about the elect, or about this concept of the elect living here while this increase of tribulation develops, we find that there are more than twenty-four places in the Bible where the word elect or chosen is used, or ordinarily it refers to born again believers. We are chosen, we are elect of God, from before the foundations of the earth, we read in Ephesians 1:4.

We are a royal priesthood, an elect race, we read in I Peter 2:9. "For the sake of the elect," that is, for the sake of the born again believers, "those days will be shortened." And then we come to Matthew 24:29-31, and we discover that immediately after the tribulation of those days will appear the Sign of the Son of Man, "and then all the tribes of the earth will see Him coming in power and great glory." And the very first thing that He will do, "He will send out His angels with the sound of the trumpet, to gather His elect." That's the Rapture.

If we'll only let the Bible be the authority, and if we'll only patiently compare Scripture with Scripture, then we'll begin to see that all of these things fit in together. Yes indeed, the believers will go through the final tribulation. They've been going through tribulation all through the history of mankind. Even today there are those who are rotting away in concentration camps. Is that tribulation? Even today there are those who are being beaten because they are serving the Lord Jesus Christ. Is that tribulation? Even today there are believers who are weeping because unsaved loved ones refuse to come to the knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. Is that tribulation?

You see, that is normative for the believer. But praise the Lord, praise the Lord. We know that the day is coming when we will live eternally with the Lord Jesus Christ.

Will the Church Go Through the Tribulation? (246A)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I would like to know, do you think that the church is going to go through the tribulation?

HC: The question that has been raised is, do I think the church will go through the tribulation? Let me ask you this question. Those people who died in the days of Nero, by being tied to a post; and burned to death as blazing torches, do you think they went through tribulation? Those people who were persecuted at various times in history, and tortured to death rather than deny the Lord Jesus Christ, did they go through tribulation? Those people who are in concentration camps today, because they would not deny the faith, are they going through tribulation?

You see, the Bible teaches that it is very normative for believers to undergo tribulation. Jesus said in John 16: "In the world you will have tribulation." Now why does a Christian have tribulation in the world? You see, the world is enslaved to Satan, and the world essentially and substantively is in enmity against Christ and therefore against His Kingdom, of which we are citizens when we are born again.

And so the world will lash out at believers and make life difficult for them in one way or another. And frequently this will develop into heavy persecution and troubles of one kind or another. So we're not at all surprised that again and again the Bible speaks of the fact that we will undergo tribulation.

Now the Bible does teach that as we approach the end, wickedness will multiply. And as wickedness multiplies, obviously tribulation for the believer will also magnify. And so the Bible says that there will be great tribulation, in verse 21 of Matthew 24, "For then there will be great tribulation, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, no, and never will be." Now notice what it says: "And if those days had not been shortened, no human being would be saved. But for the sake of the elect, those days will be shortened."

Now who are the elect? The elect are the born again believers, those who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. We are chosen in Christ before the foundations of the earth. Now during the final tribulation period, there is language in the Bible that suggests there will be no one being saved during this period, because the antagonism of the world will be such that the true Gospel will be hard to find.

But the believers will be here. The elect are the believers. Now notice verse 29 of Matthew 24: "Immediately after," and incidentally, you'll notice it says, "For the sake of the elect, those days will be shortened." You see, tribulation ordinarily is directed against the believers, because they are the ones that Satan is most concerned about, in trying to harass and trying to silence. Notice in verse 9 of Matthew 24: "Then they will deliver you up to tribulation and put you to death. And you will be hated by all nations for My Name's sake." It's speaking about the believers. We are the ones who are hated by all nations, are we not? The true believers are the ones who are the targets of Satan's venom, the targets of Satan's antagonism. They are the ones that are hated by all nations.

CALLER: I thought that the elect were the Jewish people.

HC: But the Bible here is not talking about the Jews. It's talking about the elect.

CALLER: But the Book of Matthew was written to the Jews.

HC: You see, if we're going to decide that the Book of Matthew was written to the Jews, and therefore is not normative for me because I'm a Gentile, and then if we're going to decide that the Book of Romans is not written to me, but to the church at Rome, and therefore it's not normative for me, pretty soon I don't have a Bible, do I?

CALLER: Each book of the four Gospels was written to certain people. Matthew was written to the Jews, Mark was written to the Romans, and then Luke was written to the Greeks.

HC: Well, no. Actually, the Bible teaches that "all scripture is given by inspiration of God." You mentioned that Mark was written to whom? The Romans? Now let's look at Mark then, if you don't care for Matthew. Let's look at the Gospel of Mark.

I'm reading from Mark 13:19: "For in those days there will be such tribulation as has not been from the beginning of the creation which God created until now, and never will be. And if the Lord had not shortened the days, no human being would be saved. But for the sake of the elect . . ."

Now you didn't like Matthew 24, because you thought that was just for the Jews. But now I'm reading from Mark 13. And you see, God says exactly the same thing. The Bible is speaking to me, and it's speaking to you, whether we're a Jew or whether we're a Gentile. When we look at the word elect, we have to see how God uses that word, and we find that He's talking about those who are chosen in Christ, or elect in Christ, from the foundations of the world, to be saved. They are the born again believers at any time in history. And some of these are Jews, and a great many are Gentiles.

In Romans 11, it speaks in verse 5, where it's particularly concerned with the nation of Israel, and it says there that there is a remnant chosen by grace out of the nation of Israel, a remnant "elect" by grace. But it also speaks of Gentiles being elect, you see.

And so the Bible is simply teaching that when we get near the end, Satan will be loosed, wickedness will multiply. And those things that are normative, that is, a world that essentially does not care for the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, a world that is at times bitterly antagonistic to the cause of Christ, so that it is engaging in open persecution, all of these things will become even more greatly manifested in the closing years of the earth's history. But "for the sake of the elect." God says, both in Matthew 24 and in Mark 13, "those days will be shortened."

And then it says, "Immediately after the tribulation of those days, the sun will be darkened." And now I'm reading in Mark 13, if you'd rather have me read there: "the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, and the stars will be falling from heaven, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken." Now this obviously is the language of the end of the universe. It's beginning to collapse, beginning to fall apart.

"And then they will see the Son of Man coming in clouds, with great power and glory." And what is the first thing that He will do, as all of the nations see Him? In Matthew 24 it's expanded. It says, "Then will appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven. And then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven, with power and great glory."

And what will be the first thing He will do? Verse 27 of Mark 13: "Then He will send out the angels and gather His elect from the four winds," that is, the believers who are to be raptured. They will be caught up in the air to be with Christ. All of the believers will go to be with Christ because it is the end of time.

Now this language is very clear that the believers will go through the tribulation. Now this is taught many places in the Bible. We don't have to confine our understanding of this just to Matthew 24 or Mark 13. We can find this kind of a truth in many places, as, for example, Jesus teaches that the resurrection of the believers is the Last Day. Well, the Last Day is the end of time.

CALLER: God indwells believers, and I believe that the Holy Spirit is the restraining force now. And do you believe that the Holy Spirit can indwell people when there is great tribulation?

HC: The question is, if the Holy Spirit is the one who restrains sin, and if He indwells believers, which He indeed does, could there be the presence of the Holy Spirit while there is great tribulation going on?

First of all, let's remember that the Holy Spirit is Eternal God. And God always is present in the world. He was present at creation, He was present throughout the Old Testament period, where we read again and again of the Holy Spirit. He was present while Jesus was ministering on earth. And it is also true that He indwells the lives of the believers.

Right up until the end, God the Holy Spirit will be present. Now it doesn't mean, however, that He will continue to restrain sin as He has throughout time. The Bible teaches, in Matthew 15, that out of the heart of man comes murder and adultery and thefts, and all these terrible things. Or in Jeremiah we read that the heart of man is desperately wicked.

Now if God did not restrain natural unsaved man from sin, this world would destroy itself in the shortest possible time, if man just did entirely what came naturally. But in order that this world will go to its predetermined end, God restrains sin. And He does this completely apart from the fact that He indwells born again believers. God restrains sin in unsaved man directly, as He did for example, in the life of Abimelech, in the days of Abraham, who otherwise would have taken Sarah and ravished her. But God said, "No, I have kept you from that."

God restrains sin because He is God. Now when we read in II Thessalonians 2:7, which I think you're alluding to, where it says that "He that restraineth much be taken out of the way," God is simply saying that He will not restrain sin as He has in the past. He will allow the world to become more wicked than ever.

Now this will obviously increase tribulation for the believers, because they are ultimately the target of the sinful activity of Satan. But for their sake, those days will not go on and on. God will shorten them, so that there still will be believers alive when He returns.

CALLER: Do you believe in the rapture?

HC: Absolutely I believe in the rapture. The Bible teaches, and by the rapture we mean, I think, the time when Christ comes, and those who have not died, and who are born from above believers, will instantly be changed into their resurrected bodies and be caught up in the air to be with Christ.

CALLER: "The dead in Christ will rise first, and then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds."

HC: What about the verse that says that the dead in Christ will rise first, and then we who remain will be caught up together with them in the air? That is I Thessalonians 4:17, I believe. And there Christ is only speaking about the believers. He is simply teaching that the rapture of the believers will be a simultaneous event with the resurrection of the body of believers, that is, those who have died previously and who in the meanwhile have been living and reigning with Christ in Heaven in their soul existence. They will come with Him, and their bodies will be resurrected simultaneously and be caught up in the air simultaneously with the rapture of the believers who are living.

Now if you go on from I Thessalonians 4 into I Thessalonians 5, which is part of the same context, there God speaks about the unbelievers. And there He says that He will come like a thief in the night for them. When they think that all is well, that there is peace and security, then sudden destruction will come upon them. But there He also says that Christ will not come as a thief in the night, for you, believers, because you are children of the day.

CALLER: That's the Jewish people, in the tribulation. They'll say, "Peace and safety," and then sudden destruction will come upon them. That's talking about the Jewish nation, not the Christians.

HC: No, it's talking about the unsaved of the world. How does the Bible use the word destruction? "Broad is the way that leads to destruction." It's not talking about the Jewish people in I Thessalonians 5. It's talking about the unsaved of the world. They are the ones that are subject to perish, to eternal damnation. They are the ones for whom Christ will come as a thief in the night.

You see, the Bible is teaching one central truth, and that is that the world goes along, as Matthew 13 teaches, the wheat and the tares continue right up until the end. And then Christ comes. And at that time the universe begins to collapse. At that time the believers are raptured. At that time the graves are opened, and all the people who have died are resurrected. And at that time we have Judgment Day. And once we catch that, then everything begins to fit into focus.

CALLER: So then you don't believe in the rapture before the tribulation.

HC: Not a bit. There's no possibility of it, I don't know of any language in the Bible that would suggest this.

CALLER: All right. Thank you very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

Let me make a suggestion which may be helpful. And I say this very, very kindly. I'm sure that I've said this before, but let me say it again. Particularly when we talk about the rapture, and talk about tribulation, you will hear me say things that make you say, "My, oh my, I can't believe it, that that's what the Bible teaches. The fact is, I'm sure that I've read in the Bible something quite different from what you are saying." For example, when I say believers will go through the final tribulation period, everything about you is saying no, no, no, no, "I read something different in the Bible."

Now one of the problems is this. There are a number of Bibles on the market today which have within them marginal notes. One of those Bibles, for example, is the Berkeley Version of the Bible. Now the Berkeley Version of the Bible is a rather good translation. But in the margin you will find the date given, and you will find explanatory notes. Now this is very unfortunate. It's very unwise, because these explanatory notes are the work of the translators. They're not the divine Word at all.

Many Bibles, for example, have in their margins the date of creation as 4004 BC. And this has been drilled into us because we've seen it in the margin of our Bibles. Now that's no more a Biblical statement than Time magazine is a Biblical statement, or the Examiner, or any newspaper is a Biblical statement. That is simply the opinion of a man by the name of Usher, who worked out a time plan. And it happens to be a very incorrect time plan. But some of the editors or publishers of Bibles have put this in the margin. And therefore a lot of people believe that they have read somewhere in the Bible that the world was created in 4004 BC.

Now this is what happens when notes are put in the margin of a Bible. We involuntarily begin to accept those notes as being part of the Holy Canon. And yet under no circumstance are they. The fact is, if you are asked, "Is this note infallible?" you off course would admit, "Of course it's not infallible." But because it is on the page of the Bible you have accepted it involuntarily as being part of the Holy Canon.

Now the New Jerusalem Bible is produced this way, with marginal notes. And there is another Bible that has had a profound effect on the lives of many many believers in the United States, and that is the Scofield Bible. Now the Scofield Bible is the King James Bible. It's a very excellent reputable translation. But in the margin you will find certain explanations. And if you use the Scofield Bible, you will find that repeatedly, when you are reading the text of the Bible, and you find that it's kind of hard to understand, the first thing that you do (and you'll have to admit that this is the way it is) is read the explanation on the bottom of the page. And you'll say, "Oh, oh, this is the way we're to understand this."

Now unfortunately those explanations are not always correct. Sometimes they are, but frequently they are not. But if you use a Bible like the Berkeley Version, or the Scofield Bible, or one of these others, for a long time, and you have repeatedly read these marginal notes, pretty soon you have a very difficult time separating in your mind what you read in the notes and what you read in the text. All you know is that it was in the Bible.

The fact is, there are even some ministers who go so far as to say, the only Bible to get is a Scofield Bible. Now why do they say that? Because they want your thinking to be conditioned by those notes in the margin. Now it's fine to read commentaries. But when we read a commentary, then we know that it's not the Bible. We know that it was a separate book, and it's the work of man, and it is fallible.

But when we read something repeatedly on the same page as the text of the Bible itself, we pretty soon have a very difficult time separating what is the Bible and what is not the Bible. And so on this program, again you will hear me say things concerning Christ's return that just flabbergast you, to use a word. It really upsets you. "The Bible doesn't say that! He's wrong. The believers don't go through the tribulation. The rapture could occur at any time. I read it in the Bible."

Well, did you read it in the Bible? Did you really read that in the Bible? Or did you read it in the notes at the bottom of the page somewhere? And has this become impressed on your memory as being part of the Holy Canon? This is the big question, you see.

And the only way you can test this is to say, "Well, okay. I better check. I better really check. Did I read it in the Bible? If I really believe that the believers won't go through tribulation, I'd better try to find those verses that teach that. If I really believe that the Gospel of Matthew is only for the Jews, I'd better find that in the Bible."

Just because a commentator said this, or a theologian said that, that doesn't prove anything at all. I've got to find it in the Bible. The Bible is the guidebook. And I don't know personally anything in the Bible that tells me that the Book of Matthew is for the Jews, and it's not for me. Then I would have to conclude that the Gospel of John, Chapter 3, was for Nicodemus. He was a Pharisee. He was a Jew. It's not for me.

And you begin to immediately sense that this will lead nowhere. Then it means that we finally end up without a Bible. I'm pleading here that we recognize that if we have used a Bible with marginal notes (and I say this kindly, I don't say this to press you or to put you on the spot, or to call names, or to do anything), then you're going to be troubled by the fact that your knowledge of the scripture is going to be mixed up between what you read in the Bible and what you read in those notes. And it's very difficult to separate.

I personally would not like to use a Bible with marginal notes, because I don't want to have that kind of thing happening. I want to know what the Bible says, and oh yes, I read a commentary over there. But that was a commentary. That was not in the Bible. If you've used a Bible with marginal notes, it's going to be very difficult to sense when you're really hearing truth, because you're going to be evaluating it against what you read in those marginal notes, as well as what you read in the Bible. And so you do not have a clear standard by which to measure. And you're going to have to do the hard work of beginning to individually check out these truths and see what the Bible really says.

I personally would never recommend a Bible with marginal notes. Even though you may have a high confidence in many of these who have written these marginal notes, and even though they may be right part of the time, nevertheless they under no circumstances are infallible as the Bible is infallible. And I don't want to read from them on the same page as the Bible, because I might be picking up their ideas as being infallible, and accepting their ideas as the Bible. And that would be very unfortunate. Then I'm not able to really know truth any longer.

Well, I thought this might be helpful to someone.

The Fall of the Corporate Church in the Last Days (260E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I'd like to have some points clarified about the last days. First of all, is not the true church the body of believers, or the body of Christ?

HC: When we talk about . . . your question is: Is not the true church the body of believers.

Now in the Bible, when the Bible talks about the church, or the Kingdom of God, or the congregation, it is speaking of it from two vantage points. It is speaking of it organizationally, or corporately. The congregations, for example, or the seven churches of Revelation 2 and 3, or the congregation which consisted mainly of the nation of Israel in the Old Testament, or the congregation that Jesus belonged to when He was on earth, that's the corporate congregation. That is the organized church as we find it spread out throughout the congregations and denominations found in the world today.

But He also uses the word church in the sense of the born again believers who are found in all of the organized churches, sprinkled through the organized churches. And they are the only ones, of course, who are eternal, who really have entered into the Kingdom of God in a real way, so that they have eternal life. That's the true church.

CALLER: When you talked about the last days, you said that Satan would overcome the church. So therefore you're talking about the corporate church, the organized church.

HC: Yes, because the true believers, of course, can't lose their salvation. They'll just patiently wait for all this to pass over.

CALLER: I'd like to read from Matthew 24, starting with verse 7: "For nation shall rise against nation; and kingdom against kingdom. And in various places there will be famines and earthquakes. But all these things are merely the beginning of birth pangs. Then they will deliver you up to tribulation and will kill you, and you will be hated by all nations on account of My Name. And at that time many will fall away, and will betray one another and hate one another. And many false prophets will arise and will mislead many. And because lawlessness is increased, most people's love will grow cold. But the one who endures to the end, he shall be saved. And this Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a witness to all the nations. And then the end shall come."

Reading these few verses here, it would seem to indicate to me that the Gospel will be preached until the very end, because it says that after the Gospel is preached, then the end shall come.

HC: Yes, except that that assumes that the end is immediately. In other words, that assumes that one day you have the Gospel being proclaimed, and the next day Judgment Day is here. Actually, the final tribulation spoken of in verse 15 really is just a final little period of time just before the end. But in the perspective of all of time, it is just an incidental point in time, as compared with all of time.

What I'm trying to say is that I think in verse 14, where it says, "Then the end will come," we have a statement that is giving an overall view. But then we have these other statements, like Jesus' statement of John 9, "Work while it is day. The night cometh when no man can work," which is focusing now on this in greater detail. It's opening it up so that we can look a little bit more carefully at the end. We've got a magnifying glass now, and we're looking right at the end.

Again, the language of Revelation 7 is a magnifying glass looking right at the end. I believe that Amos 8 is the same kind of a thing, where it says, "Men will run to and fro looking for truth, and they will not find it." There will be this brief period when the Gospel will be silenced. And this of course is Daniel 8, where it says that the continual will be taken away, and the sanctuary will be overthrown. This is the language again, you see, of the silencing of the Gospel.

CALLER: As you read this Matthew 24, up to verse 14, it's talking about all these "ends." And then you go to verse 15, and it says "Therefore." And that seems to expand on the previous verses.

HC: That's exactly it. Now you see, in verses 7 and 8 God is simply giving us the language of what is normative for the world, throughout time nation rising against nation, kingdom against kingdom, famines and earthquakes, and so on. "This is but the beginning of the birth pangs." This is what precedes.

And then in verses 9 through 14, very quickly He is giving us the pattern of the end. "Then." This is a time reference. Sometimes you find the word then, and it's not a time reference. But in this Matthew 24, whenever you find the word "then," it's a time reference. "Then." Now He's going back to His initial premise, that He's laid down in verse 3: "Tell us, when will this be, and what will be the sign of your coming and the end of the world?"

And so in verse 9 He's saying, "Then [that is, after you've had these wars and famines and earthquakes, which are a normative thing - they may even speed up at the end, although we have no way of saying it's absolutely so - but at least that is the condition that will always be in the earth] they will deliver you up to tribulation and put you to death, and you will be hated by all nations for My Name's sake." Now that matches the language of Revelation 20:8 where it talks about Satan being loosed: "And he will marshal the nations from the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog. And they will assault the camp of the saints [or the Beloved City, which is the body of Christ]." They will assault this. So here we have some details about it. "You will be subject to tribulation, and some of you they shall put to death. And you will be hated."

And then in verse 10 He's giving another aspect, indicating the tremendous activity of false prophets: "Many will fall away." And verse 11: "And many false prophets will arise, and lead astray." Verse 12: "Wickedness is multiplied. Most men's love will grow cold." In other words, the church is being decimated right and left.

The true body of Christ can never lose its salvation. But you see, here's the thing that's going to happen. Within the corporate church as we see it today, in any congregation, today the best we can do, and this is a traumatic idea, when you stop to think of it. When we look at any normal time in history, if a pastor looks at his congregation and sees he has 200 members, and they have all joined the church and they all partake of Communion and they're all reasonably faithful people, he may have questions about two or three of them, but fundamentally he really wants to believe, and as nearly as he can tell, they're all children of God. They're all born again believers. He has no reason to believe anything different than this.

And that's the way the church normally exists throughout time. And so these 200 people, they live and they die. And when they're buried, the minister preaches a burial service. And everybody is grateful because they know Brother John is in Heaven now. They have no way of knowing for sure whether he was born again or not.

But the Bible teaches, of course, that in the congregation, and we see it in the seven churches of Revelation, we see it in the church of Jesus' day, everyone in the corporate church is not born again. Many are not. Many have just been making like a Christian.

And so I expect to see that the true church, or the corporate church, will be decimated, so that here and there we're only going to find that there are only relatively small percentages of true believers in the congregation, after all.

CALLER: The true church are the believers.

HC: Let me put it another way. Here is a congregation that finally succumbs, and a man begins to be the pastor who is not bringing the true Gospel anymore. He's bringing another gospel. Most of the church, or maybe half of the church, or some part of it, is going to go right along. They're going to trust the pastor, and they're going to go right along with these other gospels, because they're not born again believers.

But there will be those in that congregation who will say, "Wait a minute. We can't stay here any longer, because this isn't the true Gospel anymore." And so they have to leave. And so that congregation effectively is going to be silenced then, isn't it? It's no longer the true church, but it was the true church. That is, it was the custodian of the Gospel. It was represented in Heaven symbolically by a lampstand, as we read in Revelation 1 and 2. But it has become ruled over by those who are another gospel.

CALLER: If these people are led away, then they were never actually members of the true church and the body of Christ.

HC: Let me say it again. Any congregation today is composed of saved and unsaved Christians. Okay? And as long as it brings the true Gospel, to any degree, in other words, as long as it holds that the Bible alone and in its entirety is the Word of God, even though it may bring it fallaciously at times, and poorly at times, yet it is the church of Christ. It is the body of believers. And as near as we can tell, we have to assume that the members are born again believers.

But when these snares strike, that we read about here, false prophets arise, leading many astray, wickedness is multiplied, many will fall away, we're going to find that many of these congregations only had a handful of true believers. Or maybe they had as many as two-thirds true believers. I don't know what the number will be.

And as they come under the rule of those who bring other gospels, the true believers will leave. And in this way the church is finally silenced, you see. The moment there's no true believers in that congregation anymore, then it's an apostate church. Then it no longer has any relationship with Christ.

CALLER: Are we looking at the church as the collective body of believers on this whole planet?

HC: Yes, but it will not be able to work as God normally has it work, as congregations of born again believers, for whatever reason. I don't know how all this is going to take place, but God indicates that the true Gospel will be silenced, and the believers probably will be scattered to some degree. We already see this in some communities. In some smaller communities, there may only be three churches in town. And you go to all three, and you find that they're not bringing the Gospel.

And so what do you do? Well, the best you can do is hope that you can find someone else in the community to worship with, and form your own church.

How Long Will the Tribulation Last? (293D)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Good evening. I would like to ask you if it mentions anywhere in the Bible just exactly how long the tribulation is going to last. And if it does, is that a symbolic number or an actual number? And I'll take my answer on the air.

HC: All right. Fine. Thank you. Good night.

The question is raised, How long will the tribulation, the final tribulation that must come against the believers, last? When we study the Bible regarding this question, there are four numbers that relate to the question.

The first number is seventy years. The Bible teaches that God came against Israel and said that they would be afflicted for seventy years because of their rebellion against God. And this is found in a number of places. I think immediately of II Chronicles 36, where we read of the destruction of Judea. They went into exile in Babylon (verse 21), "to fulfill the Word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had enjoyed its Sabbath. All the days that it lay desolate it kept Sabbath, to fulfill seventy years." Now that's one figure that God gives to us as a possible length of time for tribulation.

Now incidentally, this first period of seventy years is a literal period that did exist for Israel. It went from 609 BC, when Josiah was killed, until 539 BC, when Babylon was overcome by the Medes and the Persians. And at that time the first contingent of Jews returned to Jerusalem. During that seventy year period Israel was in deep trouble. During the first part of this seventy year period, from 609 BC, the Egyptians troubled Israel, and then the Babylonians troubled them, and then finally, in 587 BC, Babylon actually destroyed Israel. And it was not until 539 BC, seventy years after Josiah's death in 609 BC, that Israel began to return to its own land. This was the first fulfillment of this seventy years.

But nevertheless, the language of this seventy years has end time implications and certainly must be a number to be considered when we're thinking about the length of the final tribulation.

The second number that must be considered is the period from 609 BC, until 587 BC, when Judah was destroyed by Babylon, a period of twenty-three years. That too could be related in some sense to the final tribulation.

The third number that must be considered is a number found in Acts 7. This is a surprising place to look for a number relating to the final tribulation, but it really does, because in Acts 7 Stephen is preaching, and he's talking about the famine that came on the land at the time that Joseph had become Prime Minister over Egypt. And in verse 11 of Acts 7 he says, "Now there came a famine throughout all Egypt and Canaan, and great affliction. And our fathers could find no food."

Now the interesting thing about this phrase "great affliction" is that this phrase is only found three places in the Bible. It's found in Matthew 24:21, where it says, "And then there will be great tribulation." The word tribulation in Matthew 24:21 is the identical word to the word that we find here in verse 11 of Acts, "great affliction" or "great tribulation," the Greek word is the same.

The other place where this term "great tribulation" or "great affliction" is found is in Revelation 7, but there the context surely indicates that it's talking about the sum total of all the tribulation that believers will endure throughout time.

And so we're attracted to Acts 7, because we have the same language that we find in Matthew 24:21, where it talks about the tribulation period. Now this tribulation was a seven year period. You'll recall that the famine existed in the land for seven years, but actually, at the end of two years Jacob and his family came into Egypt under the care and keeping of Joseph. So they actually only experienced two years. But tribulation was to continue seven years.

So here are three choices. There's seventy years, there's twenty-three years, and there is seven years. Now there are those who talk about Daniel 9:27 as the tribulation period, or as referring to the tribulation period. But that context has nothing at all to do with the tribulation period. That's talking about something altogether different.

When we continue to study the Bible, however, we discover that those days will be shortened. Those days will be shortened. Do you remember you read that in Matthew 24? Maybe that won't be recalled very quickly. But let me read it, "For then there will be great tribulation, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, no and never will be. And if those days had not been shortened, no human being would be saved. But for the sake of the elect those days will be shortened."

Now this sets up a very interesting analogy. Tribulation, which is called "great tribulation," identical language to Matthew 24:21, that the family of Jacob went under, should have lasted seven years. The famine was in the land seven years. It was shortened for the, however, to two years, because after two years they came under the care and keeping of Joseph in Egypt, where there was sufficient grain for them.

So in their case it was shortened. It should have been seven years, but it was shortened to two years. Isn't that interesting? And so we look at these other tribulation numbers that are suggested in the Bible – the twenty years that I spoke about, and the twenty-three years – and we sense that it probably won't be either of these, but it will be a shortened period.

And lo and behold, when we go to Daniel 8, we find a period of time there that is a time of tribulation, it is a time when the Gospel is silenced. The continual has been taken away. The place of the sanctuary has been overthrown. And it speaks there of a period of 2300 evenings and mornings, which is about six years and four months.

Now this is a significant number: 2,300 evenings and mornings, because it relates in number fashion to the twenty-three years we've already spoken about. God very frequently uses numbers in a symbolic fashion to illustrate a spiritual truth. Twenty-three years, 2300 evenings and mornings. Two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings is much shorter than twenty-three years, and certainly shorter than the seventy years.

So I believe that this is the length of the period when the Gospel will be silenced. It relates to the other numbers, it matches the requirements of Matthew 24:21, that those days will be shortened. They should have been much longer, like the twenty-three years or the seventy years. But they will be shortened down to 2300 evenings and mornings.

Now the question logically could be asked, how do you know that that's a literal period of time? When we search the Bible for other language concerning evenings and mornings, the one outstanding place where we find reference to this is Genesis 1, where God created in six days. And each time it says there was evening and morning, one day.

From the context of Genesis 1, as well as from everything else the Bible teaches, we know that those were twenty-four hour days. They were literal days. And if this is so in Genesis 1, and there is no other evidence in the Bible to offer anything else contrary to this, we must then conclude that the 2300 evenings and mornings of Daniel 8 are twenty-four hour periods of time. This then would give us a little more than six years as the period when the Gospel is silenced. That will be the time when the tribulation will be most severe for the believers, inasmuch as it will be a dreadful time, without people being saved, without any opportunity to share the Gospel. Wickedness will have increased. There will be great trauma in the world because of other judgments that have come against the world because of their apostasy. But all of this will end with Christ Himself coming on the clouds of glory.

THE BEAST / THE ANTICHRIST

The Mark of the Beast in Revelation 20:4 (143E)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: In Revelation 20:4, is the mark of the beast on the forehead and on the hand to be taken literally, or is it symbolical?

HC: The question that is raised is concerning Revelation 20:4. What is the beast named there, and what does it mean when it speaks of those who have the beast's mark on their foreheads or their hands?

CALLER: Now in Revelation 13 and in Revelation 17 it speaks about a beast coming up out of the sea with seven heads and ten horns. And that beast is worshipped as God by the unsaved. It is intimately related to the dragon, who is Satan himself. And so we know that the beast is a reference to the kingdom of Satan, or to Satan himself. You can't have a kingdom without a king, nor a king without a kingdom. And the beast and the dragon are references to Satan himself, or to his kingdom.

Now all of the peoples of the world are slaves of Satan. Now when a man had a slave, that slave was marked in some fashion. It either was branded, or his ear was clipped, or whatever. And here it speaks about those who have the mark of the beast, that is, the mark of the kingdom of Satan on them, on their foreheads or their hands. That is, their wills, represented by their hands, have been sold out to Satan. And their foreheads means their intellects, their minds, have been sold out to Satan. They are totally the slaves of Satan.

You see, they are unsaved. They cannot come to life. But if we do not have the mark of the beast, that is, if we are not identified with the dominion of Satan, which of course occurs when we become born again, then to be martyred, or to die, is no victory for Satan. We simply leave our body and go to live and reign with Christ in Heaven as a soul being. And this is what is in view here. "I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded." These are disembodied souls.

CALLER: Yes. Thank you so very much.

HC: You're welcome. Good night.

The Two Beasts in Revelation 13 (234B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: I have a question on the thirteenth chapter of the Revelation. I was wondering if you could explain what the difference is between the two beasts. And I'd also like to know if you could elaborate on the last verse of the chapter, about the beast's number being 666.

HC: The question is raised concerning the two beasts of Revelation 13. What is the difference between them? What do they signify? And then, the question is asked also about the number 666 that is found in the last verse of the chapter.

The first beast comes out of the sea. It has ten horns and seven heads, with ten crowns or diadems upon its horns, and a blasphemous name upon its head. And it "was like a leopard, its feet were like a bear's, and its mouth was like a lion's mouth. And to it the dragon gave his power and his throne and great authority." Now this is our first clue, that really teaches who this first beast is. "The dragon gave to it his power and his throne and great authority."

Now the dragon is Satan. Again and again in the Bible God speaks about the dragon as Satan, or Satan as the dragon. And the beast therefore would be the kingdom of Satan, totally synonymous with Satan himself. But it is the kingdom of Satan as it is found in the world throughout time. The seven heads refer to the rule of Satan throughout time.

In Revelation 17 we find another reference to this beast, and we find in verse 8: "The beast that you saw was and is not, and is to ascend from the bottomless pit and go to perdition." It says that "the seven heads are seven mountains, or hills on which the woman is seated. They are also seven kings, five of whom have fallen. One is and the other is not yet come. And when he comes, he must remain only a little while." Therefore, it's speaking already in the past tense of seven of the heads, five of the seven heads representing kings who had already reigned. Now this simply is indicating that it is going all the way back into time, wherever the kingdom of Satan has been. It is the rule of Satan as it is found in the earth.

Now the ten horns more particularly relate to the rule of Satan right at the end of time, and tie very closely, incidentally, into the second beast, or in some respects to the second beast, as I'll show in a moment. But the ten horns do refer to the rule of Satan at the end of time because again, when we read Revelation 17, it says in verse 12, "And the ten horns that you saw are ten kings, who had not yet received royal power. But they are to receive authority as kings for one hour, together with the beasts."

Now the interesting thing is that in the Book of Daniel God makes reference to ten horns, out of which the little horn comes. And when we look at the Book of Daniel carefully, we find that in this reference to the ten horns and the little horn, it is really speaking about the false prophets, or it's talking about the church itself. The fourth beast spoken of in Daniel seven has ten horns: "And I considered the horns. And behold, there came up among them another horn, a little one, before which three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots. And behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things."

"Eyes like a man" is a figure of speech speaking about prophets. If we tie that back into Isaiah 29:10, we can see this. Now the beast, therefore is the kingdom of Satan that rules throughout time, although particularly the period that's in view here is the whole New Testament period, the forty-two months of Chapter 5. And in verse 3 it says, "One of its heads seems to have had a mortal wound," indicating that at the cross Satan was dealt a death blow. The kingdom of Satan was dealt a death blow because of Christ's victory on the cross.

But yet, "Its mortal wound was healed. And the whole earth followed the beast with wonder." You see, the kingdom of Satan still goes on, even though the destruction of Satan and all the wicked was guaranteed because of Christ's work at the cross. Yet the kingdom goes on.

Then in verse 4 it says, "Men worshipped the dragon, for he had given his authority to the beast, and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like the beast and who can fight it?" Now this beast is what unsaved man is totally involved in. Any unsaved man is a worshipper of the beast, a worshipper of the kingdom of Satan, a worshipper ultimately of Satan himself.

Now in verse seven it says that this beast was allowed to make war on the saints and to conquer them. And this of course is pointing to the end of time, just before Christ returns, when Satan will be able to silence the Gospel.

Now beginning in verse 11 it speaks about a second beast coming out of the earth, that had "two horns like a lamb, and it spoke like a dragon." Now the minute it says that it spoke like a dragon, we know that again it is totally Satan related.

Now this beast is Satan in his religious rule, particularly, as he works through false prophets and false christ. "Two horns like a lamb." You see, he appears like Christ Himself. Christ is the Lamb that was slain. Remember, in II Corinthians 11 it speaks about Satan going about as an angel of light. Well, that's another figure that is tied in with this other beast that rose up out of the earth. The phrase "out of the sea" or "out of the earth" is a figure relating to hell itself. Hell is sometimes spoken of as the heart of the earth, or the heart of the seas.

Now this beast works great signs, "even making fire come down from Heaven to earth in the sight of men. And by the signs which it is allowed to work in the presence of the beast, it deceives those who dwell on earth, bidding them make an image for the beast which was wounded by the sword and yet lived. And it was allowed to give breath to the image of the beast, so that the image of the beast should even speak, and to cause those who would not worship the image of the beast to be slain."

Now you see, Satan, as he controls the minds of unsaved men, normally does not show himself to be of any life, or the giver of any life, or of having any life characteristics. A political kingdom ultimately is a fairly dead kind of a kingdom. It exists, and then it doesn't exist. It has no supernatural power.

But when Satan comes through his emissaries, false prophets and false christ, who come with signs and wonders, as predicted in Matthew 24:24, as he comes through occult activity of one kind or another, this makes the worship of Satan far more glorious and marvelous. Now of course those who are worshipping him don't understand that they're worshipping him. They are deceived, because Satan is the great deceiver. But nevertheless, ultimately they are worshipping him.

And they give breath to the image of the beast. They make the worship of the kingdom of Satan a live venture, as if through this there is a vital, energetic eternal relationship with the god that they are worshipping failing to realize that their god is Satan, and that he is doomed to eternal damnation.

Now those who worship the beast are spoken of in verse 18 as having a number, the number of man. Now as I've said before perhaps, in the King James Bible the translation is, in this instance, a poor translation. In your King James Bible you'll find that it says, "It is the number of a man." But the word that is used here, the Greek word, is the identical word that is used in the Bible repeatedly where it speaks of Christ being the Son of Man. Now under no circumstance would that be translated the "Son of a Man," because Christ under no circumstance was the Son of a man. He was the Son of Man. He was of mankind. In other words, He was a human being.

And here also the same word is used, so it would have to mean that it is the number of man, the number of mankind, the number of the human race. In other words, anyone at all who is unsaved symbolically has the number 666 on his forehead. It is the number assigned to an unsaved man, who is destined for hell, because he is a slave of Satan.

Now this number originally had its beginning in Zechariah 13, or at least it's referred to there, where it says in verse 8: "Two-thirds I will cut off and destroy, but one-third." And it goes on to speak about the redemption of the one-third. The number two-thirds, if written as a decimal, is .666666. And if we just use the first 3 numbers, we get 666.

And there are at least two illustrations in the Bible where this is put forth. We read about David, when he defeated the Moabites, that he caused them to lie down in three lines. Two of the lines he put to death. One line he spared, and they served him. David there was a type of Christ as Messiah, the two-thirds a figure of those who are under the judgment of God, the one-third a figure of those who are saved.

In II Kings 1 we read of Elijah, that he was sent for by the wicked king of Israel. And a company of men came to take him, and he called down fire from heaven, and they were destroyed. A second company of men came to take him, and he called down fire from heaven, and they were destroyed. A third company of men came to take him, and plead for mercy, and they were spared. Again we have two-thirds being destroyed, one-third being spared.

Well, there, just very quickly, is an outline of some of the ideas presented in Revelation 13.

Who Will the Antichrist Be? (330B)

HC: Good evening. Welcome to Open Forum.

CALLER: Yes. I'm wondering, is the antichrist going to be a real Jew, or is he going to be a Gentile?

